153. Each branch should have a limited number of standard plans adapted to local conditions and expectations. The halls should be sized slightly larger than the expected regular meeting attendance and ideally located for use by more than one congregation.

154. Although Assembly Halls can be convenient, they are not always cost-effective. In many cases, suitable venues can be provided by renting local facilities. However, if renting is not viable, it might be appropriate to consider building. Assembly Halls should be well-located, simple, practical, easy to maintain, and of modest appearance. If a need arises for an Assembly Hall near a border with an adjacent country, an analysis should be done to see whether it is feasible to share the facility across borders. Planning in this way helps not to impose expensive or time-consuming burdens on the brothers. In some cases, it may be practical to construct a Kingdom Hall with a covered expandable seating area for use by one or two circuits. The RDC will assist in planning and providing design criteria for Assembly Halls and expandable Kingdom Halls. Further details can be found in Assembly Hall Design/Construction Guidelines (DC-13).

155. In addition to expediting the work, attention should be given to reducing the cost of Kingdom Halls and Assembly Halls by considering the standardization of design and materials; by using global, regional, and local purchasing arrangements; and by making use of local resources.—See 5:142.

156. The number of Bethelites in the LDC should be kept to a minimum. The focus should be on having those in the field accomplish as much of the work as possible. Local congregation volunteers should provide most of the labor and be involved in all aspects of the work. The Local Design/Construction Department Guidelines (DC-3) provide direction on the operation of the LDC and the use of local workforce.

157. The RDC should maintain close communication with the LDC. The RDC may assign a representative to visit periodically to review the progress of the Kingdom Hall and Assembly Hall program and provide assistance to the branch.

158. It is recognized that for the efficient operation of Construction Groups and field representatives, travel is needed. In general, the branch should provide the necessary vehicles or direct that public transportation be used for the majority of work-related needs. While it is expected that the vehicle assigned to each Construction Group would be used for the daily commute to the project and for most necessary transport related to theocratic construction assignments, it is understood that in some cases brothers will have their own vehicles that can be used. If using a personal vehicle is more cost-effective than using other transportation, a reimbursement based on the approved rate may be given.

159. Bible Schools: The Service and Teaching committees generally prefer to keep the number of permanent buildings for school facilities to a minimum. Generally, Assembly Halls rather than branch facilities should be considered as sites for school facilities. If it is decided that a permanent facility is necessary, the WDC will work with the RDC and the branch to determine the optimum size, capacity, and location of the facility.

160. While it is desirable to minimize expense, the basic requirements for a school include a classroom with adequate seating and reasonable space between students, good lighting and ventilation, adequate audio and video equipment, sanitary bathroom facilities, and modest accommodations with study areas for students and instructors.

161. Real Estate: The WDC coordinates all real estate purchases, sales, leases, financial analyses, and broker relationships, as well as the sales of any donated properties that are not suitable for or needed by the organization. The WDC is assisted by qualified brothers in the RDCs, who are familiar with the unique business, cultural, and real estate environment in their assigned region.

162. The day-to-day real estate recordkeeping should be handled by the Branch Real Estate Desk (BRED) in the Accounting Department of each branch.—See 5:24.

163. Kingdom Hall and Assembly Hall properties that are part of the approved annual budget can be purchased with Branch Committee approval after thorough consideration of their suitability, based on information supplied in a Property Evaluation (DC-31) and a Building Evaluation (DC-32) if the acquisition includes existing buildings. These property purchases are coordinated by the LDC. If the cost of a Kingdom Hall or an Assembly Hall property is greater than the maximum approval limit assigned to the branch each year, the Branch Committee recommendation should be submitted to the RDC. When a very expensive or complex project is being considered, the Branch Committee will work with the RDC to submit a concept approval request by means of a Kingdom Hall Construction/Renovation Proposal (DC-24) prior to expending substantial effort developing the project. All property purchase requests should be made by means of a Project Approval Request (DC-41).—See 5:166.

164. The LDC initiates the sale of Kingdom Halls, Assembly Halls, and special full-time servant field residence properties that have been identified as unneeded in harmony with the master plan. If the fair market value of a property is greater than the maximum approved sale amount assigned to the branch, the Branch Committee recommendation should be sent to the RDC for direction before marketing. All property-sale requests should be made by means of a Project Approval Request (DC-41). The sale of branch properties that are no longer needed will be coordinated by the WDC.

165. Other property should be purchased only in conjunction with an approved project. The WDC and the RDC will work with the branch to determine how best to identify needed property or existing buildings for a project, such as a remote translation office (RTO), school, or depot. Generally, the Branch Committee is in a good position to make a recommendation regarding the best location for a given project. In many cases, experienced brothers in the field are well-qualified to identify and determine the suitability of a property.

166. Donated properties should be evaluated in the same manner. If it appears that a donated property should be retained for organizational needs, a request should be handled in the same manner as a property being considered for purchase.—See 5:163.

167. Rental of property by means of an annual or a multiyear contract can be a cost-effective way of filling the need for a branch, a Kingdom Hall, or a remote facility, such as an RTO, a school, or a depot. If the need is temporary, renting is often the best solution. However, renting for many years is usually avoided. The branch and the RDC will review all rentals annually. An evaluation of the benefits of renting versus purchasing should be made for each project. If the monthly rental amount is greater than the USD 1,000 per month approval limit for each new project, the Branch Committee recommendation should be submitted to the RDC for further direction and approval from headquarters. Congregations should rent Kingdom Hall locations that they can afford. For exceptional situations—when there are no alternatives and the Branch Committee determines that congregation(s) cannot cover the full cost of renting a Kingdom Hall—the Branch Committee may wish to recommend subsidizing a portion of the rental cost. In such a situation, details can be provided to the Publishing Committee for approval.

168. Volunteers: In addition to those whose Local Design/Construction Volunteer Applications (DC-50) have been approved, there are four categories of workers available for local and international construction projects. These are: (1) construction volunteers, (2) part-time construction commuters, (3) full-time construction commuters, and (4) construction servants.

169. If a construction volunteer is skilled and has indicated that he or she would be willing to accept a foreign assignment, the branch should forward an electronic copy of his or her application to the WDC. Construction volunteers who have proved effective in an assignment and are well-organized, skilled, and available for long-term assignments may be encouraged to submit an Application to Become a Member of the Worldwide Order (A-8).

170. Consideration can be given to appointing single sisters as construction servants who have served as construction volunteers for at least three months. However, discretion should be used so that only single sisters who have the needed spiritual, emotional, technical, and health qualifications to do well in long-term assignments are encouraged to apply. Single sisters who are approved for a foreign assignment would generally be assigned to a branch construction project where the branch has verified that it is able to care for them adequately.

171. Although the need for construction varies, maintenance of facilities is always of importance. It is vital that brothers and sisters see the need to make themselves available for this work. Branch Committees can do much to keep this need present in the minds of the brothers in general. It is helpful periodically to prepare a letter that outlines the need in the branch territory and includes some encouraging expressions from those in the work. The LDC should put emphasis on training through the local construction arrangements with a view to making skilled brothers and sisters available for other assignments.—2 Tim. 2:2.

172. Although the WDC may assign construction volunteers, construction servants, and expatriate construction servants to any theocratic construction project, it is the responsibility of the Branch Committee to oversee the spiritual welfare of these individuals serving in its branch territory. Therefore, arrangements should be made for construction servants, Assembly Hall servants, and Bible school facility servants to receive regular shepherding visits by members of the Branch Committee, representatives of the LDC, or other mature elders selected by the Branch Committee. Regardless of the urgency of a project or the abilities of an individual, the high spiritual standards required for those in special full-time service should never be lowered. —See 9:113, 117.

173. Safety: As Jehovah's servants, we adopt his view regarding the sacredness of life. Our view of safety is therefore a reflection of our spirituality. With regard to construction and maintenance, safety is always of greater importance than speed or convenience. The Branch Committee should take the lead in reflecting and encouraging a culture of safety by means of its comments, by support of continuous safety training, by providing safe equipment and protective gear, and by its willingness to remove from the workplace those who flagrantly disregard safety procedures. The minimum safety requirements to be followed on all construction and maintenance projects are outlined in Working Together Safely—Standards for Theocratic Construction and Maintenance (DC-82). However, all should also be fully informed with regard to the A-120 series of documents. (See 5:22.) It is the responsibility of the Branch Committee to see that these guidelines are applied appropriately in the given circumstances.

174. A primary goal on any maintenance or construction project is to have zero injuries. Three key factors in fulfilling this goal are the attitude of those in oversight, preparation to avoid accidents, and careful attention to avoid near-miss accidents. For this reason, the Job Hazard Analysis (DC-83) was developed. The DC-83 allows those who oversee a group of workers to plan each task with the goal of avoiding risks or mitigating risks if they cannot be avoided by a change in the work plan. The preparation of DC-83 forms and the review of them with the workers should be a regular part of the work plan on any project. If new workers are assigned to a task, the key points of the DC-83 should be reviewed with them before they start.

MISCELLANEOUS

175. Air Conditioning, Stoves, and Other Electrical Equipment: In any country where the variation in climate makes air conditioning desirable or if specific individuals require it for health reasons, the Branch Committee can make a recommendation to the Publishing Committee. If air conditioning is approved, the branch will pay for the equipment, installation, maintenance, and cost of operating it. The installation should be made by the branch in each case. The Branch Committee will need to take into consideration whether structural changes are necessary. Also, the capacity of the electrical wiring in the building should not be overloaded.

176. In view of the revised food arrangements in most branches, the installation of stoves (or similar equipment for cooking) is now considered necessary and should be provided by the branch. The type of equipment will depend on local customs and the building infrastructure. We do not want to rewire buildings for the sole purpose of installing stoves. However, a stove may be provided in a Bethel residence room in the case of a major renovation or new construction.

177. Normally refrigerators, microwaves, and other electrical equipment are personal items to be obtained at cost to the individual. However, no charge will be made for operating stoves or air conditioners or for such services as dry cleaning (if a branch has its own equipment) and alterations to clothing. Such services will operate on a contribution basis.

178. If dry cleaning is handled outside of Bethel, the branch may pay for the first two pieces of dry cleaning per person per month. Two pieces would include one suit or two separate garments. Any costs for dry cleaning beyond that amount would be covered by the individual Bethel family member.

SERVICE COMMITTEE

BRANCH AND SHEPHERDING VISITS

1. Branch Visits: The Service Committee assigns headquarters representatives to make visits to branch and country offices. Such visits are usually arranged each year. Periodically, headquarters representatives may also be assigned to visit some remote translation offices. The headquarters representative's primary work is to encourage the Bethel family, to aid the members of the Branch Committee in caring for their assignments, and to see that matters are being conducted in accord with the Scriptures and in harmony with direction from the Governing Body. (Acts 16:4, 5; Rom. 1:11, 12; Phil. 1:8-11) During his visit to the Bethel departments, the headquarters representative makes himself available to the members of the Bethel family who wish to speak about their service or personal matters. To get a firsthand report of the progress of the Kingdom work in the field, the headquarters representative will meet with some of the circuit overseers. During the visit, he will also meet with the field missionaries. (See 6:3.) Following his review of branch operations, the brother will provide a brief report to the Branch Committee, outlining points of commendation. As needed, the headquarters representative will also report on any significant matters that he feels may be adversely affecting the progress of the preaching and disciple-making work as well as the smooth operation of the work at the branch.—1 Cor. 14:40.

2. The Branch Committee should prepare well for the branch visit, in harmony with direction received from the Service Committee. (See 7:71-75.) Prior to the headquarters representative's arrival, the Branch Committee should have already completed the Branch Visit Questionnaire (A-26) for the current service year.

3. All Bethel family members (BBF, BBR, and BBT) as well as full-time commuters (BBL) serving in remote offices are invited to come for a branch visit once every three years. This also applies to remote servants (BRS), all field missionaries (FMF and FTF), and all circuit overseers in foreign service (CWF, FCF, FIF, and IWF). When invited, these individuals will attend either at the branch office or at another designated location, such as a remote translation office. On occasions when they are not invited to come for the visit, they are to be tied in for the main talks or receive a video recording of those talks. They may also speak with the headquarters representative by videoconference or telephone, if they wish to do so. Since circumstances vary, each Branch Committee decides how these arrangements will be organized in order to ensure that each one is invited to come for a branch visit every three years. If a visit to a remote translation office or country office is arranged, those in that region who qualify can enjoy the branch visit at that location, not at the branch office. This would serve as their visit for that three-year period.

4. At the end of his visit, the headquarters representative will provide his additional comments on the Branch Visit Questionnaire (A-26). He will also give a letter to the Branch Committee, providing his observations and commendation as well as counsel if needed. The A-26 files and his letter to the Branch Committee are to be sent to the Service Committee, which in turn will send each respective section of the report to the appropriate Governing Body committee. The Governing Body committees will not send routine acknowledgments of the report. If a matter is raised that requires specific direction from world headquarters, the Branch Committee should write to the appropriate Governing Body committee.

5. Shepherding Visits: Governing Body members are usually assigned to make two shepherding visits per year to selected branches for the encouragement of the Branch Committees and Bethel families. (1 Pet. 5:2, 3) Such visits are about one week in length. With regard to the timing of the shepherding visits and the annual branch visit by a headquarters representative, an effort should be made to schedule these visits at least four months—but no less than three months—apart from each other. The shepherding visit will require less preparation than a typical branch visit. For example, field missionaries and Bethelites serving in remote offices are not invited to the branch office during the shepherding visit. In addition, prior to the visit, there will be no need for the Branch Committee to complete a Branch Visit Questionnaire (A-26). A copy of the latest A-26 should be made available to the Governing Body member on his arrival. There is no need for the branch office to arrange an extensive schedule of visits to Bethel departments. Rather, at the time of his arrival, the Governing Body member will inform the Branch Committee of how he will carry out the visit.

6. A feature of the shepherding visit is a special program for congregations. If possible, the special program should be streamed to locations throughout the branch territory. In years when both a branch visit and a shepherding visit are scheduled, the special program held during the branch visit will be kept small, perhaps being held at a nearby Assembly Hall. That program will not be streamed to other locations.

FIELD MISSIONARIES

7. The Service Committee appoints field missionaries and determines the lands to which they will be assigned. Branches that wish to request additional field missionaries should submit the Request for Field Missionaries (S-218) form to the Service Committee by April and November of each year.—See 6:12; 9:54.

8. Temporary Field Missionaries: Newly appointed field missionaries are invited to accept a three-year assignment. The HuB enrollment code for these temporary field missionaries is FTF. When a temporary field missionary has been in his assignment for 30 months, the branch office will write to him and ask him to submit a letter stating whether he would like to continue in the missionary work or would prefer to return home. If the individual decides to return home, the Service Committee should be informed. If the individual would like to continue as a field missionary, the Branch Committee should consider his effectiveness over the previous 30 months and make a frank recommendation to the Service Committee. In both cases, whether the individual desires to continue as a field missionary or not, the Service Committee will reply. The Service Committee will make the final decision concerning an individual's future service as a field missionary.

9. In all cases, after the Service Committee has replied, a member of the Branch Committee or another mature elder from the Service Department should make a shepherding visit on the missionary. This visit could be made in conjunction with the annual shepherding visit. (See 9:118; John 21:16) Married couples should be met with together. The missionary's circuit overseer or another mature local elder should accompany the branch representative on the visit.

10. Hour Requirement: The field missionary hour requirement is 130 hours a month. Sisters who are 40 years of age or older have a requirement of 120 hours a month. It is understood that a field missionary who serves as a congregation elder may at times be needed for additional short-term theocratic assignments. For example, he may need to serve on a special committee or a Disaster Relief Committee, help with circuit or convention organization, assist in the construction or renovation of his own Kingdom Hall, or serve as a substitute circuit overseer. In addition, he may be needed for a brief period of time to train local elders to care for their responsibilities on a Hospital Liaison Committee. In exceptional situations, the travel time to attend an assigned circuit assembly, regional convention, or Kingdom Ministry School may be unusually long. If such assignments prevent him from making his hour requirement, a brief explanation as well as the number of hours spent should be included on the monthly report submitted on jw.org or on his monthly S-212 report. An explanation should also be written in the "Remarks" column of the Congregation's Publisher Record (S-21) card. However, the hours spent should not be included in the "Hours" column. The branch will also mark the HuB records accordingly.

11. If a missionary with less than 15 years of special full-time service is consistently unable to meet his monthly hour requirement because of serious and debilitating health problems, perhaps for six months or so, then the Branch Committee should follow the direction outlined in 9:96. For those who are 50 years of age or older or who have 15 or more years in special full-time service, a reduced hour requirement may be appropriate. To determine a reasonable hour goal, the branch office should receive a recommendation from the missionary's body of elders and one from the circuit overseer before submitting the recommendation to the Service Committee. For reporting purposes, a field missionary with an approved reduced hour quota will continue with the FMF enrollment code. Periodically, the branch should review the field missionary's circumstances to determine whether the reduced hour quota is still needed or whether a further reduction should be recommended to the Service Committee. In most cases, a reduced hour requirement is better than no hour requirement at all. The recommendation that a field missionary have no hour requirement is usually reserved for field missionaries who have extremely limiting circumstances because of advanced age or life-threatening health issues and whose hour requirement has already been progressively reduced.

12. Missionary Assignments: Field missionaries are a valuable resource, and the Branch Committee must give careful consideration to where they will be assigned. Assignments should enable the missionaries to accomplish the most good in stabilizing and strengthening preaching and congregation activities in densely populated areas. Missionaries should not be assigned to areas where their health and safety will be endangered. The Branch Committee should thoroughly consider such factors as the publisher-to-population ratio, the language fields that need to be targeted, and the availability of suitable housing. Specific congregation assignments for field missionaries are made by the Branch Committee. Missionaries do not select their own congregation assignments. Before any reassignment of field missionaries is finalized, a branch representative, preferably a member of the Branch Committee, should discuss the proposal with the missionaries involved to address any questions or concerns. There is no need to consult with the Service Committee about such reassignments unless the field missionaries raise a concern about the proposed move. (Prov. 13:10; 15:22) The Service Committee should be consulted when submitting requests to transfer a field missionary to Bethel for more than three months.—See 4:7; 6:7.

HOSPITAL INFORMATION SERVICES

13. Under the supervision of the Service Committee, Hospital Information Services (HIS), a world headquarters department, provides direction, practical assistance, and periodic training to Hospital Information Desks (HIDs) and, through them, to Hospital Liaison Committees (HLCs). This arrangement (1) supports the Bible-based position to 'abstain . . . from blood' and (2) helps to correct misconceptions about the position of Jehovah's Witnesses on medical care. (Acts 15: 29) HIS maintains a database of current medical articles on transfusion-alternative treatment strategies from respected medical journals. HIS also supplies HIDs with useful medical publications, medical article citations lists, video programs on transfusion alternatives, and favorable court decisions involving patients' rights. To accommodate urgent requests for information on medical alternatives to transfusion, HIS maintains telephone accessibility 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

14. Hospital Information Desk (HID): An HID is established at each branch to oversee the Hospital Liaison Committees within its assigned territory. The Branch Committee oversees the work of the HID. Give careful thought to the selection of the brother to oversee the HID, since he will interact frequently with medical professionals and individuals in high station. He should be a well-qualified speaker and teacher who is not easily intimidated. Since it may take years for the overseer of HID to become skilled in caring for the assignment, the Branch Committee should not be quick to replace a qualified brother.—See Hospital Information Desk Guidelines (hidg) for additional instructions and policies.

15. Since the support and medical information provided by HIS is primarily in English, the HID overseer or his assistant should be reasonably proficient in spoken and written English, if possible, in addition to the local language.

16. While there is no arrangement for HID representatives to visit HLCs, the Branch Committee may grant approval on a case-by-case basis for an HID representative to visit an HLC that is in urgent need of training or that is finding it difficult to assist the brothers to obtain medical care without blood transfusions.

17. When the HID requires assistance with emergency cases or other urgent situations involving the blood issue, the HID should contact HIS immediately by e-mail or by telephone, following up with official correspondence. HIS will provide any needed materials. Therefore, HIDs should not do extensive searches for medical information or begin working on any other materials related to HID or HLC activity without permission from the Service Committee. The HID should be accessible to HLCs and hospital professionals in its branch territory 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. HIS should be informed immediately of any changes to the 24-hour contact information published on jw.org.

18. If the HID becomes aware of a high-quality, peer-reviewed, local-language medical article and the Branch Committee believes that the article would be useful, such an article, along with a brief English summary, may be sent to HIS for approval. Articles should focus on one or more of the following: (1) drugs, devices, or techniques that reduce or eliminate the use of donor (allogeneic) blood; (2) ethical/legal concerns, patients' rights, or informed consent issues; (3) transfusion hazards; (4) the cost-effectiveness of transfusion-alternative strategies; or (5) an outline of how to perform a specific medical or surgical procedure without the use of donor (allogeneic) blood.

19. The HID maintains a list of consulting doctors. These doctors are respected, highly skilled, well-known advocates of nonblood management and are willing and able to explain effectively to less experienced doctors the use of transfusion alternatives. When emergencies or complicated cases arise, the HID may provide an HLC with the name of a consulting doctor. If there are no consulting doctors available in the country, the HID may contact HIS or a nearby HID for assistance. Each HLC maintains a list of cooperative doctors. These are doctors in the local area who have agreed to care for Witness patients. Thus, when Witnesses seek a cooperative specialist or medical facility, the HLCs can supply the names of several doctors or medical facilities that can provide the needed specialized care. For cooperative physicians and facilities outside their assigned area, HLCs may consult with neighboring HLCs or with the HID. Only the HID should consult a nearby HID or HIS as needed.

20. Annual Videoconference With HLCs: HIS provides material and instruction for a videoconference that each branch office should hold with the HLCs in its territory every service year. The videoconference, which will be conducted by the HID overseer and the Branch Committee member who oversees the HID, will give HLC members the opportunity to become acquainted with the brothers who oversee their work. Other members of the HID staff may be assigned to cover a portion of the material. The videoconference also serves to encourage those serving on HLCs and promotes a cooperative spirit between them and the branch office.

- The videoconference should be scheduled at a convenient time during the service year, but preferably not during the time period when regional conventions are being held.
- The videoconference is for HLC members only. These brothers must be able to communicate in the language of the country that is spoken by medical professionals. Thus, there is generally no reason to translate the program into several languages. However, if the Branch Committee determines that the videoconference should be presented in more than one language and if the presenters do not speak the target language, the Branch Committee may assign a qualified brother to do voice-over interpretation in the same way that JW Broadcasting uses a single video as a master for vernacular languages. Since this process will take time, each language may be presented at a different time. All language presentations should be recorded and placed on jw.org for any HLC members who may not be available for the original broadcast.
- Recordings of each year's videoconference in each language should be retained in the Event Media section of jw.org so that any newly appointed HLC members can view them.
- The videoconference may originate from the branch office or from a nearby Kingdom Hall or Assembly Hall. You may find it practical to use the auditorium where the Bethel family Watchtower Study program originates. HLCs near the broadcast site may be invited to attend in person. The other HLCs in the branch territory can tie in to the program at connected Kingdom Halls. You may use JW Stream (http://stream.jw.org) to transmit the program as long as no additional equipment must be purchased. The Local Broadcasting Department, or those who fill this role, can create a username and password that you can distribute to HLC members who will log in to JW Stream to view the program from remote locations. After the broadcast, the Local Broadcasting Department can provide a copy of the video recording to those responsible for posting it to the Event Media section of jw.org.

21. Hospital Liaison Committees (HLCs): The Branch Committee determines the number of HLCs needed in its branch territory. When an HLC needs additional brothers to help care for the workload, the HLC makes recommendations to the branch office, using the general guidelines set forth below. The HLC should consult the circuit overseer to ensure that the recommended brother is qualified to serve in this capacity. The HLC then sends the recommendation to the Hospital Information Desk (HID), using the Hospital Liaison Committee Recommendation (hlc-21) form. If the HID is in agreement, the recommendation is forwarded to the Service Department for comments. If there is no objection to the appointment, two members of the Branch Committee may approve it. While it is unlikely that any brother would have ideal circumstances and possess all the desired qualities, he should measure up to a reasonable degree.

- He should be an articulate, spiritual man who is respected in the area.—1 Tim. 3:7.
- He should be courageous, not easily intimidated, willing and able to speak with doctors, lawyers, and judges.—Ex. 4:10-12; Prov. 29:25.
- He should truly love the sheep and be willing to respond to an emergency at all hours.—Prov. 3:27; 19:17; John 13:35.
- He should be accessible. If a brother is often away on business or is difficult to contact, this would limit his ability to assist in an emergency. Brothers who have a flexible work schedule, work part-time, or are semiretired are usually in a better position to meet with hospital personnel whenever required. This is an important qualification.
- He should be loyal in maintaining confidentiality.—Ex. 18:21; Prov. 25:9.
- He should work well with others. Cooperation and unity are needed to accomplish the work.—1 Cor. 1:10; 12:12-26.
- He should live in or near the city where major hospitals are located, unless special circumstances warrant an exception.
- Some medical background may be helpful, but it is not necessary.
- He should not have so many other responsibilities that he would not be able to carry out this assignment.

If there are not enough elders available, the Branch Committee should write to the Service Committee, explaining the situation. In exceptional situations, the Service Committee may give approval to use a very well-qualified ministerial servant to serve temporarily as an HLC member.

22. HLCs are set up in most major cities to (1) act as a liaison between health-care providers and Witness patients and their families when requested; (2) assist Witness patients in locating doctors willing to provide treatment without blood transfusion; (3) provide medical articles to doctors, in accordance with copyright laws; (4) arrange consultations between local doctors and experienced specialists; (5) assist Witness patients in transferring to another medical facility if this becomes necessary; (6) make presentations to medical professionals, health ministries, social welfare officials, legal personnel, and others about our position on medical care and/or blood transfusions; and (7) appoint elders to serve as Patient Visitation Group (PVG) members. HLCs coordinate the activity of the PVGs and meet with the members at least once a year to review needs, offer encouragement, and keep these elders abreast of HLC activity. HLCs refrain from endorsing doctors, procedures, facilities, pharmaceuticals, herbal products, or alternative medical therapies. In all matters of health care, members of the HLCs avoid imposing their conscience on others.—See Hospital Liaison Committee Guidelines (hlcg) for additional instructions and policies regarding HLCs.

23. During a local blood-related medical crisis, the branch office may designate HLC members to respond to media inquiries. The Branch Committee would likely direct the HID and the HLC members to work closely with the Legal Department and the Public Information Desk on such media matters. —See 3:91, 101, 105-110, 112-115.

24. Annually, toward the beginning of the year, bodies of elders receive a reminder from the branch office to download the updated list of local HLC members from jw.org. In lands where Internet access is limited, the branch office will provide the latest list.

25. Patient Visitation Groups (PVGs): Hospital Liaison Committees (HLCs) organize PVGs in key cities to provide spiritual support for hospitalized Witness patients from outside the local area. During hospital visits, the PVG elders endeavor to provide emotional and spiritual support and, at appropriate times, pray with Witness patients and relatives. The PVG arrangement does not replace the responsibility of the local congregations to visit and care for the needs of their publishers who are in the hospital.

26. Bloodless Medicine and Surgery Programs (BMSPs): Hospitals in some lands have established BMSPs, blood conservation programs, and patient blood management programs. This means that the hospital administration, the coordinator(s) within the hospital, and/or various specialists have made a commitment to provide medical or surgical care without donor blood transfusions to patients who request such care. At times, business organizations make contracts with hospitals to develop and maintain BMSPs. Even when staffed by Witnesses, such organizations are not spokesmen for Jehovah's Witnesses.

27. Hospital Liaison Committees (HLCs) should not endorse or participate in the meetings of BMSPs or share with them the HLCs' confidential lists of cooperative doctors. The activity of these entities must remain separate from Hospital Information Desks, HLCs, and the congregations. (km 9/87 p. 4; km 6/77 p. 4) The branch office should write to the Service Committee if there are some unusual circumstances warranting a different approach.

28. Attending Medical Conferences: At times, a medical conference may be scheduled that features blood conservation or transfusion-alternative strategies. Such conferences often include discussions about Jehovah's Witnesses. Having an HID or HLC representative in attendance may be helpful to provide information and to correct any inaccuracies. The Branch Committee should be very selective as to the type of conferences and the number of conferences it approves for the Hospital Information Desk (HID) to attend each year, so that Bethel family members are not away from their regular assignments too frequently. Only conferences directly related to the blood issue should be considered. If a conference is held in another country, the Branch Committee should seek in writing the approval of the Service Committee to have a representative attend. The letter to the Service Committee should include assurance that the Branch Committee has sufficient funds in its budget to cover the costs associated with attending the conference.

29. Presenting at Medical Conferences: If an HID or HLC representative is invited to give a talk on the position of Jehovah's Witnesses on medical matters and the Branch Committee agrees, a copy of the draft text should be sent to the Service Committee for approval. This is not necessary if the brother uses the standard HID/HLC PowerPoint presentation.

30. Sponsoring a Medical Conference: The branch office should not sponsor a medical conference or symposium. HLCs should not initiate a special campaign to invite doctors in their area to an event and should refrain from advertising or giving the impression that they endorse or promote an event, even when Witnesses are the organizers. Furthermore, the branch office should not incur transportation, registration, or lodging expenses for physicians to attend these events. If the Branch Committee believes that an exception may be warranted, the Service Committee should be consulted.

31. Setting Up Display Booths at Medical Conferences: The branch office should be very selective regarding the type and the number of medical conferences for which it will seek approval to set up a booth. Only conferences attended by doctors who regularly deal with the blood issue are to be considered. Before contracting with the sponsors to exhibit, the branch office should seek approval from the Service Committee, submitting the name of the conference, dates, location, expected attendance, total anticipated costs for exhibiting, and other relevant information concerning the event. The letter to the Service Committee should include assurance that the Branch Committee has sufficient funds in its budget to cover the associated costs. Only the approved booth graphics and signage should be used. Any modifications should be approved by the Service Committee. If a large exhibit booth is requested from a custodial branch, sufficient lead time should be allowed (at least three months). Only the approved presentation kits should be used as handouts. Branches may write to Hospital Information Services for suggestions on what to include in the information packages for doctors.

32. Medical Devices and Supplies: Hospitals in developing countries may ask the branch office to donate medical devices, equipment, or other supplies. Before making any commitment, the Branch Committee should write to the Service Committee for direction.

33. Pharmaceuticals: In developing lands with limited access to basic pharmaceuticals, a branch office may wish to store a small supply of specialized medicine (such as EPO or iron) and/or other basic medical supplies. However, before requesting permission from the Service Committee, the branch office should check with regulatory health agencies in the country to determine the legal requirements that regulate storing these items. If the Service Committee approves the request, the branch office should be judicious in the amount of medicine kept on hand, perhaps storing only a six-month supply or enough for two or three patients. The branch office should submit a Nonliterature Branch Request, along with a note referencing the letter of approval from the Service Committee, to replace any items used. Brothers may express their appreciation for this arrangement by donating financially to defray the cost of replenishing the stock of medicine and supplies, though such a donation is not a requirement to benefit from this arrangement.

34. Websites: Since jw.org provides helpful information for medical professionals, neither the branches nor the Hospital Liaison Committees (HLCs) should place information about the Hospital Information Desk or HLC activity on any other website unless the Service Committee grants approval.

SERVICE DEPARTMENT

35. Under the direction of the Branch Committee, the Service Department cares for matters related to the preaching work and the activity of congregations, elders and ministerial servants, circuit overseers, and pioneers. The Service Department takes a keen interest in the spiritual growth of the congregations and provides valuable feedback to the Branch Committee as to what is needed to accelerate the preaching and disciple-making work. It also arranges assemblies and conventions and various theocratic schools. Brothers in the Service Department prepare responses to reports and inquiries from the field that relate to the preaching work and congregation activities. The Service Department works closely with the Local Design/Construction Department to determine where Kingdom Halls and Assembly Halls are needed and their priority. The Governing Body provides direction on such matters through the latest publications on congregation organization, various guidelines, and letters. If there is no clear policy on a matter, the Service Department should forward its questions to the Branch Committee. The Branch Committee may need to consult with the Service Committee or another Governing Body committee for direction.

Department Organization

36. Overseer: A member of the Branch or Country committee will be appointed to serve as the Service Department overseer. (See 2:13.) In most branches, an assistant overseer should be appointed to care for the workload, especially when the overseer is away from the office. In larger branches, two brothers may be appointed by the Branch Committee to serve as assistant overseers. (See 2:15.) Good communication, coordination, and cross-training by oversight will ensure that the workload is distributed evenly and that the department is not overstaffed. In large branches, the Branch Committee may appoint experienced, well-qualified brothers to serve as contacts. These contacts help to oversee the Service Department under the direction of the overseer and his assistant overseers. Each contact would coordinate the work of specific desks, in addition to caring for his own responsibilities. Based on the recommendation of the Service Department overseer, the Branch Committee determines the number of contacts needed, their responsibilities, and their level of authority.—See Service Department Guidelines, chap. 2, par. 1.

37. Deskmen: In a small branch office, the overseer may be able to handle the work of a Service Department deskman. In most branches, however, the Branch Committee will appoint other qualified elders to serve in the Service Department as deskmen who will care for the reports and correspondence from a number of circuits. The number of circuits assigned to a deskman varies according to the brother's workload, capabilities, health, and age limitations.

38. A deskman should be an experienced elder known for his loyal adherence to theocratic direction. He must be courteous, loyal, and courageous in giving sound Scriptural direction. He must be well-organized and diligent in caring for his responsibilities. He may have gained experience as a Service Desk secretary for several years. Experience has shown that there are benefits for some of the deskmen to have served in the traveling work prior to Bethel. Deskmen should give thorough training to the secretaries in the department with the objective of helping them to take on greater responsibility in the future. (2 Tim. 2:2) In most cases, such a training program would make it unnecessary routinely to transfer circuit overseers to Bethel to serve in the Service Department. However, if there is a need to transfer a circuit overseer to Bethel to serve as a Service Department deskman, the request, along with a complete explanation, should be submitted to the Service Committee. If the Service Committee agrees to release the circuit overseer for Bethel service, the recommendation will then be sent to the Personnel Committee. (See 4: 10.) When considering this option, the Branch Committee should keep in mind that not all circuit overseers and their wives will be able to adapt to Bethel life.

39. A deskman should be careful to avoid giving his own opinion on service-related matters. His counsel must be sound, based on the Bible and theocratic guidelines. (1 Cor. 4:6) To ensure that proper theocratic direction is relayed to the field, a proofreading system should be established. One deskman may proofread the work of another.

40. Service Desk Secretaries: As the workload increases, a brother may be assigned as a secretary to a deskman. Although he may be younger in years and may not have the same level of experience, a secretary must have the spiritual qualities required of a deskman. While it is preferred that a Service Desk secretary be an appointed elder, he would generally not need to be an older brother with many years of Bethel service or field experience. A modest young brother with fine spirituality and the potential to qualify in time to serve as a deskman may be used. His duties would include opening and sorting mail, attaching relevant background material, typing letters, filing, entering information into the computer, and so forth.

41. Desk Groups: As the number of deskmen increases, it may be practical to arrange them in groups of five or six and have them circulate difficult cases. The more-difficult cases can be considered at a weekly meeting. (Prov. 13:10) At the discretion of the Branch Committee, the more experienced Service Desk secretaries could be included in the group meetings in order to further their training. If those in the Service Department cannot resolve a complex issue by using published direction or if a case is of major importance, they will refer the matter to the Branch Committee. The Branch Committee, in turn, may need to consult with the Service Committee for direction.—See 2: 21; 6:61.

Handling Telephone Calls and Correspondence

42. Telephone Calls: A telephone call should always be answered in a kind and loving way. Even though the brother taking the call is busy and it may interrupt his work, reflecting warmth, respect, and concern for the brothers and others is important. One should be as helpful as possible to the individual calling. If the caller is from outside of Bethel, it is not wise for a deskman or his secretary to give his name unless the caller is a circuit overseer. However, there is no objection to providing an outside caller with the desk symbol of the deskman.

43. A telephone memorandum should be made for all telephone calls that deal with important matters and for calls in which direction is given and a record is necessary. The memorandum should include the name of the caller, the caller's telephone number, the congregation, the nature of the call, who took the call, and any direction that was given. If the caller presents a weighty matter, he should be requested to write to the branch office.

44. Incoming Mail: In smaller branches, the Service Department overseer may be able to handle routine mail. In most branches, it may be necessary to have a mail desk or a correspondence clerk assigned to open postal mail. A similar arrangement may be needed to process and route incoming electronic correspondence. Incoming mail is handled in the date order of receipt and according to its urgency. If at all possible, those working in the Service Department should make it their goal to reply to correspondence within two weeks.

45. Requests for Kingdom Hall Addresses and Meeting Times: In most cases, the branch office may provide any inquirer with basic information about Kingdom Hall addresses and meeting times, or the inquirer may be instructed on how to locate the information on jw.org. There is no objection to replying by e-mail to written requests for such basic information.—See 3:55; 6:49.

46. Correspondence From Other Branches: When another branch writes to an individual in the branch territory, the letter will usually be sent to the Service Department for forwarding to the addressee. In most cases, such letters can be sent directly to the addressee. If there are any concerns about the information being provided or about the addressee, it would be best to send the letter through the congregation, with appropriate direction to the elders.

47. If the letter to the individual is accompanied by a courtesy copy for the branch, the original should be sent to the addressee, as directed above, and the courtesy copy filed in the BRANCH CORRESPONDENCE FILE. If the letter to the individual is not accompanied by a courtesy copy to the branch, this means that it was received electronically and printed in the office. The letter may be mailed as outlined above. A photocopy does not need to be made for the BRANCH CORRESPONDENCE FILE, as the electronic file copy will be retained according to the retention policy.

48. Letters sent to those living outside the branch territory are usually not mailed directly to the individual. Rather, after the letter is approved, it is sent to the overseeing branch office to be forwarded to the person or his congregation body of elders. (See 6:45-47.) Exceptions to this general policy are outlined in 6:49-50.

49. Inquiries From Publishers in Other Countries: It is important that all those who consider moving to a foreign land prayerfully count the cost and seek Jehovah's direction. (Luke 14:28; Jas. 1:5; od p. 100; km 8/11 pp. 4-6) The branch office should be helpful and respond promptly to any publisher who inquires about serving temporarily or permanently where the need is greater. If a written inquiry is accompanied by a favorable letter of recommendation from the Congregation Service Committee, the Service Department may provide such information as Kingdom Hall addresses, meeting times, and contact information of the coordinator(s) of the body of elders. The Service Department should be sure that any areas being recommended for assistance are safe for foreigners. The reply letter may be sent directly to the publisher via e-mail or surface mail. If the branch office is uncertain about the qualifications of a particular publisher, the letter should be sent to the inquirer's branch office, indicating that the letter should be forwarded to the individual or to his body of elders.—See 6:45.

50. While branches are authorized to provide general information to publishers about the country and congregations needing assistance, the branch is not authorized to provide extensive additional assistance, such as issuing sponsorship or guarantee letters; supplying residency, visa, or other legal forms; locating pioneer partners; and arranging suitable accommodations. These are personal matters that require careful investigation by the publisher before he or she moves to another country. Therefore, it is the responsibility of the individual publisher, not the branch office, to obtain information about visa requirements and work permits.—Gal. 6:5.

51. Certificates or Letters for Jehovah's Witnesses: On occasion, publishers and others associated with a local congregation may request that the body of elders or the branch office provide them with a signed letter or certificate that confirms or explains in some way the person's relationship with the Christian congregation. For example, local authorities in some areas may require that an elder who performs weddings or one who conducts meetings in prisons register and provide some proof of his ordination as a minister. A publisher or pioneer who is moving to serve where the need is greater in another country may request that the body of elders or the branch office provide him with a letter confirming that he is one of Jehovah's Witnesses in good standing. The immigration authorities in some countries may ask a person who is regularly attending congregation meetings to provide a signed statement from the body of elders confirming that fact. In some lands, baptized Christians are called upon to explain to the authorities their personal and conscientious objection to military service. In neutrality cases, it may be helpful for the authorities to receive a letter or a certificate from the congregation or the branch office confirming that the conscientious objector is an ordained and baptized minister of Jehovah's Witnesses or a full-time preacher of the good news. The Branch Committee is responsible for carefully determining (1) if the elders or the branch office should be involved in replying to such requests; (2) if so, the approved wording to be used; and (3) for whom such letters and certificates may be provided. In most cases, the elders or the branch would issue such documents only for publishers in good standing. Any such letters or certificates approved by the Branch Committee should be limited to explaining the facts and not go into detail about a brother's or a sister's personal convictions. (1 Pet. 3:15) Furthermore, any document provided by the branch office on the letterhead of one of the organization's local legal entities should not in any way imply that the organization is sponsoring the person financially or legally. (Gal. 6:5) Publishers and pioneers who move on their own to another land should not be represented to immigration authorities as "missionaries" because they are not sponsored by the organization as is done for those who are in the Worldwide Order of Special Full-Time Servants of Jehovah's Witnesses. If the Branch Committee needs further guidance on such matters involving publishers, pioneers, or others in the field, it should write to the Service Committee. Matters related to the support of members of the Worldwide Order are further described in 3:81-85.

52. Circuit Overseer's Report on a Congregation: The Report on Circuit Overseer's Visit With Congregation (S-303) is used by the circuit overseer to give the Service Department a brief report on the spirit of the congregation and any encouragement or counsel given. It is necessary to acknowledge the circuit overseer's report only if further correspondence would be helpful.

53. Appointments and Deletions of Elders and Ministerial Servants: Circuit overseers are appointed by the Governing Body to care for the appointments and deletions of elders and ministerial servants. (Acts 14:23; Titus 1:5) The procedures to be followed by circuit overseers are outlined in Circuit Overseer Guidelines (tg).—See 6:74.

54. The Service Department receives the names, birth dates, and baptism dates of brothers who will be considered for appointment during a circuit overseer's upcoming visit to a congregation. This information is received automatically when congregations use the Web version of the Recommendations for Appointment of Elders and Ministerial Servants (S-62) form to notify their circuit overseer of the recommendation. Congregations with limited Internet access may submit their recommendations to their circuit overseer by means of the printed version of the S-62 form, or the branch office may allow congregations to submit the information to their circuit overseer by means of a phone call or text message. Thereafter, the circuit overseer should immediately forward the information to the branch office. When received by the Service Department, a check may need to be performed to confirm that there is no legal reason that the recommendation for a brother's appointment should not be considered. Such a legal check may require sending the information to the Legal Department. This legal check is not required on the names of (1) elders and ministerial servants who are recommended because they moved, (2) regular pioneers or those in other forms of full-time service who are recommended as ministerial servants, or (3) ministerial servants who are recommended to serve as elders. If there is no legal reason that the recommendation should not be considered, the Service Department should inform the circuit overseer accordingly. (If the Web version of the S-62 form cannot be used, the branch office may determine the best method of conveying to the circuit overseer that the recommendation may be considered.) The check made by the branch office is not a check of the person's age, marital status, previous appointments and deletions, or the like. That responsibility rests with the body of elders and the circuit overseer.

55. If there is a legal reason that the appointment of a brother should not be considered (such as a valid accusation of child abuse), the Service Department should investigate the matter further and determine whether or not the recommendation should be considered by the circuit overseer. If the recommendation may be considered, the Service Department should inform the circuit overseer accordingly without delay. If the recommendation should not be considered, the Service Department should inform the circuit overseer and the elders concerning the reason.

56. If there is insufficient time for the branch office to process a recommendation before the visit of the circuit overseer, the Service Department should inform the circuit overseer that the recommendation will need to be resubmitted in conjunction with the next visit.

57. If the circuit overseer will be away from the circuit for (1) less than a month, he may hold any recommendations in abeyance until he returns; (2) one to three months, the branch office should designate another circuit overseer (perhaps a neighboring circuit overseer or one who recently served the circuit) to consider any recommendations received from substitutes; or (3) more than three months, the branch office should assign another circuit overseer to visit congregations in the circuit. If a circuit overseer is unable to communicate with the affected congregations and substitutes before leaving his assignment, the branch office should take the lead in informing them.—See 6:139.

58. At times, the branch office will assign an appointed elder or a ministerial servant, such as a special pioneer, Bethel family member, or a graduate of the School for Kingdom Evangelizers, to serve in a particular congregation. In such cases, the Service Department should write to the circuit overseer to advise him that they recommend the reappointment of the brother. Thereafter, the circuit overseer may generate an appointment letter to the new congregation and will inform the Service Department using the Notification of Appointment or Deletion (S-2).

59. At times, a brother serving at Bethel becomes involved in misconduct and the Branch Committee decides that he can stay at Bethel, but no longer qualifies to serve in an appointed position in the congregation. In such a case, the Service Department would send a letter to the body of elders outlining the following: (1) that because of certain misconduct the Branch Committee has determined that the brother may stay at Bethel but his qualifications to serve as an appointed servant have come into serious question and thus the Branch Committee is writing to the circuit overseer recommending that he be deleted, (2) a concise explanation of the brother's misconduct, (3) the arrangements that have been established at Bethel to provide spiritual help, and (4) that the elders should write the Service Department if the brother is still serving at Bethel when and if they recommend his reappointment. In a postscript to the circuit overseer, it should be recommended that he delete the brother at his earliest convenience.

60. Appeals Involving Deletions of Elders and Ministerial Servants: If an elder or a ministerial servant disagrees with his deletion by the circuit overseer, he should be asked immediately to write a brief letter to the Service Department, with a copy to the body of elders and the circuit overseer, explaining why he disagrees with the deletion. The announcement of deletion will be held in abeyance. Thereafter, the Service Department will select an experienced circuit overseer who, along with the original circuit overseer, will rehear the entire matter. These two brothers will listen to the brother carefully and deal with him kindly and justly. They may consult with the Service Department for advice. After the two circuit overseers have heard the brother's concerns and reached a joint decision, there is no further appeal. If it is decided that the brother should be deleted, the announcement will be made at the next midweek meeting and the circuit overseer will inform the Service Department using the Notification of Appointment or Deletion (S-2).

61. In very rare situations, a special committee of three or four experienced elders may be needed to handle an unusual and complex case involving one or more congregations. For example, a circuit overseer may alert the Service Department about a serious matter that has called into question the Scriptural qualifications of multiple elders or perhaps even an entire body of elders. If the deskman believes that a special committee should be appointed, he should consult with his desk group and his contact (if contacts have been appointed in the Service Department) before submitting the recommendation to the Service Department overseer for approval. (See 6:41; Service Department Guidelines, chap. 2, par. 1.) If the recommendation is approved, the Service Department would select the brothers who will serve on the special committee from elders whom circuit overseers have indicated are qualified to handle complex matters. The Service Department would provide direction to the special committee on its handling of the matter. After a thorough investigation and a meeting with the brothers involved, the special committee will then submit its comments and provide a recommendation to the original circuit overseer and another experienced circuit overseer selected by the Service Department. (See 6:60.) If needed, the circuit overseers may consult with the Service Department. However, the two circuit overseers, not the special committee nor the branch office, will make the final determination regarding the qualifications of the brother(s) in question and inform the Service Department accordingly.

62. In the event that a body of elders disagree with a circuit overseer's decision not to remove a brother whose deletion they have recommended and about whom the elders appeal to the branch office, the Service Department should obtain the circuit overseer's comments on the elders' correspondence. What facts did the circuit overseer take into account in rejecting the recommendation the elders made? What efforts did he make to explain kindly the reasons for his decision to the elders? Is there a valid Scriptural basis to the recommendation made by the elders? Is the circuit overseer known to be kind, impartial, and just, or does he tend to be unyielding or to impose his personal viewpoints? With this information, the branch office can determine what counsel, if any, the circuit overseer or the body of elders should receive. It may be practical to encourage the elders to continue demonstrating their submission to Christ's headship by supporting the arrangement made by the "faithful and discreet slave."—Matt. 24:45-47; w14 11/15 pp. 28-29.

63. Distributing Documents on JW.ORG: Branches are notified when new and revised forms, letters, and outlines are posted on MDS. The Branch Committee will determine whether the item can be used in the branch territory without any adjustments. If so, it may be possible for the Service Department to create a link to the item under the Documents tab on the website. Often minor adjustments are needed to the documents, such as the insertion of letterheads, signature stamps, and the like. Or there may be a need to substitute the word "Province" for "State," to add a statement giving permission for the branch or congregations to keep personal data for individuals on file, to incorporate the monetary denomination used in a specific country, and so forth. In the case of these minor adjustments, the Service Department may make the necessary changes and then upload the document to the local jw.org directory and create a link on the site. If there is a need to alter a document or to create a new form because of unique local circumstances, the Branch Committee should request approval from the appropriate Governing Body committee.—See 6:160.

Processing Judicial Reports

64. Disfellowshippings and Disassociations: The elder serving as the chairman of a judicial committee (or "a committee" in the case of disassociation) is to submit one copy of the Notification of Disfellowshipping or Disassociation (S-77) to the Service Department. Usually there is no need for the elders serving on the committee to submit additional correspondence about the case.

65. Role of Service Desk Secretary: The Service Desk secretary will be responsible to review the S-77 form to make sure it is complete. If there is anything on the form that is not clear or is missing, the secretary will contact a member of the committee that submitted the form. It may be possible to obtain missing information by means of a telephone call. Once the Service Desk secretary has verified that the form is complete, he will enter the record into the electronic file used by the branch office. If the S-77 form is scanned into an electronic file, there is no need to keep a hard copy. Depending on local circumstances, it is left to each branch office to decide whether there is a need to send a brief acknowledgment to the chairman of the committee that the S-77 form has been received.

66. Role of Service Department Deskman: Though it is not necessary for the deskman to review all S-77 forms, the secretary should be trained to alert the deskman to any unusual or weighty cases. The following list is not comprehensive but simply provides some examples of cases that should be forwarded to the deskman for consideration and careful handling:

- There is a question as to whether there is a valid judicial charge or sufficient evidence to support the charge.—ks10 5:2-37.
- The S-77 form reveals that the committee did not inform the individual of the decision.—ks10 6: 9-10; 7:29-30.
- The individual does not agree with the decision of the original committee and the appeal committee and is now appealing his case to the branch office.—ks10 8:14-15.
- The original committee and the appeal committee do not agree on the decision.—ks10 8:16-18.
- The committee has submitted correspondence about the case in addition to the S-77 report.

67. The Service Department deskman and desk groups should not be quick to second-guess how a committee cared for a particular matter unless it is clear from the S-77 form and any additional correspondence submitted that the published guidelines in the Shepherding textbook and current letters to bodies of elders were not followed. In such cases, the deskman should write to the committee in an effort to help them bring the matter to a conclusion. Thereafter, the deskman or the secretary will update the branch office's files accordingly.

68. With reinstatements, the deskman would not usually need to review the information submitted unless there are some unusual factors. One exception is when it appears that sufficient time was not allowed for the individual to prove that his repentance is genuine. (ks10 11: 3-5) Depending on the nature of the matter, the deskman may determine to provide the committee with some helpful reminders.

69. Use of HuB and JW.ORG E-mail: Branches using these tools will be able to process and store S-77 forms electronically. The following is a brief explanation of the procedure that they may choose to use:

- A member of the committee submits the S-77 form using jw.org e-mail.
- Upon receipt, the S-77 form is assigned to a Service Desk secretary for review.
- When the secretary has determined that the form is complete, he will enter the record in the electronic file used by the branch office, such as Tracking Persons. An incident could be created linking the form to the tracked person. In the case of a reinstatement, the secretary would update the electronic record and retain the notification in the electronic file system.
- If the S-77 form needs further review by a deskman, the secretary will pass this on to him. After the deskman has completed his review, he will return the correspondence to the secretary who will then update any electronic record of the matter.
- If needed, hard copies of S-77 forms can be scanned into HuB. A record of the matter can be entered into Tracking Persons. Any hard copy should be shredded.

70. Rescissions: If the Service Department determines that a judicial action was taken without valid basis, they should assist the elders to see why the wrongdoing did not warrant the formation of a judicial committee. If the elders agree, they should rescind the judicial decision. If a reproof was previously announced to the congregation, the elders should make the following announcement: "The announcement of judicial reproof involving [name of person] has been rescinded." Any judicial restrictions that had been imposed should be removed, and the body of elders should determine if the publisher still qualifies for any special privileges he enjoyed before the action was taken. If a disfellowshipping was previously announced to the congregation, the elders should make the following announcement: "The announcement that [name of person] is no longer one of Jehovah's Witnesses has been rescinded." The body of elders should determine if the publisher still qualifies for any special privileges he enjoyed before the action was taken. The letter to the judicial committee will request that the committee reply in writing to the Service Department, providing the date when the rescission was announced. Once the date is received, the records should be updated.

71. Appeal Committees: The circuit overseer is authorized to appoint an appeal committee. For details on the formation of an appeal committee and the correspondence to be received from it, see Circuit Overseer Guidelines, chapter 13.

Forming and Merging Congregations

72. A circuit overseer will assist in organizing the formation of a new congregation if and when it is advisable to do so. A completed Congregation Application Information (S-51) form may be submitted to the branch office. Generally, the circuit overseer will sign the application.

73. In congregations or groups with no appointed elders, one or more experienced ministerial servants (or a baptized sister if a baptized brother is no longer available) may be designated to handle some necessary matters temporarily. For example, the branch office may choose to send nonconfidential correspondence to the personal jw.org inbox of a well-qualified ministerial servant. Another option is to ask an elder in a nearby congregation to assist.

74. When the Service Department gives approval for the formation, dissolution, or merging of congregations, the circuit overseer will proceed with the appointment of elders and ministerial servants in their respective congregations, using the Notification of Appointment or Deletion (S-2). (See 6:53.) Good communication is needed by the Local Design/Construction and Service departments when considering these adjustments, especially when considering the merging of congregations. During such processes, these departments should keep the following in mind:

- The travel distance for publishers to attend meetings and share in the field ministry is an important factor to consider. The branch office needs to take an interest in the concerns of publishers, including elderly ones and large families with minor children, who may be required to travel greater distances. Merging congregations in a densely populated area with many Kingdom Halls is different from merging congregations in a large geographic area where Kingdom Halls are far from each other, requiring a significantly longer commute for some publishers.
- While there are advantages when publishers attend the congregation in whose territory they live, it should be made clear to circuit overseers and to elders that they may only recommend that publishers attend a certain congregation. In the final analysis, however, each family head is responsible to determine what is best for his family. Therefore, it would be inappropriate for circuit overseers to pressure others to attend a particular congregation.—See tg chap. 5, par 24; km 11/02 “Question Box”.
- Before the branch office makes a final decision to merge congregations, the local elders need to be given an opportunity to give input on the matter and should not feel that they were forced to accept a decision already made by the branch office.—Rom. 12:10; 1 Pet. 2:17.

If a merger is approved, care should be taken to see that all elders and ministerial servants are accounted for and appointed to serve with one of the congregations involved. The territory assignment for each respective congregation should be provided. In addition, various printed letters that the new congregation needs for its files should be sent. If there is a large amount of literature on hand, it would be best for the congregations to divide it instead of requesting additional literature for the new congregation. Any specific direction regarding legal considerations for titleholding congregations should be provided by the branch office in the S-392 letter sent to the circuit overseer approving the recommendations for the merger.

Territories

75. Territory Assignments: The Service Department gives each congregation an assignment of territory to work. (See 6:158.) The Branch Committee and the Service Department monitor the preaching activity in the field, making all reasonable efforts to ensure that the branch territory is thoroughly covered.

76. Effective and Thorough Coverage of Territory: To ensure thorough coverage, branches should follow some general guidelines regarding the size of congregation territories. Local circumstances should be taken into consideration when determining the size of individual territories. Smaller territories give publishers the opportunity not only to cover territory but also to return to help cultivate interest that is found. If territories have fewer homes, publishers may feel more motivated to request a personal territory close to their home or workplace. Publishers may also need further training on how to keep accurate records and on how to give a more thorough witness when working from house to house. (od p. 91 par. 32; km 4/07 p. 8) If a congregation is unable to work portions of its assigned territory within two years and it is not possible to arrange for assistance from nearby congregations, the unworked territories should be assigned to nearby congregations or listed as unassigned territory.—See 6:80-81.

77. Foreign-Language Territory: The Branch Committee and the Service Department should take steps to be sure that immigrant communities or indigenous language groups receive a witness. (See 6:149-152.) The Service Department and circuit overseers should be guided by what is published on this subject in Circuit Overseer Guidelines, Circuit Organization Guidelines, the letter to all bodies of elders dated October 23, 2015, and the letter to all circuit overseers dated October 25, 2015. —See also km 11/09 pp. 3-5.

78. If there is a sizable population of foreign-speaking people in the branch territory and few publishers are available who speak their language, a foreign-language class may be held to train capable publishers and pioneers. Before a language class is held, the branch must identify and train language instructors. Potential instructors must meet the qualifications outlined in Instructions for Organizing Language Classes (S-367). A request to train the recommended foreign-language instructors should be submitted to the Service Committee for approval. The Service Committee will arrange for those who have been approved to attend the course "Teaching Methods for Accelerated Language Learning." Following the training course, the branch may arrange to hold the foreign-language classes. (Helpful forms for organizing the classes are posted on MDS.) These classes should not be held at the branch office. They should be conducted in the foreign-language territory that is being targeted.—See 7: 142; tg chap. 15.

79. Seldom Worked Territory: If congregations are in need of assistance in working their assigned territory, the congregations and circuit overseers will report this to the branch office. The Service Department will consider what can be done to provide assistance. If it is not possible to make arrangements to assist the congregation to cover its territory and the territory has not been worked for two years, the circuit overseer should recommend to the branch office which sections of the congregation's territory should be assigned to other nearby congregations or listed as unassigned territory.

80. Unassigned Territory: The Branch Committee should make all reasonable efforts to cover all unassigned territory at least once a year. A letter may be sent each year to congregations, inviting publishers to apply to work unassigned territory. This letter should include a list of the territories that need to be worked. Individuals willing to assist may indicate to the branch office which territory they would like to work, the number in their group, and the amount of time they can spend in an assignment. (Groups should not be made up solely of single brothers and single sisters.) A group captain should be designated. This information is to be given to the Congregation Service Committee for approval and forwarding to the branch. The Service Department considers the information, makes an appropriate territory assignment, and informs the group captain. After the assignment is completed, the group captain should submit a report to the branch office, outlining what was accomplished and any outstanding experiences.

81. Unassigned or seldom-worked territory could include large foreign- or indigenous-language communities of perhaps thousands of people who do not receive a regular witness. When publishers in your branch territory are invited to work unassigned or seldom-worked territories, there is no need to request the approval of the Service Committee.—See 6:76.

82. Isolated Publishers: The Service Department should send the names of isolated publishers to the congregations nearest them. Perhaps an elder or pioneer can visit them from time to time to encourage them and to work with them in the field ministry. The branch office should make arrangements for them to receive literature and any other necessary information. If practical, they could send their field service reports through the nearest congregation and obtain literature there as well. Otherwise, they may request literature from the branch office and report their field service directly to the branch each month, marking "isolated publisher" or "isolated pioneer" on the report. Only one person in the group should make arrangements for obtaining literature.

83. The role of the circuit overseer in caring for isolated publishers and pioneers is outlined in Circuit Overseer Guidelines. If reasonably possible, the circuit overseer should adjust his schedule in order to visit such ones each year. After receiving the circuit overseer's report for the annual visit, the Service Desk will send the isolated publisher, pioneer, or group a warm and encouraging letter. A record should be kept of all such publishers and groups, with a separate file for each, until such time as they can either be associated with a nearby congregation or be organized into a new congregation. Then the information in this file is put into the file for that congregation.

84. Special pioneers have been assigned to visit isolated publishers and groups, with good results. Where there is potential to form a new congregation, temporary special pioneers or special pioneers could be assigned.

85. When a regular pioneer requests a permanent assignment to care for an unassigned territory, the branch office will write a letter, enclosing an Isolated Territory Assignment (S-63). Only one regular pioneer would be given a certain isolated territory assignment. If more than one pioneer will be working in the same isolated assignment, the other pioneers are assigned by a letter from the office to work with the pioneer holding the territory. The pioneer holding the territory is responsible for making the necessary reports to the branch office on the progress being made in the territory.

86. Book Fairs and Special Witnessing Exhibits: Before agreeing to participate in such an event, the Branch Committee must obtain approval from the Service Committee. The request should be submitted as far in advance as possible but no less than one month prior to the deadline for registering for the event. The Branch Committee should consider various factors, including the type of organization sponsoring the event, the cost, the estimated attendance, the length of time needed to prepare for the event, and the number of publishers required to staff a booth during the event. Usually it is best to limit participation in such events to only one or two key events each year. The letter to the Service Committee should include assurance that the Branch Committee has sufficient funds in its budget to cover the costs associated with participating in the event. Additionally, the following information should be provided:

a. The name of the organization that is sponsoring the event. If available, a link to the event's website should be included in the letter. The branch should ensure that participating in the event would not call into question our neutral position or associate the branch office with any religious interfaith, social movement, or political activity.

b. The dates and location of the event.

c. The estimated attendance.

d. The size of the booth being recommended. If there are options for booth size, the different sizes and prices of each should be provided. A modest-sized booth, perhaps no more than nine square meters, is preferred. If a larger booth size is recommended, the explanation should be included in the letter to the Service Committee.

e. The estimated total cost in U.S. dollars. The branch should provide a breakdown of the costs, including entry fees, taxes, equipment rentals or purchases, and the cost of constructing (or repairing) the display. To the extent possible, displays should be designed and constructed in a way that will allow for reuse. When informed of the voluntary and educational nature of our work, event organizers sometimes will reduce or waive certain fees. The letter to the Service Committee should indicate whether the branch inquired about a discount and the amount of any discount that will apply.

f. Preliminary sketches of the proposed display, including the dimensions. The branch should avoid giving the appearance of commercializing our ministry. (2 Cor. 2:17) Relatively simple, yet attractive, displays will reflect favorably on Jehovah and his organization. There may be skilled publishers in the branch territory who have the ability, knowledge, and expertise in designing or fabricating displays typically used at these events.

87. Harbor Witnessing: The Service Department should organize harbor witnessing in harmony with Harbor Witnessing Guidelines (S-374). If a harbor-witnessing group recommends enrolling in a marine exchange or would like to pay for the storage of literature and/or witnessing equipment, the Service Department overseer or his assistant should carefully review the request before approving it to ensure that it is needed and reasonable. (Phil. 4:5) Any costs involved with harbor witnessing, such as obtaining suitable clothing, equipment, and proper permissions, will be the responsibility of the publisher. (Gal. 6:5) Publishers should not get involved with seaman's missions or other religious organizations in carrying out harbor witnessing.

88. Prison Witnessing: The Service Department should organize the preaching work in prisons according to the latest direction received from the Service Committee. (See the letter to all bodies of elders dated September 8, 2011, and the Prison Information (S-68) form.) A record should be maintained of congregations assigned to care for each prison facility in the country. It should also be noted whether literature can be taken into the prison by the publishers or must be mailed directly from the branch office.

89. Special Campaigns: Unless directed to do so by the Service Committee, the Branch Committee should not request help from other branch offices to fill special needs in the field. In countries where there are few publishers and large densely populated areas to cover, the Branch Committee may feel that a special campaign would be beneficial. In some cases, it may be possible to invite native publishers who are living in other lands to return and share in the special campaign. Publishers in other countries who speak the local language may also be invited. The Branch Committee should send a recommendation to the Service Committee for its consideration and approval.

Conventions and Assemblies

90. Regional Conventions: Annually, circuit overseers submit the Convention Program Participant Ratings form (S-306) to the branch office. This form identifies the elders who are qualified as convention speakers and their individual ratings. In larger branch offices, these records are kept in HuB. Brothers who are approved Bethel speakers may be invited to inform the Service Department of the convention(s) that they will attend so that they may be assigned talks. If Bethel speakers volunteer to attend additional conventions using their own personal time away and at their own expense, they may be assigned where there is a need for convention speakers.—See 7:2-26, 80-81.

91. The Service Department will make assignments based on each brother's speaker ratings and the convention speaker grid provided annually by the Teaching Committee. Generally, the chairman and the drama directors are assigned and notified first, followed by the Bethel speakers, and then local speakers are assigned the remaining parts. Service Department oversight will approve all convention speaker assignments before assignment letters are mailed out.—See 7:25, 80-81.

92. Circuit Assemblies: Two one-day circuit assemblies will be held each year. One assembly (CA-br) will have a visiting branch representative assigned to speak. The other assembly (CA-co) will be served by the circuit overseer without a branch representative being assigned. Arrangements are made according to the guidelines provided each year by the Teaching Committee. Helpful guidance is also found in Circuit Organization Guidelines (S-330).—See 7:27-35, 89.

93. The branch will assign the dates of circuit assemblies based on the number of publishers in a circuit and the size and availability of meeting locations. It may be necessary to divide a circuit into two or more sections and have separate assemblies. Circuit overseers will be notified preferably one year or more in advance in order to obtain assembly facilities. If possible, the two annual circuit assembly programs should be separated by at least three or four months. Circuit Overseer Guidelines has additional information.

Regular Pioneers

94. Direction regarding the appointment and activity of pioneers is found in the latest publications on congregation organization and in the letter to all bodies of elders dated May 15, 2017. Those leaving an assignment of special full-time service will not experience an interruption in their full-time service history if they are appointed as regular pioneers within three months. Regular pioneers who are sentenced to prison because of their Christian neutrality will have their full-time service history recorded as uninterrupted if they resume the full-time ministry within three months of their release from prison. (See 4:18-19.) Regular pioneers who accept alternative civilian service may continue serving as regular pioneers if they can reasonably meet the requirements for regular pioneers. When reviewing their overall activity, the elders should show consideration for their unique circumstances when determining whether they qualify to continue serving as pioneers. A person who is performing alternative civilian service may be appointed as a regular pioneer if he is otherwise qualified and is able to fulfill the hour requirement.

95. Transfers to Other Branch Territories: When a pioneer moves to another country, the local branch should send to the new branch the regular pioneer record from HuB. If questions arise about the pioneer's history, the new branch may communicate with the other branch offices that are involved.

Temporary Special Pioneers

96. Temporary special pioneers serve in the same manner as special pioneers. However, they are appointed to serve in one-year increments for up to a maximum of three years. This temporary assignment will enhance their qualifications, allowing them to gain experience and to be further evaluated by the branch office. It could be a steppingstone to a future assignment as a substitute circuit overseer, a special pioneer, a circuit overseer, or a field missionary or to Bethel service. Temporary special pioneers receive their assignment from the Service Department; they do not select their own. Individuals do not apply to become temporary special pioneers. Rather, well-qualified, local single regular pioneers and married regular pioneer couples without children are identified and invited to submit a Questionnaire for Prospective Temporary Special Pioneer (S-207).

97. Assignments: Single temporary special pioneers will ordinarily be assigned in pairs. If married, both mates would need to qualify to serve together as temporary special pioneers. Generally, temporary special pioneers are assigned to remote areas with a ratio of 1 publisher to at least 3,000 or more inhabitants to open up new territories, including those in foreign- or indigenous-language fields. Most branches have territories that are seldom worked or are remote and isolated where there are interested ones and where there is good potential for forming a congregation. Many countries have densely populated urban centers with few publishers in the inner cities. In many lands there is a great need for qualified brothers to help men reach out to become ministerial servants and elders or where the brothers need more training to care for their congregation responsibilities.

98. Qualifications: A prospective temporary special pioneer is a well-qualified and effective local regular pioneer and is usually a graduate of the School for Kingdom Evangelizers or a graduate of the former Bible School for Single Brothers or Bible School for Christian Couples. The candidate should be a citizen of the country, between 21 and 45 years of age, baptized three years or longer, in full-time service at least two years, in good health—not having serious limitations or severe health problems—and able to maintain an active schedule.—See 6:111.

99. If a branch has additional needs in the field, circuit overseers may recommend others who are not graduates of the above-named theocratic schools by submitting a Personal Qualifications Report (S-326) to the branch office for review. There is no arrangement for appointing as temporary special pioneers those who have a minor child still living at home. It is preferred that the focus be on appointing single men and married couples who have the potential for taking on greater responsibility. However, if such ones are not available, well-qualified single sisters may serve as temporary special pioneers.

100. Any exceptions, including the appointing of foreign pioneers as temporary special pioneers, must be approved by the Service Committee. If there is an exceptional need that cannot be cared for locally, then the Branch Committee should submit a Request for Field Missionaries (S-218) form to the Service Committee. Unless directed to do so by the Service Committee, the Branch Committee should not request help from other branch offices to fill special needs in the field.—See 6: 109.

101. Quota: The Service Committee establishes the total number of temporary special pioneers that may be appointed in each country. If the Branch Committee sees a need to increase the quota of temporary special pioneers, a request should be sent to the Service Committee, stating the number to be added, why they are needed, the number expected to graduate from the School for Kingdom Evangelizers in the coming year, and the publisher-to-population ratios of the language fields where they would be assigned.

102. Graduates of the School for Kingdom Evangelizers: Based on the recommendations of the instructors, the Service Department will determine which graduates in each class could be recommended to the Branch Committee to serve as temporary special pioneers. For more details, see chapter 10 of School for Kingdom Evangelizers Office Guidelines.

103. Nongraduates of the School for Kingdom Evangelizers: A candidate who is a local regular pioneer will be evaluated by the Service Department, based on the Personal Qualifications Report (S-326) and any recommendation submitted by the circuit overseer. The Service Department will decide whether to recommend to the Branch Committee that a regular pioneer be appointed as a temporary special pioneer. If approved, the regular pioneer can be sent a letter (S-225) explaining the temporary special pioneer arrangement with the request that he fill out a Questionnaire for Prospective Temporary Special Pioneer (S-207). The completed questionnaire is to be carefully checked by the Service Department and thereafter reviewed by two members of the Branch Committee. If they approve, the Service Department will prepare a letter (S-220) appointing the temporary special pioneer and informing him of the location of his assignment, copying the elders of the congregation he will be working with and the circuit overseer.

104. File: A file folder is made to hold a copy of the assignment letter, the questionnaire, and other correspondence related to the temporary special pioneer. His enrollment code in HuB is adjusted to show his start date as a temporary special pioneer (FTS). A record of his monthly field service is maintained in HuB.

105. Hour Requirement: The temporary special pioneer hour requirement is 130 hours a month. Sisters who are 40 years of age or older have a requirement of 120 hours a month. It is understood that a temporary special pioneer who serves as a congregation elder in a remote area may at times be needed for additional short-term theocratic assignments. For example, he may need to serve on a special committee or a Disaster Relief Committee, help with circuit or convention organization, assist in the construction or renovation of his own Kingdom Hall, or serve as a substitute circuit overseer. In addition, he may be needed for a brief period of time to train local elders to care for their responsibilities on a Hospital Liaison Committee. In exceptional situations, the travel time to attend an assigned circuit assembly, regional convention, or Kingdom Ministry School may be unusually long. If such assignments prevent him from making his hour requirement, a brief explanation, as well as the number of hours spent, should be included on the monthly report submitted on jw.org or on his monthly S-212 report. An explanation should also be written in the "Remarks" column of the Congregation's Publisher Record (S-21) card. However, the hours spent should not be included in the "Hours" column. The branch will also mark the HuB records and consider the remarks when performing the annual review. If a temporary special pioneer is assigned by the branch office to learn a new language in conjunction with his congregation assignment, he may be given a reduced hour requirement of 70 hours a month for up to three months.

106. Experiencing Difficulties: If a temporary special pioneer falls short of his hour requirement for two or three months or encounters serious health issues and is physically unable to meet the requirement, the Service Department may submit a recommendation for his deletion to two members of the Branch Committee for approval. It would be appropriate for the Service Department to write a letter to the temporary special pioneer, expressing appreciation for his service and encouraging him to continue working hard but directing that he return to the regular pioneer work. If the temporary special pioneer objects to the recommendation, he may submit a letter of appeal to the Branch Committee. The entire Branch Committee is responsible for making the final determination.

Special Pioneers

107. The Branch Committee is authorized to appoint special pioneers up to the quota approved by the Service Committee. (See 6:114.) Such individuals often have the potential to serve in other avenues of special full-time service, such as in the circuit work or as field missionaries. Those invited to serve as special pioneers must have the circumstances and desire to serve wherever the branch office assigns them, and they must be able to meet the hour requirement for this service. They receive their congregation assignment from the Service Department; they do not select their own. As members of the Worldwide Order, special pioneers are provided with a modest allowance to assist them with their living expenses.

108. Assignments: Single special pioneers will ordinarily be assigned in pairs. For married couples, both mates would need to qualify to serve together as special pioneers. Generally, special pioneers are assigned to open up new territories, including those in foreign- or indigenous-language fields in remote areas that have a ratio of 1 publisher to at least 3,000 or more inhabitants. Most branches have territories that are seldom worked or are remote and isolated but have interested ones and good potential for forming a congregation. Many countries have densely populated urban centers with few publishers in the inner cities. In many lands there is a great need for qualified brothers to help men reach out to become ministerial servants and elders or where the brothers need more training to care for their congregation responsibilities.

109. If there is an exceptional need, the Branch Committee may assign temporary special pioneers, special pioneers, and circuit overseers to any country overseen by the branch office. Care should be taken so that the costs involved in such transfers and the acquiring of legal residency are kept to a minimum. Since a key objective of the School for Kingdom Evangelizers and the temporary special pioneer arrangement is to help more local brothers and sisters to reach out to meet the needs within their own country, those who are assigned by the branch office to serve in another country should keep that focus in mind. Any exceptional situations should be referred to the Service Committee.—See 6:100.

110. Branch offices are not authorized to transfer special pioneers to other branch territories. Such requests or recommendations should be referred to the Service Committee.

111. Qualifications: Since the number of special pioneers who may be appointed is limited, the branch office has the weighty responsibility of appointing qualified candidates as special pioneers and reviewing their activity annually. (See 9:101.) With the exception of the age requirement, the qualifications outlined for temporary special pioneers also apply to special pioneers. (See 6:98-100.) When the quota allows for it, a new special pioneer will usually be selected from among well-qualified temporary special pioneers who are graduates of the School for Kingdom Evangelizers.

113. While there is no automatic arrangement for individuals leaving Bethel service, the circuit work, or some other form of special full-time service to be appointed as special pioneers, consideration should be shown to regular members of the Worldwide Order who are at least 55 years of age and have 25 or more years in special full-time service. In the case of a married couple, such consideration should be shown if one of the mates meets these requirements. In such cases, the Branch Committee should assign one or two responsible elders at the branch office to meet with the person or married couple and kindly discuss their needs as they prepare to transition out of their current assignment. This meeting could be handled in person or, if necessary, by telephone or videoconference. When conducting the meeting, the elders should inquire if the individuals would like to serve as special pioneers. If so, it would also be good to inquire what they will need in the way of housing and financial assistance. If someone who is at least 55 years of age and has 25 or more years in special full-time service of his own volition asks for a special pioneer assignment, the Branch Committee may consider the request. Careful consideration should be given to each one's spirituality, experience, and personal circumstances. If questions arise as to whether a longtime member of the Worldwide Order qualifies to serve as a special pioneer, the Branch Committee should outline the concerns and provide a specific recommendation to the Service Committee. (See 9:3, 6.) If consideration is given to reassigning any Bethel family members who are 60 years of age and older to the field, the Branch Committee should first consult with the Personnel Committee.

114. Quota: The Service Committee establishes the total number of special pioneers that may be appointed in each country. If the Branch Committee sees a need to increase the quota of special pioneers, a request should be sent to the Service Committee, stating the number to be added, why they are needed, and the publisher-to-population ratios of the language fields where they would be assigned. Special pioneers who have been given a temporary reduction in their hour requirement by the Branch Committee are included in the quota. (See 6:121.) However, those approved by the Service Committee to serve indefinitely as infirm special pioneers are not included in the quota. —See 6:107, 122.

115. Appointing New Special Pioneers: If the Service Department identifies a need in the field that cannot be met by the use of temporary special pioneers, it can consider appointing special pioneers. A candidate for special pioneer service should be selected from those who have successfully completed three years in the temporary special pioneer work. If the Branch Committee approves the recommendation from the Service Department, the temporary special pioneer should be sent a letter explaining the special pioneer arrangement, with the request that he fill out a Questionnaire for Prospective Special Pioneer (S-208). The completed questionnaire is to be carefully checked by the Service Department, and if all is in order, it is forwarded to the Branch Committee for approval. If the appointment is approved, the Service Department sends the special pioneer an assignment letter, copying the elders of the congregation he will be working with and the circuit overseer.

116. In branch territories with just a few circuits, the branch office may have in mind assigning an appointed circuit overseer to serve temporarily as a special pioneer. Before doing so, please provide the Service Committee with information about the brother you plan to reassign. If the brother and his wife, if married, could be used in the circuit work in another land for perhaps up to three years, provide a recent Personal Qualifications Report (S-326), translated into English, along with a cover letter describing his qualifications, his citizenship, and the language(s) in which he is fluent. It may be that he could be used in a nearby country where there is a need for circuit overseers.

117. File: A file folder is made to hold a copy of the assignment letter, the questionnaire, the vow of poverty, and other correspondence related to the special pioneer. His enrollment code in HuB is adjusted to show his start date as a special pioneer (FS). A record of his monthly field service is maintained in HuB.—See 6:176.

118. Hour Requirement: The special pioneer hour requirement is 130 hours a month. Sisters who are 40 years of age or older have a requirement of 120 hours a month. It is understood that a special pioneer who serves as a congregation elder in a remote area may at times be needed for additional short-term theocratic assignments. For example, he may need to serve on a special committee or a Disaster Relief Committee, help with circuit or convention organization, assist in the construction or renovation of his own Kingdom Hall, or serve as a substitute circuit overseer. In addition, he may be needed for a brief period of time to train local elders to care for their responsibilities on a Hospital Liaison Committee. In exceptional situations, the travel time to attend an assigned circuit assembly, regional convention, or Kingdom Ministry School may be unusually long. If such assignments prevent him from making his hour requirement, a brief explanation, as well as the number of hours spent, should be included on the monthly report submitted on jw.org or on his monthly S-212 report. An explanation should also be written in the "Remarks" column of the Congregation's Publisher Record (S-21) card. However, the hours spent should not be included in the "Hours" column. The branch will also mark the HuB records and consider the remarks when performing the annual review. If a special pioneer is assigned by the branch office to learn a new language in conjunction with his congregation assignment, he may be given a reduced hour requirement of 70 hours a month for up to three months.

119. Reassignment: If necessary, special pioneers may be moved after three years. However, there is no need to adjust an assignment of a special pioneer unless circumstances necessitate such a move. If a special pioneer requests to be assigned to another congregation, the Service Department should consider the needs of the field, factoring in any extenuating circumstances.

120. Infirm Special Pioneers: If a special pioneer with less than 25 years of special full-time service is consistently unable to meet his monthly hour requirement, perhaps for six months or so, then it may be best for the person to leave the special full-time service. On the other hand, for those who are at least 55 years of age and who have 25 or more years in special full-time service, a reduced hour requirement may be appropriate. For reporting purposes, all special pioneers with an approved reduced hour requirement should be given the FSI enrollment code.

121. If a reduced hour requirement is needed because of temporary factors, such as short-term illness or caring for family responsibilities, the Branch Committee is authorized to approve a reduced monthly hour requirement for up to one year without consulting the Service Committee. This is with the understanding that the special pioneer will resume the normal special pioneer routine as soon as possible. This provision takes into consideration that unexpected events can overtake us all.—See 6: 114; Eccl. 9:11.

122. It may be that a permanent reduction in a special pioneer's hour requirement is needed because of long-term factors, such as chronic or terminal illness or advancing age. Usually it is best for the branch to consult with the special pioneer's body of elders and circuit overseer before determining an appropriate reduced hour requirement. In some cases, the branch office may be more familiar with the person's circumstances and abilities, such as when a longtime Bethel family member or a circuit overseer is being transferred to serve as a special pioneer. In all cases, the recommendation that a special pioneer have a permanent reduction in his hour requirement and that he serve indefinitely as an infirm special pioneer should be sent to the Service Committee for approval. The recommendation should include a complete overview of the special pioneer's circumstances, the reason(s) for recommending infirm status, and the recommended reduced hour quota. In most cases, a reduced hour requirement is better than no hour requirement at all. —See 6:114; 9:87.

123. As needed, the branch office should kindly remind the elders and circuit overseers to ensure that the needs of the infirm special pioneers are being met and that any needed encouragement and shepherding are being given. (John 21:16) Once the Service Committee approves the initial reduced hour requirement, the Branch Committee is authorized to make any further progressive reductions to the monthly hour requirement without consulting the Service Committee. Removal of an hour requirement is usually reserved for infirm special pioneers who have extremely limiting circumstances because of advanced age or life-threatening health issues and whose hour requirement has already been progressively reduced.

Circuit Overseers

124. Circuit Overseer Guidelines and the latest correspondence from the Service Committee provide detailed information regarding the activity of circuit overseers.

125. Substitute Circuit Overseers: The qualifications for substitute circuit overseers are outlined in Circuit

Overseer Guidelines. Generally, substitute circuit overseers are given access to Circuit Overseer Guidelines and to the letters addressed to all circuit overseers. Substitute circuit overseers should not be used to care for a circuit for more than three months.—See 6:133.

126. Circuit overseers may submit recommendations for new substitute circuit overseers using the Personal Qualifications Report (S-326). Before a brother is recommended to serve as a substitute circuit overseer or a circuit overseer, he must have attended the Ministerial Training School, the Bible School for Single Brothers, the Bible School for Christian Couples, the School for Kingdom Evangelizers, or the Watchtower Bible School of Gilead. The Service Department should check to see whether he is qualified to serve on special committees and has been recommended as a convention speaker. After the S-326 is evaluated and if everything is positive, the brother may be sent a Questionnaire for Prospective Substitute Circuit Overseer (S-324).

127. A brother recommended as a substitute circuit overseer will receive two weeks of training by an approved trainer prior to being appointed as a substitute circuit overseer. Only experienced circuit overseers approved by the Branch Committee will provide necessary training and evaluation. Those approved as trainers should be the most experienced and qualified circuit overseers. They should be selected from the list of circuit overseers who are approved to make shepherding visits on other circuit overseers. Substitute circuit overseers are appointed by the Branch Committee. The Service Department should submit the completed questionnaire and the S-326 forms from the circuit overseer, as well as any other information that would be helpful to the Branch Committee for its evaluation. If the brother is appointed, a letter should be sent to him informing him of this. Further details can be found in Guidelines for Processing Recommendations for Substitute Circuit Overseers and Circuit Overseers (S-385).

128. Circuit Overseer Guidelines outlines how circuit overseers can assist substitute circuit overseers who are not meeting the high standard expected of those serving in this capacity. If a substitute circuit overseer is reproved or disfellowshipped or is removed as an elder for any other reason, the date of his deletion as a substitute circuit overseer should be entered in HuB. The Service Department may refer complex cases involving a substitute circuit overseer's qualifications to the Branch Committee for consideration. If a single substitute circuit overseer becomes engaged to be married and desires to continue in the substitute circuit work, he should inform the Service Department right away. With regard to obtaining comments on the qualifications of the sister, the Service Department will follow the same procedure as when a single circuit overseer becomes engaged and desires to remain in the circuit work. (See 9:60.) The most recent Personal Qualifications Report on the brother should be reviewed. If it would be helpful, the brother's circuit overseer could be asked to provide updated comments.

129. In view of the great trust placed upon circuit overseers, the Branch Committee must give these recommendations very careful and prayerful consideration.—Luke 12:48b.

130. Qualifications: The qualifications for circuit overseers are outlined in Circuit Overseer Guidelines. Since the responsibility that is entrusted to circuit overseers of appointing and deleting elders and ministerial servants is a weighty one, those recommended should be kind, impartial, and just. (Ex. 18:21) When handling recommendations, whether for appointment or deletion, the circuit overseer must avoid imposing his personal viewpoints and opinions or setting arbitrary rules.

(1 Cor. 4:6) Before being recommended to serve as a circuit overseer, he should have proved that he strives to imitate Jehovah and His Son by caring for matters with love and patience. (Deut. 10:17; 16:18, 19; Isa. 42:1-4) In this way, he demonstrates deep respect and submission to Jehovah and to the Head of the Christian congregation, Jesus Christ.—See 2:30; 9:95; Eph. 1:22.

- All brothers recommended as circuit overseers should be graduates of the Bible School for Christian Couples, the Bible School for Single Brothers, the Ministerial Training School, the School for Kingdom Evangelizers, or the Watchtower Bible School of Gilead.
- Those recommended should display evidence of good judgment, spiritual depth, loyalty to God's Word and organization, and soundness of mind. Such qualities are more important than having a compelling, charming personality.
- Those recommended for circuit work should have served as congregation elders for a minimum of three years and have at least two years in full-time service, preferably longer.
- The maximum age for those recommended is 45. As an exception, a well-qualified brother who has been in special full-time service for a considerable number of years may be recommended until the age of 50. Brothers who are 25 years of age or younger would usually not be recommended.—See 6:132.
- If the brother is married, his wife should be at least 21 years old, baptized three years or longer, and in full-time service for at least two years.

131. Circuit overseers may submit recommendations of substitute circuit overseers for circuit work, using the S-326 form. After the S-326 is evaluated and if everything is positive, the body of elders should be asked to provide its observations and its recommendation of the brother and, if married, his wife, using the S-326 forms. If a positive recommendation is received from both the body of elders and the circuit overseer, the brother should receive two weeks of training with an experienced circuit overseer. If all is well, he may be sent a Questionnaire for Prospective Circuit Overseer (S-323). See School for Kingdom Evangelizers Office Guidelines with regard to providing circuit training to graduates. Before a recommendation is sent to the Governing Body, the substitute circuit overseer should have served congregations a minimum of ten full weeks. An exception would be when a brother has previously served in circuit work or is a graduate of the Bible School for Christian Couples, the Bible School for Single Brothers, the Ministerial Training School, the School for Kingdom Evangelizers, or the Watchtower Bible School of Gilead and has already received ten weeks of training and may have served only a few weeks as a substitute circuit overseer since then.

132. Appointments: Circuit overseers are appointed by the Governing Body. (See 2:26, 30.) There is no need to supply more information than what is requested on the recommendation form unless there are unusual factors that the Governing Body should know. For example, if the Branch Committee is recommending a brother who is not yet 25 years old or a brother who is over 45 years of age, the reasons for making such an exceptional recommendation should be fully explained in a numbered letter. If a brother being recommended previously served as a traveling overseer, the reason for his deletion from that privilege of service should be explained in a numbered letter. Once the branch office has received an approved recommendation form from the Governing Body, the Service Department will then send the brother an appointment letter (S-308) along with instructions concerning his new assignment.—See 6:130.

133. Arrangements for New Circuit Overseers: Branches should have a reasonable number of approved circuit overseers available for use when needed, such as when a circuit overseer will be away for more than three months. (See 6:139.) Newly appointed circuit overseers should be given an FC enrollment. Field missionaries (FMF) who are appointed as circuit overseers should be given an FCF enrollment. If the newly appointed circuit overseer is waiting for a permanent assignment to become available, his circuit assignment should be listed in HuB as "unassigned." The Service Department should inform a newly appointed circuit overseer who will be covering a circuit for three months or less that when generating letters of appointment or deletion, he should indicate the circuit designation on the letterhead. He should note in the letter that he is temporarily caring for the circuit. If a newly appointed circuit overseer is assigned to care for a circuit for more than three months, he should be assigned to that circuit. (See 6:125; 9:20.) Sometime during a new circuit overseer's first year in the circuit work, he and his wife will be invited to the branch office for two weeks of training.—See Service Department Training for New Circuit Overseers (S-381).

134. Circuits That Span Branch Territories: On a case-by-case basis, the Service Committee may authorize the formation of circuits that include congregations and groups in two or more branch territories. In such situations, the enrollment "Visiting Branch Circuit Overseer" (FCB) should be assigned to any circuit overseer serving congregations in one branch territory who has a primary assignment under the supervision of another branch office. This enrollment will be assigned concurrently with his primary FC (or FCF) enrollment. Use of the FCB enrollment will allow a circuit overseer to create a separate jw.org account for each territory. The branch receiving the visiting branch circuit overseer should provide to the home branch the name of the circuit and the contact number for the local jw.org help desk. This will allow the home branch to complete the S-134 form letter, which is used to inform the affected circuit overseers of this provision.

135. Circuit overseers crossing branch boundaries should submit a separate Circuit Overseer Routing (S-300) form to each branch office outside their home branch territory, indicating only the visits they will make to congregations and groups in that branch territory. This is in addition to the complete S-300 form that they should submit to their home branch office, which should include the weeks that they are serving in another branch territory. The weeks spent outside of their home branch territory should be entered by the home branch as "Miscellaneous" events in HuB. When scheduling circuit assemblies for circuits crossing branch boundaries, each branch office should enter the circuit assembly separately into HuB. This will allow each branch office to keep track of the activity of the congregations under its oversight.

136. Correspondence and Personal Mail: Direction sent to all congregations, all bodies of elders, or other field entities should be made available to all circuit overseers so that they remain up-to-date on such matters. Any of the circuit overseer's personal mail received at the branch office should be forwarded to his current address.

137. Size of Circuits: Circuits are generally made up of approximately 16 to 20 congregations, including isolated groups. One factor to take into consideration in determining the number of congregations to be placed in each circuit is the availability, capacity, and distance to the nearest Assembly Hall. In most cases, a circuit overseer should cover his circuit twice annually.

138. Routing: The circuit overseer submits his routing to the branch office three months in advance using the Circuit Overseer Routing (S-300) form. At the same time, he will send the congregation a Notice of Visit of Circuit Overseer (S-302) advising of the dates of his visit. Once the branch office and the congregations have been informed, the circuit overseer should adhere to the routing he submitted. If he feels that a change needs to be made to the routing, he should contact the Service Department and request permission.

139. Absences From the Circuit: A circuit overseer who is away from his circuit for more than three months may be given the "unassigned" circuit designation in HuB or another appropriate enrollment. (See 6:133.) The handling of appointments and deletions of elders and ministerial servants while a circuit overseer is away from his assignment is discussed in 6:57. Situations that may necessitate granting a circuit overseer or his wife a leave of absence are discussed at 9:77 and in Circuit Overseer Guidelines.

140. Questions About the Qualifications of Circuit Overseers: The branch office should follow up on any concerns or complaints received about a circuit overseer that raise serious questions about his qualifications. First, the office needs to obtain the facts. (Prov. 18:13, 17) In some cases, it may be best to write to the circuit overseer, informing him of what has been reported, and provide him with the opportunity to reply. Serious matters should be referred to the Branch Committee.

141. If what was reported is valid and has raised serious questions about a circuit overseer's qualifications, it may be that a kind letter that outlines the observations and provides loving Scriptural counsel will be sufficient to address the concern. (Prov. 27:9; 1 Tim. 5:1; w99 1/15 pp. 21-24) If needed, the Service Department may ask an experienced circuit overseer or branch representative to discuss the matter privately with the circuit overseer and provide him with appropriate Scriptural counsel during the next scheduled shepherding visit. (See 9:114.) If the matter needs to be handled sooner, an experienced circuit overseer could be asked to care for the matter. When a personal visit is made, the assigned brother should submit a report to the Service Department that includes a summary of the counsel he provided to the circuit overseer. The report should also comment on how the circuit overseer responded to any counsel given. Following the visit by an experienced circuit overseer or by a branch representative, the branch office could follow up in writing to express sincere appreciation for the circuit overseer's efforts in making improvement and to reinforce the counsel given. (1 Thess. 4:1) If this is not the first time that a similar concern has been brought to his attention, the letter from the Service Department could remind the brother of the previous counsel and encourage him to make a more concerted effort to improve. In such cases, the Service Department should copy the Branch Committee on such letters sent to assist the circuit overseer. If, over a reasonable period of time, the circuit overseer does not improve in spite of repeated efforts to assist him, it may be necessary for the Branch Committee to recommend to the Governing Body his deletion as a circuit overseer. A brief summary of the efforts made to assist him should be included in a numbered letter that is sent along with the Recommendations to Governing Body form.—See 2:30; 9:96.

142. On occasion, complaints may be received involving the wife of a circuit overseer. Out of respect for the headship principle, the Service Department will write to the husband, informing him of the negative report and asking for his comments. He may be encouraged to help his wife. (The brother assigned to make the next shepherding visit on the circuit overseer and his wife should receive a copy of any correspondence to the circuit overseer so that the brother can offer assistance and counsel if needed.) Appropriate follow-up should be in harmony with the general principles outlined in the preceding paragraph.

143. When an allegation of serious wrongdoing is made about a circuit overseer, the Service Department should appoint two experienced circuit overseers to investigate. If it is established that there is substance to the report and evidence is available that a serious sin has been committed, the two brothers should notify the Service Department so that a judicial committee can be appointed. If there is insufficient evidence to prove that the allegations are true, the two brothers will make a full report of their findings to the Service Department for evaluation. Although a gross sin may not have been committed, it may be that the circuit overseer's conduct is seriously in question. In such cases, the report should be referred to the Branch Committee for its consideration and direction.—See 2:30.

144. If a circuit overseer confesses to serious wrongdoing, two experienced circuit overseers should be directed by the Service Department to investigate. After confirming the nature and extent of the sin(s) committed, they should report back to the Service Department. The Service Department will appoint a judicial committee consisting of three circuit overseers. Likely, the two who investigated the matter would serve on the committee. The committee's decision, whether reproof or disfellowshipping, is reported to the branch in the normal way. The Service Department would designate a congregation that would hold the records in its confidential file. (It may be the congregation where the former circuit overseer indicates that he will attend meetings.) An announcement of reproof or disfellowshipping would also be made in that congregation. If the former circuit overseer seeks reinstatement, a local congregation judicial committee should hear the plea for reinstatement and seek observations from the branch office before reaching a final decision. If the decision is to reinstate, the appropriate notification should be sent to the Service Department.

145. Writing Letters to Former Traveling Overseers: In many countries, there are faithful brothers who formerly spent many years in the traveling work. To encourage such older brothers, branch offices may write a personalized letter from time to time. This shows that the organization is interested in their welfare and appreciates what they accomplished in the traveling work during a big part of their life.—Phil. 2:4; 1 Pet. 5:12.

146. Circuit Overseers in Foreign Service: When a field missionary is appointed as a circuit overseer, he and his wife are registered in HuB with the corresponding foreign service enrollments (FCF and CWF). On rare occasions, a Branch Committee may believe that there is a need to assign a circuit overseer to a distant country in the branch territory other than the land of his birth or citizenship. When such a need arises, the Branch Committee may recommend to the Service Committee that the circuit overseer and his wife be granted the foreign service enrollment. All such recommendations will be considered on a case-by-case basis. While citizenship and country of birth are considered, these are not the sole determining factors. The Branch Committee should carefully consider the following points to ensure that the recommendation is reasonable.—Phil. 4:5.

- Is the assignment in a distant land, making it reasonable to provide them with additional personal time away?
- Does the nature or relative difficulty of the assignment make it reasonable to provide them with considerations similar to those given to field missionaries?

- Will they be in the foreign assignment for a minimum of one year?
- Do citizens of the countries regularly travel back and forth with little or no legal restrictions?
- Why could a local circuit overseer not be used?

147. If after considering these points and any other factors relevant to the specific situation, the Branch Committee believes that there are good reasons to recommend that a circuit overseer and his wife be granted the foreign service enrollment, the brother and his wife should each fill out a Questionnaire for Prospective Field Missionary (S-214). A numbered letter should then be sent to the Service Committee along with the completed S-214 form(s) and a copy of the latest Personal Qualifications Report(s) (S-326). The S-214 and S-326 should be translated into English. In the numbered letter, a clear explanation should be given as to the reason for the recommendation. If the Service Committee approves the recommendation, the enrollment code in the HuB Person record should be updated to show the start date of the foreign circuit assignment. The foreign service enrollment stops when the foreign assignment ends.

Addressing Local Needs

148. Congregation Needs: If there is a serious matter affecting most or all congregations in the branch territory, the Branch Committee may outline the concern to the Service Committee and provide a recommendation as to how to address the local need. For example, the Branch Committee may recommend preparing an outline to be considered during the local needs part of the midweek congregation meeting. Some topics may be best handled by circuit overseers when they visit the congregations or at an upcoming Kingdom Ministry School. Generally, it is not wise to prepare new material featuring Scriptural direction on topics such as marriage, funeral customs, or superstitious practices common in the branch territory. The branch office should not organize special meetings with elders or circuit overseers without the approval of the Service Committee.

149. Evaluating the Need for Translated Publications: The Branch Committee should consider the following two principles before making a recommendation to the Writing Committee to translate publications into a language or to discontinue translation into a language. (See 8:12-19; Chart 8.1.) First, it is unrealistic to expect that most of our publications will become available in all languages. Our goal is not to translate in the largest number of languages but to follow the lead of the holy spirit to reach the largest number of honesthearted people with the good news. (Acts 13:48; 16:6-10; 1 Tim. 2:3, 4) Language communities that do not demonstrate a potential to form stable groups and congregations have a very limited need for publications. In addition, we must be careful not to pursue languages that are dying or that are preferred simply because of ethnic or tribal rivalries or other factors that do not involve spiritual needs. Second, groups and congregations may be formed in a certain language even if there are no publications in that language as long as the brothers and sisters are able to benefit from publications in another language. For example, the brothers may be able to benefit from publications in the national or regional language. (See 7:44.) In such a case, the brothers would conduct their field ministry, give comments and talks, pray, and sing in their first language but use printed publications of another language during their meetings. This simple approach works well where the brothers are multilingual. In addition to their mother tongue, they may know either the main language of the country or a major regional language.

150. Based on the two principles outlined above, the Branch Committee must carefully evaluate the need before recommending that the first publication or additional publications be translated into a language. To ensure that the Branch Committee has a clear understanding of the needs, the Service Department should obtain the facts from the field. Selected bodies of elders, circuit overseers, field missionaries, and special pioneers may be asked to comment on such factors as the following: What is the size of the language community? How many are dependent on the language? Can most benefit from another language? How many can read their own language? Do they prefer to read another language? Are there spiritually mature publishers who are native speakers or who speak the language fluently? If so, are they willing and able to support this language field, or do they prefer to attend meetings in another language? Are qualified brothers available to take the lead and to care for the spiritual needs of new ones? (Col. 2:6, 7) Are there already groups or congregations in this language in your branch territory? Are you aware of groups or congregations in this language that may be functioning in another branch territory?

151. Evaluating New-Language Publications in the Field: When a new-language publication has been prepared for use in the field, the Service Department should send the S-136 letter to the target-language congregations and circuit overseers, announcing that the newly translated publication is available. The outline "Teach God's Word to 'All Sorts of Men'" (S-137), which provides direction on promoting the publication by means of a campaign and practical suggestions to help publishers use the publication effectively in the ministry, should also be sent. The information contained in the Evaluation of New-Language Publications (S-138) form will assist the Service Department in evaluating the needs. It would be unwise to accelerate translation of publications into a language if there is little response in the field or if the publishers who speak it are not committed to attending meetings and preaching in that language. The Service Department should carefully consider these and other relevant factors before recommending to the Branch Committee that additional publications be translated into the language or, conversely, that efforts to develop that language field be discontinued. If the Service Department recommends that efforts to cultivate a specific language field should be discontinued and the Branch Committee agrees, there will be no need to request translation of additional publications. In the rare event that the Branch Committee believes efforts to cultivate a language field with a permanent translation team should be discontinued, the Service Committee should be consulted.

152. Evaluating Spiritual Progress in Language Fields: On an annual basis, the Service Department should provide a report to the Branch Committee on each indigenous- or foreign-language field in the branch territory. Are native speakers responding to the good news and progressing to dedication and baptism? If congregations and groups in a particular language field are not prospering spiritually, the Service Department should determine the reasons. What are circuit overseers reporting as to the needs of such groups and congregations? (tg chap. 15) What steps have been taken to address the needs? What more needs to be done? (See 6:75-78.) The Service Department's report to the Branch Committee should include recommendations regarding further steps that could be taken to cultivate each language field.

153. Overseeing the Needs of the Blind: A brother should be appointed to oversee the work of caring for the needs of the blind and visually impaired in the branch territory. In most cases, the brother should work in the Service Department. However, this work could be done by a brother in another department if necessary. Good communication and cooperation is required between the Service Department, the Shipping Department, and the Braille Department (if there is one) to care for the needs of the blind. Overseeing this work is not a full-time assignment, but depending on the size of the branch, one or two sisters may assist with gathering information as needed.

Other Desks in the Service Department

154. Field Ministers Desk: A desk may be designated to care for the needs of circuit overseers (including field instructors) and their wives, field missionaries, special pioneers, and temporary special pioneers. The desk assists with matters such as the allowance, health care, housing, leave of absence time, and visas for these special full-time servants. The desk also assists with the identification, training, and recommendations for appointment of substitute circuit overseers and regular circuit overseers. The Service Desks have the responsibility to identify the needs in the territory when assignments for special pioneers and field missionaries are considered.—See 5:142.

155. Convention and Assembly Desk: A desk may be designated to ensure that practical and beneficial arrangements are made for organizing and scheduling conventions and circuit assemblies. Helpful guidance is found in Convention Organization Guidelines (CO-1). The desk maintains all files pertaining to regional conventions, including speaker ratings (S-306), convention volunteer reports (CO-53), and so forth. Some larger branches may designate a Program Desk to care for the work involved with assigning convention speakers and interpreters.

156. Master Planning for Kingdom Halls and Assembly Halls: A brother in the Service Department should be designated as the contact for the Local Design/Construction Department (LDC). He will work closely with the LDC to develop a master plan of the number of Kingdom Halls and Assembly Halls that are needed and their priority. The master plan is submitted for approval to the Branch Committee. Once approved, the LDC will use this plan to prioritize and administer construction, renovation, and maintenance projects for Kingdom Halls and Assembly Halls in the branch territory. The brother in the Service Department will work closely with the LDC to review and study regularly the needs for Kingdom Halls and Assembly Halls in order to update the master plan.—See 5:149.

157. Speaking Assignment Desk: The Teaching Committee provides letters and direction that outline the arrangements for Bethel speakers. These guidelines should be followed regarding assignments, expenses, and so forth. —See 7:80-89.

158. Preaching Needs Desk: In addition to making assignments for seldom-worked and unassigned territories, coordinating efforts for special methods of witnessing within the branch territory, and assisting with master planning for Kingdom Halls and Assembly Halls, this desk cares for assigning territory boundaries and for producing territory maps. These maps should be prepared using the best map available in the country. Indicate on the state or province maps the territory assigned to each congregation and the boundaries of all circuits. Unassigned territory should also be indicated on this map or on a separate map. The names of circuit overseers followed by the circuit numbers may be placed within the boundary of the area they serve. A Congregation Territory Assignment (S-54) letter is sent to each congregation with the exact written description of the outlined territory. It may also be possible to send a map clearly outlining the congregation's assigned territory. The procedure for congregations to follow in adjusting territory boundaries is outlined on the form Territory Adjustment Request (S-6).—See 6:75.

159. Theocratic Schools Desk: This desk cares for various theocratic schools, such as the language seminars, the Kingdom Ministry School, the Pioneer Service School, the School for Circuit Overseers and Their Wives, the School for Congregation Elders, and the School for Kingdom Evangelizers.

160. Translation Desk: The Service Department is responsible for translating service-related material, such as school curriculums, forms, guidelines, letters, meeting outlines, and videos. Translation and checking should be handled primarily by part-time commuters and remote volunteers under the coordination of a brother in the Service Department, perhaps a deskman. The permanent project-team approach used by the Translation Department is not needed for most service-related material. This desk also assists with the management of jw.org and MDS postings.—See 6:63; 8:20-21.

161. Use of Sisters: Mature sisters may be used for some clerical roles in the Service Department, such as data entry of basic personnel information, territory mapping, and the translation and proofreading of nonconfidential forms and letters. However, sisters should not be involved in handling confidential material so as not to put them in an uncomfortable situation or to be a cause for stumbling to others.

Service Reports

162. Monthly Field Service Report: Branch offices should follow the instructions provided in HuB for compiling and sending the Field Service Report (S-81) to the Service Committee. The figures for the S-81 are taken from a careful compilation of the Congregation Reports (S-1) and the Field Missionary/Special Pioneer Reports (S-212). All publishers are encouraged to report through a congregation. Isolated publishers and pioneers send their reports on the publisher's Field Service Report (S-4), indicating that it is from an "isolated publisher" or "isolated pioneer." The figure for the "Public by Mail" column on the S-81 can be obtained from the month-to-month record of books, brochures, and magazines sent from the branch to the non-Witness public. In addition, all magazines or literature sent out in response to coupons are listed as "Public by Mail." Comments about new peaks in publishers, general highlights of the work, or trends may be submitted in the "Remarks" column. Questions or significant figures should be sent to the Service Committee in a separate letter.

163. A separate Field Service Report (S-81) should be submitted monthly for each political entity under the oversight of the branch. Reports should be sent no later than the 28th of the following month. Late or missing reports may be included in the report for the following month. Be sure that any peaks shown do not include reports in excess of the total number of congregations for that month.

164. Annual Field Service Report: Branch offices should follow the instructions provided in HuB for compiling and sending the end-of-year figures.

Files and Filing

165. Since the files in the office are used by many to do their work, all correspondence must be promptly and correctly identified and filed so that it can be readily located. As a general guideline, items should be identified immediately upon their receipt in the office and filed within one week of their being completed. The secretary has the responsibility for this and should have a regular routine for filing.

166. Electronic Files: The Service Department should use the HuB Document Management System (DMS) for filing correspondence and other electronic documents. HuB DMS should be set up according to the latest guidelines provided by the Service Committee. If historical documents must be scanned, consult with the WHQ Computer Department before undertaking such a project. Once hard copy paperwork has been scanned and verified, then it can be shredded. Electronic files should be retained only as long as outlined in the remaining paragraphs under this section.

167. Paper Files: If the Service Department files are not maintained electronically, permanent congregation files are stored in a very secure, locked area of the branch. Each congregation file has four sections: (1) circuit overseers' reports, (2) general correspondence, (3) reinstatements, and (4) disfellowshippings and disassociations. [See Chart 6.1.]

168. Circuit Overseers' Reports: S-303 and S-2 forms and supplemental letters are kept in the front of the file in date order with the most recent at the front. When a new report is received, a red mark is made on the upper right corner of the preceding report, and the new report is inserted in front of it. If the first report in the file has this red mark, then the most recent report has been removed.

169. General Correspondence: This material is filed directly behind the circuit overseers' reports in date order with the most recent at the front of the general correspondence. The Congregation Application (S-51), or in its absence the oldest Report on Circuit Overseer's Visit With Congregation (S-303), is filed at the back of the general correspondence. If the last circuit overseer's report prior to the elder arrangement in 1972 is available, it should be stamped "DO NOT DESTROY" and retained just in front of the S-51 form. Correspondence regarding an individual accused of child abuse should be marked "DO NOT DESTROY."

170. Reinstatements: Whether recorded on S-77 forms or in letters from judicial committees, correspondence related to reinstatements is filed directly behind the general correspondence and S-51 form in the date order of reinstatement, with the most recent reinstatement in the front of this section. The S-77 form and attached correspondence about those reinstated should be destroyed after five years, unless the Service Desk determines there is a specific reason to retain the file. In such a case, the file would only be retained as long as it is necessary.

171. Disfellowshippings and Disassociations: These are kept at the back of the file. The most recent disfellowshipping record is filed at the very back of the folder. When an individual is reinstated, the date of reinstatement is recorded on the S-77 form, which is then filed with the reinstatements, as noted above.

172. Hold File: Each Service Desk maintains a HOLD FILE for pending items. This file typically contains correspondence on matters for which the deskman has requested further information or comments from circuit overseers or elders. It may be best also to keep in the hold file a complete copy of any material routed to Service Department oversight or to the Branch Committee. Every month the secretary should go through the hold file, checking to see whether a response has been made. If the office has not received the requested information or comments within three months, he should check with the deskman to see whether a reminder letter should be sent. When sending a reminder letter to a body of elders, a courtesy copy is provided to the circuit overseer with a blind PS asking him to make certain that the elders respond promptly.

173. Files for Isolated Pioneers and Publishers: When it is not feasible for an isolated group of publishers to be cared for by a congregation, a file folder for each isolated publisher group that cannot yet be formed into a congregation is made and arranged alphabetically according to the name of the place where the publisher receiving mail for the group resides. All correspondence to and from the group, as well as reports from the circuit overseer for his visits to the group, is placed in this file. When a group is established as a congregation, the contents of the folder are added to the CONGREGATION FILE. A file folder is also made for ISOLATED PIONEERS. The S-4 forms from isolated pioneers are kept for a year in this folder. These files are kept together and not with the congregation files.

174. Circuit Files: The S-2 forms showing the appointment of assembly overseers and assistant assembly overseers are kept in these files.

175. Branch Correspondence Files: When other branches send correspondence to your branch for forwarding to individuals in the field, they usually include a courtesy copy for your branch file. Such copies are filed in the appropriate folder of the BRANCH CORRESPONDENCE FILES, not in the congregation files. If much mail is received from other branches, it may be helpful to sort the mail into categories, such as Branch Accommodations, Donation Letters, Kingdom Hall Information Requests, and Miscellaneous. The respective retention policy should be followed for each category.

176. Special Pioneer Files: A file folder is made by the Field Ministers Desk secretary for each special pioneer or, if married, for each couple. The files are arranged alphabetically. The special pioneer's current congregation assignment, his Application for Regular Pioneer Service (S-205), and the S-208 are a permanent part of the file. Also filed here are the two most recent S-326 forms submitted by the circuit overseer and the file copy of any personal encouragement letters sent by the Field Ministers Desk. (Based on the circuit overseer's comments in the S-326 form received each service year, the Field Ministers Desk will determine if additional correspondence is needed.) General correspondence may be disposed of when the files are weeded according to the branch's document retention policy.—See 6:117.

177. Active and Inactive Circuit Overseer Files: An active file folder is made for each circuit overseer by the Field Ministers Desk secretary. This folder contains correspondence from the circuit overseer pertaining to his circuit as a whole, including any S-326 forms that were submitted on the circuit overseer and his wife, the file copies of correspondence written to the circuit overseer in connection with these reports, and correspondence regarding his field activity or his personal affairs. When a circuit overseer discontinues the circuit work, the folder is placed in the inactive file.

178. Active and Inactive Substitute Circuit Overseer Files: An active file folder is made for each substitute circuit overseer. This folder contains the correspondence regarding his appointment, including the S-324, any S-326 forms, and so forth. When a substitute circuit overseer discontinues the circuit work, the folder is placed in the inactive file.

179. "Declaration Pledging Faithfulness" Files: If used, a "Declaration Pledging Faithfulness" is filed by the last name of the person on the declaration. A separate list of names of those in the file should be maintained.—See Correspondence Guidelines, pp. 74-75.

180. Files for Those Disfellowshipped and Disassociated: A permanent file of those disfellowshipped and disassociated is kept. If S-79a/b cards are used by the branch office, they are filed alphabetically by last name, first name, and middle name and should be stored in a very secure, locked room.

181. Weeding Section Files: Deskmen are responsible for weeding the congregation files for their section. Not to be weeded are any S-2 or S-52 forms. These are to be kept indefinitely in the congregation file. Any correspondence dealing with the transfer of appointed brothers from one congregation to another should also be kept indefinitely. At least the last five copies of the S-303 forms and supplemental letters are kept. Older S-303 forms marked "DO NOT DESTROY" are also kept. The schedule for file retention is to be followed. A secretary may weed the files if directed to do so by the deskman. However, the deskman must carefully check the items slated for shredding within a short time of their being weeded by the secretary so that nothing of significance is discarded. The secretary should not shred anything from the files without getting the approval of the deskman.

SCHOOL FOR BRANCH COMMITTEE MEMBERS AND THEIR WIVES

182. The Service Committee invites Branch Committee and Country Committee members and their wives to this eight-week course. There is no provision for a husband to attend without his wife. If married, the following requirements must be met by both mates:

- Currently in some form of full-time service.
- Possess a good understanding of English in order to participate in class discussions and fulfill various student assignments to a reasonable degree.
- In good health and able to travel to the United States without assistance or the need for medical care during the school.—Mic. 6:8; Phil. 4:5; w04 8/15, p. 24, par. 13.
- No dependents.

183. If the availability or eligibility of a Branch Committee or Country Committee member changes, the branch should update the Persons record in HuB. Until the Service Committee sends out an invitation to a specific class, there is no need for a committee member to submit the Questionnaire for the School for Branch Committee Members and Their Wives.—See 7:113.

WATCHTOWER BIBLE SCHOOL OF GILEAD

184. Purpose of the School: The purpose of this 20-week school is to provide intensive training in Bible study and theocratic organization for experienced and well-qualified special full-time servants who have already proved that they are mature Christians. With this additional training, these individuals should be able to do more to stabilize and strengthen the field and branch organization. Students are chosen approximately six months prior to the start of each Gilead class. In March, selections are made for the October class. In September, selections are made for the April class.—See 2:28.

185. Basic Requirements:

- Married couples, single brothers, and single sisters between the ages of 25 and 50. As an exception, Branch Committees may recommend brothers whom they feel are qualified to serve as Branch Committee or Country Committee members, even if they are older than 50.
- All must have been in special full-time service for at least three consecutive years. Married couples must have served the last three years together in special full-time service.
- Candidates must have the potential for strengthening and stabilizing the field or branch organization to a greater degree and must have demonstrated that they enjoy serving their brothers and can help others in a kind way to learn and adhere to Scriptural and theocratic direction.
- They must be exemplary in all aspects of Christian living.
- A brother must be an elder who has been serving for a minimum of two consecutive years.
- Must be able to read, write, and speak English fluently.
- Must be in good health. Those who have chronic ailments, who have physical or emotional disorders, who require regular visits to a doctor or a chiropractor, who suffer from severe allergies, or who require a special diet should not be recommended for Gilead training.

- Neither past graduates of Gilead nor current members of a Branch or Country committee should be recommended.
- Circuit overseers must have already attended the School for Circuit Overseers and Their Wives.

186. Selecting Candidates: When considering candidates to be recommended for Gilead School training, the Branch Committee should have clearly in mind the current and long-term needs at Bethel and in the field. (See 9:110.) The following points should be considered:

a. Individuals who are recommended must be fluent in English in order to benefit fully from the extensive 20-week course. Has the Branch Committee confirmed that the candidate is truly fluent? Will the candidate's current comprehension of English allow him to make a meaningful contribution to class discussions and to handle his student assignments adequately?

b. In reviewing a candidate's strengths and limitations, spiritual qualities such as humility and submission to theocratic instruction are more important than a person's age, seniority, nationality, or secular education.—1 Sam. 16:6, 7; Acts 16:2; Jas. 3:17; 1 Pet. 3:4.

c. It is the Governing Body's preference that brothers who are being considered for appointment to the Branch or Country committee attend Gilead School. As an exception, a brother who the Branch Committee feels is qualified to serve on the Branch Committee or on a Country Committee may be recommended even if he is somewhat older than 50 years of age.—See 2:28.

d. Which special full-time servants would readily apply themselves to the intensive training at Gilead and, as a result, be spiritually strengthened so as to be of greater use to the organization?—Phil. 2:20-22; 1 Tim. 4:15.

e. With Gilead training, which brothers would serve as effective and discerning overseers in key Bethel departments, as deskmen in the Service Department, as field instructors, or as circuit overseers?

f. Since the spirituality of translators is critical to the production of high-quality spiritual food, which translators would benefit the most from an in-depth study of the Bible and organizational matters at Gilead?

g. In the field, which special full-time servants have proved themselves to be outstanding evangelizers, maintaining their joy despite challenging circumstances?

h. Among the single sisters, which ones are excellent teachers in the field, balanced, modest, respectful of authority, sound in mind, and able to get along well with all types of personalities?

i. In lands where the Kingdom work is well-established and where there are many spiritually mature brothers and sisters, the Branch Committee should give consideration to recommending those who could fill needs in other lands after Gilead training.

187. Processing Questionnaires: Gilead recommendations are to be submitted to the Service Committee each year during the month of December. In December, each branch should submit recommendations for four married couples and four single persons. If a person indicates on the questionnaire that he does not have the circumstances to be sent to another country, he may still be recommended for Gilead training if the Branch Committee firmly believes that the person will make a major contribution to the Kingdom work locally. In the event that a branch does not have any Gilead recommendations, a brief letter of explanation should be sent to the Service Committee.

188. If there are multiple brothers being recommended who the Branch Committee believes are qualified to serve on the Branch Committee or who will qualify within the next two years, recommend the order in which the brothers should be invited. The preferred order should be indicated on each brother's Gilead Student Recommendations (G-7) form.

189. Qualified candidates being considered should be provided with (1) a copy of the Questionnaire to Attend the Watchtower Bible School of Gilead (G-12), (2) a copy of the G-16 cover letter, and (3) the A-63 letter. To ensure that the Branch Committee has a complete picture of the strengths and limitations of those being considered, a Personal Qualifications Report (S-326) should be obtained from the candidate's local body of elders and circuit overseer. If the candidate is serving at Bethel, a report should also be obtained from his department overseer and elder group. If the candidate is a circuit overseer, it would be good to obtain comments from the Service Department on his qualifications and to review the latest Personal Qualifications Report on file. Before the Branch Committee reviews the completed G-12 questionnaires, it should confirm that each question has been answered correctly and completely. The Branch Committee should review the G-12 questionnaires and other reports very carefully before making final selections. Each recommendation should be sent electronically to the Service Committee with a very brief covering numbered letter that includes the following attachments:

- Gilead Student Recommendations (G-7) form. The branch should provide specific comments on each candidate's qualifications and future potential and how the person would be used after Gilead. A brother can be described as having potential to serve on the Branch Committee if it is determined that he will qualify within the next two years. Gilead recommendations are valid until the following December. Only one recommendations form is needed for a married couple.
- Questionnaire to Attend the Watchtower Bible School of Gilead (G-12). In addition to this completed questionnaire, a quality full-length color photo should be included as an electronic file or scanned document. If the candidate has a valid passport, a copy of it should also be included with the G-12. If the candidate does not have a passport, there is no need to obtain one until he has been invited to Gilead.

TEACHING COMMITTEE

1. The Teaching Committee provides instruction that highlights the practical value of the fine spiritual food that we receive from "the faithful and discreet slave." (Matt. 24:45; 1 Tim. 4:16) For a summary of the Teaching Committee's general scope of operation, see Chart 7.1.

CONVENTIONS

2. In its annual letter to all branches, the Governing Body sets out the program for the coming year, including information about future conventions and general arrangements for holding regional, international, or special conventions. For more information on how these events should be conducted, see Convention Organization Guidelines (CO-1).

3. Special conventions are held every year unless international conventions have been scheduled for that year. Special conventions are generally held in venues that hold up to 20,000, depending on venue availability. This number includes 3,500 to 5,000 foreign delegates, depending on the circumstances of the host branch. Branch-planned activities also take place on the days before and after a special convention. International conventions are held approximately every five years. They take place in venues that hold more than 20,000 attendees, including 5,000 or more foreign delegates. Branch-planned activities also take place on the days before and after an international convention. The organization will fund those in foreign service to attend an international convention of their choice.

4. Special full-time servants who are confirmed as delegates to an international or special convention may receive time away in addition to the usual time away or hour credits granted to attend one annual regional convention. The two provisions of time away are different and cannot be combined to attend only one event. Bethel family members, circuit overseers and their wives, field instructors and their wives, Assembly Hall servants, construction servants, construction volunteers, and Bible school facility servants who are confirmed as delegates will be granted one and a half days of time away to attend all program sessions. Special pioneers, temporary special pioneers, and field missionaries who are confirmed as delegates will receive a five-hour credit for each day of the special or international convention.

5. Convention programs address concerns from Branch Committees regarding specific needs in their part of the field. If a Branch Committee desires to adjust a program because of local needs, it should write the Teaching Committee for direction before proceeding. An abbreviated two-day regional convention program is sent to all branches, as this may be helpful to smaller language groups and territories. In the rare instance when it is necessary to hold a one-day convention, the Branch Committee should select which key parts to present from the two-day program.

6. Conventions should be practical and in good taste and should prove to be a spiritual blessing to those in attendance. These events should be held at a time of year when the majority of the brothers assigned will be able to attend. An annual report on the baptism and attendance figures for the convention series should be submitted via HuB soon after the last convention in the branch territory is held. The report should include concise, meaningful comments on the effectiveness of the program and on how it was received locally.

7. Locations: When international or special conventions are arranged, one of the larger cities in the country would normally be selected. Regional conventions should be held in cities that can accommodate the anticipated attendance. In countries where restrictions make it impossible to hold regional conventions (and circuit assemblies), arrangements may be made to present abbreviated programs at Kingdom Halls or at other appropriate locations. Arrangements may be made for congregations to attend a convention in a country under the oversight of another branch office when a congregation is part of a circuit that spans branch territories or when there are other practical reasons. In such cases, the two branch offices involved may work out a mutually acceptable arrangement without seeking approval from the Teaching Committee.

8. Foreign-Language Sessions: A circuit overseer may recommend to the branch office that a foreign-language session be held in conjunction with a regional convention, for a target language, provided that: (1) a sufficient number of publishers and interested ones will be in attendance and (2) either qualified speakers or video recordings are available. This request should be submitted by mid-January, at least one year in advance of the scheduled event. It should include how many publishers and interested ones would benefit from this arrangement, how many qualified brothers would be available to give talks, how many parts each speaker could handle, and how many parts would be presented using video recordings. The circuit overseer should recommend a qualified brother who would serve as program overseer for the foreign-language session. He would work under the direction of the Convention Committee and in harmony with Convention Organization Guidelines (CO-1). If the branch office agrees with the recommendation, it would appoint the foreign-language program overseer. Based on the ratings received from the field, the branch office will assign the speakers for all foreign-language sessions or will specify which talks should be presented using video recordings. If recordings are not available, as an exception, the Branch Committee may approve simultaneous interpretation into a foreign language for some or all of the parts of the program. A qualified brother should oversee the arrangements for simultaneous interpretation, under the oversight of the convention chairman. If approval is given to hold a foreign-language session concurrent with a regional convention program on the same premises where a member of the Governing Body, a helper to a Governing Body committee, or a Branch Committee member is assigned to share on the program in the primary language, such talks should be simultaneously interpreted for the benefit of the foreign-language session. If qualified interpreters are not available, those talks will be assigned to local brothers or played from a video recording in the foreign language of the session.—See 7:29-30, 76-79.

9. Recordings: Each January, translating branches should post the schedule on PPD for uploading a video recording of the regional convention program to JW Stream. The video recording should be of one of the first convention programs in the branch territory, since this recording will be used by other branches that have relatively few qualified speakers in the target language. If a translating branch is scheduled to hold its convention much later in the service year, then a branch holding an earlier convention in the target language may make a recording that can be distributed locally. The recording should be made available, perhaps by means of JW Stream, for those who are unable to attend their assigned convention. If a publisher is assigned to a convention (or an assembly) along with his congregation but lacks comprehension in the language of the convention, the elders may offer him recordings of the program in his mother tongue so that he can fully benefit from the spiritual food. Of course, learners should continue to attend the assigned convention with their congregation so as to benefit from association with fellow believers.—See 7:46.

10. Expenses: The branch will cover the expenses involved in holding conventions in its territory and will accept contributions from those in attendance. These expenses should be included in the annual budget submitted to the Treasurer's Office and the Publishing Committee. Well-organized conventions are a real stimulus to the brothers and an encouragement to interested people. If the convention runs smoothly because of good organization and loving oversight, the brothers will generally support it well. It is appropriate to remind the brothers that it is a privilege to support the convention and the worldwide work monetarily.—Luke 16:9-13; 2 Cor., chaps. 8-9.

11. Attendees are encouraged to bring their own food and beverages. If because of local circumstances a branch finds it necessary to provide some basic food items or a beverage at regional conventions or circuit assemblies, a request should be sent to the Teaching Committee clearly explaining why this is needed and how the expenses will be covered. The Teaching and Publishing committees will consider the request.

12. Releasing Newly Translated Publications: When an approved translation of a publication that was not released simultaneously with the English edition is completed, the Branch Committee will need to determine how best to release the item. If the publication will not be available when regional conventions are held, it will usually be released by means of a general letter to the congregations. The release could also be announced at a special meeting held in connection with a branch visit or a shepherding visit. There is no provision for releasing a newly translated publication at a circuit assembly.

13. If a newly translated publication will be available by the time of the local regional convention(s), the Branch Committee may write the Teaching Committee, recommending that the item be released at the convention. This should be recommended only for new publications in the primary language(s) of the branch territory. Along with their recommendation, the Branch Committee should supply the title and language of the publication and indicate at what point during the program they recommend making the announcement. Usually, such releases should be announced during the final talk of the convention. However, for some items, such as songbooks or the Bible, the release announcement would likely be made at the end of the first morning session so that the brothers could begin using them right away. With the exception of Bible releases, there is no physical distribution of releases at conventions.

14. If it is known that a newly translated publication will be ready for distribution shortly after the local regional conventions, a release announcement is usually made during the final talk on the program, stating when the item will be available for request through the congregations. The wording for such brief announcements should follow the pattern used on past convention talk outlines or manuscripts.

15. If regional conventions of the same language will be held in various countries, the release announcement for a new or a revised edition of the New World Translation should be made first at a regional convention in the country overseeing that language. However, for any other translated publication, its release may be announced at the first convention of the season, regardless of the country, as long as the item is available in the language of the convention. Good communication and cooperation between the branches involved is encouraged.

16. Releasing the New World Translation: Generally, Governing Body members will only release "revised" editions of the entire New World Translation. However, if the New World Translation will be released in a new language at a regional convention and you have been informed that a member of the Governing Body will be in the region and may be in a position to attend the convention, you may submit a request to have him release the Bible. In conjunction with any New World Translation release by a member of the Governing Body, you should answer the following questions: (1) What is the estimated timetable for printing and shipping? (2) What are the scheduled dates for the first regional convention in that language? (3) In what city will the event be held, and what will be the venue? (4) What is the estimated attendance? (5) Will other locations be tied in with the main venue for the talks of the Governing Body member? (6) What transportation arrangements would need to be made to get to the convention city? Is travel safe? (7) Where will the Governing Body member be accommodated? (8) Are you aware of any local regulations that would impede the participation of a member of the Governing Body on the program? (9) If so, do you foresee the possibility of requesting an exemption from the local authorities?

17. Special Meeting to Release the New World Translation: Please note that if the Bible is ready for release at a time other than your convention season, a special program may be organized. If this will be the release of a "revised" edition of the complete Bible, it may be requested that a Governing Body member handle the release. If it is the release of a new language edition, a Branch Committee member could handle the release at such a special meeting unless a member of the Governing Body will be in the area and is willing and able to release the new Bible. Such an event may be scheduled as soon as printed copies of the new Bible are available for distribution. In this way, a branch would have two options: (1) Release an edition of the New World Translation in conjunction with a regional convention whenever that is practical or (2) hold a special event. When a special event is arranged, a large venue may be rented from which the program will originate. The program may be video streamed to Assembly Halls and Kingdom Halls within the branch territory so that as many publishers as possible can benefit. If the language of the release is also the primary language of a country outside the branch territory where the program is being held, arrangements may be made for Assembly Halls and Kingdom Halls in those areas to be tied in as well. The video stream could be delayed as needed for the benefit of locations in time zones to the west of the originating venue. In this way, many publishers fluent in the language of the release will hear the news simultaneously. For details on the program format, see Chart 7.2.

18. Convention Committee: The branch office should appoint a Convention Committee made up of the Convention Committee coordinator, the program overseer, and the rooming overseer. These elders should be good organizers and have sufficient time to care for the assignment. A circuit overseer may be assigned if necessary. It is essential that these brothers be spiritual men who fully manifest the fruitage of the spirit, even under pressure. The Convention Committee should be alert, capable of dealing with officials and other business concerns. In addition to providing oversight of the overall convention operation, the Convention Committee assigns all other department heads.

19. The committee members should be well-respected by the publishers and exhibit good teaching ability. If a brother appointed to a Convention Committee is rated as an average speaker, he should be used on the program in harmony with his speaking ability. If a brother is recommended to serve on a Convention Committee because of outstanding spiritual and organizational qualifications but is not recommended to give a talk on the program because of his limitations as a speaker, the Branch Committee will need to think carefully about whether to appoint him. If he is appointed, perhaps he could be assigned to serve as a session chairman or to offer one of the prayers.

20. Accident Prevention and Security: Safety is a priority and must be taken seriously. Give careful attention to the guidelines outlined in Convention Organization Guidelines (CO-1) for safety matters and for securing money, audio/video equipment, and other valuables.

21. Regional Convention Assignments for Branch Committee Members: Branch Committee members should attend at least one regional convention of their selection at their own expense or through private funding. As with all Bethel family members, a day and a half of time away from work will be granted to Branch Committee members and their wives in connection with only one yearly regional convention of their choice.

22. In larger branches, Branch Committee members may attend two additional conventions. These conventions are assigned by the branch. For these two assignments, convention time and necessary travel time will be granted to the brothers and their wives. Convention funds should not be used to defray the Branch Committee member's travel costs. If local private funds are not offered to cover the related travel expenses incurred from the two additional conventions attended by the Branch Committee member and his wife if she accompanies him, the expenses may be reimbursed by the organization. A Branch Committee member is not obligated to take two additional branch assigned conventions if he has been invited to attend additional conventions and is using private funds to care for his transportation costs.—See 9:88.

23. If it is practical for a Branch Committee member to use a branch vehicle in order to attend any of the additional conventions to which he is assigned, the fuel charge would be noted as an organizational expense. Such factors as the distance to be traveled and the length of time a brother would be away from his Bethel assignment would need to be weighed to determine whether it would be practical to use a branch vehicle. If the Branch Committee member is unable to drive, a Bethel driver may be assigned to assist him. If so, the driver would be granted the necessary time away from work.

24. At times, because of location or other circumstances, a number of regional conventions might not be visited by a Branch Committee member or another responsible Bethel representative. When that is the case, the talks given by a Branch Committee member could be streamed or played from a video recording to such regional conventions, as long as the technology is available. This provision would allow the audiences at those locations to have some exposure to a Branch Committee member.

25. Speakers Attending a Convention in Another Country: At times Bethel speakers, missionaries, and circuit overseers make personal plans to attend a regional convention outside of their branch territory. If a qualified speaker serving in one of these forms of special full-time service makes known that he will be attending a regional convention in another country, using his personal time away and private travel funds, his speaker's ratings may be forwarded to that branch office. (It is not necessary to survey brothers in your branch territory to find out if they will be attending conventions in other lands.) The branch office in the country that he will be visiting may assign him a part on the program in harmony with his qualifications or interview him during one of the parts if there is a need. However, a branch need not feel obligated to include such a visiting speaker on the program. (See 6:90-91.) There is no arrangement for foreign delegates attending international or special conventions to give talks on the program in the primary language of the convention. However, if there are foreign-language sessions at such a convention and there are not enough qualified local speakers fluent in one of those languages, it may be that a qualified visiting delegate fluent in the language could be included on the foreign-language program. Foreign delegates in special full-time service, such as missionaries, can be used in an interview if the part calls for it. The interview should be rehearsed well in advance.

26. Media Services for Regional and Circuit Events: Each year an updated package containing timely guidelines is made available to all branches via the Materials Distribution System (MDS).

CIRCUIT ASSEMBLIES

27. The Teaching Committee provides programs and outlines for two circuit assemblies each year. These events are to be conducted in accord with Circuit Organization Guidelines (S-330). Taking into account the recommendations of the circuit overseers, the Branch Committee will arrange to hold two one-day circuit assemblies a year for each circuit or section of a circuit. Normally, a branch representative will be sent to serve one of the events (CA-br) as the visiting speaker. A circuit overseer will handle the main talk(s) for the other assembly (CA-co). Where practical, the Branch Committee may assign speakers from the branch to serve circuit assemblies in other countries under its oversight, following the guidelines given in 7:33-34. Only circuit overseers or regular members of the Bethel family (BBR) who are currently appointed as branch representatives at circuit assemblies may be used for these assignments. (See 7:89 for guidelines on these appointments.) Translating branches should make arrangements to upload recordings of both circuit assemblies to JW Stream early in the service year, if possible. This recording can be used by other branches that have few qualified speakers in the target language. It can also be made available for those who are unable to attend their assigned assembly or who have limited comprehension of the language of the assembly to which they are assigned. An annual report on the baptism and attendance figures for the assembly series should be submitted via HuB shortly after the last assembly is held in the branch territory. The report should include concise, meaningful comments on the effectiveness of the program.

28. If it is felt that the published CA-br program should be adjusted for a certain locality, a proposal should be sent to the Teaching Committee for approval. In countries with only one circuit or where publishers are very poor and cannot afford to travel to three events in a year, the Branch Committee could consider any of the following optional arrangements: (1) obtain a video recording of an earlier CA-br program in the language of the circuit for showing at the Kingdom Hall(s) where the affected publishers meet, (2) merge the two yearly events for the affected circuit into one weekend, or (3) not hold the CA-br program. If circuits in a large city cannot make separate assembly arrangements because of local circumstances, then, as an exception, it is permissible for two or, at most, three circuits to have a combined assembly. The circuit overseer(s) should call the branch office to discuss which date should be used for the combined assembly and which parts each circuit overseer will present. The circuit overseers will decide who will handle the program parts that are to be given by local brothers and who will care for the various assembly departments.

29. Foreign-Language Circuit Assemblies: If a circuit overseer for a foreign-language field feels that an assembly would be well-supported and a program could be presented using qualified speakers, interpreters, or video recordings, he should submit his recommendation to the branch office for approval. This request should be sent well in advance of the scheduled event, and it should answer the following questions: How many publishers and interested people would benefit from this program? How many elders qualify to give talks or interpret the program? How many parts could the appointed brothers present? How many parts would be presented using video recordings? Are the video recordings available from the translating branch? How many other publishers qualify to interpret the program? After determining that an assembly can be organized by appointed men and that it will be well-supported, the Branch Committee may grant approval to hold the assembly.—See 7:46.

30. Foreign-language circuit assemblies should aim to present a program similar to the program of the primary language, using qualified speakers to care for all parts locally. If this is not possible, sessions may be played from video recordings in the target language. Interspersing live talks by fluent speakers with video recordings improves the quality of the teaching and holds the attention of the audience. The assembly organization should function according to the usual arrangements, with the following provisions: Prayers should be given locally unless the program is being streamed live. The baptism could be held locally after listening to the recorded baptism talk, or the candidates could join with another language group for water immersion. When a pregroup, group, or congregation views a recording of a circuit assembly, the circuit overseer can determine how best to handle the Watchtower summary, based on the local circumstances. He has the option (1) to pause the recorded program so that a local elder can give a 30-minute summary talk, (2) to assign a local elder to conduct a 30-minute abbreviated Watchtower Study, or (3) to remind the publishers to study the current week's article on their own.—See 7:8, 45.

31. As an exception, assemblies may be interpreted simultaneously if video recordings are not available. They would be held concurrently with the program in the primary language of the event. The sessions are usually held in a separate room or area of the venue and are organized so that they will not distract the audience attending the main program. When simultaneous interpretation is approved for circuit assemblies, a qualified brother should oversee the arrangement, under the direction of the assembly overseer. If possible, the brother selected should know the foreign language. The circuit overseer should meet with this brother to decide on such matters as a practical seating location for those listening to the interpretation, one with sufficient lighting and good sound. The brother overseeing the interpretation should schedule the assignments well in advance. If at all possible, qualified brothers, rather than sisters, should be used for the principal talks, particularly those of the circuit overseer or the representative from the branch. When qualified sisters must be used as interpreters, they should be referred to the published direction given on this matter. (w09 11/15 pp. 12-13) If a separate room or area of the venue is not available and the foreign-language attendees will be sitting in the main auditorium, the interpreted program could be broadcast over an FM transmitter to small FM receivers used with earphones.—See 7:76.

32. Travel Expenses Associated With Circuit Assembly (CA-br) Assignments: The circuit should cover the transportation expenses of the visiting speaker and his wife even if he uses a branch vehicle to travel to his assignment. The branch is authorized to fund or supplement any financial shortfall for circuits unable to cover these travel expenses. Therefore, even if the circuit cannot reimburse his travel expenses, a branch representative could be sent to the circuit each year, provided that there are a sufficient number of branch representatives and the travel costs are not exorbitant for the number of attendees. If the branch must initially pay the travel expenses of the visiting speaker and his wife, the insolvent circuit still may be able to contribute "something" to assist. (1 Cor. 16:1, 2) As an option, Branch Committee or Country Committee members could serve such circuits in conjunction with their annual visits to missionaries or remote translation offices.

33. Time Away for Circuit Assembly (CA-br) Assignments: Generally, Bethel speakers would need no more than a total of two days to travel to and from most circuit assembly (CA-br) assignments. (For these assignments, wives would also be granted the same time away from work as their husbands.) Assignments closer to Bethel may require little or no time away. In branches overseeing territories that span many time zones or in lands where travel is very difficult, more than a day's time might be needed for a speaker to reach his assignment. In such rare cases, the branch representative should make a reasonable determination of the amount of travel time needed, considering such local circumstances as the reliability of the transportation, the schedules, and the travel costs. Occasionally, a brother from Bethel might be assigned to serve a circuit assembly (CA-br) in a remote area if he will be able to reach the assembly either en route to or returning from another distant assignment, such as a visit to a remote translation office. Also, if a brother will be taking personal time away in a distant part of the branch territory, some thought might be given to having him care for a circuit assembly (CA-br) being held in the vicinity.

34. If the circuit assembly (CA-br) is scheduled for a Sunday only and reaching the site will not require a significant amount of travel time, the brother would usually travel on Saturday as long as suitable transportation is available and travel costs would not be much higher than if he traveled on Friday. Typically, he would travel back to Bethel on Monday. When the event is scheduled for a Saturday only, the speaker would normally leave from Bethel on Friday so as to reach his accommodations for that evening at a reasonable time. Likely, he will return to Bethel on Sunday, providing circumstances allow for a reasonable itinerary that day. If it is normally possible to keep to the aforementioned travel schedule but a speaker opts to leave earlier or return later, he is expected to use personal time away from Bethel.

35. If the above guidelines do not answer questions that could arise regarding this subject, the Branch Committee should feel free to contact the Teaching Committee, explaining what is involved in a particular situation.—See 6:92.

CONGREGATION MEETINGS

36. Midweek Meeting: Unless there are extreme extenuating circumstances, congregations worldwide hold one midweek meeting sometime between Monday and Friday. Detailed instructions for the midweek meeting are set out in Instructions for Our Christian Life and Ministry Meeting (S-38). This meeting features the Life and Ministry Meeting Workbook* (mwb) and is formatted as follows: It begins with song, prayer, and opening comments followed by Treasures From God's Word, Apply Yourself to the Field Ministry, and Living as Christians, which includes a 30-minute consideration of the Congregation Bible Study. The entire meeting lasts one hour and 45 minutes, including the closing song and prayer.

- Treasures From God's Word will usually follow the global schedule for Bible reading to help the brotherhood be "united in the same mind and in the same line of thought." (1 Cor. 1:10) If the Bible or the references are not available in the language of the congregation, publishers may use another language to prepare for this part of the meeting. For some languages, translating branches may translate Bible citations and publication references and provide these in the document References for Life and Ministry Meeting Workbook (mwbr). The mwbr document may be distributed electronically to congregations in the branch territory, if desired. Otherwise, if a publication cited in the Life and Ministry Meeting Workbook is not yet available in a particular language, branches may select alternate source material, using a current publication that is available in the local language. Similarly, if the cited reference material for a question in the Life and Ministry Meeting Answer Sheet* (lma) is not available in the target language, a new question and answer may be formulated, based on the reference material available in that language, without having to submit the revised text to the Teaching Committee for approval.

- Apply Yourself to the Field Ministry will feature three sample conversation videos—the initial call, the first return visit, and the second return visit. The front page of the workbook will contain brief outlines of the sample conversations that will match the sample conversation videos. If a sample conversation is not effective in a certain language, it may be adjusted by the translating branch as long as the new conversation will be effective for publishers using that language around the world. If it is not possible to adjust the sample conversation video, it may still be played and discussed as an option to the adjusted written sample conversation, provided this would be helpful to the field. Apply Yourself to the Field Ministry will have student assignments as outlined in the meeting workbook. (The Bible reading at the end of Treasures From God's Word is considered a student assignment.) Generally, the branches should not adjust this program. The primary purpose of these assignments is to help publishers develop greater skill in the ministry. Students should base the initial call and return visit assignments on the sample conversations. They may decide whether or not to introduce a publication or video from our Teaching Toolbox.

- Living as Christians includes the Congregation Bible Study and one or two parts practical for Christian living. Some languages will consider a different publication for the Congregation Bible Study, and the schedule in the workbook should reflect this. The other meeting parts in this section may be modified by the Branch Committee to be more effective for a particular language field. If there is a need in the branch territory, rather than preparing substitute material for the workbook, the Branch Committee may prepare a letter to the elders, giving direction for the subject to be discussed during an upcoming local needs part. If videos featured on the midweek meeting need to be translated, branches may proceed with translating them into the target language without checking with the Teaching Committee. If regions of the branch territory do not have the ability to view videos, the Branch Committee may need to provide them with alternate material and direction, perhaps by means of a letter.

37. Weekend Meeting: After opening with song and prayer, a 30-minute Bible discourse is presented from one of the approved outlines on the list Public Talk Titles (S-99) or as otherwise provided by the organization for special occasions, such as the circuit overseer's visit. Normally, following the Bible discourse and after an intermediate song, the scheduled Watchtower Study article is reviewed by the congregation as a question-and-answer session lasting one hour. The discussion includes the reading of all the paragraphs and all the scriptures marked "read" as well as a brief consideration of the review box. Paragraph reading should be uninterrupted. The "read" scriptures would normally be read after the paragraph reading and prior to considering the portion of the paragraph in which they are located. The scriptures marked "read" should not be read before the reading of the paragraph unless the scripture is cited at the very beginning of the paragraph, such as in a verse-by-verse discussion. The weekend meeting that features the public Bible discourse and Watchtower Study should not be combined with the midweek meeting except in extreme circumstances.

38. Visit of the Circuit Overseer: The above-mentioned formats vary only during the visit of the circuit overseer. On such weeks, the Watchtower Study is abbreviated to 30 minutes and paragraph reading is suspended so that the circuit overseer can give a final 30-minute service talk. During the midweek meeting, the Congregation Bible Study is replaced with a 30-minute service talk by the circuit overseer. (tg 4:10) Family heads should consider the assigned Congregation Bible Study material during family worship. When several congregations meet in one Kingdom Hall, those not being visited will adjust meeting times as needed for that week. Any schedule of meeting times that involves rotation is worked out through the elders in a spirit of mutual concern and brotherly love.—Phil. 2: 2-4; 1 Pet. 3:8.

39. Audio and video transmissions or recordings of our regular congregation meetings may be made for those unable to attend physically because of illness or other circumstances. (Helpful comments appear on MDS regarding the technical aspects of these provisions.) Congregation meetings should not be made available to a wide audience on the Internet. Neither should recordings of congregation meetings be distributed indiscriminately. However, it is not necessary to monitor who has access to congregation meetings. Care should be exercised that conferencing systems and recordings do not become a convenient substitute for attending meetings in person. If congregations have not yet made arrangements to record congregation meetings for the benefit of the elderly, infirm, and those who are otherwise unable to attend, the elders may provide them with access to recordings in the target language on JW Stream. Viewing the meetings on JW Stream allows those unable to attend an opportunity to view any videos presented. In order to reduce the load on congregations with very few brothers qualified to handle meeting parts, the circuit overseer may give approval for groups and small congregations to view recorded meetings or portions of meetings even if the congregation holds meetings in one of the primary languages of the country.

40. Visual Aids: Unless specifically directed by the organization, no video footage should be used in conjunction with congregation meetings, assemblies, or conventions. Brothers who present talks at congregation meetings may display still images on-screen as visual aids if the necessary equipment is available at the Kingdom Hall. Still images are not to be used by speakers at assemblies and conventions, because these programs are specifically prepared by the Teaching Committee and the images could be misconstrued as being authorized by the organization. Sign-language meetings, assemblies, and conventions may continue to make judicious use of video footage and still images as a visual teaching aid for the special needs of deaf audiences.—See 7:93.

Meetings in Foreign Languages

41. Foreign-Language Groups: When there are only a few publishers working a foreign-language field, a group can be formed under the supervision of a host congregation. (km 11/09 p. 5 par. 10; tg chap. 15) Such foreign-language groups may hold their Congregation Bible Study in a separate room at the Kingdom Hall at the same time as the midweek meeting of the host congregation. In cases of severe space constraints, the group may hold this 30-minute meeting just prior to the host congregation's midweek meeting. If this is not possible, a less preferred option would be to have the group meet just before or after the host congregation's weekend meeting. A foreign-language group that has grown in size may need to be transferred to another host congregation that meets in a Kingdom Hall with a larger auxiliary room.

42. Newly Formed Congregations: If a group is making good progress, has responsible ones taking the lead, and has reasonable prospects for further growth, consideration may be given to forming a congregation. (tg chap. 12) Meetings should be conducted in the language of the congregation (or group) even if only a few publications are available. For example, the Congregation Bible Study may be conducted using just the first few publications on the translation priority list. Understandably, the schedule and the content for this part of the Life and Ministry Meeting would differ from those of the major languages. If different publications are needed, the Alternate Material for the Congregation Bible Study form found on MDS along with a proposed study schedule in English should be submitted to the Teaching Committee for approval.

43. In the event that no responsible brothers in the congregation are available to conduct the meeting on a particular day and video recordings are not accessible, an interpreter could be used so that most would be able to understand the comments of the assigned conductor or public speaker for that occasion. (See 7:76.) This would harmonize with the precedent found in 1 Corinthians chapter 14. Also, it should be noted that many languages have a suitable vernacular Bible translation or at least a portion of it. The brothers should be encouraged to use these Bibles at their meetings and in the field ministry.

44. When no publications are available in a certain language, meetings could be conducted using our publications in another language as long as most in the congregation or group are able to follow along. For example, an indigenous group may also understand a major language in which publications are readily available. However, all talks, prayers, question-and-answer sessions, and meetings should be conducted in the language of the group. As mentioned above, if the assigned conductor does not speak the language of the group, a qualified interpreter may assist him. Also, when a group is started, it may be possible for the brother assigned as reader for the Congregation Bible Study or the Watchtower Study to make a personal translation of the material under discussion, although this is not ideal. Once meetings are held regularly in the language of the group and the formation of a congregation is imminent, the Branch Committee should contact the Writing Committee, outlining the needs of the congregation and providing the names of any baptized Witnesses who could be used as translators.—See 8:13.

45. Video Streaming and Recordings: Conducting congregation meetings locally is preferable. However, if such is not yet possible and the congregations obtain the necessary equipment, a pregroup, group, or small congregation may request permission from the circuit overseer to view recordings of the meetings of a congregation in the target language. Under the direction of the Branch Committee, the circuit overseer approves which pregroups, groups, or small congregations in his circuit will view recordings of another congregation approved to stream meetings in the target language and to what extent. The circuit overseer must consider all of the factors surrounding the request in deciding whether to give approval for such an arrangement or not. Access to these recordings in the target language is available on JW Stream. Interspersing talks by fluent speakers with video streaming or recordings, whenever possible, raises the quality of the teaching and holds the attention of the audience. Prayers must be given locally unless the program is being streamed live.—See 7:30.

46. Translating branches should provide high-quality video footage of meetings (along with conventions and assemblies, including the annual pioneer meeting in conjunction with the circuit assembly) in harmony with the latest guidelines posted on MDS and PPD. In order to benefit congregations and groups worldwide, each translating branch should select a qualified elder, such as a circuit overseer or a Bethelite, to deliver the Memorial and the special talk in the target language. Branches should finalize the arrangements for posting a new Memorial and special talk to JW Stream by January of each calendar year so that congregations and groups that will use the recordings can be notified well in advance by the local branch office. These programs should be posted about one month before the scheduled date of the event. Besides removing prayers, the Memorial recordings should exclude the section of the talk subtitled "Observing the Memorial of Christ's Death Today."—See 7:9, 29.

DEDICATION PROGRAMS

Branch Dedications

47. Dedication programs are special occasions of great spiritual encouragement for Jehovah's people. These programs are held in connection with newly acquired or newly built facilities that are fully owned by the organization. Months in advance of a branch dedication, an overview of the plans, including details about the program content, rooming for guests, feeding, and so forth, should be sent to the Teaching Committee for final review and approval. If an exception to the following guidelines is necessary, the Branch Committee should contact the Teaching Committee before proceeding.

48. If a four-page printed program is planned, the branch should submit the recommended text and a PDF of the proposed design directly to the Writing Committee. The text in the program sample will be reviewed and approved by the Teaching Committee, while the actual design of the program will be reviewed and approved by the Writing Committee.

49. Day and Time for Program: If possible, a branch dedication program should be held on a Saturday. A program approximately three hours in length should be arranged. If one or more talks need to be interpreted, the program may take another 30-40 minutes. The format may be adjusted to fit local circumstances. [See Chart 7.2.]

50. The chairman will give the opening words of welcome. Then for about 20 minutes, a member of the Branch Committee should relate the history of the Kingdom work in that country, followed by how Jehovah opened up the way for a new branch to be constructed. If there are longtime missionaries present, approximately eight minutes can be dedicated to interview them. They may comment on their share in the early development of the work and relate any personal experiences involved. Then 30-40 minutes should be used to discuss the construction project itself. A member of the Branch Committee who was involved with the project is usually assigned this part. It could be developed as a discussion by three brothers, two of whom would be involved with oversight of construction organization. It may include a few interviews with key workers on the project. These interviews could highlight problems that were overcome, relate any outstanding experiences that took place in obtaining equipment and accomplishing the work, or indicate how a witness was given to the community. This discussion could conclude by referring to the fine cooperation of the local brothers and the way Jehovah blessed the activity.

51. If there are a few Branch Committee members present from nearby branches, a representative from each may use from four to six minutes to relate outstanding experiences and reports about the progress of the work in those countries. This segment could be about 20 minutes in length. It would be followed by song, announcements, and the reading of any greetings, all of which should take no longer than 15 minutes.

52. Dedication Talk: If a member of the Governing Body is assigned to attend the dedication, he will give the dedication talk. This discourse is usually about an hour in length, but if interpreted, it may take 90 minutes or more. The Governing Body member will usually give the dedication prayer.

53. Invitations and Seating: The program will generally originate from the branch's main auditorium. Overflow seating may be set up in a Kingdom Hall or an Assembly Hall on the property of the branch being dedicated. Extra chairs may also be set up in dining rooms and in other locations on the premises. The number invited will depend on the size of the facilities, the number in the Bethel family, the size of the engineering and construction staff, and the number of visitors from other branches. In some branches, those in the field who have served faithfully in the truth for 40 or more years have been included. No other venue will be rented unless there are exceptional circumstances. If this is the case, write to the Teaching Committee, explaining the details and requesting that an exception be made.

54. The dedication program, a tour of the facility, and association with the Bethel family and others can encourage visitors to continue doing Jehovah's will. However, there is no need to arrange for a family day or family night program. These events for the Bethel family should be scheduled at another time, exclusively for the Bethel family and any approved guests. Entertainment programs for visitors require many hours of rehearsal and therefore should not be approved for presentation. By keeping the arrangements simple and on a high spiritual level, such occasions will be delightful and beneficial for all.

55. Printed Invitations: Some branches have printed badge cards for attendees, similar in size to the badge cards used at regional conventions. This helps to ensure that only those invited will be permitted entry. This can also be done for the special program on Sunday if seating is limited.

56. Food Arrangements: If Saturday morning is devoted to tours, there could be a light buffet meal at noon or light packed lunches for the dedication visitors. The dedication program could begin at 1:30 p.m. or 2:00 p.m. A light buffet meal in the evening would be appropriate for the Bethel family, the engineering and construction staff, and any overnight guests staying at the branch. However, there should be no arrangement for feeding everyone who attends the dedication program. If there are questions about this, please write to the Teaching Committee before plans are finalized.

57. Special Meeting on Sunday: If practical, a special program may be held on Sunday at a larger hall or stadium. As an alternative, the program could be held at the branch and video streamed to Kingdom Halls throughout the country if such technology is already in place. The program could begin at 9:30 a.m. or 10:00 a.m. The format for this special meeting may be as follows: After an introductory song and prayer, the chairman will extend a warm welcome to the audience and make a few encouraging comments. Then he will introduce a 30-minute summary talk of the Watchtower Study for that week. Afterward, a 20-minute review of the dedication program that was held on the preceding day may be presented as a discussion between two Branch Committee members. Next, Branch Committee members or representatives from other branches may present four or five reports, as they did the day before. However, since those who attended the dedication will also be in attendance at this meeting, it would be best if different reports were given than the ones presented at the dedication program the day before. This segment could last up to 30 minutes, depending on whether interpretation is needed. After another song, announcements can be made along with the reading of any greetings. Then the guest speaker will give a one-hour service talk. The content of this talk will be different from that of his dedication talk on Saturday. If interpreted, this talk may take 90 minutes or more. (See 7:76.) The special meeting would end with a closing song and prayer. [See Chart 7.2.]

Assembly Hall Dedications

58. When a new Assembly Hall is built or an existing facility has undergone extensive renovation resulting in a significant change of its floor plan and overall appearance, a dedication program would be in order. Generally, there would be only one guest speaker assigned to an Assembly Hall dedication. Organization funds may be used to cover the travel expenses of only one Branch Committee member and his wife. Also, only one Branch Committee member should share in the dedication program. When the dedication speaker is a member of the Governing Body, the program should be held on a Saturday. In this case, one Branch Committee member may be assigned to present a report on the advancement of the Kingdom work in the country, while focusing on the progress of the work in the area of the Assembly Hall. (See 7:60.) As described below, an additional special program should be arranged for Sunday of the same weekend if a Governing Body member is present for the dedication weekend. During that program, the same Branch Committee member may be assigned to present a 30-minute summary talk of the Watchtower Study for that week or an additional report on the work in the local branch territory. Other Branch Committee members may attend both programs if they wish, but they would not be assigned a part and their travel expenses should be covered by private funds. Please note that a Governing Body member would not normally be assigned to visit the branch and conduct morning worship in conjunction with the dedication of an Assembly Hall unless the facility is very close to Bethel. Any exceptions would need to be approved by the Teaching Committee.

59. The dedication program may be video streamed, if possible, to the Kingdom Halls of the congregations that will make use of the Assembly Hall. If video streaming is not possible, only those who can be accommodated in the Assembly Hall would be invited to the dedication program on Saturday. (If that is the case, to make it possible for more brothers to attend, the Governing Body member may agree to give his dedication talk again during a second program that would be presented later on Saturday, but this decision is left to the Governing Body member.) The Branch Committee determines who will be invited.—See 7:66.

60. Saturday Program Format: The dedication program need not be longer than two and a half hours. A brief history of the progress of the Kingdom work in the area may be presented, possibly including an interview of one or two longtime Witnesses. Experiences and comments by those being interviewed should be to the point. Participants should emphasize, not so much how the building was constructed, but how Jehovah blessed the work and the effect the project has had on the community and on the brothers.—Acts 14:27; see 7:58.

61. A video presentation or slide show should be no more than 15 minutes in length. Just a few of the main construction phases should be featured. The presentation should be dignified and the content in good taste, forasmuch as the program is an occasion to praise Jehovah for his blessing on the project.

62. The dedication talk may be up to one hour in length. If interpreted into another language, it will be somewhat longer.

63. The Assembly Hall is to be dedicated only once, by means of a prayer. When it is necessary to schedule a second program later in the day or on the next day, the speaker will explain that the building was dedicated at the preceding program.

64. Program participants should be exemplary Jehovah's Witnesses. There is no provision for government officials or others to address the audience on any occasion, just as is the case at any theocratic meeting. If an official wishes to make a brief speech or offer expressions of appreciation at a dedication program, he may be received hospitably and given audience by a few responsible brothers in a separate room before or after the program.

65. Tours: A tour of the Assembly Hall or an open house may be arranged before the dedication program. If the program is scheduled in the afternoon, the open house could be organized in the morning. Or, if more convenient, it may be arranged on the day before or even one or two weeks prior to the dedication. If practical, arrangements can be made to serve light snacks or refreshments but no alcoholic beverages. Many brothers have found this to be a fine time to invite businessmen and officials who may have become familiar with our work and who may have expressed a desire to see the completed building. It is appropriate for an elder to be assigned to escort these individuals and to make their visit informative and pleasant. Other guests may also be given a brief tour by one of the attendants. Such tours are generally scheduled for the morning or early afternoon prior to the dedication program.—See 7:68.

66. Seating: The hall should be filled for the dedication program, but it may be necessary to limit the number invited in order to avoid overcrowding. In some cases, those invited are limited to those in special full-time service, elders, ministerial servants, regular pioneers, and their families, along with those who have been baptized for a certain number of years. Invitations are often extended to those who contributed much in the way of time, effort, or materials toward the construction.—See 7:59.

67. Sunday Program Format: If the visiting dedication speaker is a Governing Body member, an additional special program lasting about two hours (or two and a half hours if interpretation is required) should be arranged for Sunday. Depending on local circumstances and the practicality of the arrangement, the special Sunday program could be video streamed from the Assembly Hall that was dedicated to the Kingdom Halls of the congregations that will make use of the new facility. If local circumstances do not allow video streaming of the special program to most of the publishers in the congregations making use of the Assembly Hall and the country is one seldom visited by a member of the Governing Body, a larger facility could be rented for a special Sunday program if that is practical. [See Chart 7.2.]

Dedications of Remote Translation Offices (RTOs)

68. A dedication program may be organized in connection with a new remote translation office (RTO) as long as the premises are owned by the organization. Hence, no dedication program will be arranged when a rental facility is being used. A Governing Body member, a Branch Committee member, or another qualified brother could be assigned to give the dedication talk in conjunction with a scheduled trip to the region, such as a visit to the missionaries or the translation team. Since there is no auditorium at an RTO, the program may be held at the Kingdom Hall closest to the RTO and should follow a format similar to that used for Kingdom Hall dedications. If necessary, the dedication program could be held at a rented facility near the RTO. Appropriate arrangements should be made for all in attendance to tour the RTO, preferably prior to the dedication program.—See 7:65; Chart 7.2.

Kingdom Hall Dedications

69. The most up-to-date guidelines on this subject, as provided to all bodies of elders and circuit overseers, should be followed when arranging for these events. Travel expenses for a Bethel speaker must be covered by the congregation or by private funds. If it is not possible to invite a speaker from Bethel, a circuit overseer or another qualified elder should be assigned to deliver the Kingdom Hall dedication talk. [See Chart 7.2.]

70. Normally, other facilities will not be tied in for these programs. But if there are extenuating circumstances warranting an exception, the Branch Committee may decide to give approval for one additional Kingdom Hall to be tied in. For example, when several congregations share in a project, it may not be possible to include all the publishers who worked on the building. Hence, it might be necessary to tie in a neighboring Kingdom Hall so that all can benefit from the dedication program. The Teaching Committee should be contacted for approval if the Branch Committee feels that something more than what is outlined above will be necessary.

BRANCH AND SHEPHERDING VISITS

71. Special Program: Arrangements should be made to hold a special program at a suitable location for the brothers living in the branch territory. Please note that dedication programs for newly acquired or newly built facilities should not be scheduled during a branch or a shepherding visit. Normally, all such events are arranged at a different time. If a Branch Committee feels that extenuating local circumstances would warrant an exception in this regard, an inquiry including all pertinent details may be submitted to the Teaching Committee.

72. If the cost is not excessive, the branch may rent one large facility, such as a stadium or a sports hall, relatively close to the branch office to accommodate a larger crowd. With a rented facility, if possible and the costs are not excessive, Kingdom Halls or Assembly Halls in other parts of the branch territory may be connected by an audio or audio/video tie-in. The rental of additional facilities for tie-in purposes is viewed as an exception based on extenuating circumstances. The Teaching Committee will decide on a case-by-case basis. As another option, if video streaming is possible to most Kingdom Halls, the program could originate from an auditorium or a Kingdom Hall on branch property instead of a large rented facility.

73. Transmission of Program: Since this is a special event, the Branch Committee may arrange for an audio or audio/video tie-in to Assembly Halls in other countries they oversee so that as many publishers as possible may hear the program. The program may be delay-streamed or video recorded for broadcasting later on the same day, on the next day, or on the following weekend at Assembly Halls and Kingdom Halls. Any questions or unusual circumstances related to the special program should be sent to the Teaching Committee.

74. Program Format: The program should include a 30-minute summary talk of the Watchtower Study for that week. A 20-minute report on the progress of the Kingdom work in the country can be included as well. The total time for the program would be approximately three hours, especially if the headquarters representative's talk needs to be interpreted. Since the program would include the Watchtower Study summary and it is a spiritually rich program, the scheduled weekend meeting for the invited congregations will be suspended for that week. Therefore, depending on the itinerary of the Governing Body member or headquarters representative, it might be advantageous to schedule this program on a Sunday. If the special program is scheduled during the week, the publishers can be encouraged to concentrate on sharing in the field ministry on the weekend, since there will be no meeting.—See 6: 1-6.

75. Branches that have more than one language group represented at these occasions may hold the program in the language spoken by the majority while arranging for simultaneous interpretation into other languages spoken in the branch territory, if practical. Generally, with the exception of the headquarters representative (who may not know the language of the land), all speakers should present their talks uninterpreted in one language (with simultaneous interpretation if needed) for the benefit of the majority present.

INTERPRETERS OF KEY TALKS AT SPECIAL EVENTS

76. Interpreters should be exemplary publishers approved by the Congregation Service Committee to assist in this way. Accurate knowledge of the truth of God's Word is required in order to interpret Scriptural thoughts correctly into another language. It is essential that an interpreter have a good comprehension of both languages, particularly of the target language.—See 7:8, 31, 43, 57.

77. A copy of the talk outline may be given in advance to the assigned interpreter, who will use it for preparation purposes only. In addition, the speaker may be able to give the interpreter a copy of his personal notes prior to the presentation. Either way, those copies are only to be used by the interpreter to prepare for his assignment. Neither the copies nor a translation thereof should be used by the interpreter during the actual presentation of the talk. Rather, he should listen carefully to the speaker's delivery and convey to the audience an accurate interpretation of the speaker's statements. (See be p. 55.) Any copies of the talk outline or the speaker's notes given to the interpreter beforehand should be returned to the speaker or destroyed after the program. Before the actual delivery of the talk, the speaker would do well to meet with the assigned interpreter to discuss details of his presentation, such as illustrations, numbers, and figures of speech. This guideline may be followed for all interpreted events.

78. It is preferred that the most qualified brothers be assigned to interpret talks given by members of the Governing Body or special representatives of the organization, even if it is necessary to use younger brothers. A brother's depth of experience in theocratic and organizational matters does not necessarily make him the finest choice of interpreter. Those assigned should be able to communicate the emphasis, intensity, and emotion of the speaker into the target language, while not calling undue attention to themselves. Those who are selected for this privilege should be reminded of the principles expressed at Romans 12:3 and 1 Corinthians 12:28-31 so that they maintain a humble disposition while carrying out this special responsibility.

79. Interpreted Prayers: Any officially assigned visiting speaker at conventions, assemblies, and meetings may have his prayer interpreted, either consecutively or simultaneously. This also applies to circuit overseers if they are visiting a foreign-language congregation or assembly.

BETHEL AND REGIONAL CONVENTION SPEAKERS

80. Evaluation of Regional Convention Speakers: Pertinent guidelines for bodies of elders and circuit overseers about "Recommending Local Elders as Regional Convention Speakers" and "Regional Convention Speaker Ratings" are posted on MDS. All elders serving at Bethel should be rated even if they have had only limited exposure on circuit assembly programs. Those serving in foreign-language congregations should be rated both for the language of their congregation and for the primary language of the country. Elders at Bethel can be appointed as regional convention speakers if they have a speaker rating of C+ or higher. Temporary volunteers serving at Bethel during the convention season may be asked to indicate the convention they will attend, and talks may be assigned to them according to the need and their qualifications. No formal evaluation of a speaker's ability is necessary for members of a Branch or Country committee. They may be assigned parts based on their ability and the needs in the branch territory.

81. Evaluation and Selection of Bethel Speakers: Yearly evaluations received from the circuits for all brothers recommended as regional convention speakers can also be used as a basis for selecting new Bethel speakers. Those appointed as Bethel speakers would be ones who were rated higher than average in their circuits. An elder serving as a regular Bethel family member (BBR) who has been on a regional convention program for two years will be eligible for consideration as a Bethel speaker, as long as he meets the following additional criteria: (1) His speaker rating is B or higher; (2) he has served at Bethel for a minimum of three years, including consecutive periods of temporary service; (3) he has a reputation worthy of representing Bethel; and (4) he is able to hold an audience's attention for one hour. Furthermore, when a brother is first notified of his appointment as a Bethel speaker, it is recommended that about six months be allowed to pass before his first assignment so that he may have time to prepare a suitable one-hour service talk. In view of this, when deciding whether a brother should be appointed as a Bethel speaker, those recommending Bethel speakers should give serious consideration to whether he could give an effective one-hour service talk. Since a brother's qualifications for presenting a one-hour talk would need to be much higher than for presenting a short convention talk, an individual might be qualified to serve as a regional convention speaker but not as a Bethel speaker. As an example, those recommending Bethel speakers would do well to ask themselves if they view the brother in question as qualified to address their own congregations for one hour. Hence, as a general rule, a brother would qualify to be used on a regional convention program before he could serve as a Bethel speaker. Brothers called to Bethel from the circuit work, however, may be appointed as Bethel speakers upon completing Bethel Entrants' School. (See 6:90-91.) When a brother is appointed as a Branch Committee member, there is no need formally to evaluate his speaking abilities for convention assignments; instead, the Branch Committee can determine which speaking assignments he is qualified to handle.

82. Weekend Speaking Assignments: Congregations near the branch office may request that approved Bethel speakers be assigned to give a service talk and public talk. A Speaking Assignment Desk may be set up in the Service Department for scheduling these assignments. (See 6:157.) When an assignment is made, the "Notice to Congregation of Bethel Speaker Assignments" (S-35) is sent to the congregation and the "Notice to Bethel Speaker of Assignments" (S-37) is sent to the speaker. Generally, Bethel speakers would not receive more than three weekend speaking assignments per year. Likewise, individual congregations will be officially assigned up to three Bethel speakers each year. Bethel speakers may not be requested by name for these official Bethel speaking assignments.

83. Travel and Time Away: Bethel speakers may be sent to congregations within 200 miles (320 km) of Bethel, if that distance is practical. Whatever the radius from Bethel, the speaker should be able to travel safely to and from the assignment with minimal impact on his Bethel work. The brother (and his wife) should be able to arrive back at Bethel and get a good night's sleep on Sunday evening. If the weekend meeting is held late on Sunday and the location is a considerable distance from Bethel, the speaker may return early Monday morning without taking personal time away as long as he is back at his work assignment after lunch.

84. Brothers who are regular Bethel family members serving at remote translation offices may be appointed as Bethel speakers and assigned to visit congregations within 200 miles of their location. However, the branch office may opt to make the travel radius less than 200 miles if local circumstances would make it difficult for the brothers to travel that far in a weekend and still return in good time to carry out their weekly Bethel routine.

85. Expenses: The speaker's travel expenses (and his wife's if applicable) should be covered by the local congregation. A resolution is not required for these expenses since it is part of the ongoing Speaking Assignment Desk arrangement. If for some reason the congregation does not reimburse the speaker, the branch may reimburse his travel expenses, having in mind the cost of public transportation, the distances involved, and the current price of fuel if a personal vehicle is used. If the congregation does not supply meals, the speaker may be reimbursed for that expense. The branch should write a kind letter to any congregations that fail to reimburse these expenses, reminding them of their responsibility and telling them that the branch has cared for the reimbursement in this case. However, when a congregation chooses to invite a particular Bethel speaker for a special weekend of activity apart from those arranged by the Speaking Assignment Desk, all travel expenses for the speaker (and his wife) should be covered either with private contributions or with congregation funds as approved by a resolution.

86. Bethel speakers are expected to share with the congregation in field service on the weekend of their public talks, according to local arrangements.

87. Video presentations and slide shows are not approved for use on Bethel speaking assignments. Saturday service talks should be Scriptural and encouraging discussions, generally only one hour in length. Such talks may be shortened to 30 minutes if they must be presented after the regular one-hour Watchtower Study.

88. Only approved Bethel speakers are to present service talks to the congregations. As an exception, visiting missionaries who are qualified may present a special service talk but only at the Kingdom Hall and at a time other than that scheduled for regular congregation meetings. For these special presentations, a missionary could use a few visual aids, including pictures from the area where he serves. However, such pictures should be in good taste and not overshadow the Scriptural message of his talk. Visiting missionaries might also give a brief report during a local needs part on the midweek meeting or after an unabbreviated Watchtower Study, if requested.

89. Circuit assembly branch representatives are selected from among the better-qualified and highest-rated

Bethel speakers or circuit overseers. In large branches, those considered for this privilege have served at Bethel or in circuit work for many years. At smaller branches, the Branch or Country committee may need to consider using brothers who have served for fewer years, bearing in mind that branch representatives should nonetheless be exemplary in their conduct and public speaking.—1 Tim. 4:12; see 6:92; 7:27.

MORNING WORSHIP AT BETHEL

90. General Guidelines: Diligence is essential in preparing information that is of benefit to the Bethel family. Those entrusted with this serious assignment ought to handle it in accord with the principle found at Romans 12:8. The assigned chairman should arrive at the table approximately ten minutes before the start of the program so that he can settle in and get any needed observations from the sound technicians or other responsible brothers at Bethel. Approved overnight guests staying at the branch may attend morning worship along with the Bethel family.

91. In most branches, morning worship begins at 7:00 a.m., with the chairman taking no more than a few seconds to welcome the family. He then calls on the brother assigned to offer a brief opening prayer of less than one minute. This prayer should include giving thanks for the breakfast meal to follow. In some branches where most in the family eat breakfast in their personal rooms and there is no provision for receiving a video signal, the family may gather afterward in a suitable location, such as a dining room or a Kingdom Hall, for the Morning Worship program before going to work.

92. Program: In most branches, at 7:20 a.m., the chairman introduces the full Morning Worship program. After the daily text is read, the chairman calls on each of the four assigned commenters to offer a comment of one minute or less. Branches with few in the Bethel family may have two comments of two minutes each. Although it is appropriate to acknowledge each comment, care should be exercised not to exalt any one participant over the others. After the last one on the panel has commented, the chairman takes eight or nine minutes to develop a few Scriptural thoughts for the encouragement of the family. Scriptures should be read directly from a hard copy of the Bible or from an electronic device rather than from printed notes except when paraphrasing certain verses. The chairman should conclude his comments by 7:35 a.m. at the latest. Then, he will call on the brother assigned to read the printed comments from Examining the Scriptures Daily. The chairman then reads announcements if there are any. (See 7:93.) The program continues with a brother assigned to read a scheduled segment from the Bible. On Wednesdays, a brother will present a five-minute Bethel Spiritual Gems instead of a reading. Periodically, a ten-minute department report or branch visit report will be presented after the Bethel Spiritual Gems. [See Chart 7.3.]

93. Selected greetings may be read once a week at the discretion of the Branch or Country committee. Greetings and table announcements should be approved by a member of the Branch Committee or by the Bethel Office. The chairman should make announcements regarding memorial services or judicial action just before his concluding prayer. The occasional use of visual aids that are dignified and instructional is acceptable at morning worship. If someone uses something inappropriate or outlandish, the Branch Committee should arrange for appropriate counsel to be given. (See 7:40.) This format for morning worship at Bethel should be followed at other sites outside of Bethel, such as remote translation offices. While this same general format can be followed at the various field schools, the brothers should be guided by the instructions provided in the School for Kingdom Evangelizers Instruc- tor Guidelines (skeig). Please contact the Teaching Committee for any exceptions to this format.

94. Transmissions to Other Sites: Inasmuch as Morning Worship programs are designed for the spiritual benefit of members of the Bethel family and temporary volunteers at the branch, such programs should not be transmitted to outside locations other than as explained below. While local Morning Worship programs may be held at remote translation offices (RTOs) as long as sufficient qualified personnel are on hand, transmissions to and from the branch may also be arranged if such would not require a great expenditure. (See 8:93.) Where implemented, such a local arrangement should give all RTO personnel an opportunity to share in the program in a way similar to what is done at the branch. Please note that the program will usually originate from the branch, though on occasion program participants might be streamed (or prerecorded) from the RTO back to the branch. If a capable brother appointed as a Morning Worship chairman at the RTO would also qualify to conduct morning worship at the branch office, his morning worship may be streamed (or prerecorded) back to the branch if the cost is reasonable and the high standards for the program are maintained.

95. Those in special full-time service working remotely on construction projects, such as construction servants (BCS), expatriate construction servants (BCF), construction volunteers (BCV), and full-time construction commuters (BCL), may be tied in to the Bethel Morning Worship program up to four days each week. The Branch Committee may determine how many times a week those on a specific project will benefit from the Bethel program. During branch visits, all special full-time servants in these remote locations can benefit from the Bethel Morning Worship program during the entire visit. When a construction project is under way, each location should arrange for at least one local Morning Worship program each week. If there are also local volunteers working on the same project, they are permitted to enjoy the program along with those who are in special full-time service. If because of time-zone differences the program will be delay-streamed or a recording of the program is made, prayers should be said locally. Assembly Hall servants (BAS), Bethel remote servants (BRS), Bible school facility servants (BSS), and Local Design/Construction field representatives may view the Bethel Morning Worship program each day, since there is no arrangement for a local Morning Worship program. While Assembly Hall servants (BAS) are permitted to view morning worship as outlined above, local volunteers should not be invited to join them for the program.

96. The Branch Committee has permission to determine on a case-by-case basis which Bethel family members traveling for extended periods on branch assignments may have remote access to the Bethel Morning Worship program. When members of the Translation Department travel to work with temporary translation teams, they may tie in to the branch Morning Worship program along with the temporary translation teams although members of the team may not be in special full-time service.

97. Visiting Morning Worship Chairman: A headquarters representative will preside over the program on the days that he is assigned to visit the branch. A brother visiting from another branch is not to be invited to serve as chairman for morning worship—even if he is used in that capacity at his home branch—unless he is a member of the Governing Body or an appointed helper to one of the Governing Body committees and serves as a Morning Worship chairman in the United States.

98. Additionally, a brother visiting a remote translation office under the oversight of his home branch may be asked to conduct morning worship only if

(1) the branch has assigned him to make the visit, (2) he already serves as Morning Worship chairman at the branch, and (3) there are very few local brothers approved to conduct.

99. Recommendations of Morning Worship Chairmen: Recommendations of those who will serve as a chairman at a branch or at an RTO should be submitted on the most current Recommendations to Teaching Committee form. The details requested on this form should guide the Branch Committee and the Teaching Committee in evaluating who is qualified for this special privilege. Elders may be considered who have served in an exemplary way at Bethel for a number of years, who enjoy the respect of the Bethel family, who are viewed as solid spiritual men, and who are good teachers. Brothers serving as construction servants may be recommended if they are qualified. In addition, time spent in some form of special full-time service before coming to Bethel may be taken into account. Those recommended should be capable of giving good Scriptural encouragement to the Bethel family. There is no need to submit recommendations to the Teaching Committee for those who will preside over the Morning Worship program at local construction projects. The Branch Committee should use good judgment to appoint qualified brothers who will impart a spiritual gift to those serving on the projects.

100. Morning Worship Commenters: Brothers and sisters who are regular members of the family (BBR), as well as those serving as temporary Bethel family members (BBT), may be assigned to give a text comment upon completion of their first year of Bethel service. Construction servants (BCS), expatriate construction servants (BCF), full-time construction commuters (BCL), and construction volunteers (BCV) should be assigned to give comments at morning worship during their stay at the branch regardless of the length of time they have been assigned to serve at Bethel. Full-time commuters (BBL) may also be assigned as commenters during morning worship. Part-time commuters (BBV), on the other hand, may attend on the days they work at Bethel but would not usually be approved as commenters.

101. If the Branch or Country committee feels that an exception is warranted in the case of a potential Morning Worship commenter, the matter should be brought to the attention of the Teaching Committee for review. In smaller branches where commenters are not specifically assigned in advance, the Branch Committee can determine whether part-time commuters may participate.—See 7:109.

102. After a sister has given her first text comment, she has the option of sending a note to the Bethel Office requesting to be exempted from a future Morning Worship assignment.

103. Opening Prayers: At larger branches, after serving at Bethel and as an elder for five years, a brother may be assigned to represent the family for the opening prayer at morning worship.

104. Readings and Bethel Spiritual Gems Assignments: Generally, Bethel speakers are used to read assigned portions of the Bible at morning worship, present the Bethel Spiritual Gems assignment, and read at the Bethel family Watchtower Study. At times, a Branch Committee may decide that circumstances warrant using other qualified elders, those not yet appointed as Bethel speakers, for these assignments.

105. The Bethel Spiritual Gems assignment is based on the weekly Bible reading schedule for the Bethel family. It should feature outstanding principles in the account that build appreciation for Jehovah's qualities and standards while imparting Bible understanding. The material should be applied to the Bethel family, where appropriate.

106. Text Reading: Ministerial servants who have served at Bethel for one year and who have passed a reading evaluation test may be assigned to read the daily text and the printed comments at morning worship.

BETHEL FAMILY SPIRITUAL PROGRAMS ON MONDAY EVENING

107. Bethel Family Watchtower Study: The weekly Watchtower Study is a customary feature of Bethel family life at all branches. Conductors are usually circuit assembly branch representatives. In smaller branches, Bethel speakers may also be assigned.

108. General Guidelines: It is especially important for those assigned as Bethel family Watchtower Study conductors to adhere closely to published direction, and these brothers should be encouraged to review such direction periodically. (ks10 2:24-25; w03 9/1 pp. 21-22) Elders who conduct the Watchtower Study in their congregations view the Bethel family Watchtower Study as a model to follow. The conductor should prepare thoroughly. He should not introduce additional material from his own personal research, as it could overshadow what has been published in the study article. Extensive research has already been done in producing the study material, and the points to be emphasized are those included in the paragraphs under consideration. He should not comment excessively. In some branches, the Watchtower Study starts at 6:15 p.m. with the conductor's welcoming expressions and introduction to the opening song and prayer. The call for the concluding song and prayer is at 7:15 p.m. Therefore, the Bethel Watchtower Study is conducted within 55 minutes (including appropriate brief comments on the artwork and good use of the teaching boxes). This requires that the conductor apportion the time carefully so as to allow for balanced coverage of the material. The conductor should prepare well, maintain eye contact with the brothers as they offer their comments, and warmly commend the participants. Conductors are to be reminded of these points as needed. Readers for the Bethel family Watchtower Study should be chosen from among appointed Bethel speakers.

109. Watchtower Study Commenters: In larger families, about 15 to 20 brothers may be assigned to participate as commenters. Regular Bethel family members (BBR), temporary Bethel family members (BBT), construction servants (BCS), construction volunteers (BCV), full-time construction commuters (BCL), and full-time commuters (BBL) may be used for these assignments. Part-time commuters (BBV) may attend but would not usually be approved as commenters.—See 4:49 and the exception in 7:100-101.

110. Watchtower Study Attendees: Those serving at the branch as regular Bethel family members (BBR), temporary Bethel family members (BBT), construction servants (BCS), expatriate construction servants (BCF), construction volunteers (BCV), full-time construction commuters (BCL), full-time commuters (BBL), and part-time commuters (BBV) as well as remote volunteers (BRV) and Bethel consultants (BOC) may attend the Bethel family Watchtower Study and other spiritual programs typically held on Monday evenings, provided that (1) such volunteers reside in close proximity to the main Bethel facility or a remote Bethel facility and (2) there is adequate space for such volunteers to join the Bethel family for the program. Believing marriage mates and well-behaved children still residing at home may join BRVs, BOCs, BBLs, and BBVs for the Bethel spiritual programs held on Monday evenings if there is adequate space for all such ones to attend. (This provision does not include attending morning worship at Bethel.) Each week, those in special full-time service working remotely on construction projects, such as construction servants (BCS), expatriate construction servants (BCF), construction volunteers (BCV), and full-time construction commuters (BCL), may be tied in to the Bethel family Watchtower Study and any additional spiritual program on that evening. Local volunteers working on the project who are not in special full-time service would not be invited to this program. If because of time-zone differences the program will be delay-streamed or a recording of the program is made, prayers should be said locally. Bible school facility servants (BSS), Bethel remote servants (BRS), and Assembly Hall servants (BAS) are also permitted to tie in to the Bethel family Watchtower Study under the same arrangements as outlined above for construction workers in special full-time service.

111. Bethel Family Lectures: These 45-minute lectures are designed for the Bethel family and are usually presented after the Bethel family Watchtower Study on Monday evening. The Branch Committee selects qualified Bethel speakers from those appointed as circuit assembly branch representatives. The outlines provided by the Teaching Committee are available on MDS.

SCHOOLS FOR THEOCRATIC TRAINING

112. Watchtower Bible School of Gilead: This 20-week course provides intensive training in Bible study and theocratic organization. Invitations to attend this school are issued by the Service Committee. The Teaching Committee is responsible for the curriculum.

113. School for Branch Committee Members and Their Wives: The Service Committee invites qualifying members of Branch and Country committees and their wives to this eight-week course in accord with current guidelines. (See 6:183.) The Teaching Committee is responsible for the curriculum.

114. School for Circuit Overseers and Their Wives (SCOTW): The Teaching Committee is responsible for the curriculum. The Service Committee oversees the scheduling of SCOTW worldwide. Unless the Service Committee has granted an exception, this school is not to be held on branch property. If permission was given in the past to hold this school at the branch and it has not been verified that this is still acceptable, the Service Committee should be informed of the current circumstances and, if desired, the branch may request that this arrangement continue. In the event that an exception has been granted and the school is held at the branch, arrangements should not be made for class introductions to the Bethel family. Instead, a general Morning Worship table announcement welcoming the new class as a whole can be made to the Bethel family at the beginning of the schooling period. If desired, a parting announcement could also be read to the Bethel family on the last day of class. None of the students should be assigned to give a report to the Bethel family. Additionally, only the brothers attending the SCOTW on branch property should be assigned to give a comment at morning worship. SCOTW instructors are appointed by the Branch Committee. They should be selected from the most qualified and experienced SKE instructors. They should have an excellent understanding of organizational procedures along with the wisdom and experience to assist circuit overseers and their wives with the challenging situations and problems unique to their assignments. Additionally, they should be among the most experienced men in handling difficult judicial cases and should be very familiar with the Shepherding book and other printed direction. Brothers serving as SCOTW instructors will discontinue their assignment on August 31 of the service year that they reach 70 years of age.—See 7:122.

115. School for Kingdom Evangelizers (SKE): While the Service Committee oversees the scheduling of these classes worldwide, any questions regarding the curriculum should be directed to the Teaching Committee. All reasonable efforts should be made to hold the SKE in the field. The local Morning Worship program of SKE is viewed as part of the curriculum, so the branch Morning Worship program should not be streamed to SKE locations. In rare cases when an exception is granted to hold SKE at the branch and the students must attend the branch Morning Worship program, none of the students would be invited to present reports to the Bethel family or to offer Morning Worship comments. Any questions regarding these matters should be addressed to the Teaching Committee.

116. SKE Applicants: Qualified single brothers and sisters as well as couples between the ages of 23 and 65 who have been married for at least two years and have been in full-time service for at least the last two consecutive years may apply to attend this eight-week course. (Ps. 68:11) Any applicants between the ages of 50 and 65 must be able to provide for themselves and be in no need of financial or medical assistance from the organization. If enrolled in this school, they will continue to serve as regular pioneers wherever they are assigned by the organization but will not be invited to become members of the Worldwide Order of Special Full-Time Servants. Application forms and related material may be requested from the congregation secretary. Procedures for holding this course as well as for arranging graduations have been outlined in the School for Kingdom Evangelizers Instructor Guidelines (skeig) and the School for Kingdom Evangelizers Office Guidelines (skeog).

117. SKE Graduations: When Kingdom Halls are not available for holding SKE graduations, a multipurpose room at an Assembly Hall may be used as long as its use does not interfere with any other scheduled event. If it is believed that circumstances warrant the use of the main auditorium of an Assembly Hall and such use would not interfere with a scheduled circuit assembly, the Branch Committee can make the decision without inquiring of the Teaching Committee. Attendance at these graduations should not exceed 350.

118. A Bethel representative may be assigned to serve an SKE graduation only when it is possible to care for his travel expenses in one of the following ways: (1) the graduation occurs on the same weekend as a circuit assembly served by the branch representative and the circuit covers the travel expenses; (2) brothers defray the travel expenses from private funds; (3) the Bethel representative uses his own funds to cover the travel expenses; (4) organization funds are used to cover expenses in conjunction with an official work assignment for the branch, such as visiting a remote translation office or missionaries near the graduation site. Where it is not possible to have a Bethel representative present, one of the regular class instructors will serve as chairman for the program, give the graduation talk, and hand out the graduation certificates.

119. In the event that a Bethel representative is present for the graduation, he might be able to conduct morning worship on Saturday from 7:45 a.m. to 8:00 a.m.; yet, it is up to him to decide if he can accept this responsibility, taking into account his other assignments that weekend—especially if he is also the visiting speaker at a circuit assembly (CA-br).

120. After breakfast and perhaps commencing at 8:30 a.m., the Bethel representative might also be able to present an encouraging talk to the class on a theme of his choice. Or he may prefer to give this talk toward the end of the morning, perhaps commencing about 11:40 a.m. If serving a circuit assembly (CA-br) on Saturday, he would need to give this discourse either before or after his first talk to the circuit. This Scripturally upbuilding talk may be up to 45 minutes in length.

121. On Sunday, the Bethel representative would ordinarily serve as chairman for the graduation program, although there may be times when it would be better to have the "A" instructor serve as chairman. In either case, the Bethel representative would present a 20-minute graduation discourse.

122. SKE Instructors: The Teaching Committee appoints the instructors for the SKE, based on recommendations from Branch Committees. It is preferred that instructors be selected from circuit overseers who are excellent teachers. In order to help these ones qualify as instructors, the Branch Committee first appoints them as class observers. (See skeig 1:5-7.) Branch Committee members and other Bethel family members should not be recommended as instructors; nor should they be selected to be observers. To appoint a new instructor, the Branch Committee must send its recommendation to the Teaching Committee, using the School for Kingdom Evangelizers Instructors (G-29) form. After a circuit overseer observes an SKE class, the Branch Committee should obtain detailed comments from the two appointed SKE instructors of that class. If the comments are favorable and the Branch Committee wishes to recommend the circuit overseer as a regular instructor, it should provide the following detailed observations to the Teaching Committee: the units he taught as an observer, his teaching ability, whether he is an above-average instructor, his ability to accept counsel, and his wife's interaction with the students and the instructors' wives. The Branch Committee should also comment about whether he has a good comprehension of the Scriptures, stays up-to-date with our current understanding, and displays loving personal interest in others. While the Teaching Committee appoints SKE instructors, these same principles should be used by the Branch Committee as a guideline for appointing other field instructors in the branch territory. To delete an existing SKE instructor, the Branch Committee must send its recommendation to the Teaching Committee, using the G-29 form. If an instructor is deficient and is recommended for deletion, clearly indicate the problem and what has already been done to assist him. Who has observed the problem? Is this a recent development or an ongoing issue? What specific counsel and assistance has he received? How much time has elapsed since the counsel was given, and how did he respond? When circuit overseers who serve as field instructors reach 70 years of age, they should discontinue their assignment on August 31 of that service year. The brother and his wife may be assigned to serve as special pioneers. This should be done with sufficient advance notice so as not to impact any previously scheduled classes adversely. Some who are over 70 years of age may still qualify to instruct the one-week School for Congregation Elders (SCE).—See 7:132-135.

123. Bethel Entrants' School (BES): The Teaching Committee has prepared a one-week school designed to give new Bethelites and those with a design/construction enrollment a spiritual outlook on their new form of service. Regular Bethel family members (BBR), temporary Bethel family members (BBT), expatriate Bethel family members (BBF), visiting members (BBB), full-time commuters (BBL), part-time commuters (BBV) who commute three or more days each week, construction servants (BCS), expatriate construction servants (BCF), full-time construction commuters (BCL), Assembly Hall servants (BAS), and Bible school facility servants (BSS), regardless of the site where they are serving, may be enrolled, provided that they are approved to serve for one year or longer and have not attended BES in the past ten years. If a special full-time servant is getting married to someone not in special full-time service and the couple are approved to remain in special full-time service, both would be enrolled in this course. If a marriage takes place between two individuals who have already attended BES, they would not be enrolled in the course or be required to complete the one-year Bible-reading program for new arrivals. This also applies to regular special full-time servants transferring from one branch to another.

124. BES Curriculum and Schedule: The one-week course should be covered during five and a half days, typically Monday through Saturday morning. New arrivals should attend the school within their first three months of special full-time service. There is no minimum number of students required to hold a class. Branches may use their discretion if they wish to delay a class in order to form larger classes. Each student should receive a copy of the school schedule and curriculum at least one month in advance. At the discretion of the branch and based on local needs and circumstances, BES instructors may be provided with specific direction on topics that the Branch Committee feels should be highlighted while teaching the school. New Member Lectures have been combined into this new curriculum. Therefore, it will not be necessary to present them separately as in the past.

125. Before completing their first year at Bethel or in the field, new members are expected to read the entire Bible, from Genesis to Revelation. Depending on the location of each student's assignment, either the LDC or the Bethel Office (along with the department elder groups) should monitor each student's progress at specified times throughout the year. The branch office should maintain a record of when each new member completes his Bible reading. Many often express appreciation for this arrangement. BES students are required to read the entire Dwelling manual immediately after their arrival at Bethel, while those with a design/construction enrollment should read the entire Continue to Put Your Heart Into the Work (cph) brochure or the Faithfully Maintaining Our Places of Worship (mtw) brochure.

126. BES Instructors: Two BES instructors should be selected by the Branch Committee to conduct the class. The instructors should be selected from among high-quality teachers at Bethel who have a good rapport with the Bethel family and have the circumstances to prepare well. Although seniority may lend weight to a brother's teaching, years of service should not be the primary factor. Select well-qualified teachers who are approachable. One substitute instructor should be selected to fill in as the need may arise. It is the Branch Committee's responsibility to select the team of three well-qualified instructors (two primary instructors and one substitute instructor) for the BES. In some branches only one team of instructors will be necessary. In other branches, a few additional teams of instructors may be necessary and used on a rotational basis, depending on the number of new arrivals to Bethel. Selecting a relatively small group of brothers who can serve as BES instructors at various times each year will increase the effectiveness of the BES, since these elders will become well-acquainted with teaching the spiritually rich course material to new arrivals. Conducting the BES will not be a full-time work assignment. So instructors should have a primary Bethel work assignment. However, work time may be used to prepare for the class. The two instructors should divide the classroom sessions they are to teach between themselves. If desired, they may rotate assignments for each successive class.

127. Helping Brothers to Make Spiritual Progress at Bethel: The Branch Committee should provide progressive training to brothers, starting from the day they arrive at Bethel. Good training will enable a brother gradually to take on more responsibility at Bethel and to become a more valuable asset to Jehovah's organization. While the advancement of individual brothers will differ according to each one's abilities and local circumstances, the Branch Committee should take a keen interest in helping each brother to be used as fully as possible. Chart 7.4, "General Progression of Teaching Privileges for Bethel Brothers," is provided to guide the Branch Committee when periodically reviewing brothers in the Bethel family and ensuring that no one is being overlooked for teaching privileges for which they may qualify. Of course, spiritual progress does not manifest itself only in the teaching privileges extended to a person but is expressed when that person demonstrates Christlike qualities and aspects of the fruitage of the spirit in his work habits and dealings with others.–Gal. 5:22, 23; 1 Pet. 2:21.

128. Pioneer Service School (PSS): This school provides training for regular pioneers and special full-time servants. These include regular Bethel family members (BBR), expatriate Bethelites (BBF), temporary Bethel family members (BBT), full-time commuters (BBL), construction servants (BCS), expatriate construction servants (BCF), full-time construction commuters (BCL), Assembly Hall servants (BAS), and Bible school facility servants (BSS). Special pioneers, field missionaries, and wives of circuit overseers who have served as such for at least a year may attend the school again. Field classes should be held at central locations, usually Kingdom Halls. Regular pioneers are invited to attend PSS toward the end of their first year of pioneering. Multiple invitations may be extended to one who is in the aforementioned forms of service as long as he or she has not attended in at least the last five years and classes are not full. There should generally be 20 to 25 students in a class. However, in branches with a sizable number of pioneers, consideration may be given to increasing the class size to as many as 50 students.

129. The curriculum for this school is based on the textbook "Fully Accomplish Your Ministry"—2 Timothy 4:5. (pt14) Capable instructors, usually circuit overseers, will conduct the course. This course is designed to be covered in six days. However, if local circumstances require an adjustment, the Branch Committee should consult with the Teaching Committee about the matter. Students have the option of receiving an electronic or a printed copy of the textbook.

130. Since some special pioneers and others attending PSS may have to travel some distance, the school instructors may need to organize rooming accommodations. It may be that local publishers will be happy to provide temporary accommodations. Where possible, students will not be asked to come from too great a distance. The branch will care for the travel and food expenses of special pioneers and field missionaries attending the schools. Congregations may also wish to contribute in some measure. The local circuit will cover the circuit overseer's expenses. (See S-330 2:5.) The organization does not wish anyone to be unduly burdened in financing a PSS. Instructors should inform the branch office of the needs at each school location.

131. The Service Committee oversees the preparation of the annual pioneer session that is held in conjunction with the circuit assembly (CA-br).

132. School for Congregation Elders (SCE): This one-week school is for the benefit of appointed elders. Its curriculum is posted on MDS. Circuit overseers and Branch Committee members are generally not invited to this school, since they attend either the School for Circuit Overseers and Their Wives or the School for Branch Committee Members and Their Wives. All other elders serving at Bethel and in the field should be invited. Bethelites will be granted time away from work so that they may attend. Also, a time credit may be given to elders serving as special pioneers equivalent to one quarter of their monthly hour requirement. Regular pioneers may receive a 20-hour credit.—See 7:122.

133. It is preferred that a student attend the school to which he is assigned. Exceptions may be made if the Branch Committee feels that such are warranted. For example, if a brother requests permission to attend an SCE being conducted in a different language within the branch territory and the Branch Committee agrees that his request is reasonable, the brother may be authorized to do so. If a student wishes to attend a school in another land and there is a good reason for this exception, the two branch offices may work out the necessary details. The brother should be informed that he will be assigned to one SCE only and that he will be responsible to cover all travel expenses involved.

134. On occasion, someone in special full-time service may request permission to attend an SCE in a nearby country where a class is scheduled in his dominant/preferred language. Such may be approved. The branch office may cover the brother's travel expenses and all entry visa costs. In determining where the brother will attend the SCE, the branch office should select the country with the most economical round-trip travel fares. If expenses would be unusually high, the branch office should send its recommendation to the Teaching Committee for consideration. If the brother is married and he chooses to bring his wife along, the couple would be responsible for the wife's travel expenses inasmuch as the husband's attendance at the SCE is not a branch work assignment. The sister would also need to take personal time away for the extent of the trip.—See 7:137; 9:88.

135. The Branch Committee selects SCE instructors from among experienced circuit overseers in the local territory, preferably those who serve as SKE instructors, if they are available. —See 7:122.

136. Kingdom Ministry School (KMS): The curriculum for this program is prepared for appointed elders and, at times, ministerial servants. It is presented in the form of lectures, videos, demonstrations, interviews, and class discussions. Circuit overseers and, at times, Bethel representatives are assigned to conduct this school.

137. Because the Service Committee schedules KMS, it will answer any questions about those who qualify to attend. Elders in a given area will convene for the school over a one- or two-day period; when invited, ministerial servants will meet for one day. The school may be conducted on a weekend or on weekdays, depending on local circumstances. The entire body of elders of a congregation should attend at the same time. Requests for permission (as an exception) to attend elsewhere may be handled in harmony with the guidelines given in 7:133-134. The branch office may schedule school sessions in harmony with what is best locally, keeping in mind that all elders in the branch territory should attend the course in a comparatively short time, perhaps within three to five weeks. The branch should make arrangements for adequate facilities. Although Kingdom Halls are preferred, Assembly Halls may be used where practical.

138. The most recent KMS textbook is entitled "Shepherd the Flock of God" —1 Peter 5:2. (ks10) Refresher courses may be offered periodically, using other suitable material provided by the Teaching Committee. In countries under ban or serious restrictions, Branch Committees may supply congregations with at least one copy of the current textbook to be kept in a safe place for the local elders to use and study on their own. When the circuit overseer visits, he can help the elders by teaching them from the material they already have on hand.

139. Literacy Classes: The Branch Committee should inform congregations of the provision for learning how to read and write, and they should make definite arrangements for assisting those needing help. In multilingual societies, the best results usually come from teaching people to read and write the primary language spoken at home and in the community where they live. Classes may be held using the brochure Apply Yourself to Reading and Writing.

140. Different options are available for organizing literacy classes. Each body of elders should carefully survey the needs of any associated with their congregation and then make arrangements as needed. Material from the weekly Bible reading or from a publication such as Lessons You Can Learn From the Bible may be used for these classes.

141. Oftentimes, classes are held in conjunction with the Life and Ministry Meeting. When this is done, the class would be held in a separate room in the Kingdom Hall during the student assignments. The Kingdom Hall could also be used at other times during the week, as long as the arrangements would not conflict with another congregation's meeting. Those needing additional help may be tutored on a personal basis. Keep in mind, however, that it would be ill-advised for two individuals of the opposite sex to meet alone unless they are close relatives.

142. Foreign-Language Classes: For details regarding this provision, see 6:78.

AUDIO AND VIDEO PRODUCTION

143. The Teaching Committee oversees production of English audio and video publications by Audio/Video Services (AVS) at world headquarters. These English publications serve as a template for all other languages. The Writing Committee oversees the translation of these publications, including the production of sign-language videos. New requests to translate and record a publication should be addressed to the Writing Committee.

144. Unless a branch is approved by the Teaching Committee to host a regional video team, branches should not purchase equipment or maintain full-time personnel for video projects. Approval should be obtained from the Teaching Committee before producing local branch videos, with the exception of simple training videos that follow the published guidelines. (See 7:149.) Such local branch video projects should be assigned to skilled personnel outside of the branch who would work on this project for a temporary period using personal equipment.

145. Audio publications include magazines, books, brochures, articles for the website, dramatic Bible readings, and song recordings. The Teaching Committee oversees the recording and distribution of English audio publications, whereas the Writing Committee oversees translation and vernacular audio recordings.

146. Audio and Video on JW.ORG: After a web page is created for a publication under the direction of the Writing Committee, AVS is responsible for uploading audio and video publication files in English, while translating branches upload files on a vernacular page in the target language.

147. Regional Video Teams (RVTs): Under the direction of the Teaching Committee, AVS supervises and assigns the work of approved RVTs. A branch should not assign work to the RVT or use team equipment or personnel (either full- or part-time) without approval from the Teaching Committee. Recommendations to increase the number of full-time RVT members or to replace the production overseer should be sent to the Teaching Committee for approval. Recommended adjustments to personnel in other roles will be approved by AVS. RVTs should obtain headquarters approval before informing the team members of any changes.

148. Branch Tour Videos: Branches desiring to produce an on-site tour video for visitors should request approval from the Teaching Committee. These videos should not describe the history of the work in the country but should show what currently transpires at the branch in support of the preaching work. A branch tour video should last ten minutes or less. When submitting a new proposal, please keep the following in mind:

- New audio or video equipment should not be purchased for this purpose. If none is available at the branch, it may be possible to use the equipment and expertise of a local brother.
- Please send the Teaching Committee a narrative script in English and a description of the proposed visuals for review and approval before recording.
- If prerecorded music will be included, the orchestral music produced by our organization is often used. For any original music donated for such a project, the branch should obtain a signed release from the owner.

149. Training Videos: The Teaching Committee provides the following guidelines for producing simple departmental training videos. Each Branch Committee should ensure that any departments producing such videos adhere closely to these guidelines.

a. Consider whether producing a training video is really necessary. Training information may be conveyed more effectively by another means, such as in a document or PowerPoint presentation. In other cases, another department may already have a training video that can be reused, or there may be a commercially-available training video that will meet the needs of your department.

b. Plan carefully beforehand. Determine the scope and duration of what is needed beforehand. Do not begin production without a clear scope of the work in mind.

c. Keep the production work as simple as possible. It may be possible to produce an effective training video simply by recording a skilled worker performing a task and explaining each step in the process. Screen-capture software can be used to create a video of work being performed on a computer. Although your finished training video may later be helpful to other departments, it should not be produced with the intention of distributing outside your department. If there is a need for a training video that would be distributed outside your department, a clear scope of the work should be conveyed in an Audio/Video Services Project Request Form to the Teaching Committee. Audio/Video Services Dispatch will assist you with filling out the form.

d. Limit the number of people working on and participating in a training video. Reenactments or other video segments involving large numbers of cast or crew should be avoided. At maximum, one person from outside of Bethel may be invited for less than three months each year to assist with the production of training videos for departments. A crew should not be formed to provide lighting, makeup, grips, or specialized audio. If it is felt that more personnel will be needed, provide an explanation and a clear scope of the work when submitting the request to the Teaching Committee for approval.

e. Set a reasonable expectation of quality. The purpose of a training video is simply to convey information, not to impress or entertain. Elaborate props or camera, lighting, and sound equipment are not needed. Video should be captured in an economical format (for example, codec and resolution) that will not require excessive storage space. Many phones and tablets can capture video and audio of acceptable quality for training purposes.

f. Keep the postproduction work as simple as possible. Avoid the use of complex 3-D animations or visual effects that are time-consuming to produce. Avoid background music simply to make the video more entertaining. If music is needed, you may use orchestral music produced by our organization or royalty-free stock music instead of commissioning original compositions.

150. Suggestions for Video Programs: A branch may receive suggestions from the field or from within Bethel for a video program. For example, there may be an exemplary publisher whose experience could be presented in a video interview or there may be a unique special event taking place in your branch territory. Before initiating any such video productions, the Branch Committee should write to the Teaching Committee and provide a one-page treatment describing the proposed video. The most recent video treatment template provided by the Teaching Committee should be used when submitting the suggestion, which includes Scriptural teaching points, story development, and the target audience of the proposed video. If approved, the Teaching Committee will forward the treatment to AVS for scheduling. The production of the video will not necessarily be assigned to the branch that submitted the idea. It is not necessary to forward donated music pieces to world headquarters. Branches can determine how to respond appropriately to those in their branch territory who submit music.

RADIO AND TV PROGRAMS

151. Questions concerning such programs may be sent to the Teaching Committee.

152. Periodically, all branches receive an updated listing of approved videos with guidelines on how to use them.

153. Approved programs should be shown unedited and without interruption except for station identification. No editing of any sort should be done without prior authorization from the Teaching Committee. None of the approved programs should be shown for commercial purposes. Permission will be granted to show our programs only in public service, educational, or noncommercial venues. They should not be shown in a context that could make it appear that we endorse any political or interfaith movement, hospital, or group.

154. The above guidelines should be provided to the broadcasting station for compliance every time one of the approved programs is to be aired. All branches have been sent a formatted sample of these guidelines for use as intended.

WHQ BROADCASTING DEPARTMENT

155. The Teaching Committee oversees the work of the WHQ Broadcasting Department, which does the following:

a. Establishes standards for broadcasting audio/video (A/V) equipment at world headquarters, branch-owned facilities, Assembly Halls, Kingdom Halls, and conventions. It works closely with Branch Committees and those involved in the design and construction process to ensure that the A/V equipment recommended by the Broadcasting Department is installed safely and is appropriate for the venue in which the equipment is installed.

b. Answers questions submitted by branches regarding the specification, installation, and operation of A/V equipment.

c. Recommends and coordinates the acquisition, rental, or loan of broadcasting A/V equipment for conventions and other branch-sponsored events. It provides this service to facilitate the sharing of equipment and to conserve dedicated funds.

d. Develops, maintains, and oversees the JW Stream website, accessible at https://stream.jw.org. This site provides small foreign-language congregations, groups, and pregroups with video recordings of conventions, assemblies, and congregation meetings. Branches can also use this site to stream Bethel-sponsored programs.

e. Assists branches with technical issues involving video streaming.

f. Develops, maintains, and oversees software development of the Internet Protocol Television (IPTV) system. IPTV provides live and recorded programming from the Bethel video system and JW Broadcasting. While each Christian is responsible to exercise good judgment and train his powers of discernment, the Branch Committee should periodically review the content of material that is being provided on IPTV out of regard for the overall spiritual welfare of the Bethel family and visitors. The Branch Committee should inform the WHQ Broadcasting Department when adding commercial channels to the IPTV system.

g. Coordinates and schedules satellite broadcasting content worldwide. Satellite broadcasting is used in countries with limited access to the Internet for transmitting recorded programs from JW Broadcasting and live programs, such as branch visits and special conventions.

h. Records and distributes WHQ department meetings via JW Stream or jw.org event media.

REGIONAL BROADCASTING DEPARTMENT—EUROPE

156. The Regional Broadcasting Department—Europe (RBD-E), hosted by the Central Europe branch, operates as an extension of the WHQ Broadcasting Department. This department:

a. Implements the standards set by the WHQ Broadcasting Department for broadcasting audio/video (A/V) equipment at branch-owned facilities, Assembly Halls, Kingdom Halls, and conventions in Europe. It works closely with Branch Committees and those involved in the design and construction process to ensure that the A/V equipment recommended is installed safely and is appropriate for the venue in which the equipment is installed.

b. Answers questions submitted by branches in that region regarding the specification, installation, and operation of A/V equipment.

c. Recommends and coordinates the acquisition, rental, or loan of broadcasting A/V equipment for conventions and other branch-sponsored events in that region. The RBD-E provides this service to facilitate the sharing of equipment and to conserve dedicated funds. At times, the RBD-E may ask branches to adjust convention dates.

d. Assists branches in its region with first-level support for technical issues involving video streaming.

e. Reviews and approves the A/V designs for each convention venue in their region and determines whether the equipment should be supplied from the central A/V equipment pool or should be rented. The Local Broadcasting Department in each European branch submits these designs in harmony with the standards outlined by the Teaching Committee. —See 7:157.

LOCAL BROADCASTING DEPARTMENT

157. The Branch Committee may decide to form a Local Broadcasting Department if the workload warrants it. Smaller branches may not need to form such a department if they have brothers trained to care for this work on a part-time basis. This department:

a. Implements the standards set by the WHQ Broadcasting

Department for broadcasting A/V equipment at branch-owned facilities, Assembly Halls, Kingdom Halls, and conventions in the branch territory. It works closely with those involved in the design and construction process to ensure that the A/V equipment recommended is installed safely and is appropriate for the venue in which the equipment is installed.

b. Recommends and coordinates the acquisition, rental, or loan of broadcasting A/V equipment for conventions and other branch-sponsored events in its branch territory, unless the region is served by RBD-E.

c. Creates an A/V design for each convention venue in its branch territory, adhering to the standards outlined by the Teaching Committee.

d. Stores, maintains, and routes convention audio/video equipment so that it can be shared by multiple venues unless the branch is served by a regional broadcasting department.

e. Provides training, oversight, and coordination of the technical support personnel for spiritual programs originating at the branch. These programs include morning worship, Bethel family Watchtower Study, along with other spiritual and department meetings.

f. Designs, installs, and maintains the A/V equipment used for conference rooms, tour displays, and classrooms at the branch.

g. Maintains and oversees any cable television system and Internet Protocol Television (IPTV) system in the branch.

WHQ TRAVEL DEPARTMENT

158. The Teaching Committee oversees the work of the WHQ Travel Department, which involves the following areas of responsibility: (1) researching and securing air travel for headquarters personnel caring for their organizational assignments and (2) researching and securing air travel for those in foreign service who are eligible to be funded to an international convention of their choice.

HOTEL REWARD POINTS AND VENUE COST ANALYSIS

159. The Teaching Committee Office also provides assistance to branches in the following ways: (1) overseeing the collection and management of accrued hotel reward points and (2) reviewing convention venue rental expenses and assisting with hotel negotiations and usage.

WRITING COMMITTEE

Web Publishing

1. The Web Publishing Department maintains the organization's websites. (See 3:40.) It works with departments at world headquarters and in the branches to publish Web content in many languages. This material includes answers to Bible questions raised by the public, information about our headquarters and branches, and news releases about events involving Jehovah's Witnesses. Selected publications can be read online or downloaded in various digital, audio, and video formats.

Writing Archives

2. Writing Archives is a work group within the Writing Department that is responsible for gathering, cataloging, and preserving material related to our theocratic history. Archival records and artifacts come from branches, congregations, individuals, and secular institutions. The Archives collection includes publications, clippings, documents, photographs, audiovisual recordings, and other items of historical value. Detailed life histories of longtime servants of Jehovah are also kept on file. Over time, such material is being digitized in order to provide electronic access and avoid damage to the original items. Archival research is used in preparing material for publication, display, and other educational purposes.

3. Many branches have assembled similar items of historical value during the preparation of Yearbook accounts and for other projects. The Writing Committee is interested in the preservation of such material, either at individual branches or at world headquarters. Consideration should be given to the proper organization and storage of such items, thus increasing their value for future research and publication. Such archival work should be assigned to a Bethel department, such as the Bethel Office.—See 3:60-65.

Writers

4. The Writers' Workshop is the principal means by which individuals are identified and approved to write for our publications. When a Writers' Workshop is scheduled to be held at a branch, the Writing Committee may invite that branch to supply names of individuals living in the branch territory who may have potential as writers. Writers from other branches may also be enrolled. It will then be determined by the Writing Committee who will be invited to attend the class and will be given a copy of Writing for Our Publications (A-41). Those recommended as potential writers should have writing ability and must be baptized and spiritually mature. They should be balanced, exemplary, modest, and not inclined to talk freely about their writing activity. In most cases, writers should be elders.

5. The Writing Committee assigns full-time writers, some of whom serve at a branch office. Full-time writers in a branch are designated as WHQ Writing Department workers. These brothers and their work come under the direct oversight of the Writing Committee. If a Branch Committee would like to give a full-time writer additional minor work assignments, that is acceptable as long as the writer can complete his writing work on schedule. Please inform the Writing Committee before a full-time writer is recommended to be reassigned or to attend Gilead School.

6. Occasionally, one who is not a full-time writer may be given a writing assignment. The Branch Committee will receive a copy of the writing assignment in order to be aware of how people under its oversight are being used by the Writing Department. Details about the assignment, such as the topic or target publication, are confidential. However, the Branch Committee should inform the Congregation Service Committee of the due date of a writing assignment that is sent to a missionary, a special pioneer, or a regular pioneer. Likewise, the Branch Committee should inform the Bethel work overseer of the due date of a writing assignment that is sent to a Bethelite. The writer will be informed that he may ask for a time allowance from his regular assignment to complete the writing assignment, if needed.

7. At times, the Writing Department may contact a branch in order to identify newsworthy events or experiences for possible use in preparing an article that will help readers learn about the fine works of Jehovah's Witnesses around the world. When such an article is assigned to a writer, the Art Department will contact the branch to request that a photographer be assigned to obtain images to illustrate the article. The Art Department will work with the branch to have any images entered into the Image Services System (ISS). If you learn that a model in a photograph that was supplied has become disqualified, follow the guidelines provided in the letter dated HWC:HWG September 28, 2017, No. C-54749W.

8. Field service experiences that are outstanding may be sent to the Writing Committee for possible use, as outlined in the letter dated HWC:HWH August 8, 2017, No. C-53973W.

9. When articles are prepared that feature a first-person account, such as for a life story or for the series "The Bible Changes Lives," the Branch Committee will be asked to confirm that those featured are in good standing and that there will be no repercussions if the article is published.

Translation Responsibilities

OVERVIEW

10. While the Writing Committee oversees the translation of our publications worldwide, the Branch Committee oversees the translation work that has been assigned to its branch.

Note: Bracketed references can be found at the end of this chapter. [See List 8.1.]

DECIDING WHAT TO TRANSLATE

11. In addition to publications that will be printed or posted on jw.org, the Branch Committee supervises the production of audio and video material and publications for the deaf and the blind. The committee also coordinates the translation of materials for our website and for JW Broadcasting.

Starting Translation Into a New Language

12. The Branch Committee regularly reviews the spiritual needs of every language group under its care. The Service Department is responsible for determining what publications are really needed and which priority list (A, B, C, D, E, F, G, or H) best fits the situation of each language in the branch territory. [See Chart 8.1.] The findings are presented to the Branch Committee. [1]

13. In consultation with the Service Department, the Translation Department recommends potential translators to the Branch Committee, which then approves those who qualify. The candidates should (1) be baptized, (2) know the target language very well—perhaps as their mother tongue—and (3) be available for some weeks to receive training and to translate their first publications. They may come from varying backgrounds (male, female, older, younger, single, married, and so forth). —See 7:44.

14. The Branch Committee requests permission from the Writing Committee to translate some of the publications specified on the priority list. It is essential to include the completed New Language Translation Request form. (The form is available on the Publication Processing Documentation (PPD) site, under TRANSLATION > TRANSLATION AND LANGUAGE OVERSEERS > GENERAL.) Be sure to specify the format(s) being recommended for the publications and which priority list applies to that language.

15. All new translation teams must receive training before beginning translation. Therefore, specify whom you recommend to provide the training. This will usually be an experienced translator who can teach the translation techniques course. If you do not have someone qualified to do this, please request assistance from the Writing Committee.

16. Once permission is granted, arrange for training to be given where the translators are located, so that they do not need to travel far. Where possible, train more than three candidates in order to have enough translators to choose from for future projects. Provide equipment and accommodations for the trainer. The trainer teaches the candidates basic translation techniques and works closely with them as they translate their first publications.

17. The translated publications are reviewed by a panel of native speakers to ensure natural language. (See 8:43c.) The translation is corrected and proofread, and the project team gives the translated publications a final check. Then the publications are composed or, in the case of audio and video publications, recorded. When the project is completed, the temporary translators return to their previous assignments and the Service Department provides direction on how the publications are to be used in the field and monitors how they are received. [2]

Requesting Publications in a Language That Has a Temporary Team

18. When the Branch Committee requests additional publications in a language that has a temporary team, the request should be accompanied by a report as outlined by instructions from the Service Committee. (See 6:149-152.) There is no need to request permission from the Writing Committee to translate public talk outlines and material for assemblies and conventions. However, if you have begun translating these items in a language for the first time, inform the Writing Committee. Videos may be translated into any language if you have adequate personnel and resources to handle the work without neglecting other priority translation projects. Study questions and videos for the midweek meeting may also be translated by temporary teams. [3]

Requesting Publications in a Language That Has a Permanent Team

19. Before making recommendations to the Writing Committee, a. Consult the document Priority List Guidelines, which is available on the PPD site. [See Chart 8.1.] Written languages and sign languages have separate priority lists. The Writing Committee regularly informs all branches of new publications under development, provides contents listings, and explains the purpose of each publication.

b. Consult with the Service Department to determine which publications should be translated.

c. Check with the respective language overseer(s) to determine whether the translation team would be able to translate additional publications. [4]

d. For dated publications, specify the edition and the format in which it will be produced and the date of the first issue.

Once you have started translating dated and recurring publications (Examining the Scriptures, Research Guide, Watch Tower Publications Index, assembly and convention material) make sure that these are being produced on time before requesting additional publications.

20. The Translation Department translates only publications used for field service, meetings, assemblies, and conventions, as well as materials for JW Broadcasting. Materials needed by Legal, Construction, Maintenance, Hospital Information Services, Correspondence, and the Service Department are translated by individuals in those departments or by part-time volunteers.—See 6:160. [5]

21. These volunteers, who are not part of the Translation Department, may have access to the section of the Watchtower Translation System (WTS) that deals with general translation. They are welcome to attend weekly team meetings of the Translation Department in order to stay up-to-date with the latest translation techniques and guidelines.

22. Sign-Language Translation: When starting translation into a sign language, a procedure is followed similar to that for spoken languages. The Writing Committee provides a separate priority list for sign languages and arranges for training when permission is given for the first publication in a sign language. Sign-language video production in each branch falls under the oversight of the Translation Department. MEPS Programming coordinates training for those who record and edit videos. [6]

Special Publications

23. Bible: Translating the New World Translation involves years of work. Languages approved to translate the Bible are allowed to have additional project teams, a secretary, and an elder to serve as the translation coordinator for the duration of the Bible project. The Branch Committee usually recommends the most qualified translators for Bible translation teams, made up of both brothers and sisters. It is permissible to use younger translators if they are well-qualified. [7] If you do not have enough qualified translators to translate the Bible and at the same time keep up with the approved publications, it may be necessary to produce fewer public magazines or to delay the release of other publications in order to complete Bible translation first. When the Writing Committee gives permission to translate the Bible, it arranges for initial and periodic training of the Bible translators by Writing Committee representatives. Branch Committees may request additional training when needed. Special consideration is given to add temporary teams for languages that work on the Study Edition of the Bible and/or Insight on the Scriptures. [8]

24. Selecting Magazine Issues: The Branch Committee decides which issues of the public edition of The Watchtower and/or Awake! will be published. Inform your printing branch what issues will be produced. [9]

25. Braille Publications: Braille publications can be transcribed using WTS. We make Braille publications available in any language in which we have printed publications, even if there are only a few blind individuals.

26. A branch desiring to transcribe publications into Braille should first request approval from the Writing Committee. The approval will be followed up with direction on how to proceed.

- While there is no priority list for Braille publications, it is best to begin with a small undated item, such as a tract or a brochure.

- Publications that can be transcribed into Braille generally include tracts, brochures, books, the New World Translation, The Watchtower, Awake!, and the Life and Ministry Meeting Workbook.
- Specialized publications can also be transcribed, such as public talk outlines, invitations, programs, the Pioneer textbook, and the Shepherding textbook.
- On request, electronic text may be provided for blind and visually impaired readers who use Braille notetakers or computers with screen readers. These files can be posted on jw.org in notetaker (BRL) format and RTF format. [10]

27. Study Watchtower: The language used in The Watchtower should be clear so that readers will readily understand the message. The majority of people do not use academic or formal language but prefer everyday language. The English edition from January 2019 on has been adjusted to enable translators to achieve clear translation. [11]

28. Songbook: Detailed guidelines for translating songs are provided on PPD. Individual songs can be translated and posted on the jw.org website for use at congregation meetings and other spiritual events. [12]

29. Audio, Video, and Web Publications: For some languages, video and audio publications may be used effectively. Publications can be published on the jw.org website in audio format even if they are not produced in print or in other electronic formats. Each Branch Committee should analyze what site features are available in all the languages for which their branch is responsible and can approve any feature that would be valuable to a language field if this will not create a burden for the translation team. [13]

30. JW Broadcasting (JWB): The Governing Body views the material on JWB as spiritual food. Each language (including sign languages) approved to translate the full JWB program has a brother serving as a permanent translator in order to coordinate the translation work. Two part-time commuters (not temporary volunteers) should be assigned to work with him on a translation team. Based on the need, he may enlist the help of additional part-time commuters and remote volunteers to sustain regular production. When translating a JWB program, careful attention should be given to the main talk; experienced translators should be used for this part. As is the case with all videos, you should decide whether to translate the audio track or to use subtitles, depending on the preferences of the target audience, the technical possibilities, and the workload of the team. (For example, some languages will record a vernacular version of original songs, while others will simply provide subtitles.) If time permits and they have the necessary skills, this team may work on translating regional convention and assembly outlines. [14]

DEPARTMENT ORGANIZATION

31. Each language overseer assigns individuals to specific project teams as needed.

32. Translation Capacity: The workload must be scheduled in such a way that team members do not regularly have to work overtime. The Branch Committee carefully monitors the workload of the translators to make sure that they are not burdened with unreasonable schedules.

33. Before starting any translation project, be sure that permission has been obtained for it. When permission is granted, obtain the source text of the publication from WTS or MDS. The master copy of the English Final mailing contains all corrections and approved updates.

34. Schedules: Local schedules for translating new and dated publications are based on the schedules for English publications provided by the Writing Department. For most publications, the Writing Department sends two different mailings:

(1) Early mailing: This contains early text to start translation and a preliminary PDF of the composed pages. At this point the text and artwork are subject to change. Nevertheless, translators should start translation as soon as possible after this mailing is received. The compositor(s) prepare the early composition pages for an audible reading check and a mechanical check of the translation.

(2) Final mailing: This mailing contains the finalized text and artwork. The project team compares the final adjustments of the English text with its translation to ascertain whether any changes will affect the translated text.

35. Correction notices should be handled according to the guidelines provided by the Writing Committee. [15]

36. Translation errors in publications that have already been published in any format may be corrected with the approval of the Branch Committee. The New World Translation may be updated to include necessary corrections, not revisions reflecting translator preferences. Updates may be done once a year but only if needed. The printing date on the publishers' page should be updated. [16] Complete retranslations requiring new copyright dates, corrections of serious translation errors that call for destroying copies in stock, and corrections to videos already produced need to be approved by the Writing Committee. [17]

Local Adjustments (Text and Art)

37. The Branch Committee recommends replacement material if the material in the English could cause problems in the local field. The Writing Committee will review recommendations for replacement text. Adjustments to important long-established Biblical and theocratic terms should be requested through a numbered letter to the Writing Committee. [18]

38. The Branch Committee may give local approval for adjustments in the following matters:

- Replace textual illustrations or examples that may be inappropriate for the local field.
- Replace references to our publications and links to a resource (such as an article, publication, audio or video file) that are not available in the target language.
- Replace Scripture citations if the cited scriptures in the vernacular language do not support the point being made in English. Replacing "read" scriptures requires approval via the Translator Help Desk unless the change involves simply the citation range. [19]

39. When adjusting the text to adapt it to the local field, care must be exercised so that facts are not distorted.

40. In rare instances, artwork may be unacceptable for some cultures. The Writing Committee will provide alternate artwork only if an image would endanger the safety of the brothers. [20]

Translation Questions

41. The Writing Committee handles the bulk of the translation questions. They are sent directly via WTS by the language overseer to the Translator Help Desk.

42. Before sending a translation question to the Translator Help Desk, the project team checks to see whether the question has already been submitted by another team. The language overseer reviews the question for clarity and completeness.

a. During the translation process, editorial, cultural, legal, organizational, linguistic, procedural, and other questions need to be resolved.

b. It is important that questions be submitted using WTS so that they can be registered in the central database for efficient handling.

c. The Translator Help Desk distributes answers to all translation teams.

d. Answers for one language may be applied to another language that has the same question. Project teams do not need to ask permission to apply such answers. [21]

e. For dated publications, questions should be submitted soon after Early mailing, if possible within one week. [22]

f. Teams should not be discouraged or hindered from sending questions.

Ensuring High-Quality Publications

43. The Governing Body desires that all our publications be accurate, easy to read, and clearly understood by common people.

a. The language overseer makes sure that each project team has the necessary training, experience, and spiritual maturity to produce a natural, accurate translation.

b. Each translation team should actively seek feedback from the audience for whom they translate.

c. Publications that are in the Teaching Toolbox or that target a specific audience, such as young ones, should be reviewed by a small group of selected publishers who are representative of the field and of an age appropriate to the publication. The members of the review panel should preferably use the target language as their first language.—See 8:17. [23]

d. It is necessary that project teams keep in touch with how people in the field use their language.

e. Personal preferences are not to be imposed on the project team. The language overseer has the responsibility to ensure that all project teams produce translations that are appealing and at the same time in harmony with the way the language is generally used.

f. Project teams must take care not to use out-of-date expressions that are not understood by the majority of the readers.

44. Branch Committees rarely need to override the translation decisions of teams that have been carefully selected and thoroughly trained.

Workflow

45. All procedures for translation, checking, proofreading, composition, mechanical checking, and audio recording should be performed as directed in Translation Workflow, Composition and Mechanical Checking Workflow, and Audio and Video Publications Workflow. All in the department, including part-time volunteers and others who might be helping remotely, should be familiar with the latest version of these documents, which are posted on PPD.

46. The language overseer ensures that every publication is clean and press-ready before printing files are mailed to the file maintenance branch or digital media files are uploaded. He does this by making sure that all the necessary steps in the workflow are properly followed and that all involved in the process are thoroughly trained. Once the text leaves the translators for final composition, it should not be recalled for translation adjustments, except for changes needed because of correction notices. The goal is to send to the printing branch press-ready materials that can be printed without further correction. In exceptional cases, with approval from the Publishing Committee, publications may be printed locally. Audio publications are usually recorded locally.

47. Printing branches do not proofread or perform mechanical checks on publications they print for other branches. The printing branch may make necessary adjustments to the publishers' page to meet local legal requirements.

Office Equipment

48. Translators need a quiet office environment. Project teams should have sufficient office space to work without disturbing others. Such office space can be arranged in a variety of locations, including remote translation offices, Assembly Halls, Kingdom Halls, or other suitable facilities, depending on local circumstances. Everyone in the department should have:

- A suitable desk and comfortable chair
- Adequate lighting
- Good ventilation
- A computer as specified by the WHQ Computer Department

All requests for equipment to translate publications—whether in printed, electronic, audio, or video format—should be submitted to the Writing Committee. The Writing Committee coordinates requests for equipment and facilities with the Publishing Committee, the WHQ Computer Department, MEPS Programming, and the Worldwide Design/Construction Department.

49. Reference Materials: All translators should have ready access to reference works that are frequently needed. The following is a partial list:

- Standard vernacular Bible(s)
- The latest electronic English dictionaries
- An up-to-date English-vernacular dictionary
- Target-language grammar books and dictionaries
- The revised English New World Translation (2013 Edition)
- Watchtower Research (English, plus vernacular library synchronized)
- The research library for translators, which should be updated regularly
- A dictionary of English idioms
- A team dictionary [24]
- Where possible and relatively economical, translators should have Internet access on their computer. [25]

50. All members of the department should have full access to guidelines, translation training material, and correspondence that apply to their work. To this end, make sure that the members of the department including part-time volunteers are added to the role groups that correspond to their assignments so as to have access to PPD where possible.

51. Standards Manual: All languages should endeavor to compile a Standards Manual for the target language that sets out grammar rules and style guidelines. It will differ from the English Standards Manual.

52. Confidentiality: Translators must keep confidential what is being translated and who works on each publication. The following materials are confidential and are strictly for the use of the Translation Department:

- Publications being translated
- Correction notices
- Translator comments
- Translator Help Desk questions and answers
- Research information
- Training materials
- Information found on PPD pages

53. The above items are not for personal use and should not be distributed outside of the department. Every precaution should be taken to make sure that confidential material, either on paper or by electronic means, is not divulged to and cannot be accessed by anyone who is not authorized. Failure to comply with these guidelines could lead to the termination of one's Bethel service.

54. All members of the Translation Department, including part-time volunteers, must sign the Watchtower Information Resources Confidentiality Affirmation Statement and Acknowledgment of Use of Work Software before they start to work in the department.

TRANSLATION ORGANIZATION

55. The following functions are necessary:

- Translation overseer (and assistant[s] if needed)
- Language overseer(s)
- Team secretary(ies)
- Translation project team(s)
- Technical support (production coordinator, compositors, digital publishers, computer support, audio technicians) [26]

Note: Translators serving Service Department, Legal Department, and Printery needs are part of their respective departments and not part of the Translation Department.

Translation Overseer

56. He supervises the Translation Department and usually serves on the Branch Committee. He cares for the following matters: the size of translation teams (number of full-time and part-time personnel), offices (recommends where they are located and what type of facilities are used), language needs (sign language, Braille, website, composition, digital publishing, audio recording), training (procedures, techniques, production), and the needs of all translation personnel. Although it is preferable, it is not a requirement that the translation overseer have translation experience. However, he must be up-to-date with translation guidelines, translation techniques, production workflow, and be thoroughly familiar with the circumstances and needs of the languages under his oversight. If his workload is too heavy, an assistant(s) may be appointed to help him. The assistant should be a brother who is familiar with translation work, is reliable, and responds in a timely manner to the needs of the translation teams. The translation overseer cooperates with the language overseers to ensure that schedules are met and that directives from the Branch Committee and the Governing Body are implemented. Capable language overseers may be used as assistants to the translation overseer. [27]

Language Overseer

57. He works under the direction of the translation overseer. The language overseer should have translation experience. He must speak the language well (ideally a native speaker), understand translation principles, have good oversight skills, and be able to organize the work efficiently. He must be able to organize personnel in a productive way, that is, to combine full-time personnel and part-time volunteers in an optimum manner. He must be communicative, loving, and kind. When a temporary team is formed, a trainer works with the team. [28]

58. Responsibilities: Each language overseer keeps the translation overseer informed of personnel needs and translation issues that require handling by the Branch Committee.

- His primary assignment is to ensure that the spiritual food is translated in an accurate, clear, and understandable way.
- His role is not simply administrative; it is a full-time assignment requiring interaction with the project teams on a daily basis. To facilitate such communication, his office should be located near most of the project teams.

- He thoroughly understands the translation process as set forth by the Writing Committee, and he is thoroughly familiar with translation principles and procedures.
- He does not institute his own workflow procedures.
- He ensures that proper procedures are followed when assigning responsibilities to Translation Department personnel.
- He assigns work to the project teams.
- He is responsible for ongoing translation training.
- He should be sensitive to direction and feedback from his oversight and the field, and he should be able to give clear direction.
- He should always be on the lookout for prospective translators who may serve either full-time or part-time.
- He should have access to MDS and PPD, as well as be given access to this chapter of Branch Organization.
- At times, he will participate in project-team meetings while translation is being done in order to ensure that the team functions well and is following proper procedures.

Substitute Language Overseer

59. A brother on one of the project teams should be trained to substitute as language overseer when the overseer is ill, away, or otherwise unavailable. This is not an extra position added to the department, as this brother is a member of one of the project teams.

60. The language overseer keeps his substitute fully informed of all matters concerning the department so that he will be able to replace the overseer seamlessly when circumstances require it. The substitute has access to MDS and PPD, just as the overseer has. He is authorized to make decisions in the absence of the language overseer.

Production Coordinator

61. He coordinates technical work assignments for larger teams, including downloading and uploading materials, composition, computer support, digital publishing, JW Broadcasting, JW Library, Watchtower Library, Watchtower ONLINE LIBRARY, audio recordings, and other work that does not involve translation. He establishes, monitors, and follows up with production schedules. In places where the RTO arrangements have been simplified, the language overseer and the production coordinator will administer all activities at the RTO.[29]

Team Secretary

62. This brother is well-organized and must be able to keep track of translation files, schedules, and correspondence.

- The secretary should be capable of communicating clearly in written correspondence.
- This assignment requires some skill in organizing and maintaining accurate electronic files.
- If a brother is not available, a sister may be assigned as secretary.

63. Responsibilities: The team secretary may assist with downloading and organizing electronic source materials from MDS, updating team dictionaries, backing up publications, sending completed materials to the printing branch, and scheduling, as well as keeping track of other correspondence.

64. At least one other person in the department should know the basic functions of the secretary. He or she should be kept up-to-date with procedures so as to be able to replace the secretary on short notice if necessary.

Project Teams

65. A project team is made up of three members who perform the roles of translator, checker, and proofreader. A detailed description of the various responsibilities of each member is presented in the Translation Workflow document. It is not necessary that all the members of the project team be full-time members of the department. Because of circumstances and at the discretion of the language overseer, a team might function with only two members for a short period of time. This might be due to sickness, vacation, or leave of absence, or it might be that one member of a project team is asked to help another team temporarily, such as when working with part-time volunteers.

66. Responsibilities: Working as a team of three, the team translates, checks, and proofreads its own work. It is therefore a requirement that the team members be able to work cooperatively in a team setting.

- Although the project team translates, checks, and proofreads together, each member performs a specific function in the process.
- Each member must have a good command of his or her own language, and at least two members of the team must clearly understand the source language. It is not expected that one individual will have all the skills needed to translate, check, and proofread.
- The project team is also responsible for the audio recording of the publications it translates. [30]
- Each project requires different skill levels. Select individuals who will fit into a project team according to their skill level.
- Sisters can be used for most translation assignments, including the Bible.
- Whatever the translation assignment, each member of the project team must have a thorough understanding of Scriptural truth so that accurate and faithful translations can be produced.

67. It is expected that the cooperative translation process, as set forth in the Translation Workflow document, will be followed by the project team.

68. It is recommended that the project team members attend congregations that have meetings in their language and are using the target-language literature. This enables them to keep up-to-date with the language. It also means that they will personally use the target-language literature in the field.

69. Because brothers have the responsibility to teach in the congregation, at least one brother, preferably an elder, should work on each project team if at all possible. Branch Committees should search for qualified brothers who can be assigned to serve on project teams.

Technical Support

70. Composition: The compositor must be familiar with computers, be a quick learner, and be attentive to detail. He or she should have an eye for making the text appealing in appearance and layout. The compositor needs to work in close cooperation with the translation team and be able to follow instructions carefully. Each compositor must have a trained backup, who may be one of the team members or someone from another language team.

71. Compositors are fully trained to use MEPS and other software to produce printed or digital publications. One compositor prepares early and final composition. A backup compositor may do publication checking of composed pages.

- Compositors may be given other work assignments within the department, such as digital publishing or Braille transcription. However, compositors and their backups need to work regularly in composition to be up-to-date with the latest styles for our publications.
- If you do not have an experienced compositor who can help provide training, please make your needs known to the Writing Committee.

72. Even when compositors are not physically near the translators, such as those working from a branch or a support RTO, they need to maintain good communication with the project teams.

73. Digital Publishing: Research libraries must be well-maintained and up-to-date. They are used to produce a variety of file formats for our website, the JW Library app, the Research Guide, Watchtower Library, Watchtower ONLINE LIBRARY, the Watch Tower Publications Index, and Braille transcription.

74. As more publications become available in a language, it will be necessary to have enough trained personnel on hand to care for digital publishing. Training material for this specialized work is available. If additional training is needed, please contact the Writing Committee.

75. Additional personnel is needed to produce the Watch Tower Publications Index. Those working on research libraries should not be assigned to work simultaneously on a translation project team.

76. Computer Support: The individual(s) providing computer support need to be familiar with WTS and other programs used by the translators. He may be a part-time volunteer but still must be reachable whenever the translators need help. He should be willing and helpful.

77. He is responsible to maintain the hardware and software used by the team. He ensures that the production files are backed up every day. He trains all personnel to use the translation programs provided by the organization. It is his responsibility to provide reliable computer support so that the team can be as productive as possible.

78. Audio/Video Production: This includes recording technicians and audio editors. They should be trained thoroughly on the equipment and software used to produce audio and video publications. In the case of sign languages, these technicians work on video production. [31]

Finding New Translators

79. Only baptized publishers in good standing are used as translators.

a. Check to see if there are full-time servants who may qualify.

b. Check new applications (A-8) for prospective translators.

c. Those interviewing the applicants for work in the Translation Department should understand the needs of the department.

d. When looking for part-time volunteers, give consideration to former full-time servants who have experience and skills in translation. [32]

Evaluating Prospective Translators

80. To evaluate prospective translators, have them work for short periods of time alongside experienced translators. [33]

a. The spirituality of the applicant must be carefully assessed. Humility and modesty are essential.

b. The prospective translator must be able to work in a team environment.

c. It is rare to find a translator who is skilled as a translator, checker, and proofreader. Usually, people have particular ability in only one of these areas.

d. The testing process should reveal whether an individual has potential in one of the areas. Training will be required, since it is not expected that fully qualified translators will be found. Individuals who have good basic skills can be trained.

e. When searching for sign-language translators, look for individuals who have keen insight into the way deaf people think and communicate.

Training New Translators

81. Potential translators who show aptitude during the initial evaluation may be invited for a longer training period.

- New translators may at times be assigned to work on a project team as a fourth member.
- After an initial training period, qualified translators meet with the language overseer to decide whether the trainee exhibits sufficient progress to warrant further training.
- If it becomes clear during the initial training period that the trainee does not have the necessary aptitude, the training should be stopped and he should go back to his previous assignment. It drains valuable resources to train someone who does not have the aptitude.
- Even though someone has good potential, it may take him or her 12 to 24 months to develop the needed skills in order to make a substantial contribution.

82. Training too many people at the same time places an unreasonable load on experienced personnel.

Replacement and Backup Personnel

83. When a member of the Translation Department needs to be replaced, it normally takes some years before the replacement reaches the desired level of proficiency. This can take a heavy toll on the other members of the department and on the quality of translation.

84. Even if the team already has its full complement of full-time servants, backup individuals, such as part-time commuters, should be given training. They may be available to help out on a temporary basis when a regular member of the team is sick or away. They would therefore be able to fill in should someone leave unexpectedly.

85. When a department member gets married and asks to remain at Bethel, the Branch Committee should seriously consider what can be done to retain him or her if the prospective mate qualifies for Bethel. It requires much training to replace any experienced translator. There must be available accommodations for the couple and a work assignment for the mate. Even if a translator leaves Bethel, the branch should consider whether it is possible to retain his or her services as a part-time volunteer. If there are plans to reassign a qualified technical support person (production coordinator, compositor, secretary, digital publisher, computer support, or audio technician), the Branch Committee must first notify the Personnel Committee; it may be that another branch needs that person's services.

86. All in the Translation Department need ongoing training, since it is important that they do not get into a rut and stagnate in their abilities.

- The language overseer and his substitute are responsible for directing and monitoring the training of every individual under their oversight. The production coordinator is responsible for organizing the training of technical support personnel.
- Please ensure that you select those who have specialized skills or, at least, have the aptitude to serve as compositors, translators, checkers, proofreaders, secretaries, computer support, digital publishers, audio technicians, coaches, or overseers.

- Project teams should keep up-to-date with their language, the source language and, more important, with the truth as revealed through the faithful and discreet slave.
- All must have direct access to the training materials provided by the Writing Committee.
- Compositors must stay up-to-date with the latest methods and style adjustments made by the Writing Committee.
- Special emphasis should be placed on providing training to part-time volunteers, even if they live far from the translation office or if they are used only occasionally. Their skills and abilities should be kept sharp and up-to-date. [34]

Training at Weekly Meetings

- Material from translation questions and answers, translator comments, current translation problems, policy letters from the Writing Committee, and Translating for Our Publications and its appendixes can be considered. [35]
- Letters and comments from the field on the quality of the vernacular translation, as well as feedback from field-testing translated publications, should be regularly discussed.
- Refresher courses on how to use WTS, research tools, and reference materials should be presented by experienced individuals.
- Suggestions that would improve work habits, productivity, accuracy, and so forth should be scheduled for general discussion.
- In addition to initial training, members of the department should be helped to stay up-to-date with the latest computer tools, policies, techniques, and directives from the Writing Committee.
- The language overseer should arrange that all, including part-time volunteers, receive adequate training to make sure that they are familiar with the latest techniques and tools.

87. Those working on the Watch Tower Publications Index, the Research Guide, and Watchtower Library need to review carefully all aspects of their work for every new edition they produce.

Training Resources

88. The Writing Committee arranges for training on translation techniques, digital publishing, workflow, composition, audio recording, and organizing the department. The Branch Committee may ask the Writing Committee to provide this or other specialized training. The Writing Committee arranges training for new translation teams and for Bible projects.

REMOTE TRANSLATION OFFICES (RTOs)

89. Ideally, a translation team should be situated where the translators can attend meetings in their language, where they are exposed to that language, and where support by part-time commuters can be provided. Temporary teams and languages with only one or two project teams do not always require full-time secretarial or technical support personnel on-site. Depending on the need, a branch office or another RTO can serve as a support location. For example, a support RTO can provide secretarial work, composition, digital publishing, audio editing, computer support, or a combination of these, for a number of RTOs. For assistance on how to organize multiple RTOs or how to manage RTO facilities and personnel, contact the Writing Committee. When considering facilities for RTOs, consult the Remote Translation Office Facility Guidelines (DC-15). [36]

Remote Translation Office Organization

90. The Branch Committee should assign a qualified elder in each RTO to serve as a language overseer and another as a production coordinator. They should ensure that the needs of the translators are cared for so that the translators are able to focus on their work and not be unnecessarily distracted by nontranslation activities. The language overseer and the production coordinator ensure that the work at the RTO is well-organized. The Local Design/Construction Department is responsible for assigning someone to care for maintenance of the facility. [37]

Part-Time Volunteers

91. Part-time volunteers, often regular pioneers, may help with the translation work done at an RTO by serving as part-time commuters (BBV) or remote volunteers (BRV) on an ongoing basis.

Full-Time Servants

92. The branch cares for the housing needs of full-time servants at the RTO. Whenever a recommendation is made to the Personnel Committee for someone to serve as a full-time commuter (BBL), the branch should include a recommendation for an allowance that is enough to cover housing, meals that are not provided, transportation, and personal expenses.

Spiritual Programs

93. Ensure that all the Bethel spiritual programs are provided at the RTO. Morning worship and the Bethel family Watchtower Study should be conducted regularly. Where possible, RTOs can be tied in with the branch office for these programs.—See 7:94-96.

Priority List Guidelines

The information below will help clarify the chart "How to Identify Language Needs." These guidelines are provided to help you decide what publications may be requested for every printed and audio language that you translate. Separate information is provided about sign-language translation.

Please do not make a list of all languages in your branch territory with the goal of providing literature in each language. Rather, let the field determine in which language publications are needed and what is needed. Each language group has its own unique needs. For example, some languages need only audio publications, while others additionally need printed publications. Also, some languages need only publications for field service, while others also need publications for meetings. These guidelines will help you balance literacy, education levels, language needs of individuals, priorities for the ministry, priorities for meetings, and several other factors. Focus on languages where people want to learn the truth in their language and where our publishers are getting results in the field.

The priority list is divided into the following five groups:

- Group 1: Publications to introduce people to the good news and to invite them to Public Meetings
- Group 2: Publications used to conduct Bible studies and direct students to Jehovah's organization
- Group 3: Publications to deepen people's love for God and assist them to make a dedication
- Group 4: Publications to strengthen the congregations and help the brothers grow to maturity
- Group 5: Deeper study books and the Bible

Explanation of the questions at the top of the chart

1. Can most benefit from another language?

Some language groups are familiar with the main language of the country, which they may learn at school, or with a lingua franca that they use to communicate with people from other language groups. Although they use their own language when conversing with each other, they can easily use publications in another language for reading and during meetings.

2. How many can read their own language?

Many individuals in some language groups cannot read at all. Also, some language groups use their own language when conversing with each other, but they prefer to use the "school language" for reading. This question is to determine whether the majority of speakers of that language can read or not, and thus whether we need to provide audio publications. It is important to recognize that some languages will never need any printed publications, but they will need audio publications.

3. Are there congregations in this language?

If there is very little response from a language field and there are no congregations in that language field, we will provide minimal material.

Priority Lists

Every language has its own priority list (A, B, C, D, E, F, G, or H) that is determined by a variety of circumstances. Here is a brief explanation of each of these priority lists:

Priority A: This language group needs all publications (audio, video, print). This language may have thousands of publishers, many congregations, and circuits. The publishers are readers, and the majority are completely dependent on publications in this language.

Priority B: This is a new language field. No congregations have been formed. Only basic publications for the field are needed. If this field remains unresponsive, very few publications need to be provided.

Priority C: The publishers and public do not read their own language. This is an audio-only language.

Priority D: We are just starting to cultivate this field, and there are no congregations. This is an audio-only language.

Priority E: Even though they are literate in their own language, this language group is not strictly dependent on their own language for spiritual food. They can comfortably use publications in another language for meetings. (For example, language groups that are fluent with the official language of the country, such as Spanish, Swahili, or French.) However, if there are many established congregations and circuits, the Branch Committee should assess the situation and decide whether to recommend publications in the language.

Priority F: This language group is not strictly dependent on their own language. There are no congregations. We are just starting to cultivate this field. They are quite comfortable with publications in another language. At this point it is not necessary to provide publications for meetings in this language.

Priority G: Few can read their own language, but they can read printed literature in another language. There are few or no secular printed publications in this language, and/or illiteracy rates are high in the field. Publishers need audio publications for the ministry. Although there are many congregations using this language for the ministry, they use printed publications of another language during the meetings.

Priority H: People of this language group cannot read their own language. No congregations have been established. They need only a few audio publications for the ministry.

What Publications to Translate

Translation in new languages starts from the top of the list. Generally, most of the publications in Groups 1-3 will be translated, but it is not necessary to translate all the publications of a group at once. Months might elapse between translation sessions of part-time translators to allow the field to respond. Temporary translation teams convene to translate the next publications on the priority list only when the field provides sufficient evidence that additional translation is needed.

Translation Personnel

- Only part-time volunteers are used to translate the publications in Groups 1-3.

- Although permanent translation teams are formed according to the number of publishers, not more than one new team is formed at a time.

First Translation Effort

Candidates with some potential to translate are invited to convene at a facility close to where they live, such as a Kingdom Hall, Assembly Hall, RTO of another language, branch office, or another available facility. The branch sends an experienced trainer who teaches them how to translate, field-test, and record basic publications. After three weeks or so, when the project is completed, the candidates return to the field and the translated publications are produced and used in the ministry as directed by the Service Department.

Before recommending that additional publications be translated, the Service Department should request from the circuit overseers answers to the following questions and then pass on the reports of the circuit overseers to the Branch Committee:

- What is the response from the field?
- How many Bible studies are being conducted using publications in this language?
- How many attended the Public Meetings that have been held in this language?
- Are the publishers who speak this language attending the meetings and preaching in the field, thus showing their commitment to develop this language field?

If the response is good, the Branch Committee may recommend translating additional publications.

Note: If there is no response from the field, do not continue to translate into that language.

Second Translation Effort

After obtaining permission to translate more publications, the branch sends a trainer who assembles candidates as done previously. He may train the same candidates or, if more suitable ones became available, he trains them and produces the approved publications in a few weeks. As before, the translators return to the field and the translated publications are used in the ministry as directed by the Service Department. Again, the Service Department will communicate with the circuit overseers to monitor the response in the field and will pass on the reports of the circuit overseers to the Branch Committee.

Further Translation Efforts

Depending on the proficiency of the translators, the response from the field, and the availability of translators, the trainer may convene the part-time candidates after the branch obtains permission to produce additional publications. After two or three translation cycles, the following questions need to be answered to determine whether translation should continue:

- How many Bible studies are being conducted?
- Are students progressing to baptism?
- How many meetings are regularly conducted, and how regularly do the students attend meetings?

Note: If there is limited response from the field, do not continue to translate into that language.

If the response from the field is good, the Branch Committee should recommend that publications that can assist people to progress toward baptism be translated.

If brochures are translated, only one brochure at a time should be translated. Afterwards, the team members should return to the field. By that time, the trainer should have a good idea of the potential of the part-time translators.

Where practical, and if there is a demand, more than one team of part-time translators can work on brochures. If there are no part-time volunteers available, translation will be suspended until such time as they are available.

Note: The Teach Us book does not have to be translated in one sitting. It may be translated chapter by chapter as brochures, or the summary sheets can be translated separately. Photocopies of the translated materials can be made locally and used until the whole book is translated.

Note: None of the part-time volunteers will work permanently in translation. When they complete a project, they return to the field and may be invited to convene again some time later.

As the field grows to more than 100 publishers and more publications are provided, a permanent team may need to be appointed to translate dated publications, such as the Life and Ministry Meeting Workbook and the study edition of The Watchtower.

Permanent Teams

Appointing a permanent team is a major step for a language. Before recommending translation of dated publications, please answer the following questions:

- Does the language have a considerable number of congregations needing literature for the meetings?
- What evidence convinces you that the language group needs the study edition of The Watchtower in its language?
- Are the ones attending the meetings completely dependent on the literature in their language in order to prepare for meetings and to have a meaningful share in the meetings?

When a permanent translation project team is formed, the team will still operate from the Kingdom Hall or other available facility. The permanent team can be supplemented with part-time volunteers, according to their availability and circumstances.

The housing and working quarters of permanent teams are provided according to the guidelines provided by the Worldwide Design/Construction Department.

PROVISIONS FOR MEMBERS OF THE WORLDWIDE ORDER

1. This chapter outlines for Branch Committees the arrangements that should be followed in caring for the needs of special full-time servants, all of whom are members of the Worldwide Order. (See 3:78-85.) In this chapter, reference to Bethel family members includes regular, temporary, and expatriate members of the Bethel family. This also includes full-time commuters and remote servants, even though they are not considered to be members of the Bethel family. Reference to circuit overseers includes their wives and field instructors. Reference to field missionaries includes temporary field missionaries. Reference to special pioneers includes temporary and infirm special pioneers. For a listing of full-time service enrollments, see Chart 9.2.

AGED AND INFIRM

2. General Guidelines: The Branch Committee is to be concerned with those who are aged and infirm and have served for decades in special full-time service. Therefore, practical arrangements are made to care for the physical needs of these brothers and sisters who are members of the Worldwide Order. The goal is, not to provide the same services for the care of elderly special full-time servants in every country, but to ensure that appropriate arrangements are in place to provide them with reasonable care.—Ps. 71:9.

3. Assembly Hall Servants and Bible School Facility Servants: These servants will discontinue their assignment on August 31 of the service year during which they reach 70 years of age. Consideration may be given to assigning the brother and, if married, his wife to serve as special pioneers. (See 6:113.) In an exceptional circumstance, a servant who is over this age may still have the experience, skills, and strength to continue caring properly for the heavy load of responsibility that goes with operating and maintaining a theocratic facility. Therefore, where warranted, you may request approval from the Personnel Committee for an exception.

4. Bethel Family Members: Members of the Bethel family should be given meaningful work assignments according to their abilities and individual circumstances. They should not be given work to do that does not really need to be done. All Bethel family members who are 70 years of age or older may take up to one day off each week for the field ministry or for personal use, if they desire to do so. The time may be taken as one full day or as two half days within the week and may be used in conjunction with personal time away. The Bethel family member should notify his overseer when he will be away, but no permission is needed from oversight for this arrangement. Moreover, there is no objection to a married Bethel family member who is 70 years of age or older sharing half of his day off with his mate who is younger than 70 years of age. In that case, the married couple should use the half day off work during the same time period. For example, a husband who is 72 years of age may choose to give half of his day off to his wife who is 68 years of age. However, the couple's time off from work must coincide, whether it is taken on a weekday morning or a weekday afternoon. It is not permissible for a married Bethel family member who is 70 years of age or older to give the entire day off to his mate who is younger than 70 years of age.

5. If they feel it necessary, brothers who are 70 years of age and older and sisters 50 years of age and older serving either as Bethel family members or as full-time commuters may leave their place of work before the Bethel workday officially ends in order to rest or to care for other personal matters. Or such older members may prefer to rest or care for personal matters after the noon meal before returning to work. It is left to the individual to determine how this personal time is used. This is done in the spirit of 1 Thessalonians 5: 12, 13.

6. Circuit Overseers: Circuit overseers will discontinue their assignment on August 31 of the service year during which they reach 70 years of age. Consideration may be given to transferring the brother and his wife, if married, to serve as special pioneers.—See 6:113.

7. If a circuit overseer who is not yet 70 years of age is experiencing challenges because of age, chronic health problems, or other circumstances, the Service Department should review the situation. If he is a longtime special full-time servant, an encouraging letter can be sent acknowledging his challenges along with the assurance that he will be assisted with his needs if he transfers from the circuit work. This may move him to request an adjustment in his service. He should be invited to contact the Service Department for direction. If the circuit overseer is not inclined to discontinue, it may be good to address the matter during the next scheduled shepherding visit by an experienced circuit overseer or by a branch representative. If the circuit overseer accedes and decides to discontinue, he should submit his decision in writing. The Branch Committee will review any recommendation from the Service Department regarding his future service, including possible appointment as a special pioneer. If the Branch Committee approves the recommendation, the Service Department will write the circuit overseer a warm, encouraging letter acknowledging his many years of faithful service and outlining any arrangements that have been made for him and his wife.—See 2:30.

8. In cases where the circuit overseer feels strongly about remaining in the work even though this would prove detrimental to his health, the Service Department should present the matter to the Branch Committee. If it agrees, the Branch Committee should submit its recommendation for deletion to the Governing Body. (See 2:30.) If the Governing Body determines that the circuit overseer should discontinue, the Branch Committee may direct that the Service Department draft a letter for the Branch Committee's review, empathizing with his struggles and informing him of the decision made that is in his best interests and those of the congregations. The letter would provide information about a new assignment and arrangements in place that will help him and his wife in connection with the transition.

9. When a circuit overseer with less than 25 years of special full-time service needs to discontinue his service, perhaps to care for parents or because of a health problem afflicting him or his wife or because of pregnancy, he should notify the Service Department. The Service Department could recommend to the Branch Committee that the circuit overseer and his wife, if married, be encouraged to serve as regular pioneers and that consideration be given to offering them some transitional financial assistance.—See 9:37.

10. Construction Servants: The general age limit for construction servants is 55 years of age. To assist with larger organizational construction projects, consideration may also be given to having those who are over the age of 55 serve for one or more years or for the duration of the project. Due to the nature of construction, servants who are no longer able to perform the work should be reassigned to another avenue of service or to the field. At the latest, these servants will discontinue their assignment on August 31 of the service year during which they reach 70 years of age.

11. Field Missionaries and Special Pioneers: At times, field missionaries and special pioneers who have served faithfully for decades begin to experience chronic health problems or the limitations of old age or disease. While there is no arrangement to provide housing and long-term care for such individuals at Bethel, the Branch Committee will take the lead in thoroughly investigating other options with the objective of providing an individual with personal and/or medical care while he remains in his field assignment. For example, could the local congregation provide needed assistance? (Mark 10:28-30) Are qualified local publishers or pioneers with medical training and experience available to assist? (1 Thess. 5:14) In some cases, consideration could be given to hiring a publisher or a pioneer to care for the long-term needs of the brother or sister. If a pioneer is involved, the branch may direct the congregation elders to show the pioneer consideration regarding his or her annual hour requirement. Consideration could be given to hiring nurse's aides to care for the person in his field assignment. Such aides do not have to be Jehovah's Witnesses. Simply put, the Branch Committee should consider what can be done locally, in the field, to meet the long-term needs of the elderly field missionaries and special pioneers in the best way possible. (Eccl. 5:18) Each case needs to be carefully reviewed and investigated before a recommendation to hire supplemental nursing care is sent to the Service Committee.—See 9:41, 54b.

12. In some cases, a longtime field missionary may request to live closer to fleshly or to spiritual family members who are eager to care for his physical or medical needs; this is appropriate and appreciated. (1 Tim. 5:3, 4) However, what if long-term specialized health care cannot be provided in the foreign assignment and the field missionary has no family members available to assist him? In such cases, thorough consideration will be given by the Service Committee to transferring the field missionary to another country, such as his home country, where health care can be provided while he serves in the field. As noted above, it may be possible to utilize the services of qualified brothers and sisters in the field who can provide the personal assistance that is needed. In an exceptional case that seems to necessitate transferring a field missionary to Bethel for long-term health care, the Governing Body will need to be consulted.

ALLOWANCES

13. General Guidelines: A person should be provided with his monthly allowance regardless of the time spent in the field service month by month and even when he takes personal time away, is on an approved leave of absence, or is sick, as long as he continues as a special full-time servant. Based on recommendations from the Branch Committee, the Publishing Committee approves the maximum amounts outlined on the Record of Allowances (A-29) form. One A-29 form is completed for each country where there are special full-time servants. The monthly allowances shown on the A-29 form include a personal and travel portion and, if applicable, a housing portion. The housing portion is based on two persons sharing housing and utility costs. Any adjustments to the rates, based on local circumstances and information in the Cost of Living Chart (A-40) or exceptions for high-rent areas, must be approved by the Publishing Committee. The Publishing Committee should be informed if local regulations require payment for social insurance, government pension payments, or personal tax. As an exception, recommendations for remote servants (BRS), full-time commuters (BBL), and full-time construction commuters (BCL) are approved by the Personnel Committee, using specific forms. Once approved, allowance amounts for each of these individuals, broken down into personal allowance, travel allowance, and housing allowance, should be added to the A-29 for reference only.

14. When someone from a branch is assigned to serve at another branch for longer than one full month, he may (if that is his desire) receive the allowance that is given in the branch where he is temporarily assigned. Otherwise, he may continue to receive for the first three months of his temporary stay the allowance he would be entitled to in his home country. After that, he should receive the allowance of the country where he is temporarily serving. His PEA would also be adjusted to the rate of the new branch beginning with the fourth month of his stay. There is generally no need to provide any AEA allowance to a visiting special full-time servant. This does not apply to a circuit overseer who visits congregations in countries other than his home country. He would continue to receive the allowance rates of his home country regardless of how much time he may spend in another branch territory.

15. In some countries, there are full-time members in a branch office who live outside with their families. Usually, these are translators, and special arrangements are made for them. They do not come under all the guidelines for full-time members of the Bethel family who live in the Bethel home. Their provisions are specially arranged by the branch with approval from the Publishing Committee.

16. Assembly Hall Servants: The branch should give special full-time servants who live and serve at an Assembly Hall an allowance equivalent to that received by members of the Bethel family in the branch territory where they are serving. Since most Assembly Hall servants must also prepare most of their meals for themselves and care for personal needs (haircuts, dry cleaning, alterations, and so forth), the branch will provide an appropriate amount for these expenses, based on local circumstances.

17. Bethel Family Members: The basic Bethel monthly allowance is to help care for travel to meetings and for the ministry and to assist with basic living necessities that are not provided by the branch. It is calculated based on local circumstances and information in the Cost of Living Chart (A-40).

18. Bible School Facility Servants and Construction Servants: These servants receive an allowance equivalent to the allowance of Bethel family members in the country where they are assigned. Depending on local circumstances, reimbursements for expenses not typically accrued by Bethel family members may be provided. In addition to a monthly allowance, full-time construction commuters (BCL) may receive a travel and housing allowance similar to full-time Bethel commuters (BBL).

19. Circuit Overseers: The monthly allowance generally includes only the personal allowance for the circuit overseer and his wife, if married. The travel and housing portions are covered by the congregations if they are able to do so. If not, the circuit overseer can submit to the branch office whatever portion cannot be covered by the congregations.—tg chap. 9.

20. If a newly appointed circuit overseer needs additional financial support while waiting for a permanent circuit assignment, the Branch Committee may increase his allowance to assist with necessary living expenses. The total amount should not exceed the maximum monthly allowance provided to special pioneers in that country.—See 6:133.

21. If the branch office has an arrangement to assist circuit overseers with transportation, such as by providing a motorcycle or a vehicle, this provision would be available from the time that the circuit overseer takes up a permanent circuit assignment.

22. Field Missionaries: In addition to the monthly personal allowance, field missionaries may be given a travel allowance. Please see 9:54 to determine if a housing allowance is needed to cover the cost of rental and utilities.

23. Special Pioneers: In addition to the monthly personal allowance, special pioneers may be given a travel and housing allowance. The housing allowance may be given according to the average of the actual amount they pay for housing and utilities up to the maximum shown on the Record of Allowances (A-29) form. Any exceptions for high-rent areas should be referred to the Publishing Committee. If local laws permit, special pioneers may supplement their monthly allowance by engaging in some limited secular work as long as it does not interfere with their meeting the monthly hour requirement and fulfilling their congregation responsibilities. Allowance amounts are given regardless of the time spent in the field service each month and should be distributed at the end of each month without waiting for the monthly service report.

AUTOMOBILE EXPENSE ACCOUNT (AEA)

24. General Guidelines: When a Branch Committee sees the need, it can request approval from the Publishing Committee to set up an Automobile Expense Account (AEA). This is an additional travel allowance for qualifying vehicle or motorcycle owners serving as Assembly Hall servants, Bethel family members, Bible school facility servants, construction servants, field missionaries, or special pioneers. Approval from the Publishing Committee is required before granting any other financial assistance for travel to meet a local need.—See 9:38.

25. To qualify for AEA, an individual must have a properly licensed vehicle or motorcycle and a valid driver's license. Requests for credit to attend meetings should be based on the distance to the individual's assigned congregation. Other requests may include miles (or kilometers) traveled to elders' meetings, field service, shepherding calls, and assigned circuit assemblies with his congregation. Special full-time servants may request credit for the mileage involved for travel to attend one of the organization's schools. Privately arranged travel to give talks in other congregations or to assist other congregations with Kingdom Hall maintenance or construction or to attend regional conventions or to shop or visit friends would not be covered. AEA should not be requested for a special full-time servant to attend a regional convention except in the case of missionaries and special pioneers.—See 9:28.

26. Each individual will need to keep a daily and monthly record of congregation mileage activity in order to submit periodic requests for a credit of the AEA mileage provision. AEA requests should be submitted for the month that the congregation activity occurred instead of grouping multiple months together on one request. December's AEA request should be submitted no later than January 25 of the following year. AEA allowances may not be carried over from one calendar year to the next. The credit is based on current fuel prices in various regions or countries under the branch as determined by the Branch Committee. A separate rate is generally needed for different fuel types, such as diesel and regular grade gasoline. The formula for calculating the AEA credit is as follows: qualifying miles (or kilometers) driven multiplied by the current fuel price (as determined by the Branch Committee), divided by the average miles per gallon (or average kilometers per liter) of the registered vehicle. A reasonable annual limit should be established by each branch for various categories of service. Requests for AEA credit may be submitted by filling out the Personal Financial Request (TO-4) or using electronic methods supported by headquarters.

27. Bethel Family Members: For Bethel family members, the cost of operating a vehicle is often supported by contributions from passengers. Those who do not have vehicles should use the portion of their basic monthly allowance that is designated for travel to help cover transportation costs by contributing to the owner of the vehicle in which they ride. Therefore, Bethel family members will need to be informed if the travel portion of the allowance is adjusted. To reduce costs, Bethel family members are encouraged to carpool wherever possible.

28. Missionaries and Special Pioneers: The AEA provision may also be requested by missionaries and special pioneers to cover fuel costs for travel to their assigned regional convention. —See 9:25.

EXPENSES

29. Circuit Overseer's Vehicle: Congregations and circuits are encouraged to care for the expense of obtaining and maintaining vehicles for the circuit overseers, which would include tires, repairs, insurance, license, and so forth. In some branches, the Publishing Committee approves a branch-managed Circuit Overseer Vehicle Arrangement (COVA) that is funded by congregations passing monthly resolutions to the Circuit Overseer Assistance Arrangement (COAA). Where the COVA is not approved, a local circuit may choose to provide a vehicle. Usually, major expenses for such a vehicle would be submitted to the circuit when convenient rather than to an individual congregation. However, if some congregations and circuits do not have the resources to cover such expenses, the branch may be asked to assist with these. This applies to any personally owned vehicle used in the circuit work if the brother is in need of assistance to keep his vehicle operating. Requests to the branch for expenses over USD 1,000 should be submitted to the Publishing Committee on a Nonliterature Branch Request with an explanation for consideration. (Some branches were given a higher figure.) If a circuit overseer eventually needs a replacement vehicle, perhaps the circuit will be in a position to help in this regard.—See 9:36.

30. Funeral: The Branch Committee may approve the cost of a modest funeral, according to local circumstances, for a special full-time servant. Please write to the Publishing Committee for additional approval if the cost will exceed the local approval threshold. The branch office should take a special interest in comforting the surviving mate and seeing to his or her needs. If the Branch Committee has questions regarding the future service assignment for a special full-time servant who has been recently widowed, a recommendation should be sent to the appropriate Governing Body committee.

31. Personal Taxes and Insurance: Individual income taxes collected by the government on income as well as any kind of compulsory insurance (except for health) that applies to members of the Bethel family and others in special full-time service in the country should be included in the calculation of allowances. However, the individuals are responsible to make the actual payments.

32. We do not generally carry insurance on personal cars or property for members of the Bethel family or others in special full-time service. Any cost for such insurance is covered by the individuals. The organization does not accept responsibility for the loss of personal things kept by members of the Bethel family. However, exceptions may be made on the recommendation of the Branch Committee to help those in special full-time service cover losses of essential personal items because of robbery, warfare, or natural disasters. It is appropriate to counsel those serving in potentially dangerous areas not to keep unnecessary items of value in the home, apart from what is needed for the ministry or what makes them feel at home in their assignment. Missionaries should not expect compensation for the loss of vehicles, jewelry, and other such items. Additionally, the branch is encouraged to instruct the missionaries to be modest in what replacement items they obtain.

33. Shipping and Moving: When a special full-time servant is approved to transfer to a new or temporary assignment, the branch office is authorized to spend up to USD 3,000 per person to cover shipping expenses (including import duties) associated with shipping his basic personal belongings. In most lands, such expenses would normally be far less than USD 3,000 per person. (With regard to construction servants, see the brochure Continue to Put Your Heart Into the Work.) Any request that exceeds this spending limit or any request to ship a personal motorized vehicle should be referred to the appropriate Governing Body committee for approval. If approval is given to ship a personal vehicle, the special full-time servant will generally be responsible for paying any import duty fees related to the vehicle shipment. Please see the Branch Accounting Department Guidelines (badg) to confirm when assistance can be provided for losses related to shipments of personal items in connection with theocratic assignments.

34. Since many countries have additional requirements for exporting and importing personal effects, the exporting branch should notify the importing branch before the effects are shipped and request its comments and direction.

35. If it is necessary for the branch office to move a field missionary or special pioneer to a new congregation assignment, the branch should cover the travel expenses involved. It is usually best to select a territory that is not too distant from his current assignment in order to avoid unnecessary expenses. The branch is also authorized to assist a departing missionary with the travel and shipping expenses involved in his departure. In exceptional cases and if requested, there may be a need for newly appointed temporary special pioneers to be assisted with their travel expenses. For example, such an individual may be assigned to another country in the branch territory. However, keep in mind that applicants to the School for Kingdom Evangelizers who indicate their willingness to accept an assignment in another country are often prepared to cover the costs associated with accepting such an assignment.—Luke 14:28.

36. As outlined in Circuit Overseer Guidelines (tg), a circuit overseer is welcome to submit to the branch office reasonable travel expenses associated with moving for reimbursement if the elders in the circuit do not offer to assist. (See 9:29, 39.) Since circumstances may vary in each country and region within the branch territory, the Branch Committee should provide guidelines for the Service Department so that these matters are handled kindly and reasonably. For example, in lands where the circuit overseer uses a vehicle to move to his new assignment, the organization is pleased to cover the cost of fuel and tolls. If food and lodging expenses are incurred during the move, these may be covered. In some lands, air travel may be required if other modes of travel are not practical. If legal documentation will be needed for the circuit overseer and his wife to take up a new assignment, the branch should assist the circuit overseer with such matters. Consideration should always be given to each circuit overseer's circumstances, including age, health, marital status, and years in full-time service. (Gen. 33:14; Phil. 2:4) In all cases, the brothers at the branch should be kind, practical, reasonable, and as helpful as possible, especially when the move involves travel to a distant assignment.—Prov. 3:27; Phil. 4:5.

37. Transitional Financial Assistance: At the time that it is determined that an individual will discontinue special full-time service, the Branch Committee may see a need to provide the person, depending on his circumstances, with some transitional financial assistance. The amount is not to exceed the equivalent of a special pioneer's monthly allowance including the amount allowed for housing. The Branch Committee is authorized to grant up to three months of such transitional financial assistance. The funds may be given in one lump sum before the person's departure date from full-time service in order to avoid any legal issues. This arrangement is confidential and is not for the general information of those in special full-time service. It is not expected that the Branch Committee would need to extend this provision to every person departing special full-time service. If at the end of the three-month period there is an urgent need for transitional assistance to continue, the Branch Committee may consider approving up to three additional months. Beyond these two periods, the Branch Committee would need to provide a recommendation and detailed explanation to the appropriate Governing Body committee if further assistance were deemed necessary. If the branch office has an arrangement to provide basic health-care support to those in the Worldwide Order, the Branch Committee may feel that it is appropriate to allow the person to benefit from this arrangement also during the same period of time that he or she is granted the transitional financial assistance. A person is not expected to meet an hour requirement in the ministry in order to receive transitional financial assistance.—See 9:9, 48, 111-112.

38. Travel: A special full-time servant may inquire about the possibility of receiving some financial assistance to cover unusually high travel expenses (such as travel by bus or airplane) to attend his assigned circuit assembly, regional convention, or Kingdom Ministry School. (See 9:24-28.) Since video streaming and video recordings are practical alternatives, it would be a rare exception for the Branch Committee to approve such requests. Any unusual situations and recommendations should be submitted to the Publishing Committee. To benefit Bethel family members who are serving as translators but who are not living in an area where their language is regularly spoken, such as in the branch facility, the Branch Committee may approve up to USD 50 as an annual supplemental allowance to assist the translators to attend a convention in their language. Branch Committees should inform the Writing Committee of the total annual cost of this arrangement along with their comments and observations. To assist Bethel family members to attend their regional convention, the Branch Committee may recommend a modest supplemental allowance to the Publishing Committee. The amount would assist the individuals to get to the closest convention. If a Bethel family member chooses to travel to a farther regional convention, the difference would be at his own expense.

39. A circuit overseer is welcome to submit to the branch office reasonable travel expenses for reimbursement if the elders in the circuit do not offer to assist.—See 9:36.

HEALTH CARE

40. General Guidelines: While caring for personal health is primarily the responsibility of each member of the Worldwide Order, the Branch Committee should feel a keen desire to assist. Arrangements should be made for members to receive good-quality health care as close as possible to their assignment. This includes those with foreign enrollments. However, if good-quality care is not available locally or the cost is high, a special full-time servant may be approved for treatment in another country. Additionally, if an expatriate special full-time servant requests health care during a visit to his or her country of origin, this may be approved when the cost is reasonable. These requests and all exceptions to this policy should be submitted to the Global Health Care Office and will be considered on a case-by-case basis. For more information regarding health-care requests, see 5:37-38 and Health Care Guidelines (A-110).

41. Branch Committees should regularly evaluate local health-care arrangements to ensure that they are practical, reasonable, and considerate. Providing such care needs to be balanced with making wise use of dedicated funds. (See 9:11.) Local arrangements should be clearly communicated to all members who qualify for health-care assistance. The Global Health Care Office is available at any time to assist branches in developing or implementing local health-care arrangements.

42. Branch Committees should not discourage necessary spending for health care in an effort to stay within the branch's yearly operating budget. While members may choose to contribute to the worldwide work, in most cases they should not be expected to pay for health care.

43. Provisional Members of the Order: Provisional members may receive assistance from the branch to care for periodic health evaluations, diagnostic evaluations, minor illnesses, and medical emergencies.

44. Since provisional members of the Order serve on a trial basis, any serious health problems or preexisting conditions that prevent them from fulfilling the requirements of their assignment may result in the discontinuation of their membership in the Order.

45. Volunteer Members: Volunteer members are responsible for their own nonemergent health-care needs as well as expenses for treating preexisting conditions (e.g., prescription medication that they were previously taking, dental work, eye exams, surgery, and so forth).

46. Branch Committees may care for unforeseen health-care needs that arise during the course of the volunteer member's assignment (e.g., medication for malaria, antibiotics, and so forth), especially when they are work-related (e.g., emergency surgery because of an accident while working on branch property, and so forth). If the volunteer member has health insurance or if there are available government programs, it may be possible to recover some of the costs.

47. Transitioning Out of Special Full-Time Service: If there is a need, the branch may provide basic health care to an individual during the period of time that he is receiving some transitional financial assistance.

48. When appropriate, assistance may be provided to help a person who is transitioning out of special full-time service to apply for government health-care programs. Any health-care support provided during this time is subject to the same approvals as that provided for those in special full-time service.—See 9:37.

49. Reporting Deaths: The Service Committee should be informed immediately, by means of a numbered letter, of the death of any who serve with a field missionary enrollment. Similarly, the Personnel Committee should be informed immediately of the death of any who serve as a member of the Bethel family. If a member of the Bethel family who passes away formerly served as a field missionary, this should be clearly stated. When a special full-time servant with a design/construction enrollment passes away, the Worldwide Design/Construction Department (WDC) should be notified immediately, and a copy of the correspondence should be sent to the Personnel Committee. All death notifications should be sent by means of a brief memorandum or by completing the "Deletions" section on the appropriate personnel recommendation form. If the circumstances surrounding the death of a special full-time servant with a design/construction enrollment indicate that something more could have been done to prevent the death, whether through preventative measures or by means of better medical attention, the WDC will appreciate receiving the Branch Committee's valuable input. The Personnel Committee and the WDC are very interested in any new lessons that may be learned with regard to the physical care that is being provided to such servants. Of course, the same concerns apply to any special full-time servant, regardless of his or her enrollment.

SAFETY DURING EMERGENCIES

50. General Guidelines: The Branch Committee must take a special interest in the welfare of all those who are members of the Worldwide Order. If such emergencies as civil unrest, acts of terrorism, or war threaten their safety and well-being, the Branch Committee must be alert and quick to provide practical assistance and clear direction. If the Branch Committee determines that there is an urgent need to evacuate special full-time servants in foreign service to a safer location or to relocate them, the branch office should immediately contact the Coordinators' Committee by letter or by telephone and explain the situation, setting forth specific recommendations. The Coordinators' Committee will consult with the Personnel and Service committees and provide further direction. If it is not possible for the Branch Committee to communicate with the Coordinators' Committee, then the Branch Committee should do what is needed to protect the lives and safety of those in foreign service. A report on what transpired should be provided to the Coordinators' Committee as soon as possible. For these reasons, each branch office should have and periodically review an emergency action plan. (Prov. 21:5) The branch should maintain up-to-date contact information for all of those in special full-time service so that they can be reached quickly in an emergency. While some in foreign service may feel either that they should or that they should not relocate or evacuate, ultimately the decision is a personal one. No one should judge others in this regard. (Matt. 7:1; 10:23; Rom. 14:10, 19; Gal. 6:5) Nevertheless, in most cases, it is best that Christians quickly heed the warnings and direction issued by the secular authorities and the responsible elders during times of civil unrest or emergency.—Rom. 13:1; Heb. 13:17.

HOUSING

51. General Guidelines: Accommodations that are rented, purchased, or constructed for special full-time servants in the field should be modest while not compromising the health and safety of the occupants. When considering options, Branch Committees will need to take into account the standard of living in the area and not give the appearance of luxury or of special treatment. If it is determined that housing will be needed in a specific area for at least 10 to 15 years, and renting is not a viable option, the Branch Committee may request approval to purchase an existing residence or to build the needed accommodations. Branch Committees in developing lands may consider the construction of Kingdom Hall apartments with a maximum size of 32 to 42 square meters (350 to 450 sq ft). In other lands, Branch Committees may consider the construction of Kingdom Hall apartments with a maximum size of 32 to 60 square meters (350 to 650 sq ft). The layout should be based on standard plans provided by the Publishing Committee. When the branch office is considering renting or purchasing apartments, these maximum sizes should be used as a guideline instead of being applied as a rule.—See Field Residence Design/Construction Guidelines (DC-16) for additional direction.

52. Circuit Overseers: Accommodations for circuit overseers should be arranged by each circuit. (tg chap. 1) However, where the living conditions of the publishers are unsuitable to accommodate the circuit overseer and his wife, Branch Committees may arrange for a modest apartment to be rented, purchased, or constructed as noted in 9:51, 54.

53. Construction Servants: Modest and appropriate residences should be provided by staying with local brothers in their homes, in residences owned by the organization, in mobile accommodations (caravans and tents), or possibly in a rented home or apartment. Accommodations should be clean and provide privacy for study. For a married couple, additional privacy is needed.

54. Field Missionaries: Generally, branches should endeavor to house a field missionary couple or two single field missionaries in a modest apartment or house. (See 9:22.) Branch Committees will follow the guidelines and options below:

a. Field missionaries should be assigned to densely populated areas where their efforts may have a profound impact in stabilizing and strengthening preaching and congregation activities. (See 6:7.) After the Branch Committee has identified an area where field missionaries can be used effectively, a qualified brother should be assigned to research available housing options and the costs involved. This could include identifying Kingdom Hall apartments or apartments that local brothers are renting out. The Branch Committee should guide those who are assigned to research the matter so that the needs of the missionaries, such as safety, the distance to the territory, and the availability of public transportation, are kept in mind. Have in mind that some locations may be a little more costly but would allow the field missionaries to be more centrally located in their assigned territory. The Branch Committee, not the field missionaries, will make the final decision as to which accommodations should be rented.

b. Consider the health and safety of the field missionaries. Are apartments or small dwellings suitable for a couple available in a reasonably safe location? A larger apartment or home to house more than one couple would be recommended only when safety and/or health issues require it or when providing separate housing is considerably more costly. For example, an older single or widowed missionary sister may not need to be assisted by local publishers as outlined in 9:11. However, for her safety and peace of mind, it may be advisable for her to share accommodations with a younger missionary couple. Additionally, in some lands it would be very expensive to set up smaller missionary homes in areas where electricity, water, and other basic utilities are not available. Therefore, the Branch Committee should exercise good judgment when considering these factors.

c. The Branch Committee is authorized to spend up to USD 1,000 per month per couple for missionary accommodations. Please note that this approval limit includes the monthly cost of utilities. In most lands, a suitable apartment and utilities for two people would cost USD 200 to 500 per month. Higher expenditures would be viewed as quite exceptional and possibly extravagant in developing lands. This approval level on rental agreements has been established on the premise that the Branch Committee will be careful to ensure that field missionaries are located where they can accomplish the most good and where the cost of accommodations and utilities will not be prohibitive. If you need further direction on this matter, please write to the Publishing Committee. The branch office should care for the payment of rent and utilities and help the field missionaries handle any legal agreements that may be needed to secure accommodations. If local circumstances require paying the owner several months of rent up front, this may be done up to a maximum of one year's rental. Rental agreements that exceed USD 1,000 per month or USD 12,000 per year or recommendations that involve the construction of new missionary homes should be sent to the Publishing Committee. Clearly explain the needs, the options that have been considered, and the estimated cost for each option. If approval is given to investigate further, the matter will be referred to the Worldwide Design/Construction Department (WDC). Additionally, if it is concluded that a branch-owned missionary home should be used for some other purpose or sold, the recommendation should be sent to the WDC.

d. In cases where it might be less expensive for the individual renter to pay the rent instead of the organization doing so, the branch office may provide the missionary with the funds to cover the rent. As long as the monthly rent and utilities for field missionaries is less than USD 1,000 per month for two people, there is no need to show this on the Record of Allowances (A-29) form.

e. In the exceptional case that several missionaries are sharing a large home, the branch office may find it helpful to designate one of the missionaries as the home contact. It may also be practical for the branch office to provide funds for local expenses using an imprest fund. For details on establishing such a fund, see Branch Accounting Department Guidelines.

55. Branch Committees must be practical, kind, and generous in the supplying of suitable home equipment for the field missionaries. A standard approach will not work in all countries. Some field missionaries may have personal linens, furniture, and equipment that they want to use in their assignment. Newer missionaries may have very little and may need more assistance in obtaining these items. A rented apartment in one location may have heating, air conditioning, appliances, and access to laundry facilities. In other locations, the apartment may lack these provisions, and field missionaries will need to be provided with these basic necessities. The local situation and circumstances must be carefully considered. The branch office should avoid installing expensive equipment, such as water-filtration devices and backup electrical systems, in rented missionary homes. For rented accommodations, it is preferred that any additional equipment that the branch office obtains be limited to what is practical and what could easily be moved to another rented home. For example, while the branch office should not install expensive generators in a rented missionary home, a less-expensive portable generator that provides backup power for the refrigerator and air-conditioning may be obtained if needed. The same principle applies to other equipment, such as water filters. If there is a legitimate need for something beyond that, then please write to the Publishing Committee. If the Branch Committee feels that it is reasonable to provide Internet service for a missionary home and the missionaries agree to cover the monthly costs, it may submit the recommendation with the details to the Publishing Committee for consideration, explaining the cost of installation and the monthly cost per person.

56. Special Pioneers: In general, the branch should not rent, purchase, construct, or renovate accommodations for special pioneers. They should be encouraged to locate and arrange for their own housing. An appropriate housing allowance consistent with local costs should be provided. However, where existing accommodations are available and are no longer needed for field missionaries or circuit overseers, there is no objection to using such accommodations for special pioneers on a temporary basis.

MARRIAGE

57. Assembly Hall Servants, Bible School Facility Servants, and Construction Servants: Anyone who desires to marry and remain in special full-time service should make his or her request to the Branch Committee, regardless of the length of time he or she has served. The two desiring to marry should each complete an Application to Become a Member of the Worldwide Order (A-8). If the Branch Committee decides to recommend that the engaged couple serve as members of the Order following their marriage, a recommendation will be sent to the Worldwide Design/Construction Department (WDC) along with appropriate comments regarding the qualifications of the applicants and the need for their services. This should be done even if the mate will be replacing a servant who has departed or will soon be departing. However, if the Branch Committee does not recommend that the engaged couple serve as members of the Order following their marriage, it is not necessary to forward the recommendation to the WDC for approval. The Branch Committee may notify the couple accordingly. As a reminder, all applications from expatriate construction servants who desire to marry should be sent to the WDC along with a recommendation from the Branch Committee. Of course, it would not be reasonable for one who is in his first year of service to get engaged and apply to remain in his service following his marriage.

58. Bethel Family Members: Any member who desires to marry and remain a member of the Bethel family should make his or her request to the Branch Committee, regardless of the length of time he or she has served at Bethel. The two desiring to marry should each complete an Application to Become a Member of the Worldwide Order (A-8). If the Branch Committee decides to recommend that the engaged couple serve at Bethel following their marriage, a recommendation will be sent to the Personnel Committee along with appropriate comments regarding the qualifications of the applicants and the need for their services at Bethel. This should be done even if the mate will be replacing a member of the family who has departed or will soon be departing Bethel service. However, if the Branch Committee does not recommend that the engaged couple serve at Bethel following their marriage, it is not necessary to forward the recommendation to the Personnel Committee for approval. The Branch Committee may handle such requests without consulting with the Personnel Committee and may notify the couple accordingly. Of course, it would not be reasonable for one who is in his first year at Bethel to get engaged and apply to remain in his service following his marriage.

59. After their first year at Bethel, some who want to marry may prefer to leave Bethel, believing that this will make it easier for them to adjust to married life. They should feel free to do so. It is our hope that they will enter the pioneer work. But after a time, if they would like to return to special full-time service, they should fill out new applications, which the Branch Committee will process in the usual way. The needs of the organization should be weighed when a Bethel family member wants to marry and remain at Bethel. If someone has training or skills that the Branch Committee feels are critical to getting the work accomplished, even though he may have been at Bethel a relatively short time, his request to remain at Bethel after marriage should be given serious consideration.

60. Circuit Overseers: If a single circuit overseer becomes engaged to be married and desires to continue in the circuit work, he should inform the Service Department right away. The Service Department will send a Questionnaire for Prospective Circuit Overseer (S-323) for him and his fiancée to fill out. Additionally, the Service Department will make discreet inquiries, confidentially writing to the body of elders of the sister's congregation and to her circuit overseer about her qualifications. (If the sister is in her fiancé's circuit, another circuit overseer who knows the sister could be contacted.) In addition to their letters, the elders and the circuit overseer should submit separate Personal Qualifications Reports (S-326). These reports, whether favorable or unfavorable, and the questionnaire should be submitted to the Branch Committee with a recommendation. The Branch Committee will review the sister's qualifications, her reputation in the congregation and circuit where she serves, and her physical health and stamina. She should be at least 21 years old, baptized three years or longer, and in full-time service for at least two years. If there is a great difference in age between the two who are planning to marry, the Branch Committee should carefully consider whether this would cause negative talk or be a stumbling block to others. In all cases in which the circuit overseer has requested to stay on in the circuit work after he gets married, the Branch Committee should submit its comments and recommendation to the Service Committee for its decision. This should be done well ahead of the wedding date if at all possible. If the Service Committee approves that the circuit overseer continue in the circuit work following his marriage, then his wife would immediately be enrolled as the wife of a circuit overseer and they would start serving congregations right away. The Service Department will write the circuit overseer and inform him of the decision.—See 6:128.

61. If it is decided that a longtime circuit overseer should not remain in the circuit work after he gets married, consideration may be given to appointing him as a special pioneer. (See 6:113.) However, if the sister he is engaged to marry does not have many years in full-time service, she may continue as a regular pioneer. Any exceptional cases should be referred to the Service Committee.

62. Field Missionaries and Special Pioneers: If a field missionary or a special pioneer becomes engaged to be married, he or she should inform the Service Department right away. If desirous of continuing in the missionary or special pioneer work along with his or her prospective mate, the branch should immediately do as explained below:

- If the prospective mate lives in the branch territory, the branch should send him or her a Questionnaire for Prospective Temporary Special Pioneer (S-207) or Questionnaire for Prospective Field Missionary (S-214) to fill out. In addition, the prospective mate's body of elders and circuit overseer should be asked to complete separate Personal Qualifications Reports (S-326).
- If the prospective mate does not live in the branch territory, the Branch Committee should obtain the Questionnaire for Prospective Temporary Special Pioneer (S-207) that is on file and the S-326 forms from the respective branch office along with the Branch Committee's recommendation. In the case of a field missionary, the Service Committee will obtain the S-214 form from the prospective mate's branch office.

63. The Branch Committee will review the qualifications of the special pioneer or field missionary and those of his or her prospective mate, taking into consideration the reputation and the physical health and stamina of each one. The prospective mate should be at least 21 years old, baptized three years or longer, in full-time service for at least two years, in good health, and able to maintain an active schedule. If there is a great difference in age between the two who are planning to marry, the Branch Committee should consider carefully whether this would cause negative talk or be a stumbling block to others.

64. If the special pioneer and the prospective mate are well-qualified, the Branch Committee may enroll them as special pioneers together, effective the date of their marriage. If the Branch Committee determines that they do not qualify to serve as special pioneers after their marriage, then the branch should inform the special pioneer of the decision as soon as possible and determine a stop date prior to the wedding. If the special pioneer does not agree with the Branch Committee's decision or if the case is unusual, the Branch Committee may submit the matter along with its recommendation to the Service Committee. It is understood that in some exceptional situations, it may be appropriate for one mate to continue as a special pioneer while the other mate does not. If there is a situation that seems to merit such an exception, please provide details to the Service Committee.

65. In the case of a field missionary, all the reports (translated into English) along with the Branch Committee's recommendation and the prospective mate's S-214 questionnaire, whether favorable or otherwise, should be submitted to the Service Committee, which will make the final decision as to whether someone continues as a field missionary following his or her marriage.

PERSONAL EXPENSE ACCOUNT (PEA)

66. General Guidelines: The Personal Expense Account (PEA) is generally provided on an annual basis to those in special full-time service to care for nonroutine personal needs. This arrangement for the support of members of the Worldwide Order is approved by the Publishing Committee. It is based on the Cost of Living Chart (A-40) and recommendations from the Branch Committee and is listed on the Record of Allowances (A-29) form for each country under the branch territory. The PEA amount provided will depend on the branch cost of living and on a person's seniority. [See Chart 9.1.] No changes should be made in credits for PEAs without first consulting the Publishing Committee.

67. The annual PEA amount is calculated based on the approved rate and the number of months that a special full-time servant is in his assignment during the calendar year. Once a year, at the end of the calendar year, this amount is added to the balance of the PEA for each individual or couple and made available for request. The available PEA balance may be kept either in U.S. dollars or in local currency. When the account is kept in U.S. dollars, a request from the account will be distributed in local currency at the current rate of exchange.

68. If approved by the Publishing Committee, the PEA balance may be paid out automatically with the December allowance payment after the annual amount is added. If required because of tax or banking requirements, a Branch Committee may request approval to calculate and pay out the monthly PEA amount along with the monthly allowance payment.

69. A temporary Bethel family member (BBT) or temporary special pioneer (FTS) will receive PEA for the months that he serves in the enrollment. Temporary volunteers serving for less than one year who are not members of the Worldwide Order (BBW or BBC) would not qualify to receive PEA.

70. A person leaving special full-time service, including one who is disfellowshipped or disassociated, may request any available PEA amount. This would include an amount for the number of full months he served in the current calendar year. He may apply personal time away to the month of departure, but he cannot receive any PEA amount for months of personal time away that might extend past the month of departure.—See 9:75.

71. An individual's PEA is closed if he leaves special full-time service for a period of more than three months unless the Branch Committee receives approval for an exception from the Personnel Committee or the Service Committee for a leave of absence. The person may continue to receive PEA while he is on short emergency leave if it seems appropriate because of his years of service.

72. In the event of the death of a mate, the surviving mate may benefit from the balance left in the deceased mate's PEA. However, unclaimed PEA should not be included as part of the estate if there is no surviving mate.

73. Pass-Throughs: From time to time, a special full-time servant may wish to transfer funds to another branch, either for another special full-time servant or to pay a bill incurred with the other branch. Or the special full-time servant may wish to receive funds from another branch. For example, a relative or friend may wish to send the special full-time servant funds to support him in his foreign assignment. In such cases, the funds can be remitted to the special full-time servant through the respective branch.

74. The pass-through arrangement is a provision for special full-time servants only. The arrangement is not intended as a means to transfer funds to others, including relatives or friends, although funds may be received by a special full-time servant from someone who is not serving in this capacity. By restricting the use of this provision to special full-time servants, we avoid the appearance of a banking arrangement and preserve the nonprofit, religious status that our organization enjoys in most parts of the world. The arrangement is a loving provision for special full-time servants to continue to serve without distraction and not to be unnecessarily involved in mundane and other time-consuming matters, such as dealing with banks to handle international transfers.

PERSONAL TIME AWAY AND LEAVE OF ABSENCE

75. General Guidelines: Personal time away is based on basic days granted each new service year along with additional days granted based on seniority or age. On September 1, all special full-time servants receive the appropriate number of days of basic personal time away for their present special full-time service enrollment. Personal time away credits for temporary Bethel family members (BBT) should not be prorated on September 1 for the remaining full months of their assignment. Personal time away for BBTs should be handled the same way as for regular Bethel family members (BBR) as explained in paragraphs 30-37 of the Dwelling Together in Unity manual. Those who enter special full-time service after September 1 are given a prorated amount of basic personal time away for the remaining full months in the current service year. This is credited on a person's start date in special full-time service. All such newly appointed special full-time servants are granted a prorated seniority credit or a prorated age credit, whichever is greater, on the person's start date in special full-time service. Thereafter, the person will annually be granted the normal seniority credit or the normal age credit, whichever is greater, on September 1. Additionally, all special full-time servants who are newly appointed by world headquarters to have an enrollment code ending in the letter "F" (e.g., BBF, FMF, FCF, and so forth) are granted a prorated foreign-service credit on the person's appointment date. Thereafter, the person will annually be granted the normal foreign-service credit of seven additional days of personal time away on September 1. Special full-time servants who have taken a vow of obedience and poverty are released from these vows while taking personal time away. Anyone leaving special full-time service cannot use more than 24 working days of his accumulated personal time away to extend his departure from special full-time service. In the event of the death of a mate, the surviving spouse should be credited the balance of unused personal time away of the deceased spouse. The branch office should not recalculate personal time away balances when a transfer takes place from one form of special full-time service to another. The personal time away that a special full-time servant has already accumulated will be retained when he transfers to another form of special full-time service. The Branch Committee may find it necessary at times to limit the number of those who can be away from Bethel at any one time. Extenuating circumstances may arise that the committee can consider before deciding what is reasonable.—See 4:27; 9:70.

76. The Branch Committee is authorized to grant up to 90 calendar days of leave of absence time per service year. However, such leave time would usually be granted progressively, based on the circumstances, rather than immediately granting 90 calendar days away. There is no need for a person to use all of his accumulated personal time away to care for a serious health matter or a family emergency. However, it may be reasonable for the person to combine some of his personal time away with a leave of absence granted to him by the branch office. If the Branch Committee believes that more than 90 calendar days away are needed, it should make a recommendation to the appropriate Governing Body committee. In some cases, it may be better for the person or married couple to terminate special full-time service. These situations must be carefully reviewed and handled on a case-by-case basis.

77. In the case of Assembly Hall servants, Bethel family members, Bible school facility servants, and construction servants, the Bethel Office or those appointed by the Branch Committee are authorized to grant leave of absence time. In the case of circuit overseers, field missionaries, and special pioneers, the Service Department overseer or his assistant is authorized to grant the person up to 14 calendar days, including Saturdays and Sundays, of leave of absence in any service year. The Service Department overseer or his assistant and a member of the Branch Committee may grant these individuals up to 30 calendar days of leave in any service year. Any additional request for leave of absence should be handled by the Branch Committee. Any case that would involve granting more than 90 calendar days of leave of absence in any service year to circuit overseers, field missionaries, or special pioneers should be referred to the Service Committee. During an approved leave of absence, these individuals are not expected to meet the monthly hour requirement.—See 6:139.

78. Assembly Hall Servants and Bible School Facility Servants: Assembly Hall servants and Bible school facility servants receive personal time away under the same arrangement as members of the Bethel family. They receive the same provision as Bethel family members do for time off to attend regional, special, and international conventions and, if needed, may receive a leave of absence. For more information, see the brochure Faithfully Maintaining Our Places of Worship (mtw).

79. Bethel Family Members: Members of the Bethel family are granted time off to attend one regional convention each year. This time should not be used for any other purpose. If a Bethel family member wishes to attend an additional regional convention, he must use his personal time away. When international or special conventions are held, please note that a special provision of time away from work is made for special full-time servants who are selected as delegates. (This is separate and in addition to the usual personal time away that is granted to attend one annual regional convention. The two provisions of time away are different and cannot be combined to attend only one event.) The special provision of time away is as follows: Bethel family members who are selected as delegates to attend a special or international convention will be granted one and a half days of personal time away in order to attend all program sessions at one such event.—See 9:86.

80. What if an individual in his first five years of Bethel service requests time away from work using days other than his accumulated personal time away? It could possibly be to care for a health matter or a family emergency, such as a death in the family. Each request for a leave of absence should be handled individually, taking into consideration the recommendations of the elders at Bethel, the individual's attitude, work habits, and general health, as well as the valuable experience, knowledge, and ability he may have gained and can contribute to the work. Thus, a leave of absence could be granted out of concern for the individual and for the Kingdom work. In some cases, it may be better for the individual to leave Bethel and reapply when he has his affairs in order again. When one is granted a leave of absence because he is in need of health care outside of the regular provisions at Bethel, the individual will pay his own expenses.

81. Bethel family members who have been in full-time service for 36 or more years may receive five additional days of time away from their Bethel work per service year for the purpose of caring for family responsibilities in connection with immediate relatives, such as parents, brothers, or sisters. However, this provision applies only to Bethel family members and not to others in special full-time service.

82. If a leave of absence has been granted to a married person to care for a health matter or a Scriptural responsibility and the mate feels that he or she should go along, this would be reasonable. However, the Branch Committee would have to approve this, taking into consideration what has been stated above. When a married individual has made a good contribution to the Kingdom work, more than the usual consideration might be shown to that one. This would especially be the case when a person has been in special full-time service for many years, though his or her marriage mate may be relatively new.

83. After a person has been at Bethel for five years, he is reasonably well-established as a member of the Bethel family. He may unexpectedly develop a health problem or be faced with a family emergency or a Scriptural responsibility that takes him away from his Bethel work for quite a time beyond the period allowed for personal time away. The longer a person has been at Bethel, the more consideration he can be shown.

84. In an exceptional case, a member of the Bethel family may need more than 90 calendar days of leave of absence time to care for a Scriptural responsibility. Because the brother (or sister) has many years of full-time service and is of value to the organization, the Branch Committee may wish to recommend to the Personnel Committee that the extended leave be approved. While there is no guarantee that he would be able to keep the room he leaves, it might be possible that for a period of a year, his room could be used as a guest room. Then, if he comes back within a year, he can return to the same room. He can either take his furniture with him or leave it in his room, or Bethel could store it if space allows. The Branch Committee should work out the details, keeping in mind concern for the arrangement at Bethel and for the needs of the individual. On the other hand, it may be that the person could leave Bethel and be encouraged to reapply as soon as matters have been cared for.

85. Circuit Overseers: The arrangements for personal time away and leave of absence time are outlined in Circuit Overseer Guidelines (tg). If needed, the branch office is authorized to increase a circuit overseer's monthly allowance up to the amount provided to special pioneers during the time that he and his wife are on an approved leave of absence. There is no need for a circuit overseer and his wife to take personal time away in order to move to a new circuit. The branch office is authorized to determine how much time is reasonably needed for a particular move. Depending on the circumstances, some may need a few days; others may need a week or more. The circuit overseer should not be so exhausted after the move that he is not able to begin his new assignment with a positive frame of mind.—Mark 6:31a.

86. Construction Servants: Construction servants receive personal time away under the same arrangement as members of the Bethel family. (Those who are enrolled as expatriate construction servants (BCF) also qualify for the foreign-service credit.) They receive the same provision as Bethel family members do for time off to attend regional, international, and special conventions, and if needed, they may receive leave of absence time. (See 9:79.) For further information, see the brochure Continue to Put Your Heart Into the Work (cph).

87. Field Missionaries and Special Pioneers: The arrangements for personal time away and leave of absence time for field missionaries and special pioneers are outlined in letters to these special full-time servants. There may be no need for the Service Department to maintain personal time away records for infirm special pioneers who because of advanced age or chronic illness no longer have a specific monthly hour requirement. That matter can be decided by the Branch Committee.—See 6:122.

88. Time Away for Mates During Branch Work Assignments: The wife of a Bethel brother may travel with him on a branch work assignment at the branch's expense whenever the trip will require ten or more working days. If a Bethel assignment requires that a married Bethel brother be away from Bethel for fewer than ten working days, any working days that are used by his wife to travel with him will be deducted from her accumulated personal time away. In addition, the couple will have to care for the mate's travel expenses personally. After a brother has been on an assignment(s) totaling ten working days or more within a service year, his wife may accompany him if he again is assigned to be away from Bethel for a period of at least five working days. (See 7:134.) This policy does not apply to brothers in special full-time service who may be sent out on an assignment at the direction of the organization to care for various shepherding visits, Branch Committee members attending a convention assigned by the branch, or branch representatives caring for a CA-br assignment.—See 7:22; 9:118.

PERSONNEL REVIEWS

89. General Guidelines: Regardless of enrollment, the first three years after an individual's entering special full-time service will be considered a tested-as-to-fitness period. Such ones will be provisional members of the Order during their first three years. Shortly before completing three years, they will be evaluated before being invited to become regular members. This three-year evaluation will be made for each individual, including each married person. While the membership of individual marriage mates may vary because of differences in each one's total consecutive years of special full-time service, the enrollments of each mate should be the same.

90. During the tested-as-to-fitness period, Bethel department overseers (for those serving at the branch office), the Construction Committee or Construction Project Committee (for those serving on large construction projects), the Local Design/Construction Department (for those serving as Assembly Hall servants, Bible school facility servants, or construction servants), and the Service Department (for those serving as special pioneers, as field missionaries, or in the circuit work) will need to consider carefully the progress being made by individuals under their care. Appropriate training and counsel should be provided as needed. (2 Tim. 2:2; 4:2b) Toward the end of the three-year evaluation period, Branch Committees will review the comments and recommendations of those working with each provisional member so as to determine if the provisional member qualifies to serve as a regular member of the Order.

91. Before inviting a provisional member to become a regular member of the Order, the Branch Committee will want to consider his reputation and his physical health and stamina, as well as his aptitude for his specific assignment of service and his future potential. However, the extent of this evaluation will vary based on the individual and his enrollment. As an example, the evaluation of a member of the Bethel family in his early 20's may require greater assessment than the evaluation of a circuit overseer, since the circuit overseer has already proved a measure of his qualifications based on his appointment to the circuit work and has already received an extensive review while attending the School for Kingdom Evangelizers.

92. After the tested-as-to-fitness period, if an individual does not qualify to serve as a regular member of the Order, he should be removed from the Order. As a reminder, the Branch Committee should make a recommendation to the Worldwide Design/Construction Department if the committee feels that an expatriate construction servant no longer qualifies to continue serving as such.

93. Except in the case of temporary special pioneers, on rare occasions, a Branch Committee may feel that additional time is needed to make an accurate evaluation of an individual. In such cases, as an exception, the Branch Committee may choose to extend the tested-as-to-fitness period for an additional year or two. During this time, specific counsel and assistance should be given to the individual. At the end of this extended period, a final decision should be made. Regarding personnel reviews for temporary special pioneers, see 9:104.

94. Circuit Overseers: A review of all circuit overseers should be completed and recommendations for deletion, if any, should be submitted to the Governing Body by August 1 of each year. The Branch Committee should ensure that it has all the facts and should be reasonable in its expectations, taking into consideration local circumstances. —Prov. 18:13, 17; Phil. 4:5.

95. A circuit overseer should be kind, impartial, and just. He should care for matters with love and patience.

He should be humble and discerning, known as a man who stands firm for Jehovah's righteous standards rather than insisting on his own opinions. (See 6:130.) These qualities are especially important in view of the weighty responsibility entrusted to him of appointing and deleting elders and ministerial servants. (Luke 12:48b; Acts 14:23) A number of factors should be considered, including the following: Does the circuit overseer display genuine zeal for the ministry? Does he take the lead in all facets of the ministry? Does he meet his hour requirement each month, taking into consideration time needed for assemblies, conventions, schools, and other theocratic assignments? Is he kind, reasonable, and patient in his dealings with others? Does he have a reputation as one who stands firm for Jehovah's standards, or is he known as one who imposes his personal viewpoints or sets arbitrary rules? If it is necessary, is he willing to live in the homes of the brothers? Is he content with what is provided? (Phil. 4:11, 12) Have there been significant deficiencies that have warranted counsel? If so, has he received appropriate counsel? Did he quickly apply it? Does he or his wife have significant health issues that consistently prevent them from fulfilling their assignment?—See 2:30.

96. If the Branch Committee notes a significant deficiency in the service of a circuit overseer and he has not been counseled previously on the matter, the Branch Committee should ask the Service Department to follow the steps outlined in 6:141. The Branch Committee should ensure that the circuit overseer is helped to understand the deficiency and that he receives specific suggestions that will assist him in making the needed adjustments. (2 Cor. 13:11) The situation should be monitored over the next year, and additional counsel given as needed. If there has been no improvement by the time of the next annual evaluation, the Branch Committee should recommend to the Governing Body the deletion of the circuit overseer. A brief summary of the efforts made to assist him should be included in a numbered letter that is sent along with the Recommendations to the Governing Body form. In such cases, the individual should not be able to say that he was unaware of the Branch Committee's concerns, that his recommended deletion is the first he has heard of the matter, or that he has not been given opportunity to make needed adjustments.—Matt. 7:12.

97. Field Missionaries: Annually, the Branch Committee should evaluate each field missionary (FMF) who is under 50 years of age. Those who are 50 or older may be included in the review process if the Branch Committee believes that there is a need. This review should be completed and any recommendations for deletion should be submitted to the Service Committee by August 1 of each year. Temporary field missionaries are not included in this annual review.—See 6:11; 9:103.

98. In addition to reviewing the Personal Qualifications Report (S-326) submitted by the circuit overseer and by the Branch Committee member in conjunction with his annual visit, there are a number of factors to be considered, including the following: Does the missionary display genuine zeal for the ministry? Does he consistently meet his monthly hour requirement, taking into consideration other theocratic assignments, personal time away, and other relevant factors? Keeping in mind the nature of the territory, does he have a reasonable number of placements and make a good number of return visits each month? Is he a teacher in the field? Does he regularly start new Bible studies? Does he conduct progressive Bible studies? Does he work with the local publishers in the ministry? Does he have a reputation as one who promotes peace? Does his activity have a strengthening effect on the congregation? Have there been significant deficiencies that have warranted counsel? If so, has he applied the counsel? Does he have significant health issues that consistently prevent him from fulfilling his assignment?

99. In some cases, the Branch Committee may note significant deficiencies in the service of a field missionary. In such cases, the Branch Committee should first determine if the individual has been counseled previously. If not, a member of the Branch Committee should be assigned to meet with the missionary. The missionary's circuit overseer or another mature local elder should accompany the Branch Committee member on the visit. While the tone of the visit should be kind and positive, the Branch Committee member should clearly explain the Branch Committee's concerns. The missionary should be helped to understand the deficiencies and be given specific suggestions that will assist him in making needed adjustments. (2 Cor. 13:11) The situation should be monitored over the next year and additional counsel given as needed. If there has been no improvement by the time of the next annual evaluation, the Branch Committee should recommend the deletion of the field missionary. In such cases, the individual should not be able to say that he was unaware of the Branch Committee's concerns, that his recommended deletion is the first he has heard of the matter, or that he has not been given opportunity to make needed adjustments.—Matt. 7:12.

100. When the Branch Committee decides to recommend the deletion of a field missionary, a separate numbered letter for each person or couple should be sent to the Service Committee. The letter should include complete details, explaining clearly the reasons for the recommendation, the efforts made to assist the missionary, and whether he agrees with the recommendation. If the individual does not agree and he wishes to submit a letter, his letter should be included with the numbered letter. After reviewing the Branch Committee's recommendation, the Service Committee will provide direction.

101. Special Pioneers: Annually, the Service Department should review the activity of all special pioneers to see whether they are productive and are fulfilling the requirements of their special form of service. (See 6:111.) The Branch Committee may feel that certain younger special pioneers with a minimum of three years in special full-time service could serve well as field missionaries in another country. The factors to be considered and the steps to be followed to make such recommendations are outlined in 9:109.

102. If concerns about the activities of a special pioneer are reported, the Service Department may write to the elders and/or the circuit overseer to obtain their observations. Once the facts are known, the Service Department may write a letter of counsel and offer helpful suggestions or may direct the circuit overseer to approach the pioneer privately about the area of concern. If the special pioneer is a single sister, the circuit overseer should be accompanied by a local elder. The special pioneer should be given the opportunity to improve over a reasonable period of time and be commended on any progress made. If there is no response to repeated efforts to assist the special pioneer and the Service Department is convinced that he no longer qualifies, a recommendation can be made to the Branch Committee that he be deleted from that privilege of service. In most cases, a special pioneer who is consistently unable to meet his monthly hour requirement because of serious and debilitating health problems, perhaps for six months or so, should leave special full-time service. If married, careful consideration needs to be given as to whether the other mate should continue as a special pioneer. What would be in the best interests of the couple and of the organization? Would it be good to transition both of them out of special full-time service? If the Branch Committee feels that one mate should continue as a special pioneer while the other should not, it should provide a recommendation to the Service Committee. Extra consideration should be shown to those who are at least 55 years of age and who have 25 or more years in special full-time service. Any exceptional situations should be referred to the Service Committee. —See 6:120.

103. Temporary Field Missionaries: When a temporary field missionary (FTF) has been in his assignment for 30 months, the branch office will write to him and ask him to submit a letter stating whether he would like to continue in the missionary work or would prefer to return home. If the individual decides to return home, the Service Committee should be informed. If the individual would like to continue as a field missionary, the Branch Committee should consider his effectiveness over the preceding 30 months and make a frank recommendation to the Service Committee. In either case, whether the individual desires to continue as a field missionary or not, the Service Committee will reply. The Service Committee will make the final decision concerning an individual's future service as a field missionary. In all cases, after the Service Committee has replied, a member of the Branch Committee or a mature elder from the Service Department should make a shepherding visit on the missionary. This visit could be made in conjunction with the annual shepherding visit. (See 9:118; John 21:16) Married couples should be met with together. The missionary's circuit overseer or another mature local elder should accompany the branch representative on the visit.—See 9:97.

104. Temporary Special Pioneers: All temporary special pioneers are enrolled in an evaluation program that lasts up to three years. The program includes an annual review by the Service Department. The purpose of this evaluation program is to allow the Branch Committee to test the fitness, abilities, circumstances, and effectiveness of a temporary special pioneer and to determine how he may best be used in the future. It is not expected that all temporary special pioneers will be given an extension for a second or third year. During the annual review, the Branch Committee should extend only those who are effective in this role and who are qualified to take on greater responsibility. For more information, see chapter 13 of School for Kingdom Evangelizers Office Guidelines (skeog).—See 9:93.

105. After a temporary special pioneer has been in his assignment for ten months, the Service Department should request and review the Personal Qualifications Report (S-326) submitted by the circuit overseer. The department will determine whether the temporary special pioneer is reaching his hour requirement, is productive in starting and conducting Bible studies, is showing a keen interest in aiding those associated with the congregation, and is enjoying and promoting good relations with others. If the report is positive, two members of the Branch Committee can extend the temporary special pioneer appointment for another year. Only productive individuals obtaining good results should be given an extension in the temporary special pioneer work for an additional year. If the report is negative or if it is clear that a brother, a sister, or a married couple is not able to serve effectively in the temporary special pioneer work, it would be appropriate for the Service Department to write a letter directing that the individual or the couple return to the regular pioneer work. The letter would also express appreciation for their service.

106. At any time, the branch office may determine that a temporary special pioneer could be used more effectively in some other form of special full-time service. For example, brothers who are graduates of the School for Kingdom Evangelizers may qualify to receive training in the circuit work.—See chapters 10 and 13 of School for Kingdom Evangelizers Office Guidelines (skeog).

107. It is understood that temporary special pioneers who have successfully completed the three-year evaluation program have proved themselves and have potential for greater service. The Branch Committee must determine how best to use them.

108. Some temporary special pioneers who have successfully completed the three-year evaluation program may be appointed as special pioneers. Other individuals may qualify for the circuit work, and the branch may appoint such individuals as special pioneers, inviting them to complete the Questionnaire for Prospective Circuit Overseer (S-323). If after reviewing the questionnaire the Branch Committee agrees that the individual qualifies to be a circuit overseer, it may submit a recommendation to the Governing Body.—See 2:30; 6:123.

109. In exceptional cases, the Branch Committee may feel that certain temporary special pioneers who have completed the three-year evaluation program have the circumstances and stamina to serve well as field missionaries in another country. In most cases, each mate must be between the ages of 25 and 45. Fluency in English is not a requirement. In addition to their spiritual qualities, such individuals may speak a foreign language or be adept at learning new languages or their ethnic and family background or citizenship might equip them to fill a specific need in another land. The branch may appoint them as special pioneers and send them the cover letter for field missionary candidates (S-251), inviting them to complete the Questionnaire for Prospective Field Missionary (S-214). The completed questionnaire and, if needed, an English translation of the candidate's responses along with a numbered letter should be submitted to the Service Committee, explaining in detail the qualifications, language abilities, ethnic and family background, and citizenship(s) of each individual. Please include an English translation of the latest Personal Qualifications Report (S-326) that was submitted by the circuit overseer.—See 9:101.

110. Those who have completed the three-year evaluation program and who are fluent in English may in time be included in the Branch Committee's consideration of exceptional candidates to be recommended for additional training at Gilead School.—See 6:186.

PREGNANCY

111. General Guidelines: Field missionaries or special pioneer couples who learn that they are to be parents should inform the branch immediately. The couple should be given a period of three months to get settled, during which they will continue to receive their monthly allowance. During this three-month period, the couple will need to locate suitable accommodations and find employment, so it is not expected that they will meet their monthly hour requirement. If one or both mates wish to become regular pioneers, they will have an additional three months to make the transition and their full-time service history will continue uninterrupted. If requested, the branch office is authorized to assist a departing missionary with the cost of return travel to his home country and the costs associated with shipping his basic personal belongings. For information on transitional financial assistance, see 9:37.

112. There is no provision for former special pioneers to be reappointed while a minor child is still living at home. If in the past the branch allowed a special pioneer couple to continue in that work while raising one or two children, it would be good to review the special pioneers' activity to determine whether they are still effective in their ministry. In all cases, it is up to the Branch Committee to evaluate the circumstances of special pioneers to decide whether they should remain in special full-time service. For information on transitional financial assistance, see 9:37.

SHEPHERDING VISITS

113. Assembly Hall Servants and Bible School Facility Servants: Arrangements should be made for those who are serving as Assembly Hall servants or as Bible school facility servants to receive regular shepherding visits by members of the Branch Committee, representatives of the Local Design/Construction Department (LDC), or other mature elders selected by the Branch Committee. This arrangement should mirror the arrangement that is in place to shepherd all members of the Bethel family regularly.

114. Circuit Overseers: Circuit overseers and their wives, if married, should receive a shepherding visit at least once every two years. Such visits should be made during a circuit overseer's regular visit to a congregation, not during the week of a circuit assembly. In larger branches, most circuit overseers will receive a visit from another experienced circuit overseer. The experienced circuit overseer in turn will receive a shepherding visit from a branch representative. In smaller branches, branch representatives may visit all the circuit overseers. The Branch Committee is responsible for selecting the brothers who will be used to make such shepherding visits. They are informed of the circuit overseer to visit by means of an assignment letter (S-243). Branch representatives selected to make shepherding visits should be provided the latest copy of Circuit Overseer Guidelines (tg), the current policy letters having to do with the work of circuit overseers, and the current circuit overseer's talk and meeting outlines. As soon as the branch representative or the experienced circuit overseer is provided with the names of the circuit overseers he is to visit, he should contact those brothers to determine the best time for the visit.—See 6:141.

115. Circuit overseers or field instructors assigned to shepherd other circuit overseers should be men who are older in years and experienced as traveling overseers. They should be known as ones who maintain a good personal schedule of Bible study and meditation and who keep up-to-date with published information from 'the faithful slave' and with letters from the branch office. (Matt. 24:45) They should be balanced in judgment, show genuine humility, have a sincere interest in helping others, and have a high regard for the importance of the disciple-making work. (Phil. 4:5; Jas. 3:17; 1 Pet. 5:5) It is especially important that they be men who are compassionate and who are able to be encouraging and helpful to others.—Isa. 32:1, 2; Col. 3:12.

116. Branch representatives assigned to shepherd circuit overseers may be members of the Branch Committee, experienced Service Department deskmen, or responsible brothers in the branch office who have had experience in the traveling work. Each branch representative would normally make no more than one or two such visits per year.

117. Construction Servants: It is the responsibility of both the congregation and the branch office to shepherd construction servants. Thus, while the congregation will provide shepherding to the extent possible, branch representatives, LDC representatives, and construction group overseers will need to play a larger role in such shepherding, since the construction servants are often away from the home congregation.

118. Field Missionaries: The Branch Committee assigns members of the committee to make annual shepherding visits on all field missionaries. (See 6:9.) Such visits are not made on circuit overseers in foreign service or on field instructors in foreign service. If it is practical, the visit could be arranged in conjunction with another assignment, such as a circuit assembly or a Kingdom

Hall dedication, perhaps using Friday or Monday to meet with the missionaries. Apart from travel time, usually no more than a day or two should be needed to meet with all of the field missionaries who serve in a particular city. After his meeting with the field missionaries as a group, the branch representative may spend any remaining time with the missionaries on an individual basis. The branch representative should make it his goal to provide each missionary couple or single missionary with specific, warm commendation. (Prov. 12: 25; 1 Thess. 5:11) Following the visit, the branch representative will provide the Branch Committee with a completed Personal Qualifications Report (S-326) on each field missionary. If problems or concerns arise, the branch representative should not try to handle these on his own. Rather, he should report his observations to the Branch Committee, which will follow up as needed. If the branch representative is married, his wife may be given time off from her Bethel assignment to accompany him. While her husband is making the shepherding visits, she could spend time in the ministry, perhaps with other missionaries or with some of the local publishers.—See 9:103.

119. While it is strongly preferred that Branch and Country committee members make such annual visits, other mature and exceptionally kind elders working in the Service Department may be assigned to assist the committee members. This exception is made primarily for lands where there are a large number of field missionaries or where some members of the committee cannot care for this assignment because of age or health.

PETS

120. Pets are not allowed to live in any home or on any property owned or rented directly by the organization. This would include field residences used to accommodate special full-time servants, such as a Kingdom Hall apartment used to house a circuit overseer. If a special pioneer or field missionary receives a housing allowance from the branch office and rents an apartment where pets are allowed, he should wisely count all the costs involved in caring for a pet. Since most pets require time and resources, special pioneers and field missionaries should be encouraged to focus their limited time, energy, and resources on fulfilling their roles in special full-time service. Approval will not be given to the paying of increased rent so that pets can be accommodated.

121. If special full-time servants must live in an area where crime and break-ins are prevalent, they may feel that it is necessary to have a watchdog. If that is the case, the Branch Committee should make a request to the appropriate Governing Body committee on behalf of the special full-time servants, explaining why it would be necessary for them to have a watchdog on the premises. The special full-time servants would be responsible to care for the dog. Of course, watchdogs are not pets. Therefore, the dog's primary place would be in the yard where he could effectively keep intruders away.

Introdução

1. Como ancião, você tem a grande responsabilidade de 'pastorear o rebanho de Deus, que está aos seus cuidados'. (1 Ped. 5:2, 3) Isso inclui orientar corretamente nossos irmãos e irmãs. É importante que os anciãos sejam capazes de encontrar facilmente textos bíblicos e orientações da organização para que todos fiquem "completamente unidos na mesma . . . maneira de pensar". (1 Cor. 1:10) Foi com esse objetivo que preparamos este livro para você!

2. Este livro fala sobre a maioria dos aspectos do nosso trabalho como anciãos, mas, às vezes, você talvez precise consultar outras fontes com orientações da organização, como o livro Organizados, as cartas, os anúncios e os formulários fornecidos por Betel. Fique atento aos ajustes para estar sempre atualizado. Use sempre a versão mais atual deste livro. Outras orientações que se aplicam especificamente ao território de sua filial estão no Adendo do Pastoreiem. Sugerimos que você faça anotações nos lugares apropriados deste livro sempre que o Adendo do Pastoreiem tiver uma orientação adicional sobre um assunto.

3. Este livro é uma publicação confidencial e é protegido por direitos autorais. Cada ancião pode ter uma cópia dele. Se um ancião for removido, ele deverá apagar qualquer cópia eletrônica que tiver do livro e entregar a versão impressa para a comissão de serviço, que vai destruí-la. Ele só poderá continuar com seu livro se sua remoção for por causa de uma mudança de congregação e ele tiver recebido uma recomendação favorável.

4. Oramos para que este livro seja uma ferramenta valiosa para ajudar você a imitar a Jeová Deus e a Jesus Cristo no modo de tratar as ovelhas. (João 10:11; Efé. 5:1; 1 Ped. 2:21, 25; 5:4) Em vez de criar regras duras para a congregação, confie nos princípios bíblicos e nas orientações da organização de Jeová. — 2 Cor. 1:24.

Como os anciãos trabalham juntos como um corpo

1. Jeová designou Jesus Cristo como o cabeça da congregação cristã. (Efé. 1:22, 23; Apo. 1:20) Reconhecer que Jesus é o cabeça da congregação ajuda os anciãos do corpo a ficarem unidos e a cooperarem uns com os outros. Vocês mostram que são submissos à liderança de Cristo quando:

(1) Procuram entender e aplicar as leis e os princípios da Bíblia. — João 7:16-18; Efé. 5:17.

(2) Seguem as orientações do "escravo fiel e prudente" e são obedientes às instruções que recebem de Betel e de outros irmãos designados para tomar a liderança, como os superintendentes de circuito. — Mat. 24:45-47; Heb. 13:17.

(3) Escutam com atenção o que os outros anciãos dizem. — Rom. 12:10b; Tia. 1:19.

(4) Tratam com amor e bondade cada um dos irmãos na congregação, incluindo os outros anciãos, e não tentam impor seu ponto de vista nem ficam inventando regras. — Mat. 11:28-30; 1 Cor. 4:6; 1 Ped. 5:1-3, 5.

(5) Começam e terminam todas as reuniões do corpo de anciãos com oração. Oram novamente quando não estão conseguindo chegar a um acordo. — Tia. 1:5.

RESPONSABILIDADES

2. As responsabilidades do corpo de anciãos incluem:

(1) Recomendar a designação e a remoção de anciãos e servos ministeriais. — Veja o capítulo 8.

(2) Decidir quantos grupos de serviço de campo a congregação terá e quem serão os superintendentes de grupo e seus ajudantes. — Veja o capítulo 7.

(3) Decidir os assuntos que serão considerados nas partes de necessidades locais e escolher os irmãos que farão essas partes. — Veja 20:15-16.

(4) Escolher o superintendente de serviço, o secretário, o dirigente do estudo da Sentinela e o superintendente da Reunião Vida e Ministério. Avaliar se é necessário que alguém ajude (ou substitua temporariamente) um desses irmãos ou o coordenador do corpo de anciãos, e decidir quem fará isso. — Veja os capítulos 3 a 6 e o documento Instruções para a Reunião Nossa Vida e Ministério Cristão (S-38).

(5) Escolher o conselheiro assistente e os dirigentes das salas adicionais, se houver. — Veja o documento Instruções para a Reunião Nossa Vida e Ministério Cristão.

(7) Escolher o servo de contas, o servo de publicações, o servo de territórios, o coordenador da limpeza, o coordenador de discursos públicos e, se for necessário, os ajudantes desses irmãos.

(8) Decidir quais irmãos vão receber responsabilidades ou privilégios especiais, que podem incluir: fazer partes na reunião do meio de semana (com exceção das partes de estudante), fazer a leitura da revista A Sentinela, fazer a leitura no estudo bíblico de congregação, dirigir o estudo bíblico de congregação, servir como presidente da reunião do meio de semana, servir como presidente da reunião do fim de semana, servir como indicador, levar os microfones, fazer orações nas reuniões, dirigir as reuniões para o serviço de campo e assim por diante.

(9) Decidir quem está aprovado para fazer discursos públicos na própria congregação e quem está aprovado para fazer em outras congregações. Quando um servo ministerial for fazer seu primeiro discurso público, decidir se ele fará o discurso inteiro ou se ele dividirá o discurso com outro irmão. — Veja 20:1-2, 4.

(10) Designar dois anciãos para investigarem acusações de pecado grave. Decidir se o assunto será cuidado por uma comissão judicativa, quem servirá na comissão e quem será o presidente. (Veja os capítulos 12 e 15.) Decidir quem vai fazer parte da comissão num caso de dissociação. (Veja o capítulo 18.) Designar dois anciãos para se reunirem com um publicador que viu pornografia de propósito. — Veja o capítulo 13.

(21) Decidir se é necessário que a congregação como um todo ajude alguém necessitado que já serve a Jeová fielmente por muitos anos, principalmente se não houver nenhum parente que possa ajudá-lo, e se nenhum órgão do governo puder dar a ajuda adequada. — od cap. 12 pars. 12-15.

REUNIÕES DE ANCIÃOS

3. Quando o corpo de anciãos considera um assunto, Jesus Cristo pode usar o espírito santo para influenciar qualquer ancião a dizer algo que ajude o corpo a tomar uma decisão sábia. O resultado talvez fosse outro se os anciãos fossem consultados separadamente. (Atos 15:6-21) Em geral, as reuniões não devem passar de duas horas.

4. Quando devem ser feitas: Além da reunião que acontece na visita do superintendente de circuito, outra reunião de anciãos deve ser feita uns três meses depois de cada visita. Outras reuniões podem ser programadas sempre que houver necessidade.

5. Que assuntos devem ser considerados: O corpo de anciãos pode considerar qualquer assunto relacionado à congregação. Mas assuntos que podem ser cuidados por apenas um ancião ou por alguma comissão, como a comissão de serviço da congregação ou a Comissão de Manutenção do Salão do Reino, não precisam ser considerados na reunião do corpo. — Veja 2:1; 3:3.4.

6. Veja a seguir alguns assuntos que de tempos em tempos precisam ser considerados pelo corpo de anciãos:

(1) Na reunião que é feita três meses depois da visita do superintendente de circuito, recapitulem o relatório da última visita. Em preparação para a próxima visita, considerem qualquer recomendação de designação ou remoção de anciãos ou servos ministeriais. — Veja o capítulo 8.

(2) Avaliem se a congregação pode fazer mais para dar um testemunho cabal em seu território e analisem como isso pode ser feito. — Atos 20:24; veja o capítulo 23.

(3) Considerem as necessidades espirituais e físicas dos órfãos, das viúvas, dos cegos, dos que não podem sair de casa, dos que estão em casas de repouso e de outros publicadores em situações especiais. — Tia. 1:27.

(4) Considerem que treinamento adicional pode ser dado para ajudar os irmãos a cumprirem bem suas designações e para ajudar os que têm potencial (incluindo os recém-batizados e os mais jovens) a se qualificarem para maiores responsabilidades. (2 Tim. 2:2; w15 15/04 pp. 3-13) Por exemplo, um servo ministerial qualificado poderia servir como servo de grupo, fazer partes na reunião do meio de semana, fazer discursos públicos e acompanhar anciãos nas visitas de pastoreio. — Veja 25:4-6.

(5) Analisem as designações de todos os irmãos batizados que são exemplares. Por exemplo, talvez seja necessário distribuir melhor as tarefas dos anciãos e servos ministeriais. Também podem ser feitos alguns ajustes para que irmãos mais novos tenham a chance de ganhar experiência. — Êxo. 18:17, 18; Pro. 11:2b; veja 1:2.8.

(6) Recapitulem as orientações publicadas sobre como se preparar para desastres. — Veja 26:1-6.

7. Preparação e distribuição da pauta: Para a reunião que é feita uns três meses depois da visita do superintendente de circuito, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve pedir que os outros anciãos enviem para ele os assuntos que gostariam de considerar. Ele também deve incentivá-los a sugerir nomes de irmãos que acham que poderiam ser recomendados como anciãos ou servos ministeriais. (Veja o capítulo 8.) O coordenador deve entregar uma cópia da pauta para cada ancião alguns dias antes da reunião. A ideia é que eles tenham tempo suficiente para pesquisar e orar sobre os assuntos que estão na pauta. (Pro. 21:5) Para a reunião que é feita durante a visita do superintendente de circuito, o próprio superintendente deve preparar a pauta depois de perguntar aos anciãos se há algum assunto adicional que eles gostariam de considerar. Se o tempo permitir, ele talvez concorde em incluir um ou dois assuntos importantes na pauta. Caso contrário, ele pode sugerir que os anciãos considerem esses assuntos em outra ocasião.

8. Durante a reunião: O coordenador do corpo de anciãos é responsável por distribuir bem o tempo, dando prioridade aos assuntos mais importantes e evitando ao máximo considerar assuntos que não estão na pauta. Em alguns casos, o coordenador pode pedir que o mesmo ancião que sugeriu um assunto apresente esse assunto para o corpo. O secretário ou outro ancião deve anotar as decisões tomadas, o nome dos anciãos que vão cuidar de cada assunto e o prazo sugerido para que eles façam isso.

9. Qualquer ancião deve se sentir à vontade para se expressar sempre que tiver algo significativo para dizer. (Pro. 10:19) Os comentários devem ser breves e relacionados ao assunto. O coordenador do corpo de anciãos não deve dominar a reunião. Ele precisa saber quando e como falar. Não deve haver ira nem debates nas reuniões do corpo de anciãos. — 1 Tim. 2:8.

10. Os anciãos devem sempre tomar decisões baseadas em princípios bíblicos e nas orientações publicadas pelo "escravo fiel e prudente". (Mat. 24:45) Isso torna possível que eles sejam unânimes na maioria das vezes. (Atos 15:25) Em algumas situações, talvez não haja uma lei específica da Bíblia ou uma orientação do escravo fiel e prudente. Nesses casos, o corpo de anciãos deve avaliar a situação levando em conta o que cada ancião pensa sobre o assunto, e daí tomar uma decisão que os deixe com a consciência limpa. Quando é necessário pedir a ajuda de Betel para cuidar de um assunto, geralmente é melhor escrever. Se o assunto for urgente, dois anciãos devem ligar, explicar a situação e anotar a orientação que receberem. — Veja 14:6-30; 29:1.

BUSQUEM A PAZ

12. Não deixem que suas imperfeições prejudiquem o relacionamento de vocês. Isso poderia limitar a atuação do espírito santo de Jeová no corpo de anciãos e afetar a congregação. Façam todo o esforço possível para buscar a paz uns com os outros. (Rom. 14:19) Sejam amigos. E não deixem de dar conselhos amorosos a outros anciãos quando for necessário. — Sal. 141:5.

13. Tomem a iniciativa em honrar uns aos outros. (Rom. 12:10) Vocês podem fazer isso por sempre estarem dispostos a ouvir o que os outros têm a dizer, principalmente se vocês têm cultura, formação ou costumes diferentes. Os anciãos mais jovens precisam mostrar respeito pelos anciãos mais velhos e mais experientes, e ter paciência. (Lev. 19:32) Os anciãos mais velhos não devem ficar ofendidos quando um ancião mais jovem respeito-samente dá uma sugestão ou um conselho. (Ecl. 7:9) A humildade vai ajudar vocês a aceitarem conselhos. (Pro. 12:15) Mesmo que um conselho pareça não fazer muito sentido, tentem tirar algo de bom dele. Tenham em mente que a paz e o bem-estar da congregação são mais importantes do que interesses pessoais. — 1 Cor. 10:23, 24.

MANTENHAM A CONFIDENCIALIDADE

14. Os anciãos devem tomar muito cuidado para não divulgar assuntos confidenciais. Se um ancião divulga assuntos confidenciais de pessoas da congregação, ele perde a confiança delas e mancha sua própria reputação. (Pro. 11:13) Isso pode acontecer sem querer se ele considerar assuntos confidenciais (pessoalmente ou por telefone) quando outros estiverem por perto. Por amor a sua esposa, um ancião não vai sobrecarregá-la com informações que ela não precisa saber.

15. Os anciãos nunca devem gravar conversas confidenciais, como visitas de pastoreio, reuniões de anciãos, audiências judicativas, investigações de supostos pecados ou conversas com Betel. Isso se aplica em todos os tipos de conversas (sejam presenciais, por telefone ou por videoconferência), mesmo que os envolvidos concordem que a conversa seja gravada.

1. A comissão de serviço da congregação é formada pelo coordenador do corpo de anciãos, pelo secretário e pelo superintendente de serviço. Algumas responsabilidades são cuidadas pela comissão de serviço, mas ela sempre trabalha debaixo da supervisão do corpo de anciãos. Quando um dos membros da comissão de serviço está ausente, outro ancião pode substituí-lo. Os anciãos que fazem parte dessa comissão devem tomar decisões que estejam de acordo com a Bíblia, com as instruções da organização e com o ponto de vista dos outros anciãos do corpo. A comissão de serviço não é independente do corpo de anciãos, e a opinião dos anciãos que fazem parte dela não vale mais do que a dos outros anciãos. A comissão deve consultar outros anciãos sempre que achar necessário. Por exemplo, se uma decisão envolve algo incomum ou se a comissão não tem certeza do que os outros anciãos pensam, todos os anciãos do corpo devem considerar o assunto juntos e tomar uma decisão. — Veja 1:5; 9:4; 23:5; od cap. 5 pars. 35-37.

2. Em congregações onde não há anciãos suficientes para assumir todas as funções da comissão de serviço, servos ministeriais qualificados podem ser usados para substituir membros dessa comissão. Por exemplo, eles podem ser autorizados a assinar petições ou cartas de apresentação, desde que esses documentos não tratem de assuntos delicados ou confidenciais. Se for necessário enviar algum documento com assuntos assim, ele deve ser escrito e assinado apenas por anciãos. Se não houver anciãos na congregação, isso pode ser feito por um ancião de uma congregação vizinha que conhece a situação ou pelo superintendente de circuito.

3. As responsabilidades da comissão de serviço incluem:

(1) Decidir locais e horários de todas as saídas de campo, e designar os publicadores para os grupos, incluindo os inativos. Antes de tomar essas decisões, a comissão deve consultar os superintendentes dos grupos envolvidos. — Veja 1:2.8; 25:14.

(2) Designar publicadores para dirigir estudos bíblicos para inativos que temporariamente precisam de ajuda espiritual. — Veja 25:16.

(3) Aprovar que um publicador relate períodos de 15 minutos de serviço de campo. — Veja 22:14.

(4) Aprovar os pedidos de hospedagem para assembleias e congressos feitos por publicadores com necessidades especiais. — Veja o documento Instruções sobre Pedido Especial de Hospedagem (CO-5ai).

(5) Assinar correspondências em nome do corpo de anciãos. — Veja 22:1-8.

(6) Enviar uma carta de recomendação para a filial apropriada quando um publicador está planejando se mudar e quer informações sobre congregações que precisam de ajuda. — od cap. 10 par. 9.

(7) Tomar a decisão final sobre os locais em que o testemunho público será feito, quais publicadores poderão participar, que equipamentos serão usados e em que locais eles serão guardados. — Veja 23:5-17.

(8) Aprovar publicadores para participar no testemunho em prisões, escolas, universidades, asilos e casas de repouso. — Veja 23:18-19; 28:1-20.

(9) Aprovar designações e remoções de pioneiros regulares. (Veja 9:1-5.) Cuidar de todo o processo envolvendo petições para privilégios de serviço, como a do serviço de pioneiro auxiliar. (Veja 22:25.) Analisar as atividades dos pioneiros regulares que não conseguiram fechar as horas do ano. — Veja 9:16-17.

(10) Aprovar que o Salão do Reino seja usado para realizar um casamento ou funeral. — Veja 27:6.

(11) Decidir quais funções adicionais cada ancião ou servo ministerial precisa ter no jw.org. — Veja o documento Instruções sobre Como Usar o JW.ORG (S-135).

(12) Designar anciãos para entrar em contato com as pessoas que pediram para não serem mais visitadas. — Veja 23:22.

(13) Planejar com antecedência, junto com os superintendentes de grupo, o que será feito para ajudar os que têm necessidades especiais em situações de desastre ou emergência. — Veja o capítulo 26.

(14) Decidir com antecedência o que poderá ser feito para proteger os arquivos da congregação se um desastre estiver prestes a acontecer. — Veja o capítulo 26.

4. Às vezes, a comissão de serviço ou o corpo de anciãos precisa determinar se um publicador tem boa reputação ou não. Nessas situações, os anciãos devem levar em conta os fatores e as circunstâncias específicas de cada caso. Um publicador tem boa reputação quando: (1) não está sob nenhuma restrição imposta por uma comissão judicativa ou por Betel, (2) sua conduta não está manchando o nome da congregação e (3) outras pessoas não ficariam incomodadas nem tropeçariam caso ele recebesse certo privilégio. No entanto, ser exemplar envolve mais do que simplesmente ter boa reputação. Para uma pessoa ser exemplar, sua conduta e seu modo de adorar a Jeová devem servir de exemplo para outros. Ela precisa ser exemplar no ministério, na assistência às reuniões, na vida familiar, na escolha de diversão, no modo de se vestir e de se arrumar, e assim por diante. Para fazer oração nas reuniões, para servir como pioneiro auxiliar ou regular, ou para ter outros privilégios especiais, a pessoa deve ser exemplar. — Veja 1:2.8.

Coordenador do corpo de anciãos

Parágrafos

DESIGNAÇÃO

1. O superintendente de circuito é quem designa o coordenador do corpo de anciãos, levando em conta o que o corpo de anciãos recomenda. Se for necessário mudar o coordenador, o superintendente de circuito fará isso durante sua visita. Se o corpo de anciãos fizer um ajuste temporário entre as visitas do superintendente de circuito, a comissão de serviço deve informar o superintendente imediatamente e explicar o motivo do ajuste. Sempre que uma mudança for feita, temporária ou permanente, o formulário Coordenador do Corpo de Anciãos/Secretário — Mudança de Endereço (S-29) deve ser enviado para o Departamento de Serviço. O corpo de anciãos pode designar outro ancião como ajudante do coordenador. Se o coordenador for se ausentar da congregação temporariamente, o corpo de anciãos pode escolher outro ancião para substituí-lo nesse período.

QUALIFICAÇÕES

2. O coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve ter menos de 80 anos. Ele deve ser conhecido como alguém leal a Jeová e à sua organização. Se possível, ele já deve estar servindo como ancião há vários anos. Além de acessível, ele deve ser respeitado pelo seu zelo no ministério e pelo seu trabalho como pastor. Ele deve ser um bom organizador e cuidar bem de suas responsabilidades. Ele deve ter um ponto de vista modesto sobre seu papel na congregação e ser humilde, dando valor aos outros anciãos do corpo e ouvindo seus conselhos. Ele é o coordenador do corpo de anciãos, não da congregação. — Pro. 15:22; Mat. 23:8.

Ele prepara e distribui a pauta das reuniões dos anciãos. — Veja 1:3-11.

(5) Designar dois anciãos (um deles membro da comissão de serviço) para se reunir com cada pessoa que quiser se tornar publicador. (od cap. 8 pars. 6-12)

(8) Designar dois anciãos para informar um ancião ou um servo ministerial sobre sua remoção quando essa decisão for tomada entre as visitas do superintendente de circuito. Se o irmão apelar dessa decisão, o coordenador deve informar o superintendente de circuito. — Veja 8:35, 39.

(10) Decidir, de acordo com as orientações da organização, se um assunto pode ser cuidado por um ou mais anciãos do corpo ou se todo o corpo de anciãos deve ser envolvido. — Veja 2:1.

(11) Cuidar para que as decisões do corpo de anciãos e as orientações recebidas de Betel sejam seguidas.

(12) Providenciar que anciãos recém-designados e anciãos que se mudam para a congregação saibam das orientações que o Departamento de Serviço enviou sobre alguém que tem restrições impostas por Betel. — Veja 14:22-24.

(14) Analisar e aprovar todos os anúncios feitos para a congregação.

(18) Coordenar o trabalho dos indicadores, do coordenador de discursos públicos e dos que cuidam do palco, som e vídeo.

(19) Designar o presidente da reunião do fim de semana e o leitor da revista A Sentinela. Outro ancião ou servo ministerial pode ser usado para ajudar nessas tarefas. — Veja 6:9.

QUALIFICAÇÕES

1. O secretário é escolhido pelo corpo de anciãos. Ele deve ser alguém que sabe organizar as coisas e que não fica adiando suas tarefas. (Rom. 12:11) O secretário deve saber escrever de forma clara e fácil de entender. O corpo de anciãos pode designar outro ancião como ajudante do secretário. Se for necessário, um servo ministerial qualificado pode ser designado pelo corpo de anciãos para ajudar o secretário com algumas tarefas, como registrar os relatórios de serviço de campo e enviar o relatório geral da congregação para Betel. Se houver uma mudança de secretário, os anciãos devem informar Betel usando o formulário Coordenador do Corpo de Anciãos/Secretário — Mudança de Endereço (S-29).

RESPONSABILIDADES

2. As responsabilidades do secretário incluem:

(1) Trabalhar junto com o coordenador do corpo de anciãos para garantir que todos os anciãos tenham acesso às correspondências enviadas ao corpo de anciãos. — Veja o capítulo 22.

(2) Analisar, junto com o superintendente de serviço, as atividades dos pioneiros regulares no meio do ano de serviço. — Veja 9:15.

Superintendente de serviço

QUALIFICAÇÕES

1. O superintendente de serviço é escolhido pelo corpo de anciãos. Ele deve ser alguém que dá bastante atenção à participação dos publicadores no ministério e à qualidade do trabalho que fazem. Ele tem uma atitude muito positiva sobre o ministério e incentiva os publicadores a darem o seu melhor. Ele tem habilidade nos diferentes aspectos do trabalho de pregação. Além disso, ele sabe treinar outros e procura oportunidades para fazer isso. O corpo de anciãos pode designar outro ancião como ajudante dele.

RESPONSABILIDADES

2. As responsabilidades do superintendente de serviço incluem:

(1) Fazer com que todo o território da congregação seja bem trabalhado e supervisionar o trabalho do servo de territórios. — Veja 23:1-4.

(2) Designar irmãos ou irmãs para dirigir as reuniões para o serviço de campo, de acordo com a necessidade. (Veja 7:2.2.) Ele organiza o trabalho que será feito nos feriados e nas campanhas especiais.

(3) Verificar se é necessária alguma autorização ou licença para realizar o testemunho público. Ele também deve providenciar o treinamento inicial para os que vão participar no testemunho público, fazer a programação para esse trabalho e decidir quais publicações serão usadas. — Veja 23:5-17.

(4) Supervisionar o trabalho do servo de publicações. Isso inclui garantir que qualquer pessoa da congregação que seja surda, cega ou deficiente visual possa pedir as publicações no formato que desejar. — Veja 1:2.7 e o documento Orientações sobre Pedidos de Publicações e Inventário (S-56).

(5) Visitar um grupo de serviço de campo todo mês. (Em congregações com poucos grupos, ele pode programar duas visitas por ano para cada grupo.) Durante a visita, ele dirige as reuniões para o serviço de campo, trabalha com o grupo no ministério e aproveita para dar boas sugestões se for necessário. Ele analisa os Registros de Publicador de Congregação (S-21) com o superintendente do grupo e seu ajudante, e considera com eles se a programação para o serviço de campo está dando bons resultados.

(6) Garantir que a congregação tenha uma quantidade suficiente de formulários.

(7) Analisar, junto com o secretário, as atividades dos pioneiros regulares no meio do ano de serviço. — Veja 9:15.

(8) Treinar os publicadores para dar testemunho em escolas, universidades, casas de repouso e asilos. — Veja 23:18-19.

Dirigente do estudo da Sentinela

QUALIFICAÇÕES

1. O dirigente do estudo da Sentinela é escolhido pelo corpo de anciãos. Ele deve ser um dos melhores instrutores do corpo, já que a revista A Sentinela é a principal ferramenta que o escravo fiel e prudente usa para fornecer alimento espiritual. (Tia. 3:1) Ele deve ser alguém que possa "falar com grande confiança", ou seja, alguém que pratica aquilo que ensina. (1 Tim. 3:13) O corpo de anciãos pode designar um ancião para ajudar o dirigente. É ele que vai dirigir o estudo da Sentinela quando o dirigente estiver ausente.

COMO DIRIGIR O ESTUDO

2. O dirigente deve se preparar bem para fazer uma breve introdução de no máximo 1 minuto e meio. Ele deve chamar atenção para o tema e o texto temático e, com entusiasmo, criar expectativa sobre o artigo que vai ser estudado. Ele pode fazer isso usando os subtítulos, as perguntas de recapitulação, o resumo que aparece em "O que vamos ver" ou levantando duas ou três perguntas que serão respondidas durante o estudo.

3. O dirigente não deve falar demais durante o estudo e também não deve resumir ou complementar os comentários dos irmãos.

Se os irmãos não comentarem um ponto importante, ele pode fazer uma pergunta adicional, levando alguém a comentar o ponto desejado. Mas fazer perguntas adicionais sem necessidade pode fazer com que os irmãos percam a motivação de comentar.

4. O dirigente deve se concentrar no tema e nos pontos principais do artigo, não em pequenos detalhes. Ele deve usar bem as gravuras e ajudar a assistência a ver o valor prático do artigo. Além disso, ele não deve incluir muitos detalhes de suas pesquisas, mesmo que sejam de nossas publicações.

5. O dirigente deve dar destaque para a Bíblia. Ele deve decidir se os textos com a observação "leia" serão lidos pelo irmão designado para ler os parágrafos ou por outra pessoa da assistência que tenha boa leitura. A leitura dos parágrafos não deve ser interrompida para a leitura desses textos. Quando o texto "leia" for citado bem no início do parágrafo, ele deve ser lido antes do parágrafo. Mas, quando ele for citado no meio ou no final do parágrafo, deve-se ler o parágrafo primeiro, e o dirigente pode decidir quando o texto vai ser lido. Por exemplo, ele pode preferir que o texto seja lido antes da pergunta, principalmente se a resposta estiver no texto. Ou pode preferir que o texto seja lido mais tarde, durante a consideração do parágrafo.

6. As notas não devem ser lidas pelo irmão designado para ler os parágrafos. O dirigente deve decidir como usar as notas na consideração da matéria. Depois da leitura do parágrafo, ele pode escolher alguém da assistência para ler as notas ou pedir um comentário sobre elas. Em alguns casos, ele pode optar por não considerar as notas. As informações entre parênteses ou colchetes no parágrafo geralmente são lidas em voz alta. Mas as referências que simplesmente mostram a fonte da matéria, como, por exemplo, as citações de textos bíblicos, não devem ser lidas em voz alta.

7. O dirigente deve incentivar todos na assistência a comentar e, com jeito, lembrá-los de que o primeiro comentário deve ser uma resposta direta à pergunta do parágrafo. Depois dessa resposta direta, a assistência pode comentar os textos citados e outros pontos do parágrafo, fazer aplicações e assim por diante. O dirigente deve chamar uma pessoa de cada vez e incentivar a assistência a comentar em suas próprias palavras. Ele não deve chamar a atenção dos irmãos se eles demorarem para levantar a mão.

8. No final do estudo, o dirigente deve fazer as perguntas de recapitulação. Seus comentários finais não devem passar de um minuto e meio. O estudo todo deve durar no máximo uma hora, sem contar os cânticos e a oração final.

9. Apenas irmãos exemplares que sejam excelentes leitores devem ser aprovados pelo corpo de anciãos para fazer a leitura dos parágrafos. Se não houver irmãos com essas qualificações, irmãs qualificadas podem ser usadas. Os leitores devem ser designados com antecedência. (Veja 3:3.19.) É melhor que a leitura seja feita por alguém qualificado no local do estudo. Mas, se isso não for possível, as gravações do jw.org podem ser usadas.

Superintendente de grupo

QUALIFICAÇÕES

1. O corpo de anciãos deve designar um superintendente de grupo e um ajudante para cada grupo de serviço de campo. O superintendente de grupo tem a responsabilidade de ajudar todos os publicadores de seu grupo a progredir. (1 Tim. 4:15; Heb. 12:12) Ele deve estar sempre atento às necessidades das ovelhas e cuidar delas com amor. (Isa. 32:2) Por ser zeloso no ministério, ele motiva outros a continuarem ativos na pregação. (Heb. 13:15-17) O papel dos superintendentes de grupo é muito importante. Por isso, o corpo de anciãos deve escolher os anciãos que estiverem mais qualificados para cumprir todos os aspectos dessa designação. Se não houver anciãos suficientes com condições de servir como superintendentes de grupo ou ajudantes de grupo, servos ministeriais podem ser usados como servos de grupo ou ajudantes de grupo. Se não houver servos ministeriais suficientes para servir como ajudantes de grupo, publicadores batizados exemplares podem ser usados. Os outros anciãos e servos ministeriais do grupo devem ficar atentos e estar dispostos a ajudar o superintendente do grupo e seu ajudante a cumprirem suas responsabilidades. — Efé. 4:15, 16; od cap. 5 pars. 29-34.

RESPONSABILIDADES

2. As responsabilidades do superintendente de grupo incluem:

(1) Estar sempre preocupado com o bem-estar físico e espiritual de cada publicador do grupo. Ele faz isso por manter contato com cada família toda semana, se possível. — Tia. 1:27; 2:15, 16; veja o capítulo 25.

(2) Tomar a liderança no ministério quando o grupo se reúne para o serviço de campo, principalmente nos finais de semana. De vez em quando, ele pode designar seu ajudante ou outro irmão para dirigir a saída de campo. Se o superintendente de grupo não puder estar presente, ele deve providenciar que seu ajudante ou outro irmão cuide do grupo. — Veja 1:2.8.

(3) Trabalhar regularmente no ministério com cada publicador do grupo para dar encorajamento e treinamento nos vários aspectos do trabalho de pregação e ensino. — Luc. 8:1.

(4) Programar visitas de pastoreio regulares para todos os publicadores do grupo. — Veja o capítulo 25.

(5) Planejar com antecedência, junto com a comissão de serviço, o que será feito para ajudar os que têm necessidades especiais em situações de desastre ou emergência. — Veja o capítulo 26.

(6) Analisar periodicamente com seu ajudante as atividades de todos os publicadores do grupo para ver no que cada um deles está se saindo bem e no que pode melhorar.

(7) Reunir-se com os publicadores de seu grupo que completarem um ano de batismo para dar encorajamento e sugestões. Ele faz essa reunião junto com um ancião designado pelo coordenador do corpo de anciãos. — Veja 4:2.7; od pp. 211-212.

(8) Ajudar os irmãos batizados do grupo que são exemplares a progredir e treiná-los para assumirem mais responsabilidades na congregação.

Designação e remoção de anciãos e servos ministeriais

QUALIFICAÇÕES ESPIRITUAIS

1. Antes de se reunir com o corpo de anciãos para considerar a recomendação de servos ministeriais ou anciãos, cada ancião deve recapitular as qualificações bíblicas encontradas em 1 Timóteo 3:1-13; Tito 1:5-9; Tiago 3:17, 18 e 1 Pedro 5:2, 3. Os comentários dos capítulos 5 e 6 do livro Organizados podem ser de ajuda. Um irmão só pode ser designado servo ministerial se for batizado há pelo menos um ano.

2. Na reunião, que deve começar com oração, os anciãos devem ler as qualificações bíblicas diretamente na Bíblia. É verdade que ninguém é capaz de cumprir todos os requisitos bíblicos de modo perfeito. Mas o irmão avaliado deve satisfazer razoavelmente es-ses requisitos, ou seja, ele não pode ter uma falha significativa em nenhum deles. É muito importante para o superintendente de circuito que os anciãos tenham bom senso e discernimento ao avaliarem as qualificações bíblicas de alguém.

3. O que qualifica um irmão para ser designado é sua espiritualidade, não suas habilidades. Deve ser evidente que ele tem o espírito santo de Jeová e que é zeloso de boas obras. Considerem as seguintes perguntas: Ele é regular na assistência às reuniões e dá um bom exemplo participando nelas? É zeloso no ministério, levando em conta sua idade, saúde, e responsabilidades familiares e teocráticas? (Veja 23:25-26.) Tem o hábito de estudar a Bíblia? Ele se esforça para ajudar espiritualmente a família? Estuda regularmente com sua esposa e filhos que moram em sua casa? Ele demonstra os aspectos do fruto do espírito em sua vida? — Gál. 5:22, 23.

4. O irmão que está sendo avaliado é quem precisa cumprir os requisitos bíblicos, mas também é necessário pensar na espiritualidade da família dele. Se a esposa dele for batizada, ela dá um bom exemplo? Se ela está espiritualmente fraca, ele está fazendo o que é possível para ajudá-la? Ele considera a adoração em família como uma prioridade? Caso ele tenha filhos menores de idade, eles são bem-comportados e "crentes", ou seja, estão progredindo com o objetivo de se dedicar a Jeová ou até mesmo já são Testemunhas de Jeová batizadas? Sua família participa nas reuniões na medida do possível? Caso ele tenha filhos adultos que morem com ele, como eles se comportam? — Tito 1:6; veja 8:22.

5. Os anciãos devem ajudar os irmãos que estão no fim da adolescência a progredir e a se qualificar para servir como servos ministeriais. (w21.08 pp. 26-31) Ao analisarem as qualificações de um irmão nessa situação, pensem nas seguintes perguntas: Ele é respeitado pelos irmãos da congregação como um homem espiritual? (1 Cor. 2:15, 16) Ele demonstra "o fruto do espírito"?

(Gál. 5:22, 23) Ele tem uma boa participação no ministério? A forma como ele usa o tempo mostra que ele coloca o Reino em primeiro lugar? Suas conversas e seus comentários mostram que ele tem bons hábitos de estudo pessoal? Que alvos espirituais ele tem? Ele foi "examinado quanto à aptidão"? (1 Tim. 3:10; Sal. 1:1, 2; Mat. 6:33; Efé. 4:29; veja 1:6.4-5.) Os irmãos que são designados como servos ministeriais no fim da adolescência ou com uns 20 e poucos anos de idade podem ganhar muita experiência ao cuidar de diversas responsabilidades na organização. Quando esses servos ministeriais aplicam o treinamento dos anciãos, eles ganham o respeito e o apreço da congregação. Mesmo que sejam relativamente jovens em idade, servos ministeriais que são acima da média talvez já sejam vistos como pessoas bem maduras em sentido espiritual e já se qualifiquem para servir como anciãos com uns 25 anos de idade, ou até mesmo com uns 20 e poucos anos. — Fil. 2:20-22; 1 Tim. 3:1; w18.08 pp. 11-12 pars. 15-17.

CUIDADOS AO RECOMENDAR CERTOS IRMÃOS

6. Os anciãos devem ter todas as informações sobre os irmãos que eles pretendem recomendar para o superintendente de circuito. Isso é ainda mais importante no caso dos irmãos que estão nas situações a seguir.

7. Alguém que já foi repreendido, desassociado ou pediu dissociação: Se o irmão foi repreendido nos últimos três anos ou readmitido nos últimos cinco anos, forneçam as respostas das seguintes perguntas para o superintendente de circuito: Qual foi o pecado dele? Se o irmão foi repreendido, isso foi anunciado para a congregação? Se ele foi desassociado ou se dissociou, em que data ele foi readmitido? Quando as últimas restrições foram retiradas? Ele já tinha sido repreendido, desassociado ou se dissociado em outra ocasião? O que convence vocês de que ele recuperou sua boa reputação e que agora as pessoas o veem como bom exemplo? Se o pecado aconteceu em outra congregação, como os irmãos daquela congregação iriam reagir caso ele fosse designado? Vocês não devem se precipitar em recomendar um irmão nessa situação. Isso pode fazer com que ele e outros não encarem o pecado com tanta seriedade. Fazer isso também poderia perturbar os que ainda têm bem vivo na mente o que aconteceu.

8. Se o pecado foi adultério, forneçam as respostas das seguintes perguntas adicionais: O casamento dele continuou depois do adultério? Se não, qual é seu estado civil atual? O adultério fez com que o casamento da outra pessoa acabasse? Ele conseguiu recuperar a confiança das pessoas que souberam do adultério? Ele tem um bom testemunho de pessoas tanto de dentro como de fora da congregação? — Veja 12:10-12.

9. Alguém que se separou ou se divorciou sem base bíblica: Quem foi o principal responsável pelos problemas no casamento? Que circunstâncias levaram à separação ou ao divórcio? Quem decidiu se separar ou pedir o divórcio? Os dois assinaram documentos ou indicaram de outra maneira que concordam com a separação ou com o divórcio? Quanto tempo faz que eles se separaram ou se divorciaram? O que o irmão está fazendo para se reconciliar com sua esposa? É a esposa que não está disposta a se reconciliar? Nesse caso, quais são os motivos dela? Como as congregações envolvidas encaram a situação do irmão? O que os anciãos da congregação da esposa pensam sobre ele? Quando um casal se separa ou se divorcia, tanto o marido como a esposa podem ter falhado. Suas falhas podem fazer com que um deles (ou os dois) deixe de ser exemplar e não possa receber privilégios especiais. — Veja 1:2.8; 2:4; w00 15/12 pp. 28-29; lvs pp. 250-251.

10. Alguém que já foi ancião ou servo ministerial: Se o irmão era ancião ou servo ministerial há menos de cinco anos, forneçam as respostas das seguintes perguntas: Em que congregação ele serviu como ancião ou servo ministerial? Quando ele deixou de ser ancião ou servo ministerial? Qual foi o motivo? A situação dele agora é diferente? O que mudou? Que progresso ele tem feito desde que deixou de ser ancião ou servo ministerial? Se isso aconteceu em outra congregação, como os irmãos daquela congregação reagiriam caso ele fosse designado novamente? Um irmão que servia como ancião e que não perdeu seu privilégio por causa de um pecado grave talvez não tenha que servir primeiro como servo ministerial, dependendo de quanto tempo se passou desde sua remoção. — Veja 13:8.

11. Alguém que está batizado há muitos anos e só agora está sendo recomendado: O que impediu o irmão de ser recomendado antes?

QUANDO UM ANCIÃO OU SERVO MINISTERIAL SE MUDA PARA OUTRA CONGREGAÇÃO

12. Sempre que um ancião ou servo ministerial se mudar, a comissão de serviço deve escrever uma carta de apresentação. A não ser que o corpo de anciãos tenha sérias dúvidas sobre as qualificações do irmão, essa carta deve deixar claro que eles recomendam que o irmão continue servindo em seu privilégio na nova congregação. Essa carta também deve informar em que designações esse irmão tem experiência. (Veja 22:5-8.) Se o corpo de anciãos tiver sérias dúvidas sobre as qualificações do irmão, eles devem se reunir o mais rápido possível para decidir se vão recomendar que o irmão continue servindo como ancião ou servo ministerial. (Veja 8:31-33.) Se a decisão for não o recomendar, dois ou mais anciãos devem se reunir com o irmão e explicar os motivos bíblicos que levaram o corpo de anciãos a tomar essa decisão. A carta de apresentação deve informar claramente as preocupações do corpo de anciãos, os conselhos que foram dados para ele e se ele concorda com a decisão. (Veja 8:38.)

Não importa qual tenha sido a recomendação dos anciãos, na próxima visita do superintendente de circuito, eles devem informá-lo de que o irmão se mudou.

QUANDO UM ANCIÃO OU SERVO MINISTERIAL SE MUDA PARA A CONGREGAÇÃO

13. Quando um ancião ou servo ministerial se muda para outra congregação com uma carta de recomendação favorável e tem uma recomendação favorável dos anciãos da nova congregação, ele pode ser usado de acordo com suas habilidades para fazer partes na reunião do meio de semana e discursos públicos, mesmo que ainda não tenha sido redesignado na nova congregação. (Veja 22:6.7.) Ele também pode assistir à Escola do Ministério do Reino. Além disso, na reunião do superintendente de circuito com anciãos e servos ministeriais, ele pode assistir à parte da reunião em que os servos ministeriais estão presentes. Se o irmão era ancião na congregação anterior e o esboço do superintendente incluir informações apenas para os anciãos, ele também pode assistir a essa parte da reunião. Mas ele não deve estar presente quando as recomendações e as necessidades da congregação forem consideradas. Enquanto ele não for redesignado, ele também não pode fazer parte de nenhuma comissão judicativa ou estar presente nas reuniões do corpo de anciãos.

14. Mesmo que um ancião ou servo ministerial costume se mudar para uma segunda residência em certas épocas do ano, ele deve continuar designado em apenas uma congregação. Essa congregação deve manter seus Registros de Publicador de Congregação (S-21). Toda vez que ele se mudar, os anciãos da congregação que mantém seus registros devem escrever uma carta para a congregação temporária, explicando a situação do irmão e como ele estava sendo usado. Os anciãos da congregação temporária podem dar para ele algumas tarefas e responsabilidades de acordo com o que diz o parágrafo anterior. Mesmo que ele fique fora por mais de três meses, ele deve enviar seu relatório de serviço de campo para a congregação que mantém seus registros.

RECOMENDAÇÕES PARA DESIGNAÇÃO NA VISITA REGULAR DO SUPERINTENDENTE DE CIRCUITO

15. A comissão de serviço da congregação deve enviar para o superintendente de circuito o nome completo, a data de nascimento e a data de batismo de cada irmão que o corpo de anciãos recomenda para servir como ancião ou servo ministerial. Isso deve ser feito pelo menos um mês antes da visita, usando o formulário Recomendações para Designação de Anciãos e Servos Ministeriais (S-62). (Veja o documento Instruções sobre Como Usar o JW.ORG [S-135].) Se houver um servo ministerial servindo como substituto na comissão de serviço, ele não deve participar da consideração de nenhuma recomendação nem ficar sabendo delas. Os servos ministeriais não devem ter nenhum acesso aos formulários ou correspondências relacionadas com a designação ou remoção de anciãos e servos ministeriais.

16. O superintendente de circuito deve receber qualquer informação que tenha a ver com as qualificações dos irmãos recomendados. Isso inclui cartas de recomendação de outras congregações (ou talvez cartas de apresentação). (Veja 8:6-11.) O corpo de anciãos deve fornecer essas informações quando estiverem faltando um ou dois dias para o início da visita, talvez quando os outros registros da congregação forem fornecidos. Na reunião que o superintendente faz com os anciãos na semana da visita, ele vai considerar as qualificações bíblicas de cada irmão recomendado. (Veja 8:1-5.) Se o superintendente de circuito entender que um irmão não satisfaz razoavelmente os requisitos, ele vai informar isso aos anciãos e dizer o que eles podem fazer para ajudar o irmão a se qualificar no futuro.

17. Quando o superintendente de circuito decide designar um irmão, ele e outro ancião devem se reunir com o irmão para informá-lo de que ele está sendo designado. Se o irmão estiver sendo (1) designado pela primeira vez como servo ministerial ou (2) redesignado como ancião ou servo ministerial por um motivo que não seja mudança de congregação, o superintendente de circuito deve fazer as seguintes perguntas: (1) Há alguma coisa na sua vida pessoal, familiar ou algo no seu passado, mesmo antes do batismo, que poderia desqualificar ou impedir você de aceitar essa designação? (2) Há algum outro motivo para que essa designação não seja anunciada à congregação? (3) Você, como adulto, já se envolveu alguma vez em abuso sexual de menores? Se o irmão responder "não" às perguntas, o superintendente de circuito fornecerá aos anciãos uma carta de designação assinada. Nessa carta, o nome do irmão será incluído junto com os nomes dos outros irmãos que foram designados na visita. A designação deverá ser anunciada à congregação na próxima reunião do meio de semana.

18. Pode ser que o irmão que está sendo designado não esteja presente no final da visita e que seja necessário fazer a ele as três perguntas mencionadas no parágrafo anterior. Nesse caso, se o superintendente de circuito deixar uma carta de designação com os anciãos por causa de outros irmãos que estão sendo designados, o nome desse irmão não será incluído na carta. Em vez disso, quando o irmão voltar, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos deverá designar dois anciãos para fazer as três perguntas a ele. Depois disso, o coordenador informará ao superintendente de circuito as respostas do irmão. Se ele tiver respondido "não" a todas as perguntas, o anúncio da designação será feito para a congregação na primeira reunião do meio de semana depois que os anciãos tiverem recebido a carta de designação assinada pelo superintendente de circuito.

19. Se o irmão que está sendo designado não estiver presente no final da visita, mas não for necessário fazer para ele as três perguntas mencionadas no parágrafo 17, o nome dele será incluído na carta de designação que o superintendente de circuito deixará com os anciãos no fim da visita. Quando o irmão voltar, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos deverá designar dois anciãos para se reunir com ele e informá-lo de que ele está sendo designado. Isso deve ser feito antes que o anúncio da designação seja dado para a congregação.

20. Quando o superintendente de circuito decide não designar um irmão, dois anciãos podem falar com esse irmão numa ocasião apropriada e explicar o que ele precisa fazer para se qualificar. Eles devem escolher com cuidado o que vão dizer para não dar a entender ao irmão que ele tinha sido recomendado. Por outro lado, talvez não seja necessário falar com o irmão se o superintendente não aprovou sua designação apenas porque ele precisa de mais tempo para desenvolver madureza e experiência ou para recuperar sua boa reputação.

RECOMENDAÇÕES PARA DESIGNAÇÃO ENTRE AS VISITAS REGULARES DO SUPERINTENDENTE DE CIRCUITO

21. Quando um ancião ou servo ministerial se muda para a congregação com uma carta de recomendação favorável e a visita do superintendente de circuito não está próxima, o corpo de anciãos não precisa esperar para recomendar sua redesignação. Nesses casos, a comissão de serviço da congregação deve enviar para o superintendente de circuito o formulário Recomendações para Designação de Anciãos e Servos Ministeriais (S-62) e uma cópia da carta de recomendação da comissão de serviço da congregação anterior. Se o superintendente aprovar a recomendação, ele enviará uma carta de designação para o corpo de anciãos. O irmão que está sendo redesignado deve ser informado de sua designação antes que ela seja anunciada à congregação.

SITUAÇÕES EM QUE É NECESSÁRIO REAVALIAR AS QUALIFICAÇÕES DE UM ANCIÃO OU SERVO MINISTERIAL

22. Quando alguém da família que mora na mesma casa comete um pecado grave: Sempre que um filho ou a esposa de um servo ministerial ou ancião cometer um pecado grave, o corpo de anciãos deve avaliar se o irmão foi negligente. Isso também se aplica no caso de filhos adultos que ainda moram na casa do irmão. Ele foi liberal demais? Ele estava atento para dar ajuda necessária, tentando evitar possíveis problemas? Ele fazia a adoração em família regularmente? Ele dava atenção às necessidades da família e dedicava tempo para ela? Quando ele soube que o pecado tinha sido cometido, ele informou o corpo de anciãos imediatamente para que eles pudessem cuidar do assunto? Ele tentou impedir sua família de receber disciplina? Tentou influenciar o modo de os anciãos cuidarem do assunto? A congregação ainda respeita o irmão e confia nele como um chefe de família exemplar? Se um dos filhos do irmão cometeu um pecado grave, os outros filhos estão bem em sentido espiritual? Pode ser que um irmão esteja fazendo tudo o que se espera dele como chefe de família e, ainda assim, um membro da família que mora em sua casa acabe cometendo um pecado grave. Se isso acontecer, ele não necessariamente precisaria perder seus privilégios, principalmente se os outros membros da família que moram em sua casa estiverem servindo a Jeová fielmente e se ele ainda for respeitado pelos irmãos da congregação.

23. Quando o irmão permite que um membro de sua família que foi desassociado ou que se dissociou se mude para sua casa: A pessoa desassociada ou dissociada não tem condições de morar sozinha, ou ela se mudou apenas por comodidade? O irmão teve bons motivos para deixar a pessoa voltar, ou foi principalmente para que os outros membros da família pudessem ter algum contato com ela? A família evitava ter contato com a pessoa antes de ela voltar para casa? A pessoa vai ficar morando na casa por muito tempo? Qual é a conduta do desassociado ou dissociado? Como essa mudança está afetando a espiritualidade dos outros membros da família, principalmente a dos outros filhos? A decisão do irmão perturbou a congregação? Será que muitos irmãos perderam o respeito que tinham por ele? Perguntas como essas também devem ser consideradas quando um filho adulto de um ancião ou servo ministerial é desassociado ou pede dissociação e o irmão permite que ele continue morando com ele.

24. Quando o irmão apoia o casamento de um cristão batizado com alguém não batizado: Os anciãos e os servos ministeriais devem defender os padrões de Jeová do que é certo e errado. E a Bíblia deixa claro que um cristão deve se casar "somente no Senhor", ou seja, com alguém dedicado e batizado. (1 Cor. 7:39; 2 Cor. 6:14, 15; Tito 1:8; w04 01/07 p. 31; lvs pp. 134-136) Essa ordem se aplica a todos os cristãos, incluindo os inativos. Um ancião ou servo ministerial coloca em dúvida suas qualificações se ele incentiva ou aprova um casamento contrário a essa ordem bíblica, não importa se ele faz isso por meio de palavras ou de ações, como, por exemplo, apoiando, ajudando, participando ou estando presente na cerimônia ou na festa de casamento. O mesmo acontece com quem apoia o namoro. As qualificações de um irmão também devem ser reavaliadas quando ele não se envolve pessoalmente, mas permite que sua esposa ou alguém da família que mora na sua casa se envolvam. Se a falta de bom senso de um ancião ou servo ministerial sobre esse assunto criar sérias dúvidas nos irmãos, ele talvez não esteja mais biblicamente qualificado.

25. Quando o irmão cometeu um pecado grave no passado e o assunto nunca foi tratado: O corpo de anciãos talvez decida que esse irmão pode continuar servindo como ancião ou servo ministerial apenas se os três pontos a seguir se aplicarem no caso dele: (1) A imoralidade ou outro pecado grave não aconteceu recentemente, há poucos anos. (2) Ele está totalmente arrependido e reconhece que devia ter procurado os anciãos assim que cometeu o pecado. (Pode ser que, por causa de sua consciência pesada, ele mesmo tenha confessado seu pecado e procurado ajuda.) (3) Ele está servindo lealmente por muitos anos como ancião ou servo ministerial e há provas de que ele tem as bênçãos de Jeová e o respeito da congregação.

26. Se o irmão cometeu o pecado antes de ter sido designado servo ministerial ou ancião, ele deveria ter contado isso quando os anciãos conversaram com ele antes do anúncio de sua designação. Isso deve ser levado em conta, já que esse pecado poderia ter desqualificado o irmão. Além disso, pode ser que o tipo de pecado que ele cometeu afete seriamente suas qualificações. Por exemplo, se o irmão se envolveu com abuso sexual de menores, ele não se qualificaria por muitos anos, se é que se qualificaria algum dia. — Veja 14:22-24.

27. Se o irmão cometeu o pecado há poucos anos, quando já servia como ancião ou servo ministerial, ele não está "livre de acusação", e isso o desqualifica. (1 Tim. 3:2, 10; Tito 1:6, 7) Dependendo das circunstâncias, o caso talvez tenha que ser cuidado por uma comissão judicativa. — Veja 12:56-58.

28. Quando o irmão viu pornografia: Veja 13:5-6.

SITUAÇÕES EM QUE TALVEZ SEJA NECESSÁRIO REAVALIAR AS QUALIFICAÇÕES DE UM ANCIÃO OU SERVO MINISTERIAL

29. Quando o irmão declara falência: Isso perturbou a congregação ou as pessoas de fora? Será que faltou autodomínio para o irmão na hora de usar seu dinheiro? Ele mostrou falta de sabedoria e razoabilidade ao tomar suas decisões comerciais? Ele é conhecido como alguém honesto e responsável? É visto como alguém que leva a sério suas dívidas e se sente responsável por pagá-las? Mesmo que as dívidas tenham sido canceladas, ele sente que tem a obrigação moral de pagá-las, caso a lei permita? Ele ainda tem o respeito da congregação? Ainda tem "uma boa reputação" com as pessoas de fora? — 1 Tim. 3:7, nota; w94 15/09 pp. 30-31.

30. Quando o irmão ou alguém de sua família que mora na mesma casa busca ensino superior: Quando o irmão, sua esposa ou seus filhos buscam ensino superior, os anciãos devem avaliar se o irmão mostra pelo seu modo de vida que coloca o Reino em primeiro lugar. Ele ensina sua família a buscar primeiro o Reino? Ele respeita o que o escravo fiel diz sobre os perigos do ensino superior? Sua conduta e o que ele fala mostram que ele tem o mesmo ponto de vista de Jeová sobre as coisas? Como ele é visto pela congregação? Por que ele ou sua família estão buscando ensino superior? Eles estão tendo problemas para assistir às reuniões, ter uma boa participação no ministério ou participar em outras atividades espirituais por causa do ensino superior? Eles têm alvos no serviço de Jeová?

COMO REAVALIAR AS QUALIFICAÇÕES DE ANCIÃOS E SERVOS MINISTERIAIS

31. É importante que os anciãos façam uma boa preparação antes de reavaliar as qualificações de um irmão. Pesquisem as orientações mais recentes sobre como lidar com o problema em questão. Sejam razoáveis e não tomem decisões precipitadas, baseadas apenas em opiniões pessoais. (Fil. 4:5) Não se precipitem em recomendar uma remoção. Façam isso apenas quando houver um bom motivo. Talvez seja possível ajudar o irmão a fazer os ajustes necessários para que ele possa continuar servindo como ancião ou servo ministerial. O irmão já serve fielmente por muitos anos? O que ele fez ou deixou de fazer que levantou dúvidas sobre suas qualificações? Qual foi a reação dele quando foi aconselhado? Ele já teve esse problema antes? Caso tenha recebido ajuda na época, como ele reagiu? O que ele fez agora foi tão grave a ponto de ser necessário removê-lo? Ou será que foi apenas um erro por falta de bom senso? Pode ser que a maioria dos irmãos na congregação ainda o respeite e confie nele como ancião ou servo ministerial. Além disso, pode ser que poucas pessoas saibam do que aconteceu, ou talvez ninguém. Se o irmão reconhece que errou, aprendeu com seu erro, tem uma boa atitude e está disposto a melhorar, ele talvez não precise ser removido.

32. Quando for necessário reavaliar as qualificações de um ancião, o corpo de anciãos deve considerar o assunto na presença dele, tomando os passos a seguir:

(1) Depois de orar pedindo a orientação de Jeová, todos os fatos devem ser apresentados. Façam isso de modo organizado e mantenham um ambiente respeitoso, que contribua para uma boa reunião.

(2) Deem tempo suficiente para o irmão dizer como se sente e responder a qualquer pergunta que seja feita. Peçam a opinião dele sobre os pontos que estão sendo considerados a respeito de suas qualificações.

(3) Peçam que o irmão saia da sala para que o corpo continue a considerar o assunto e decida qual será sua recomendação.

(4) Peçam que o irmão volte para a sala. Se a decisão for recomendar sua remoção, informem isso a ele e expliquem os motivos bíblicos que levaram a essa decisão.

(5) Deem oportunidade para o irmão dizer o que ele acha da decisão que o corpo tomou. Depois disso, talvez seja necessário que ele saia da sala para que vocês possam considerar novamente o assunto antes de tomar a decisão final.

33. Quando os anciãos forem reavaliar as qualificações de um servo ministerial eles devem seguir esses mesmos passos. Mas, em vez de o servo ministerial estar presente na reunião com os anciãos, geralmente é suficiente que dois anciãos o ouçam primeiro para saber o que ele tem a dizer sobre o assunto. Se o corpo de anciãos decidir recomendar sua remoção, os dois anciãos que conversaram com ele antes devem informá-lo disso. Eles também devem explicar os motivos bíblicos que levaram o corpo a tomar essa decisão e dar oportunidade para ele se expressar. Dependendo do que o irmão disser, talvez seja necessário que o corpo de anciãos considere novamente o assunto antes de tomar a decisão final.

RECOMENDAÇÕES PARA REMOÇÃO NA VISITA REGULAR DO SUPERINTENDENTE DE CIRCUITO

34. Quando um irmão faz algo que mostra falta de bom senso a ponto de justificar uma recomendação de remoção, mas o caso não exige uma comissão judicativa, geralmente é melhor que essa recomendação seja feita durante a visita do superintendente de circuito. No início da visita, o superintendente deve receber todas as informações que possam ajudá-lo a ter uma visão completa do assunto, incluindo qualquer conclusão a que o corpo de anciãos talvez já tenha chegado. (Veja 8:31-33.) Depois, na reunião com os anciãos, ele deve considerar com eles se o irmão ainda está biblicamente qualificado para continuar com seu privilégio. Se o superintendente de circuito concordar com a remoção, o irmão deve ser informado disso. Se o irmão aceitar a decisão, o superintendente fará uma carta de remoção. O anúncio de remoção deverá ser feito na próxima reunião do meio de semana. (Veja 8:38.) Se o irmão não concordar com a decisão, ele deve ser informado sobre seu direito de apelar. — Veja 8:39.

RECOMENDAÇÕES PARA REMOÇÃO ENTRE AS VISITAS REGULARES DO SUPERINTENDENTE DE CIRCUITO

35. Quando surgem sérias dúvidas sobre as qualificações de um irmão e a visita do superintendente de circuito não está próxima, o corpo de anciãos deve seguir as orientações que estão nos parágrafos 31 a 33 deste capítulo. Se, depois de reavaliar as qualificações de um irmão, o corpo de anciãos decidir recomendar sua remoção, a comissão de serviço deve enviar imediatamente a recomendação para o superintendente de circuito. Na carta para o superintendente, os anciãos devem dar todos os detalhes sobre o assunto e informar se o irmão concorda ou não com a recomendação. Enquanto isso, o irmão vai continuar servindo como ancião ou servo ministerial. O corpo de anciãos vai decidir que responsabilidades ele ainda poderá ter na congregação, dependendo das circunstâncias. Se o superintendente de circuito concordar com a remoção e entender que ela deve acontecer imediatamente, ele vai enviar uma carta de remoção ao corpo de anciãos. Depois de receber a carta, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve designar dois anciãos para informar o irmão sobre a decisão do superintendente de circuito. Se o irmão concordar com a decisão do superintendente de circuito, o anúncio de sua remoção deve ser feito na próxima reunião do meio de semana. (Veja 8:38.) Se o irmão não concordar, ele deve ser informado de que tem o direito de apelar. Nesse caso, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve informar ao superintendente de circuito que o irmão decidiu apelar, e nenhum anúncio deve ser dado à congregação. — Veja 8:39.

RENÚNCIA

36. Quando um irmão informa que quer entregar seus privilégios, dois anciãos devem conversar com ele sobre o assunto. Por que ele não quer mais servir como ancião ou servo ministerial? Ele não está mais biblicamente qualificado? Se ele está passando por alguma situação que o impede de fazer tudo o que gostaria, será que os anciãos podem dar ajuda e encorajamento? Talvez seja possível diminuir as responsabilidades dele por um tempo, até que a situação melhore. Se depois dessa conversa o irmão ainda quiser entregar seus privilégios, a comissão de serviço deve escrever ao superintendente de circuito, explicando em detalhes os motivos que levaram o irmão a abrir mão de seus privilégios. O superintendente de circuito vai enviar uma carta de remoção ao corpo de anciãos. — Veja 8:35.

REMOÇÕES POR MOTIVO JUDICATIVO OU FALECIMENTO

37. A comissão de serviço deve avisar imediatamente o superintendente de circuito quando (1) um ancião ou servo ministerial for removido por causa de uma repreensão, desassociação ou dissociação, ou (2) quando um ancião ou servo ministerial falecer. Se o motivo da remoção for repreensão, desassociação ou dissociação, os anciãos devem informar ao superintendente de circuito o tipo de pecado cometido e a decisão da comissão judicativa. O superintendente de circuito só vai enviar uma carta de remoção ao corpo de anciãos nos casos de repreensão. Nos outros casos, nenhuma carta será enviada. — Veja 8:38.

ANÚNCIOS DE REMOÇÃO

38. Em todos os casos de remoção, mesmo quando um irmão entrega seu privilégio, o anúncio deve ser feito da seguinte maneira: "O irmão [nome da pessoa] não é mais [ancião/servo ministerial]." Se um ancião ou servo ministerial se muda da congregação, nenhum anúncio de remoção deve ser feito. Quando um irmão entrega seu privilégio, não é necessário esperar que o superintendente de circuito envie a carta de remoção para dar o anúncio. Quando fica comprovado que um irmão cometeu um peca-do que justifica uma ação judicativa, o anúncio de remoção deve ser feito na próxima reunião do meio de semana, mesmo que a comissão judicativa ainda não tenha concluído o caso.

APELAÇÃO

39. Se um ancião ou servo ministerial que está sendo removido não concordar com a decisão do superintendente de circuito e quiser apelar, ele deve enviar imediatamente uma breve carta para o Departamento de Serviço explicando por que ele não concorda com a remoção. Ele deve enviar uma cópia da carta para o corpo de anciãos e outra para o superintendente de circuito. Não seria apropriado tentar convencer o irmão a não apelar, talvez dizendo que, se ele fizer isso, vai demorar mais para ele ser designado de novo ou que ele seria visto de forma negativa por Betel. O anúncio da remoção não deve ser dado e a carta de remoção deve ser destruída (caso ela tenha sido feita). Em seguida, o Departamento de Serviço vai designar um superintendente de circuito experiente para avaliar todo o assunto novamente junto com o superintendente de circuito original. Os dois vão ouvir com atenção o irmão e os anciãos, e tratar de modo justo e bondoso todos os envolvidos. Depois que os superintendentes de circuito chegarem a uma decisão, o irmão não poderá apelar novamente. Se for decidido que ele deve ser removido, o superintendente de circuito que visita a congregação do irmão vai escrever uma carta de remoção para o corpo de anciãos. Depois de receberem essa carta, os anciãos devem dar o anúncio na próxima reunião do meio de semana.

ARQUIVO DA CONGREGAÇÃO

40. Quando um servo ministerial ou ancião for removido, preparem uma breve explicação do motivo da remoção e a mantenham no arquivo da congregação.

Pioneiros regulares

DESIGNAÇÕES

1. Quando um publicador entrega uma Petição para o Serviço de Pioneiro Regular (S-205), a comissão de serviço da congregação deve consultar o superintendente do grupo do publicador. Depois disso, ela deve se reunir o quanto antes para analisar as qualificações dele. A comissão também pode consultar outros anciãos sempre que achar necessário. (Pro. 15:22) Durante essa reunião, a comissão deve ter em mente os seguintes pontos:

(1) As informações do publicador devem estar completas e corretas.

(2) O publicador deve ter pelo menos seis meses completos de batismo.

(3) O publicador deve ser um cristão exemplar. — Veja 2:4.

(4) Ele deve ter se organizado para cumprir o requisito de 840 horas por ano.

(5) Quem deixa o serviço precisa esperar pelo menos seis meses completos antes de enviar uma nova petição para o serviço de pioneiro regular.

(6) O publicador não pode ter sido repreendido ou readmitido no último ano. Além disso, ele não pode ter mais nenhuma restrição judicativa.

(7) O publicador deve indicar a data em que deseja começar o serviço de pioneiro. Nenhuma designação deve ser feita com data retroativa, a não ser que haja circunstâncias que realmente justifiquem isso, como em casos raros em que os anciãos talvez tenham perdido a petição ou demorado para analisá-la.

2. Depois que a comissão de serviço decidir se o publicador será ou não designado, o corpo de anciãos deve ser informado sobre como o assunto foi cuidado. Isso deve ser feito antes que o anúncio da designação seja dado à congregação. Se ficar decidido que o publicador não está qualificado para servir como pioneiro regular, dois membros da comissão de serviço devem explicar bondosamente os motivos para ele. Se a comissão de serviço decidir designar o publicador como pioneiro regular, todos os membros da comissão devem assinar a petição. Se o publicador enviou uma petição on-line, veja o documento Instruções sobre Como Usar o JW.ORG (S-135). Se o publicador entregou uma petição impressa ou se a congregação não puder usar o jw.org, veja o capítulo 9, parágrafo 9.

3. Quando a designação for registrada por Betel, o pioneiro regular deve ser informado sobre sua designação e receber o documento Instruções para Novos Pioneiros Regulares (S-236). O anúncio de que o publicador foi designado como pioneiro regular deve ser dado na próxima reunião do meio de semana.

REMOÇÕES

4. Antes de remover um pioneiro regular, a comissão de serviço da congregação deve consultar o superintendente do grupo dele. Deve também considerar se o pioneiro se qualifica para receber consideração especial. (Veja 9:14.) Dependendo da situação, a comissão de serviço pode achar melhor consultar também os outros anciãos. (Veja 2:1; 13:5-6.) Em todos os casos, o corpo de anciãos deve ser informado de como o assunto foi cuidado, e dois membros da comissão de serviço devem informar a pessoa sobre a decisão tomada. Somente depois disso é que o anúncio deve ser dado para a congregação. Se um pioneiro não estiver mais qualificado ou tiver que deixar o serviço por motivos pessoais, o seguinte anúncio deve ser dado para a congregação: "O irmão (a irmã) [nome da pessoa] não é mais pioneiro(a) regular." Informem a remoção da pessoa e o motivo da remoção para Betel por meio do jw.org. Se ela deixou o serviço por causa de problemas de saúde, responsabilidades familiares, trabalho secular, entre outros, escolham a opção "Motivos pessoais". Se ela não se qualifica mais porque deu mau exemplo, mas não foi necessário tomar nenhuma ação judicativa, escolham a opção "Não se qualifica mais". Para remoção por outros motivos, escolham a opção apropriada.

5. Se um pioneiro for repreendido por uma comissão judicativa, ele estará automaticamente desqualificado e sua remoção deverá ser informada imediatamente pelo jw.org.

TRANSFERÊNCIA DE CONGREGAÇÃO

6. Se um pioneiro se mudar para outra congregação, o secretário da congregação anterior deve transferir o registro de pessoa do pioneiro para a nova congregação. — Veja o documento Instruções sobre Como Usar o JW.ORG (S-135).

7. Quando a nova congregação aceita o registro de pessoa do pioneiro, a pessoa entra na lista de pioneiros da nova congregação.

Depois de receber a carta de apresentação, a comissão de serviço da nova congregação deve perguntar para a pessoa se ela pretende continuar como pioneiro. Se ela disser que sim, o anúncio de sua designação deve ser dado na próxima reunião do meio de semana, se não houver nada que impeça isso.

MUDANÇAS NAS INFORMAÇÕES PESSOAIS DOS PIONEIROS

8. Mudanças no nome, na data de nascimento, na data de batismo, no estado civil e no nome do cônjuge do pioneiro podem ser feitas pelo jw.org. Se for necessário alterar outras informações do pioneiro, entrem em contato com o Departamento de Serviço.

ENVIO DE PETIÇÕES IMPRESSAS

9. Se o publicador entregar uma petição impressa, uma cópia da petição aprovada deve ser enviada para o Departamento de Serviço para que a designação seja registrada. (Veja o documento Instruções sobre Como Usar o JW.ORG [S-135].) Se a congregação não puder usar o jw.org, eles receberão uma carta S-202, indicando que a designação já foi registrada em Betel. As congregações que ainda não usam o jw.org continuarão a usar a carta S-202 para informar o Departamento de Serviço sobre mudanças nas informações pessoais de um pioneiro ou para informar outra congregação de que um pioneiro está se mudando para lá.

RELATÓRIO DE SERVIÇO DE CAMPO (S-4)

10. Os relatórios dos pioneiros regulares devem ser cuidados da mesma maneira que os relatórios dos publicadores. Quando um pioneiro entrega o relatório atrasado, as atividades desse relatório devem ser incluídas no total das atividades dos pioneiros do próximo relatório enviado para Betel.

CRÉDITO DE HORAS

11. Os pioneiros regulares têm boa espiritualidade, disponibilidade e disposição para ajudar, o que talvez permita que eles apoiem os interesses do Reino de maneira especial. Por isso, como parte de seu serviço sagrado, eles podem ser convidados para participar de algumas atividades da organização. As atividades de serviço aprovadas incluem participar em projetos de construção da organização, ajudar nos serviços feitos antes e depois de assembleias e congressos, prestar ajuda humanitária, servir como membro de Comissões de Ligação com Hospitais, servir em um Grupos de Visitas a Pacientes, ajudar em Salões de Assembleias e dirigir ou participar de reuniões realizadas em prisões. As atividades aprovadas também incluem servir como voluntário temporário em Betel, como commuter de Betel, como voluntário à distância, como colaborador de Betel, como representante em campo e treinador de manutenção do Departamento Local de Projeto/Construção (LDC, em inglês) e assim por diante.

12. Quando se aprova que um pioneiro receba crédito de horas, ele deve manter um registro das horas gastas durante o mês na atividade aprovada. Ele vai colocar essa informação no campo "Observações" do Relatório de Serviço de Campo (S-4). O pioneiro deve ser informado claramente de que ele não deve somar no relatório as horas do ministério com as horas gastas na atividade aprovada. Ele também deve ser informado de que ele deve gastar algum tempo no ministério todo mês.

13. O pioneiro pode receber no máximo um crédito de horas que, quando somado às horas do ministério, não ultrapasse 75 horas. Ao preencher o Registro de Publicador de Congregação (S-21), coloquem na coluna "Horas" apenas as horas que o pioneiro gastou no ministério. Na coluna "Observações", anotem: (1) o total de horas que o pioneiro gastou em atividades aprovadas e (2) quantas horas desse total realmente foram consideradas crédito de horas. As horas que o pioneiro recebe como crédito não devem ser incluídas no relatório de serviço de campo da congregação enviado para Betel. Nenhum crédito pode ser transferido para outro mês. Além do crédito de horas que recebe por apoiar atividades aprovadas e das horas que gasta na pregação, o pioneiro recebe um crédito de horas quando ele cursa alguma escola teocrática. Se a escola começar em um mês e terminar no outro, o pioneiro poderá decidir como vai distribuir esse crédito de horas entre os dois meses.

CONSIDERAÇÃO ESPECIAL

14. Pode ser que um pioneiro gaste mais horas num mês em projetos da organização do que ele pode receber como crédito de horas. Mais à frente no ano de serviço, ele talvez precise tirar férias, dedicar tempo ao trabalho secular, ou cuidar de outros assuntos urgentes que o impeçam de cumprir o requisito de 840 horas no ano de serviço. Nesses casos, a comissão de serviço deve levar em conta tudo o que o pioneiro está fazendo pelo Reino e mostrar consideração especial por ele. Ninguém deve perder o privilégio de servir como pioneiro se não cumpriu o requisito anual de horas porque trabalhou bastante em projetos da organização, usando mais tempo nesses projetos do que o tanto que ele poderia ter recebido como crédito de horas. Os anciãos devem reconhecer tudo o que esses pioneiros fazem a favor do Reino e elogiá-los por isso. Quando um pioneiro recebe consideração especial, uma anotação pode ser feita no Registro de Publicador de Congregação (S-21) informando isso.

ANÁLISE DAS ATIVIDADES DOS PIONEIROS

15. Todo ano, no início de março, o secretário e o superintendente de serviço devem analisar as atividades de todos os pioneiros regulares, levando em conta os créditos de horas que receberam. Se um pioneiro não tiver conseguido fechar as horas em vários meses, o superintendente de serviço e o superintendente de grupo do pioneiro devem conversar com ele sobre suas circunstâncias e oferecer ajuda. Por que ele não está conseguindo fechar as horas? O problema tem a ver com trabalho secular, responsabilidades familiares, programação ruim ou problemas de saúde? Será que ele está gastando tempo e energia demais com outras atividades? O problema é passageiro, ou vai durar algum tempo? Sua programação atual é realista e permitirá que ele alcance o alvo mensal de horas nos meses à frente?

16. No final do ano de serviço, a comissão de serviço deve se reunir para analisar as atividades dos pioneiros regulares que não conseguiram fechar as horas do ano e decidir se eles poderão continuar como pioneiros. (Se um pioneiro regular alcançar pelo menos 800 horas no ano — horas no ministério somadas ao crédito de horas — ele pode continuar servindo como pioneiro.) Além dos pontos mencionados no parágrafo anterior, é necessário considerar os seguintes fatores antes de se tomar uma decisão: Há quanto tempo o pioneiro está no serviço de tempo integral? Qual é a idade dele? Seria melhor que ele deixasse o serviço de pioneiro regular até as circunstâncias mudarem? Deixar o serviço de pioneiro por um tempo pode livrá-lo do estresse de tentar alcançar o requisito de horas ao mesmo tempo em que enfrenta circunstâncias difíceis. Sejam razoáveis e tenham bom senso ao tomar esse tipo de decisão. Pensem no que pode ser feito para ajudar a pessoa e ao mesmo tempo manter os elevados padrões do serviço de pioneiro regular.

17. Se a comissão de serviço demorar para resolver os assuntos, a situação pode ficar pior. O pioneiro pode começar a dar pouca importância à necessidade de completar as horas, ou pode ficar estressado, pensando em quando os anciãos vão recomendar que ele deixe o serviço. Talvez, para alcançar o requisito de horas, ele tente passar mais tempo no serviço de campo do que ele realmente é capaz, achando que essa é a única saída. Essas situações podem fazer com que o pioneiro desenvolva uma atitude errada ou até mesmo problemas de saúde. Assim, é bom que os assuntos sejam cuidados rapidamente. Isso vai ser melhor para o bem-estar do pioneiro, a longo prazo. — Gál. 6:10.

PIONEIROS REGULARES ENFERMOS

18. Em raras circunstâncias, um irmão ou uma irmã pode ser aprovado para continuar como pioneiro sem ter que cumprir um requisito de horas. Essa provisão é apenas para pioneiros veteranos, exemplares, que não conseguem cumprir o requisito de horas por causa de doença, mas que querem muito continuar como pioneiros regulares e acham que estariam regredindo se parassem. Os anciãos podem considerar colocar um pioneiro na lista de pioneiros regulares enfermos se ele (1) tiver mais de 50 anos e (2) tiver servido como pioneiro por um total de pelo menos 15 anos, consecutivos ou não. Os anciãos só podem tomar essa decisão depois de consultar o superintendente de circuito. Não se trata de uma provisão para a pessoa tomar conta de parentes doentes, trabalhar mais no serviço secular e assim por diante. Alguém que entra pela primeira vez no serviço de pioneiro já com 60 anos de idade ou mais não pode ser considerado um pioneiro enfermo. Se um pioneiro idoso com problemas de saúde estiver disposto a voltar a servir como publicador, os anciãos não precisam considerar a possibilidade de ele servir como pioneiro regular enfermo.

19. Quando o corpo de anciãos decide que um pioneiro pode servir como pioneiro regular enfermo, isso deve ser registrado no Registro de Publicador de Congregação (S-21) do pioneiro. Não é necessário informar essa decisão para Betel. Dois membros da comissão de serviço devem se reunir com o pioneiro e dizer que o corpo de anciãos decidiu usar essa amorosa provisão no caso dele. Incentivem o pioneiro a continuar dando seu melhor no ministério de acordo com suas circunstâncias. (Luc. 13:24; Col. 3:23, 24) Além disso, digam ao pioneiro que ele tem total apoio dos anciãos e que Jeová está vendo os sacrifícios que ele tem feito para continuar como pioneiro por tantos anos. — Heb. 6:10, 11.

Parágrafos

1. Com quatro ou seis semanas de antecedência, os anciãos podem começar a relembrar a congregação sobre a visita do superintendente de circuito. Os anciãos devem incentivar a congregação a dar total apoio no ministério. Também devem lembrar os irmãos que eles podem servir como pioneiros auxiliares cumprindo um requisito de 30 horas e assim assistir à reunião do superintendente de circuito com os pioneiros. Veja o capítulo 8, parágrafos 15 a 16, caso queiram recomendar um irmão como ancião ou servo ministerial durante a visita. O coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve seguir de perto as instruções fornecidas no documento Informações Necessárias para a Visita do Superintendente de Circuito (S-61). No começo da semana, os anciãos devem informar o superintendente de circuito sobre qualquer problema sério que haja na congregação.

ACOMODAÇÕES E REFEIÇÕES

2. É um grande privilégio para a congregação mostrar hospitalidade de coração ao superintendente de circuito e sua esposa. Essa hospitalidade permite que ele dê o seu melhor durante a visita e desenvolva um bom relacionamento com os irmãos. (Rom. 12:13; 3 João 5, 6) Mesmo que o circuito tenha uma residência para o superintendente, de vez em quando, ele talvez precise de uma hospedagem na congregação para evitar longas viagens de ida

e volta. (Veja o documento Instruções para as Contas do Circuito [S-331] para obter orientações sobre residências do circuito.) O coordenador do corpo de anciãos, ou outro ancião designado por ele, tem a responsabilidade de providenciar acomodações limpas e adequadas para o superintendente de circuito e sua esposa na semana da visita. O irmão responsável deve conferir pessoalmente o local. Se for necessário alugar um local para o superintendente ficar durante a visita, os anciãos devem entrar em contato com o Departamento de Serviço.

3. A casa em que o superintendente de circuito ficará hospedado deve ter um lugar limpo para guardar roupas e outros objetos. Também é necessário providenciar uma cadeira e uma mesa num lugar com boa iluminação. Os superintendentes de circuito precisam de tempo para ficar sozinhos e para descansar o suficiente. O coordenador do corpo de anciãos, ou outro irmão designado por ele, deve perguntar ao superintendente de circuito se ele ou sua esposa têm alguma alergia ou problema de saúde que possam afetar a escolha da hospedagem. Além disso, é melhor não hospedar o superintendente e sua esposa na casa de irmãos que tenham problemas familiares ou doenças graves que exijam cuidados especiais.

4. O almoço é uma ótima oportunidade para conversas encorajadoras, pastoreio e para se fazer bons amigos. Por isso, durante a visita, é melhor que o superintendente de circuito siga a programação que os anciãos fizeram e almoce com os irmãos. Os anciãos devem ter bom senso na hora de selecionar os irmãos que vão dar almoço. Os superintendentes dão muito valor à hospitalidade dos irmãos. Alimentos saudáveis e nutritivos ajudam o superintendente a se sentir fisicamente bem e a seguir sua programação. Os superintendentes podem decidir se vão aceitar convites para outras refeições.

5. É bom que o coordenador do corpo de anciãos pergunte para o superintendente de circuito no final da visita o que ele achou da hospedagem. Não é necessário que o superintendente fique hospedado numa casa diferente toda vez.

DESPESAS DURANTE A SEMANA DA VISITA

6. O superintendente de circuito geralmente terá algumas despesas na semana da visita. Elas talvez incluam gastos com alimentação, despesas rotineiras de escritório, gastos com transporte não cobertos por Betel e algumas pequenas despesas pessoais. (Veja os documentos Instruções para as Contas da Congregação [S-27] e Instruções para as Contas do Circuito [S-331] para obter detalhes sobre como é feito o reembolso para os superintendentes de circuito.) As despesas do superintendente de circuito e sua esposa não devem sobrecarregar nenhuma congregação. — 2 Cor. 11:9.

7. O superintendente de circuito vai usar de bom senso para decidir que despesas vai apresentar. Ele talvez possa cobrir algumas despesas pessoais usando a ajuda de manutenção que recebe de Betel ou usando presentes em dinheiro que talvez tenha recebido dos irmãos. Para itens como roupas, cosméticos, vitaminas, medicamentos, seguros de vida ou seguros de itens pessoais, o superintendente de circuito deve usar seus próprios recursos. Esse tipo de despesa nunca deve ser apresentado para reembolso. O superintendente de circuito nunca deve pedir dinheiro aos irmãos.

8. Quando o superintendente de circuito precisar usar o celular ou a internet para se comunicar com as congregações ou com Betel, ele pode pedir o reembolso dessas despesas. Mas as despesas com internet ou celular que não estiverem relacionadas à comunicação dele com as congregações ou com Betel devem ser cobertas pelo próprio superintendente. Isso também se aplica aos gastos de sua esposa com internet ou celular.

USO CORRETO DOS RECURSOS DA CONGREGAÇÃO E DO CIRCUITO

9. Os recursos da congregação e do circuito não podem ser usados para dar presentes para o superintendente de circuito ou para oradores visitantes. Apenas as despesas que esses irmãos apresentarem podem ser cobertas com esses recursos. Também não é correto que alguém peça dinheiro a irmãos para dar de presente a um superintendente. (2 Cor. 8:20) Mas, se alguém quiser de coração dar um presente para o superintendente de circuito, esse é um assunto pessoal, que não diz respeito a outros. — 2 Cor. 9:7.

Assuntos médicos

PUBLICADORES RECÉM-BATIZADOS

1. O secretário deve fornecer a um publicador recém-batizado o cartão Diretivas Antecipadas (dpa). O secretário deve ajudar o publicador a entender a importância de preencher corretamente seu cartão e de deixar uma cópia dele com seus procuradores e seu médico ou hospital. (O publicador que tem filhos menores de idade também deve receber o Cartão de Identificação [ic].) O secretário deve incentivar o publicador a estudar a lição 39 do livro Seja Feliz para Sempre!, principalmente o vídeo Como Tomar Decisões sobre Tratamentos de Saúde Que Envolvam o Uso do Sangue e a seção "Quer Pesquisar Mais?". Se o publicador não tiver como acessar os vídeos, o secretário deve providenciar que ele consiga assistir a eles.

IRMÃS GRÁVIDAS E PAIS COM FILHOS MENORES

2. Quando os anciãos ficam sabendo que uma irmã está grávida, eles devem fornecer a ela (e a seu marido, se ele for Testemunha de Jeová) o documento Informações para Gestantes (S-401). Depois, eles devem perguntar se ela quer receber ajuda da Comissão de Ligação com Hospitais (Colih). Se ela disser que sim, os anciãos devem entrar em contato com a Colih. Eles também devem se certificar de que pais e mães com filhos menores de idade recebam o Cartão de Identificação (ic) e conheçam as informações do documento Como os Pais Podem Proteger seus Filhos de Transfusões de Sangue (S-55).

IDOSOS

3. Os anciãos devem lembrar os publicadores idosos que é muito importante que eles preencham corretamente o cartão Diretivas Antecipadas deixando claras suas decisões sobre cuidados de saúde. No entanto, os publicadores idosos, principalmente os que não têm ninguém da família que seja Testemunha de Jeová, podem ficar mais expostos à pressão. Assim, seria bom que esses irmãos confirmassem de tempos em tempos se seus procuradores entendem e vão defender a decisão deles. — Pro. 22:3.

INTERNAÇÃO NO HOSPITAL

4. Quando um publicador está sendo internado, ele precisa ler os formulários do hospital com bastante cuidado para ver se eles estão de acordo com suas decisões sobre tratamentos médicos. Se não estiverem, ele tem o direito como paciente de fazer as alterações que quiser, colocando as iniciais de seu nome ao lado de cada alteração. É importante que uma cópia do cartão Diretivas Antecipadas do publicador seja anexada aos outros formulários do hospital. Para garantir que suas decisões sejam respeitadas, ele talvez queira escolher duas Testemunhas de Jeová como seus procuradores, em vez de escolher parentes que não são Testemunhas de Jeová. Se ele fizer isso, seria amoroso informar a seus parentes que não são Testemunhas de Jeová sobre sua escolha. Isso também pode evitar problemas. Os anciãos devem lembrar a qualquer publicador que estiver sendo internado que, para poder ser visitado por eles e pelos anciãos do Grupo de Visitas a Pacientes, ele precisa informar ao hospital que quer ser visitado por ministros das Testemunhas de Jeová. — Veja 11:8.

COMUNICAÇÃO COM A EQUIPE MÉDICA

5. Uma cirurgia é um trabalho em equipe, e todos os membros dessa equipe precisam entender o que o publicador pensa sobre o uso do sangue, o uso de medicamentos que contêm frações de sangue e sobre procedimentos envolvendo o uso do próprio sangue. Por isso, quando o publicador for passar por uma cirurgia, ele deve conversar com bastante antecedência com o médico, o cirurgião e o anestesiologista sobre suas decisões relacionadas a tratamentos de saúde. Deixar para fazer isso perto da data da cirurgia demonstraria falta de consideração para com a equipe médica. Membros da Colih e outras pessoas autorizadas pelo publicador podem falar com a equipe médica sobre o caso dele, mas as decisões sobre tratamentos de saúde são responsabilidade do paciente ou de seus procuradores.

COMISSÃO DE LIGAÇÃO COM HOSPITAIS

6. As Comissões de Ligação com Hospitais (Colihs) têm um papel muito importante em ajudar a comunidade médica e a comunidade jurídica a entenderem nossa posição bíblica a respeito de transfusões de sangue. As Colihs coordenam o trabalho dos Grupos de Visitas a Pacientes (GVPs) nas principais cidades para dar apoio espiritual às Testemunhas de Jeová hospitalizadas que vieram de outros lugares. O trabalho da Colih e do GVP não

tira dos anciãos e de outros irmãos da congregação a responsabilidade de ajudar os publicadores que estão hospitalizados. — Pro. 17:17; 1 João 3:18.

7. As Colihs não têm nenhuma ligação com os programas promovidos pelos hospitais, como, por exemplo, programas de medicina e cirurgia sem sangue. Nem as Colihs nem Betel fazem recomendações de empresas ou de prestadores de serviços de saúde.

8. Os anciãos devem ter as informações de contato da sua Colih sempre à mão. Na maioria dos casos, são os anciãos que devem entrar em contato com a Colih. Eles devem fazer isso apenas para publicadores batizados e não batizados (incluindo os inativos) que pedem ajuda (1) para encontrar um médico cooperador (para eles ou para seus filhos) ou (2) para se preparar para uma cirurgia ou uma internação. Às vezes, os anciãos podem achar melhor que o próprio paciente ou alguém da família dele entre em contato com a Colih, principalmente em casos de emergência. A pessoa que entra em contato com a Colih deve estar preparada para informar o seguinte:

(1) Nome, idade, congregação e número de telefone do paciente.

(2) A condição espiritual do paciente e da família dele, e se algum membro da família que não é Testemunha de Jeová está envolvido.

(3) Nome do hospital, nome do médico, número do quarto onde o paciente está e, se for o caso, o número de telefone do quarto dele.

(4) Se o paciente tem o cartão Diretivas Antecipadas preenchido. (Caso o paciente não tenha, ele deve ser incentivado a preencher um cartão imediatamente. Os publicadores não batizados podem usar as informações dos cartões Diretivas Antecipadas [dpa] e Cartão de Identificação [ic] como base para criar documentos com instruções sobre tratamento de saúde para eles e para seus filhos.)

(5) A razão de estar ligando para a Colih.

9. Quando um publicador já tem um médico que diz que vai respeitar as decisões dele, talvez não seja necessário entrar em contato com a Colih antes do tratamento. Mas o publicador deve verificar se o médico tem experiência com estratégias e opções de tratamento sem sangue.

TRATAMENTO DE SAÚDE EM OUTRA CIDADE

10. Às vezes, um paciente que é Testemunha de Jeová precisa de cuidados médicos especializados que não estão disponíveis em sua região. Ele pode pedir para os anciãos o formulário Pedido de Hospedagem para Necessidades Médicas Especiais (hlc-20) para conseguir hospedagem para ele e sua família durante o tratamento. Os anciãos podem obter esse formulário com a Comissão de Ligação com Hospitais (Colih). Os pacientes não são obrigados a usar esse recurso, principalmente quando eles têm condições financeiras de cobrir suas despesas. Se o paciente quiser apenas que a Colih forneça informações sobre opções de hotéis ou outros estabelecimentos onde ele possa se hospedar na região, ele deve preencher o formulário e informar que pode cobrir suas despesas.

11. Quando um paciente precisa de ajuda com hospedagem e o caso não é urgente, os anciãos podem obter o formulário hlc-20 com sua Colih e ajudar o publicador ou a família dele a preenchê-lo. Os anciãos devem enviar o quanto antes o formulário preenchido para a Colih da cidade em que o paciente fará o tratamento. Em casos de emergência, os anciãos podem pedir que sua Colih agilize os pedidos de hospedagem.

12. A família deve limitar o número de pessoas que vão acompanhar o paciente. Usando as informações do formulário preenchido, a Colih da cidade onde o paciente receberá o tratamento vai procurar hospedagem para o grupo. A Colih pode providenciar hospedagem nos seguintes lugares:

(1) Hotéis e outros locais que têm convênio com o hospital e oferecem descontos especiais. Essa opção geralmente está disponível para qualquer pessoa, mesmo para quem não é Testemunha de Jeová.

(2) Hotéis que oferecem quartos com desconto para as Testemunhas de Jeová quando há assembleias e congressos, se estiverem disponíveis.

(3) Casas de irmãos que moram perto do hospital ou da clínica. Se for necessário providenciar hospedagem para um longo período, talvez seja possível usar várias casas de irmãos num sistema de rodízio para que nenhuma família fique sobrecarregada.

13. Se algum acompanhante do paciente for um parente que está desassociado ou que não é Testemunha de Jeová, esse parente não poderá ficar hospedado na casa de irmãos nem terá direito a descontos especiais para Testemunhas de Jeová. Essas provisões são apenas para o paciente e para os membros de sua família imediata que têm boa reputação.

14. O paciente e sua família são os principais responsáveis por cobrir as despesas com hospedagem, transporte, refeições, entre outras. Mas, em alguns casos, a congregação do paciente talvez possa ajudar. — od cap. 12 pars. 12-15; cap. 16 pars. 9-11.

15. Quando uma congregação fica perto de um hospital ou de uma clínica que recebem com frequência irmãos de outros lugares para tratamento, os anciãos dessa congregação podem informar sua Colih sobre irmãos exemplares que estão dispostos a oferecer hospedagens apropriadas.

BATISMO DE PESSOAS COM DOENÇAS CONTAGIOSAS

16. Por causa de seu amor e interesse pelos outros, um candidato ao batismo que tem uma doença contagiosa, como aids ou hepatite, pode se sentir motivado a informar isso aos anciãos. (od p. 197) Nesse caso, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve informar ao candidato que ele tem as seguintes opções:

(1) Assistir ao discurso de batismo em seu congresso ou assembleia e ser levado para ser batizado no mar ou em um riacho, rio ou lago.

(2) Assistir ao discurso de batismo em seu congresso ou assembleia e ser batizado numa banheira grande, que talvez esteja disponível no quarto do hotel em que ele está hospedado ou na casa de algum irmão.

(4) Pedir aos anciãos de sua congregação que providenciem que seu batismo seja feito em particular. Os anciãos devem informar o batismo ao superintendente de circuito.

17. Os irmãos que vão realizar o batismo devem ser informados sobre a doença para que possam decidir se estão dispostos a correr esse risco.

1. Sempre que os anciãos ficam sabendo de um pecado grave, eles precisam agir rapidamente. Isso vai proteger a congregação e ajudar a pessoa que cometeu o pecado. (Judas 4) Deixar de cuidar desses assuntos pode limitar a atuação do espírito santo de Jeová na congregação. Depois de confirmarem que o pecado aconteceu, os anciãos precisam verificar se ele foi sério o bastante para se formar uma comissão judicativa. — Veja 12:2-39; 15:1.

PECADOS QUE PODEM LEVAR A UMA COMISSÃO JUDICATIVA

2. A lista a seguir contém alguns pecados que podem exigir a formação de uma comissão judicativa, embora não apresente todos eles. Os anciãos devem ter bom senso e ser razoáveis ao avaliar a gravidade do pecado que a pessoa supostamente cometeu. Eles devem considerar perguntas como: Em que tipo de conduta errada a pessoa se envolveu? Até que ponto ela se envolveu? Qual foi a motivação dela? Ela teve intenção de fazer isso? Qual foi a frequência? Isso se tornou uma prática? O corpo de anciãos pode escrever para o Departamento de Serviço sempre que ficar em dúvida sobre se uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada.

3. Imoralidade sexual (porneía): (Lev. 20:10, 13, 15, 16; Rom. 1:24, 26, 27, 32; 1 Cor. 6:9, 10) Porneía envolve o uso imoral dos órgãos sexuais, de modo natural ou pervertido, com objetivos sexuais. Sempre é necessário um parceiro — um humano de qualquer sexo ou um animal. Inclui adultério, bestialidade, homossexualismo e prostituição. Também inclui sexo oral, sexo anal e a estimulação intencional dos órgãos sexuais entre pessoas que não estão casadas entre si. Não se trata de um simples toque nos órgãos sexuais, mas envolve estimulá-los de propósito. Porneía pode acontecer mesmo que não haja contato pele com pele, penetração ou orgasmo. A participação voluntária torna a pessoa culpada e exige ação judicativa.

(2) "Objetivo sexual" tem a ver com a motivação. Por exemplo, um médico talvez tenha que mexer nos órgãos sexuais de um paciente ao fazer um exame. Um veterinário ou um fazendeiro talvez tenha que fazer algo parecido com um animal. Mas o objetivo deles não é ter satisfação sexual.

(3) "Estimulação intencional" envolve mexer de propósito em algo, com as mãos ou de outra forma, não sendo necessário contato pele com pele. Tocar momentaneamente os órgãos sexuais de alguém, mesmo que haja intenção, geralmente não é considerado porneía.

4. Masturbar a si mesmo não é porneía. — lvs p. 250.

5. Alguém que foi estuprado não é culpado de porneía. Quando uma pessoa diz que foi estuprada, os anciãos devem usar de bom senso para determinar o que realmente aconteceu. Eles devem levar em conta o estado mental da pessoa, as circunstâncias que levaram ao suposto estupro e qualquer demora da pessoa em contar isso. — w03 01/02 pp. 30-31; w83 15/09 p. 30, nota; it-1 pp. 999-1001.

6. Ao avaliar se uma pessoa cometeu porneía, é importante entender exatamente o que aconteceu. Isso é ainda mais importante quando o caso envolve liberdade bíblica para se casar novamente. (Mal. 2:16a) Quando os anciãos não têm certeza se a situação envolveu porneía ou têm opiniões diferentes sobre o assunto, é melhor escrever para o Departamento de Serviço. — Veja 12:70-75.

7. Fortes evidências de imoralidade sexual (porneía): Se pelo menos duas testemunhas viram a pessoa passar a noite toda numa casa com alguém do sexo oposto (ou com alguém conhecido por ser homossexual) em circunstâncias impróprias, pode ser que haja base para uma comissão judicativa. (w18.07 p. 32) Depois de dois anciãos terem investigado bem o caso, o corpo de anciãos deve avaliar com discernimento se aconteceu um pecado grave. Os anciãos não devem tentar aplicar a mesma regra em todos os casos, já que cada caso tem suas próprias circunstâncias. Se os anciãos não tiverem certeza do que fazer, eles devem consultar o Departamento de Serviço. — Para dúvidas sobre liberdade bíblica para se casar novamente, veja os parágrafos 70 a 75 deste capítulo.

   (1) As duas pessoas tinham um relacionamento romântico? Elas já tinham sido aconselhadas antes sobre seu comportamento uma com a outra? O que as levou a passar a noite juntas? Elas planejaram fazer isso? Elas tinham opção, ou foram obrigadas a passar a noite juntas por causa de um imprevisto, uma emergência ou por outra situação fora de seu controle? (Ecl. 9:11) Onde cada uma dormiu? Já que cada situação é diferente, pode ser que outros fatores tenham que ser levados em conta. A não ser que haja circunstâncias que justifiquem o que aconteceu, uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada com base nas fortes evidências de que houve imoralidade sexual.

   (2) Dependendo da atitude do acusado, ele pode até ser culpado de conduta insolente.

8. Veja um exemplo que justificaria a formação de uma comissão judicativa: Um irmão casado passa muito tempo com sua secretária após o horário de trabalho, mas garante que não existe interesse romântico. A esposa desse irmão fica preocupada e informa os anciãos, que dão fortes conselhos para ele. Mais tarde, ele diz que vai passar a noite fora por causa de uma "viagem a trabalho". Sua esposa fica desconfiada e, junto com um parente, o segue até a casa da secretária. Às 10 horas da noite, eles veem que a secretária chama o irmão para entrar. Eles continuam vigiando a noite toda, até que ele sai da casa às 7 horas da manhã. Quando os anciãos falam com o irmão, ele admite que passou a noite com a secretária, mas nega que tenha cometido adultério. Nesse caso, os anciãos têm base para formar uma comissão judicativa, já que há fortes evidências de porneía e talvez sinais de conduta insolente. Pode ser que a consciência da esposa permita que ela se divorcie dele e se case de novo. Se ela decidisse fazer isso, ninguém deveria criticar sua decisão.

9. A seguir estão alguns exemplos em que provavelmente não haveria base para se formar uma comissão judicativa:

(1) Um cristão idoso mora sozinho, e alguém do sexo oposto se muda para sua casa para ajudar a cuidar dele. Não há evidência de interesse romântico ou motivos para se suspeitar de imoralidade sexual.

(2) Depois de uma reunião social na casa de uma irmã solteira, um irmão caminha até a estação para pegar um trem de volta para sua casa. Depois de esperar por algum tempo, ele descobre que o último trem já passou e decide voltar para a casa da irmã. Mas, quando ele chega, já é bem tarde e todos foram embora. A irmã permite que ele durma na sala, enquanto ela dorme no quarto dela.

(3) Um irmão solteiro fica vários dias hospedado na casa de um casal. Uma noite, quando todos já estão dormindo, o marido é chamado em seu trabalho por causa de uma emergência e só volta para casa de manhã. Sua esposa e o irmão solteiro ficam sozinhos a noite toda na casa, dormindo em quartos separados.

10. Casar-se quando não se está biblicamente livre para isso: Se uma pessoa batizada se casa novamente, mas não está biblicamente livre para isso, ela é culpada de adultério. Nesse caso, uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada. (Mat. 19:9) Se o novo cônjuge é batizado, ele também deve passar por uma comissão judicativa. Do ponto de vista bíblico, o novo casamento acaba com o casamento anterior. Por isso, não é mais possível o cônjuge inocente perdoar ou rejeitar o cônjuge culpado. — w22.04 pp. 30-31.

11. Uma pessoa batizada que se casa quando não está biblicamente livre para isso não poderia se qualificar para privilégios especiais de serviço na congregação por muitos anos e até que outras pessoas não se sintam mais incomodadas pelo pecado ou até que consigam respeitá-lo novamente. (Veja 1:2.8; 2:4; 8:7-8.) Isso inclui levar em conta as circunstâncias atuais do cônjuge anterior, que talvez tenha sido vítima de ação traiçoeira do cônjuge culpado, e de qualquer filho que era menor de idade e talvez tenha sido abandonado pelo cônjuge culpado. — Mal. 2:14-16.

12. Se um cristão divorciado (não importa se ele se casou novamente ou não) cometeu adultério de propósito para acabar com seu casamento anterior ou pressionou o cônjuge inocente a rejeitá-lo e a concordar com o divórcio, ele “foi traiçoeiro” com seu cônjuge. (Mal. 2:14-16) Ele não se qualificaria para receber privilégios especiais por muitos anos. — Veja 1:2.8; 2:4; 8:7-8.

genitais, os seios ou as nádegas; ou outros atos pervertidos, como voyeurismo de um menor (ter prazer imoral por observar um menor nu ou seminu, sem que o menor suspeite de que está sendo observado); expor de forma indecente o corpo diante de um menor; ou fazer propostas sexuais a um menor. Dependendo das circunstâncias, pode incluir alguém adulto mostrar pornografia a um menor ou praticar sexting com um menor. Sexting envolve o envio eletrônico de mensagens ou imagens sexualmente explícitas. As vítimas mais comuns de abuso são meninas, mas meninos também são vítimas. As pessoas que mais abusam de menores são homens, mas algumas mulheres também fazem isso. — Veja 14:11.

14. Impureza grave, impureza com ganância: (2 Cor. 12:21; Gál. 5:19; Efé. 4:19) Gálatas 5:19-21 alista várias práticas erradas que não são classificadas como porneía, mas que poderiam levar uma pessoa a não se qualificar para o Reino de Deus. Entre elas está a impureza (do grego akatharsía). Dependendo do grau em que a pessoa praticou impureza, ela pode até ser desassociada da congregação. Os anciãos precisam usar de bom senso para definir se a impureza é grave (que exige a formação de uma comissão judicativa) ou se a pessoa pode ser ajudada por meio de conselhos. — w06 15/07 pp. 29-31; w83 15/09 pp. 30-31; lvs p. 249.

15. A lista a seguir não inclui todas as situações que podem envolver impureza grave, mas algumas delas são:

(1) Carícias nos seios ou toque momentâneo em partes íntimas do corpo: Se isso aconteceu em poucas ocasiões isoladas, especialmente entre duas pessoas que estão namorando com o objetivo de se casar, o conselho de dois anciãos pode ser suficiente, já que a impureza não foi tão grave. Os anciãos devem informar o coordenador do corpo de anciãos sobre a situação. Mas, se isso aconteceu em várias ocasiões

e as ações se tornaram cada vez mais graves e frequentes, o caso pode envolver impureza grave com ganância, que exige ação judicativa. O caso também pode envolver conduta insolente se houver evidência de uma atitude desrespeitosa ou descarada para com as leis de Deus. Por exemplo, talvez as duas pessoas não tenham intenção de se casar.

(2) Conversas imorais por telefone ou internet (incluindo sexting): A prática dessas coisas pode envolver linguagem obscena ou impureza grave, que podem justificar a formação de uma comissão judicativa. Se isso aconteceu em poucas ocasiões isoladas, pode não ser necessário formar uma comissão judicativa. Talvez o conselho de dois anciãos seja suficiente, já que a impureza não foi tão grave. Os anciãos devem informar o coordenador do corpo de anciãos sobre a situação. No entanto, essa conduta poderia ficar cada vez mais grave e, pela frequência, se tornar impureza grave com ganância, que exige ação judicativa, especialmente se a pessoa já tiver sido aconselhada. Os anciãos precisam usar de bom senso para definir se a conduta chegou ao ponto de ser necessário formar uma comissão judicativa. — w06 15/07 pp. 30-31.

(3) Formas repulsivas de pornografia: Veja 13:2-4.

por meio de conselhos. O coordenador do corpo de anciãos precisa ser informado. Mas, quando o uso de drogas viciantes, incluindo bétele, maconha e tabaco, se torna uma prática, uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada. (2 Cor. 7:1; w06 15/07 pp. 30-31; lvs pp. 110-117) Se a lei permitir o uso de maconha e se o médico de um irmão autorizar e/ou prescrever o uso de maconha para tratar um problema de saúde, esse irmão talvez decida fazer esse tipo de tratamento. Se a lei também permitir o cultivo de maconha, um irmão que já está usando maconha de acordo com prescrição médica pode decidir cultivá-la para uso pessoal. Ou um irmão também pode decidir cultivar maconha para alguém que mora em sua casa e usa maconha de acordo com prescrição médica. Todas essas são decisões pessoais. Mas não seria correto um irmão usar maconha apenas para ter a sensação de euforia ou cultivá-la para outros que não morem em sua casa. Se a congregação ficar incomodada com um irmão que está fazendo uso medicinal de maconha ou a está cultivando por necessidades médicas, esse irmão talvez não seja mais visto como exemplar. Quando alguém, de maneira correta e sob supervisão médica, usa drogas viciantes, como, por exemplo, para controlar a dor, não se deve formar uma comissão judicativa. Em caso de dúvidas, os anciãos devem consultar o Departamento de Serviço.

(5) Um agricultor pode decidir cultivar cânhamo industrial. Isso é diferente de cultivar maconha. O cânhamo é da mesma espécie da maconha, mas é usado para outros fins comerciais e contém bem poucos componentes que causam a sensação de euforia. O cultivo do cânhamo é uma decisão pessoal.

(6) Extrema falta de limpeza: (Deut. 23:12-14; 2 Cor. 7:1; lvs pp. 108-110) Deve-se fazer todo o esforço possível para ajudar a pessoa a ver que é necessário manter o corpo e o lugar onde mora limpos. Antes de pensar em formar uma comissão judicativa, os anciãos precisam ter certeza de que a falta de limpeza é evidente e perturba as pessoas a ponto de manchar o nome de Jeová e de seu povo. Primeiro, a pessoa deve receber conselhos. Se isso não resolver, talvez seja necessário fazer um discurso de alerta. (Veja 12:76-79.) Se a pessoa desconsiderar totalmente os conselhos, mostrando que não se preocupa com a situação, e a extrema falta de limpeza continuar, uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada.

16. Conduta insolente: (2 Cor. 12:21; Gál. 5:19; Efé. 4:19; lvs p. 249) "Conduta insolente" é a tradução da palavra grega asélgeia. A Concordância Exaustiva da Bíblia, de Strong, usa termos fortes para definir essa expressão: "licenciosidade, imundície, depravação, devassidão". O Novo Léxico Grego-Inglês do Novo Testamento, de Thayer, completa a lista com "desejo sexual descontrolado, ultraje, falta de vergonha, insolência". Um dicionário define asélgeia como conduta que "ultrapassa todos os limites do que é aceito pela sociedade". A expressão "conduta insolente" não se refere a condutas erradas de pouca gravidade. Em vez disso, descreve ações que mostram desconsideração, desrespeito e até mesmo desprezo pelas leis, pelos padrões e pela autoridade de Deus. Assim, conduta insolente envolve duas coisas: (1) a própria conduta é uma violação grave das leis de Jeová e (2) a atitude da pessoa para com as leis de Deus é desrespeitosa, descarada. — w06 15/07 p. 30.

17. Apesar de não ser completa, a lista a seguir mostra algumas coisas que podem envolver conduta insolente, caso a pessoa demonstre uma atitude desrespeitosa e descarada por fazer delas uma prática:

(1) Contato desnecessário com desassociados ou dissociados: Quando uma pessoa, mesmo depois de receber vários conselhos, continua se associando sem necessidade e de propósito com desassociados ou dissociados que não são seus parentes, uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada. — Mat. 18:17b; 1 Cor. 5:11, 13; 2 João 10, 11; lvs pp. 39-40.

Se os anciãos ficarem sabendo que alguém da congregação está tendo associação desnecessária com parentes desassociados ou dissociados que não moram em sua casa, eles devem usar a Bíblia para dar conselhos e raciocinar com a pessoa. Os anciãos podem recapitular com ela as informações do livro Continue a Amar a Deus, página 241. Se ficar claro que a pessoa está violando o princípio por trás da desassociação e ela não reagir aos conselhos, ela não se qualifica para privilégios que devem ser dados apenas para quem é exemplar. Os anciãos não devem formar uma comissão judicativa, a não ser que a pessoa persista em compartilhar ou conversar sobre assuntos espirituais com seu parente ou insista em criticar abertamente a decisão de desassociá-lo.

(2) Namorar sem estar biblicamente livre para se casar novamente: Quando uma pessoa insiste em namorar ou em ter um relacionamento romântico sem estar legalmente e biblicamente livre para se casar novamente, os anciãos devem aconselhá-la. Isso também se aplica a uma pessoa que está livre, mas se envolve com alguém que não está. Uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada se a pessoa não mudar de atitude mesmo depois de vários conselhos e, geralmente, depois de um discurso de alerta. — Gál. 5:19; 2 Tes. 3:6, 14, 15.

18. Bebedeira: (1 Cor. 5:11; 6:9, 10; it-1 pp. 304-305; lvs pp. 20-21, 83) Quando uma pessoa cria o hábito de ficar bêbada ou quando isso acontece apenas uma vez, mas o caso fica muito conhecido, uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada. (w83 01/11 p. 8) Os textos a seguir mostram o que é ficar bêbado segundo a Bíblia: Jó 12:25; Salmo 107:27; Provérbios 20:1; 23:29-35; Isaías 24:20.

19. Se alguém confessa para um ancião que em uma ocasião, em particular, como, por exemplo, em sua casa, abusou de álcool a ponto de ficar bêbado, pode ser suficiente que o ancião dê fortes conselhos para ele, desde que a situação não tenha ficado muito conhecida. Em qualquer caso, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve ser informado.

20. Comer em excesso, glutonaria: (Pro. 23:20, 21; w04 01/11 pp. 30-31) Alguém que é glutão, ou seja, que come em excesso, com frequência perde o controle e come a ponto de se sentir muito desconfortável ou de passar mal. A glutonaria não é determinada pelo tamanho da pessoa, mas por sua atitude em relação à comida.

21. Roubo, furto: (1 Cor. 6:9, 10; Efé. 4:28; w86 15/11 p. 14) Todo roubo é errado. Mas, para decidir se uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada, o corpo de anciãos precisa usar de bom senso para avaliar todas as circunstâncias do caso e até que ponto a pessoa esteve envolvida. — w10 01/03 pp. 12-14; w94 15/04 pp. 19-21; jd pp. 105-106.

22. Mentir com maldade e de propósito; testemunhar falsamente: (Pro. 6:16, 19; Col. 3:9; Apo. 22:15; it-2 pp. 353-354) Toda mentira é errada, mas só se deve formar uma comissão judicativa quando a mentira se torna uma prática e a pessoa mente de propósito e com maldade. A expressão "com maldade" significa que a pessoa teve a intenção de prejudicar, que foi motivada por ódio ou inimizade. Enganar alguém sem que haja grandes consequências não é suficiente para se formar uma comissão judicativa. Também não se deve formar uma comissão quando alguém simplesmente exagera fatos ou mente por causa da pressão ou do medo do homem. — Mat. 26:69-75.

23. Pode ser que um cristão acuse outro de ter mentido em uma disputa judicial, como, por exemplo, num caso envolvendo divórcio, custódia de filhos, pagamento de pensão e assim por diante. Em geral, os anciãos não devem aplicar nenhuma disciplina à pessoa que está sendo acusada. Quem está fazendo a acusação pode expressar suas preocupações no tribunal, que tem a responsabilidade de decidir o que é ou não verdade.

24. Fraude, calúnia: (Lev. 19:16; Mat. 18:15-17; w97 15/03 pp. 17-22; it-1 pp. 1005-1006, it-2 pp. 1079-1080; od cap. 14 pars. 13-20; lvs p. 163) Fraudar significa enganar de propósito, trapacear ou distorcer a verdade com o objetivo de fazer alguém abrir mão de alguma coisa valiosa ou desistir de algum direito. Calúnias são informações falsas e geralmente maldosas que têm o objetivo de manchar o nome e a reputação de alguém. Caluniar não é o mesmo que fofocar. Uma fofoca pode ser verdade, mas a calúnia é sempre mentira. Os anciãos devem aconselhar a pessoa que faz fofocas, mas não devem tomar uma ação judicativa. (w89 15/10 p. 10; it-2 p. 1079 par. 7) Em casos de fraude ou calúnia, os anciãos só devem formar uma comissão judicativa depois que o irmão ofendido tiver dado o primeiro e o segundo passos descritos em Mateus 18:15, 16 e iniciado o terceiro passo, descrito em Mateus 18:17. — lvs pp. 253-254.

25. Se alguém pedir, os anciãos poderão participar no segundo passo, mas eles não estarão representando o corpo de anciãos. Se o problema chegar ao terceiro passo, os anciãos que tiverem servido como testemunhas no segundo passo não poderão fazer parte da comissão judicativa. Eles servirão apenas como testemunhas.

26. Não é papel dos anciãos servir como juízes em acordos comerciais. Eles não são cobradores de dívidas. Eles também não devem se envolver na elaboração de contratos ou acordos comerciais para resolver o problema, nem mesmo assinando como testemunhas. Isso também se aplica quando o caso chega ao terceiro passo.

27. O corpo de anciãos talvez precise investigar o caso antes de formar uma comissão judicativa. Na investigação, os irmãos que participaram no segundo passo não poderão servir como investigadores, mas poderão ser ouvidos como testemunhas.

28. Do ponto de vista da congregação, uma pessoa não é culpada de calúnia quando apresenta uma acusação para os anciãos, para um tribunal, para a polícia ou para outros que tenham autoridade para investigar e julgar o assunto. (it-2 p. 1080) Isso se aplica mesmo se a acusação não puder ser provada. — w97 15/08 p. 28 par. 1.

29. Injúria: (1 Cor. 6:10; it-1 pp. 1223-1224; lvs p. 164) Injuriar envolve agredir com insultos, cobrir alguém de ofensas. O corpo de anciãos precisa avaliar as circunstâncias e a gravidade da situação para decidir se uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada. Os anciãos não devem tomar uma ação judicativa, a não ser que a injúria seja muito grave, perturbe a paz da congregação e continue mesmo depois de vários conselhos.

30. Linguagem obscena: (Efé. 5:3-5; Col. 3:8; lvs p. 162) É verdade que algumas palavras são mais ofensivas que outras, mas nem toda linguagem ofensiva é obscena. A linguagem obscena envolve expressões sexualmente explícitas, sujas. (g03 08/06 pp. 19-20) Inclui escrever ou dizer coisas obscenas em salas de bate-papo na internet, em conversas sexuais por telefone, em mensagens eletrônicas e assim por diante. Antes de formar uma comissão judicativa, os anciãos devem se perguntar: O que a pessoa diz é sexualmente explícito? Ela continua usando esse tipo de linguagem mesmo depois de vários conselhos? — Veja 12:15.2.

31. Ganância, jogo por dinheiro, extorsão: (1 Cor. 5:10, 11; 6:10; 1 Tim. 3:8; it-1 pp. 919, 1024-1025) Quando uma pessoa faz pequenas apostas apenas por diversão, os anciãos geralmente não vão se envolver. Mas, se isso estiver afetando a espiritualidade dela ou fazendo outros tropeçar, os anciãos devem aconselhá-la. Se a pessoa não aceitar os conselhos e sua conduta continuar prejudicando a ela e a outros, ela não poderá ser considerada como alguém exemplar. (Isa. 65:11; w11 01/03 pp. 12 - 14; w02 01/11 p. 31; g 03/15 pp. 14-15) Por outro lado, quando alguém é motivado por ganância a se envolver com jogos por dinheiro, talvez prejudicando a si mesmo e a outras pessoas, e não muda de atitude mesmo depois de vários conselhos, uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada.

32. Se uma pessoa continua num emprego que está diretamente relacionado a jogos por dinheiro, ou num emprego que mostra claramente que ela apoia ou é cúmplice disso, os anciãos devem formar uma comissão judicativa. Geralmente, isso é feito depois de os anciãos terem dado seis meses para a pessoa fazer os ajustes necessários. (lvs pp. 204-209) Em caso de dúvidas, consultem o Departamento de Serviço.

33. Se, para fazer publicidade, uma empresa oferece prêmios ou dinheiro para o vencedor de um concurso ou para possíveis clientes, a decisão de aceitar esses prêmios é pessoal. Mas a pessoa que aceita precisa ter cuidado para não se tornar gananciosa. — Rom. 14:21; 1 Cor. 10:31-33; w73 pp. 511-512; g76 08/01 p. 28.

34. Se um cristão, com ganância e sem se arrepender, forçar o noivo a pagar um preço muito alto para poder se casar com sua filha, uma comissão judicativa pode ser formada. — 1 Cor. 5:11, 13; 6:9, 10; Heb. 13:5; w98 15/09 pp. 24-25.

35. Recusa em sustentar a família: (1 Tim. 5:8; lvs p. 251) Se um cristão tem condições de sustentar a família, mas se recusa de modo obstinado a fazer isso, deixando a esposa e os filhos na miséria, uma comissão judicativa talvez tenha que ser formada. Alguns dos fatores que o corpo de anciãos precisa levar em conta antes de formar a comissão são:

(1) O marido se recusa de modo obstinado a sustentar sua família, ou está tendo dificuldade para fazer isso por causa de fatores como saúde fraca ou problemas financeiros? Ele está fazendo o possível para sustentar sua família?

(2) Os anciãos já o aconselharam sobre o assunto e lhe deram a chance de corrigir a situação?

(3) A esposa tem recursos financeiros para impedir que a família fique na miséria?

(4) Se a família está na miséria, é porque recusou as provisões de seu cabeça, decidindo não viver com ele?

(5) Se houve separação, até que ponto a esposa é responsável?

36. Acessos de ira, violência, violência doméstica: (Mal. 2:16; Gál. 5:20; Col. 3:19) Um cristão que não consegue controlar a raiva não pode ser visto como alguém exemplar. Quando alguém tem acessos descontrolados de ira, os anciãos talvez tenham que formar uma comissão judicativa. Para decidir se isso será feito, eles devem avaliar a atitude e o padrão de comportamento da pessoa, e a gravidade dos danos que ela causou a outros. (g97 08/06 p. 20) Em caso de dúvidas, consultem o Departamento de Serviço.

37. Se um cristão se tornar lutador profissional de boxe e se recusar a parar mesmo depois de receber vários conselhos, uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada. — w81 01/12 p. 31.

38. Homicídio: Alguém que comete um assassinato tem culpa de sangue. Mas uma pessoa também pode ter culpa de sangue se ela causar a morte de alguém por negligência ou por violar leis de trânsito ou outras leis de segurança estabelecidas pelas autoridades. Os anciãos devem investigar o assunto e formar uma comissão judicativa se for necessário. A comissão deve basear sua decisão em fatos comprovados e não simplesmente numa decisão tomada pelas autoridades. — Deut. 22:8; w06 15/09 p. 30.

39. Apostasia: Apostasia significa desvio da adoração verdadeira, deserção, rebelião, abandono. Inclui o seguinte:

(1) Comemorar feriados religiosos: (Êxo. 32:4-6; Jer. 7:16-19) Nem todos os feriados estão diretamente ligados à religião falsa. Por isso, nem sempre é necessário tomar uma ação judicativa.

(2) Participar em atividades religiosas com outras organizações religiosas: (2 Cor. 6:14, 15, 17, 18) Isso envolve, entre outras coisas, curvar-se diante de altares, santuários, ídolos e imagens, e participar em orações e músicas da religião falsa. Esses são atos apóstatas. — Apo. 18:2, 4.

(3) Espalhar intencionalmente ensinos contrários à verdade da Bíblia: (2 João 7, 9, 10; lvs p. 245; it-1 pp. 157-158) Se alguém tem dúvidas sinceras sobre a verdade bíblica ensinada pelas Testemunhas de Jeová, ele deve receber ajuda amorosa. (2 Tim. 2:16-19, 23-26; Judas 22, 23) Mas, quando uma pessoa insiste em falar de ensinos falsos ou em espalhar esses ensinos de propósito, isso pode indicar que ela se tornou ou está se tornando apóstata. A pessoa deve ser aconselhada com firmeza. Se ela não reagir, os anciãos devem tentar aconselhá-la novamente de modo firme. Se, mesmo assim, ela não mudar, uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada. — Tito 3:10, 11; w86 01/04 pp. 30-31.

(4) Causar divisões, promover seitas: (Rom. 16:17, 18; Tito 3:10, 11) Envolve agir de propósito para acabar com a união da congregação ou enfraquecer a confiança dos irmãos na organização de Jeová. Isso pode ser apostasia ou levar a ela. — it-2 p. 984.

(5) Ter um emprego que promove a religião falsa: Uma pessoa pode ser desassociada se continuar num emprego que a faça promover ou apoiar a religião falsa. Mas isso só aconteceria depois de os anciãos terem dado seis meses para a pessoa fazer os ajustes necessários. — w99 15/04 pp. 28-30; lvs pp. 204-206.

(6) Ocultismo: (Deut. 18:9-13; 1 Cor. 10:21, 22; Gál. 5:20; lvs pp. 216-217)

(7) Idolatria: (1 Cor. 6:9, 10; 10:14) Idolatria inclui o uso de ídolos, imagens ou qualquer gravura na adoração falsa.

EVIDÊNCIAS QUE COMPROVAM UM PECADO GRAVE

40. Mesmo que uma pessoa batizada seja acusada de um pecado grave, só se deve formar uma comissão judicativa se houver evidências suficientes de que o pecado realmente ocorreu. Os seguintes pontos devem ser levados em conta:

(1) Confissão: Se uma pessoa confessar, de forma escrita ou verbal, que cometeu um pecado grave, não é necessário que haja outras evidências para se formar uma comissão judicativa. (Jos. 7:19) Para ser válida, a confissão deve ser feita diante de duas testemunhas e precisa ser clara, sem deixar dúvidas. Por exemplo, um marido talvez diga que sua esposa está "biblicamente livre" para se casar, mas isso em si não poderia ser considerado como uma confissão clara de adultério. Pode ser também que alguém, talvez aconselhado por seu advogado, se declare culpado perante a justiça para evitar uma sentença mais dura. Geralmente, isso em si não seria visto pelos anciãos como uma confissão.

(2) Testemunhas: Ter suspeitas de alguém não é prova suficiente de que houve pecado. É necessário que duas ou três pessoas tenham visto pessoalmente o pecado. Elas não podem simplesmente estar repetindo o que ouviram de outros. Se houver apenas uma testemunha, nenhuma ação judicativa deve ser tomada. (Deut. 19:15-17; João 8:17; 1 Tim. 5:19, 24, 25) Se duas ou três testemunhas viram alguém cometer o mesmo pecado, mas em ocasiões diferentes, os anciãos podem considerar o testemunho delas como prova de que houve pecado. Mas é melhor que haja duas testemunhas do mesmo incidente. O testemunho de jovens pode ser levado em conta; cabe aos anciãos decidir se o que eles dizem é confiável. O testemunho de pessoas de fora da organização, de desassociados e de dissociados também pode ser levado em conta, mas deve ser avaliado com cuidado.

41. Quando o pecado não fica comprovado, mas há bons motivos para se acreditar que aconteceu, o corpo de anciãos deve designar dois anciãos para investigar o assunto sem demora. Por exemplo, talvez haja apenas uma testemunha. Em alguns casos, pode ser apropriado que ela incentive o acusado a falar com os anciãos. (Tia. 5:14) Daí, os anciãos podem esperar alguns dias para que o acusado faça isso. Em outros casos, talvez não seja aconselhável que a testemunha fale com o acusado, como, por exemplo, quando ela é extremamente tímida. Além disso, nunca se deve pedir que uma vítima de estupro ou de abuso sexual de menores faça sua acusação na presença do acusado. (Para acusações envolvendo abuso sexual de menores, veja o capítulo 14.) Em todos os casos, quer a testemunha fale com o acusado quer não, os dois anciãos designados devem conversar com ele sobre a acusação. — w97 15/08 p. 27.

42. Quando o acusado nega a acusação, os anciãos designados para investigar o caso devem tentar fazer uma reunião com ele e a pessoa que o acusou. (Para acusações envolvendo abuso sexual de menores, veja o capítulo 14.) Se um deles não estiver disposto a participar dessa reunião, ou se o acusado continuar negando a acusação de apenas uma testemunha e o pecado não for comprovado, não se deve formar uma comissão judicativa.

PESSOAS COM CERTOS PRIVILÉGIOS

43. Quando alguém da congregação que serve em qualquer uma das modalidades alistadas a seguir é acusado de um pecado grave ou confessa ter cometido um pecado grave, dois anciãos que sabem os detalhes do que aconteceu devem entrar imediatamente em contato com o Departamento de Serviço para receber orientações. As modalidades são: membro da família de Betel, voluntário temporário de Betel, servo de construção, voluntário de construção, commuter de tempo parcial, commuter de tempo integral, commuter ocasional, commuter de construção por tempo parcial, commuter de construção por tempo integral, servo à distância, voluntário à distância, colaborador de Betel, missionário em campo, pioneiro especial temporário, pioneiro especial, servo de Salão de Assembleias e servo de escola bíblica.

PESSOAS QUE SE AFASTARAM HÁ MUITOS ANOS

44. Para decidir se uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada, o corpo de anciãos deve considerar as seguintes perguntas:

(1) A pessoa ainda se identifica como Testemunha de Jeová?

(2) Os irmãos da congregação ou a comunidade em geral a reconhecem como Testemunha de Jeová?

(3) Até que ponto o pecado da pessoa está afetando ou prejudicando outros? Por exemplo, o caso envolve abuso de menores ou adultério?

(4) A pessoa tem algum contato com a congregação, sendo uma má influência para os irmãos?

(5) A pessoa está disposta a se reunir com uma comissão judicativa, reconhecendo que precisa prestar contas à congregação?

45. Dependendo das respostas dessas perguntas e do tempo que a pessoa ficou inativa, os anciãos talvez decidam deixar o assunto pendente. Assim, se mais tarde ela quiser voltar para a congregação, os anciãos poderão esclarecer o assunto. — w08 15/11 pp. 14-15 pars. 12-13.

46. Se nenhuma ação judicativa foi tomada e apenas membros da família que são cristãos ficaram sabendo do pecado, é provável que eles passem a ver a pessoa como má associação e decidam diminuir drasticamente seu contato com ela. — 1 Cor. 15:33; w85 15/07 p. 19 par. 14.

PUBLICADORES NÃO BATIZADOS

47. Os anciãos devem agir rapidamente quando um publicador não batizado comete um pecado grave. Embora uma comissão judicativa não seja formada, o corpo de anciãos deve designar dois anciãos para se reunirem com ele, talvez os mesmos que o aprovaram como publicador não batizado. (Se o publicador não batizado for menor de idade, veja o parágrafo 55 deste capítulo.) Eles devem tentar ajudar o publicador e decidir se ele continua qualificado. (od cap. 14 pars. 38-40) Depois, eles devem atualizar o corpo de anciãos, informando se alguma restrição foi imposta e se um anúncio será dado para a congregação.

48. Se o publicador estiver arrependido, os anciãos designados talvez decidam que, por um tempo, ele não poderá ter certos privilégios, como comentar nas reuniões, fazer partes de estudante na reunião do meio de semana ou participar no serviço de campo.

49. Se os anciãos designados entenderem que o publicador está arrependido, mas que (1) o pecado ficou ou pode ficar muito conhecido, ou que (2) a congregação precisa tomar cuidado com o publicador, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve providenciar que o seguinte anúncio seja dado na próxima reunião do meio de semana: "Um assunto envolvendo [nome da pessoa] foi cuidado e ele(a) continua a servir como publicador(a) não batizado(a) na congregação."

50. Se o corpo de anciãos achar necessário, um discurso sobre o tipo de pecado que o publicador cometeu pode ser feito para a congregação algumas semanas depois do anúncio.

51. Se o publicador não estiver arrependido, os dois anciãos devem informá-lo de que ele não se qualifica mais para servir como publicador. Pode ser também que antes disso ele mesmo diga que não quer mais servir como publicador. Nesse caso, os anciãos devem aceitar sua decisão. Em todos os casos, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve providenciar que um ancião faça o seguinte anúncio na próxima reunião do meio de semana: "[Nome da pessoa] não é mais publicador(a) não batizado(a)." Como a pessoa não se arrependeu de seu pecado, seria melhor que ela não fosse chamada para comentar nas reuniões por um tempo.

52. Se os anciãos acharem que a pessoa é uma ameaça para o rebanho, eles podem, em particular, alertar os que correm perigo. Por exemplo, pode ser que mesmo depois do anúncio a pessoa tente se associar com os jovens da congregação. Nesse caso, os anciãos falariam em particular com os pais desses jovens e talvez com os próprios jovens.

53. Quando um publicador não batizado é desqualificado, não é necessário esperar sete dias para anunciar que ele não é mais publicador, e não existe um procedimento específico de apelação. Mas, se ele disser que não concorda com a decisão, o corpo de anciãos deve designar dois anciãos diferentes para reavaliarem o caso.

54. Se alguém que deixou de ser publicador começa a fazer progresso e deseja se tornar publicador novamente, dois anciãos (talvez os mesmos que se reuniram com ele antes) devem se reunir com ele e avaliar suas qualificações. Se ele se qualificar, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve providenciar um anúncio informando que ele é um publicador não batizado. Não é necessário esperar que ele entregue o primeiro relatório de serviço de campo para dar esse anúncio.

55. Se o publicador não batizado for um menor, os dois anciãos devem se reunir com os pais dele, se forem Testemunhas de Jeová, para entender o que aconteceu e para saber qual é a atitude dele e o que os pais estão fazendo para corrigi-lo. Se os pais tiverem a situação sob controle, os dois anciãos talvez decidam que não é necessário incluir o filho na reunião. Os anciãos devem falar com os pais de tempos em tempos para dar conselhos, sugestões e encorajamento. — Veja o capítulo 14, parágrafos 29 e 30, caso o menor tenha se envolvido em atividade sexual.

PECADOS GRAVES QUE ACONTECERAM HÁ MUITOS ANOS

56. Dependendo das circunstâncias, alguns casos de pecado grave precisam ser cuidados por uma comissão judicativa, mesmo que tenham sido cometidos há muitos anos. Por outro lado, pode ser que o conselho de dois anciãos seja suficiente se: (1) o pecado não aconteceu recentemente, há poucos anos, (2) a pessoa está realmente arrependida e (3) reconhece que devia ter confessado o pecado imediatamente.

57. O corpo de anciãos deve designar dois anciãos para investigar os fatos. Depois, o corpo deve se reunir para decidir se uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada. As seguintes perguntas devem ser consideradas:

(1) Quando o pecado aconteceu?

(2) Até que ponto o assunto ficou conhecido?

(3) A pessoa tem feito progresso espiritual, ou há evidências de que algo esteja impedindo que isso aconteça?

(4) Seria suficiente dar conselhos, ou é necessário dar outros passos para que a pessoa volte a ter uma consciência limpa?

(5) A pessoa está demonstrando obras próprias do arrependimento?

(6) Ela confessou voluntariamente, ou o assunto se tornou conhecido de outra forma?

(7) Se o corpo de anciãos decidir não formar uma comissão judicativa, eles vão continuar tendo o respeito da congregação?

(8) Se a pessoa cometeu adultério, ela confessou o pecado para seu marido ou esposa? — Veja 16:10.5.

(9) Até que ponto outras pessoas foram afetadas ou prejudicadas pelo pecado? Por exemplo, o assunto envolve abuso de menores ou adultério?

58. Se a pessoa tem algum privilégio (pioneiro, servo ministerial, ancião, etc.), suas qualificações devem ser reavaliadas. — Veja 8:25-27; 9:4.

QUANDO A VALIDADE DO BATISMO É QUESTIONADA

59. Ao lidar com um caso de pecado grave, os anciãos nunca devem questionar se o batismo da pessoa foi válido. Se ela levantar essa questão, os anciãos podem sugerir que ela leia a revista A Sentinela de 15 de fevereiro de 2010, página 22.

60. Pode ser que uma pessoa diga que seu batismo não foi válido porque ela cometeu um pecado grave secretamente pouco antes de se batizar e que, por isso, ela não acha que precise se submeter a uma comissão judicativa. É claro que, se os anciãos soubessem disso, a pessoa provavelmente não teria sido aprovada para o batismo. Mas isso não quer dizer necessariamente que a dedicação dela foi inválida. Algumas pessoas fazem sua dedicação bem antes do batismo; outras, quando o batismo está bem perto. Os anciãos não têm a capacidade de ler corações nem podem saber exatamente como Jeová encarava a pessoa quando ela foi batizada. Quando os anciãos ficam sabendo que alguém batizado estava secretamente cometendo um pecado grave enquanto era publicador não batizado, mas que parou de fazer isso antes do batismo, eles devem dar conselhos e encorajamento. Não se deve formar uma comissão judicativa por causa de pecados cometidos antes do batismo. (1 Cor. 6:9-11) Mas, se alguém voltar a cometer um pecado grave depois do batismo, os anciãos geralmente vão tratá-lo de acordo com o que ele afirmava ser, um cristão dedicado e batizado, e formarão uma comissão judicativa.

61. Em algumas raras ocasiões, fica claro que o batismo foi inválido porque a pessoa não parou de cometer o pecado grave antes do batismo, nem mesmo por pouco tempo. Por exemplo, pode ser que na época do batismo a pessoa vivesse em circunstâncias imorais com alguém do sexo oposto ou do mesmo sexo, fizesse parte de uma organização que não é neutra ou algo parecido. Em caso de dúvidas, consultem o Departamento de Serviço.

COMO DECIDIR QUAL CONGREGAÇÃO VAI CUIDAR DO ASSUNTO

62. Quando não fica claro qual congregação deve cuidar de um caso de pecado grave, os corpos de anciãos das congregações envolvidas devem decidir juntos qual delas vai cuidar do assunto. Não se deve criar caso sobre isso. Que congregação sabe dos fatos? Qual delas pode cuidar melhor do assunto?

63. Quando alguém que cometeu um pecado grave se muda antes de o assunto ficar resolvido, geralmente é melhor que os anciãos da congregação original continuem cuidando do assunto se isso for possível e se a distância permitir. Eles conhecem melhor a pessoa e suas circunstâncias. Se a pessoa tiver se mudado para muito longe e disser que não tem condições de voltar para se reunir com os anciãos, eles não devem insistir em cuidar do assunto. Nesse caso, talvez seja melhor encaminhar o assunto para os anciãos da nova congregação. Os dois corpos de anciãos precisam ter boa comunicação entre si.

64. Se os anciãos ficarem sabendo de um pecado grave envolvendo um publicador que está visitando sua região por um curto período, eles devem informar isso imediatamente aos anciãos da congregação dele.

PECADOS GRAVES QUE ENVOLVEM PESSOAS DE CONGREGAÇÕES DIFERENTES

65. Quando alguém confessa um pecado grave que também envolve uma pessoa de outra congregação, os anciãos devem informar o que eles sabem aos anciãos da outra congregação e dar tempo para que eles possam investigar o assunto. A outra pessoa admite o pecado? As duas pessoas contam a mesma história, ou há diferenças significativas no que elas dizem? Os anciãos que estão cuidando do assunto nas duas congregações devem ter boa comunicação e ajudar uns aos outros na investigação. Há muitas vantagens em se fazer uma reunião com as duas pessoas juntas para descobrir exatamente o que aconteceu e esclarecer qualquer diferença nas histórias delas. (Pro. 18:13, 17) Depois dessa reunião (caso ela seja feita), os anciãos que estão cuidando do assunto em cada congregação vão se separar e continuar cuidando apenas da situação da pessoa de sua congregação. Geralmente, os anciãos de uma congregação não vão concluir o caso antes que os anciãos da outra congregação terminem sua investigação.

QUANDO ALGUÉM PERMITE QUE OUTROS COMETAM IMORALIDADE EM SUA CASA

66. Se um publicador permite que alguém que mora com ele cometa imoralidade sexual em sua casa, ele está, mesmo que indiretamente, mostrando que aprova essa conduta imoral. O mesmo se aplica quando um publicador permite que alguém que o visita cometa imoralidade sexual em sua casa. Um publicador que faz isso não pode ser considerado como alguém exemplar.

67. Quando os anciãos ficam sabendo que algo assim está acontecendo, eles devem dar conselhos bíblicos com paciência. Eles devem ajudar o publicador a ver que essa situação pode fazer outros tropeçarem. Daí, o publicador talvez decida agir para mudar a situação e "não pôr uma pedra de tropeço ou um obstáculo diante de um irmão". — Rom. 14:13.

68. Pode ser que o publicador esteja realmente preocupado com o fato de que outros possam tropeçar por causa da situação. Mas, por algum motivo, ele talvez ache que não há uma solução no momento. Por exemplo, pode ser que irmãos idosos precisem da ajuda de um filho ou filha que não é Testemunha de Jeová. Em casos assim, nenhuma ação judicativa deve ser tomada, mas o corpo de anciãos deve avaliar se a pessoa se qualifica para privilégios que devem ser dados apenas para quem é exemplar.

69. Por outro lado, pode ser que o publicador tenha uma atitude descarada ao receber conselhos dos anciãos, mostrando que não se preocupa se outros podem tropeçar. Mesmo que ele não incentive outros a fazer o que ele faz, os anciãos talvez achem melhor fazer um discurso de alerta para a congregação. (2 Tes. 3:14, 15; veja 12:76-79.) Mas, se um publicador batizado incentivar outros a permitir que pessoas cometam imoralidade na casa deles, uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada, já que ele está aprovando imoralidade sexual, causando divisões e, na verdade, fa-lando contra os "ensinamentos do Cristo". — 2 João 9-11; Gál. 5:19, 20; Apo. 2:20.

LIBERDADE BÍBLICA PARA SE CASAR NOVAMENTE

70. A pessoa que quer se casar novamente é quem tem a responsabilidade de apresentar evidências convincentes de que ela está biblicamente livre. Os anciãos não devem pensar que alguém está biblicamente livre só porque se divorciou antes do batismo, já que o batismo não desfaz o vínculo do casamento. Eles precisam ter muito cuidado antes de dizer que alguém está biblicamente livre para se casar novamente e devem consultar o Departamento de Serviço se tiverem qualquer dúvida. Isso é especialmente importante já que as decisões que a pessoa toma sobre assuntos como esse vão afetar não só sua relação com seu cônjuge, mas também sua relação com Jeová. Os anciãos têm uma séria responsabilidade ao lidarem com esse tipo de assunto e precisam ter cuidado ao dar conselhos, principalmente se a questão não estiver tão clara. — Luc. 12:48; Tia. 3:1.

71. Uma pessoa está biblicamente livre para se casar novamente apenas se essas três coisas acontecerem: (1) imoralidade sexual (porneía), (2) rejeição (quando o cônjuge inocente se recusa a se reconciliar com seu marido ou esposa) e (3) processo de divórcio finalizado. (Mat. 5:31, 32; 19:9; Heb. 13:4) Por exemplo, pode ser que um cristão que quer se casar novamente confesse que cometeu imoralidade sexual depois que seu cônjuge se divorciou dele. Ou pode ser que o seu cônjuge tenha confessado que cometeu imoralidade sexual depois do divórcio. Nesses casos, tanto o marido como a esposa estariam biblicamente livres para se casar de novo. — Veja 12:10-12.

72. Se uma pessoa batizada acusa seu cônjuge cristão de adultério e acha que está livre para se casar novamente, o assunto deve ser levado para o corpo de anciãos. Os anciãos devem avisar para a pessoa que ela não deve se considerar biblicamente livre para namorar ou se casar novamente até que os anciãos terminem de investigar o assunto e que fique comprovado que seu cônjuge é culpado de porneía. (Deut. 19:15; João 8:17) Se o cônjuge que está sendo acusado estiver em outra congregação, essas evidências devem ser apresentadas aos anciãos da congregação dele para que eles as analisem e tomem uma decisão.

73. Em alguns casos, o adultério não fica comprovado. Mas pode ser que a pessoa confesse que passou a noite toda numa casa com alguém do sexo oposto (ou alguém conhecido por ser homossexual) em circunstâncias impróprias, ou pode ser que duas testemunhas digam que viram isso. (Veja 12:7-9.) Os anciãos devem avaliar a situação com cuidado. (Veja 12:7.1.) Se o cônjuge inocente estiver convencido de que houve adultério, os anciãos podem permitir que ele assuma perante Jeová a responsabilidade de obter o divórcio bíblico. Se ele se casar novamente, nenhuma ação judicativa deve ser tomada. Um breve registro da decisão dos anciãos deve ser colocado num envelope lacrado no arquivo da congregação.

74. Geralmente, mesmo que a pessoa que está sendo acusada não seja Testemunha de Jeová, como um desassociado, um dissociado ou alguém não batizado, ainda são necessárias duas testemunhas de que ela cometeu um pecado que deixaria seu cônjuge biblicamente livre. Mas pode-se fazer uma exceção se o descrente, em particular, confessar para seu cônjuge de uma forma que não deixe dúvidas que ele cometeu adultério. Nesse caso, se o cônjuge inocente acreditar que a confissão é verdadeira e não quiser se reconciliar, ele pode escrever uma carta para os anciãos explicando a situação. Daí, o corpo de anciãos vai considerar essa carta, levando em conta o seguinte: Há algum motivo para acreditar que o acusado não cometeu imoralidade? Por exemplo, as palavras que ele usou na confissão dão margem para dúvidas? Ele mais tarde negou ter confessado? Se a situação não estiver muito clara e o acusado estiver disposto a falar com os anciãos, eles podem decidir falar diretamente com ele. Se não houver motivos para se duvidar da confissão, o cônjuge inocente pode assumir perante Jeová a responsabilidade de obter o divórcio bíblico. Se ele se casar novamente, nenhuma ação judicativa deve ser tomada. Um breve registro da decisão dos anciãos deve ser colocado num envelope lacrado no arquivo da congregação.

75. O cônjuge inocente indica que rejeitou seu marido ou esposa quando:

(1) Dá início ao divórcio antes ou depois de ficar sabendo que seu cônjuge cometeu adultério.

(2) Antes ou depois de ficar sabendo do adultério, assina os documentos de divórcio ou de outra forma indica que não se opõe ao divórcio que o cônjuge culpado iniciou. Em alguns países, o cônjuge inocente pode assinar documentos relacionados à pensão e custódia dos filhos, sem indicar que concorda com o divórcio; assinar esses documentos não indicaria necessariamente uma rejeição. — w00 15/12 pp. 28-29.

(3) Recusa-se a voltar a ter relações sexuais com o cônjuge por um longo período, talvez por um ano ou até mesmo por anos, mesmo dizendo que não quer o divórcio e que o perdoou. Nesse caso, antes de dizer ao cônjuge culpado que ele está livre para obter o divórcio bíblico, os anciãos devem consultar o Departamento de Serviço. O cônjuge inocente não é obrigado a decidir rapidamente se vai ou não perdoar a outra pessoa.

TOMAR NOTA DOS INDISCIPLINADOS

76. Às vezes, pode ser necessário tomar nota de alguém que mostra claro desrespeito pelos padrões de Jeová, mesmo que ele não tenha cometido um pecado grave o suficiente para se tomar uma ação judicativa. (2 Tes. 3:6, 14, 15; w99 15/07 pp. 29-31) Isso pode incluir coisas como ser extremamente preguiçoso ou crítico, ou ser alguém que sempre 'se intromete no que não lhe diz respeito', falando coisas inúteis. (2 Tes. 3:11) Também pode incluir alguém que procura tirar vantagem material de outros, que escolhe se divertir com coisas claramente impróprias, que namora um descrente ou que namora sem estar legalmente e biblicamente livre para se casar. — od cap. 14 pars. 9-12.

78. Por exemplo, se um irmão batizado namora alguém descrente, os anciãos devem primeiro dar conselhos e tentar ajudá-lo. (2 Cor. 6:14; w04 01/07 pp. 30-31) Se ele insistir em desrespeitar os princípios da Bíblia mesmo depois de ser aconselhado várias vezes, o corpo de anciãos talvez decida fazer um discurso de alerta para a congregação. Quando alguém namora um publicador não batizado, talvez não seja necessário fazer um discurso de alerta. Isso vai depender das circunstâncias, da atitude do irmão, do quanto isso incomoda a congregação e de outros fatores. De qualquer forma, como ele está namorando com o objetivo de se casar com alguém que não é batizado, ele está desobedecendo ao conselho da Bíblia em 1 Coríntios 7:39 de se casar "somente no Senhor" e deve receber conselhos amorosos.

79. Se a pessoa mudar de atitude, os anciãos talvez decidam individualmente voltar a se associar com ela. Isso vai mostrar para a congregação que eles consideram que o discurso de alerta feito sobre a pessoa não se aplica mais.

TENTATIVA DE SUICÍDIO

80. Uma pessoa talvez tente se suicidar por causa de grande desespero ou depressão profunda. Os anciãos devem tratar a pessoa com cuidado e compaixão. Na maioria dos casos, não é necessário tomar uma ação judicativa. — Sal. 88:3, 17, 18; Pro. 15:13; Ecl. 7:7; g 04/14 pp. 6-9.

Pornografia

Parágrafos

1. Para ajudar um irmão a se livrar do hábito de ver pornografia, os anciãos precisam ser amorosos e usar a Bíblia para dar fortes conselhos. (Tia. 5:14, 15) Quando um ancião fica sabendo que um irmão viu pornografia de propósito, ele deve informar o corpo de anciãos. Eles vão designar dois anciãos, que vão se reunir com o irmão para entender o que realmente aconteceu e verificar a gravidade do problema. Se o irmão for casado, ele deve ser incentivado de forma bondosa a falar sobre isso com seu cônjuge. Depois dessa investigação inicial, os dois anciãos devem atualizar o corpo de anciãos. — Veja 12:40-42.

QUANDO FORMAR UMA COMISSÃO JUDICATIVA

2. Ver pornografia de propósito é pecado. (Mat. 5:28, 29) A pornografia pode levar uma pessoa a ficar viciada em sexo, a ter desejos sexuais que não são normais e a ter sérios problemas no casamento. (Pro. 6:27, lvs pp. 121-123 pars. 9-12) Mas nem todos os casos exigem ação judicativa. — Veja 12:1-2; w12 15/03 pp. 30-31; w06 15/07 p. 31.

3. Quando alguém deixa que a prática de ver formas repulsivas de pornografia o domine, talvez por um bom tempo, sua atitude pode ser classificada como impureza grave com ganância, que exige ação judicativa. (Efé. 4:19) Formas repulsivas de pornografia incluem homossexualismo (relação sexual entre pessoas do mesmo sexo), sexo em grupo, sexo com animais, tortura sádica, cenas de sexo com pessoas amarradas ou mulheres sendo agredidas, estupro em grupo e pornografia infantil. Assistir a cenas de sexo entre duas mulheres é tão errado quanto assistir a cenas de sexo entre dois homens, não importa se quem está assistindo é homem ou mulher. — Veja 12:14-15.

4. Se um irmão convida outros para ver pornografia (repulsiva ou não), ou de outra forma os incentiva a fazer isso, suas ações podem indicar que sua atitude é desrespeitosa, descarada. Esse tipo de atitude exigiria a formação de uma comissão judicativa baseada em conduta insolente. — Veja 12:16-17.

O QUE FAZER QUANDO A PESSOA TEM PRIVILÉGIOS

5. Se o corpo de anciãos decidir que não é necessário formar uma comissão judicativa, mas o problema envolver alguém que tem privilégios, como um ancião, um servo ministerial ou um pioneiro, suas qualificações devem ser reavaliadas. (Veja 8:31-33; 9:4.) O corpo de anciãos deve considerar o seguinte: Que tipo de pornografia ele viu? Ele viu pornografia brevemente, umas poucas vezes, ou isso se tornou uma prática que durou muitos meses ou até anos? Ele se masturbou? (Veja 12:4.) Quando foi a última vez que ele viu pornografia? Ele já tinha sido aconselhado sobre isso alguma vez? A confissão foi voluntária? Se ele for casado, contou para seu cônjuge? Como isso afetou o casamento? Quem mais sabe do problema? Ele ainda é respeitado por essas pessoas? Ele mostra um desejo sincero de parar de ver pornografia? Sua consciência permite que ele continue com seu privilégio?

6. O corpo de anciãos talvez decida que o cristão ainda está qualificado para continuar com seu privilégio se (1) a pornografia que ele viu não foi do tipo repulsivo e isso aconteceu apenas em algumas ocasiões, de modo breve, (2) ele mostra um desejo sincero de parar de ver pornografia, (3) os anciãos estão convencidos de que ele não vai mais ver pornografia, (4) ele continua sendo respeitado pelas pessoas que sabem o que ele fez e (5) sua consciência permite que ele continue com seu privilégio. Por outro lado, alguém que persiste em ver pornografia, mesmo que não seja repulsiva, não pode ser considerado exemplar e não se qualifica para privilégios especiais na congregação. — Veja 1:2.8; 2:4.

PASTOREIO

7. Uma pessoa que está lutando para deixar de ver pornografia precisa receber pastoreio com regularidade. A frequência e o tipo das visitas vão depender de até que ponto ela se envolveu com pornografia. Nessas visitas, os anciãos podem usar matérias bíblicas produzidas pelo "escravo fiel e prudente". (Mat. 24:45) Eles devem fazer todo o esforço possível para ajudar a pessoa a criar uma rotina diária de oração, estudo pessoal e meditação. (Fil. 4:8) Se ela tiver um cônjuge cristão, ele também deve receber ajuda e consolo espiritual dos anciãos.

QUANDO RECOMENDAR UMA REDESIGNAÇÃO

8. Antes de pensar em recomendar a redesignação de um irmão que deixou de ser servo ministerial ou ancião por causa de pornografia, os anciãos devem avaliar se ele (1) demonstrou por um período suficiente que superou o problema e (2) tem o respeito da congregação, incluindo sua família. (Veja 8:10.) Nesse caso, se o irmão servia como ancião, o corpo de anciãos deve decidir se ele será recomendado como ancião novamente ou se ele deve servir primeiro como servo ministerial. Se ele viu pornografia por um longo período, seria melhor que ele fosse recomendado para servir primeiro como servo ministerial. Mas o irmão pode ser recomendado para servir como ancião novamente se (1) a pornografia que ele viu não foi do tipo repulsivo, (2) isso aconteceu apenas em algumas ocasiões, de modo breve, e (3) ele tomou a iniciativa em confessar isso para os anciãos.

Abuso de menores

Parágrafos

1. Os anciãos devem seguir de perto as orientações deste capítulo quando ficarem sabendo de um assunto envolvendo abuso de menores. Isso vai ajudar a defender a santidade do nome de Jeová e vai contribuir para a segurança dos menores. — Isa. 32:1, 2; 1 Ped. 2:12; w19.05 pp. 8-13.

2. Neste capítulo, usamos as palavras "acusado" e "menor" no masculino. Mas essas orientações se aplicam em todos os casos, não importa se o acusado ou o menor é homem ou mulher. As referências aos pais e aos chefes de família também se aplicam aos responsáveis legais.

3. O abuso de menores inclui negligência, abuso físico, abuso sexual ou abuso emocional de um menor. O abuso sexual de menores acontece quando alguém adulto usa uma criança para satisfazer os desejos sexuais dele. Isso inclui ter relações sexuais; fazer sexo oral ou sexo anal; acariciar os órgãos genitais, os seios ou as nádegas; ou outros atos pervertidos, como voyeurismo de um menor (ter prazer imoral por observar um menor nu ou seminu, sem que o menor suspeite de que está sendo observado); expor de forma indecente o corpo diante de um menor; ou fazer propostas sexuais a um menor. Dependendo das circunstâncias, pode incluir alguém adulto mostrar pornografia a um menor ou praticar sexting com um menor. Sexting envolve o envio eletrônico de mensagens ou imagens sexualmente explícitas. As vítimas mais comuns de abuso são meninas, mas meninos também são vítimas. As pessoas que mais abusam de menores são homens, mas algumas mulheres também fazem isso.

4. Segundo a Bíblia, o abuso sexual de menores é um pecado muito grave. (Deut. 23:17, 18; Gál. 5:19, 20; w97 01/02 p. 29) As Testemunhas de Jeová abominam o abuso sexual de menores. (Rom. 12:9) Por isso, a congregação não vai proteger das consequências ninguém que cometa esses atos repulsivos. As ações tomadas pela congregação para cuidar de uma acusação de abuso sexual de menores não têm o objetivo de substituir as ações das autoridades. (Rom. 13:1-4) Assim, a vítima, os pais da vítima ou qualquer outra pessoa que relatar aos anciãos um suposto caso de abuso devem ser informados de maneira clara de que eles têm o direito de denunciar o assunto para as autoridades. Os anciãos não devem criticar ninguém que decidir fazer uma denúncia às autoridades. — Gál. 6:5.

5. De acordo com a Bíblia, são os pais que têm a responsabilidade de ensinar e proteger seus filhos. (Efé. 6:4) Como pastores espirituais, os anciãos podem ajudar os pais a cuidar de sua res-ponsabilidade bíblica. Nossas publicações e nosso site contêm muitas informações úteis para ajudar os pais. — w19.05 pp. 12-13.

CONSIDERAÇÕES JURÍDICAS

6. Abuso de menores é crime. Em alguns países, quem fica sabendo de um suposto caso de abuso de menores é obrigado por lei a denunciar o caso às autoridades. — Rom. 13:1-4.

7. É importante que os anciãos obedeçam às leis sobre denunciar abuso de menores. Para garantir que isso aconteça, toda vez que eles ficarem sabendo de uma acusação de abuso de menores, dois anciãos devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento Jurídico de Betel para receber aconselhamento legal. Isso deve ser feito mesmo que as duas pessoas envolvidas sejam menores. Os anciãos não devem pedir que a suposta vítima, a pessoa acusada ou qualquer outra pessoa ligue para o Departamento Jurídico no lugar deles. Os anciãos devem ligar para o Departamento Jurídico mesmo nas seguintes situações:

(1) O suposto abuso ocorreu há muitos anos.

(2) O suposto abuso se baseia no testemunho de uma única testemunha.

(3) Acredita-se que o suposto abuso seja uma memória reprimida.

(4) O suposto abuso envolveu acusados ou vítimas que já faleceram.

(5) Acredita-se que o suposto abuso já foi denunciado às autoridades.

(6) O acusado ou a vítima não são da sua congregação.

(7) O acusado não é Testemunha de Jeová, mas se associa com a congregação.

(8) O suposto abuso ocorreu antes de o acusado ou a vítima terem sido batizados.

(9) A suposta vítima é hoje um adulto.

(10) O suposto abuso ocorreu no passado, e não está claro se os anciãos da sua congregação ligaram para o Departamento Jurídico em busca de orientação.

8. O Departamento Jurídico vai dar aconselhamento legal com base nos fatos e nas leis que se aplicam. Se o acusado de abuso de menores se associa com sua congregação, os dois anciãos, ao ligarem para o Departamento Jurídico, devem fornecer o nome completo do acusado, a data de nascimento dele e, se for o caso, sua data de batismo. Depois de falarem com o Departamento Jurídico, a ligação dos anciãos será transferida para o Departamento de Serviço.

9. Pessoas que estão presas: Dois anciãos devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento Jurídico se algum preso, batizado ou não, que tenha sido acusado de abuso de menores, estiver agora se associando com a congregação. Isso inclui a situação em que o preso está assistindo às reuniões congregacionais realizadas na prisão. Em alguns casos, talvez não seja permitido que os anciãos façam perguntas sobre o crime do qual o preso foi acusado. Mas, se eles ficarem sabendo que o suposto crime está ligado a abuso de menores, eles devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento Jurídico.

10. Pornografia infantil e *sexting: Se os anciãos ficarem sabendo que um adulto que se associa com a congregação se envolveu com pornografia infantil, dois anciãos devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento Jurídico. Também, se os anciãos ficarem sabendo que um adulto ou um menor que se associa com a congregação pratica sexting com um menor, dois anciãos devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento Jurídico. Se os anciãos ficarem sabendo que um adulto pratica sexting

CONSIDERAÇÕES CONGREGACIONAIS

11. Do ponto de vista da congregação, o abuso sexual de menores não se refere à situação em que um menor, quase adulto, consente em praticar atividade sexual com um adulto que é apenas alguns anos mais velho. De modo geral, também não se refere a situações em que apenas menores estão envolvidos. (Veja 14:29-30.) Em vez disso, se refere à situação em que um adulto é culpado de abusar sexualmente de uma criança ou em que um adulto é culpado de se envolver sexualmente com um menor, quase adulto, sem o consentimento do menor. Do ponto de vista da congregação, ver pornografia infantil não é considerado abuso sexual de menores. Mas essa é uma grave violação dos padrões de Jeová, e a pessoa que fez isso deve receber fortes conselhos. Dependendo de quantas vezes e até que ponto ela viu pornografia infantil, talvez seja necessário que uma comissão judicativa seja formada. — Veja o capítulo 13.

AJUDA ESPIRITUAL PARA AS VÍTIMAS

12. Quando alguém procura os anciãos para falar sobre um caso de abuso de menores, os anciãos devem mostrar compaixão e empatia. A ajuda contínua dos anciãos por meio de visitas de pastoreio é especialmente importante para as vítimas de abuso sexual de menores e suas famílias. — Isa. 32:1, 2; Efé. 4:32; 1 Ped. 5:2.

13. O pastoreio a uma irmã adulta que foi vítima de abuso de menores sempre deve ser feito por dois anciãos. Além disso, nenhum ancião deve ser o único confidente de uma irmã que não seja sua parente próxima. — Veja 25:12.

14. O pastoreio a uma vítima de abuso de menores que ainda é menor de idade deve ser feito por dois anciãos, na presença dos pais. (Deut. 6:6, 7; Efé. 6:4) É claro que se um dos pais for o acusado, ele não poderá estar presente. Se nenhum dos pais puder estar presente, outro publicador adulto da congregação em quem a vítima confia deve ser convidado.

15. Como pastores, os anciãos devem ser bons ouvintes. (Pro. 21:13; Tia. 1:19) Algumas vítimas de abuso preferem não falar sobre o que aconteceu. Já outras acham muito bom falar com anciãos que as escutam com empatia e depois dão consolo usando a Bíblia. (1 Tes. 5:14; Pro. 12:25; Tia. 5:13-15) Pode ser que os anciãos tenham que fazer algumas perguntas de modo bondoso para ajudar a pessoa que está aflita a se expressar. Mas eles não devem perguntar repetidamente sobre detalhes do abuso nem entrar em pormenores desnecessários. Os anciãos podem dar o consolo que a pessoa precisa por considerar exemplos bíblicos de pessoas que passaram por situações difíceis na infância e mesmo assim se tornaram servos fiéis de Jeová. Com o tempo, Jeová vai curar "os que têm coração quebrantado". — Sal. 30:2; 94:19; 147:3; w19.05 pp. 14-20; w11 15/10 pp. 23-27; w01 15/04 pp. 25-28; w84 01/05 pp. 27-31; g 07/09 pp. 6-9; g91 08/10 pp. 3-11.

16. Ajudar uma vítima de abuso de menores é uma responsabilidade muito importante. Mas os anciãos precisam equilibrar o tempo que gastam pastoreando a vítima com o tempo que gastam com outras responsabilidades, como cuidar das necessidades espirituais, emocionais e materiais de sua própria família. Em alguns casos, a vítima de abuso de menores procura mais ajuda espiritual dos anciãos do que eles podem dar. Alguns anciãos que passaram por essa situação acharam prático estabelecer um limite de tempo para esse tipo de pastoreio. Talvez sejam necessárias várias visitas para se conseguir dar a ajuda que a pessoa realmente precisa. Pode ser que numa certa ocasião os anciãos não possam dar toda a ajuda que gostariam para a vítima. Mesmo assim, eles devem se esforçar para falar algumas palavras de encorajamento, garantir a ela que Jeová a ama, ler um texto da Bíblia e fazer uma oração. Isso vai mostrar que os anciãos se interessam e que estão dispostos a fazer o que podem para ajudar.

17. Além do pastoreio feito pelos anciãos, pode ser que a vítima ou a família dela queiram mais ajuda. Por exemplo, uma irmã adulta que sofreu abuso quando era criança talvez decida procurar uma irmã que mostre empatia e que possa lhe dar apoio emocional e encorajamento. (Pro. 17:17) Ou, se a irmã adulta concordar, um ou dois anciãos podem perguntar em particular a uma irmã madura se ela teria condições de dar apoio emocional e encorajamento a uma irmã que sofreu abuso. E talvez a vítima ou sua família decidam procurar a ajuda de profissionais qualificados. Essa é uma decisão pessoal. (Gál. 6:5) Se alguém pedir conselhos sobre esse assunto para um ancião, ele pode mostrar princípios bíblicos que se apliquem e sugerir alguns artigos de nossas publicações. — w15 15/09 pp. 9-11; w08 15/11 pp. 23-27.

INVESTIGAÇÃO DAS ACUSAÇÕES

18. Os anciãos podem ser informados de uma acusação de abuso sexual de menores diretamente pela vítima, pelos pais da vítima ou por um confidente da vítima. Depois de ter recebido orientações de Betel, e se o acusado for um publicador da congregação, o corpo de anciãos deve designar dois anciãos para investigar o caso. Esses anciãos devem seguir de perto as orientações e os procedimentos bíblicos explicados neste capítulo e no capítulo 12. Nunca é necessário que a vítima de abuso sexual de menores faça sua acusação na presença do acusado, nem durante a investigação nem durante a audiência judicativa. Mas as vítimas que agora são adultas podem fazer isso, se desejarem. Além disso, as vítimas podem ser acompanhadas por alguém em quem confiam (homem ou mulher) ao apresentar sua acusação aos anciãos. Se a vítima preferir, a acusação pode ser feita em forma de uma declaração escrita. Em geral, se a vítima for menor de idade, os anciãos podem conseguir todas as informações necessárias com os pais da vítima. Além disso, é possível que os anciãos já tenham evidências suficientes à sua disposição para comprovar a conduta errada do acusado. (Veja 12:40-42.) Se surgir um caso excepcional em que os dois anciãos acham que vai ser necessário falar com um menor que é vítima de abuso sexual, os anciãos devem primeiro entrar em contato com o Departamento de Serviço.

COMISSÃO JUDICATIVA

19. Se o corpo de anciãos entender que existem provas bíblicas suficientes para se formar uma comissão judicativa em um caso envolvendo abuso sexual de menores, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve primeiro entrar em contato com o superintendente de circuito. (Veja 12:40-42; 15:1-2.) O superintendente de circuito vai designar um ancião experiente para servir como presidente da comissão judicativa. Depois, o corpo de anciãos vai escolher os outros membros que farão parte da comissão. Se for necessário formar uma comissão de apelação, o superintendente de circuito vai escolher anciãos experientes para servir na comissão e designar seu presidente. (Veja 17:1.) Se for comprovado que houve conduta errada e a pessoa não estiver arrependida, ela deverá ser desassociada. (Veja 16:26-31.) Mas, se ela estiver arrependida e for repreendida, a repreensão deve ser anunciada à congregação na próxima reunião do meio de semana. (Veja 16:20-25.) Esse anúncio vai proteger a congregação. As vítimas de abuso sexual de menores não passam por comissão judicativa. Se o corpo de anciãos acredita que há motivos para que a congregação tome uma ação num caso em que um menor participou voluntariamente na conduta errada, antes de tomar qualquer ação, dois anciãos devem ligar para o Departamento de Serviço.

COMISSÃO DE READMISSÃO

20. Se uma pessoa que foi desassociada por abuso sexual de menores pedir readmissão, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve entrar em contato com o superintendente de circuito e informar os nomes dos anciãos que serviram na comissão original. O superintendente de circuito vai designar um ancião experiente para servir como presidente da comissão de readmissão. Depois, o corpo de anciãos vai escolher os outros membros que farão parte da comissão. Se a decisão for readmitir a pessoa, dois anciãos da comissão devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento de Serviço. Essa ligação deve ser feita antes de a pessoa ser informada sobre a decisão e antes de a readmissão ser anunciada à congregação. — Veja 19:10-12.

21. Se uma pessoa que foi desassociada por abuso sexual de menores se mudar e pedir readmissão em outra congregação, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos da nova congregação deve entrar em contato com seu superintendente de circuito. O superintendente vai designar um ancião experiente para servir como presidente da comissão de readmissão na nova congregação. Depois, o corpo de anciãos vai escolher os outros membros que farão parte da comissão. Se essa comissão recomendar a readmissão da pessoa, ela deve entrar em contato com o coordenador do corpo de anciãos da congregação original. Ele vai entrar em contato com seu superintendente de circuito e fornecer os nomes dos irmãos que serviram na comissão judicativa original. Esse superintendente de circuito vai designar um ancião experiente para servir como presidente da comissão de readmissão na congregação original. Depois, o corpo de anciãos vai escolher os outros membros que farão parte da comissão. Se a comissão da congregação original concordar com a readmissão, dois anciãos de cada comissão devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento de Serviço. Essas ligações devem ser feitas antes de a pessoa ser informada sobre a decisão e antes de a readmissão ser anunciada às duas congregações. — Veja 19:10-12.

RESTRIÇÕES

22. Os anciãos devem seguir todas as orientações do Departamento de Serviço. Por exemplo, o Departamento de Serviço vai dar orientações quando (1) for decidido que um publicador (batizado ou não batizado) culpado de abuso sexual de menores está arrependido e pode permanecer na congregação, (2) alguém que foi desassociado por abuso sexual de menores for readmitido, (3) um publicador (batizado ou não batizado) que nega ter cometido abuso sexual de menores for condenado pelas autoridades ou (4) alguém que é encarado na localidade ou na congregação como abusador de menores se tornar publicador ou se batizar.

23. Em casos assim, as orientações que o Departamento de Serviço dará aos anciãos vão incluir restrições impostas à pessoa com relação às atividades dela na congregação e à participação dela no ministério. Os anciãos também serão orientados a advertir a pessoa a nunca ficar sozinha com um menor, a não ter amizade com menores, a não expressar afeto a menores, e assim por diante. O Departamento de Serviço vai orientar os anciãos a informarem os chefes de família da congregação que têm filhos menores sobre a necessidade de ficarem atentos ao contato de seus filhos com a pessoa. Os anciãos devem tomar esse passo apenas se forem orientados a fazer isso pelo Departamento de Serviço. O coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve se certificar de que os anciãos recém-designados e os anciãos que se mudam para a congregação saibam das orientações do Departamento de Serviço em relação a essas pessoas.

24. Quem praticou abuso sexual de menores não se qualifica para receber nenhum privilégio na congregação por muitos anos, ou talvez nunca se qualifique. Isso inclui privilégios menores. O conselho que Paulo deu a Timóteo deve ser levado ainda mais a sério no caso de adultos batizados que abusaram de crianças: "Nunca imponha as mãos sobre nenhum homem precipitadamente, nem participe dos pecados de outros." (1 Tim. 5:22; w97 01/01 pp. 26-29) Se o corpo de anciãos achar que alguém que cometeu abuso sexual de menores décadas atrás está agora qualificado para privilégios menores, como levar ou ajustar microfones, operar os equipamentos de som e vídeo, servir como indicador, ou ajudar com as contas, publicações ou territórios, eles devem designar dois anciãos para ligar para o Departamento de Serviço. Os anciãos designados devem fazer essa ligação antes de dar qualquer privilégio a alguém nessa situação.

25. Veja 22:18-20.

MUDANÇA PARA OUTRA CONGREGAÇÃO

26. Quando uma pessoa da congregação que foi acusada de abuso sexual de menores (não importa se a acusação foi comprovada ou não) se muda para outra congregação, dois anciãos da congregação de onde ela está saindo devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento Jurídico. Os anciãos devem fornecer o nome da nova congregação, se tiverem essa informação. Isso também deve ser feito (1) se a pessoa estiver desassociada ou dissociada e estiver assistindo às reuniões, (2) se ela se muda regularmente para uma segunda residência, ou (3) se for um preso que está sendo solto ou transferido para outra prisão. A comissão de serviço da congregação não deve enviar nenhuma informação à nova congregação sem primeiro receber aconselhamento legal do Departamento Jurídico e orientações do Departamento de Serviço.

27. Quando os anciãos recebem a informação de que uma pessoa acusada de abuso sexual de menores (não importa se a acusação foi comprovada ou não) se mudou para sua congregação, dois anciãos devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento

Jurídico. Isso também deve ser feito (1) se a pessoa estiver dessassociada ou dissociada e estiver assistindo às reuniões, (2) se ela se muda regularmente para uma segunda residência, ou (3) se for um preso que está sendo solto ou transferido de outra prisão.

NOTIFICAÇÕES RECEBIDAS DAS AUTORIDADES

28. Pode ser que as autoridades informem aos anciãos que um criminoso sexual está morando na região. A notificação pode indicar o endereço da pessoa e o tipo de crime cometido. Se isso acontecer, os anciãos devem alistar o endereço dela no respectivo cartão de território com a informação "Não visitar".

CONDUTA SEXUAL ENVOLVENDO SOMENTE MENORES

29. Que passos os anciãos devem dar quando menores se envolvem em atividade sexual com outros menores? Conforme explicado anteriormente, dois anciãos devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento Jurídico, mesmo que os dois envolvidos sejam menores. Os menores que se envolvem em atividade sexual com outros menores geralmente não são encarados pela congregação como tendo praticado abuso sexual de menores. Mas essa conduta é grave e pode até mesmo justificar a formação de uma comissão judicativa, não importa a idade dos menores envolvidos. O corpo de anciãos, junto com os pais, deve se certificar de que os menores recebam ajuda espiritual. Se os anciãos tiverem dúvidas sobre um caso específico, eles devem ligar para o Departamento de Serviço. — Veja 15:15.

30. Quando menores batizados se envolvem em sexting, os anciãos precisam usar de bom senso para decidir se a conduta errada é grave o suficiente para se formar uma comissão judicativa. O artigo "Perguntas dos Leitores" da revista A Sentinela de 15 de julho de 2006 traz informações úteis sobre esse assunto. Analisem essa matéria com atenção antes de concluir que um menor batizado é culpado de impureza grave ou de conduta insolente. (Veja 12:14-17.) Normalmente, se um menor batizado continua praticando sexting mesmo depois de receber conselhos, uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada. Essas situações devem ser avaliadas caso a caso. Mas, em todos os casos, o corpo de anciãos deve trabalhar junto com os pais para garantir que os menores recebam ajuda espiritual. Se os anciãos tiverem dúvidas sobre um caso específico, eles devem ligar para o Departamento de Serviço.

Preparação para a audiência judicativa

COMO ESCOLHER OS MEMBROS DA COMISSÃO E O PRESIDENTE

1. Para decidir se uma comissão judicativa deve ser formada, o corpo de anciãos não precisa saber de todos os detalhes do caso. Mas eles devem receber informações suficientes para decidir se o pecado cometido justificaria que a pessoa fosse desassociada e para escolher os anciãos mais qualificados para cuidar daquele tipo de assunto. Se for decidido formar uma comissão judicativa, os anciãos que estiverem na reunião devem designar os anciãos que vão fazer parte da comissão e decidir quem será o presidente. (Se o caso envolver abuso sexual de menores, veja o capítulo 14, parágrafo 19.) Os anciãos escolhidos devem ter discernimento e bom senso. É melhor que anciãos mais novos sirvam primeiro junto com anciãos mais experientes, mas eles nunca devem participar numa comissão apenas como observadores.

A comissão judicativa deve ser formada por três anciãos. Mas, em casos complicados, a comissão judicativa pode ser formada por quatro ou até cinco anciãos experientes.

2. Se os anciãos sabem que o acusado tem algo contra um ancião, é melhor que esse ancião não seja usado na comissão judicativa. Normalmente, também não se usaria um ancião que tem uma amizade muito achegada com o acusado, que tem negócios com ele ou que é um parente próximo dele. Servos ministeriais nunca devem ser usados em comissões judicativas. Se em determinada situação não houver três anciãos disponíveis para servir numa comissão judicativa, um ou dois anciãos de uma congregação vizinha ou o superintendente de circuito podem ser usados para completar uma comissão de três membros.

3. Em raros casos, pode ser que mesmo assim não seja possível encontrar três anciãos para formar a comissão judicativa. Se isso acontecer, o assunto pode ser cuidado por dois anciãos. Eles vão servir como uma comissão judicativa designada. (Mat. 18:19, 20) Mas, antes de informar a pessoa sobre a decisão, o presidente da comissão deve enviar um relatório confidencial para o Departamento de Serviço, explicando claramente tudo o que aconteceu e qual foi a decisão da comissão. Esse relatório deve ser enviado, não importa se a decisão foi desassociar a pessoa ou não. O Departamento de Serviço vai confirmar o recebimento do relatório, informando que ele foi analisado. Depois disso, os dois anciãos vão informar à pessoa qual foi a decisão da comissão judicativa. Se a decisão foi desassociar a pessoa, a comissão deve enviar o formulário Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77) para o Departamento de Serviço, como de costume.

PREPARE A MENTE E O CORAÇÃO PARA JULGAR

4. É uma responsabilidade muito grande servir numa comissão judicativa. Os anciãos estão julgando para Jeová e vão prestar

contas a ele pelo julgamento que fizerem. (2 Crô. 19:6, 7) As consequências de sua decisão provavelmente serão grandes e afetarão por um longo tempo a vida da pessoa, de seus familiares cristãos e de outros na congregação. Toda vez que um ancião servir em uma comissão judicativa, ele deve recapitular os capítulos 12, 15 e 16 deste livro.

5. Se os anciãos permitirem que uma pessoa que cometeu um pecado grave e não se arrependeu permaneça na congregação, ela poderá se tornar uma má influência para outros. (Gál. 5:9) Além disso, deixar de desassociar a pessoa pode fazer com que ela e outros que sabem o que aconteceu não encarem o pecado com tanta seriedade. (Ecl. 8:11) Por outro lado, alguém que sofre uma injustiça pode ter dificuldade para manter sua espiritualidade. — Mat. 18:6.

6. Com a ajuda de Jeová os anciãos podem fazer um bom julgamento. (Mat. 18:18-20) Eles devem orar pedindo sabedoria, discernimento e espírito santo. (1 Reis 3:9; Fil. 1:9, 10; Tia. 1:5) Em vez de confiar apenas em sua experiência em assuntos judicativos, os anciãos devem fazer uma pesquisa cuidadosa e detalhada usando publicações bíblicas. (Pro. 15:28) Eles devem se esforçar para entender o que realmente aconteceu e qual é a verdadeira atitude da pessoa. — Pro. 18:13, 17.

CONVITE PARA A AUDIÊNCIA JUDICATIVA

7. É melhor que dois anciãos convidem a pessoa verbalmente. Ao fazer isso, eles devem:

(1) Deixar claro que a reunião é uma audiência judicativa.

(2) Explicar do que a pessoa está sendo acusada.

(3) Informar o local e o horário da audiência, e como a pessoa pode entrar em contato com o presidente se não puder comparecer no local e horário programados.

8. Se possível, a audiência deve ser feita no Salão do Reino. O ambiente do Salão do Reino vai ajudar a manter o respeito que a ocasião exige e garantir que tudo seja feito de forma confidencial.

9. Os anciãos designados devem se esforçar para fazer a audiência judicativa o mais rápido possível. Demorar para resolver o assunto pode prejudicar a congregação e a pessoa. Se o acusado evitar os anciãos e não for possível fazer um convite verbal, mesmo depois de várias tentativas, eles devem enviar um convite por escrito. (Não enviem nenhuma informação confidencial por e-mail, mensagem de texto ou outro tipo de mensagem eletrônica. Também não deixem esse tipo de informação em uma secretária eletrônica ou correio de voz.) O convite escrito deve ser assinado pela comissão judicativa e incluir as mesmas informações do convite verbal. Se possível, enviem o convite de um modo que permita verificar se a pessoa o recebeu. Se, apesar de todos os esforços da comissão para convidar a pessoa, não for possível confirmar se ela recebeu o convite, o assunto deve ficar pendente.

10. Se a pessoa aceitar o convite da comissão judicativa, mas não comparecer, a comissão judicativa deve remarcar a audiência e se esforçar para convidar a pessoa novamente. Se ficar confirmado que a pessoa recebeu o segundo convite, mas ela não comparecer novamente e ficar claro que ela não está disposta a se reunir com a comissão judicativa, os anciãos devem realizar a audiência sem ela. Mas eles não devem tomar nenhuma decisão antes de ouvir as testemunhas e considerar as evidências.

11. Se o acusado deixar claro para os anciãos que se recusa a se reunir com uma comissão judicativa, não é necessário convidá-lo novamente. A audiência deve ser realizada sem ele. — Veja 16:28.

AUDIÊNCIA COM PESSOAS CASADAS

12. Se a pessoa acusada for uma irmã casada e seu marido for cristão, é melhor que ele esteja presente na audiência judicativa. Ele é o cabeça dela, e seus esforços para orientar e fazer sua espo-sa cair em si podem ser de grande ajuda. (1 Cor. 11:3) Mas, em circunstâncias incomuns, como, por exemplo, se os anciãos acham que seria melhor não convidar o marido por preocupação com a segurança da irmã, eles devem ligar para o Departamento de Serviço.

13. Se a pessoa acusada for um irmão casado e sua esposa for cristã, ela poderá assistir à audiência, caso ele deseje.

14. Se o marido cometeu adultério, ele tem a obrigação de contar o que aconteceu para sua esposa. A comissão judicativa deve perguntar imediatamente para a esposa o que o marido contou para ela. Se ele se recusar a contar para ela que cometeu adultério, os anciãos devem informá-la de que, por causa da conduta de seu marido, ela está biblicamente livre para decidir se vai se divorciar ou não. Os anciãos também devem explicar para ela que, se ela voltar a ter relações sexuais com seu marido, ela não estará mais biblicamente livre. (Veja 12:70-75.) Mas eles não devem dar mais nenhum detalhe. Por outro lado, o marido pode ter confessado o adultério à sua esposa, mas os anciãos talvez descubram que ele não contou tudo o que ela deveria saber sobre sua conduta. Nesse caso, os anciãos não devem revelar informações confidenciais para a esposa, mas devem sugerir que ela fale novamente com o marido. Mesmo que ele não conte mais nada para ela, ela vai entender que seu marido está escondendo informações, e isso pode ajudá-la a decidir se vai ou não perdoá-lo.

AUDIÊNCIA COM MENORES BATIZADOS E JOVENS ADULTOS

15. Os pais têm a responsabilidade de criar e treinar seus filhos. Por isso, quando for necessário fazer uma audiência judicativa com um jovem que tem pais Testemunhas de Jeová, é melhor que eles estejam presentes. Se o acusado não for mais um menor, seus pais normalmente não seriam convidados para a audiência judicativa, mesmo que seu filho ainda more com eles. Mas, se ele tiver se tornado adulto recentemente, seus pais podem pedir para estarem presentes. Nesse caso, a comissão judicativa pode permitir que isso aconteça, desde que o acusado concorde. — Veja 14:29.

AUDIÊNCIA COM PESSOAS QUE ESTÃO PRESAS

16. Veja 28:22.

QUANDO O ACUSADO AMEAÇA SE SUICIDAR

17. Em casos judicativos em que o acusado ameaça se suicidar, pode ser melhor que a comissão judicativa suspenda a audiência e se concentre em ajudar a pessoa a recuperar o equilíbrio. (Veja 12:80.) Eles devem garantir para a pessoa que a comissão deseja ajudá-la e, depois, devem tocar no assunto da depressão e do suicídio, usando a Bíblia e as publicações. (Pro. 3:11, 12; 4:13; Heb. 12:5, 6, 11-13) Dependendo do estado emocional da pessoa, talvez seja melhor esperar um ou dois dias para dar essa ajuda. Para se preparar, os anciãos podem estudar artigos que os ajudem a tratar com empatia a pessoa que está com depressão. (g 04/14 pp. 6-9) A comissão judicativa não deve demorar muito para resolver o caso, já que isso poderia afetar ainda mais o estado emocional da pessoa. Se surgirem dúvidas, a comissão judicativa deve entrar em contato com o Departamento de Serviço.

QUANDO O ACUSADO AMEAÇA PROCESSAR OS ANCIÃOS

18. Se o acusado ameaçar processar os anciãos, eles devem suspender a audiência e ligar imediatamente para o Departamento Jurídico.

19. Se alguém da mídia ou um advogado do acusado entrar em contato com os anciãos, eles não devem dar nenhuma informação do caso nem confirmar se há uma comissão judicativa. Em vez disso, eles devem dizer o seguinte: "O bem-estar físico e espiritual das Testemunhas de Jeová é de máxima importância para os anciãos, que querem dar ajuda espiritual para a congregação. Essa ajuda espiritual é dada de forma confidencial. Assim, a pessoa que procura os anciãos para obter ajuda pode ter certeza de que eles não vão revelar mais tarde o que ela disser. Por isso, não comentamos se os anciãos estão se reunindo ou já se reuniram para ajudar qualquer pessoa na congregação." Se for necessário, os anciãos podem pedir o nome e o telefone da pessoa que está pedindo as informações e dizer que seu advogado vai entrar em contato. Daí, os anciãos devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento Jurídico.

20. Se as autoridades quiserem ter acesso aos arquivos confidenciais da congregação ou pedirem que os anciãos prestem depoimento sobre assuntos confidenciais, os anciãos devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento Jurídico.

Como realizar a audiência judicativa

Parágrafos

1. A audiência judicativa deve começar com uma oração, que deve ser feita na presença do acusado. Em geral, não é permitido que ninguém esteja presente apenas como observador. (Veja 15:12-13, 15.) O presidente deve explicar o motivo da audiência e informar que nenhuma gravação de áudio ou de vídeo pode ser feita. Daí, ele deve ler um texto, como Provérbios 28:13 ou Tiago 5:14, 15. Imitando o exemplo de Jeová, os anciãos devem tratar a pessoa com bondade e deixar claro que desejam ajudá-la. (Eze. 34:11, 12) Eles devem ouvir com paciência e não tirar conclusões até que todos os fatos sejam apresentados. Mesmo que o acusado queira discutir ou que seja desrespeitoso, os anciãos devem ser bondosos com ele e tratá-lo com respeito, nunca de modo duro. — w89 15/09 pp. 19-20.

2. O presidente deve pedir para o acusado se expressar sobre a acusação. Se ele disser que é inocente, as testemunhas devem ser apresentadas uma por vez. É melhor que elas deem seu testemunho na presença do acusado, mas nunca se deve pedir que uma vítima de estupro ou de abuso sexual de menores faça isso. Se uma testemunha morar muito longe ou por algum outro motivo não puder comparecer, seu depoimento pode ser feito por meio de uma ligação ou de uma videoconferência (se for possível manter a confidencialidade), ou ela pode enviar seu depoimento por escrito para ser lido ao acusado.

3. Depois de cada depoimento, o acusado deve receber a oportunidade de se defender. Se ele quiser apresentar testemunhas para provar sua inocência, ele pode fazer isso. Apenas pessoas que tenham algo significativo para falar sobre o suposto pecado devem ser chamadas como testemunhas. As testemunhas devem ser informadas de que elas devem manter a confidencialidade. Além disso, nenhuma testemunha deve dar seu depoimento na presença de outras testemunhas.

4. Em casos raros, os depoimentos apresentados durante a audiência podem levar a comissão judicativa a entender que o assunto não deve ser tratado judicativamente. Nesse caso, a audiência deve ser suspensa. Os membros da comissão judicativa devem informar a pessoa de que mais tarde falarão com ela sobre o assunto. O corpo de anciãos deve ser consultado para decidir se a comissão judicativa deve ser desfeita.

5. A comissão judicativa deve primeiro tentar entender o que realmente aconteceu e avaliar a atitude do acusado. Para isso, é necessário fazer perguntas apropriadas e bem pensadas. A comissão judicativa deve fazer todas as perguntas que precisar, mas não deve perguntar sobre detalhes desnecessários, principalmente nos casos de imoralidade sexual. No entanto, quando o assunto envolve liberdade bíblica para se divorciar e casar novamente, ou quando é necessário determinar o tipo de pecado, talvez seja preciso perguntar sobre alguns detalhes. Quando os anciãos da comissão judicativa sentirem que já entenderam bem a situação, eles devem pedir que o acusado se retire. Daí, eles devem considerar o caso e avaliar se a pessoa está arrependida ou não. Enquanto fazem isso, eles podem orar a qualquer momento para pedir sabedoria a Jeová. — Tia. 1:5.

COMO AVALIAR SE A PESSOA ESTÁ REALMENTE ARREPENDIDA

7. Julgar o arrependimento não é simplesmente uma questão de decidir se a pessoa é má ou se ela pecou por fraqueza, já que fraqueza não é sinônimo de arrependimento. Além disso, a comissão não deve basear sua decisão no número de pessoas que sabem do pecado. A comissão judicativa deve verificar se existem obras claras de arrependimento proporcionais ao pecado da pessoa. (2 Cor. 7:10, 11) A comissão deve estar convencida de que a condição de coração da pessoa mudou, de que ela está determinada a corrigir o que fez e de que está totalmente decidida a não cometer o mesmo erro novamente. Mesmo que seja a primeira vez que a pessoa passa por uma comissão judicativa, ela deve dar provas de que está realmente arrependida para poder permanecer na congregação.

8. A gravidade dos pecados pode variar, e é claro que o grau de remorso (arrependimento) deve ser proporcional à gravidade do pecado. A pessoa foi pega de surpresa e cedeu momentaneamente à tentação, ou ela planejou o pecado? Ela não sabia da gravidade do pecado? Ela ignorou de propósito conselhos e avisos? O pecado aconteceu apenas uma vez, ou se tornou uma prática? Quanto mais uma pessoa repete um pecado grave, mais ela dá evidência de ser como as pessoas perversas, que "praticam a maldade". — Sal. 28:3.

9. A comissão judicativa deve estar profundamente interessada em manter a congregação limpa. Por isso, é necessário tomar muito cuidado com alguém que praticou secretamente um pecado grave por um longo período. Em casos assim, a pessoa talvez não tenha condições de demonstrar arrependimento suficiente durante a audiência judicativa. Se esse for o caso, ela deve ser desassociada. Isso vai dar tempo para que ela prove que está arrependida. Em outros casos, pode ser que a pessoa já tenha passado por várias comissões judicativas no passado e, como parecia arrependida, foi repreendida todas as vezes. Agora ela pecou novamente. Nesses casos, a comissão judicativa deve considerar se o modo de vida da pessoa está produzindo o "fruto próprio do arrependimento". — Mat. 3:8.

10. A lista a seguir traz alguns pontos que podem ajudar a definir se há arrependimento. Mas nenhum deles deve ser usado isoladamente para decidir se a pessoa está arrependida ou não.

(1) A confissão foi voluntária, ou outros tiveram que acusar a pessoa? Para algumas pessoas que estão muito envergonhadas ou que têm muita dificuldade em se expressar pode ser difícil confessar o que fizeram.

(2) A pessoa está sendo honesta? (Atos 5:1-10) Suas respostas são diretas? Ela está cooperando com a comissão judicativa? A comissão judicativa deve ter muito cuidado com pessoas que agiram com hipocrisia, mentiram ou tentaram enganar outros de propósito.

(3) A pessoa orou a Jeová e pediu perdão a ele? Tenham em mente que algumas pessoas, mesmo estando arrependidas, acham difícil orar. — Tia. 5:14.

(4) O que ela fez para recuperar sua relação com Jeová e com os outros que foram prejudicados por suas ações? Ela corrigiu os problemas que causou ou mostrou que está disposta a fazer isso? Ela tentou conseguir o perdão das pessoas contra quem pecou e pediu desculpas para as outras pessoas afetadas?

(5) Se a pessoa cometeu adultério, ela confessou isso para o cônjuge inocente e pediu perdão? — w73 pp. 703-704.

O cônjuge inocente tem o direito de decidir se vai perdoar o adultério. Quando o cônjuge culpado se recusa a confessar o adultério para o cônjuge inocente e a dar para ele a oportunidade de perdoá-lo, ele não pode ser visto como alguém arrependido. Se o culpado não quiser confessar nem pedir perdão por medo de seu cônjuge reagir com violência ou por algum outro motivo, os anciãos devem entrar em contato com o Departamento de Serviço antes de continuar cuidando do caso.

(6) A pessoa demonstra que está profundamente arrependida por ter prejudicado sua amizade com Jeová? — Sal. 32:3-5; 51:1-4.

(7) A pessoa mostra a tristeza segundo a vontade de Deus, ou a tristeza do mundo? (2 Cor. 7:8-11) Ela está triste principalmente por ter magoado a Jeová e ter manchado o nome dele, ou por causa da vergonha que está sentindo e por ter desapontado sua família e amigos? (Esd. 10:1; Luc. 22:59-62) Nem todas as pessoas expressam suas emoções da mesma forma. O fato de uma pessoa chorar não significa necessariamente que ela está arrependida. Ao mesmo tempo, uma pessoa pode estar arrependida mesmo que não demonstre suas emoções tão claramente. — Gên. 25:29-34; 27:34.

(8) A pessoa assume a responsabilidade por seu erro, ou tenta minimizar ou justificar sua conduta errada? — 1 Sam. 15:24; 2 Sam. 12:13.

(9) A pessoa reconhece que alguns pecados menores podem ter contribuído para o pecado grave? Ela está determinada a evitar esses pecados?

11. Nenhum caso é igual a outro. Por isso, a comissão judicativa deve levar em consideração o que sabem sobre a criação que a pessoa teve e quaisquer fatores específicos sobre o caso. Isso vai ajudar a comissão a entender melhor a pessoa.

12. O mesmo se aplica quando o acusado tem algum problema mental ou emocional. (Veja 15:17.) Os anciãos não devem fechar os olhos para o pecado da pessoa se ela for capaz de realizar as atividades normais do dia a dia e for vista pela comunidade como alguém responsável por suas ações e decisões. Mas a comissão judicativa deve ter consideração e paciência com a pessoa e ter em mente que, nesses casos, é necessário ter ainda mais discernimento ao julgar o arrependimento. Por outro lado, a comissão judicativa talvez perceba que a condição mental da pessoa é tão grave que as pessoas em geral não a consideram responsável por suas ações. Nesse caso, a comissão pode sugerir ao corpo de anciãos que o assunto não seja cuidado judicativamente, e explicar por que chegou a essa conclusão.

QUANDO NÃO ESTÁ CLARO SE A PESSOA ESTÁ ARREPENDIDA

13. Quando não estiver claro se a pessoa está suficientemente arrependida, a comissão deve chamá-la de volta para conversar um pouco mais com ela. Os membros da comissão devem usar a Bíblia para ajudar a pessoa a entender por que sua conduta foi errada e como isso afetou sua relação com Jeová e com a congregação. Pode ser que durante a audiência judicativa a pessoa demonstre arrependimento a ponto de ser possível estender misericórdia a ela. Na maioria dos casos, a pessoa vai mostrar algum arrependimento. Mas será que esse arrependimento é proporcional à gravidade do que ela fez? Se antes da audiência a pessoa tiver mostrado poucas obras de arrependimento (ou nenhuma), a comissão precisa ser modesta e reconhecer que talvez não seja possível ajudá-la a se arrepender a ponto de ela não precisar ser desassociada. Mesmo que a decisão seja desassociar a pessoa, os esforços para levá-la ao arrependimento podem ser de ajuda para que ela comece a 'endireitar seus caminhos' e a se esforçar para ser readmitida. (Heb. 12:13) Depois de tentar ajudar a pessoa e ouvir o que ela tem a dizer, a comissão judicativa deve pedir que ela se retire para continuar considerando o assunto.

14. Em casos mais difíceis, se a comissão judicativa não tiver certeza de qual é a orientação da Bíblia ou da organização, a audiência pode ser interrompida por alguns dias. Mas não se deve marcar uma reunião adicional apenas para dar tempo para a pessoa abandonar a conduta errada ou demonstrar obras de arrependimento. Se ela demonstrou pouco ou nenhum arrependimento durante a audiência, geralmente não haveria motivo para prolongar o caso e marcar outra reunião.

15. Às vezes, em casos complicados, a comissão talvez precise consultar um ancião experiente de outra congregação ou o superintendente de circuito. Se isso acontecer, os membros da comissão devem dizer para a pessoa que a decisão está pendente. Mas eles não devem falar que vão consultar alguém que não faz parte da comissão judicativa, o que às vezes pode incluir Betel. Ao consultar um ancião de outra congregação, os membros da comissão podem mencionar detalhes necessários sobre o caso, mas não devem dizer o nome dos envolvidos. Por outro lado, quando o superintendente de circuito for consultado ou quando for necessário consultar Betel, o nome dos envolvidos deve ser informado.

16. Os membros da comissão judicativa devem se esforçar para ser unânimes em sua decisão. Geralmente, qualquer diferença de opinião pode ser resolvida quando os membros da comissão judicativa consideram juntos os assuntos com atenção, consultam a Bíblia e as publicações, oram pedindo sabedoria e orientação, ou até mesmo consultam um ancião experiente de fora da congregação. Mas, se os membros da comissão não conseguirem chegar a uma decisão unânime, a minoria deve apoiar o que a maioria decidiu.

17. Qualquer documento que a comissão receber do acusado ou das testemunhas deve ser mantido em sigilo absoluto. Se for necessário continuar o assunto mais tarde, os membros da comissão devem entregar para o presidente da comissão qualquer anotação pessoal que tenham feito. O presidente deve guardar essas anotações num lugar seguro para garantir que nenhuma outra pessoa tenha acesso a elas. As anotações podem ser devolvidas para os outros membros da comissão antes de a audiência ser reiniciada.

QUANDO A DECISÃO É REPREENDER

18. Se os anciãos da comissão judicativa chegarem à conclusão de que a pessoa está realmente arrependida, eles devem informar para ela a decisão que tomaram, as restrições judicativas que ela terá e se a repreensão será anunciada ou não. Eles também devem usar a Bíblia para repreender a pessoa, mostrando a ela a gravidade de seu pecado e os pecados menores que podem ter levado a ele. Repreensão é definida como "aquilo que se destina a convencer outros de que erraram, a fim de induzi-los a admitir os erros e a corrigi-los". (it-2 pp. 825-826) Assim, a repreensão judicativa envolve mais do que apenas tomar uma decisão e anunciá-la para a congregação. Ela também envolve fortalecer a decisão da pessoa de fazer o que é certo. Na Bíblia, a palavra original para repreensão vem de um verbo que significa 'mos-

trar claramente, destacar usando fatos, demonstrar, mostrar por meio de provas ou argumentos convincentes'. A comissão deve dar sugestões para ajudar a pessoa a fazer os ajustes necessários. As testemunhas que deram seu depoimento durante a audiência judicativa podem ser convidadas para ouvir a repreensão bíblica. Dessa forma, a pessoa será repreendida "perante todos os observadores". (1 Tim. 5:20) A comissão judicativa deve orar com a pessoa antes de concluir a audiência. Assim que possível, depois da audiência, a comissão judicativa deve preencher o Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77), deixando a data do anúncio em branco. (Veja 22:18-20.) Todas as anotações pessoais devem ser destruídas. A comissão deve informar ao corpo de anciãos qual foi o resultado da audiência, quais restrições foram impostas à pessoa e se a repreensão será anunciada para a congregação.

19. Sempre que alguém é repreendido, ele deixa de estar qualificado para privilégios especiais, como ser pioneiro ou orar na congregação, até que faça mais progresso espiritual. Ele também não se qualifica para qualquer outro privilégio que seja dado apenas para pessoas exemplares. (Veja 1:2.8; 2:4.) Além disso, em todos os casos de repreensão, a comissão deve impor algumas restrições judicativas, que podem incluir não comentar nas reuniões e não fazer partes de estudante na reunião do meio de semana. Quando os anciãos informam as restrições para a pessoa, é bom dizer também a data em que vão se reunir novamente com ela para avaliar seu progresso. — Veja 16:22.

20. É a comissão judicativa que decide se a repreensão será anunciada para a congregação. O anúncio de repreensão deve ser feito quando:

(1) O pecado ficou ou provavelmente vai ficar muito conhecido na congregação ou na comunidade. Em casos assim, um anúncio vai proteger a reputação da congregação. Por exemplo, num caso de adultério, a pessoa inocente pode estar pensando em perdoar seu cônjuge, mas até a conclusão do assunto ela talvez não esteja pronta para voltar a ter relações sexuais com ele. (w16.08 p. 11 par. 15) Se ainda houver a possibilidade de um divórcio bíblico, o anúncio pode proteger a reputação da congregação e a do cônjuge inocente.

(2) A comissão judicativa tem bons motivos para acreditar que a congregação precisa ter cuidado com a pessoa que foi repreendida. Por exemplo, quando um caso envolve abuso sexual de menores, o anúncio de repreensão vai servir para proteger a congregação. — Veja 14:19.

21. O coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve aprovar o anúncio, que deve ser lido por um ancião na próxima reunião do meio de semana. O anúncio deve ser feito da seguinte maneira: "O irmão (a irmã) [nome da pessoa] foi repreendido(a)." Esse anúncio deve ser feito em apenas uma congregação. As restrições não devem ser anunciadas. Depois que o anúncio for feito para a congregação, a comissão judicativa deve colocar a data do anúncio no Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão. — Veja 22:18-20.

22. A comissão judicativa deve acompanhar a situação espiritual da pessoa e ficar atenta para remover as restrições aos poucos conforme ela for fazendo progresso. A pessoa pode ficar desanimada se as restrições forem mantidas por muito tempo. Na maioria dos casos, os anciãos vão remover algumas ou até mesmo todas as restrições antes de se passarem muitos meses. A comissão pode usar de bom senso para decidir se é necessário consultar outros anciãos do corpo antes de remover alguma restrição. (Pro. 15:22) Sempre que uma restrição for removida, o corpo de anciãos deve ser informado. (Veja 22:19.3.) Se um ancião que serviu na comissão se mudar ou deixar de servir como ancião, o corpo de anciãos deve escolher outro ancião para ajudar a acompanhar o progresso da pessoa repreendida. Se a pessoa mudar de congregação antes de todas as restrições serem removidas, os anciãos da nova congregação devem receber informações suficientes para entenderem exatamente qual é a condição espiritual dela. Os anciãos devem fornecer o tipo de informações e detalhes que eles gostariam de receber caso a pessoa estivesse vindo para sua congregação. (Veja o capítulo 22, parágrafo 6, ponto 8. Se o caso envolveu abuso sexual de menores, veja o capítulo 14, parágrafos 26 e 27.) Os anciãos da nova congregação devem escolher dois ou três anciãos para continuar acompanhando a situação espiritual da pessoa e remover as restrições dela de acordo com seu progresso.

23. Em alguns casos, o corpo de anciãos talvez ache necessário fazer um discurso de alerta baseado na Bíblia sobre o tipo de pecado que foi cometido. Geralmente, um membro da comissão judicativa faria esse discurso. Ele deve explicar por que a conduta é errada e como evitá-la, mas não deve dizer nada que relacione a pessoa ao tipo de pecado considerado no discurso. Se a repreensão for anunciada, os anciãos devem esperar algumas semanas para fazer esse discurso; caso contrário, não há necessidade de esperar.

24. Geralmente, nenhuma outra ação judicativa deve ser tomada depois que um caso for concluído. Mas uma exceção pode ser feita se poucos dias depois da decisão surgirem novas informações indicando fortemente que a pessoa não estava realmente arrependida. Talvez ela tenha mentido ou escondido informações importantes na audiência judicativa. Nesse caso, dois anciãos da comissão que cuidou do caso devem entrar em contato com o Departamento de Serviço. Se eles forem orientados a reabrir o caso, a comissão deve informar a pessoa sobre qualquer nova evidência e permitir que ela apresente sua versão dos fatos.

25. Se a pessoa se envolver novamente num pecado grave depois de a comissão judicativa ter tomado uma decisão e encerrado o caso, o corpo de anciãos deve se reunir e designar uma nova comissão judicativa. Dependendo do caso, pode ser melhor escolher os mesmos anciãos que serviram na comissão anterior, se eles estiverem disponíveis e ainda estiverem qualificados.

QUANDO A DECISÃO É DESASSOCIAR

26. Se a pessoa não estiver realmente arrependida, ela deve ser desassociada. A comissão deve informá-la da decisão e dizer que espera que ela mude de atitude e que se qualifique com o tempo para retornar à organização de Jeová. (2 Cor. 2:6, 7; od cap. 14 pars. 25-28; rj pp. 10-14) De forma positiva e bondosa, a comissão pode ler um texto apropriado para concluir a audiência, como Isaías 1:18, 2 Coríntios 7:10, 11, ou Hebreus 12:5-7, 11. Além disso, algumas informações devem ser transmitidas verbalmente para a pessoa. A comissão deve:

(1) Explicar para a pessoa que é importante que ela se arrependa e informar os passos necessários para que ela seja readmitida no futuro.

(2) Informar à pessoa que, se ela acha que houve um grave erro de julgamento, ela tem sete dias para escrever uma carta de apelação e entregá-la para a comissão judicativa. A comissão judicativa não deve incentivar nem desincentivar a pessoa a fazer isso.

(3) Dizer para a pessoa que ela pode pegar revistas e outras publicações para uso pessoal, incluindo itens de pedido especial, no Salão do Reino.

27. Antes de dispensar a pessoa, os anciãos devem perguntar se ela tem alguma dúvida. Depois que ela sair, a comissão judicativa deve concluir com uma oração. Assim que possível, depois da audiência, a comissão deve preencher o Registro de Desasso- ciação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77), deixando a data do anúncio em branco. O corpo de anciãos deve ser informado sobre a decisão da comissão.

28. Se a pessoa não compareceu à audiência, a comissão judicativa deve fazer o possível para informá-la verbalmente sobre a decisão que foi tomada, sobre o direito que ela tem de apelar e assim por diante. Os anciãos não devem enviar essas informações confidenciais por e-mail, mensagem de texto ou outro tipo de mensagem eletrônica. Também não devem deixar esse tipo de informação em uma secretária eletrônica ou correio de voz. Se a pessoa evitar os anciãos e não for possível informá-la, dois anciãos da comissão devem entrar em contato com o Departamento de Serviço antes de anunciar a desassociação.

29. A comissão deve esperar o período de sete dias passar, mesmo que a pessoa diga que não quer apelar. O coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve aprovar o anúncio, que deve ser lido por um ancião na reunião do meio de semana. O anúncio deve ser feito da seguinte maneira: "[Nome da pessoa] não é mais Testemunha de Jeová."

30. A desassociação começa a valer assim que o anúncio é feito na congregação. Até o anúncio, a pessoa não deve comentar ou fazer orações nas reuniões nem cuidar de privilégios especiais de serviço. (Veja 1:2.8; 2:4.) O anúncio deve ser feito em apenas uma congregação.

31. Depois que o anúncio for feito para a congregação, a comissão judicativa deve colocar a data do anúncio no Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77) e enviar esse formulário imediatamente para o Departamento de Serviço. (Veja 22:18-20.) Todas as anotações pessoais devem ser destruídas.

Audiências de apelação

Parágrafos

1. Se a comissão judicativa receber uma carta de apelação dentro do prazo de sete dias, contados a partir da data em que a pessoa foi informada de sua desassociação, o presidente deverá avisar imediatamente o superintendente de circuito. O superintendente vai providenciar que uma comissão de apelação seja formada. (Se a pessoa apelar depois dos sete dias, liguem imediatamente para o Departamento de Serviço.) Mesmo que os motivos da apelação não pareçam válidos, uma comissão de apelação será formada. O superintendente de circuito vai designar anciãos qualificados para cuidar do caso. Se possível, ele vai escolher anciãos de outras congregações. Os anciãos escolhidos devem ser imparciais e não devem ser parentes próximos nem amigos achegados dos anciãos da comissão judicativa ou de qualquer outra pessoa envolvida no caso.

2. A comissão judicativa deve providenciar que a comissão de apelação receba o Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77) e um breve resumo do caso. A comissão de apelação deve fazer tudo o que for possível para realizar a audiência dentro de uma semana depois do recebimento da carta de apelação. — od cap. 14 pars. 25-28.

3. A comissão de apelação não deve dar a impressão de que desconfia da capacidade da comissão judicativa. Eles devem lembrar que a chance que a pessoa tem de apelar não indica falta de confiança na comissão que cuidou do caso. Em vez disso, é um ato de bondade para com a pessoa e garante um julgamento justo em que todos os fatos serão levados em conta. A comissão de apelação deve ter em mente que a comissão judicativa provavelmente conhece a pessoa melhor do que eles.

4. Geralmente, a audiência de apelação deve ser realizada no mesmo circuito em que a audiência judicativa foi realizada. Assim, se a pessoa se mudou, ela deve estar disposta a viajar de volta para que a comissão judicativa possa estar presente na audiência. Qualquer exceção deve ser aprovada pelo Departamento de Serviço. Se a pessoa não comparecer de propósito à audiência de apelação, o anúncio de desassociação deve ser feito em uma reunião do meio de semana, depois que a comissão tiver feito o possível para entrar em contato com ela. — Veja 16:28-29.

5. A comissão de apelação deve primeiro se reunir para ler os documentos relacionados ao caso. Essa reunião deve começar com uma oração. Depois disso, a comissão de apelação deve se reunir com a comissão judicativa. Mais tarde, de preferência no mesmo dia, a comissão de apelação deve se reunir com a pessoa e com a comissão judicativa juntas. Como a comissão judicativa considerou que a pessoa não estava arrependida, a comissão de apelação não deve orar na presença dela.

6. A audiência de apelação deve ser realizada da mesma maneira que a audiência judicativa. Talvez seja necessário analisar todas as evidências importantes para o caso, incluindo as apresentadas na primeira audiência e qualquer nova evidência disponível. Por exemplo, se a pessoa continua dizendo que é inocente, as testemunhas devem dar novamente seu depoimento na presença dela, e ela deve ter a oportunidade de se defender. Além disso, a comissão de apelação deve ouvir qualquer outra teste-munha que a pessoa quiser apresentar para provar sua inocência. Se a comissão judicativa ou a pessoa acharem que uma evidência ou um testemunho apresentados na audiência original estão sendo mudados, elas podem informar isso depois que a evidência ou o testemunho tiverem sido apresentados. — Veja 16:2-3.

7. Depois de reunir os fatos, a comissão de apelação deve ficar sozinha para avaliar o assunto. Eles devem considerar as duas perguntas a seguir:

(1) Ficou comprovado que a pessoa cometeu um pecado que justifica que ela seja desassociada? — Veja 12:2, 40-42.

(2) Durante a audiência original com a comissão judicativa, a pessoa mostrou arrependimento proporcional à gravidade do pecado que cometeu?

8. A comissão de apelação talvez ache que o motivo original da desassociação não foi válido, mas que existem outros motivos que justifiquem que a pessoa seja desassociada. Se isso acontecer, a comissão de apelação deve dar tempo suficiente, talvez até vários dias, se necessário, para a pessoa apresentar qualquer prova ou testemunha que ela acredite que possa provar sua inocência. Se as novas acusações ficarem comprovadas e a pessoa não demonstrar verdadeiro arrependimento, a comissão de apelação talvez decida manter a desassociação com base nessas novas acusações. Se os membros da comissão judicativa concordarem com a comissão de apelação, eles devem ajustar o Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77) e seguir as orientações do capítulo 17, parágrafos 9 e 10. Se os membros da comissão judicativa não concordarem com a comissão de apelação, eles devem seguir as orientações do capítulo 17, parágrafos 11 a 15.

QUANDO A COMISSÃO DE APELAÇÃO CONCORDA COM A COMISSÃO JUDICATIVA

9. Se os membros da comissão de apelação concordarem com a comissão judicativa, eles devem informar a decisão final para a pessoa na presença da comissão judicativa. A comissão judicativa deve esperar sete dias e depois anunciar a desassociação na próxima reunião do meio de semana. Depois, a comissão judicativa deve terminar de preencher o Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77) e enviá-lo para o Departamento de Serviço. — Veja 22:18-20.

10. A comissão de apelação não deve dizer para a pessoa que ela pode apelar novamente, a menos que a pessoa continue acreditando que um sério erro de julgamento foi cometido. Nesse caso, a comissão deve informá-la de que ela tem sete dias para escrever uma carta de apelação explicando seus motivos. Se ela quiser fazer isso, o anúncio de desassociação deve ser adiado. A comissão de apelação deve fazer um breve resumo do caso e enviá-lo para o Departamento de Serviço, junto com o resumo feito pela comissão judicativa e a carta da pessoa. Nenhum anúncio deve ser dado antes da resposta do Departamento de Serviço. O corpo de anciãos deve ser informado sobre o resultado da audiência de apelação. — Veja 22:18-20.

QUANDO A COMISSÃO DE APELAÇÃO NÃO CONCORDA COM A COMISSÃO JUDICATIVA

11. Se os membros da comissão de apelação acharem que a pessoa não deve ser desassociada, eles devem se reunir em particular com a comissão judicativa para considerar o assunto e explicar por que eles não concordam com a desassociação.

12. Se os membros da comissão judicativa concordarem em não desassociar a pessoa, a comissão de apelação deve informar a decisão final para a pessoa na presença da comissão judicativa.

O corpo de anciãos deve ser informado sobre o resultado da audiência de apelação. — Veja 22:18-20.

13. Se a comissão judicativa não concordar com a comissão de apelação e ainda achar que a pessoa deve ser desassociada, a pessoa deve ser chamada de volta. A comissão de apelação deve informá-la de que será necessário mais tempo para considerar o assunto, e garantir a ela que o caso será concluído o mais rápido possível. Nem a comissão de apelação nem a comissão judicativa devem dar a entender que elas não chegaram a um acordo. Depois que a pessoa for embora, a audiência deve ser concluída com uma oração.

14. Assim que possível, a comissão judicativa deve escrever uma carta explicando claramente por que não concorda com a comissão de apelação. A comissão de apelação também deve escrever o quanto antes uma carta explicando os motivos de sua decisão. Daí, a comissão de apelação deve enviar as duas cartas e o Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77) para o Departamento de Serviço. Depois disso, Betel vai enviar orientações para ajudar as duas comissões a concluírem o caso.

15. As duas comissões vão considerar os comentários enviados por Betel e tomar uma decisão final. Daí, a comissão judicativa deve informar essa decisão para a pessoa. O corpo de anciãos também deve ser informado. Se a decisão for desassociar a pessoa, um anúncio deve ser dado na próxima reunião do meio de semana e o Departamento de Serviço deve ser informado sobre a data do anúncio.

Dissociação

1. A dissociação é uma ação tomada por uma pessoa batizada da congregação que não quer mais ser Testemunha de Jeová. É diferente da desassociação, que é uma ação tomada por uma comissão judicativa contra alguém que cometeu um pecado grave e não se arrependeu. (1 João 2:19; od cap. 14 pars. 30-33) Quando surge um caso de dissociação, o corpo de anciãos deve designar uma comissão (não judicativa) de três anciãos para analisar os fatos.

2. Se numa audiência judicativa o acusado disser para a comissão que quer se dissociar, a comissão deve aceitar a decisão dele e encerrar a audiência. Mas os anciãos nunca devem perguntar para alguém se ele quer se dissociar. Num caso complicado, em que os anciãos não têm certeza se a pessoa se dissociou ou não, é melhor que a comissão entre em contato com o Departamento de Serviço.

3. Vejam a seguir algumas coisas que podem indicar que uma pessoa se dissociou:

   (1) Ela deixa claro que está firmemente decidida a não ser mais uma Testemunha de Jeová: Se a pessoa estiver disposta, uma comissão (não judicativa) deve tentar conversar com ela e dar ajuda espiritual. (Gál. 6:1) Ela realmente não quer mais ser Testemunha de Jeová, ou simplesmente não quer mais pregar e ir às reuniões? Será que a pessoa está tomando essa decisão porque tem dúvidas ou está desanimada? Se a pessoa estiver determinada a não ser mais uma Testemunha de Jeová, a decisão dela deve ser respeitada.

   (2) Ela passa a fazer parte de outra organização religiosa e deixa claro que quer permanecer nela: Quando os anciãos ficam sabendo que uma pessoa está se associando com outra religião ou organização religiosa e que, por isso, está começando a ser vista como alguém que faz parte dela, uma comissão (não judicativa) deve ser designada para investigar o assunto e tentar dar ajuda espiritual para a pessoa. Se a pessoa passou a fazer parte de outra religião ou organização religiosa e pretende permanecer nela, isso indica que ela se dissociou.

(3) Ela aceita sangue e não se arrepende: Se uma pessoa aceita uma transfusão de sangue, talvez por causa de muita pressão, uma comissão (não judicativa) deve verificar o que aconteceu e avaliar a atitude da pessoa. Se ela estiver arrependida, a comissão deve dar ajuda espiritual. A atitude dos anciãos para com a pessoa deve ser a descrita em Gálatas 6:1 e Judas 22, 23. Já que a pessoa está fraca espiritualmente, ela não estará qualificada para privilégios especiais por algum tempo. (Veja 1:2.8; 2:4.) Em alguns casos, talvez também seja necessário remover outros privilégios da pessoa, como comentar nas reuniões e fazer partes de estudante nas reuniões do meio de semana. Dependendo das circunstâncias, a comissão talvez ache necessário providenciar que um anúncio seja dado na reunião do meio de semana. O anúncio deve ser feito da seguinte maneira: "Os anciãos cuidaram de um assunto envolvendo o irmão (a irmã) [nome da pessoa]. Os irmãos ficarão felizes em saber que, como pastores espirituais, eles estão se esforçando para dar a ajuda necessária." Por outro lado, se os anciãos da comissão entenderem que a pessoa não está arrependida, deve-se anunciar que a pessoa se dissociou.

(4) Ela age de modo contrário à neutralidade cristã: (Isa. 2:4; João 15:17-19; lvs pp. 60-63, 244) Quando uma pessoa passa a fazer parte de uma organização que não é neutra, isso indica que ela se dissociou. Se o trabalho de uma pessoa mostra que ela apoia claramente atividades não neutras, os anciãos geralmente devem dar um prazo de seis meses para que ela faça os ajustes necessários. Se a pessoa não fizer esses ajustes, isso indica que ela se dissociou. — Veja lvs pp. 204-206.

4. Assim que possível, depois da audiência, a comissão deve preencher o Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77), deixando a data do anúncio em branco. O corpo de anciãos deve ser informado de que a pessoa se dissociou.

5. O coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve aprovar o anúncio, que deve ser lido por um ancião. O anúncio deve ser feito da seguinte maneira: "[Nome da pessoa] não é mais Testemunha de Jeová."

6. Como a dissociação é uma ação tomada pela própria pessoa, e não por uma comissão, não existe apelação. Assim, o anúncio pode ser feito na próxima reunião do meio de semana. Não é necessário esperar sete dias. Depois que o anúncio for feito para a congregação, a comissão deve colocar a data do anúncio no Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77) e enviar esse formulário imediatamente para o Departamento de Serviço. — Veja 22:18-20.

Readmissão

QUANDO ALGUÉM PEDE READMISSÃO

1. Se uma pessoa desassociada ou que se dissociou der evidências claras de que se arrependeu e demonstrar por um período razoável que abandonou sua conduta errada, ela pode ser readmitida. (od cap. 14 pars. 34-36) Quando uma pessoa entrega uma carta pedindo readmissão, os anciãos devem considerar o pedido dela sem demora. Se na época em que a pessoa foi desassociada ou se dissociou ela tinha algum dos privilégios de serviço alistados no capítulo 12, parágrafo 43, dois anciãos devem imediatamente entrar em contato com o Departamento de Serviço. Apesar de as instruções deste capítulo tratarem especificamente de pedidos de readmissão feitos por desassociados, elas também se aplicam a pedidos feitos por dissociados.

2. O corpo de anciãos deve se reunir para decidir quem vai servir na comissão de readmissão. Os anciãos que serviram na comissão original geralmente devem servir na comissão de readmissão se estiverem disponíveis e continuarem qualificados. Se isso não for possível, outros anciãos devem ser escolhidos para substituí-los. — Veja 15:1-3.

3. Se a pessoa que está pedindo readmissão tiver sido desassociada por abuso sexual de menores, veja o capítulo 14, parágrafos 20 e 21.

4. Mesmo que a comissão de readmissão ache que ainda é muito cedo para considerar o pedido da pessoa, dois membros da comissão devem confirmar para ela que receberam sua carta e explicar brevemente que será necessário esperar mais tempo.

COMO REALIZAR A AUDIÊNCIA

5. A comissão de readmissão deve fazer uma oração sem a pessoa estar presente e depois convidá-la para entrar. A comissão deve se esforçar para deixar a pessoa à vontade, e elogiar o progresso dela e seu desejo de ser readmitida. Imitando o exemplo de Jeová, os anciãos devem tratar a pessoa com bondade e deixar claro que desejam ajudá-la. (Isa. 1:18; Atos 3:19; rj pp. 10-11) O presidente deve pedir para a pessoa se expressar. A comissão deve tentar avaliar a atitude da pessoa e descobrir como ela se comportou durante o tempo em que ficou desassociada ou dissociada. Eles devem ouvir com paciência e não devem tirar conclusões até que tenham ouvido todos os fatos. Daí, a pessoa deve sair para que a comissão faça sua consideração.

6. A comissão deve deixar passar tempo suficiente, talvez muitos meses, um ano ou até mais, para que a pessoa prove que está realmente arrependida. (Veja 16:6-17.) Em alguns casos, a comissão precisa ter ainda mais cuidado. Por exemplo, a pessoa talvez tenha tentado enganar os anciãos ou praticado um pecado secretamente por um longo período. Pode ser também que ela tenha passado por várias comissões judicativas por causa do mesmo pecado ou por causa de pecados diferentes. Readmitir rapidamente uma pessoa nessa situação poderia incentivar outros a também cometerem um pecado grave, pensando que a disciplina será leve. Quando há evidências de que duas pessoas planejaram se livrar de seus cônjuges para poderem se casar, é necessário esperar um tempo considerável para que elas demonstrem arrependimento suficiente antes de poderem ser readmitidas. — w83 15/09 p. 29.

7. Ao avaliar quando uma pessoa pode ser readmitida, a comissão deve ser equilibrada e considerar todos os fatores envolvidos. Em vez de se concentrar apenas no que outros pensam ou simplesmente em quanto tempo passou, o mais importante é ver se a pessoa está arrependida de verdade e se ela abandonou seu comportamento errado. — 1 Cor. 5:1, 11-13; 2 Cor. 2:6, 7; 7:10, 11.

8. A comissão não deve ir ao extremo de exigir que a pessoa admita cada pecado que não ficou claramente comprovado. Em vez disso, a comissão deve avaliar o modo de vida da pessoa como um todo. A forma como ela vive hoje mostra que ela está arrependida?

QUANDO A DECISÃO É NÃO READMITIR

9. Se ficar decidido que a pessoa não será readmitida, a comissão deve explicar para ela os motivos da decisão e o que ela precisa fazer para ser readmitida no futuro. Depois que a pessoa for dispensada, a comissão deve concluir com oração. O corpo de anciãos deve ser informado sobre a decisão da comissão. — Veja 22:18-20.

QUANDO A DECISÃO É READMITIR

10. Se a decisão for readmitir a pessoa, a comissão pode chamá-la de volta e informá-la da decisão. Os anciãos devem dar encorajamento e conselhos para ajudar a pessoa a continuar fazendo progresso espiritual. Enquanto a readmissão não for anunciada, a pessoa deve continuar agindo como desassociada. A comissão deve concluir a audiência com uma oração na presença da pessoa. Depois que o anúncio for feito, o presidente da comissão deve escrever a data do anúncio da readmissão na cópia do Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77) da congregação. Ele deve então enviar uma mensagem para o Departamento de Serviço informando (1) o nome completo da pessoa, (2) a data de nascimento, (3) a data de batismo e (4) a data do anúncio de readmissão. (As mesmas informações devem ser enviadas por um membro da comissão se alguém desassociado ou dissociado falecer. Mas, nesse caso, deve-se informar a data de falecimento em vez da data do anúncio de readmissão.) Se a readmissão envolver alguém que foi acusado de abuso sexual de menores (não importa se a acusação foi comprovada ou não), veja o capítulo 14, parágrafos 20 e 21. O corpo de anciãos deve ser informado sobre a decisão da comissão. — Veja 22:18-20.

11. Em todos os casos de readmissão, a comissão deve impor restrições judicativas. Isso vai ajudar a pessoa a continuar ‘endireitando seus caminhos’ dali para frente. (Heb. 12:13) Quando a pessoa é readmitida, os anciãos devem lhe explicar que ela já pode participar do trabalho de pregação e que ela vai ter um novo Registro de Publicador de Congregação (S-21). Outros privilégios, como comentar nas reuniões e fazer partes de estudante na reunião do meio de semana, devem ser devolvidos aos poucos, conforme a pessoa for fazendo progresso espiritual e se qualificando, e quando a comissão entender que isso não vai perturbar outros na congregação. Quando uma pessoa é readmitida, ela ainda precisa de muita ajuda espiritual. Se for necessário, a comissão pode providenciar que seja dirigido um estudo bíblico para ela, que pode ser relatado. A comissão deve continuar acompanhando o progresso espiritual da pessoa. Ela pode ficar desanimada se as restrições forem mantidas por muito tempo. Assim, quando os anciãos informam as restrições para a pessoa, é bom dizer também a data em que vão se reunir novamente com ela para avaliar seu progresso. Na maioria dos casos, os anciãos vão remover algumas ou até mesmo todas as restrições antes de se passarem muitos meses.

12. O coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve aprovar o anúncio, que deve ser lido por um ancião na próxima reunião do meio de semana. O anúncio deve ser feito da seguinte maneira: "[Nome da pessoa] foi readmitido(a) como Testemunha de Jeová." Não há problema se os irmãos baterem palmas, desde que isso seja feito de modo espontâneo e respeitoso. (Luc. 15:7) As restrições não devem ser anunciadas.

COMUNICAÇÃO ENTRE AS COMISSÕES

13. A decisão final de readmitir uma pessoa é sempre da comissão de readmissão da congregação onde ela se dissociou ou foi desassociada. Mas, se a pessoa que está pedindo readmissão se mudou para outra congregação, o corpo de anciãos da congregação em que ela está assistindo às reuniões vai designar uma comissão de readmissão local para ouvir o pedido da pessoa. Se os membros dessa comissão acharem que ela deve ser readmitida, eles devem enviar sua recomendação para o corpo de anciãos da congregação que cuidou do caso originalmente. A pessoa não deve ficar sabendo que a comissão local vai recomendar sua readmissão, porque, se a comissão original não concordar, a pessoa poderá perder o respeito por ela. Assim, os membros da comissão local devem simplesmente dizer para a pessoa que, antes de dar uma resposta, eles precisam se comunicar com os anciãos da congregação que cuidou do caso originalmente, mas que ela será informada da decisão assim que possível.

14. A comissão local não deve pressionar a comissão original a concordar com a readmissão da pessoa. Os membros da comissão original podem conhecer detalhes que os anciãos da comissão local não conhecem. Por isso, geralmente, é melhor respeitar o julgamento deles. Da mesma forma, a comissão original deve analisar com cuidado a recomendação da comissão local. Talvez já tenha se passado tempo suficiente, e pode ser que a pessoa tenha feito grandes mudanças. A comissão original deve ter em mente que os anciãos que estão fazendo a recomendação tiveram a oportunidade de se reunir com a pessoa e de observar sua conduta. Se a comissão original decidir readmitir a pessoa, essa comissão informa o Departamento de Serviço, e o anúncio da readmissão deve ser feito nas duas congregações. (Veja 19:10, 12.) A comissão da congregação em que a pessoa está é responsável por acompanhar seu progresso e remover suas restrições.

15. Se as duas congregações forem razoavelmente perto uma da outra, assim que a comissão original receber uma recomendação de readmissão da comissão local, ela deve se reunir com a pessoa.

16. Se os anciãos da comissão original não concordarem em readmitir a pessoa, eles devem explicar claramente seus motivos para a comissão local.

ORADORES DE DISCURSOS PÚBLICOS

1. Qualificações: É muito importante que apenas servos ministeriais e anciãos habilitados e aprovados pelo corpo de anciãos sejam designados para fazer discursos públicos. Um orador de discurso público qualificado é um orador que (1) consegue ensinar bem usando a Bíblia, (2) mostra claramente qual é o valor prático da matéria e (3) consegue tocar o coração da assistência. (Nee. 8:8; Luc. 24:32) O corpo de anciãos deve se reunir, orar e considerar as habilidades de cada irmão. Isso deve ser feito com equilíbrio e bom senso. Pode ser que o corpo de anciãos decida que um ancião que faz partes na reunião do meio de semana não está qualificado para dar discursos públicos. Em alguns casos, um ancião limitado talvez seja aprovado para fazer discursos públicos em sua própria congregação, mas não em outras. Nesses casos, ele seria modesto e recusaria convites pessoais para fazer discursos em outras congregações. Todos os anciãos, incluindo os que atualmente não se qualificam para certos privilégios de ensino, devem ter a iniciativa de pedir ajuda para o conselheiro assistente e usar bem o livro Beneficie- se, a brochura Melhore e o documento Lembretes para os Que Proferem Discursos Públicos (S-141) para melhorar seu ensino. — 1 Tim. 4:15, 16.

2. Designações: É melhor que os oradores visitantes sejam anciãos. Mas servos ministeriais habilitados também podem ser designados. (Veja 1:2.9.) Geralmente, os pedidos de oradores devem ser feitos pelo coordenador de discursos públicos. (Veja 1:2.7; 3:3.18.) Uma lista dos oradores aprovados e dos discursos que eles têm preparados deve ser enviada para outras congregações. (A forma como será usada essa lista deve estar de acordo com as leis de proteção de dados.) Elas devem usar essa lista para escolher os oradores e os discursos. Já que o número de oradores aprovados pode variar de congregação para congregação, nem sempre é necessário que as duas congregações enviem o mesmo número de oradores uma para a outra.

3. De vez em quando, pode ser que o corpo de anciãos queira designar um orador local para fazer um discurso específico, pensando em uma necessidade da congregação. Mas, em geral, os oradores podem escolher os esboços que eles querem preparar. (Veja os documentos Títulos dos Discursos Públicos [S-99] e Títulos dos Discursos Públicos — Lista por Assunto [S-99a].) É melhor que os oradores não sejam designados para fazer discursos em outra congregação mais de uma vez por mês.

4. Discursos em duas partes: Quando um orador inexperiente for designado para fazer um discurso público, o corpo de anciãos deve decidir se ele pode fazer o discurso inteiro ou se seria melhor que ele fizesse os primeiros 15 minutos e que um orador mais experiente fizesse os 15 minutos finais.

5. Hospitalidade e despesas de transporte: O corpo de anciãos deve tomar a liderança em mostrar hospitalidade aos oradores visitantes. (Rom. 12:13) Eles devem fazer isso por perguntar se o orador gostaria de tomar uma refeição. Já que as circunstâncias podem variar de um lugar para o outro, cada corpo de anciãos deve decidir como isso será feito em sua congregação. Mas os donativos da congregação não devem ser usados para cobrir gastos com refeições, diversão, entre outros. O corpo de anciãos deve pedir para cobrir as despesas com transporte dos oradores visitantes. Essas despesas podem ser cobertas usando os donativos da congregação. — Veja o documento Instruções para as Contas da Congregação (S-27).

CELEBRAÇÃO E DISCURSO ESPECIAL

6. Como escolher o orador da Celebração: O corpo de anciãos deve escolher com cuidado um orador que consiga apresentar a matéria de forma clara e fácil de entender, mesmo para quem estiver presente pela primeira vez. Por isso, os anciãos não devem simplesmente se revezar em fazer o discurso da Celebração. Se houver um ancião ungido habilitado na congregação, ele poderá ser escolhido como orador, desde que sua idade, saúde ou outros fatores não sejam um problema. Mas não é necessário que ele seja escolhido todo ano. Assim, a assistência vai poder se beneficiar do bom ensino de outros irmãos habilitados. A principal preocupação dos anciãos ao escolher um orador deve ser a qualidade do discurso.

7. Quem pode fazer as orações na Celebração: O corpo de anciãos deve escolher irmãos qualificados para fazer as orações do pão e do vinho. Essas orações devem ser breves, mas significativas. Os escolhidos para fazer as orações devem ser irmãos batizados, maduros, exemplares e respeitados pela congregação. Se houver na congregação um irmão ungido qualificado, é bom que ele seja escolhido para fazer uma das orações, desde que sua idade, saúde ou outros fatores não sejam um problema. Mas o corpo de anciãos talvez tenha motivos para escolher outros irmãos qualificados para fazer as orações. Se um irmão ungido fizer o discurso, não é necessário que ele faça as orações do pão e do vinho, mas ele pode ser convidado para fazer a oração final.

8. Horário da Celebração: O corpo de anciãos decide o horário de início da Celebração. Se mais de uma congregação for usar o mesmo local, os corpos de anciãos devem decidir juntos o(s) horário(s) de início. O discurso pode começar antes do pôr do sol, mas o pão e o vinho só devem ser passados depois do pôr do sol. Se o mesmo local for usado para realizar mais de uma Celebração, deve-se fazer um intervalo de pelo menos 40 minutos entre elas, se possível, para a saída e entrada das pessoas. O programa todo deve durar mais ou menos uma hora, incluindo os cânticos, as orações, a passagem do pão e do vinho e os comentários do presidente.

10. Gravações do JW Stream: Mais ou menos um mês antes da Celebração, a gravação do discurso da Celebração ficará disponível no JW Stream para ser usada por congregações, grupos e pré-grupos com bem poucos oradores habilitados. A parte do esboço "A Celebração da morte de Cristo hoje à noite" não será incluída na gravação. O presidente da reunião, ou outro irmão, deve cuidar dessa parte do discurso, que inclui a leitura de 1 Coríntios 11:23-25, as orações e a passagem do pão e do vinho. Depois disso, a assistência deve assistir à parte final do discurso gravado. A gravação do discurso especial também ficará disponível no JW Stream com mais ou menos um mês de antecedência. Se for possível, mesmo quando gravações forem usadas, oradores substitutos devem ser designados para fazer o discurso da Celebração e o discurso especial se acontecer algum problema técnico durante a apresentação do programa gravado. Os que não puderem assistir à Celebração ao vivo, seja presencialmente, por videoconferência ou por outros meios eletrônicos, poderão receber a gravação do discurso da Celebração no JW Stream.

11. Se algum publicador precisar assistir à gravação do discurso, os anciãos devem informá-lo que, quando o vídeo mostrar uma tela preta, ele deve (1) pausar o vídeo, (2) ler 1 Coríntios 11:23-25, (3) fazer uma oração antes de passar o pão para os que estão ali juntos assistindo à gravação e (4) fazer uma oração antes de passar o vinho. (As orações devem ser feitas mesmo que não se tenha conseguido pão e vinho para quem é das outras ovelhas. Se não houver nenhum irmão batizado qualificado na ocasião, uma irmã batizada deve cobrir a cabeça para fazer as orações e passar o pão e o vinho.) Depois que seguir esses passos, ele deve voltar a assistir à gravação do discurso. Os que seguirem esses procedimentos para realizar a Celebração deverão ser contados junto com os demais que estiverem presentes nessa importante ocasião. Todos devem informar o secretário da congregação de que assistiram à Celebração e de quantos tomaram dos emblemas. O secretário vai calcular a assistência total e enviar esse número para Betel. Com um bom planejamento, todos os locais em que a Celebração for realizada devem ter, se possível, o pão e o vinho para a Celebração. Mas, se não for possível conseguir o pão e o vinho para a Celebração, não é necessário fazer um esforço excessivo para conseguir os emblemas se não houver nenhum irmão (ou irmã) ungido presente na ocasião.

12. Inativos: Para obter informações sobre como ajudar os inativos na época da Celebração, veja o capítulo 25, parágrafo 15.

13. Presidência e anúncios: Veja os documentos Presidente do Discurso Especial (S-125) e Presidente da Celebração (S-126).

ANÚNCIOS

14. O coordenador do corpo de anciãos deve analisar e aprovar todos os anúncios que serão feitos para a congregação. — Veja o documento Instruções para a Reunião Nossa Vida e Ministério Cristão (S-38).

NECESSIDADES LOCAIS

15. O corpo de anciãos é quem decide os assuntos das partes de necessidades locais, quando elas serão feitas e quais anciãos vão fazê-las. Ao escolher os assuntos, os anciãos podem pensar em aspectos em que a congregação como um todo precisa de incentivo, elogio ou conselho. (Pro. 27:23) As partes de necessidades locais devem ser feitas de modo amoroso, e as orientações dadas devem ser claras e baseadas na Bíblia. — Veja 20:17-18.

16. O corpo de anciãos não deve convidar membros da Colih ou profissionais da área médica para fazer partes de necessidades locais ou participar nelas com o objetivo de ensinar os irmãos a preencher o cartão Diretivas Antecipadas (dpa) ou falar sobre outros assuntos relacionados. Os anciãos também não devem pedir para essas pessoas fazerem discursos ou apresentações sobre esses assuntos no Salão do Reino ou em qualquer outro lugar.

ASSEMBLEIAS

17. Dois ou três meses antes de cada assembleia, os anciãos devem começar a lembrar a congregação de que a data da assembleia se aproxima. Na semana que antecede a assembleia, o presidente da Reunião Vida e Ministério deve destacar brevemente o tema da assembleia e os discursos principais, enquanto o programa da assembleia aparece nas telas do Salão do

Reino. Todos na congregação devem ser incentivados a baixar o programa no jw.org e a levar para a assembleia a revista A Sentinela que será estudada. Além disso, todos devem ser incentivados a chegar no horário e a estar em seus lugares quando o programa musical começar. Os anciãos podem avaliar se seria bom usar uma parte de necessidades locais um ou dois meses depois da assembleia para recapitular o programa por meio de uma consideração com a assistência, destacando os pontos relacionados ao ministério.

CONGRESSOS

18. Dois ou três meses antes do congresso, os anciãos devem começar a lembrar a congregação de que a data do congresso se aproxima. Numa parte de necessidades locais antes do início da campanha de distribuição de convites para o congresso, o vídeo Lembretes para o Congresso deve ser apresentado. Depois, os irmãos devem ser informados sobre como será feita a campanha, que vai começar três semanas antes do congresso. O tema do congresso e os discursos principais devem ser destacados, enquanto o programa do congresso aparece nas telas do Salão do Reino. Todos na congregação devem ser incentivados a baixar o programa no jw.org e a levar para o congresso a revista A Sentinela que será estudada. Numa parte de necessidades locais, um ou dois meses depois do congresso, o vídeo com trechos do congresso, que estará disponível para os anciãos no jw.org, deve ser apresentado. Por meio de uma consideração com a assistência, os pontos principais do programa, especialmente os que estiverem relacionados ao ministério, devem ser recapitulados.

ESTUDO DA SENTINELA

19. Veja o capítulo 6.

ESTUDO BÍBLICO DE CONGREGAÇÃO

20. As orientações do capítulo 6 sobre como dirigir o estudo da Sentinela também devem ser seguidas no estudo bíblico de congregação. — Veja também o documento Instruções para a Reunião Nossa Vida e Ministério Cristão (S-38).

RECURSOS VISUAIS

21. Para obter orientações sobre como usar recursos visuais, veja o documento Lembretes para os Que Proferem Discursos Públicos (S-141). Essas orientações devem ser seguidas em qualquer reunião congregacional.

VÍDEOS E CÂNTICOS

22. Em vez de transmitir os vídeos diretamente do jw.org, é melhor que eles sejam baixados com antecedência no JW Library para depois serem apresentados na reunião. (Veja o documento Como Reproduzir Áudio e Vídeo durante as Reuniões [S-144].) O corpo de anciãos deve designar um irmão para baixar toda semana os vídeos que serão apresentados na reunião.

23. O áudio dos cânticos da seção "Cante de Coração — Reuniões" devem ser tocados antes e depois das reuniões. Mas o volume não deve atrapalhar os que estiverem conversando, já que a associação e as conversas espirituais que os irmãos têm nessas ocasiões são uma forma de encorajarem uns aos outros. Apenas os cânticos da seção "Cante de Coração — Reuniões" devem ser usados durante as reuniões, a menos que haja outra orientação da organização. Quando os cânticos forem cantados, a música deve ser alta o suficiente para que os irmãos possam cantar de todo o coração, mas não deve ser tão alta a ponto de ser difícil ouvir as vozes dos irmãos.

24. Para obter informações sobre o uso de cânticos no caso de um grupo, veja o capítulo 24, parágrafo 17.

TRANSMISSÃO DE REUNIÕES E REUNIÕES POR VIDEOCONFERÊNCIA

25. As reuniões da congregação podem ser transmitidas ou serem feitas por videoconferência para ajudar publicadores isolados, publicadores que não podem sair de casa, pessoas interessadas e os que por algum outro motivo não podem assistir às reuniões no Salão do Reino. (Os anciãos devem ter bom senso ao decidir se uma pessoa desassociada ou dissociada pode se conectar às reuniões.) O corpo de anciãos pode escolher que sistema será usado para isso, como ligação de telefone, transmissão de vídeo ou videoconferência. Mas eles não devem usar nenhum serviço (1) que salve os arquivos de áudio e vídeo, (2) que durante a transmissão apresente propagandas e anúncios, ou (3) que permite que os usuários postem comentários numa área pública da internet. Quando duas ou mais congregações que se reúnem no mesmo local forem usar o mesmo sistema, os corpos de anciãos devem fazer essa escolha juntos. As congregações que fazem reuniões por videoconferência devem seguir à risca as orientações dos documentos Orientações sobre Áudio e Vídeo para Quem Faz Discursos Públicos por Videoconferência (S-178), Reuniões por Videoconferência (S-179) e Orientações sobre Áudio e Vídeo para o Retorno das Reuniões Presenciais no Salão do Reino (S-260). As seguintes orientações devem ser seguidas em toda transmissão de reuniões e em todas as reuniões por videoconferência:

(1) As reuniões devem ser transmitidas ao vivo em vez de gravadas para serem distribuídas mais tarde. (Veja 20:27.) No entanto, um publicador pode gravar as reuniões para seu uso pessoal, desde que isso esteja de acordo com as leis e que o dispositivo não seja conectado ao sistema de áudio e vídeo do local da reunião. Os anciãos devem ter bom senso ao decidir quem pode ter acesso à transmissão das reuniões.

(2) O sistema escolhido não deve afetar a qualidade das reuniões. Alguns sistemas permitem ouvir as pessoas que estão conectadas de um local remoto, tornando possível que elas participem da reunião. Mas esses irmãos devem tomar cuidado para que conversas e outros barulhos do ambiente não sejam ouvidos.

(3) Com exceção às reuniões em língua de sinais e às reuniões feitas totalmente por videoconferência, qualquer vídeo transmitido do Salão do Reino para locais remotos deve apresentar somente o que acontece no palco e qualquer mídia aprovada. (Veja 20:21.) Os que comentarem da assistência, quer estejam no Salão do Reino, quer estejam conectados de um local remoto, não devem aparecer no vídeo, apenas o áudio de seus comentários deve aparecer.

(4) Ao contar a assistência, os indicadores devem incluir os que estão conectados.

JW STREAM

26. As congregações que têm bem poucos irmãos habilitados para fazer partes nas reuniões podem pedir a aprovação do superintendente de circuito para assistir a gravações das reuniões ou de partes delas usando o JW Stream. (Veja o documento Como Anciãos e Servos Ministeriais Podem Acessar Gravações no JW Stream [S-142].) As orientações do capítulo 24, parágrafos 13 e 14, podem ser aplicadas nesses casos.

27. Se uma congregação não transmite as reuniões, os anciãos podem dar aos publicadores e pessoas interessadas acesso às gravações do JW Stream. Os anciãos devem ter bom senso ao decidir se uma pessoa desassociada ou dissociada pode ter acesso a essas gravações. (Veja o documento Como Acessar Gravações no JW Stream após Receber o Convite [S-143].) Esse recurso é para ajudar os idosos, os enfermos e os que por algum outro motivo não têm condições de assistir às reuniões no Salão do Reino. Além disso, quando um publicador, ou uma pessoa interessada, não consegue entender o idioma usado nas reuniões, ele pode ser autorizado a assistir às gravações na sua língua materna, ao mesmo tempo em que continua assistindo às reuniões da congregação local. — od cap. 9 par. 41.

28. Muitos publicadores e pessoas interessadas podem ter dificuldades para assistir a um congresso ou a uma assembleia por causa de suas circunstâncias. Em outros casos, pode ser que um publicador ou uma pessoa interessada queira assistir a um congresso ou a uma assembleia na sua língua materna, mas não tenha condições de fazer isso. Para ajudar esses irmãos, as gravações em vídeo das séries de congressos e assembleias que estiverem em andamento ficam disponíveis em muitos idiomas no JW Stream. Quando um publicador, ou uma pessoa interessada, for convidado para assistir a um programa pelo JW Stream, ele deve ser orientado a não compartilhar o conteúdo com ninguém. Além disso, a pessoa não deve assistir à gravação do congresso ou assembleia antes da data designada para a congregação. Os anciãos devem ter bom senso ao decidir se uma pessoa desassociada ou dissociada pode se ter acesso a essas gravações. — Para obter orientações sobre o uso do JW Stream no caso de outros idiomas, veja o capítulo 24, parágrafo 26.

LÍNGUA DE SINAIS

29. Área reservada: Quando as reuniões precisarem ser interpretadas em língua de sinais, todos os surdos devem se sentar juntos em uma área do Salão do Reino que permita que eles vejam o intérprete e o palco na mesma linha de visão, sem nenhuma distração visual. Essa área normalmente fica na parte da frente do auditório, talvez em um dos lados. (w09 15/11 pp. 30-32) As pessoas que dependem da língua de sinais e seus familiares devem ter prioridade para sentar nessa área.

30. Pode-se providenciar interpretação tátil para os surdo-cegos. Os intérpretes devem ficar num local de onde possam ver claramente o intérprete principal, sem que nada os atrapalhe. Irmãos e irmãs surdos geralmente são bons intérpretes táteis.

32. Os intérpretes precisam compreender o processo de interpretação. Interpretar não significa simplesmente fazer uma tradução palavra por palavra do que é dito na língua falada. Para interpretar, é necessário entender as ideias. Assim, os intérpretes devem se concentrar no que está sendo dito da tribuna e se esforçar para transmitir esses pensamentos de forma clara, exata e completa, enquanto acompanham o orador. Geralmente, uma tradução palavra por palavra não transmite os pensamentos do orador de maneira exata. Por isso, o que qualifica uma pessoa para fazer uma boa interpretação não é simplesmente o tempo que ela tem de experiência; o mais importante é que ela entenda o processo de interpretação.

33. Aparência dos intérpretes: Os irmãos e as irmãs que servem como intérpretes devem se vestir e se arrumar de forma exemplar, seguindo o mesmo padrão exigido para as partes que são feitas no palco. Além disso, suas roupas, joias e relógios não devem distrair a assistência, e suas unhas não devem ser compridas ou com cores chamativas. As roupas do intérprete devem contrastar com a cor da sua pele e devem ser de cores lisas (tecidos estampados podem distrair). Elas também não devem ser muito apertadas.

34. Em algumas situações, as irmãs que servem como intérpretes não precisam cobrir a cabeça porque fica claro para todos que elas não estão dirigindo a reunião. Por exemplo, uma irmã não precisaria cobrir a cabeça ao interpretar comentários da assistência, partes de estudante feitas por irmãs e demonstrações. Mas, quando uma irmã precisa ser usada como intérprete para orações, cânticos e discursos de irmãos, ela deve usar algo modesto e apropriado para cobrir a cabeça, demonstrando submissão às orientações bíblicas sobre o funcionamento da congregação. — 1 Tim. 2:11, 12; w09 15/11 pp. 12-13.

35. Pode-se fazer uma exceção no caso de uma irmã que faz a interpretação tátil para um surdo-cego. Como essa irmã estaria sentada na assistência, fazendo sinais nas mãos de apenas uma pessoa, ela não precisaria cobrir a cabeça, já que não estaria num lugar destacado como no caso de uma intérprete para surdos.

36. Cânticos: Se um cântico que não está disponível na língua de sinais usada pelo grupo for cantado na reunião, deve-se escolher com cuidado um cântico que tenha um tema parecido ou que expresse os mesmos sentimentos. Deve-se levar em conta a duração do cântico alternativo para não atrasar o programa sem necessidade. Se não houver cânticos disponíveis na língua de sinais usada pelo grupo, o cântico programado deve ser interpretado, de preferência por um irmão.

37. Áudio: O áudio dos vídeos em língua de sinais deve ser tocado nas reuniões dos grupos e congregações, e nas assembleias e congressos em língua de sinais. Assim, tanto os surdos como seus parentes ouvintes que estiverem na assistência vão tirar proveito dos vídeos.

PESSOAS QUE CAUSAM PROBLEMAS

38. Quando uma pessoa causa pequenos problemas ou distrações, é melhor ignorar isso. Mas, se a situação continuar, a pessoa deve ser convidada a se retirar. Se ela se recusar a fazer isso, ela deve ser informada de que, se não for embora e continuar causando problemas, a polícia será chamada. Se mesmo assim ela não colaborar, deve-se chamar a polícia. Quando os policiais chegarem, eles devem ser informados de que a pessoa está causando problemas e que ela não é mais bem-vinda no local. Se for prudente e necessário, pode-se informar à polícia que queremos prestar queixa.

39. Os anciãos normalmente não devem tentar tirar uma pessoa à força do Salão do Reino, mesmo que ela esteja causando problemas. Se ela for violenta desde o início, deve-se chamar a polícia imediatamente. Não é preciso avisar a pessoa. Se um irmão for agredido fisicamente, ele tem o direito de se defender, e os anciãos deverão fazer o que puder para protegê-lo. É claro que, se for possível, é melhor que o irmão fuja do agressor. Mas, se ele não conseguir fazer isso, ele pode tentar se defender e até mesmo revidar de alguma maneira, se necessário. De qualquer modo, isso seria feito apenas para se proteger ou proteger outros até a polícia chegar. — g 06/08 p. 11; g87 22/11 p. 28.

TRANSPORTE PARA PESSOAS DESASSOCIADAS OU DISSOCIADAS

40. Geralmente, os desassociados e os dissociados devem providenciar seu próprio transporte para as reuniões. Mas pode ser que alguém nessa situação esteja se esforçando bastante para recuperar sua amizade com Jeová e não tenha condições de conseguir transporte por conta própria. Por exemplo, ele talvez não tenha carro, e os membros de sua família e outras pessoas talvez não tenham condições de ajudá-lo. Pode ser também que ele não possa pagar pelo transporte público ou que esse tipo de transporte não esteja disponível onde ele mora. E pode não ser aconselhável ir a pé por causa da distância, da falta de segurança ou por causa de condições climáticas muito ruins. Se ele não puder mesmo ir às reuniões por conta própria, os anciãos vão decidir se algo pode ser feito para ajudá-lo. Nesse caso, os irmãos que forem para a reunião junto com ele o tratarão como se estivessem juntos em um transporte público, ou seja, não conversarão com ele. (2 João 10, 11) Os anciãos devem ficar atentos para garantir que ninguém se aproveite da situação.

REUNIÕES ADICIONAIS

41. Não se deve organizar nenhum tipo de reunião ou evento para dar instrução espiritual sem ser aquilo que a organização já orienta. Jeová fornece o que é necessário por meio do escravo fiel e prudente, que é orientado pelo espírito santo e pela Bíblia. Recebemos instrução espiritual e encorajamento nas reuniões congregacionais, assembleias e congressos, bem como nas nossas publicações e pelo JW Broadcasting. O escravo fiel e prudente não aprova nenhum outro tipo de reunião ou evento, mas pode orientar que uma reunião adicional seja feita, se houver necessidade. Reuniões não aprovadas podem desviar a atenção do que Jesus Cristo está fazendo como cabeça da congrega-

ção. Seguir essa orientação vai ajudar todos os do povo de Deus a continuarem “completamente unidos na mesma mente e na mesma maneira de pensar” e “estabelecidos na fé”. — 1 Cor. 1:10; Col. 2:6, 7.

Salões do Reino

1. Betel é responsável por aprovar e supervisionar a construção de novos Salões do Reino e por fazer com que os salões que já existem sejam bem usados e estejam sempre em boas condições. As orientações sobre esses assuntos são dadas para as congregações pelo Departamento Local de Projeto/Construção (LDC, em inglês). Os representantes do LDC podem ser usados para fazer inspeções e juntar informações sobre novos locais de reunião e sobre locais que já estão sendo usados. Os anciãos dão um ótimo exemplo para todos na congregação quando coordenam e participam pessoalmente na limpeza, na manutenção e na segurança do Salão do Reino.

CONGREGAÇÃO DE CONTATO

2. O Salão do Reino é um local dedicado para a adoração a Jeová. Pode ser que Betel designe três ou até quatro congregações para usar o mesmo Salão do Reino. Assim, o prédio é mais bem aproveitado e as despesas ficam menores.

3. Nesses casos, Betel geralmente se corresponde com apenas uma das congregações (a congregação de contato) para tratar de assuntos jurídicos, assuntos sobre a propriedade e questões relacionadas. Normalmente, é essa congregação que mantém arquivada a documentação relacionada ao Salão do Reino e à propriedade. Mas isso é feito apenas por praticidade e não dá à congregação o direito de tomar sozinha decisões sobre o uso e a manutenção do Salão do Reino. Independentemente de quem tenha o título de propriedade, ou escritura, nenhuma congregação deve achar que é "proprietária" do Salão do Reino. Todas as congregações que usam o Salão do Reino são responsáveis por cuidar dele e usá-lo para apoiar a obra do Reino.

PRÉDIOS ALUGADOS

4. Se uma congregação precisar alugar um local para usar como Salão do Reino por um longo período, os anciãos devem entrar em contato com o LDC. Se o local vai ser usado apenas uma vez (por exemplo, para a Celebração), os anciãos devem seguir as instruções do documento Como Alugar Locais para Eventos da Congregação (TO-19).

LIMPEZA

5. A limpeza do Salão do Reino deve ser feita regularmente, obedecendo a uma programação feita de acordo com a necessidade e a frequência com que o Salão do Reino é usado. Geralmente, isso inclui uma limpeza simples depois de cada reunião, uma limpeza mais completa a cada semana e uma limpeza geral pelo menos uma vez por ano. A limpeza deve ser feita por voluntários das congregações que usam o Salão do Reino. Todos podem participar, incluindo as crianças, desde que elas sejam supervisionadas.

6. A programação de limpeza do Salão do Reino deve ser colocada no quadro de anúncios. Algumas congregações decidem fazer a limpeza semanal em sistema de rodízio entre os grupos de serviço de campo. A limpeza completa e a limpeza geral devem incluir a parte interna e externa dos prédios, depósitos, estacionamento e jardim. Se for necessário remover neve ou fazer algum tipo de manutenção ou limpeza específica em certa época do ano, esse serviço deve ser bem coordenado. Deve-se garantir que todos trabalhem com segurança. — Veja 21:27-29.

7. Coordenador da limpeza: Cada corpo de anciãos deve designar um ancião ou um servo ministerial para ser o coordenador da limpeza de sua congregação. Isso não significa que esse irmão tenha que fazer todo o trabalho sozinho nem que tenha o direito de tomar decisões que são de responsabilidade do corpo de anciãos. Ele deve fazer a programação da limpeza do Salão do Reino e consultar a Comissão de Manutenção do Salão do Reino para garantir que haja materiais de limpeza adequados, instruções básicas sobre os serviços e equipamentos de segurança à disposição dos publicadores. Ele também deve garantir que esses equipamentos de segurança sejam usados e que os publicadores estejam treinados para fazer a limpeza de forma segura. Além disso, ele deve estar atento à limpeza do Salão do Reino e, se necessário, deve dar lembretes sobre o assunto de forma bondosa.

MANUTENÇÃO E CONSERTOS

8. Um bom programa de manutenção preventiva pode aumentar a vida útil do Salão do Reino e de seus equipamentos. A manutenção feita regularmente mostra respeito pela santidade da vida, já que a falta de manutenção pode comprometer a segurança de quem usa o Salão do Reino. (Veja 21:27-29.) Um local de reuniões bem cuidado dá honra para o nome de Jeová. Por isso, cada congregação deve levar a sério a responsabilidade de fazer a manutenção preventiva e os consertos necessários. O LDC vai designar um treinador de manutenção qualificado para cada Salão do Reino. O treinador de manutenção é um representante do LDC e trabalha junto com um representante em campo do LDC para ajudar a criar, supervisionar e apoiar os programas de manutenção. Para a maioria dos assuntos relacionados ao Salão do Reino, o treinador de manutenção deve ser o primeiro a ser contatado.

9. As congregações designadas para um Salão do Reino são responsáveis pelas despesas relacionadas à manutenção programada e consertos que não ultrapassem o valor da previsão de gastos da congregação ou da Comissão de Manutenção do Salão do Reino, e pelas despesas relacionadas à compra, consertos e substituição de ferramentas ou equipamentos portáteis. Nem as congregações nem as comissões de manutenção devem manter um saldo maior do que a previsão de gastos para os consertos do Salão do Reino. Se o valor de um projeto de consertos do Salão do Reino ultrapassar o valor da previsão de gastos da congregação ou da comissão de manutenção, será necessário pedir aprovação ao LDC. Quando um conserto do Salão do Reino é aprovado, o LDC fornece orientações sobre como realizar os serviços, e geralmente os fundos são enviados por Betel. (Para mais orientações sobre previsão de gastos e aprovação de despesas, veja os documentos Instruções para as Contas da Congregação [S-27] e Instruções para as Contas da Comissão de Manutenção do Salão do Reino [S-42].) Os serviços de manutenção e consertos devem ser feitos por voluntários das congregações que usam o Salão do Reino. Se não houver voluntários locais disponíveis para coordenar o serviço ou para realizar os serviços com segurança, ou se os serviços envolverem atividades de alto risco, os anciãos deverão pedir orientações ao treinador de manutenção do LDC antes de iniciar qualquer atividade. — Veja o documento Trabalhar Juntos em Segurança — Normas para Construção e Manutenção de Locais de Adoração (DC-82) e o apêndice A.

10. Se os anciãos precisarem contratar um empreiteiro para fazer um serviço, e o valor do serviço não exigir a aprovação do LDC, eles devem pedir que os orçamentos e contratos sejam feitos sempre por escrito. Os detalhes dos orçamentos não devem ser informados a outras pessoas que também estão oferecendo o serviço. É necessário verificar se o empreiteiro tem capacidade para realizar o trabalho, se ele é conhecido por trabalhar com segurança e se ele tem seguro e outras proteções legais necessárias. Isso deve ser feito mesmo se o empreiteiro for Testemunha de Jeová. Antes de o empreiteiro começar o trabalho, seria bom que a congregação pedisse uma cópia da apólice de seguro dele para verificar o que ela cobre. Se possível, a congregação também deve pedir para que a associação jurídica que tem o título de propriedade, ou escritura, seja nomeada como um segurado adicional na apólice de seguro do empreiteiro. Se surgirem dúvidas sobre como elaborar o contrato ou sobre as exigências específicas para sua localidade, os anciãos devem entrar em contato com o Setor de Gerenciamento de Riscos da Filial, que é supervisionado pelo Departamento Financeiro. Na maioria dos casos, é aconselhável que um irmão de confiança acompanhe o serviço dos empreiteiros.

11. O corpo de anciãos deve incentivar e apoiar o programa de manutenção preventiva e o treinamento de manutenção fornecidos pelo LDC para que todos na congregação se sintam motivados a cuidar do Salão do Reino.

12. Problemas relacionados a umidade devem ser cuidados imediatamente. Se nada for feito, a umidade causada por vazamentos de água, infiltrações, enchentes ou condensação pode provocar danos graves. Todos os vazamentos (de tubulações, telhados, etc.) devem ser resolvidos imediatamente por alguém qualificado. Se a área afetada não for limpa e seca dentro de 48 horas, podem surgir mais problemas. Em regiões com muita umidade, pode ser necessário deixar o sistema de aquecimento, de ventilação ou de ar condicionado ligado por algum tempo, todos os dias, mesmo quando o prédio não estiver sendo usado. Isso vai ajudar a retirar a umidade do ar e evitar mofo. Se surgir um problema sério de umidade, e os anciãos não forem capazes de resolvê-lo, eles devem imediatamente entrar em contato com o treinador de manutenção do LDC para obter ajuda.

13. Se for necessário alugar um local ou um estacionamento para ser usado apenas uma vez, os anciãos devem avaliar o que precisa ser feito para deixar o local seguro e adequado para a reunião. (Para obter informações sobre aluguéis de longa duração, veja o parágrafo 4 deste capítulo.) É melhor que o proprietário providencie que esses serviços sejam feitos. Mas, se isso não for possível, os anciãos devem tentar fazer um acordo justo com ele. Esse acordo deve ser feito por escrito antes do começo do serviço. Não se devem fazer contratos que deem a entender que a congregação ou a organização vai assumir toda a responsabilidade civil (responsabilidade em caso de acidentes ou de danos materiais). Os anciãos devem pedir ajuda ao Setor de Gerenciamento de Riscos da Filial se tiverem dúvidas sobre as condições de um contrato ou acordo ou se precisarem de ajuda para elaborar ou revisar um contrato ou acordo (temporário ou permanente) com o objetivo de adicionar proprietários para se usar o terreno, ter acesso a ele ou compartilhá-lo com outros.

14. Coordenador da manutenção: Se o Salão do Reino for usado por apenas uma congregação, o corpo de anciãos deve designar um ancião ou um servo ministerial para servir como coordenador da manutenção. (Dependendo das circunstâncias, pode ser o mesmo irmão que serve como coordenador da limpeza.) Ele deve se certificar de que o programa de manutenção preventiva fornecido pelo LDC esteja sendo seguido. Isso envolve verificar se as tarefas programadas de manutenção estão sendo cumpridas no prazo e de acordo com as orientações. Além de coordenar os serviços de manutenção, ele pode ficar responsável por qualquer conserto necessário. Isso não significa que ele tenha que fazer todo o trabalho sozinho nem que tenha o direito de tomar decisões que são de responsabilidade do corpo de anciãos. É muito importante que o irmão escolhido seja bem organizado, trabalhador e submisso ao corpo de anciãos. Ele também deve saber delegar e treinar outros. O corpo de anciãos deve dar ao irmão liberdade suficiente para que ele possa cuidar da manutenção regular e fazer os consertos necessários. Ele deve manter um registro das tarefas concluídas e garantir que haja ferramentas adequadas para todos. Ao designar tarefas, ele sempre deve levar em conta o conhecimento, as habilidades e as limitações físicas de cada pessoa. Ele também deve garantir que os publicadores tenham à disposição equipamentos de segurança, estejam treinados para fazer os serviços de forma segura e sigam as instruções do documento Trabalhar Juntos em Segurança — Normas para Construção e Manutenção de Locais de Adoração (DC-82). — Veja 21:27-29.

COMISSÃO DE MANUTENÇÃO DO SALÃO DO REINO

15. Se o Salão do Reino for usado por mais de uma congregação, ou se houver mais de um Salão do Reino na mesma propriedade, uma Comissão de Manutenção do Salão do Reino deve ser designada para organizar a limpeza e a manutenção de toda a propriedade. Isso inclui todos os auditórios, depósitos e residências. Também pode incluir a residência de um servo de tempo integral especial localizada perto da propriedade. (Para obter orientações sobre apartamentos do circuito, veja o documento Instruções para as Contas do Circuito [S-331].) Cada corpo de anciãos deve escolher um ou dois anciãos ou servos ministeriais qualificados para fazer parte da Comissão de Manutenção. Mas essa comissão não deve ter mais do que cinco irmãos. Se houver mais de cinco congregações usando a mesma propriedade, os corpos de anciãos devem escolher juntos cinco irmãos para servir na Comissão de Manutenção.

19. A Comissão de Manutenção não tem autoridade para decidir quando as reuniões serão realizadas, se o local poderá ser usado para casamentos ou funerais, e assim por diante. — Veja 21:33; 27:6.2.

20. Os corpos de anciãos das congregações que usam o mesmo Salão do Reino devem colocar por escrito suas decisões com respeito ao salão. O documento com essas decisões, entre outras coisas, deve incluir: uma explicação de como o prédio será cuidado e utilizado, os dias e horários das reuniões, o modo como o rodízio de horário das reuniões será feito, o valor que cada congregação vai contribuir para as despesas operacionais, o valor que ficará disponível na conta da Comissão de Manutenção e o limite que poderá ser gasto com despesas inesperadas. (Veja o documento Instruções para as Contas da Comissão de Manutenção do Salão do Reino [S-42].) O documento Decisões Relacionadas ao Salão do Reino (S-46) pode ser usado como modelo para fazer o documento com as decisões dos corpos de anciãos. Esse documento deve ser assinado pelas comissões de serviço das congregações, e uma cópia dele deve ser guardada no arquivo de cada congregação. Esse documento deve ser atualizado conforme a necessidade, para que esteja sempre de acordo com as últimas decisões tomadas pelos corpos de anciãos.

PROCEDIMENTOS PARA O PAGAMENTO DE DESPESAS

21. Veja os documentos Instruções para as Contas da Congregação (S-27), Instruções para as Contas da Comissão de Manutenção do Salão do Reino (S-42) e os vídeos tutoriais sobre como cuidar das contas da congregação.

REFORMAS, MELHORIAS, NOVAS INSTALAÇÕES E CONSTRUÇÕES

22. É necessário ter a aprovação do LDC para construir, para realizar qualquer reforma (que esteja além das atividades de rotina de manutenção e consertos) e para fazer a instalação ou troca de qualquer elemento ou sistema (isso se aplica mesmo quando o material é doado). Se um projeto for aprovado, o LDC vai programar o trabalho e decidir quem irá coordenar os serviços de acordo com o tipo e tamanho do projeto. Geralmente, Betel vai enviar os fundos para a realização do projeto. Assim, nem as congregações nem as comissões de manutenção devem manter um saldo maior do que a previsão de gastos para reformas, melhorias, novas instalações ou construções. Isso só deve ser feito se Betel orientar. — Para obter orientações sobre previsão de gastos e aprovação de despesas, veja os documentos Instruções para as Contas da Congregação (S-27) e Instruções para as Contas da Comissão de Manutenção do Salão do Reino (S-42).

23. Betel prepara e atualiza um master plan (plano mestre) que indica onde há necessidade de Salões do Reino. O master plan mostra se novos Salões do Reino precisam ser construídos (levando em conta o número de publicadores e o crescimento das congregações). Ele também mostra se existem Salões do Reino que precisam de reforma e se algum Salão do Reino precisa ser substituído. O master plan também pode mostrar que alguns Salões do Reino poderiam ser mais bem aproveitados se fosse feita uma fusão de duas ou mais congregações, ou se mais congregações usassem o mesmo Salão do Reino. Isso poderia aumentar a assistência às reuniões, melhorar a qualidade delas, melhorar a distribuição de irmãos experientes nas congregações e diminuir a quantidade de Salões do Reino que precisam ser construídos.

24. Qualquer pergunta sobre a data programada para o início de uma construção ou reforma deve ser encaminhada para o treinador de manutenção do LDC. Nenhuma congregação deve comprar ou aceitar a doação de um terreno nem fazer uma reforma num Salão do Reino antes de receber aprovação do LDC. Em todos os casos, os padrões e as especificações do projeto são fornecidos por Betel, que também designa um grupo de construção ou uma equipe para supervisionar a obra. Sempre que for necessário vender um Salão do Reino, Betel cuidará do assunto.

INSPEÇÕES

25. O LDC vai providenciar que cada Salão do Reino seja inspecionado a cada dois ou três anos. Isso vai ser coordenado pelo treinador de manutenção ou pelo representante em campo do LDC. Não é necessário que todos os anciãos acompanhem a inspeção, mas é importante que a Comissão de Manutenção do Salão do Reino ou o coordenador da manutenção estejam presentes. Quando a inspeção for agendada, os anciãos serão informados se é necessário que os publicadores participem. A inspeção vai verificar se o programa de manutenção preventiva está sendo seguido. Em cada inspeção é feita uma verificação de todos os documentos de propriedade do Salão do Reino e de qualquer licença exigida pelas autoridades. O objetivo é verificar se os documentos estão em ordem e fornecer a ajuda necessária. Depois da inspeção, cada corpo de anciãos vai receber uma cópia do relatório.

Os anciãos devem seguir as recomendações deixadas no relatório e resolver sem demora qualquer problema relacionado com manutenção ou segurança.

PROTEÇÃO

26. Todas as portas e janelas devem ficar trancadas sempre que o Salão do Reino não estiver sendo usado. Dependendo das circunstâncias, é aconselhável guardar equipamentos caros em armários com chave ou na casa de irmãos. Em regiões mais perigosas, alguns Salões do Reino possuem sistemas eletrônicos de segurança. Mas, antes de instalar qualquer sistema de segurança, o corpo de anciãos deve entrar em contato com o treinador de manutenção do LDC, que vai decidir se isso é realmente necessário. Se algum sistema de segurança for instalado, ele deve ser mantido em boas condições de funcionamento. — Veja 21:22.

SEGURANÇA

27. Todos os anciãos devem tentar identificar situações de risco que poderiam resultar em um acidente, tanto dentro do Salão do Reino como na parte externa dele, e agir rapidamente para resolvê-las. Eles devem prestar atenção principalmente nas calçadas, no estacionamento, na iluminação de escadas e de áreas com degraus ou com superfícies irregulares e outras coisas que poderiam fazer alguém tropeçar ou cair. Capachos ou tapetes perto da entrada do prédio devem estar em bom estado e nunca enrugados ou desnivelados. Coisas que poderiam causar um incêndio, como ligar muitos aparelhos em uma tomada ou acumular materiais inflamáveis, não devem ser permitidas. Deve-se também evitar ao máximo armazenar produtos perigosos e líquidos inflamáveis na propriedade. Os produtos químicos necessários para limpeza ou manutenção devem estar claramente identificados e devem ser guardados num local seguro, fora do alcance de crianças.

28. Todos os anciãos devem conhecer bem o documento Trabalhar Juntos em Segurança — Normas para Construção e Manutenção de Locais de Adoração (DC-82). Uma cópia impressa ou eletrônica desse documento deve ser dada para cada publicador da congregação que se coloca à disposição para ajudar em projetos de manutenção ou construção, ou em outras tarefas que envolvam algum risco, como trabalhar com ferramentas elétricas ou usar escadas.

29. Algo muito importante para que qualquer serviço seja feito com segurança é identificar possíveis perigos e criar um plano para evitá-los. Os irmãos que supervisionam serviços em Salões do Reino devem avaliar as atividades que serão realizadas, identificar os possíveis riscos que elas podem apresentar e definir as medidas de segurança que podem ser tomadas. Eles devem escolher apenas pessoas qualificadas que tenham a saúde e as habilidades necessárias para realizar o serviço de modo seguro. Além disso, essas pessoas não devem trabalhar sozinhas no Salão do Reino. Os documentos Análise de Riscos em Serviços no Salão do Reino (DC-85) e Instruções para Preencher a Análise de Riscos em Serviços no Salão do Reino (DC-85i) devem ser usados. Para se realizarem pequenas manutenções ou limpezas regulares, não é necessário usar esses documentos.

INCIDENTES

30. Um Relatório de Incidente de Risco (TO-5) deve ser preenchido sempre que acontecer ou quase acontecer um incidente em um Salão do Reino ou em um local alugado para um evento teocrático seguindo o documento Instruções para Preencher o Relatório de Incidente de Risco (TO-5i). O relatório deve ser preenchido e enviado para o Setor de Gerenciamento de Riscos da Filial dentro de 72 horas após o incidente. Sempre que possível, envie os Relatórios de Incidente de Risco usando a versão digital do formulário. Se o incidente for muito grave ou houver ameaça de processo, deve-se ligar imediatamente para o Departamento Jurídico e não preencher o Relatório de Incidente de Risco.

31. Quando o Salão do Reino sofre algum dano, é importante agir rapidamente para evitar que a situação piore. Em todos os casos de arrombamento, furto, incêndio criminoso ou qualquer ato de vandalismo, as autoridades locais devem ser notificadas sem demora. Se for necessário obter mais orientações, entrem em contato com o treinador de manutenção do LDC.

32. Entrem em contato com o treinador de manutenção do LDC quando precisarem de fundos para cuidar de danos causados a Salões do Reino por desastres naturais, incêndios, umidade, furto e vandalismo. Entrem em contato com o Setor de Gerenciamento de Riscos da Filial quando precisarem de fundos para cobrir outras despesas, como despesas por danos causados a pessoas devido a incidentes em Salões do Reino.

DIAS E HORÁRIOS DAS REUNIÕES

33. A não ser que existam circunstâncias excepcionais, a Reunião Vida e Ministério deve ser realizada no meio de semana, e não deve ser feita junto com o discurso público e o estudo da Sentinela, que devem ser realizados no fim de semana. Se nas reuniões de fim de semana o número de pessoas na assistência estiver muito maior do que o número de assentos, os anciãos podem considerar a possibilidade de realizar duas reuniões nos fins de semana, se houver disponibilidade de horários para usar o Salão do Reino. Os publicadores podem ser designados para assistir às reuniões de acordo com seu grupo de serviço de campo. Sempre que for prático, o mesmo orador do discurso público pode ser usado nas duas reuniões, e outros anciãos qualificados podem ajudar a dirigir os estudos da Sentinela. Se o Salão do Reino for usado por apenas uma congregação, os anciãos devem analisar quais são os melhores horários para cada uma das reuniões, pensando na maioria dos publicadores. Daí, os anciãos devem considerar essas opções com a congregação. Se for necessário, as opções devem ser ajustadas e apresentadas novamente para a congregação. Em todos os casos, a decisão final deve ser tomada pela congregação, por maioria de votos dos publicadores batizados. Se o mesmo Salão do Reino for usado por mais de uma congregação, os corpos de anciãos devem considerar juntos suas preferências de dias e horários das reuniões, antes de apresentar as opções para suas congregações. (1 Cor. 10:24) Nesses casos, algumas congregações acham melhor fazer um rodízio anual dos dias e horários das reuniões. Se isso for feito, a mudança dos horários deve começar na primeira semana de janeiro. As congregações devem informar essas mudanças para o Departamento de Serviço por meio do jw.org ou, se isso não for possível, por meio do formulário Informações sobre Salão do Reino (S-5). Um letreiro com os horários atualizados das reuniões deve ser colocado na frente do Salão do Reino, de acordo com as leis locais. Quando os corpos de anciãos têm boa comunicação e cooperam uns com os outros, fica mais fácil entender as necessidades de cada congregação e encontrar uma solução que agrade a todas elas. Isso ajuda a evitar que os irmãos tenham a impressão de que uma das congregações é sempre favorecida. As congregações também devem estar dispostas a fazer ajustes nos horários das reuniões quando o superintendente de circuito visita uma delas.

QUADRO DE ANÚNCIOS

34. O coordenador do corpo de anciãos é responsável por aprovar todos os itens colocados no quadro de anúncios. O quadro deve ser usado apenas para dar informações sobre as atividades da congregação, e deve estar sempre bem organizado. Nenhum anúncio sobre casamentos ou reuniões sociais deve ser colocado no quadro de anúncios. Quando mais de uma congregação usa o mesmo Salão do Reino, cada congregação deve ter seu espaço no quadro de anúncios ou ter seu próprio quadro.

SISTEMA DE ATENDIMENTO TELEFÔNICO

35. Se possível, o Salão do Reino deve ter uma secretária eletrônica ou um sistema de correio de voz. A mensagem deve ser aprovada pelas comissões de serviço das congregações que usam o Salão do Reino, e deve incluir o endereço do salão, breves instruções sobre como chegar ao local (se isso for necessário), e os dias e horários das reuniões. Na época da Celebração, o dia, o local e o horário do(s) evento(s) também devem ser informados. As pessoas devem ser direcionadas para o jw.org caso precisem de mais informações. A mensagem deve ser gravada nos idiomas de todas as congregações e grupos que usam o Salão do Reino.

INTERNET

36. Pode ser que os corpos de anciãos que usam o Salão do Reino achem que seria útil para as congregações ter internet no salão. Nesses casos, se as congregações tiverem condições de cobrir esse custo, a contratação do serviço de internet deve ser aprovada por uma resolução. Ao contratar um serviço de internet, as seguintes orientações devem ser seguidas:

(1) O acesso à internet deve ser protegido por senha.

(2) Somente publicadores com boa reputação podem ter acesso.

(3) A senha não deve ser anunciada publicamente. Ela deve ser dada de forma individual aos publicadores aprovados.

(4) Se um publicador acessar sites inapropriados usando a internet do Salão do Reino, seu acesso deve ser cortado.

(5) Seria bom mudar a senha de tempos em tempos.

(6) Se houver um computador conectado à internet no Salão do Reino, é necessário adotar medidas de segurança, como as que estão na página 28 da Despertai! de agosto de 2009. Além disso, alguns navegadores de internet fornecem vários recursos de segurança, como bloqueadores automáticos de pop-ups, configurações de privacidade, possibilidade de especificar sites que devem ser bloqueados e validação de certificado de sites. A maioria dos provedores de internet também oferece algumas proteções avançadas que possibilitam, entre outras coisas, bloquear sites fraudulentos, prevenir o phishing (roubo de dados pessoais) e ativar opções de controle dos pais. Geralmente há uma taxa mensal para usar esses recursos de segurança, mas os benefícios normalmente compensam os custos.

EQUIPAMENTOS DE VÍDEO

37. Se os corpos de anciãos das congregações que usam o Salão do Reino recomendarem a instalação de equipamentos de vídeo, eles deverão primeiro entrar em contato com o treinador de manutenção do LDC para pedir aprovação e orientações.

38. Se um sistema de vídeo for instalado, as seguintes orientações devem ser levadas em conta:

(1) A instalação dos equipamentos deve ser feita de um modo que permita que os vídeos sejam apresentados sem se perder tempo. Por exemplo, é melhor

(mas não uma regra) que a tela seja posicionada em um dos lados do palco, não no centro. Se houver duas telas, elas poderão ser colocadas uma de cada lado do palco. Independentemente da posição delas, o orador não deve ter que sair de seu lugar durante a apresentação do vídeo.

(2) O texto do ano em formato digital deve aparecer nas telas antes do cântico inicial, depois da oração final e durante as reuniões, quando nenhum vídeo ou imagem estiver sendo apresentado. Por isso, talvez não seja mais necessário ter uma placa com o texto do ano. Mas, se a tela ficar no meio do palco, pode ser mais prático continuar usando a placa. Em todos os casos, o texto do ano deve sempre aparecer sozinho, sem nenhuma outra imagem, nem mesmo as de nossas publicações.

(3) Se o Salão do Reino tiver internet, é melhor (mas não uma regra) que a conexão com a internet seja via cabo, e que o computador e outros dispositivos do Salão do Reino também estejam conectados à internet via cabo. — Veja 20:22.

(4) O equipamento de vídeo deve ser instalado perto do equipamento de som. O operador deve começar a exibir o vídeo quando o irmão que estiver no palco avisar. Normalmente, o equipamento de vídeo não deve ser operado do palco.

BIBLIOTECA

39. Em cada Salão do Reino deve haver espaço para uma biblioteca, mesmo quando há mais de um salão no mesmo prédio. (od cap. 7 par. 19) Essa biblioteca deve ter publicações na língua de cada congregação ou grupo que usa o Salão do Reino.

Os corpos de anciãos devem decidir se as publicações da biblioteca estarão disponíveis tanto em formato impresso como eletrônico, ou em apenas um desses formatos. Muitos publicadores e pessoas interessadas talvez não tenham computador nem aparelhos eletrônicos. Por isso, os anciãos devem analisar bem a necessidade deles ao tomar qualquer decisão sobre a biblioteca, principalmente se estiverem pensando em descartar publicações impressas. Se as publicações forem disponibilizadas em formato eletrônico (em um computador, tablet, etc.), a biblioteca deverá ter também uma impressora. Pelo menos um irmão responsável deve ser designado para manter a biblioteca organizada e atualizada.

40. Se os corpos de anciãos decidirem descartar publicações impressas da biblioteca, eles devem ter cuidado para não descartar itens de interesse histórico. Betel talvez queira incluir esses itens em sua própria biblioteca ou no arquivo histórico.

PROGRAMAS MENSAIS DO JW BROADCASTING

41. Se o Salão do Reino em que a congregação se reúne tiver equipamento de vídeo, o corpo de anciãos pode definir um dia e horário para apresentar o programa mensal do JW Broadcasting todo mês para ajudar os publicadores que não têm acesso à internet. Se mais de uma congregação usar o Salão do Reino, talvez seja mais prático que os irmãos de todas as congregações assistam ao programa juntos num horário em que o Salão do Reino normalmente não é usado. Essas apresentações não precisam começar ou terminar com oração, já que elas não são consideradas reuniões congregacionais. Os desassociados e os dissociados podem estar presentes, desde que o programa seja apresentado no Salão do Reino. Todos devem se vestir como se fossem a uma reunião.

USO DE PROPRIEDADES DAS CONGREGAÇÕES

42. Em alguns países é permitido que as congregações possuam uma propriedade. Nesse caso, só propriedades necessárias para realizar as reuniões devem ser compradas. Mas Betel pode decidir abrir uma exceção no caso de residências modestas usadas para acomodar superintendentes de circuito, pioneiros especiais ou outros servos de tempo integral especial. (Veja o documento Instruções para as Contas do Circuito [S-331] para obter informações sobre residências do circuito.) Em caso de dúvidas sobre moradia, uso de uma propriedade da congregação por terceiros, doações de propriedades e outros assuntos relacionados, os anciãos devem entrar em contato com o LDC para obter orientações.

DEDICAÇÕES DE SALÕES DO REINO

43. Veja o documento Orientações sobre Dedicações de Salões do Reino (S-78).

Correspondências e arquivo da congregação

E-MAIL DO JW.ORG

1. É bom que os anciãos verifiquem sua conta de e-mail do jw.org pelo menos uma vez por semana para ver se algum novo e-mail chegou. Nenhum outro provedor de e-mails deve ser usado para enviar informações confidenciais. O uso do e-mail do jw.org está sujeito às regras encontradas na página "Termos de uso" do jw.org.

2. Quando os anciãos de uma congregação precisam enviar uma correspondência para o corpo de anciãos de outra congregação, geralmente é melhor enviar essa correspondência para o e-mail do jw.org da congregação, e não para o e-mail de um ancião específico. Quando a correspondência chegar, o coordenador do corpo de anciãos e o secretário devem trabalhar juntos para que o assunto da correspondência receba a atenção necessária. Eles também devem garantir que todos os anciãos tenham acesso às correspondências enviadas para o corpo de anciãos.

3. Sempre que possível, os anciãos devem usar o jw.org para enviar cartas e formulários para Betel, em vez de fazer isso pelo correio. As correspondências enviadas para Betel em nome do corpo de anciãos geralmente devem ser enviadas pelo secretário. Mas informações confidenciais, como o Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77), geralmente são enviadas para Betel por um dos anciãos que cuidaram do caso.

4. Não é necessário assinar cartas e formulários enviados pelo e-mail do jw.org (a não ser que os anciãos recebam instruções específicas para fazer isso). Mas os nomes dos irmãos que leram e aprovaram a correspondência devem aparecer. Os documentos enviados para Betel como anexos devem estar em um formato que seja usado pelas pessoas em geral, como Microsoft Word ou PDF. Para assuntos de rotina, como perguntas sobre pedidos de publicações, é melhor escrever a mensagem diretamente no campo de mensagem, em vez de anexar um documento separado.

CARTAS DE APRESENTAÇÃO

5. Quando um publicador (ativo ou inativo) se muda para outra congregação, a carta de apresentação e os Registros de Publicador de Congregação (S-21) dele devem ser enviados para a nova congregação sem demora. (Para obter orientações sobre transferência de registros de pessoas da congregação, veja o documento Instruções sobre Como Usar o JW.ORG [S-135].) A comissão de serviço pode tomar a iniciativa de enviar esses itens sem espe-rar que a nova congregação faça um pedido formal. Se um publicador costuma se mudar para uma segunda residência em certas épocas do ano, sigam as orientações do capítulo 8, parágrafo 14, de acordo com cada caso. Se uma pessoa acusada de abuso sexual de menores (não importa se a acusação foi comprovada ou não) se mudar para outra congregação (mesmo que temporariamente), veja o capítulo 14, parágrafo 26.

6. As cartas de apresentação devem sempre incluir as seguintes informações:

(1) Data da carta.

(2) Nome completo da congregação que está enviando a carta.

(3) Endereço de correspondência ou endereço de e-mail do jw.org da congregação que está enviando a carta.

(4) Nome completo da congregação que vai receber a carta.

(5) Endereço de correspondência ou endereço de e-mail do jw.org da congregação que está recebendo a carta.

(6) Nome dos três anciãos (geralmente os membros da comissão de serviço) que aprovaram a carta.

(8) Se o publicador foi repreendido por uma comissão judicativa nos últimos três anos ou readmitido nos últimos cinco anos, incluir data da ação tomada, motivo bíblico da ação e restrições judicativas sob as quais o publicador está atualmente. Se ele servir agora como servo ministerial, não é necessário mencionar que ele passou por uma comissão judicativa.

(9) Se o publicador estiver atualmente divorciado, incluir observação deixando claro se ele está ou não biblicamente livre para se casar novamente. — Veja 12:70-75.

(10) Se o publicador foi removido como ancião ou servo ministerial nos últimos cinco anos, incluir data da remoção e breve observação sobre o motivo da remoção. No entanto, se ele foi redesignado, não é necessário mencionar que ele foi removido no passado.

(11) Para saber o que mais deve ser incluído na carta, os anciãos devem se perguntar: 'Que informações gostaríamos de receber se essa pessoa estivesse se mudando para a nossa congregação?' — Mat. 7:12.

7. Se a carta de apresentação recebida incluir informações sobre repreensão ou readmissão, ou uma observação sobre se o publicador atualmente divorciado está ou não biblicamente livre para se casar novamente, uma cópia da carta deve ser mantida num envelope lacrado de modo confidencial no arquivo da congregação.

8. Se a carta de apresentação recebida incluir informações sobre a remoção de um irmão que servia como ancião ou servo ministerial e a remoção não foi por desassociação ou repreensão, uma cópia da carta deve ser colocada na categoria "Anciãos e servos ministeriais" do arquivo da congregação.

QUANDO UM DESASSOCIADO OU UM DISSOCIADO SE MUDA

9. Quando os anciãos ficam sabendo que um desassociado ou um dissociado se mudou, eles não devem enviar para outra congregação nenhuma correspondência sobre a pessoa. O arquivo confidencial da pessoa deve ficar com a congregação que desassociou a pessoa ou que aceitou seu pedido de dissociação. Se um desassociado ou dissociado que se muda estiver tomando os passos para ser readmitido e quiser que os anciãos da nova congregação sejam informados, dois anciãos de cada congregação devem se comunicar verbalmente. Isso vai ajudar os anciãos da nova congregação a continuarem dando ajuda espiritual para a pessoa. — Para obter orientações sobre o que fazer quando um desassociado ou dissociado acusado de abuso sexual de menores se muda e está assistindo às reuniões, veja o capítulo 14, parágrafo 26; para obter orientações sobre a comunicação entre as comissões quando alguém pede readmissão, veja o capítulo 19, parágrafos 13 a 16.

ARQUIVO DA CONGREGAÇÃO

10. Sigilo e segurança: O arquivo da congregação deve ser mantido trancado num local seguro, por exemplo, no Salão do Reino. Se por algum motivo não for seguro manter os registros no Salão do Reino, eles podem ser guardados num armário trancado na casa de um ancião, para impedir que pessoas não autorizadas tenham acesso a eles. Cada ancião que desejar deve receber uma chave do arquivo. Se houver um servo ministerial servindo como substituto na comissão de serviço da congregação, ele não deve ter acesso a arquivos confidenciais, como correspondências relacionadas à designação e remoção de anciãos e servos ministeriais e a assuntos judicativos. (Veja 2:2.) A comissão de serviço deve planejar o que será feito para proteger os registros da congregação, incluindo os arquivos confidenciais, quando houver a possibilidade de um desastre. — Veja 26:4.

11. Categorias: Os itens que precisam ser mantidos no arquivo da congregação devem ser organizados conforme as categorias a seguir. (Outras categorias podem ser criadas, se necessário.)

    - Anciãos e servos ministeriais
    - Arquivos confidenciais (envelopes lacrados)
    - Cartas de apresentação
    - Contas
    - Relatório da visita do superintendente de circuito
    - Salão do Reino
    - Território

12. Registros de serviço de campo: Os Registros de Publicador de Congregação (S-21) pertencem à congregação. Cada filial vai decidir o formato em que esses cartões devem ser armazenados (eletrônico ou impresso) e informar isso aos corpos de anciãos. Se os registros forem armazenados eletronicamente, o corpo de anciãos pode decidir se é melhor usar o formulário fornecido por Betel ou outro método que permita visualizar as mesmas informações no mesmo formato. O arquivo deve ser dividido em duas seções: "ativos" e "inativos". A seção dos publicadores ativos deve ser dividida em mais duas seções: (1) pioneiros regulares, pioneiros especiais e missionários em campo, e (2) outros publicadores. A seção "para outros publicadores" deve estar dividida por grupo de serviço de campo, e os cartões das duas seções devem ser organizados em ordem alfabética. Além disso, três Registros de Publicador de Congregação devem ser preenchidos com os totais das atividades mensais de todos os (1) pioneiros regulares, pioneiros especiais e missionários em campo, (2) pioneiros auxiliares e (3) publicadores.

13. O relatório da congregação deve ser enviado para Betel no máximo até o dia 20 do mês. Se um publicador entregar seu relatório, e o relatório da congregação já tiver sido enviado, suas atividades devem ser incluídas no relatório da congregação do mês seguinte. Ao informar o total de publicadores do mês no campo "Total que relatou", cada relatório atrasado deve ser contado como um publicador a mais. Sempre que um publicador entrega um relatório, as informações nele devem ser copiadas para o Registro de Publicador de Congregação daquele publicador. Isso deve ser feito de acordo com o mês informado no relatório, mesmo que ele tenha sido entregue atrasado ou que suas informações sejam incluídas no relatório da congregação de outro mês. Um publicador não deve ser considerado irregular quando ele atrasa seu relatório. Nenhuma informação sobre casos judicativos deve ser anotada nos Registros de Publicador de Congregação.

14. Quando um publicador que está muito limitado por causa de suas circunstâncias é autorizado pela comissão de serviço da congregação a relatar períodos de 15 minutos de atividades, o secretário deve registrar esses períodos e transferi-los para o mês seguinte, caso não totalizem uma hora. (od cap. 8 par. 29) Sempre que esses minutos somarem uma hora, o secretário deve incluir essa hora no total de horas do relatório da congregação. Os publicadores que tiverem dúvidas sobre como relatar suas atividades podem ser incentivados a ler o livro Organizados, capítulo 8, parágrafos 23 a 29.

15. Os relatórios dos pioneiros regulares devem ser cuidados da mesma maneira que os dos outros publicadores. Se um pioneiro receber crédito de horas, ele deve usar o campo "Observações" do Relatório de Serviço de Campo (S-4) para informar isso. Esse crédito de horas não deve ser incluído no relatório da congregação que é enviado para Betel. (Para obter orientações sobre crédito de horas para pioneiros, veja o capítulo 9, parágrafos 11 a 13.) Os pioneiros especiais, missionários e outros servos de tempo integral especial em campo relatam suas atividades diretamente para

16. Os Registros de Publicador de Congregação podem ficar com o secretário, mas outros anciãos podem ter acesso a eles sempre que precisarem. — Veja 7:2.6.

17. Registros de assistência às reuniões: O corpo de anciãos pode decidir se é melhor armazenar os cartões de Registro da Assistência às Reuniões Congregacionais (S-88) em formato eletrônico ou em formato impresso. Se os registros forem armazenados eletronicamente, o corpo de anciãos pode decidir se é melhor usar o formulário fornecido por Betel ou outro método que permita visualizar as mesmas informações no mesmo formato.

18. Registros confidenciais: Depois de cuidarem de um assunto, os anciãos devem eliminar todas as cópias pessoais de registros confidenciais e anotações pessoais de assuntos confidenciais, sejam impressas ou eletrônicas. Quando registros confidenciais forem arquivados, os anciãos que cuidaram do assunto devem colocar num envelope lacrado apenas os seguintes documentos:

(1) Registro de Desassociação, Dissociação ou Repreensão (S-77), se houver.

(2) Qualquer carta de apresentação que inclua informações sobre repreensão nos últimos três anos ou readmissão nos últimos cinco anos.

(3) Qualquer carta de Betel sobre um assunto que envolva abuso sexual de menores (não importa se a acusação foi comprovada ou não).

(4) Qualquer registro de uma decisão tomada pelo corpo de anciãos quanto a se o publicador está ou não biblicamente livre para se casar novamente.

(5) As cartas de pedidos de readmissão, se houver.

19. As seguintes informações devem ser escritas na frente do envelope lacrado:

(1) Nome da pessoa.

(2) Uma palavra ou frase que identifique a ação tomada, como, por exemplo, "desassociado", "dissociado", "repreendido", "readmitido", "está biblicamente livre para se casar novamente" ou "não está biblicamente livre para se casar novamente", e a data da ação.

(3) Qualquer restrição que tenha sido imposta e as datas em que as restrições foram removidas.

(4) Os nomes dos anciãos que cuidaram do assunto, se for o caso.

(5) A instrução "Não destrua" (se o caso envolver uma acusação de abuso sexual de menores, comprovada ou não).

20. O secretário deve colocar o envelope lacrado no arquivo da congregação. Se for preciso abrir algum envelope no futuro para cuidar de um assunto, como, por exemplo, um pedido de readmissão, isso deve ser feito apenas pelos anciãos que forem designados pelo corpo de anciãos para cuidar do assunto. Quando o secretário fizer a verificação anual do arquivo da congregação, ele pode abrir algum envelope.

21. Verificação do arquivo: Todo mês de janeiro, o secretário deve verificar o arquivo da congregação, esteja ele em formato impresso ou eletrônico. Se precisar de ajuda nessa verificação, ele deve consultar outros anciãos. Se chegar o período de eliminação de um registro, ele deve ser destruído (picotado, se possível) ou excluído. — Veja o Adendo do Pastoreiem.

USO DE SERVIÇOS DE ARMAZENAMENTO ON-LINE

22. Nenhum documento com informações delicadas ou confidenciais, como registros de casos judicativos, pode ser armazenado on-line. Os serviços de armazenamento on-line só podem ser usados para armazenar documentos que não contêm informações confidenciais, como os que são colocados no quadro de anúncios. — Veja 21:34.

PETIÇÕES

23. Os recursos "Meu perfil" e "Minhas petições" são os meios principais que os publicadores batizados e exemplares têm para enviar petições para servir como pioneiros regulares, participar em projetos de construção da organização, participar em ajuda humanitária, servir em Betel e cursar a Escola para Evangelizadores do Reino. Quando um publicador deseja enviar uma petição on-line, mas ainda não tem acesso aos recursos "Meu perfil" e "Minhas petições", ele deve procurar o secretário da congregação. O secretário deve consultar os outros irmãos que fazem parte da comissão de serviço da congregação para decidir se a pessoa é exemplar ou não. — Veja 2:4 e o documento Instruções sobre como Usar o JW.ORG (S-135).

24. Quando a comissão de serviço da congregação entender que o publicador é exemplar e ele quiser enviar uma petição impressa, a comissão de serviço deve fornecer a petição apropriada e todos os documentos que o publicador precisa considerar antes de enviar a petição. A comissão de serviço também deve providenciar que o publicador assista aos vídeos para quem deseja enviar petições para apoiar projetos de construção da organização, participar em ajuda humanitária ou servir em Betel.

25. Quando um publicador entrega uma petição, a comissão de serviço deve consultar o superintendente do grupo do publicador.

Depois disso, ela deve se reunir o quanto antes para avaliar as qualificações dele. A comissão também pode consultar outros anciãos da congregação sempre que achar necessário. (Pro. 15:22) Depois de decidir se o publicador está qualificado ou não, o corpo de anciãos deve ser informado sobre como o assunto foi cuidado. Isso deve ser feito antes de a petição ser enviada. (Para obter orientações sobre como lidar com petições para o serviço de pioneiro regular, veja o capítulo 9, parágrafos 1 a 3.) Se ficar decidido que o publicador não está qualificado, dois membros da comissão de serviço devem explicar bondosamente os motivos para ele. Eles também devem explicar para o publicador o que ele precisa fazer para se qualificar no futuro.

Serviço de campo

TERRITÓRIO DA CONGREGAÇÃO

1. O corpo de anciãos deve ter grande interesse no progresso do trabalho de pregação e de ensino no território da congregação. (Atos 10:42; od cap. 9). O superintendente de serviço vai conseguir cuidar bem de sua designação se ele tiver o apoio dos outros anciãos. — Veja o capítulo 5.

2. Betel designa o território de cada congregação por meio do formulário Designação de Território de Congregação (S-54). Qualquer pedido de ajuste no território da congregação deve ser feito por meio do formulário Pedido de Ajuste de Território (S-6). Para organizar o serviço de casa em casa, o território da congregação deve ser dividido em territórios menores. O tamanho deles deve ser decidido de acordo com as circunstâncias da congregação. Os limites desses territórios podem ser mostrados nos Cartões de Mapa de Território (S-12). Os publicadores devem obedecer às leis de proteção de dados ao participar em qualquer aspecto do ministério. — Rom. 13:1.

3. Geralmente é possível ver num mapa maior todo o território da congregação com as divisões dos territórios menores identificados claramente com números. Usando o Registro de Designação de Território (S-13), o servo de territórios pode ver qual território precisa ser coberto. A congregação deve se esforçar para cobrir todo o seu território em pelo menos um ano.

4. O superintendente de circuito pode dar boas sugestões para ajudar a congregação a dar um testemunho cabal para todas as pessoas de seu território. Mas, se a congregação estiver fazendo o possível para trabalhar em todo o território e, mesmo assim, houver partes dele que não são trabalhadas há pelo menos dois anos, o superintendente de circuito pode recomendar para Betel que algumas partes do território sejam designadas para congregações vizinhas ou sejam consideradas como territórios não designados.

TESTEMUNHO EM LOCAIS PÚBLICOS

5. Escolha de locais adequados: Depois de consultar os outros anciãos, a comissão de serviço vai tomar a decisão final sobre os locais que serão usados para dar testemunho público. Ao fazer isso, eles devem levar em conta as leis locais e escolher lugares com boa visibilidade e grande movimentação de pessoas. Isso inclui terminais de transporte, praças, parques, ruas movimentadas, shoppings, universidades, aeroportos e lugares usados para eventos anuais. Se os anciãos ficarem sabendo de um grande evento, como uma feira nacional ou internacional de livros, em que seria possível montar um mostruário de publicações, eles devem entrar em contato com o Departamento de Serviço para receber mais orientações.

6. Os locais escolhidos para o testemunho público devem estar dentro dos limites do território da congregação. Se no mesmo território houver congregações de idiomas diferentes, os superintendentes de serviço devem se comunicar para decidir como dar testemunho do melhor modo possível sem incomodar as pessoas que passam ou atrapalhar a entrada nos estabelecimentos comerciais.

7. Autorizações e cobertura de seguro: Em alguns locais públicos, talvez seja necessário receber autorização de um gerente ou de uma autoridade para colocar um mostruário de publicações. O superintendente de serviço ou outra pessoa designada pelo corpo de anciãos deve verificar se alguma autorização, licença ou seguro é exigido. Qualquer pedido de autorização para usar um carrinho, uma mesa ou um quiosque de publicações deve ser feito em nome de um publicador. Nenhum pedido de autorização deve ser feito no nome da congregação, das Testemunhas de Jeová ou de qualquer associação jurídica usada pela organização. Sempre que um publicador precisar preencher ou assinar documentos para receber autorização para distribuir publicações, ele deve lê-los com atenção para entender as responsabilidades que está assumindo. Os publicadores que pedem autorização para dar testemunho em locais públicos fazem isso por iniciativa própria como parte do seu ministério. Se for necessário pagar uma pequena taxa para usar um espaço num local público, ela deve ser paga pelo publicador, não pela congregação.

8. Alguns administradores e gerentes deixam de exigir seguro quando é explicado para eles que nossa obra educativa bíblica é voluntária e não é comercial. Se for necessário se reunir com o gerente de um local, isso deve ser feito de modo informal, como uma conversa entre vizinhos. O objetivo não deve ser discutir questões sobre direitos legais. Se a autorização for negada, ou se uma taxa muito alta for cobrada, a comissão de serviço deve procurar outros locais no território da congregação onde o testemunho público possa ter bons resultados.

9. Equipamentos para testemunho público: A comissão de serviço deve decidir o tipo de equipamento (incluindo cartazes) que será usado e onde ele será guardado. Apenas cartazes aprovados por Betel devem ser usados. Os cartazes podem ser mudados durante o mês para destacar assuntos diferentes.

10. Os pedidos de equipamentos para testemunho público podem ser feitos da mesma forma que são feitos os pedidos de publicações. O documento Equipamentos para Testemunho Público (S-80) tem fotos e descrições dos carrinhos, displays, cartazes magnéticos, mesas, quiosques e outros itens disponíveis. Os equipamentos pedidos serão considerados propriedade da congregação. Antes de pedir um equipamento, deve-se ter certeza de que ele será realmente bem usado por publicadores treinados e de que a congregação poderá cobrir os custos. A congregação pode ser informada de que esses custos serão cobertos pelos seus donativos para a obra mundial.

11. Quem pode participar: A comissão de serviço deve escolher publicadores batizados para participarem no testemunho público. Eles devem estar qualificados para o serviço, se comportar de maneira digna, se vestir de modo formal e modesto, estar bem arrumados, ter bom senso, estar dispostos a dar testemunho em diferentes locais públicos, ter e promover bons relacionamentos, e estar dispostos a cooperar com o corpo de anciãos. A comissão de serviço deve usar de bom senso para decidir se um jovem maduro que é menor de idade pode ser aprovado para participar do testemunho público. Uma criança (batizada ou não) pode acompanhar seu pai ou sua mãe no testemunho público, se ela for bem comportada.

12. Se for possível e prático, o superintendente de serviço ou alguém designado pelo corpo de anciãos deve fazer uma programação de testemunho para cada local escolhido, tanto para o meio de semana como para o fim de semana. É bom colocar o mostruário de publicações sempre no mesmo local, nos mesmos dias e horários. Essa regularidade vai fazer com que o mostruário seja facilmente percebido pelas pessoas que passam por ele.

14. Os publicadores devem receber treinamento para saber destacar pontos interessantes do jw.org. Eles devem divulgar o site sempre que possível. Pode ser que até os que não se sentem à vontade para falar conosco ou para aceitar nossas publicações queiram acessar nosso site. Os publicadores devem saber ajudar os interessados a encontrar matérias em seu idioma no jw.org. Isso inclui vídeos em língua de sinais para os surdos e gravações de áudio para os deficientes visuais.

15. Mostruário de publicações: O superintendente de serviço é quem decide quantas publicações serão colocadas no mostruário, levando em conta as circunstâncias locais e os assuntos que mais interessam às pessoas. As publicações devem ser distribuídas com bom senso, para que não haja desperdício. O mostruário deve estar sempre em boas condições, e as publicações devem ser organizadas de um jeito simples e que chame a atenção. Em muitos lugares, pode-se ter bons resultados colocando-se no mostruário apenas algumas publicações do nosso Kit de Ensino que sejam interessantes para a maioria das pessoas. A brochura Seja Feliz para Sempre! (não o livro) deve ser mostrada como ferramenta para iniciar estudos bíblicos. Os publicadores podem ter à disposição revistas e outras publicações nas línguas em que as pessoas mais pedem. Durante as campanhas para a Celebração e para o congresso, pode-se usar o cartaz Você Está Convidado e distribuir os convites. Se for necessário pedir mais publicações do que a quantidade permitida no jw.org, deve-se entrar em contato com o Departamento de Expedição. Os publicadores não devem deixar Bíblias expostas no mostruário, mas eles podem ter algumas Bíblias disponíveis para os que pedirem ou para os que realmente estiverem interessados na verdade. Também é bom ter algumas brochuras Volte para Jeová (não expostas) para oferecer aos inativos.

16. Uso de aparelhos eletrônicos: Se for prático, pode-se usar uma tela plana, conectada a um aparelho eletrônico portátil, na mesa ou no quiosque de publicações. Os publicadores podem usar essa tela para exibir cartazes aprovados para o testemunho público, para mostrar como usar o jw.org ou para passar um vídeo curto, como o vídeo Por Que Estudar a Bíblia?.

17. Testemunho público especial em regiões metropolitanas: Quando essa modalidade de testemunho for realizada em uma região, os superintendentes de circuito e as congregações daquela região vão receber informações adicionais para que todos possam trabalhar juntos de maneira organizada.

UNIVERSIDADES

18. Antes de colocar um mostruário de publicações numa universidade ou numa escola em que os alunos são adultos, geralmen-te é melhor falar com o diretor ou com o reitor. Quem for fazer essas visitas deve logo se identificar como Testemunha de Jeová. Escolas e instituições para surdos ou cegos podem ficar especialmente interessadas em saber que as Testemunhas de Jeová fornecem publicações em formatos que podem ajudar as pessoas com essas deficiências. O superintendente de serviço pode treinar publicadores qualificados que forem aprovados pela comissão de serviço para que eles visitem universidades e outras instituições de ensino.

ASILOS E CASAS DE REPOUSO

19. Alguns publicadores têm conseguido dar testemunho a idosos em asilos e casas de repouso. Para isso, eles entram em contato com o administrador ou com o responsável pelas atividades do local e se oferecem para passar tempo com os residentes lendo a Bíblia ou conversando sobre histórias da Bíblia. Pode-se explicar que a congregação tem voluntários que vão ficar felizes em ler matérias bíblicas, mostrar vídeos baseados na Bíblia ou dirigir um estudo bíblico gratuito toda semana para todos os que quiserem estar presentes. Muitas vezes, funcionários, voluntários, parentes dos pacientes e outros visitantes também participam do estudo. O superintendente de serviço pode treinar publicadores qualificados que forem aprovados pela comissão de serviço para fazerem essas visitas.

TESTEMUNHO EM PORTOS

20. O testemunho em portos é um tipo diferente de testemunho, que deve ser realizado de acordo com orientações específicas de Betel. Se uma congregação tem um grande porto em seu território e os anciãos ainda não receberam essas orientações, eles devem entrar em contato com o Departamento de Serviço e informar o nome, o local e o tamanho do porto.

TESTEMUNHO EM PRISÕES

21. Veja o capítulo 28.

PROBLEMAS AO DAR TESTEMUNHO

22. Todas as pessoas têm direito à privacidade e direito de proibir qualquer um, incluindo publicadores, de entrar em sua casa ou propriedade. Se um morador exigir que as Testemunhas de Jeová não visitem mais sua casa, isso deve ser respeitado. (Mat. 7:12; 10:13) Apenas a data em que o morador pediu para não ser mais visitado e o endereço dele devem ser anotados naquele território para que os publicadores que trabalharem nele no futuro não batam naquela casa. A comissão de serviço deve ter bom senso para decidir se devem designar anciãos para entrar em contato a cada dois ou três anos com esses moradores para ver se continuam com a mesma opinião.

23. Se o responsável por um condomínio ou conjunto de apartamentos exigir que as Testemunhas de Jeová não visitem mais o local, os publicadores devem sair imediatamente. Depois, os anciãos devem entrar em contato com o Departamento Jurídico. Se uma autoridade do governo tentar impor alguma restrição ao nosso trabalho, os anciãos também devem entrar em contato com o Departamento Jurídico. Nesses casos, os publicadores devem sempre agir com educação e respeito. — Rom. 12:18; 1 Ped. 3:15.

24. Se surgir oposição violenta, os anciãos devem entrar em contato com o Departamento Jurídico. Eles devem agir de acordo com os princípios da Bíblia e com as orientações de Betel. (Mat. 5:44; 10:11-23; Rom. 12:17-21) Pode ser que os publicadores precisem pregar de modo bem discreto. (Atos 5:29) Os anciãos devem ajudar os publicadores a não se envolverem em problemas desnecessários. — Pro. 14:15; 17:14.

CONSIDERAÇÃO PELOS IRMÃOS QUE TÊM OUTRAS DESIGNAÇÕES

25. Alguns irmãos e irmãs participam em projetos de construção da organização, ajudam nos serviços feitos antes e depois de assembleias e congressos, prestam ajuda humanitária, servem como membros de Comissões de Ligação com Hospitais, servem em Grupos de Visitas a Pacientes, ajudam em Salões de Assembleias e dirigem ou participam de reuniões realizadas em prisões. Outros servem como voluntários temporários em Betel, commuters de Betel, voluntários à distância, colaboradores de Betel e como representantes em campo e treinadores de manutenção do Departamento Local de Projeto/Construção (LDC, sigla em inglês). Cumprir essas e outras designações aprovadas da organização pode afetar a participação desses irmãos no serviço de campo e em outras atividades da congregação. Mesmo que esses irmãos não sejam pioneiros regulares e não recebam crédito de horas, seria bom que, no campo "Observações", do Relatório de Serviço de Campo (S-4), eles informassem as atividades em que participaram durante o mês. Ao preencher o Registro de Publicador de Congregação (S-21), o secretário deve colocar essas informações na coluna "Observações". Na coluna "Horas", ele deve colocar apenas as horas que esses irmãos gastaram no serviço de campo. As horas gastas em designações aprovadas não devem ser incluídas no relatório de serviço de campo da congregação enviado para Betel. — Para obter informações sobre como registrar o crédito de horas dos pioneiros regulares que participam de outras atividades da organização, veja o capítulo 9, parágrafos 11 a 13.

26. Os anciãos podem mostrar que dão valor ao trabalho extra que esses irmãos fazem em outras designações da organização por substituí-los quando eles precisam se ausentar e por não criticar as atividades deles no serviço de campo. Os anciãos devem mostrar essa mesma consideração ao avaliar se eles podem ser recomendados para servir como anciãos ou servos ministeriais.

1. Nosso objetivo é pregar a mensagem do Reino para o maior número de pessoas possível e fazer discípulos. (1 Tim. 2:3, 4)

Assim, é bom que os corpos de anciãos entendam estas orientações e cooperem com tudo o que é feito para ajudar os que falam outro idioma. — od cap. 9 pars. 35-44.

2. Se houver apenas algumas pessoas interessadas que dependem de outro idioma e ninguém na congregação fala o idioma delas, as pessoas interessadas podem ser ajudadas talvez por meio de telefone ou videoconferência por um publicador de qualquer parte do território da filial que fale o idioma dela. Além disso, as pessoas interessadas e os publicadores que não entendem o idioma da congregação talvez possam usar as gravações do JW Stream em outro idioma para assistir às reuniões, assembleias e congressos, mas eles devem continuar se associando com a congregação local. (od cap. 9 par. 41) Se for possível que essas pessoas se conectem com outra congregação, entre em contato com o superintendente de circuito para saber como isso pode ser feito.

FORMAÇÃO DE PRÉ-GRUPOS, GRUPOS E CONGREGAÇÕES

3. Pré-grupos: O objetivo de um pré-grupo é determinar se as pessoas de uma comunidade que fala certo idioma têm interesse em aprender a verdade e se o possível pré-grupo tem potencial de se tornar grupo e, talvez com o tempo, congregação. Na maioria dos casos, a decisão pode ser tomada dentro de dois anos. (Veja o apêndice B.) O superintendente de circuito vai se certificar de que tudo esteja de acordo com os requisitos a seguir antes de recomendar a formação de um pré-grupo ao Departamento de Serviço:

(1) Uma quantidade significativa de pessoas — talvez pelo menos alguns milhares de pessoas — depende do idioma e mora próxima ao Salão do Reino. Essas pessoas entendem muito pouco ou quase nada do idioma falado numa congregação já formada na região. O tamanho e a localização da comunidade que fala o idioma não exigem que se façam longas viagens para assistir às reuniões ou que se gastem muitas horas no trabalho de busca.

(2) Pelo menos alguns publicadores locais exemplares falam fluentemente o idioma, pregam nesse idioma e desejam apoiar o pré-grupo. No entanto, ninguém deve ser pressionado a apoiar certo idioma, mesmo que seja seu idioma nativo. — 1 Cor. 11:3; Gál. 6:4, 5; w17.05 p. 10 pars. 10-13.

(3) O corpo de anciãos está disposto a assumir a responsabilidade de organizar e avaliar a pregação no idioma.

(4) Algumas publicações do Kit de Ferramentas de Ensino estão disponíveis para ser usadas no ministério.

4. Grupos: O objetivo de um grupo é fornecer alimento espiritual para os publicadores que dependem do idioma ou para os que moram no território que dependem do idioma, estão assistindo às reuniões e estão progredindo para o batismo. Um grupo também é usado para realizar a obra de pregação e fazer discípulos na comunidade que fala o idioma. (Veja o apêndice B.) Além dos requisitos para um pré-grupo, os requisitos a seguir devem ser analisados antes de o superintendente de circuito recomendar a formação de um grupo ao Departamento de Serviço:

(1) Há (1) publicadores que dependem do idioma para se alimentar em sentido espiritual ou (2) estudantes da Bíblia no território que dependem do idioma e preferem o idioma que estão assistindo às reuniões e progredindo para o batismo, e há publicadores que falam fluentemente o idioma que desejam apoiar o grupo.

(2) Há pelo menos um ancião qualificado que fala fluentemente o idioma, que está disposto e que pode exercer a liderança em organizar o grupo, ensinar nas reuniões e avaliar a pregação no idioma. — Veja 24:10-11.

(3) Pelo menos uma reunião semanal — ou parte de uma reunião semanal, como o discurso público ou o estudo da Sentinela — deve ser realizada no idioma. Essas reuniões são para o benefício dos publicadores e das pessoas interessadas que dependem do idioma, não para os que estão aprendendo o idioma. De preferência, as reuniões devem ser realizadas localmente, por isso, os grupos não devem assistir somente às gravações do JW Stream.

(4) As publicações que são usadas nas reuniões semanais, ou na seção de uma reunião semanal, estão disponíveis no idioma do grupo ou em outro idioma que a maioria dos estudantes e publicadores entenda bem.

5. O grupo não deve funcionar de modo independente da congregação. Em vez disso, ele vai estar sob a supervisão do corpo de anciãos. Ao dar orientações, os anciãos devem ser equilibrados e razoáveis, evitando ir a extremos. Eles também devem tomar a iniciativa em cuidar das necessidades do grupo, o que inclui treinar os publicadores para assumirem outras responsabilidades na organização.

6. Congregações: Visto que uma congregação exige mais recursos (tempo, energia, pessoas e donativos) do que um grupo, é necessário fazer uma análise ainda mais criteriosa antes de aprovar uma nova congregação. — Veja o apêndice B e o documento Instruções para Recomendar a Formação de Novas Congregações (S-50).

TERRITÓRIO

7. As orientações no capítulo 9 do livro Organizados sobre como cobrir o território devem ser seguidas. Os anciãos devem dar atenção a como os publicadores estão cobrindo o território, para que eles possam usar suas energias e recursos da melhor maneira. Os publicadores devem se concentrar nas áreas em que há uma quantidade maior de pessoas que falam o idioma do pré-grupo, do grupo ou da congregação. (1 Cor. 9:26) A forma como o território é coberto deve estar de acordo com as leis de proteção de dados.

8. Os pré-grupos e os grupos podem pregar fora do território da congregação anfitriã. Se isso for feito, o superintendente de serviço da congregação anfitriã deve entrar em contato com os superintendentes de serviço das congregações vizinhas que têm um grande número de pessoas que falam o idioma em seu território. Os anciãos devem decidir com quantas congregações ele vai entrar em contato. Para manter a paz e garantir que o território seja trabalhado de forma organizada, é importante que os corpos de anciãos e os superintendentes de circuito envolvidos tenham boa comunicação.

REUNIÕES

9. Pré-grupos: Os pré-grupos não realizam as reuniões semanalmente. Mas um pré-grupo pode realizar algumas reuniões de vez em quando para ver se as pessoas que dependem do idioma estão interessadas em assistir às reuniões. É preciso ter discernimento nesse caso, já que muitas pessoas que querem aprender o idioma podem assistir a essas reuniões. O foco é saber quantas pessoas interessadas que dependem do idioma assistem às reuniões, e não a quantidade de pessoas que querem aprender o idioma. Se apenas alguns poucos assistem a essas reuniões e nenhum publicador depende do idioma, não seria necessário formar um grupo.

10. Grupos: Além da reunião (ou parte de uma reunião) que o grupo tem toda semana, o corpo de anciãos da congregação anfitriã pode decidir se outras partes das reuniões serão incluídas na programação do grupo e com que frequência isso vai acontecer durante o mês. Por exemplo, o grupo pode realizar a Reunião Vida e Ministério toda semana e programar um discurso público uma ou duas vezes por mês.

11. O grupo deve seguir a programação da reunião que está na Apostila da Reunião Vida e Ministério do idioma do grupo. Se a Apostila não estiver disponível no idioma do grupo, os anciãos podem pedir que o Departamento de Serviço envie uma programação para o estudo bíblico de congregação. (Veja 24:4.4.) O grupo pode fazer todas as partes da Reunião Vida e Ministério em seu idioma, mas, quando o corpo de anciãos escolhe um assunto específico para a parte de necessidades locais, o grupo deve acompanhar essa parte junto com a congregação.

12. Local: É melhor que as reuniões dos grupos sejam feitas numa sala adicional, ao mesmo tempo em que a congregação anfitriã realiza sua reunião. Assim, os que assistem às reuniões do grupo vão poder aproveitar a associação com os irmãos da congregação anfitriã. Mas, se os anciãos acharem que isso não é possível por causa de alguma circunstância fora do comum, as reuniões do grupo podem ser realizadas em outro horário, de preferência no Salão do Reino. Nesse caso, todos os corpos de anciãos que usam o Salão do Reino devem aprovar que isso seja feito. (Veja 21:33.) Os publicadores do grupo podem decidir se também vão assistir à reunião com a congregação anfitriã. Um ou dois anciãos da congregação anfitriã podem ser designados para de vez em quando ficar junto com o grupo no final da reunião para se associar com os publicadores e fazer pastoreio. — Para obter mais orientações sobre o papel do corpo de anciãos nas atividades do grupo, veja o capítulo 24, parágrafos 5 e 22 a 25.

13. Gravações e transmissões: Os pré-grupos podem realizar suas reuniões usando as gravações de reuniões inteiras ou seções delas no JW Stream. É melhor que os grupos e as congregações realizem suas próprias reuniões localmente, em vez de usarem gravações ou transmissões. Mas os grupos e as congregações pequenas ou isoladas podem pedir ao superintendente de circuito autorização para usar as gravações de reuniões inteiras ou seções delas no JW Stream. (Na maioria das vezes, as reuniões disponíveis no JW Stream são gravadas na segunda-feira à noite e no sábado de manhã. Os grupos e as congregações pequenas ou isoladas que quiserem usar as gravações devem levar isso em conta e realizar suas reuniões em dias e horários em que seja possível assistir às gravações da semana.) O superintendente de circuito vai decidir quais pré-grupos, grupos e congregações pequenas ou isoladas de seu circuito vão assistir às gravações, e até que ponto podem fazer isso. (Veja 24:9-11.) Algumas congregações podem pedir aprovação para usar de vez em quando a gravação do discurso público. Mesmo quando uma congregação pequena ou isolada recebe aprovação para assistir periodicamente à gravação das reuniões, ela deve se esforçar para realizar todas as suas reuniões localmente o mais rápido possível. Em todos os casos, as orações devem ser feitas localmente.

14. Se as gravações das reuniões não estiverem disponíveis no JW Stream, os pré-grupos, os grupos e as congregações pequenas ou isoladas poderão pedir ao superintendente de circuito autorização para assistir à transmissão das reuniões (ou de partes delas) de uma congregação que fale o mesmo idioma. (Veja 24:9-11.) O superintendente de circuito vai decidir quais grupos e congregações pequenas ou isoladas do seu circuito poderão receber a transmissão das reuniões, e até que ponto farão isso. As congregações que transmitem as reuniões, com exceção de congregações ou grupos em língua de sinais, devem transmitir apenas o que acontece no palco. Imagens da assistência ou de outras partes do local da reunião não devem ser transmitidas. O corpo de anciãos da congregação anfitriã deve ter boa comunicação com os irmãos do grupo e com o corpo de anciãos da congregação que transmite as reuniões.

15. Tradução simultânea: Na maioria dos casos, não é recomendável fazer tradução simultânea das reuniões, a não ser para a língua de sinais. (Para obter orientações sobre interpretação em língua de sinais, veja o capítulo 20, parágrafos 29 a 36.) Para tirar mais proveito das reuniões, algumas pessoas que não são fluentes no idioma da congregação acham melhor preparar bem as reuniões no seu idioma materno antes de assistir a elas. Nas reuniões, alguns podem precisar de ajuda para encontrar certos textos na Bíblia. Os publicadores que sabem o idioma dos que não são fluentes no idioma da congregação também podem compartilhar com eles alguns pontos importantes das reuniões em outra ocasião apropriada. (Veja 24:2.) Nos casos em que o corpo de anciãos decide que há motivos válidos para se fazer tradução simultânea, é muito importante que eles tenham bom senso. Por exemplo, se não houver muitas pessoas habilitadas para fazer a tradução das partes, talvez não seja possível traduzir todas elas. Os anciãos devem escolher as partes que serão traduzidas e designar os intérpretes com bastante antecedência. A tradução deve ser feita numa sala adicional para não distrair outros na assistência. Os intérpretes escolhidos devem ser publicadores batizados exemplares.

16. Registro da assistência: A assistência das reuniões do grupo deve ser somada à assistência da congregação anfitriã no Registro da Assistência às Reuniões Congregacionais (S-88). Mas também se deve fazer um registro separado da assistência para que os anciãos e o superintendente de circuito possam acompanhar o progresso do grupo. Se um grupo assistir à reunião por meio de transmissão, a assistência do grupo não deve ser somada à assistência da congregação que transmite a reunião.

17. Cânticos: Nos raros casos em que o cântico usado no auditório principal não está disponível no idioma do grupo, talvez seja possível desligar o som que vem do auditório principal e escolher outro cântico para ser cantado, desde que isso não atrapalhe os irmãos que estão cantando no auditório principal.

18. Celebração: Se houver um orador qualificado disponível, o corpo de anciãos da congregação anfitriã pode providenciar que ele faça o discurso da Celebração no idioma do pré-grupo ou grupo. — Para obter orientações sobre o uso das gravações do discurso da Celebração quando não há um orador qualificado disponível, veja o capítulo 20, parágrafo 10.

19. Visita do superintendente de circuito: Os grupos podem continuar realizando suas reuniões normalmente durante a visita do superintendente de circuito à congregação anfitriã. Mas, durante o discurso público e os discursos de serviço, o grupo deve se juntar à congregação. Pode-se avaliar também a possibilidade de se fazer a tradução simultânea desses discursos para o grupo.

AULAS DE ALFABETIZAÇÃO

20. Queremos que nossos irmãos e irmãs progridam e se tornem maduros em sentido espiritual. (Heb. 5:14) E algo que vai ajudá-los muito nisso é eles conseguirem ler e estudar a Palavra de Deus e as publicações. (Sal. 1:2; 1 Tim. 4:13-15) De muitas maneiras, nossa adoração a Jeová envolve saber ler. Por isso, os anciãos podem decidir organizar aulas de alfabetização para ajudar publicadores e estudantes progressivos que dependem do idioma. (be p. 285) Se eles já foram alfabetizados num idioma do país ou da região, talvez não seja necessário formar aulas de alfabetização. Os pré-grupos não realizam aulas de alfabetização.

CURSOS DE IDIOMAS

21. Se o corpo de anciãos acredita que cursos de idiomas ajudariam publicadores qualificados a pregar as boas novas no idioma da congregação ou do grupo, os anciãos devem contatar o superintendente de circuito para obter orientações. Os pré-grupos não realizam cursos de idiomas.

AJUDA AOS PUBLICADORES

22. Os publicadores que têm o alvo de aprender um novo idioma e procuram a ajuda dos anciãos devem ser incentivados a orar e avaliar esse alvo de modo realista. (Pro. 2:6; 20:18) Por exemplo, já que se exigem anos de trabalho duro para alguém falar bem um novo idioma, os publicadores precisam ter certeza de que há real necessidade de mais irmãos para apoiar um idioma específico. Os chefes de família devem ser realistas ao avaliar as necessidades de seus filhos e colocar a espiritualidade deles à frente de preferências pessoais. (1 Cor. 10:24; w17.05 pp. 8-12; w16.10 pp. 13-17) Antes de iniciar um projeto como esse, muitos publicadores acharam útil conversar com pioneiros experientes, anciãos e o superintendente de circuito. (Pro. 1:5) Dessa forma, o publicador deixa que o espírito santo de Jeová o oriente a servir onde ele será mais útil na obra de fazer discípulos. — Luc. 14:28; Efé. 5:17.

23. Se um publicador decidir aprender um novo idioma, os anciãos devem dar a ele o documento Sugestões para Publicadores Que Estão Aprendendo um Novo Idioma (S-394). Ele também deve ser incentivado a começar a participar nas reuniões o quanto antes, o que inclui fazer partes de estudante na Reunião Vida e Ministério. Também seria bom que ele trabalhasse no ministério com outros publicadores qualificados que falam bem o idioma.

24. Os anciãos devem ficar atentos principalmente às necessidades espirituais do publicador que está aprendendo um novo idioma. Um publicador pode precisar de ajuda individual se estiver tendo dificuldades com o novo idioma e isso estiver impedindo seu progresso espiritual. Ele está começando a entender os programas espirituais realizados no idioma? Ele tenta fazer comentários breves nas reuniões? Ele consegue fazer apresentações simples, mas ao mesmo tempo claras, no ministério? Acima de tudo, ele está conseguindo fortalecer sua espiritualidade e contribuindo para a paz na congregação? (Veja 25:7-8.) De acordo com o documento Sugestões para Publicadores Que Estão Aprendendo um Novo Idioma, um publicador que está aprendendo um idioma precisa ser realista e ter consciência de sua necessidade espiritual. (Mat. 5:3) Até que um publicador fale bem o novo idioma, ele talvez ache necessário continuar assistindo aos programas espirituais em seu idioma materno. Depois de uma autoavaliação sincera, o publicador talvez decida de forma modesta que ele seria mais útil numa congregação de seu idioma materno ou no território de um idioma falado por muitas pessoas. — Sal. 139:1; Miq. 6:8.

25. O corpo de anciãos deve ser razoável e não exigir muito dos publicadores que estão aprendendo um idioma. Por exemplo, seria amoroso não designar para irmãos do grupo muitas partes na reunião do meio de semana da congregação anfitriã. Para que todos os anciãos e servos ministeriais consigam cuidar de suas responsabilidades na congregação, eles precisam trabalhar juntos e mostrar consideração e compreensão uns pelos outros. — Gál. 6:2, 5.

ASSEMBLEIAS E CONGRESSOS

26. Os publicadores de um pré-grupo ou grupo que puderem assistir às assembleias e congressos no idioma do pré-grupo ou grupo podem fazer isso, mesmo que esses eventos aconteçam no mesmo fim de semana em que a congregação anfitriã terá sua assembleia ou congresso. Quando a assembleia ou congresso da congregação anfitriã acontecer em outro fim de semana, alguns publicadores talvez decidam assistir ao evento nos dois idiomas, mas eles não devem ser obrigados a fazer isso. Qualquer dúvida relacionada a fazer tradução simultânea, assistir à transmissão ou usar gravações de assembleias e congressos em outros idiomas deve ser enviada para o superintendente de circuito. Se ele aprovar que os pré-grupos ou grupos assistam às gravações desses eventos em outro idioma, é melhor que eles façam isso no mesmo local e horário do evento da congregação anfitriã, talvez numa sala adicional. Se isso não for possível, o pré-grupo ou grupo deve assistir ao evento junto com a congregação anfitriã e depois assistir à transmissão ou à gravação em outro local.

LETREIROS, TEXTO DO ANO E CONVITES

27. Pode-se providenciar que o letreiro "Salão do Reino das Testemunhas de Jeová" no idioma do grupo seja colocado no Salão do Reino se o grupo estiver bem estabelecido e ficar claro que ele vai continuar realizando pelo menos uma reunião (ou parte de uma reunião) toda semana no Salão do Reino. Se possível, a placa com os dias e horários das reuniões também deve incluir a programação das reuniões do grupo. Pode-se avaliar também a possibilidade de se colocar no salão o texto do ano no idioma do grupo. (Veja 21:38.2.) Independentemente do número de reuniões que o grupo esteja realizando semanalmente, pode-se pedir para Betel convites para as reuniões no idioma do grupo. O grupo não deve preparar cartazes ou convites para suas reuniões por conta própria.

Pastoreio

Parágrafos

1. Imitando a Jeová e a Jesus Cristo, os anciãos 'pastoreiam o rebanho de Deus', que está aos seus cuidados. (1 Ped. 5:2, 3) Fazer isso envolve proteger os irmãos da congregação para que nenhum deles se perca por falta de cuidado ou por causa da influência de Satanás, do mundo ou de apóstatas. (Atos 20:29, 30) Envolve também demonstrar amor e interesse por outros, se preocupando com suas necessidades espirituais, emocionais e físicas. (Tia. 1:27; 2:15, 16) O objetivo do pastoreio é transmitir algum dom espiritual para fortalecer a fé da pessoa, e dar elogios e encorajamento. (Rom. 1:11, 12) Para isso, os anciãos precisam sempre estar em contato com cada família da congregação. (Pro. 27:23) Os superintendentes de grupo devem programar visitas de pastoreio regulares para todos os publicadores do grupo, mas o corpo de anciãos não precisa manter um registro das visitas de pastoreio. Também não é necessário que o corpo de anciãos designe um ancião para programar as visitas de pastoreio. Todos os anciãos, incluindo os que não são superintendentes de grupo, têm a responsabilidade de pastorear a congregação. — Efé. 4:15, 16.

2. Os anciãos pastoreiam o rebanho de Deus de várias maneiras. Eles fazem isso por meio de discursos bem preparados e por ter conversas positivas e encorajadoras com os irmãos enquanto trabalham juntos na pregação e antes e depois das reuniões. Outra maneira de pastorear os irmãos é por fazer boas visitas de pastoreio. Essas visitas podem ser feitas nas casas dos irmãos, no Salão do Reino ou em outros locais apropriados. Os anciãos também podem pastorear alguém por telefone ou carta. — João 21:15-17.

VISITAS DE PASTOREIO

3. Os anciãos e os servos ministeriais qualificados que acompanham os anciãos em visitas de pastoreio devem levar em conta os seguintes pontos:

(1) Preparação: Ao considerar as necessidades e circunstâncias da pessoa ou da família que será visitada, ore pedindo a orientação de Jeová. Não se deve fazer um esboço do que será falado na visita, mas é bom pensar com antecedência em como usar a Bíblia para dar o encorajamento ou os conselhos que a pessoa ou a família mais precisam. Faça pesquisas nas publicações do escravo fiel e prudente. (Mat. 24:45; Heb. 12:12, 13) Durante a visita, seja flexível, já que a pessoa ou a família podem estar precisando de algo diferente do que você tinha pensado.

(2) Quem deve fazer a visita: Geralmente, é melhor que os anciãos façam as visitas de pastoreio acompanhados, ou por outro ancião ou por um servo ministerial qualificado. (Veja 25:12.) Se for provável que um assunto sério ou confidencial será tratado, a visita deve ser feita por dois anciãos. Caso contrário, um servo ministerial qualificado pode acompanhar o ancião, que vai tomar a liderança. — Veja 25:4-6.

(3) Como marcar a visita: Geralmente é melhor combinar o dia e o horário da visita com o publicador que será visitado. Se houver um problema sério para considerar, deve-se usar de bom senso para decidir se ele será informado disso antes da visita.

(4) Seja encorajador: Mantenha um ambiente descontraído e positivo. Mostre verdadeiro interesse e esteja disposto a escutar. — Tia. 1:19; 5:11.

(5) Use a Bíblia: A Bíblia deve ser a principal fonte de orientação e encorajamento. Use bem a Bíblia para que os pensamentos de Jeová toquem o coração do publicador. — Isa. 30:21; Heb. 4:12.

(6) Duração da visita: Faça a visita dentro do tempo combinado. Se for necessário, outra visita pode ser programada. — Ecl. 3:1; Mat. 5:37.

(7) Oração: Ao orar, inclua o nome dos que estão sendo visitados e fale sobre os problemas ou desafios que talvez estejam enfrentando. — Fil. 4:6, 7; Col. 4:12.

(8) Respeite a privacidade e mantenha a confidencialidade: Não se intrometa em assuntos pessoais. (1 Tes. 4:11) Por serem amigos de confiança, conhecidos por manter a confidencialidade, os anciãos promovem um ambiente amoroso na congregação, como o de uma família. — Pro. 10:19; 20:19; 25:9.

COMO TREINAR SERVOS MINISTERIAIS

4. Timóteo aprendeu muito servindo junto com o apóstolo Paulo. (2 Tim. 2:1, 2) Os anciãos podem imitar o exemplo de Paulo e levar servos ministeriais qualificados nas visitas de pastoreio quando for apropriado. Isso vai dar a oportunidade para que esses servos ministeriais vejam de perto o ensino, a fé, a paciência e o amor que se esperam de um superintendente. — 1 Tim. 3:1.

5. Antes da visita, o ancião deve explicar para o servo ministerial a forma como ele pretende conduzi-la. Ele pode pedir para o servo ministerial preparar um ponto bíblico encorajador ou encontrar uma experiência edificante que possam ajudar a família ou a pessoa que está sendo visitada. O ancião também pode pedir para o servo ministerial fazer a oração final. Depois da visita de pastoreio, o ancião deve conversar com ele sobre a visita, fazer elogios e dar sugestões, se necessário.

6. Seguindo as orientações dos anciãos, um servo ministerial que serve como servo de grupo pode visitar os irmãos do grupo junto com outro servo ministerial para dar encorajamento espiritual. (Veja 7:1.) Sempre que fizer isso, o servo de grupo deve informar aos anciãos como foi a visita. Se numa dessas visitas surgir um assunto sério ou confidencial, o servo de grupo deve explicar de modo bondoso para o publicador que é melhor que o assunto seja tratado com os anciãos.

COMO IDENTIFICAR OS QUE ESTÃO FRACOS ESPIRITUALMENTE

7. Alguns sinais de fraqueza espiritual são: perder o entusiasmo pela verdade, deixar de ler a Bíblia todos os dias, deixar de fazer estudo pessoal, perder reuniões, passar o mês inteiro sem pregar, dar importância demais para diversão ou bens materiais e criticar os anciãos e a organização.

8. Quando um publicador demonstra sinais de fraqueza espiritual, os anciãos devem usar a Bíblia para lembrar a ele a importância de orar pedindo o espírito santo, ler a Bíblia todos os dias, estudar as publicações, meditar em assuntos bíblicos, assistir regularmente às reuniões, assembleias e congressos, participar regularmente no trabalho de pregação e aceitar a ajuda espiritual dos que tomam a liderança. — Sal. 1:1, 2; 77:12; Luc. 11:13; Atos 20:20, 21; Heb. 10:23-25; 13:17.

COMO DAR BONS CONSELHOS

9. Assim que percebem que uma pessoa está começando a desenvolver uma tendência ruim, os anciãos devem dar conselhos bíblicos. Demorar para fazer isso pode tornar mais difícil ajudar a pessoa. (Pro. 27:5, 6) Pense bem no que você vai dizer e em como vai dizer. Assim, seus conselhos vão ter melhores resultados. (Gál. 6:1) Os pontos a seguir podem ser de ajuda:

(1) Escute a pessoa pelo tempo que for necessário e obtenha todos os fatos. — Pro. 18:13; Tia. 1:19.

(3) Os anciãos devem basear o que dizem na Bíblia e nas publicações, não em suas próprias opiniões.

(4) Antes de aconselhar alguém sobre um assunto delicado, como o modo de se vestir e de se arrumar ou a escolha de diversão, é sábio pedir a opinião de outro ancião. — Ecl. 7:16.

COMO AJUDAR OS QUE ESTÃO COM PROBLEMAS NO CASAMENTO

10. Se um casal estiver passando por problemas no casamento e um deles ou os dois pedirem ajuda, os anciãos devem dar conselhos amorosos baseados na Bíblia e nas publicações. Se tanto o marido como a esposa forem cristãos, geralmente é melhor que os dois estejam presentes. Mas, se apenas um deles estiver presente, os anciãos devem ajudá-lo a ver o que ele pode fazer individualmente para melhorar a situação. Já que os anciãos não têm condições de saber tudo o que acontece num casamento, eles não devem tomar partido. — Pro. 18:13.

11. Se um cristão estiver pensando em se separar, os anciãos devem mostrar para ele o que a Bíblia e as publicações dizem sobre o assunto. (1 Cor. 7:10, 11; lvs pp. 250-251) Se um cristão estiver pensando em se divorciar, os anciãos devem explicar para ele que o divórcio legal, por si só, não deixa alguém livre para se casar novamente. (Mat. 19:9) Os anciãos não devem incentivar nem proibir alguém de se separar ou de se divorciar. Essas decisões são pessoais, e cada pessoa vai ter que aceitar as consequências da decisão que tomar. (Gál. 6:7) No entanto, os anciãos talvez decidam que as decisões de um publicador sobre esse assunto o desqualificam para receber privilégios especiais, que são dados apenas para os que são exemplares. — Veja 1:2.8; 2:4; 8:9.

COMO AJUDAR AS IRMÃS

12. Um ancião ou um servo ministerial nunca deve se reunir a sós com uma irmã ou se tornar o único confidente de uma irmã que não seja parente próxima dele. (Pro. 22:3; Jer. 17:9) Quando uma irmã precisa receber ajuda contínua, o corpo de anciãos deve, se possível, providenciar que duplas diferentes de anciãos façam pastoreio para ela. Não é errado que um ancião converse com uma irmã à vista de outras pessoas na casa dela, nas reuniões ou no serviço de campo.

COMO AJUDAR OS INATIVOS

13. Jeová nunca se esquece de seus servos que se afastam do rebanho. (Eze. 34:11) Os anciãos têm a responsabilidade de se esforçar para encontrar as ovelhas perdidas. (Mat. 18:12-14;

1 Tes. 5:14; rj pp. 4-5) Para ajudar alguém que está inativo, além de usar a Bíblia com habilidade, os anciãos precisam confiar em Jeová, pedir a ajuda dele em oração e confiar na orientação do espírito santo. Os anciãos podem ler textos bíblicos, considerar artigos, destacar pontos das reuniões, orar com o inativo e assim por diante. (2 Cor. 1:3-7; Tia. 5:13-15) Uma visita, uma ligação ou uma carta também podem ajudar muito. — w08 15/11 pp. 8-16; rj pp. 12-15; cl pp. 240-249.

14. Para garantir que nenhum inativo seja esquecido, a comissão de serviço deve designar cada inativo para um grupo de serviço de campo. O superintendente de grupo e seu ajudante devem receber as informações de contato da pessoa e ser informados sobre a situação dela. Os nomes dos inativos não devem aparecer em nenhuma lista colocada no quadro de anúncios.

16. Quando um inativo deseja retomar suas atividades com a congregação, os anciãos podem oferecer um estudo bíblico para ele. Se ele concordar, a comissão de serviço vai decidir quem será o instrutor, por quanto tempo o estudo será dirigido e que publicação será estudada.

17. Se o publicador ficou inativo por pouco tempo, pode ser que o encorajamento e a ajuda prática de um publicador experiente sejam suficientes para que ele retome suas atividades. Mas, se ele ficou inativo por bastante tempo, dois anciãos devem se reunir com ele antes de convidá-lo para participar na pregação. Para verificar se o publicador cumpre os requisitos básicos para voltar a pregar, os anciãos devem seguir um procedimento parecido com o que é usado para aprovar um novo publicador, descrito no capítulo 8 do livro Organizados.

18. Um inativo que se envolveu em pecado grave e que quer voltar para a congregação talvez ache que será desassociado se contar para os anciãos o que fez. Mas ele não será expulso da congregação se não estiver mais praticando o pecado e estiver realmente arrependido. — Isa. 1:18; 55:7; 2 Cor. 7:10, 11; Tia. 5:13-16; w08 15/11 pp. 14-15 pars. 12-13; rj pp. 10-14.

COMO AJUDAR AS VÍTIMAS DE ABUSO

19. Veja 14:12-17.

DESASSOCIADOS E DISSOCIADOS

20. Os anciãos não devem fazer uma programação para visitar desassociados ou dissociados uma vez por ano. Em vez disso, eles devem usar de bom senso para decidir quando e como entrar em contato com desassociados e dissociados. Por exemplo, se um desassociado está fazendo mudanças, um ancião pode dar para ele a brochura Volte para Jeová e lembrá-lo dos passos que ele precisa dar para ser readmitido. (Isa. 1:18; rj pp. 10-14) Esse contato deve ser breve, e o ancião pode fazer isso quando estiver pregando de casa em casa. Ao fazer compras, um ancião talvez encontre um desassociado com quem os anciãos não conversam há anos e decida falar com ele. Um ancião pode visitar um desassociado a qualquer momento em que isso for apropriado ou até mesmo entrar em contato com ele por telefone. Sempre que um ancião falar com um desassociado, ele deve informar o coordenador do corpo de anciãos. É claro que os anciãos não devem entrar em contato com os que ainda são apóstatas, com os que estão tentando desencaminhar outros ou com os que já deixaram claro que não querem mais fazer parte da congregação.

Preparativos para enfrentar desastres e prestação de socorros

PREPARATIVOS

1. Os anciãos devem dar os passos a seguir para se prepararem para situações de emergência e desastres naturais, mesmo que pareça improvável que isso aconteça em sua região:

2. Mantenham as informações de contato atualizadas: O secretário deve manter uma lista atualizada com as informações de contato de todos os publicadores, incluindo os inativos, e de seus contatos de emergência. Essa lista também deve ter as informações de contato do superintendente de circuito. Sempre que ela for alterada, o secretário deve fornecer imediatamente uma cópia dela para cada ancião. Todos os anciãos devem ter essa lista sempre à mão. Eles devem ter em mente que, depois de um desastre, talvez não seja possível ter acesso a arquivos eletrônicos se a energia ou os serviços de internet não estiverem disponíveis.

    (1) Contato de emergência é a pessoa que o publicador vai contatar se acontecer um desastre ou outra situação de emergência. Para evitar que tanto o publicador quanto o contato de emergência dele sejam afetados pelo mesmo desastre, talvez seja melhor que o contato de emergência não more na mesma região que o publicador. O contato de emergência não precisa ser Testemunha de Jeová.

    (2) As informações do contato de emergência devem incluir apenas o nome dele e o mínimo de informações para se conseguir contatá-lo da melhor forma, como, por exemplo, número de telefone ou e-mail. Cada publicador deve informar o contato de emergência de que as informações dele serão compartilhadas com os anciãos da congregação e, se acontecer uma emergência, os anciãos talvez entrem em contato com ele.

    (3) Quando o secretário receber do publicador as informações do contato de emergência, ele deve confirmar se o publicador já informou ao seu contato de emergência o que está descrito no ponto 2. Quando os anciãos reunirem essas informações, eles devem levar em conta as leis de proteção de dados.

3. Pensem nos que têm necessidades especiais: A comissão de serviço, junto com os superintendentes de grupo, deve planejar com antecedência o que será feito para ajudar os que têm necessidades especiais, como, por exemplo, os idosos.

4. Protejam os registros da congregação: Os registros da congregação e os arquivos confidenciais devem ficar sempre num lugar seguro. Além disso, a comissão de serviço deve decidir com antecedência o que será feito para proteger os arquivos da congregação se um desastre estiver prestes a acontecer. — Veja 22:10.

5. Revisem os preparativos: Uma vez por ano, em uma reunião de anciãos, o corpo de anciãos deve revisar os preparativos que foram feitos localmente para situações de desastres e emergências.

6. Parte anual na reunião do meio de semana: Uma vez por ano, uma parte sobre como se preparar para desastres naturais será incluída na reunião do meio de semana. O tempo designado para essa parte é suficiente para incluir lembretes de Betel e do corpo de anciãos, se for necessário. Se a data de uma assembleia de circuito ou do congresso em que a congregação foi designada cair na semana em que essa parte estiver programada, os anciãos devem providenciar que ela seja feita em outra reunião no meio das semanas seguintes.

QUANDO UM DESASTRE FOR IMINENTE OU ACONTECER NA REGIÃO DA CONGREGAÇÃO

7. Se um aviso de desastre for dado, os anciãos devem se certificar de que todos os publicadores estejam num lugar seguro. E, se o tempo permitir, os anciãos devem obter e distribuir quaisquer suprimentos que talvez sejam necessários.

8. Entrem em contato com os publicadores: Quando a congregação é afetada por um desastre, os anciãos devem verificar rapidamente quais são as necessidades imediatas dos publicadores. Os superintendentes de grupo devem tomar a liderança em localizar cada família do seu grupo de serviço de campo (incluindo inativos) e perguntar como eles estão.

(1) Verifiquem quais são as necessidades imediatas dos irmãos, como cuidados médicos, comida, água, abrigo, roupas ou outros itens básicos, e deem ajuda.

(2) Avaliem a situação dos irmãos. Alguém está desabrigado, desaparecido, ferido ou doente?

(3) Avaliem a situação das casas dos irmãos. O fornecimento de energia elétrica ou de outros serviços foi interrompido? Alguma casa foi danificada ou destruída?

9. Mantenham o coordenador do corpo de anciãos informado: Assim que possível (geralmente nas primeiras 24 horas), os superintendentes de grupo devem informar ao coordenador do corpo de anciãos o que descobriram sobre a situação dos irmãos, mesmo que ninguém tenha sido afetado. Os superintendentes de grupo devem entrar em contato com o coordenador mesmo que ainda não tenham todas as informações necessárias. Depois disso, eles devem manter contato diário com o coordenador até que a situação de todos os publicadores de seu grupo tenha sido informada.

10. Mantenham o superintendente de circuito informado: Depois que o coordenador do corpo de anciãos receber as informações dos superintendentes de grupo, ele deve entrar imediatamente em contato com o superintendente de circuito para informar qual é o estado de saúde dos irmãos da congregação e quais foram os danos causados pelo desastre. Se o Salão do Reino foi danificado ou destruído, ele também deve informar isso. O coordenador deve manter contato diário com o superintendente de circuito até que a situação de todos os publicadores da congregação tenha sido informada. Assim que receber as informações neces-sárias, o superintendente de circuito vai entrar em contato com Betel, que decidirá se é necessário dar mais ajuda.

11. Deem atenção à segurança: Até que os voluntários designados pelos que estão coordenando a ajuda humanitária cheguem, espera-se que os que moram nas áreas afetadas ou perto delas façam tudo o que puderem para ajudar os irmãos com suas necessidades imediatas. Mas é muito importante que todos sejam modestos ao dar ajuda e façam apenas o que estão qualificados para fazer. Pode ser que uma situação seja arriscada, ou que uma construção corra o risco de desabar. Ninguém deve colocar a vida em risco por causa de bens materiais. Os que supervisionam a ajuda humanitária devem se certificar de que os voluntários sigam os padrões de segurança do documento Trabalhar Juntos em Segurança — Normas para Construção e Manutenção de Locais de Adoração (DC-82).

12. Pastoreiem os publicadores: A congregação deve receber ajuda espiritual e emocional, e as reuniões devem voltar a ser realizadas o mais rápido possível. — od cap. 17 pars. 15-16.

13. Continuem dando ajuda prática: Se o estrago foi muito grande ou se a ajuda humanitária for durar semanas ou meses, os anciãos devem:

    (1) Verificar quais irmãos na congregação poderiam hospedar temporariamente os que estão desabrigados ou os voluntários de construção.

    (2) Cuidar de que os suprimentos de ajuda humanitária sejam distribuídos adequadamente e de modo justo entre as famílias. — Atos 6:1.

    (3) Acompanhar os irmãos do Departamento Local de Projeto/Construção (LDC, em inglês) na visita que eles fazem para avaliar os danos causados às propriedades dos publicadores.

(4) Ajudar os publicadores a ver se eles atendem aos requisitos para receber ajuda material do governo ou de programas sociais, se eles têm direito a algum seguro que fizeram, ou se eles podem receber ajuda de outro tipo de fonte. Às vezes, uma organização que presta ajuda humanitária faz parte de uma religião, mas é financiada pelo governo. Nesse caso, se os publicadores quiserem, eles podem receber essa ajuda humanitária, desde que fazer isso não signifique que eles estão se tornando membros de uma organização religiosa. Antes que os publicadores entrem com qualquer pedido de ajuda humanitária, os ajudem a entender o que será exigido deles depois de receberem essa ajuda. Mas cada publicador deve tomar sua própria decisão sobre esse assunto.

(5) Ajudar o LDC ou a Comissão de Ajuda Humanitária a decidir quais publicadores se qualificam para receber ajuda da organização na reconstrução de suas casas, seguindo as orientações de Betel. — od cap. 12 pars. 12-15.

QUANDO UM DESASTRE ACONTECE EM OUTRA REGIÃO

14. Quando um desastre acontece em outra região, os anciãos podem lembrar os seguintes pontos aos publicadores:

(1) Devemos orar por nossos irmãos e irmãs. — 2 Cor. 1:8-11.

(2) Os que quiserem ajudar financeiramente podem fazer donativos para a obra mundial. Assim, a organização pode ajudar a cuidar das necessidades dos irmãos em qualquer parte do mundo.

(3) Equipamentos e suprimentos não devem ser enviados para as áreas de desastre, a menos que os irmãos responsáveis solicitem isso. Isso vai fazer com que a ajuda humanitária seja dada de modo organizado e que os suprimentos sejam bem distribuídos.

(4) Ninguém deve ligar para Betel simplesmente para obter informações. Isso poderia congestionar as linhas telefônicas que são necessárias para atender ligações da área do desastre.

(5) Os publicadores não devem viajar para as áreas afetadas para ajudar, a menos que tenham sido convidados pelos responsáveis pela ajuda humanitária. Os voluntários devem ter a Petição para Voluntário do Departamento Local de Projeto/Construção (DC-50) ou a Petição para o Serviço de Voluntário (A-19) aprovada.

TELEFONE(S) PARA EMERGÊNCIA APÓS O EXPEDIENTE DE BETEL

15. O telefone para emergência após o expediente de Betel está disponível na seção “Entre em contato” do jw.org depois de se ter feito o login. Tenham em mente que só se deve usar esse telefone quando houver uma emergência de verdade. Apenas os anciãos devem ter essas informações, que não devem ser passadas para outras pessoas da congregação.

Casamentos

Parágrafos

1. Para que uma cerimônia de casamento dê honra a Jeová, ela deve ser organizada de acordo com os princípios da Bíblia. Isso é ainda mais importante quando a cerimônia é realizada no Salão do Reino.

CERIMÔNIAS DE CASAMENTO

2. As cerimônias de casamento devem ser realizadas por anciãos, a menos que nenhum ancião esteja disponível. O casal pode escolher o ancião que fará o discurso do casamento. Se eles não fizerem isso, o corpo de anciãos pode tomar essa decisão. Em muitos países, o governo permite que ministros das Testemunhas de Jeová oficializem casamentos. — w06 15/10 pp. 18-23.

3. Um ancião pode realizar casamentos entre duas Testemunhas de Jeová ou entre dois publicadores não batizados que estejam dando passos para o batismo. (1 Cor. 7:39; 2 Cor. 6:14; w04 01/07 pp. 30-31) Mas, antes de aceitar fazer isso, o ancião deve ter em mente os seguintes pontos:

(1) É importante confirmar se tanto o noivo como a noiva estão legalmente e biblicamente livres para se casar e verificar qual é a reputação deles em suas congregações. (Veja 2:4; 27:6.5.) O ancião deve conversar com o casal e, com jeito, mas de forma direta, perguntar sobre a conduta deles durante o namoro e o noivado.

(2) Se um dos noivos já foi casado, ele já deve ter apresentado para os anciãos evidências convincentes de que está biblicamente livre para se casar de novo. (Heb. 13:4; veja 12:70-75.) O ancião que for realizar o casamento deve confirmar que isso foi feito e pedir para ver o documento de divórcio para confirmar que o divórcio está finalizado. Se houver qualquer dúvida sobre a liberdade bíblica para se casar novamente, o corpo de anciãos deve escrever para o Departamento de Serviço antes do casamento.

(3) É importante confirmar se a lei permite que ele oficialize casamentos na cidade ou localidade onde o casamento será realizado. (Rom. 13:1) Em alguns países, as autoridades talvez aceitem uma carta assinada pelo corpo de anciãos confirmando que o irmão é um ancião designado na congregação local. Se isso não for suficiente, o ancião deve procurar saber que documentos são necessários e, se for preciso, deve escrever para o Departamento de Serviço para obter ajuda. Se a lei não permitir que ele conduza a parte dos votos, outro ancião que preenche os requisitos legais pode fazer isso logo depois do discurso. Esse ancião deve preencher os documentos necessários.

4. Os que estão noivos precisam receber ajuda especial dos anciãos, que devem pastoreá-los com amor. Conselhos encorajadores baseados na Bíblia podem ajudá-los a ser bem-sucedidos, tanto na realização do casamento como na vida de casados. Eles devem ser incentivados a fazer pesquisas na Bíblia e nas publicações. Isso vai ser importante para ajudar os noivos a continuarem mantendo uma conduta pura e a planejarem um casamento que honre a Jeová e os deixe de consciência limpa. (1 Cor. 10:31, 32) Por exemplo, se estiverem planejando fazer uma festa, eles devem ser incentivados a recapitular as orientações mais recentes publicadas pelo escravo fiel e prudente. — w06 15/10 pp. 18-31; w00 01/05 pp. 19-22; w97 15/04 pp. 23-26; lvs pp. 180-181, 252.

5. O discurso de casamento deve ser feito usando-se o esboço "Casamento honroso à vista de Deus" (S-41). O discurso deve destacar quais são as responsabilidades que Deus deu ao marido e à esposa de acordo com a Bíblia. O orador deve fazer o discurso com seriedade e dignidade. Além disso, ele deve ser amoroso, bondoso e respeitoso. Ele também deve resistir à tentação de fazer comentários engraçados simplesmente para divertir a assistência, já que isso poderia mostrar falta de respeito pelos que estão presentes e por Jeová. Durante o discurso, o orador não deve apresentar nenhum vídeo nas telas ou monitores. Mas não há problema que ele use alguns recursos visuais, como imagens ou fotos. (Veja 20:21.) Se algum vídeo for usado antes ou depois de um discurso de casamento, ele deve ser de bom gosto. As orientações acima sobre vídeos também se aplicam a discursos fúnebres.

USO DO SALÃO DO REINO

6. Quando um casal deseja realizar a cerimônia de casamento no Salão do Reino, eles devem fazer um pedido por escrito para os anciãos com bastante antecedência informando o dia e o horário em que gostariam de usar o salão. (od cap. 11 pars. 10-11) A comissão de serviço deve se reunir o quanto antes tendo os seguintes pontos em mente:

(1) Eles devem confirmar se tanto o noivo como a noiva estão legalmente e biblicamente livres para se casar e se eles têm uma boa reputação em suas congregações. (Veja 2:4.) Se dois publicadores não batizados que estão dando passos para o batismo atenderem a esses requisitos, eles talvez possam receber aprovação para usar o Salão do Reino. Da mesma forma, se um estrangeiro em situação ilegal atender a esses requisitos, ele talvez possa receber aprovação para usar o Salão do Reino, desde que ele também atenda às exigências da lei para o casamento civil. — Veja 29:3-7.

(2) O horário do casamento e de qualquer ensaio não deve atrapalhar a programação das reuniões e de outras atividades no Salão do Reino. Se o salão for usado por mais de uma congregação, a comissão de serviço deve confirmar com as comissões de serviço das outras congregações se o salão vai estar disponível.

(3) A comissão de serviço pode decidir se é necessário fazer um breve anúncio sobre o uso do Salão do Reino para um casamento.

(4) O casal deve sempre manter a comissão de serviço atualizada sobre o que pretendem fazer no Salão do Reino. Por exemplo, qualquer decoração ou mudança na distribuição dos assentos deve ser aprovada pela comissão. Apenas devem ser usadas as músicas de Cante de Coração para Jeová ou as músicas dos clipes musicais do JW Broadcasting. Nenhuma pessoa desassociada ou que leva um modo de vida totalmente contrário aos princípios da Bíblia deve estar entre as pessoas que os noivos escolheram para os acompanharem em sua entrada, mas não é obrigatório que todas elas sejam batizadas. Os que forem fotografar ou filmar o casamento devem tomar cuidado para não causar nenhuma distração durante o discurso e para não fazer nada que diminua a seriedade ou que tire a dignidade da ocasião.

(5) Se for descoberto que o casal se envolveu em um pecado que exige a formação de uma comissão judicativa, eles não poderão usar o Salão do Reino. Se nenhum dos dois for desassociado, o ancião pode decidir se vai realizar o casamento em outro local ou não.

ROMPIMENTO UNILATERAL DE NOIVADO

7. Normalmente, não é necessário que os anciãos investiguem um rompimento unilateral de noivado, a menos que (1) aquele que rompeu o noivado tenha um privilégio especial e a pessoa prejudicada se queixe ou (2) vários membros da congregação fiquem perturbados e acabem perdendo o respeito por quem rompeu o noivado. (Ecl. 5:2; Mat. 5:37) Os anciãos precisam ter bom senso ao decidir se a pessoa não se qualificaria para um privilégio especial. (Veja 2:4.) Havia motivos válidos para o rompimento, ou a pessoa não reconhece a seriedade do noivado? (w99 15/08 pp. 30-31) Na congregação, os irmãos em geral perderam o respeito pela pessoa?

Prisões

Parágrafos

1. Pode ser que haja uma ou mais prisões no território da sua congregação. Muitas vezes as visitas para os presos são restritas, mas pode ser que as autoridades da prisão permitam que publicadores visitem os que pediram ajuda espiritual. (Mat. 5:3) As orientações deste capítulo também podem se aplicar a outras instituições em que o acesso ao público geralmente é proibido.

CONGREGAÇÃO DE CONTATO

2. Betel vai designar uma ou mais congregações para servirem como congregações de contato. Elas vão tomar a liderança em cuidar do interesse inicial mostrado pelos presos e das necessidades espirituais dos que estudam a Bíblia e se tornam Testemunhas de Jeová na prisão.

3. A comissão de serviço da congregação de contato vai escolher publicadores adultos qualificados e batizados para participar nesse tipo de pregação. (Mat. 10:16) O superintendente de serviço deve tomar a liderança em coordenar o trabalho. Se for necessário, publicadores qualificados de congregações vizinhas também podem participar, desde que sejam aprovados pelas comissões de serviço de suas congregações. Os publicadores aprovados para participar do testemunho em prisões devem ser informados de forma verbal sobre as orientações deste capítulo que se aplicam ao seu trabalho.

4. Se uma congregação não puder mais servir como congregação de contato, a comissão de serviço deve enviar uma carta para o Departamento de Serviço informando o motivo disso. Se os irmãos souberem de outra congregação que está disposta a servir como congregação de contato em seu lugar, a carta deve ser aprovada pelas duas comissões de serviço. Betel vai enviar uma resposta informando se a recomendação foi aprovada ou não.

COMUNICAÇÃO COM BETEL

5. O secretário da congregação deve enviar as correspondências sobre o trabalho na instituição para o Setor de Pregação, do Departamento de Serviço. O nome completo e o endereço da prisão devem sempre ser informados na correspondência. Se for necessário falar sobre as necessidades espirituais de um preso específico, o secretário deve informar o nome completo do preso e o número de identificação dele (se disponível).

6. O formulário Informações sobre Prisões (S-68) deve ser usado para atualizar o Departamento de Serviço sobre as instituições.

Se houver várias unidades ou pavilhões dentro da mesma instituição, deve-se enviar um formulário sobre cada unidade ou pavilhão.

7. Para obter orientações sobre presos que foram acusados de abuso de menores e que agora estão se associando com uma congregação, veja o capítulo 14, parágrafos 9 e 27.

COMUNICAÇÃO COM OS FUNCIONÁRIOS DA PRISÃO

8. Ser amigável e ao mesmo tempo persistente geralmente dá bons resultados. Os anciãos devem cumprir os compromissos que marcarem com os presos e funcionários, e obedecer aos regulamentos da instituição. Quando uma instituição exigir provas de que um publicador é ministro religioso, os anciãos devem escrever uma carta oficial com o timbre da congregação identificando-o claramente como ministro ordenado da congregação. Essa carta deve informar a data de sua ordenação (batismo) e ser assinada pela comissão de serviço. Se essa carta não for aceita por uma instituição, os anciãos devem escrever para o Departamento de Serviço para obter mais orientações. Uma cópia da carta que foi rejeitada deve ser incluída.

PEDIDOS DE VISITA E CONTATO COM OS PRESOS

9. Quando Betel envia para a congregação de contato um pedido de visita, o superintendente de serviço deve cuidar de que ele seja atendido o quanto antes. Ele talvez possa providenciar publicações e designar publicadores qualificados para fazer visitas regulares e, se possível, dirigir estudos bíblicos individuais ou em grupo na instituição. Se não for permitido visitar pessoalmente um preso, um publicador aprovado pela comissão de serviço pode ser designado para se corresponder com ele. As irmãs devem se corresponder apenas com mulheres, e os irmãos, apenas com homens. Para proteger sua privacidade, em vez de usar os endereços de suas casas, os publicadores podem enviar as cartas usando o endereço do Salão do Reino ou outro endereço apropriado. O endereço de Betel não deve ser usado.

MINISTÉRIO

10. Publicações: É melhor que os próprios presos solicitem publicações ou visitas diretamente para Betel ou aos publicadores aprovados para visitar a instituição. Isso pode ajudar os publicadores a terem acesso à instituição e dá oportunidade para que o preso mostre que está realmente interessado. Se for necessário, o secretário da congregação de contato pode entrar em contato com o Setor de Pregação, do Departamento de Serviço, em nome do preso. Por exemplo, algumas instituições que não permitem que os visitantes levem publicações para os presos permitem que Betel envie essas publicações. Presos desassociados também podem pedir publicações, incluindo itens de pedido especial. Publicações básicas podem ser doadas para a biblioteca dessas instituições.

11. Quando uma instituição permite que os publicadores entreguem publicações aos presos, essas publicações devem ser incluídas no pedido regular da congregação.

12. Apenas as publicações do Kit de Ferramentas de Ensino e as publicações necessárias para as reuniões devem ser fornecidas, e isso deve ser feito de acordo com a necessidade dos estudantes. Em geral, itens de pedido especial devem ser fornecidos apenas para publicadores batizados, para publicadores não batizados, para os que estão progredindo bem em seu estudo e para os presos que estão desassociados. (Veja 28:10.) Uma exceção pode ser feita no caso dos que têm deficiência visual ou que estão em outras circunstâncias especiais. Os anciãos da congregação de contato devem fazer o pedido dos itens de pedido especial.

13. Como relatar atividades: Publicações, vídeos e estudos bíblicos devem ser relatados normalmente. Mesmo quando vários presos estudam a Bíblia juntos, como grupo, apenas um estudo bíblico deve ser relatado, e apenas uma revisita deve ser relatada cada vez que o estudo for dirigido. As horas que um publicador gasta dirigindo ou participando de uma reunião na prisão não devem ser relatadas, mas os pioneiros podem informar no relatório o tempo que gastaram nessa atividade para receber crédito de horas. (Veja 9:11-13.) Deve-se também mostrar consideração especial para com os publicadores que participam nesse tipo de serviço, mas não são pioneiros. — Veja 23:25-26.

14. Publicadores batizados e não batizados que estão presos devem ser contados como publicadores da congregação de contato, e o relatório deles deve ser incluído no relatório da congregação.

15. Como relatar batismos: A congregação de contato deve informar o superintendente de circuito sobre os batismos realizados na prisão.

16. Publicadores que se mudam para outra instituição: Quando um preso for transferido para outra instituição, o Registro de Publicador de Congregação (S-21) dele e uma carta de apresentação devem ser enviados para a congregação de contato responsável por aquela instituição.

REUNIÕES

17. Podem-se realizar reuniões na prisão quando pelo menos um publicador preso (batizado ou não batizado) for assistir a elas regularmente. Essas reuniões devem ser consideradas extensões das reuniões regulares da congregação, e a assistência deve ser somada à assistência das reuniões da congregação de contato. As reuniões na prisão devem seguir de perto a maneira como as reuniões são realizadas no Salão do Reino, levando em conta as circunstâncias. Os desassociados devem ser tratados da mesma forma que seriam tratados nas reuniões no Salão do Reino.

18. Apenas anciãos e servos ministeriais qualificados devem dirigir reuniões na prisão. Eles podem ser da congregação de contato ou de congregações vizinhas. (Veja 28:21.) Se não houver anciãos ou servos ministeriais disponíveis, os presos podem se reunir para assistir à gravação da reunião ou para considerar a matéria da reunião juntos. Se um preso acusado de abuso de menores estiver assistindo às reuniões na prisão ou se associando com a congregação, veja o capítulo 14, parágrafos 9 e 27.

19. Celebração: Deve-se fazer tudo o que for possível para que um ancião ou um servo ministerial qualificado realize a Celebração na prisão. Se não for possível fazer isso, os presos podem assistir à gravação do discurso ou considerar os relatos bíblicos de Mateus 26:17-30, Lucas 22:7-23, 28-30 e 1 Coríntios 11:20-31. (w93 01/02 p. 31) A assistência da Celebração na prisão deve ser somada à assistência da congregação de contato.

20. Reuniões especiais: Algumas instituições permitem que os presos se reúnam uma ou duas vezes por ano por um período maior do que o normal. Essa pode ser uma excelente oportunidade para realizar batismos, fazer recapitulações de assembleias e congressos, e assim por diante. Essas reuniões não são ocasiões para que publicadores da congregação, especialmente do sexo oposto, se associem livremente com os presos. Os presos talvez recebam autorização para convidar seus parentes, mas a experiência tem mostrado que é melhor não convidar pessoas do sexo oposto, mesmo que sejam parentes dos presos. Em vez disso, para que um bom testemunho seja dado, devem-se convidar apenas os que farão partes, os que pregam regularmente na prisão e, talvez, alguns irmãos responsáveis e experientes que poderiam encorajar e pastorear os presos. Além das partes apresentadas pelos anciãos locais, podem-se convidar anciãos de congregações vizinhas ou do circuito que fizeram partes em assembleias ou congressos para apresentar essas informações. Os convites para a reunião devem ser supervisionados de perto pelos anciãos responsáveis pelo testemunho em prisões.

PRIVILÉGIOS ESPECIAIS

21. Os presos que fazem progresso espiritual podem se qualificar para o batismo, mas eles não se qualificam para servir como pioneiros auxiliares, pioneiros regulares, servos ministeriais ou anciãos enquanto estiverem na prisão. (1 Tim. 3:2, 7, 10; Tito 1:6, 7) É claro que, se um pioneiro regular, um servo ministerial ou ancião for preso por manter sua integridade cristã, ele pode continuar com seus privilégios. Da mesma forma, um publicador preso por manter sua integridade cristã pode ser designado como pioneiro auxiliar ou regular. Ele também pode ser recomendado como servo ministerial ou ancião, caso se qualifique.

AUDIÊNCIAS JUDICATIVAS COM PESSOAS QUE ESTÃO PRESAS

22. As autoridades talvez não permitam que os três membros de uma comissão judicativa se reúnam ao mesmo tempo com alguém que está na prisão. Mesmo nesses casos, a audiência judicativa não deve ser feita por meio de áudio ou videoconferência. Os anciãos devem se esforçar para que dois membros da comissão judicativa se reúnam em particular com a pessoa. Ninguém mais deve estar presente. Depois, os dois anciãos devem se reunir com o outro membro da comissão para conversar sobre o caso e tomar uma decisão. Dois membros da comissão judicativa devem informar para a pessoa o que foi decidido. Se ela for desassociada, os anciãos devem dizer, entre outras coisas, que ela tem a opção de apelar. Se as autoridades permitirem que apenas um ancião por vez fale com a pessoa, a comissão judicativa deve decidir com antecedência quais perguntas serão feitas para ela. Daí, dois membros da comissão, um de cada vez, devem conversar com ela e fazer as mesmas perguntas. Depois disso, a comissão judicativa deve se reunir para tomar uma decisão. Em casos incomuns, entrem em contato com o Departamento de Serviço.

Assuntos jurídicos

Parágrafos

1. De acordo com Mateus 22:21, 37, Romanos 13:1-7, Filipenses 1:7 e 1 Timóteo 2:1, 2, as congregações respeitam a autoridade relativa dos governos. Para garantir que as leis sejam cumpridas, dois anciãos, se possível, devem ligar imediatamente para o Departamento Jurídico de Betel nas seguintes situações:

(1) Quando uma pessoa, a mídia, um advogado ou as autoridades pedem ou exigem que os anciãos revelem informações confidenciais.

(2) Quando os anciãos ficam sabendo de uma acusação de abuso de menores ou de maus-tratos contra deficientes ou idosos. — Veja o capítulo 14.

(3) Quando os anciãos ficam sabendo que alguém está processando (ou ameaça processar) a organização, a congregação local ou um ancião por causa de um assunto congregacional.

(4) Quando alguém responsável por um condomínio ou conjunto de apartamentos exige que as Testemunhas de Jeová não visitem mais o local, quando uma autoridade do governo tenta impor restrições ao nosso trabalho de pregação ou quando surge oposição violenta contra o nosso ministério. — Veja 23:22-24.

(5) Quando um publicador que está participando na pregação ou em outra atividade da organização se envolve numa situação em que alguém fica gravemente ferido ou morre. (Veja 21:30.) Se qualquer pessoa procurar um ancião pedindo uma declaração sobre o incidente ou sobre os publicadores envolvidos, ele não deve fazer nenhum comentário ou responder qualquer pergunta. Em vez disso, o ancião deve pedir que a pessoa informe seu nome, número de telefone, nome da empresa em que trabalha e sua função nela. Ele deve dizer que os anciãos vão entrar em contato com um advogado antes de responder a qualquer pergunta.

(6) Quando organizações da comunidade ou autoridades solicitam o uso do Salão do Reino.

CONSELHOS SOBRE ASSUNTOS JURÍDICOS PARTICULARES

2. Como pastores espirituais, os anciãos não se envolvem nos assuntos jurídicos particulares dos irmãos. (Gál. 6:5) Eles não devem dar conselhos sobre esse tipo de assunto nem incentivar os irmãos a procurar o Departamento Jurídico para obter ajuda em assuntos jurídicos particulares. Por exemplo, se um publicador pedir a opinião dos anciãos sobre uma medida cautelar ou sobre um pedido de proteção, eles devem responder educadamente que esse é um assunto jurídico particular que não envolve a congregação. Além disso, os anciãos não devem tentar obrigar ninguém a cumprir decisões tomadas pela justiça sobre esse tipo de assunto.

ESTRANGEIROS EM SITUAÇÃO ILEGAL

3. Os anciãos se preocupam muito com as necessidades espirituais, emocionais e físicas dos irmãos que são "residentes estrangeiros". (Sal. 146:9; 1 João 3:17, 18; w17.05 pp. 3-7) Se alguém fizer perguntas sobre a necessidade de cumprir os requisitos legais de residência no país, ele deve ser incentivado a analisar o que a Bíblia diz em textos como Romanos 13:1-7, Tito 3:1 e 1 Pedro 2:13-17, e a fazer pesquisas nas publicações.

4. Um estrangeiro talvez queira obter assistência especializada nesses tipos de assuntos jurídicos particulares. Os anciãos não são responsáveis por pesquisar as leis do governo ou forçar os estrangeiros em situação ilegal a cumpri-las. — Filêm. 8-22; w77 pp. 543-544.

5. Todos os cristãos têm a obrigação de obedecer às leis do país em que vivem, demonstrando assim obediência relativa às "autoridades superiores". (Rom. 13:1) Por isso, um estrangeiro em situação ilegal não se qualifica para servir como ancião, servo ministerial, pioneiro regular ou pioneiro auxiliar até que ele regularize sua situação ou dê os passos necessários para fazer isso. (1 Tim. 3:7, 10) Ele não pode ser designado para supervisionar nenhuma atividade na congregação. Além disso, embora ele possa ajudar na limpeza e na construção do Salão do Reino de sua própria congregação e na limpeza de seu próprio Salão de Assembleias, ele não pode trabalhar na construção ou manutenção de outros Salões do Reino ou Salões de Assembleias. Ele pode comentar nas reuniões e fazer partes de estudante na reunião do meio de semana. Se ele for exemplar em todos os outros aspectos de sua vida, os anciãos talvez possam usá-lo em outros privilégios, assim como Paulo usou Onésimo, mesmo que de forma limitada. (Col. 4:7-9; Filêm. 13) Por exemplo, ele talvez possa ajudar com os microfones e no balcão de publicações. Pode ser que os anciãos também permitam que ele use o Salão do Reino para se casar, desde que ele cumpra os requisitos bíblicos e as exigências da lei para o casamento civil. — Veja 27:6.

6. Quando um publicador procura as autoridades competentes para resolver sua situação como estrangeiro ou recebe permissão das autoridades competentes para permanecer no país, sua situação na congregação muda, já que ele está demonstrando que realmente se sujeita às "autoridades superiores". (Rom. 13:1) Assim que o publicador pede autorização para permanecer no país, ele não é mais visto como um estrangeiro em situação ilegal e pode receber privilégios, mesmo que o governo demore para dar andamento a seu pedido. Assim, ele poderá servir como ancião, servo ministerial, pioneiro regular ou pioneiro auxiliar, desde que esteja espiritualmente qualificado e que, se estiver empregado, não tenha recorrido a nenhum meio desonesto para conseguir autorização para trabalhar. Ao enviar as recomendações desses irmãos para servir como anciãos ou servos ministeriais, os anciãos devem incluir uma explicação completa da situação deles para o superintendente de circuito. — Se houver outras orientações que se aplicam localmente, elas estarão no Adendo do Pastoreiem.

7. Se o pedido de permanência de um publicador for negado, e ele decidir ficar no país de forma ilegal, ele não estará mais qualificado para servir como ancião, servo ministerial, pioneiro regular ou pioneiro auxiliar. Um publicador também não estaria sendo honesto se usasse qualquer tipo de documento falso ou desse informações incorretas para algum órgão do governo com o objetivo de conseguir reconhecimento legal ou alguma vantagem. Se o governo descobrisse que algo assim foi feito, o publicador poderia ser acusado de fraude e receber alguma punição, e isso poderia manchar a reputação da congregação. Em casos assim, os anciãos talvez tenham que tomar outras ações. Mas, antes de fazer isso, eles devem enviar uma carta para o Departamento de Serviço pedindo mais orientações. Por outro lado, se a pessoa fez o pedido de permanência ou o obteve de forma desonesta antes de ter conhecimento exato dos princípios bíblicos, os anciãos não precisam se preocupar com isso. — 1 Cor. 6:11.

EVENTOS SOCIAIS

8. A congregação não organiza nem se responsabiliza por eventos sociais, e o Salão do Reino não deve ser usado para esses eventos. As pessoas que realizam esses eventos são responsáveis por tudo o que acontece neles. Essas pessoas não devem dizer nem dar a entender que estão organizando o evento em nome da congregação. Elas não devem usar expressões como "piquenique da congregação" ou "festa da congregação". (od cap. 13 par. 19) Assim, nenhum convite para eventos sociais deve ser colocado no quadro de anúncios, e nenhum anúncio sobre eventos sociais deve ser feito da tribuna.

GUARDA DOS FILHOS

9. Quando um publicador se envolve em um processo relacionado à guarda de filhos ou a direito de visitação, dois anciãos devem entrar em contato com o Departamento Jurídico se todos os pontos a seguir se aplicarem ao caso:

(1) Está claro que as crenças do publicador serão colocadas em questão.

(2) Alguém foi notificado para comparecer num tribunal.

(3) O processo é entre os pais biológicos.

(4) O publicador tem uma boa reputação na congregação? — Veja 2:4.

PROGRAMAS DE DOAÇÃO PARA INSTITUIÇÕES BENEFICENTES

10. Alguns programas de doação talvez sejam aceitáveis para um cristão. Veja a seguir breves descrições desses programas e alguns comentários sobre o uso deles:

(1) Programas de doação adicional: As empresas que promovem esse tipo de programa se comprometem a fazer uma doação para a instituição beneficente que a pessoa inscrita escolher, desde que, antes disso, a pessoa faça uma doação para a mesma instituição beneficente. O valor da doação feita pela empresa que promove o programa pode chegar a ser igual ao valor doado pela pessoa. Já que esse tipo de programa não exige a participação ativa da congregação, se um publicador quiser indicar a congregação como instituição beneficente que irá receber a doação adicional, essa é uma decisão pessoal. Os publicadores não devem tentar iniciar esse tipo de programa com uma empresa, mas se um programa assim já existir, eles podem usá-lo.

(2) Programas de doação relacionados a serviço voluntário: Nesse tipo de programa, um doador (geralmente uma empresa) se oferece para fazer uma doação para a instituição beneficente que a pessoa escolher, desde que a pessoa faça serviço voluntário para a mesma instituição beneficente que receberá a doação. O doador é quem define quanto tempo a pessoa deverá gastar prestando serviço voluntário para a instituição. Os publicadores não devem indicar Betel nem a congregação como instituição beneficente para receber doações pelo seu "serviço voluntário", e as congregações não devem participar desses programas. Todos os publicadores realizam seu ministério porque

querem servir a Jeová de coração e obedecer à ordem de Jesus Cristo. Eles não fazem isso para uma congregação ou organização. Isso se aplica também aos publicadores que apoiam projetos de construção, trabalho de ajuda humanitária ou qualquer outra atividade da organização.

(3) Programas de arrecadação de fundos: Nesses programas, o doador (geralmente uma empresa) se oferece para fazer doações a uma determinada instituição beneficente com base nas compras feitas pela pessoa no seu estabelecimento. Por exemplo, um supermercado talvez concorde em doar certa porcentagem do valor das compras que a pessoa fez ali. Com frequência, esses programas exigem que a instituição beneficente indicada participe ativamente, por incentivar as pessoas a fazerem compras no estabelecimento patrocinador. No entanto, a congregação não deve promover qualquer tipo de atividade comercial nem solicitar fundos. Assim, os publicadores não devem indicar Betel nem a congregação para receber donativos de um programa de arrecadação de fundos, e as congregações não devem participar nesse tipo de programa.

Perguntas para os que desejam se batizar

PARTE 1 ENSINOS CRISTÃOS

Por meio do seu estudo da Bíblia com as Testemunhas de Jeová, você passou a conhecer a verdade e a ser amigo de Deus. Também passou a entender como Jeová cuida do seu povo hoje. (Zac. 8:23) Além disso, você agora tem a esperança de viver para sempre no Paraíso na Terra. Sua fé na Palavra de Deus foi fortalecida, e por meio do convívio com a congregação você já recebeu muitas bênçãos.

Agora que está se preparando para o batismo, vai ser muito útil para você relembrar os principais ensinos cristãos com alguns anciãos. (Heb. 6:1-3) Que Jeová continue a abençoar todos os seus esforços de conhecê-lo, e que você receba a vida eterna. — João 17:3.

1. Por que você quer se batizar?

2. Quem é Jeová?

- "Jeová é o verdadeiro Deus nos céus, em cima, e na terra, embaixo. Não há outro." — Deut. 4:39.
- "Tu, cujo nome é Jeová, somente tu és o Altíssimo sobre toda a terra." — Sal. 83:18.

3. Por que é importante que você use o nome de Deus?

- "Orem do seguinte modo: 'Pai nosso, que estás nos céus, santificado seja o teu nome.'" — Mat. 6:9.
- "Todo aquele que invocar o nome de Jeová será salvo." — Rom. 10:13.

4. Quais são algumas expressões que a Bíblia usa para descrever a Jeová?

- "Jeová, o Criador das partes mais distantes da terra, é Deus por toda a eternidade." — Isa. 40:28.
- "Pai nosso, que estás nos céus." — Mat. 6:9.
- "Deus é amor." — 1 João 4:8.

5. O que você pode dar para Jeová?

- "Ame a Jeová, seu Deus, de todo o seu coração, de toda a sua alma, de toda a sua mente e de toda a sua força." — Mar. 12:30.
- "Adore a Jeová, seu Deus, e preste serviço sagrado apenas a ele." — Luc. 4:8.

6. Por que você quer ser leal a Jeová?

- “Seja sábio, meu filho, e alegre meu coração, para que eu possa dar uma resposta àquele que me desafia.” — Pro. 27:11.

7. Para quem você ora? E em nome de quem?

- “Digo-lhes com toda a certeza: Se pedirem ao Pai qualquer coisa em meu nome [Jesus], ele a dará a vocês.” — João 16:23.

8. Sobre que assuntos você pode orar?

- “Portanto, orem do seguinte modo: ‘Pai nosso, que estás nos céus, santificado seja o teu nome. Venha o teu Reino. Seja feita a tua vontade, como no céu, assim também na terra. Dá-nos hoje o nosso pão para este dia; e perdoa-nos as nossas dívidas, assim como nós também perdoamos os nossos devedores. E não nos leves à tentação, mas livra-nos do Maligno.’” — Mat. 6:9-13.
- “Esta é a confiança que temos nele: não importa o que peçamos segundo a sua vontade, ele nos ouve.” — 1 João 5:14.

9. Por que Jeová talvez não escute a oração de alguém?

- “Eles clamarão a Jeová por ajuda, mas ele não lhes responderá . . . por causa das suas maldades.” — Miq. 3:4.
- “Os olhos de Jeová estão sobre os justos, e os seus ouvidos escutam as súplicas deles, mas a face de Jeová se volta contra os que fazem coisas más.” — 1 Ped. 3:12.

10. Quem é Jesus Cristo?

- "Simão Pedro respondeu: 'O senhor é o Cristo, o Filho do Deus vivente.'" — Mat. 16:16.

11. Por que Jesus veio à Terra?

- "Ele [Jesus] lhes disse: 'Tenho de declarar as boas novas do Reino de Deus também a outras cidades, porque fui enviado para isso.'" — Luc. 4:43.

12. Como você pode mostrar gratidão pelo sacrifício de Jesus?

- "Ele morreu por todos para que os que vivem não vivessem mais para si mesmos, mas para aquele que morreu por eles e foi levantado." — 2 Cor. 5:15.

13. Que autoridade Jesus tem?

- "Foi-me dada toda a autoridade no céu e na terra." — Mat. 28:18.
- "Deus o enalteceu a uma posição superior e lhe deu bondosamente o nome que está acima de todo outro nome." — Fil. 2:9.

14. Você acredita que o Corpo Governante das Testemunhas de Jeová é o "escravo fiel e prudente" designado por Jesus?

- "Quem é realmente o escravo fiel e prudente, a quem o seu senhor encarregou dos seus domésticos, para lhes dar o alimento no tempo apropriado?" — Mat. 24:45.

15. Será que o espírito santo é uma pessoa?

- "O anjo lhe disse em resposta: 'Espírito santo virá sobre você e poder do Altíssimo a cobrirá com a sua sombra. E, por essa razão, aquele que nascer será chamado santo, Filho de Deus.'" — Luc. 1:35.
- "Portanto, se vocês, embora maus, sabem dar boas coisas aos seus filhos, quanto mais o Pai, no céu, dará espírito santo aos que lhe pedirem!" — Luc. 11:13.

16. Como Jeová usa seu espírito santo?

- "Por meio da palavra de Jeová foram feitos os céus; e por meio do espírito da sua boca, tudo que há neles." — Sal. 33:6.
- "Quando o espírito santo vier sobre vocês, receberão poder e serão minhas testemunhas . . . até a parte mais distante da terra." — Atos 1:8.
- "Nenhuma profecia das Escrituras se origina de interpretação pessoal. Porque a profecia nunca foi produzida pela vontade do homem, mas os homens falaram da parte de Deus conforme eram movidos por espírito santo." — 2 Ped. 1:20, 21.

17. O que é o Reino de Deus?

- "O Deus do céu estabelecerá um reino que jamais será destruído. E esse reino não passará para as mãos de nenhum outro povo. Vai esmigalhar e pôr um fim a todos esses reinos, e somente ele permanecerá para sempre.” — Dan. 2:44.

18. Como o Reino de Deus vai ser bom para você?

- “Ele enxugará dos seus olhos toda lágrima, e não haverá mais morte, nem haverá mais tristeza, nem choro, nem dor. As coisas anteriores já passaram.” — Apo. 21:4.

19. Como você sabe que as bênçãos do Reino estão bem perto?

- “Os discípulos se aproximaram dele em particular e disseram: ‘Diga-nos: Quando acontecerão essas coisas e qual será o sinal da sua presença e do final do sistema de coisas?’ Jesus, em resposta, lhes disse: ‘. . . Nação se levantará contra nação e reino contra reino; haverá falta de alimentos e terremotos num lugar após outro. E estas boas novas do Reino serão pregadas em toda a terra habitada, em testemunho a todas as nações, e então virá o fim.’” — Mat. 24:3, 4, 7, 14.
- “Nos últimos dias haverá tempos críticos, difíceis de suportar. Pois os homens só amarão a si mesmos, amarão o dinheiro, serão presunçosos, arrogantes, blasfemadores, desobedientes aos pais, ingratos, desleais, desnaturados, não estarão dispostos a acordos, serão caluniadores, sem autodomínio, ferozes, sem amor ao que é bom, traidores, teimosos, cheios de orgulho, amarão os prazeres em vez de a Deus e manterão uma aparência de devoção a Deus, mas rejeitarão o poder dessa devoção.” — 2 Tim. 3:1-5.

20. Como você mostra que o Reino é importante para você?

- "Persistam, então, em buscar primeiro o Reino e a justiça de Deus." — Mat. 6:33.
- "Jesus disse então aos seus discípulos: 'Se alguém quer ser meu seguidor, negue a si mesmo, apanhe sua estaca de tortura e siga-me sempre.'" — Mat. 16:24.

21. Quem é Satanás, e quem são os demônios?

- "Vocês são filhos do seu pai, o Diabo, e querem satisfazer os desejos do seu pai. Ele foi um assassino quando começou, e não permaneceu na verdade, porque nele não há verdade. Quando ele fala a mentira, está fazendo o que lhe é próprio, porque é um mentiroso e o pai da mentira." — João 8:44.
- "Foi lançado para baixo o grande dragão, a serpente original, o chamado Diabo e Satanás, que está enganando toda a terra habitada. Ele foi lançado para baixo, à terra, e os seus anjos foram lançados para baixo junto com ele." — Apo. 12:9.

22. Que acusação Satanás fez contra: (1) Jeová e (2) os servos de Jeová?

- "A mulher disse à serpente: 'Podemos comer do fruto das árvores do jardim. Mas, sobre o fruto da árvore que está no meio do jardim, Deus disse: "Não comam dele, não, nem toquem nele; do contrário, vocês morrerão."' Então a serpente disse à mulher: 'Vocês certamente não morrerão. Pois Deus sabe que, no mesmo dia em que comerem dele, seus olhos se abrirão e vocês serão como Deus, sabendo o que é bom e o que é mau.'" — Gên. 3:2-5.

- "Satanás disse a Jeová: 'Pele por pele. O homem dará tudo o que tem pela sua vida.'" — Jó 2:4.

23. No seu caso, como você pode provar que as acusações de Satanás são falsas?

PARTE 2 VIDA CRISTÃ

Em seu estudo da Bíblia, você aprendeu o que Jeová pede de você e como seguir os padrões de justiça dele. Para agir de acordo com o que aprendeu, você provavelmente precisou fazer várias mudanças na sua conduta e no modo como encara a vida. Você tomou a decisão de viver em harmonia com os padrões de justiça de Jeová e, assim, é um publicador não batizado das boas novas.

As perguntas a seguir vão ajudar você a ter bem em mente os requisitos justos de Jeová. Também vão ajudá-lo a lembrar de algumas coisas que você pode fazer para ser um servo de Jeová dedicado e batizado. Esses princípios vão gravar na sua mente e coração a importância de fazer todas as coisas com uma boa consciência para o louvor de Jeová. — 2 Cor. 1:12; 1 Tim. 1:19; 1 Ped. 3:16, 21.

Agora que chegou nesse ponto do estudo, com certeza você está ansioso para fazer parte da organização de Jeová e continuar obedecendo ao governo dele. As perguntas e os textos bíblicos a seguir vão ajudar você a refletir no papel que Deus determinou para cada um de nós na família, na congregação e com relação ao sistema político deste mundo. Assim, você vai valorizar ainda mais tudo o que Jeová tem feito para ensinar e fortalecer a fé do seu povo, o que inclui as reuniões congregacionais. E sem dúvida você vai querer assistir às reuniões e participar nelas o máximo que sua situação permite.

Além disso, as perguntas a seguir vão mostrar a importância de participar no serviço de campo com regularidade, ajudando outros a conhecer a Jeová e a aprender o que ele está fazendo pela humanidade. (Mat. 24:14; 28:19, 20) Estas perguntas também vão ajudar você a ver a seriedade de sua dedicação e batismo. Tenha certeza de que Jeová dá valor a tudo que você faz para mostrar que é grato pela bondade imerecida que ele demonstrou a você.

1. Qual é o conceito de Jeová sobre o casamento? Qual é a única base bíblica para o divórcio?

- "Não leram que aquele que os criou no princípio os fez homem e mulher, e disse: 'Por essa razão o homem deixará seu pai e sua mãe e se apegará à sua esposa, e os dois serão uma só carne'? De modo que não são mais dois, mas uma só carne. Portanto, o que Deus pôs sob o mesmo jugo, o homem não deve separar. . . . Quem se divorcia da sua esposa, a não ser por causa de imoralidade sexual, e se casa com outra, comete adultério." — Mat. 19:4-6, 9.

2. Por que os que moram juntos como marido e mulher devem estar legalmente casados? Se você for casado, tem certeza que seu casamento é legalizado e reconhecido pelo governo?

- "Continue a lembrar-lhes que estejam sujeitos e sejam obedientes a governos e autoridades." — Tito 3:1.

(c) Por que uma pessoa que talvez tenha ficado exposta a uma doença infecciosa deve fazer voluntariamente um exame de sangue antes de começar a namorar? (d) Por que a pessoa que tem uma doença contagiosa deve informar isso ao coordenador do corpo de anciãos antes de ser batizada?

10. O que você deve fazer se um irmão disser algo maldoso a seu respeito ou mentir para tirar dinheiro ou algo valioso de você?

Mas, se não o escutar, leve com você mais um ou dois, para que, com base no depoimento de duas ou três testemunhas, toda questão seja estabelecida. Se ele não os escutar, fale à congregação. 19. Por que as Testemunhas de Jeová não se envolvem na política?

CONSIDERAÇÃO FINAL
COM OS CANDIDATOS AO BATISMO

Os batismos geralmente são realizados nas assembleias e nos congressos das Testemunhas de Jeová. Na conclusão do discurso de batismo, o orador pedirá aos candidatos ao batismo que se levantem e respondam em voz alta estas duas perguntas:

1. Você se arrependeu dos seus pecados, dedicou sua vida a Jeová e aceitou que o meio de salvação escolhido por Jeová é Jesus Cristo?

2. Você entende que, ao se batizar, você se torna Testemunha de Jeová e passa a fazer parte da organização de Deus?

Ao responderem "sim" a essas perguntas, os candidatos ao batismo estão fazendo uma 'declaração pública' de que têm fé no resgate e que dedicaram a vida a Jeová. (Rom. 10:9, 10) É importante que eles meditem nessas perguntas e orem a respeito delas com antecedência, para que possam responder de acordo com suas convicções pessoais.

Você se dedicou a Jeová por meio de uma oração, prometendo que vai adorar somente a ele e dizendo que a vontade dele vai ser a coisa mais importante da sua vida?

Você tem certeza absoluta de que está pronto para ser batizado?

Que roupa é apropriada para o batismo? (1 Tim. 2:9, 10; João 15:19; Fil. 1:10)

Devemos nos vestir com "modéstia e bom critério" para mostrar nossa "devoção a Deus". Assim, os que vão se batizar não devem vestir roupa de banho que mostram mais do que deviam, nem roupas com dizeres, propagandas ou desenhos. Eles devem se vestir de um modo arrumado, limpo, de bom gosto e apropriado para a ocasião.

Como a pessoa deve se comportar ao ser batizada? (Luc. 3:21, 22)

O batismo de Jesus serve de modelo para os batismos cristãos hoje. Ele entendia que o batismo é um passo sério e demonstrou isso em pensamentos e ações. Assim, o local do batismo não deve ser usado para nadar, fazer brincadeiras ou outras coisas que poderiam mostrar desrespeito pela ocasião; não seria apropriado a pessoa, após o batismo, agir como se tivesse alcançado uma grande vitória. Embora o batismo seja uma ocasião alegre, essa alegria deve ser expressa de maneira digna.

Como é que se reunir e estar com os irmãos da congregação vai ajudar você a continuar vivendo à altura de sua dedicação a Jeová?

Depois do batismo, por que será importante você continuar a ter uma boa programação de estudo pessoal e a participar regularmente no ministério?

INSTRUÇÕES PARA OS ANCIÃOS

Quando um publicador não batizado informa que deseja se batizar, ele deve ser incentivado a ler com atenção as "Perguntas para os que desejam se batizar", nas páginas 185-207 deste livro. Deve-se pedir a ele que leia a "Mensagem para o publicador não batizado", a partir da página 182, que explica como ele pode se preparar para considerar a matéria com os anciãos. Conforme mencionado ali, ele pode usar seu livro e suas anotações durante as considerações. Mas ele não precisa repassar as perguntas com alguém antes de se reunir com os anciãos.

Quem quiser se batizar deve falar com o coordenador do corpo de anciãos. Depois que a pessoa tiver lido as "Perguntas para os que desejam se batizar", o coordenador do corpo de anciãos vai perguntar se ela orou para se dedicar a Jeová e fazer a vontade dele. Se a pessoa já tiver feito essa oração, daí o coordenador do corpo de anciãos vai pedir que dois anciãos considerem com ela as "Perguntas para os que desejam se batizar". Cada uma das duas partes das "Perguntas para os que desejam se batizar" deve ser feita por um ancião diferente. Essas considerações podem ser feitas mesmo antes de se anunciar a data de uma assembleia ou congresso.

As duas partes geralmente podem ser feitas em duas sessões de cerca de uma hora cada uma, embora não haja objeção a que se use mais tempo, se necessário.

Cada sessão deve começar e terminar com oração. Nem a pessoa que vai se batizar nem os anciãos devem ter pressa ao considerar as perguntas. Os anciãos designados devem dar prioridade a essa consideração, apesar de terem outras responsabilidades.

Em geral é melhor considerar as perguntas com os candidatos ao batismo individualmente, não em grupo. Quando a pessoa responde a todas as perguntas, isso dá aos anciãos uma ideia clara de quanto entendimento ela tem das verdades da Bíblia, não deixando dúvidas de que ela está pronta para o batismo. Além disso, a consideração individual pode deixar a pessoa mais à vontade para se expressar. Marido e esposa podem participar das sessões juntos.

Quando um ancião considera as perguntas com uma irmã, as sessões devem ser realizadas onde outros possam facilmente vê-los, mas não ouvir o que dizem. Se for necessário levar alguém junto, deve ser um ancião ou servo ministerial, dependendo da sessão a ser considerada, conforme explica o próximo parágrafo.

Se houver poucos anciãos na congregação, servos ministeriais habilitados que têm demonstrado bom critério e discernimento podem considerar com a pessoa as perguntas que estão na "Parte 1: Ensinos cristãos". Apenas anciãos devem considerar a "Parte 2: Vida cristã". Se a congregação não tiver um número suficiente de irmãos qualificados, pode-se contatar o superintendente de circuito para que ele verifique se uma congregação vizinha pode ajudar.

Se for alguém menor de idade que quer se batizar, seus pais cristãos (ou um deles) devem estar presentes nas sessões. Se os pais cristãos (ou um deles) não puderem acompanhar, então cada sessão deve ter dois anciãos (ou um ancião e um servo ministerial, dependendo da sessão que vai ser feita).

Os anciãos devem se certificar de que a pessoa que deseja se batizar tenha um entendimento razoável dos principais ensinos bíblicos. Além disso, desejarão saber se ela dá valor à verdade e demonstra o devido respeito pela organização de Jeová. Se a pessoa não compreende os principais ensinos da Bíblia, os anciãos providenciarão que ela receba ajuda pessoal a fim de se habilitar para o batismo em outra ocasião. Outros talvez precisem de tempo para mostrar que entenderam bem coisas como a importância do serviço de campo e a obediência aos procedimentos da organização. Os anciãos deverão usar de bom critério para aproveitar bem o tempo de cada sessão, de uma hora ou pouco mais, a fim de discernir plenamente se a pessoa está pronta para o batismo. Embora se possa gastar mais tempo com algumas perguntas e menos com outras, todas as perguntas devem ser feitas.

Os anciãos designados para considerar essas perguntas se reunirão depois da segunda sessão e decidirão se a pessoa pode ou não ser batizada. Eles levarão em conta a formação, as limitações e outras circunstâncias de cada pessoa. O mais importante é determinar se ela desenvolveu amor por Jeová e entendeu as verdades fundamentais da Bíblia. Com nossa ajuda amorosa, os que se batizam estarão bem preparados para cumprir a importante designação que temos: pregar as boas novas.

Depois, um ou os dois anciãos que consideraram as perguntas do batismo com o publicador se reunirão com ele para lhe dizer se está qualificado ou não para o batismo. Se a pessoa se qualificar, os anciãos deverão considerar com ela a matéria nas páginas 206-207, "Consideração final com os candidatos ao batismo". Se a pessoa ainda não terminou de estudar o livro Seja Feliz para Sempre!, os anciãos devem incentivá-la a fazer isso depois do batismo. Informem ao candidato que a data de batismo dele vai ser colocada no Registro de Publicador de Congregação, que foi feito para ele. Relembre-o de que os anciãos recolhem as informações pessoais do publicador nesse registro para que a organização possa cuidar das atividades religiosas das Testemunhas de Jeová no mundo todo. Eles também recolhem essas informações para que ele possa participar em atividades espirituais e receber apoio espiritual. Além disso, os anciãos relembram aos novos publicadores que todas as informações pessoais são cuidadas de acordo com a política global das Testemunhas de Jeová sobre proteção de informações, que está no jw.org. Essa reunião em geral não passa de dez minutos.

Um ano depois do batismo do publicador, dois anciãos devem se reunir com ele para dar incentivo e sugestões úteis. Um dos anciãos deve ser o superintendente do grupo do publicador. Se ele for jovem, seus pais cristãos (ou um deles) devem estar presentes.

Essa reunião deve ser agradável e edificante. Os anciãos analisarão como o publicador já progrediu depois do batismo e darão sugestões práticas sobre como ele pode continuar com uma boa rotina de estudo pessoal e leitura da Bíblia, adoração em família semanal, assistência regular às reuniões e participação nelas, e atividade semanal de serviço de campo. (Efé. 5:15, 16) Se ele não terminou de estudar o livro Seja Feliz para Sempre!, os anciãos devem providenciar que alguém estude com ele. Os anciãos devem ser amorosos e dar elogios. Em geral, basta dar conselhos e sugestões sobre um ou dois pontos.

1 JEOVÁ

Jeová é o nome de Deus. Esse nome pode significar "Ele faz com que venha a ser". Jeová é o Deus Todo-Poderoso. Ele criou todas as coisas e tem o poder de fazer qualquer coisa que quiser.

No idioma hebraico, o nome de Deus se escreve com quatro letras. Em português, essas letras são YHWH. Na parte da Bíblia que foi escrita em hebraico, o nome de Deus aparece quase 7 mil vezes. Em todo o mundo, as pessoas falam e escrevem o nome Jeová do jeito que é mais comum no idioma delas.

2 A BÍBLIA É "INSPIRADA POR DEUS"

A Bíblia é de Deus. Mas ele usou homens para escrever a Bíblia. Isso é parecido com uma avó que pede para o neto escrever uma carta que ela vai ditar. A carta é da avó, não do neto. Os escritores da Bíblia escreveram os pensamentos de Deus. Deus usou o espírito santo para orientar esses escritores de maneiras diferentes. Por exemplo, às vezes, eles tinham uma visão ou um sonho e escreviam o que tinham visto ou sonhado.

3 PRINCÍPIOS

São orientações que nos ensinam uma lição que podemos usar em muitas situações. Um exemplo de princípio é o que lemos em 1 Coríntios 15:33: "Más companhias estragam bons hábitos." Essa orientação mostra que as pessoas nos influenciam, para o bem ou para o mal. Então, precisamos escolher bem nossos amigos. Outro princípio é o de Gálatas 6:7: "O que a pessoa semear, isso também colherá." Isso nos lembra de que tudo o que fazemos tem consequências.

4 PROFECIA

É uma mensagem de Deus. Pode servir para explicar a vontade de Deus, para declarar o julgamento dele, para dar uma orientação ou uma ordem. Profecia também pode ser uma mensagem sobre o que vai acontecer no futuro. Muitas profecias da Bíblia já se cumpriram.

5 PROFECIAS SOBRE O MESSIAS

Jesus cumpriu as profecias da Bíblia sobre o Messias. Veja o quadro "Profecias sobre o Messias".

▸ Capítulo 2, nota do parágrafo 17

6 O QUE DEUS QUER PARA A TERRA

Deus criou a Terra para ser um paraíso. E criou as pessoas para morar nesse paraíso. Elas deviam amar a Deus. Ele ainda quer isso. Logo Deus vai acabar com a maldade e as pessoas obedientes vão viver para sempre.

7 SATANÁS, O DIABO

É um anjo que se tornou mau. Satanás quer dizer "opositor", alguém que fica contra outra pessoa. Por isso, o anjo que começou a lutar contra Deus é chamado de Satanás. Diabo quer dizer "caluniador", alguém que engana e mente para prejudicar outra pessoa. Satanás mente sobre Deus e engana as pessoas. Por isso, ele também é chamado de Diabo.

PROFECIAS SOBRE O MESSIAS

8 ANJOS

Muito antes de criar a Terra, Jeová criou os anjos para morar no céu. Existem mais de 100 milhões de anjos. (Daniel 7:10) Nenhum anjo é igual ao outro. Cada um tem um nome e um jeito de ser. Os anjos fiéis a Deus são humildes. Não querem ser adorados. Eles têm responsabilidades diferentes e recebem várias tarefas. Por exemplo, a Bíblia fala de anjos trabalhando perto do trono de Jeová. Os anjos entregam mensagens de Jeová. Protegem e orientam os servos de Deus na Terra. Além disso, os anjos fazem acontecer o que Jeová decide e ajudam na pregação. (Salmo 34:7; Apocalipse 14:6; 22:8, 9) No futuro, eles estarão com Jesus na guerra do Armagedom. — Apocalipse 16:14, 16; 19:14, 15.

9 PECADO

É tudo o que pensamos, sentimos ou fazemos contrário ao que Jeová quer. O pecado nos afasta de Deus. Jeová nos dá leis e orientações para nos ajudar a não fazer o que é errado. Ele criou tudo perfeito, mas Adão e Eva escolheram desobedecer a Deus. Isso foi um pecado, e eles deixaram de ser perfeitos. Começaram a ficar velhos e depois morreram. Nós viemos de Adão e por isso também somos imperfeitos, ficamos velhos e morremos.

10 ARMAGEDOM

É a guerra de Deus para destruir toda a maldade e o mundo de Satanás.

▸ Capítulo 3, parágrafo 13; capítulo 8, parágrafo 18

11 O REINO DE DEUS

É um governo que Jeová formou lá no céu. Ele escolheu Jesus para ser o Rei. Jeová vai usar o Reino para acabar com toda a maldade. O Reino de Deus vai governar a Terra inteira para sempre.

12 JESUS CRISTO

É o Filho de Deus. Jeová Deus criou Jesus antes de qualquer outra coisa ou pessoa. Deus mandou Jesus para a Terra para morrer por nós. Jesus foi ressuscitado. Ele voltou para o céu e é Rei do Reino de Deus.

13 A PROFECIA DE DANIEL SOBRE O MESSIAS

Essa profecia fala de um tempo de 70 semanas. Primeiro, levaria 69 semanas até o Messias aparecer. Essas 69 semanas começaram no ano 455 antes de Cristo e terminaram no ano 29 da nossa época.

Como podemos saber que essas datas estão certas? A Bíblia mostra que a profecia começaria a se cumprir quando a cidade de Jerusalém começasse a ser reconstruída. E, em 455 antes de Cristo, Neemias chegou para reconstruir Jerusalém. (Daniel 9:25; Neemias 2:1, 5-8) A partir daí, é só contar 69 semanas. Uma semana tem sete dias. Mas na profecia cada dia vale um ano porque a Bíblia diz: “Para cada dia um ano.” (Números 14:34; Ezequiel 4:6) Então, se cada semana vale sete anos, para saber quantos anos levaria até chegar o Messias temos que fazer a conta 69 x 7. Isso vai dar 483 anos. Começando a contar esses anos no ano 455 antes de Cristo, chegamos no ano 29 da nossa época. Esse foi o ano em que Jesus se batizou e se tornou o Messias. — Lucas 3:1, 2, 21, 22.

Mas a profecia fala de 70 semanas, um total de 490 anos. A última semana de sete anos começou no ano 29. No meio dessa semana, no ano 33, o Messias seria morto. No fim dessa semana, no ano 36, as boas notícias sobre o Reino de Deus começariam a ser pregadas não só para os judeus, mas para todos. — Daniel 9:24-27.

14 A TRINDADE É UM ENSINO FALSO

Algumas religiões ensinam a Trindade, ou seja, que o Pai, o Filho e o espírito santo são um só Deus. Mas a palavra trindade não existe na Bíblia. A Bíblia diz que Jeová Deus é o Criador. Jeová criou Jesus antes de todas as outras coisas. (Colossenses 1:15, 16) Jesus é Filho de Deus. Jesus não é o Deus Todo-Poderoso e nunca disse que era igual a Deus. Jesus disse: "O Pai é maior do que eu." (João 14:28; 1 Coríntios 15:28) Isso mostra que a Trindade é um ensino falso.

E o que é o espírito santo? Não é uma pessoa. É o poder de Deus. Deus usa esse poder invisível para fazer o que deseja. Por exemplo, a Bíblia fala de cristãos que "ficaram cheios de espírito santo". E Deus disse: "Derramarei do meu espírito sobre todo tipo de pessoas." — Atos 2:1-4, 17.

15 A CRUZ

Os verdadeiros cristãos não usam a cruz. Por que não?

(1) Faz tempo que a religião falsa usa a cruz. No passado, a cruz era usada em cultos religiosos não cristãos que envolviam sexo e para adorar a natureza. Os cristãos não usavam a cruz. Foi só uns 300 anos depois da morte de Jesus que o imperador romano Constantino decidiu que a cruz devia ser usada na religião cristã. A cruz foi usada para tentar trazer mais pessoas ao cristianismo. Mas a cruz não tem nada a ver com Jesus Cristo. A Nova Enciclopédia Católica, em inglês, diz que a cruz era usada por povos que existiam antes de Cristo e por povos não cristãos.

(2) Jesus não morreu numa cruz. Algumas Bíblias usam a palavra cruz, mas as palavras usadas no grego significam basicamente uma estaca, um tronco ou uma árvore.

A Bíblia Companheira, em inglês, explica que o texto grego não indica que foram usados dois pedaços de madeira cruzados. Jesus morreu num poste de madeira.

(3) Jeová não quer que as pessoas adorem a ele usando imagens. — Êxodo 20:4, 5; 1 Coríntios 10:14.

16 CELEBRAÇÃO DA MORTE DE CRISTO

Jesus mandou seus discípulos se lembrarem da morte dele. Para obedecer a essa ordem, os cristãos fazem uma reunião especial chamada Celebração da morte de Cristo. Essa reunião é feita todos os anos, no dia 14 do mês de nisã. Era também nesse dia que os israelitas comemoravam a páscoa judaica. Na Celebração da morte de Cristo, o pão e o vinho passam de mão em mão. O pão representa o corpo de Jesus e o vinho representa o sangue dele. Só aqueles que vão ser reis com Jesus no céu comem o pão e bebem o vinho. As pessoas que têm a esperança de viver para sempre no Paraíso na Terra não comem o pão nem bebem o vinho. Mas elas vão a essa reunião especial porque dão valor ao que Jesus fez por nós.

17 ALMA

Nas línguas dos escritores da Bíblia, a palavra “alma” pode significar (1) uma pessoa, (2) um animal ou (3) a vida de uma pessoa ou de um animal. A Tradução do Novo Mundo usou esses três significados. Veja alguns exemplos:

Uma pessoa. ‘Nos dias de Noé, poucas pessoas, isto é, oito almas, foram levadas a salvo através da água.’ (1 Pedro 3:20, nota) Nesse caso, oito almas são oito pessoas, ou seja, Noé e a esposa, e os três filhos deles com suas esposas.

Um animal. "Deus disse: 'Que a terra produza criaturas [ou "almas"] viventes segundo as suas espécies: animais domésticos, animais rasteiros e animais selvagens da terra, segundo as suas espécies.' E assim se deu." — Gênesis 1:20, 24, nota.

A vida de uma pessoa ou de um animal. Jeová disse para Moisés: "Todos os homens que procuravam matá-lo [ou "procuravam a sua alma"] estão mortos." (Êxodo 4:19, nota) Jesus disse: "Eu sou o bom pastor; o bom pastor dá a sua vida [ou "alma"] pelas ovelhas." — João 10:11, nota.

Além disso, a Bíblia fala de uma pessoa fazer alguma coisa "de toda a sua alma". Isso quer dizer que a pessoa faz o melhor que pode e de boa vontade. (Mateus 22:37; Deuteronômio 6:5) Às vezes, a palavra "alma" foi usada para falar de um desejo ou apetite muito grande de uma pessoa ou de um animal. E uma pessoa morta ou um animal morto poderiam ser chamados de almas mortas. — Números 6:6; Provérbios 23:2; Isaías 56:11; Ageu 2:13.

18 ESPÍRITO

A Tradução do Novo Mundo usa a palavra "espírito". No grego e no hebraico, essa palavra pode significar coisas diferentes, mas sempre coisas que não podemos ver, como o vento ou o ar que respiramos. A palavra "espírito" também é usada para falar de anjos e do espírito santo, que é o poder de Deus. A Bíblia não ensina que, quando uma pessoa morre, uma parte dela continua vivendo em outro lugar. — Êxodo 35:21; Salmo 104:29; Mateus 12:43; Lucas 11:13.

19 GEENA

Era o nome de um vale perto da cidade de Jerusalém. Nesse lugar, eles queimavam o lixo e não sobrava nada. Não existe nenhuma prova de que esse lugar fosse usado no tempo de Jesus para torturar ou queimar pessoas ou animais vivos. Por isso, quando Jesus falou de Geena, ele não estava falando de um lugar invisível para torturar e queimar para sempre pessoas que morreram. Jesus estava falando de uma destruição completa. — Mateus 5:22; 10:28.

20 A ORAÇÃO DO PAI-NOSSO

Jesus usou essa oração para ensinar os discípulos a orar. Por exemplo, ele ensinou os discípulos a pedir:

“Santificado seja o teu nome”

Esse é um pedido para que o nome de Deus seja limpo das mentiras ensinadas sobre ele. Quando isso acontecer, todos no céu e na Terra vão respeitar e honrar a Deus.

“Venha o teu Reino”

Esse é um pedido para que o governo de Deus acabe com o mundo mau de Satanás, governe a Terra inteira e transforme a Terra num paraíso.

‘Seja feita a tua vontade na Terra’

Esse é um pedido para que aconteça o que Jeová sempre quis para a Terra. Jeová quer que as pessoas obedientes sejam perfeitas e vivam para sempre num paraíso.

21 O RESGATE

Quando Adão pecou, ele perdeu a vida perfeita. Por isso nós somos imperfeitos e morremos. E nós não podemos ter uma amizade perfeita com Jeová. Para nos livrar dessa situação, uma pessoa perfeita teria que dar a sua vida por nós. Isso é o que a Bíblia chama de resgate. Então, Jeová mandou Jesus para a Terra para morrer por nós. A morte de Jesus nos dá a chance de sermos perfeitos e vivermos para sempre.

22 POR QUE O ANO 1914 É IMPORTANTE?

A profecia em Daniel capítulo 4 mostra que o Reino de Deus começou a governar em 1914.

O que a profecia diz? Jeová fez o rei Nabucodonosor ter um sonho sobre um acontecimento futuro. O rei viu uma árvore muito grande ser cortada. Daí, um anjo mandou amarrar o toco da árvore com ferro e cobre. Por causa disso, a árvore não cresceria durante "sete tempos". Depois a árvore voltaria a crescer. — Daniel 4:1, 10-16.

O que essa profecia significa? Na profecia, a árvore é o governo de Deus. Por muitos anos, Deus governou a nação de Israel usando reis em Jerusalém. (1 Crônicas 29:23) Mas esses reis nem sempre foram obedientes a Deus. Então, Deus decidiu parar de usar reis para governar em seu nome. Isso era como derrubar a árvore e não deixar a árvore crescer por "sete tempos". Esses "sete tempos" começaram quando Jerusalém foi destruída, no ano 607 antes de Cristo. (2 Reis 25:1, 8-10; Ezequiel 21:25-27) Os "sete tempos" ainda não tinham terminado quando Jesus esteve na Terra. Ele mostrou isso quando disse: "Jerusalém será pisada pelas nações até se cumprirem os tempos determinados das nações." Os "tempos determinados" eram os "sete tempos". (Lucas 21:24) Na profecia, a árvore voltaria a crescer no fim dos “sete tempos”. Jeová prometeu escolher um novo rei. Esse Rei é Jesus. O governo de Jesus vai durar para sempre e vai fazer coisas boas para todos. — Lucas 1:30-33.

Quanto duraram os “sete tempos”? Os “sete tempos” duraram 2.520 anos. Eles começaram no ano 607 antes de Cristo e terminaram no ano 1914. Foi nesse ano que Jeová coroou Jesus Cristo como Rei do Reino no céu.

Como chegamos a essa conclusão? A Bíblia diz que três tempos e meio são 1.260 dias. (Apocalipse 12:6, 14) Três tempos e meio são metade de sete tempos. Então, para saber quantos dias são sete tempos, temos que fazer 1.260 x 2, ou seja, sete tempos são 2.520 dias. Mas na profecia cada dia vale um ano porque a Bíblia diz: “Para cada dia um ano.” — Números 14:34; Ezequiel 4:6.

23 MIGUEL, O ARCANJO

“Arcanjo” significa “anjo principal”. A Bíblia fala de só um arcanjo. O nome dele é Miguel. — Daniel 12:1; Judas 9.

Miguel é o Líder do exército de anjos fiéis de Deus. Apocalipse 12:7 diz: “Miguel e os seus anjos batalharam contra o dragão.” Sabemos que Miguel é outro nome de Jesus porque Apocalipse também diz que Jesus é o Líder do exército de Deus. — Apocalipse 19:14-16.

24 OS ÚLTIMOS DIAS

É o tempo que vem logo antes de o Reino de Deus destruir o mundo de Satanás. Nesse tempo, aconteceriam aqui na Terra as coisas que Jesus disse. A Bíblia também chama os últimos dias de "final do sistema de coisas" e de "presença do Filho do Homem". (Mateus 24:3, 27, 37) Os "últimos dias" começaram quando Jesus se tornou Rei no céu em 1914 e vão terminar quando o mundo governado por Satanás for destruído no Armagedom. — 2 Timóteo 3:1; 2 Pedro 3:3.

25 RESSURREIÇÃO

É fazer uma pessoa que morreu voltar a viver. A ressurreição acontece pelo poder de Deus. Elias, Eliseu, Jesus, Pedro e Paulo fizeram ressurreições por meio desse poder. A Bíblia fala de nove ressurreições. Jeová Deus promete "uma ressurreição tanto de justos como de injustos" que vão voltar a viver na Terra. (Atos 24:15) Mas a Bíblia também fala de outro tipo de ressurreição. É a ressurreição daqueles que Deus escolheu para viver e reinar com Jesus no céu. — João 5:28, 29; 11:25; Filipenses 3:11; Apocalipse 20:5, 6.

26 OCULTISMO

É tentar fazer contato com poderes sobrenaturais. Tentar falar com espíritos faz parte do ocultismo. Às vezes, esse contato é feito por meio de um médium espírita, benzedeiro ou vidente. Quem faz isso acredita que os mortos continuam vivendo em outro lugar e são espíritos poderosos. Mas isso é uma mentira. Os demônios usam o ocultismo para enganar as pessoas. O ocultismo inclui astrologia, horóscopo, adivinhação, magia, feitiçaria e superstições. Muitos livros, revistas, filmes, pôsteres e até músicas falam desses assuntos. Pode parecer que essas coisas são interessantes ou que não fazem mal, mas elas têm ligação com os demônios. Nos funerais, alguns costumes também se baseiam no ensino errado de que os mortos continuam vivos. Por exemplo, o costume de acender velas, fazer festas ou dar presentes para os mortos. Tudo isso tem ligação com os demônios. Muitas vezes, as pessoas usam drogas para tentar fazer contato com os poderes sobrenaturais. — Gálatas 5:20; Apocalipse 21:8.

27 A SOBERANIA DE JEOVÁ

É o direito que Jeová tem de governar sua criação porque ele é o Criador. Ele tem toda a autoridade. (Salmo 24:1; Isaías 40:21-23; Apocalipse 4:11) Tudo no Universo é de Jeová. Ele é o Deus Todo-Poderoso. (Apocalipse 15:3) Jeová fez leis para toda a sua criação. Jeová tem também autoridade para dizer quem pode governar no nome dele. Nós mostramos que aceitamos a soberania de Deus quando obedecemos a ele por amor. — 1 Crônicas 29:11.

28 ABORTO

É tirar de propósito a vida de um bebê que ainda não nasceu. É errado fazer isso. Para Deus, o feto não é só uma parte do corpo da mãe. Desde o momento em que a mulher fica grávida, o bebê já é outra vida e outra pessoa.

29 TRANSFUSÃO DE SANGUE

É colocar sangue no corpo de uma pessoa. Pode ser o sangue da própria pessoa que foi guardado ou o sangue de outra pessoa. Existe também a transfusão de partes do sangue. As quatro partes principais do sangue são plasma, glóbulos vermelhos, glóbulos brancos e plaquetas.

30 DISCIPLINA

Na Bíblia, disciplina não quer dizer apenas punição ou castigo. Disciplinar é ensinar e corrigir. Jeová dá um bom exemplo aos pais. Quando disciplina, Jeová nunca é cruel ou duro com as pessoas. (Provérbios 4:1, 2) A disciplina de Jeová sempre faz bem para as pessoas. Por isso, é até possível amar a disciplina. (Provérbios 12:1) Jeová ama e treina seu povo. Ele ensina seu povo a corrigir ideias erradas e a pensar e agir de um modo que agrada a ele. A disciplina que os pais devem dar aos filhos inclui ensinar a eles o que acontece de bom quando eles são obedientes. Os pais também devem ensinar os filhos a amar a Jeová e a Palavra dele, a Bíblia. E devem ajudar os filhos a entender as orientações da Bíblia.

31 DEMÔNIOS

São anjos poderosos que se tornaram maus. Eles se tornaram inimigos de Deus quando desobedeceram a ele. (Gênesis 6:2; Judas 6) Eles escolheram seguir a Satanás e ficar contra Jeová. — Deuteronômio 32:17; Lucas 8:30; Atos 16:16; Tiago 2:19.

1 FORTALEÇA SUA FÉ

"[Fortaleçam-se] na sua santíssima fé."
— Judas 20

O que vai nos ajudar a fortalecer nossa fé?

Efésios 6:11; Tiago 1:25; 1 Pedro 5:8
Pense em como obedecer a Jeová nos protege e nos ajuda a ter uma vida melhor.

Mateus 28:19, 20; 1 Tessalonicenses 5:17; Hebreus 10:24, 25
Para fortalecer nossa fé, precisamos orar com frequência, falar a outros sobre Jeová e estar sempre com nossos irmãos.

Salmo 55:22; Isaías 48:17, 18
Lembre que Jeová nunca vai nos abandonar. Quando obedecemos a ele, temos paz.

2 QUEREMOS SER CRISTÃOS MADUROS

"Avancemos à madureza." — Hebreus 6:1

O que significa ser um cristão maduro?

Romanos 8:5; Hebreus 5:14
É preciso tempo e esforço para se tornar um cristão maduro. Um cristão maduro tenta ver as coisas como Jeová vê e por isso toma boas decisões.

Provérbios 27:11; Tiago 1:2, 3
As provações são oportunidades para fortalecermos a fé e provarmos que amamos a Jeová.

Provérbios 3:5, 6; Tiago 1:5
Quando temos que tomar decisões, meditamos no que Jeová gostaria que nós fizéssemos e pedimos a ajuda dele.

2 Coríntios 13:5
Nunca pare de aprender sobre Jeová e de fortalecer sua amizade com ele.

3 CONCENTRE-SE NA SUA ESPERANÇA

"Usemos . . . , como capacete, a esperança da salvação." — 1 Tessalonicenses 5:8

Como a esperança nos protege?

Hebreus 12:2
A esperança que temos para o futuro nos dá forças. Precisamos pensar em como a esperança que Jesus tinha o ajudou a enfrentar provações.

Filipenses 4:6, 7
Se percebermos que nossa esperança está enfraquecendo, precisamos orar a Jeová. Dúvidas e pensamentos negativos enfraquecem a fé. Mas Jeová vai nos dar coragem e paz mental.

Malaquias 3:10; Romanos 8:21
Precisamos sempre meditar na nossa esperança para o futuro. O novo mundo vai ser melhor do que qualquer coisa que podemos imaginar.

Salmo 37:4; Judas 21
Jeová quer ser o nosso melhor Amigo. Temos que fazer o máximo para obedecer a ele e ser cada vez mais amigo dele.

ASSUNTOS

1 PRINCÍPIOS

As leis de Deus se baseiam nos seus princípios. Esses princípios são verdades básicas que estão na Bíblia. Eles nos ajudam a entender o que Deus pensa e como ele se sente sobre os assuntos. Os princípios nos ajudam a tomar boas decisões na vida e a fazer o que é certo. Eles nos ajudam especialmente quando não existe uma lei de Deus dizendo exatamente o que fazer.

2 OBEDIÊNCIA

Obedecer a Jeová significa fazer de coração o que ele nos pede. Jeová quer que nossa obediência seja motivada por amor. (1 João 5:3) Se amarmos a Deus e confiarmos nele, vamos obedecer seus conselhos em todas as situações. Vamos fazer isso mesmo quando não for fácil. Para nós, é muito bom obedecer a Jeová, porque ele nos ensina a ter uma vida feliz agora e promete nos dar muitas bênçãos no futuro. — Isaías 48:17.

3 LIBERDADE DE ESCOLHA

Jeová deu a cada pessoa liberdade de escolha, ou seja, podemos tomar nossas próprias decisões. Ele não nos criou como robôs. (Deuteronômio 30:19; Josué 24:15) Podemos usar nossa liberdade para tomar boas decisões. Mas se não tomarmos cuidado, podemos tomar decisões ruins. Ter liberdade de escolha significa que cada um de nós tem que decidir se quer ser leal a Jeová e provar que o ama de verdade.

4 ORIENTAÇÕES SOBRE O QUE É CERTO E ERRADO

Jeová nos deu orientações sobre o que é certo e errado e sobre como agir. Na Bíblia, podemos aprender essas orientações e ver como elas nos ajudam a agradar a Jeová e a ter uma vida feliz. (Provérbios 6:16-19; 1 Coríntios 6:9-11) Essas orientações nos ensinam como Deus pensa. Também nos ensinam a ser amorosos, a tomar boas decisões e a ser bondosos com outros. Embora o modo de agir do mundo continue a piorar, o que Jeová diz que é certo e errado não muda. (Deuteronômio 32:4-6; Malaquias 3:6) Obedecer as orientações de Jeová nos protege de muita dor e sofrimento.

5 CONSCIÊNCIA

A consciência é a capacidade que temos dentro de nós de perceber se uma coisa é certa ou errada. Jeová deu a cada um de nós uma consciência. (Romanos 2:14, 15) Para funcionar bem, ela precisa ser treinada de acordo com o que Deus diz que é certo e errado. Daí nossa consciência vai poder nos ajudar a tomar decisões que deixam Jeová feliz. (1 Pedro 3:16) A consciência pode nos avisar quando estamos para tomar uma decisão ruim. E quando fazemos uma coisa errada, podemos ficar com dor de consciência. Nossa consciência pode ficar fraca, mas com a ajuda de Jeová ela pode voltar a ficar forte. Uma boa consciência nos permite ter paz mental e respeito próprio.

6 TEMOR A DEUS

Ter temor a Deus significa que amamos e respeitamos tanto a Deus que não queremos fazer nada que o deixe triste. Esse temor nos ajuda a fazer o que é certo e não fazer o que é errado. (Salmo 111:10) Por causa disso, prestamos atenção a tudo o que Jeová diz. Temer a Deus também nos ajuda a cumprir o que prometemos a Jeová, já que o respeitamos tanto. O temor a Deus influencia nosso modo de pensar, como tratamos outros e as escolhas que fazemos todos os dias.

7 ARREPENDIMENTO

Arrependimento inclui a grande tristeza que uma pessoa sente por ter feito algo errado. Os que amam a Deus ficam muito tristes quando percebem que fizeram algo que vai contra o que Jeová diz que é certo. Quando erramos, temos que pedir perdão a Jeová por meio do sacrifício de resgate de Jesus. (Mateus 26:28; 1 João 2:1, 2) Quando nos arrependemos de coração e paramos de fazer o que é errado, podemos ter certeza de que Jeová vai nos perdoar. Não precisamos mais nos sentir culpados pelo que fizemos no passado. (Salmo 103:10-14; 1 João 1:9; 3:19-22) Temos que nos esforçar para aprender com os erros, mudar pensamentos errados e viver de acordo com o que Jeová diz que é certo.

8 SER DESASSOCIADO

Quando alguém comete um pecado grave, não se arrepende e não quer seguir as orientações de Jeová, ele não pode mais ser membro da congregação. Ele tem que ser desassociado. Quando alguém é desassociado, paramos de ter contato com ele e não falamos mais com ele. (1 Coríntios 5:11; 2 João 9-11) Desassociar alguém protege o nome de Jeová e a congregação. (1 Coríntios 5:6) É uma disciplina que ajuda a pessoa a se arrepender para poder voltar para Jeová. — Lucas 15:17.

9 ORIENTAÇÃO E CONSELHO

Jeová nos ama e quer nos ajudar. É por isso que ele nos dá orientação e conselho por meio da Bíblia e de pessoas que amam a Deus. Somos imperfeitos e não podemos viver sem essa ajuda. (Jeremias 17:9) Quando ouvimos com respeito as pessoas que Jeová usa para nos orientar, mostramos que respeitamos a Jeová e queremos obedecer a ele. — Hebreus 13:7.

10 ORGULHO E HUMILDADE

Somos imperfeitos e por isso é fácil sermos egoístas e orgulhosos. Mas Jeová espera que sejamos humildes. Geralmente passamos a entender o que é humildade quando nos comparamos com Jeová e vemos como somos pequenos. (Jó 38:1-4) Ser humilde também é aprender a pensar mais nos outros e no que vai ser bom para eles do que em nós mesmos. O orgulho costuma fazer a pessoa pensar que é melhor do que os outros. Quem é humilde olha para si mesmo de modo honesto e vê suas qualidades e fraquezas. Não tem medo de reconhecer seus erros, de pedir desculpas e de aceitar sugestões e conselhos. Quem é humilde confia em Jeová e obedece as orientações dele. — 1 Pedro 5:5.

11 AUTORIDADE

Ter autoridade significa ter o direito de dar ordens e de tomar decisões. Jeová tem a maior autoridade que existe no céu e na Terra. Ele criou todas as coisas e por isso é a Pessoa mais poderosa do Universo. Ele sempre usa sua autoridade para ajudar outros. Jeová deu a alguns humanos a responsabilidade de cuidar de nós. Por exemplo, os pais, os anciãos e os governos têm autoridade, e Jeová quer que cada um de nós coopere com eles. (Romanos 13:1-5; 1 Timóteo 5:17) Mas quando as leis dos homens nos pedem para fazer algo que vai contra as leis de Deus, nós obedecemos a Deus. (Atos 5:29) Quando obedecemos as pessoas que Jeová colocou em posição de autoridade, mostramos a Jeová que respeitamos as decisões dele.

12 ANCIÃOS

Os anciãos são irmãos experientes que Jeová usa para cuidar da congregação. (Deuteronômio 1:13; Atos 20:28) Eles nos ajudam a manter forte nossa amizade com Jeová. Também nos ajudam a adorar a Jeová de modo organizado e em paz. (1 Coríntios 14:33, 40)

Para os anciãos serem designados por espírito santo, eles têm que ter as qualificações que estão na Bíblia. (1 Timóteo 3:1-7; Tito 1:5-9; 1 Pedro 5:2, 3) Nós confiamos na organização de Deus e damos a ela o nosso apoio. Por isso ficamos felizes de cooperar com os anciãos. — Salmo 138:6; Hebreus 13:17.

13 CHEFE DE FAMÍLIA

Jeová deu aos pais a responsabilidade de cuidar dos filhos e dos que moram na sua casa. Mas a Bíblia explica que o marido é o cabeça, ou chefe da família. Quando a família não tem pai, a mãe passa a ter essa responsabilidade. O chefe da família tem a responsabilidade de dar para a família coisas como comida, roupa e um lugar para morar. É muito importante que o chefe da família tome a iniciativa em ajudar a família a adorar a Jeová. Por exemplo, ele cuida para que a família assista às reuniões, participe na pregação e estude a Bíblia juntos. O chefe da família também é o responsável por tomar decisões. Ele sempre tenta imitar a Jesus por ser bondoso e equilibrado, nunca violento ou grosseiro. Quando ele faz isso, o lar se torna um lugar de amor em que todos na família podem se sentir seguros e podem fortalecer sua amizade com Jeová.

14 CORPO GOVERNANTE

O Corpo Governante é o grupo de homens com esperança de viver no céu que Deus usa para orientar seu povo. No tempo dos apóstolos, Jeová usou um corpo governante para orientar os primeiros cristãos na sua adoração e na pregação. (Atos 15:2) Hoje, o grupo de irmãos que serve como Corpo Governante toma a liderança em ensinar, orientar e proteger o povo de Deus. Esses irmãos confiam na orientação da Bíblia e do espírito santo ao tomar decisões. Jesus chamou esse grupo de homens ungidos de "escravo fiel e prudente". — Mateus 24:45-47.

15 COBRIR A CABEÇA

Pode acontecer de pedirem para uma irmã fazer algo na congregação que normalmente seria feito por um irmão. Quando isso acontece, ela mostra que respeita o modo de Jeová fazer as coisas por cobrir a cabeça. Mas ela só precisa fazer isso em algumas situações. Por exemplo, se uma irmã for dirigir um estudo bíblico e seu marido ou um irmão batizado estiver presente, ela vai cobrir a cabeça. — 1 Coríntios 11:11-15.

16 NEUTRALIDADE

Quando somos neutros, nós não aceitamos nos envolver em assuntos políticos. (João 17:16) O povo de Jeová apoia o Reino de Deus. Somos neutros nos assuntos do mundo assim como Jesus foi.

Jeová diz que temos que ser "obedientes a governos e autoridades". (Tito 3:1, 2; Romanos 13:1-7) Mas a lei de Deus também diz que é errado matar. Por isso a consciência do cristão não permite que ele preste serviço militar ou que vá para a guerra. Se existir a opção de fazer um serviço civil alternativo, ou seja, um trabalho que não tem nada a ver com serviço militar, o cristão precisa pensar se sua consciência permite que ele faça isso.

Jeová é o nosso Criador, por isso adoramos só a ele. É verdade que mostramos respeito pelo país onde vivemos, mas não adoramos a bandeira nem cantamos o hino nacional. (Isaías 43:11; Daniel 3:1-30; 1 Coríntios 10:14) Além disso, cada servo de Jeová decide por si mesmo não escolher nenhum partido ou candidato nas eleições. Isso porque já escolhemos o governo de Deus. — Mateus 22:21; João 15:19; 18:36.

17 ESPÍRITO DO MUNDO

O mundo incentiva as pessoas a pensar igual a Satanás. Esse modo de pensar é comum entre as pessoas que não obedecem a Jeová e que não amam e não imitam a ele. (1 João 5:19) Esse modo de pensar e de agir é chamado de espírito do mundo. (Efésios 2:2) O povo de Jeová faz de tudo para não ser enganado por esse espírito. (Efésios 6:10-18) Em vez disso, amamos o modo de Jeová agir e nos esforçamos para pensar igual a ele.

18 APOSTASIA

Apostasia é ficar contra a verdade da Bíblia. Os apóstatas são rebeldes e não querem obedecer a Jeová e a Jesus, que é o Rei do Reino de Deus. Os apóstatas também tentam influenciar outros para ficarem do lado deles. (Romanos 1:25) Eles querem criar dúvidas na cabeça dos que adoram a Jeová. No tempo dos primeiros cristãos, alguns se tornaram apóstatas, e o mesmo acontece hoje. (2 Tessalonicenses 2:3) Os que são leais a Jeová não têm nada a ver com os apóstatas. Não queremos deixar que a curiosidade ou a pressão de outros nos leve a ler ou ouvir ideias apóstatas. Somos leais a Jeová e adoramos apenas a ele.

19 EXPIAÇÃO (PERDÃO DE PECADOS)

Na Lei de Moisés, quando a nação de Israel pedia perdão a Jeová pelos pecados, eles levavam para o templo sacrifícios de animais, e ofertas de azeite e de cereais. Esses sacrifícios eram chamados de sacrifícios de expiação. Isso lembrava os israelitas de que Jeová podia perdoar os pecados tanto da nação como de cada pessoa. Mais tarde, depois de Jesus dar sua vida para cobrir, ou perdoar, nossos pecados, esses sacrifícios não eram mais necessários. Jesus ofereceu o sacrifício perfeito "de uma vez para sempre". — Hebreus 10:1, 4, 10.

20 RESPEITO PELA VIDA DOS ANIMAIS

No tempo da Lei de Moisés, o povo podia usar animais como alimento. Eles também usavam os animais para fazer sacrifícios a Jeová.

(Levítico 1:5, 6) Mas Jeová nunca deixou seu povo ser cruel com os animais. (Provérbios 12:10) Aliás, a Lei tinha regras que protegiam os animais contra serem maltratados. A Lei dizia que os israelitas tinham que cuidar bem dos animais. — Deuteronômio 22:6, 7.

21 FRAÇÕES DE SANGUE E PROCEDIMENTOS MÉDICOS

Frações de sangue. O sangue tem quatro partes principais: glóbulos vermelhos, glóbulos brancos, plaquetas e plasma. Essas quatro partes principais podem ser separadas em partes menores, chamadas frações de sangue.*

Os cristãos não aceitam transfusões de sangue total nem de nenhuma das quatro partes principais do sangue. Mas será que podem aceitar frações de sangue? A Bíblia não fala especificamente sobre isso. Assim, cada cristão tem que tomar sua própria decisão com base na sua consciência treinada pela Bíblia.

Alguns cristãos decidem não aceitar nenhuma fração de sangue. Eles talvez digam que a Lei de Moisés exigia que qualquer sangue tirado de um animal tinha que ser derramado "na terra". — Deuteronômio 12:22-24.

Já outros não pensam assim. A consciência deles não vê problema em aceitar algumas frações de sangue. Eles talvez pensem que aquela fração não representa mais a vida da pessoa ou do animal de onde o sangue foi tirado.

Ao tomar decisões sobre frações de sangue, pense nos seguintes pontos:

- Se eu não aceito nenhuma fração de sangue, isso significa que eu não aceito alguns remédios que combatem doenças ou que

---

* Alguns médicos talvez encarem as quatro partes principais do sangue como frações de sangue. Sendo assim, você precisa explicar para seu médico sua decisão de não aceitar transfusões de sangue total nem de suas quatro partes principais: glóbulos vermelhos, glóbulos brancos, plaquetas e plasma.

O CRISTÃO NÃO ACEITA		DECISÃO PESSOAL
Sangue total	Glóbulos vermelhos	Frações que vêm dos glóbulos vermelhos
	Glóbulos brancos	Frações que vêm dos glóbulos brancos
	Plaquetas	Frações que vêm das plaquetas
	Plasma	Frações que vêm do plasma podem ajudar a parar um sangramento. É isso mesmo o que eu quero?

- Pode ser que eu aceite uma ou mais frações de sangue, e não aceite outras. Como eu iria explicar isso para um médico?

Procedimentos médicos. Como cristãos, não doamos sangue nem guardamos nosso próprio sangue para ser usado depois numa cirurgia. Mas existem outros procedimentos que usam o sangue do próprio paciente. Cada cristão tem que decidir por conta própria como quer que seu sangue seja usado durante a realização de uma cirurgia, de um exame ou de uma terapia. Durante esses procedimentos, o próprio sangue do paciente talvez seja totalmente separado do corpo dele por um tempo. — Para mais informações, veja A Sentinela de 15 de outubro de 2000, páginas 30 e 31.

Por exemplo, existe um procedimento chamado hemodiluição. Nele, imediatamente antes da cirurgia parte do sangue do paciente é desviado do corpo e, no lugar do sangue que foi desviado, um expansor de volume (talvez um líquido) é colocado no paciente. Mais tarde, durante a cirurgia ou logo depois, o sangue desviado é colocado de volta no paciente.

Outro procedimento é a recuperação intraoperatória de células. Nele, o sangue que o paciente perde durante a cirurgia é recuperado, lavado e daí é devolvido ao paciente durante a cirurgia ou logo depois.

Dependendo do médico, a maneira como esses procedimentos são feitos pode variar um pouco. Assim, antes de aceitar qualquer cirurgia, exame ou terapia, o cristão precisa saber exatamente o que será feito com o seu próprio sangue.

Ao tomar decisões sobre procedimentos médicos que usam o seu próprio sangue, pense nos seguintes pontos:

- Pode ser que parte do meu sangue seja desviado para fora do meu corpo com a possiblidade de o fluxo de sangue ser interrompido por um tempo. Será que a minha consciência vai permitir que eu encare esse sangue como sendo ainda parte de mim, não exigindo assim que ele seja 'derramado na terra'? — Deuteronômio 12:23, 24.
- Pode ser que durante um procedimento médico parte do meu sangue seja retirado, modificado e recolocado (ou aplicado) no meu corpo. Será que isso iria incomodar a minha consciência?

Você pode registrar sua decisão de não aceitar transfusão de sangue total e das quatro partes principais do sangue. Isso pode ser feito num documento, ou num cartão, como o cartão de diretivas antecipadas. Esse documento pode proteger você, evitando que você receba uma transfusão de sangue. Ele também pode ser usado para registrar suas decisões sobre frações de sangue e procedimentos que usam o seu próprio sangue.

- Se eu recuso todos os procedimentos que usam o meu próprio sangue, isso significa que eu não aceito exames de sangue, hemodiálise e o uso da máquina coração-pulmão. É isso mesmo o que eu quero?

Antes de tomarmos uma decisão sobre frações de sangue e tratamentos médicos que usam nosso próprio sangue, precisamos orar a Jeová pedindo sua ajuda e depois pesquisar o assunto. (Tiago 1:5, 6) Daí temos que usar nossa consciência treinada pela Bíblia para tomar a decisão. Não devemos perguntar a outros o que eles fariam se estivessem no nosso lugar. E ninguém deve tentar influenciar nossa decisão. — Romanos 14:12; Gálatas 6:5.

22 SER LIMPO EM SENTIDO MORAL

Ser limpo em sentido moral significa que tudo o que fazemos é puro, ou limpo, aos olhos de Deus. Envolve o que pensamos, dizemos e fazemos. Jeová diz para ficarmos longe de todo tipo de impureza ou imoralidade sexual. (Provérbios 1:10; 3:1) Temos que estar decididos a nos manter puros aos olhos de Deus antes mesmo de sermos tentados a fazer algo errado. Precisamos sempre pedir para Jeová nos ajudar a ter pensamentos puros. E temos que estar decididos a fugir da tentação de fazer coisas imorais. — 1 Coríntios 6:9, 10, 18; Efésios 5:5.

23 CONDUTA INSOLENTE E IMPUREZA

Conduta insolente é quando a pessoa desobedece seriamente as leis de Deus pelo seu modo de falar ou de agir e mostra uma atitude desavergonhada. A pessoa que faz isso mostra que não respeita as leis de Deus. Quando alguém se envolve em conduta insolente, uma comissão judicativa cuida do assunto. Impureza inclui vários tipos de pecados sérios. Dependendo da gravidade da situação, alguns assuntos que envolvem impureza talvez tenham que ser tratados pelos anciãos numa comissão judicativa. — Gálatas 5:19-21;

Efésios 4:19; para mais informações, veja "Perguntas dos Leitores" em A Sentinela de 15 de julho de 2006.

24 MASTURBAÇÃO

Jeová fez o sexo para ser um modo puro de o marido e a esposa mostrarem que se amam. Mas quando alguém se masturba, ou estimula os órgãos sexuais para ter prazer, está usando o sexo de um modo impuro. Esse hábito pode prejudicar a amizade da pessoa com Jeová. Pode criar desejos sexuais que não são normais e fazer a pessoa ver o sexo de modo errado. (Colossenses 3:5) Quem tem esse hábito impuro e acha difícil de parar não deve desistir. (Salmo 86:5; 1 João 3:20) Se você está nessa situação, ore de coração a Jeová e peça a ajuda dele. Fuja de coisas como pornografia, que só vão fazer você ter pensamentos errados. Converse com os seus pais cristãos ou com um amigo maduro que respeita as leis de Jeová. (Provérbios 1:8, 9; 1 Tessalonicenses 5:14; Tito 2:3-5) Tenha certeza de que Jeová vê os seus esforços para ser limpo em sentido moral e dá valor a isso. — Salmo 51:17; Isaías 1:18.

25 POLIGAMIA

Poligamia é quando alguém tem mais de um marido ou mais de uma esposa. Jeová fez o casamento para ser a união de um só homem com uma só mulher. No passado em Israel, Deus deixou que os homens tivessem mais de uma esposa, mas essa não era a vontade dele no princípio. Hoje Jeová não permite a poligamia entre seu povo. O marido pode ter uma só esposa, e a esposa pode ter um só marido. — Mateus 19:9; 1 Timóteo 3:2.

26 SEPARAÇÃO E DIVÓRCIO

Jeová queria que o marido e a esposa ficassem juntos durante a vida toda. (Gênesis 2:24; Malaquias 2:15, 16; Mateus 19:3-6; 1 Co-ríntios 7:39) Ele só permite o divórcio quando o marido ou a esposa comete adultério. Nesse caso, Jeová dá ao marido ou à esposa inocente o direito de decidir se quer se divorciar ou não. — Mateus 19:9.

Mas às vezes alguns cristãos decidem se separar mesmo quando nenhum deles cometeu imoralidade sexual. (1 Coríntios 7:11) Abaixo temos algumas situações que poderiam levar um cristão a decidir se separar:

- Quando o marido não quer de jeito nenhum sustentar a família. Isso pode chegar a ponto de a família ficar sem dinheiro e sem comida. — 1 Timóteo 5:8.
- Quando o marido ou a esposa sofre sérias agressões físicas a ponto de ele ou ela achar que sua vida está em perigo. — Gálatas 5:19-21.
- Quando o marido ou a esposa torna impossível que a outra pessoa sirva a Jeová. Isso coloca a amizade que a pessoa tem com Jeová totalmente em risco. — Atos 5:29.

27 ENCORAJAR E DAR ELOGIOS

Todos nós precisamos ser encorajados e elogiados. (Provérbios 12:25; 16:24) Podemos fortalecer e consolar uns aos outros com palavras amorosas e bondosas. Palavras assim podem ajudar os irmãos a perseverar e a continuar servindo a Jeová apesar de grandes dificuldades. (Provérbios 12:18; Filipenses 2:1-4) Se alguém está desanimado, precisamos ouvir com atenção e tentar entender como ele se sente. Assim podemos saber o que dizer para ajudar. (Tiago 1:19) Tenha o alvo de conhecer bem seus irmãos para que possa realmente entender o que eles precisam. Assim você pode ajudá-los a buscar a ajuda do Deus de todo o consolo e encorajamento, aquele que pode dar o verdadeiro alívio. — 2 Coríntios 1:3, 4; 1 Tessalonicenses 5:11.

28 FESTAS DE CASAMENTO

A Bíblia não tem regras específicas sobre como um casamento deve ser feito. O que a lei exige e os costumes locais variam de um lugar para outro. (Gênesis 24:67; Mateus 1:24; 25:10; Lucas 14:8) A parte mais importante do casamento são os votos que o casal faz diante de Jeová. Quando vão fazer os votos, muitos casais decidem convidar familiares e amigos mais próximos. Muitos também pedem para um ancião fazer um discurso bíblico. É o casal que decide se vai fazer uma festa de casamento. (Lucas 14:28; João 2:1-11) Não importa como o casal decida organizar sua festa de casamento, eles têm que ter certeza de que a festa vai dar honra a Jeová. (Gênesis 2:18-24; Mateus 19:5, 6) Os princípios da Bíblia podem ajudar os noivos a tomar boas decisões. (1 João 2:16, 17) Se o casal decidir servir bebidas alcoólicas, eles têm que ter certeza de que a festa não fuja do controle. (Provérbios 20:1; Efésios 5:18) Se decidirem que a festa vai ter música ou algum tipo de diversão, eles precisam tomar cuidado para que nada deixe Jeová triste. Mas em vez de se preocupar só com o dia do casamento, o casal cristão precisa se concentrar na sua amizade com Deus e no seu relacionamento um com o outro. — Provérbios 18:22; para mais sugestões, veja A Sentinela de 15 de outubro de 2006, páginas 18 a 31.

29 TOMAR BOAS DECISÕES

Queremos tomar boas decisões, que estejam de acordo com os princípios da Bíblia. Por exemplo, imagine uma irmã que não tem um marido cristão. O marido dela a convida para comer na casa de parentes durante um feriado do mundo. O que você faria se estivesse nessa situação? Se sua consciência permitir que você vá, você pode explicar para seu marido ou sua esposa que, se na ocasião tiver algum costume da religião falsa, você não vai participar. Se você decidir ir, também precisa pensar em como isso vai afetar a consciência de outros. — 1 Coríntios 8:9; 10:23, 24.

Ou talvez seu patrão ofereça para você um bônus na época de fim de ano. Será que você não pode aceitar? Não necessariamente. Aceitar ou não o bônus pode depender, até certo ponto, de como seu patrão vê isso. Será que ele acha que o bônus faz parte da comemoração de fim de ano? Ou é só um jeito de ele agradecer o seu trabalho? Pensar nisso e em outros pontos vai ajudar você a decidir se deve aceitar o bônus.

Outra situação é quando alguém dá para você um presente na época de fim de ano e diz: "Sei que você não comemora essas coisas, mas eu quero te dar isso." Talvez a pessoa só esteja sendo bondosa. Por outro lado, é bom se perguntar: 'Será que ela está querendo testar minha fé ou me fazer participar dessas comemorações?' Depois de pensar nisso, a decisão de aceitar ou não o presente é sua. Em todas as nossas decisões, queremos ter uma consciência limpa e ser fiéis a Jeová. — Atos 23:1.

30 NEGÓCIOS E ASSUNTOS JURÍDICOS

Na maioria das vezes, os desentendimentos não precisam se transformar em problemas grandes, desde que sejam tratados de modo rápido e pacífico. (Mateus 5:23-26) Para todos os cristãos, dar glória a Jeová e manter a congregação unida deve estar em primeiro lugar. — João 13:34, 35; 1 Coríntios 13:4, 5.

Se acontecer um desentendimento sobre assuntos comerciais entre cristãos, eles devem tentar resolver o assunto sem levar isso para a justiça. Em 1 Coríntios 6:1-8, Paulo deu um conselho sobre um irmão processar outro. Entrar na justiça contra um irmão pode fazer outros pensar mal de Jeová e da congregação. Em Mateus 18:15-17, lemos sobre três passos que os cristãos devem dar para resolver acusações graves, como calúnia e fraude: (1) Primeiro devem tentar resolver o assunto entre eles mesmos; (2) se isso não der certo, podem pedir a ajuda de um ou dois irmãos maduros; (3) depois, se necessário, podem levar o assunto para o corpo de anciãos cuidar. Se a situação chegar a esse ponto, os anciãos vão usar os princípios da Bíblia para tentar ajudar todos os envolvidos a chegar a um acordo amigável. Se algumas das pessoas envolvidas não estiverem dispostas a seguir o que a Bíblia diz, talvez seja necessário os anciãos tomarem uma ação judicativa.

Existem algumas situações em que um processo judicial talvez seja necessário, como divórcio, guarda de filhos, pensão alimentícia, indenização de seguro, falência ou testamentos. Se um cristão usar os meios jurídicos para resolver o assunto da forma mais pacífica possível, ele não vai estar desobedecendo o conselho de Paulo.

E se um crime sério tiver sido cometido, como estupro, abuso de crianças, agressão física, roubo ou assassinato? Nesse caso, o cristão que denuncia isso para as autoridades não está desobedecendo o conselho de Paulo.

31 ARMADILHAS DE SATANÁS

Satanás tenta enganar os humanos desde a época do jardim do Éden. (Gênesis 3:1-6; Apocalipse 12:9) Ele sabe que se conseguir mudar nosso modo de pensar, pode nos influenciar a fazer o que é errado. (2 Coríntios 4:4; Tiago 1:14, 15) Por meio da política, religião, comércio, diversão, educação e muitas outras coisas, Satanás incentiva seu modo de pensar e faz com que esse modo de pensar pareça certo. — João 14:30; 1 João 5:19.

Satanás sabe que tem pouco tempo para enganar as pessoas. Por isso está fazendo de tudo para enganar o máximo de pessoas possível. Mas quem ele mais quer enganar são os servos de Jeová. (Apocalipse 12:12) Se não tomarmos cuidado, o Diabo pode aos poucos influenciar nosso modo de pensar. (1 Coríntios 10:12) Por exemplo, Jeová quer que o casamento dure a vida toda. (Mateus 19:5, 6, 9) Mas muitos hoje veem o casamento como um acordo de pouca importância, que pode facilmente ser desfeito. Filmes e programas de TV também incentivam essa ideia. Não podemos deixar que a maneira como o mundo vê o casamento nos influencie.

Outra maneira de Satanás tentar nos enganar é por incentivar uma atitude de independência. (2 Timóteo 3:4) Se não tomarmos cuidado, podemos perder o respeito pelas pessoas que Jeová colocou em posição de autoridade. Por exemplo, um irmão talvez comece a ir contra as orientações dos anciãos. (Hebreus 12:5) Ou uma irmã talvez comece a não querer obedecer o princípio da chefia que Jeová estabeleceu para a família. — 1 Coríntios 11:3.

Temos que estar decididos a não deixar que o Diabo influencie nosso modo de pensar. Em vez disso, queremos pensar igual a Jeová e ter a "mente fixa nas coisas de cima". — Colossenses 3:2; 2 Coríntios 2:11.

32 TRATAMENTOS DE SAÚDE

Todos nós queremos ser saudáveis e receber o melhor tratamento de saúde possível quando estamos doentes. (Isaías 38:21; Marcos 5:25, 26; Lucas 10:34) Hoje muitos médicos e outros oferecem vários tratamentos de saúde. Ao decidir que tratamento aceitar, é importante seguir os princípios da Bíblia. Sabemos que só o Reino de Deus vai curar todas as doenças. Não queremos nos concentrar tanto na saúde a ponto de deixar a adoração a Jeová de lado. — Isaías 33:24; 1 Timóteo 4:16.

Temos que tomar cuidado para não aceitar nenhum tratamento que parece ter a ver com demônios. (Deuteronômio 18:10-12; Isaías 1:13) Assim, antes de aceitar um tratamento ou um remédio, precisamos descobrir tudo o que pudermos sobre ele e ver se ele tem ligação com ocultismo. (Provérbios 14:15) Não podemos esquecer que Satanás quer enganar os servos de Jeová e fazer com que eles se envolvam com ocultismo. Se tivermos alguma dúvida de que um tratamento tem a ver com ocultismo, é melhor não aceitar. — 1 Pedro 5:8.

"Eis! Este é o nosso Deus"

CONSEGUE se imaginar conversando com Deus? A própria ideia disso assusta — um diálogo com o Soberano do Universo? De início, você hesita, mas daí consegue falar. Deus escuta, responde e até lhe permite fazer qualquer pergunta. Que pergunta você faria?

2 Muito tempo atrás, um homem se encontrava justamente nessa situação. Seu nome era Moisés. A pergunta que ele fez a Deus, porém, talvez o surpreenda. Ele não perguntou a respeito de si mesmo, de seu futuro, ou mesmo da aflição da humanidade. Em vez disso, perguntou o nome de Deus. Que coisa estranha! Moisés já sabia o nome de Deus. Portanto, a pergunta deve ter tido um sentido mais profundo. De fato, foi a pergunta mais significativa que Moisés podia ter feito. A resposta afeta a todos nós. Pode ajudar você a tomar medidas importantes a fim de achegar-se a Deus. Como assim? Vamos dar uma olhada nesse notável diálogo.

3 Moisés estava com 80 anos de idade. Ele havia passado quatro décadas exilado de seu povo, os israelitas, que eram escravos no Egito. Certo dia, enquanto cuidava dos rebanhos de seu sogro, ele viu um fenômeno estranho. Um espinheiro estava em chamas, mas não se consumia. Simplesmente continuava queimando, reluzindo como um farol na encosta do monte. Moisés se aproximou para olhar. Como deve ter ficado espantado ao ouvir uma voz do meio do fogo! Daí, por meio de um porta-voz angélico, Deus e Moisés dialogaram longamente. E, como talvez saiba, naquela ocasião, Jeová incumbiu o hesitante Moisés de deixar a sua vida tranquila e voltar ao Egito para libertar os israelitas da escravidão. — Êxodo 3:1-12.

4 Naquele momento, Moisés podia ter feito qualquer pergunta a Deus. Mas note a que ele escolheu: "Suponhamos que eu vá ter com os filhos de Israel e deveras lhes diga: 'O Deus de vossos antepassados enviou-me a vós', e eles deveras me digam: 'Qual é o seu nome?' O que hei de dizer-lhes?" — Êxodo 3:13.

5 Essa pergunta nos ensina, acima de tudo, que Deus tem nome. Não devemos encarar levianamente essa verdade simples. Muitos, porém, o fazem. O nome de

5, 6. (a) Que verdade simples e vital nos ensina a pergunta de Moisés? (b) Que coisa repreensível tem sido feita com o nome de Deus? (c) Por que é tão significativo que Deus tenha revelado seu nome à humanidade?

Deus foi removido de inúmeras traduções da Bíblia e substituído por títulos, como "Senhor" e "Deus". Essa é uma das coisas mais tristes e repreensíveis feitas em nome da religião. Afinal, qual é a primeira coisa que você faz ao conhecer alguém? Não é perguntar o nome? É similar quando se trata de conhecer a Deus. Ele não é um ser sem nome e distante, impossível de se conhecer ou entender. Embora seja invisível, é uma pessoa e tem nome — Jeová.

O significado do nome de Deus

[7] O próprio Jeová escolheu seu nome, que é rico em significado. Entende-se que "Jeová" significa "Ele Causa que Venha a Ser". Não existe ninguém igual a ele em todo o Universo, pois ele trouxe à existência todas as coisas e faz com que todos os seus propósitos se tornem realidade. Essa ideia inspira reverência. Mas será que existe outro aspecto relacionado ao significado do nome de Deus? Moisés, evidentemente, desejava aprender mais. Ele já sabia que Jeová é o Criador e conhecia o nome de Deus. O nome divino não era novo. Fazia séculos que as pessoas o usavam. Realmente, ao perguntar o nome de Deus, Moisés indagava a respeito da pessoa representada pelo nome. Era como se ele dissesse: 'O que posso dizer a teu respeito ao teu povo, Israel, algo que edifique a fé que eles têm em ti, que os convença de que realmente os libertarás?'

7. (a) Entende-se que o nome de Deus significa o quê? (b) O que Moisés realmente queria saber ao perguntar a Deus o seu nome?

tade." (Rotherham) Certo versado em hebraico bíblico explica assim essa expressão: "Qualquer que seja a situação ou a necessidade . . . , Deus 'se torna' a solução para essa necessidade."

9 O que isso significava para os israelitas? Não importa que obstáculos enfrentassem, ou quanto fosse difícil a situação deles, Jeová se tornaria o que quer que fosse necessário para libertá-los da escravidão e levá-los à Terra Prometida. Certamente, esse nome inspirava confiança em Deus. Pode fazer o mesmo por nós hoje. (Salmo 9:10) Por quê?

10 Para ilustrar: os pais sabem como é preciso ser versátil e adaptável na criação dos filhos. Num só dia, o pai (ou a mãe) talvez tenha de ser enfermeiro, cozinheiro, professor, disciplinador, juiz e muito mais. Muitos se sentem sobrecarregados pelos muitos papéis diferentes que se espera que desempenhem. Sabem que os filhos têm total confiança neles, jamais duvidando que papai ou mamãe possam aliviar a dor, resolver disputas, consertar qualquer brinquedo quebrado e responder a qualquer pergunta que surja nas suas mentes sempre tão cheias de indagações. Alguns pais se sentem humilhados e, às vezes, frustrados por causa de suas próprias limitações. Sentem-se terrivelmente despreparados para cumprir muitos desses papéis.

[12] Desse modo, Deus tornou conhecido seu nome, revelou coisas emocionantes sobre a pessoa representada por esse nome e até mesmo demonstrou que o que ele diz sobre si mesmo é verdade. Sem dúvida, Jeová quer que o conheçamos. Como reagimos? Moisés desejava conhecer a Deus. Esse desejo intenso moldou sua vida e fez com que se achegasse bem ao seu Pai celestial. (Números 12:6-8; Hebreus 11:27) Infelizmente, poucos dos contemporâneos de Moisés tinham o mes-mo desejo. Quando ele mencionou o nome de Jeová a Faraó, esse altivo monarca egípcio retrucou: "Quem é Jeová?" (Êxodo 5:2) Faraó não queria se informar mais a respeito de Jeová. Em vez disso, cinicamente descartou o Deus de Israel como sendo sem importância ou irrelevante. Essa atitude ainda é muito comum hoje. Ela cega a pessoa a uma das verdades mais importantes que existe: Jeová é o Soberano Senhor.

O Soberano Senhor Jeová

13 Jeová é tão versátil, tão adaptável, que tem merecidamente uma grande variedade de títulos nas Escrituras. Eles não rivalizam com o seu nome; em vez disso, nos ensinam mais sobre o que o nome representa. Por exemplo, ele é chamado de "Soberano Senhor Jeová". (2 Samuel 7:22) Esse título sublime, que ocorre cerca de 300 vezes na Bíblia, fala-nos da posição de Deus. Só ele tem o direito de ser o Governante de todo o Universo. Veja por quê.

14 Jeová é único como Criador. Revelação (Apocalipse) 4:11 diz: "Digno és, Jeová, sim, nosso Deus, de receber a glória, e a honra, e o poder, porque criaste todas as coisas e porque elas existiram e foram criadas por tua vontade." Essas palavras sublimes não são aplicáveis a nenhum outro ser. Tudo no Universo deve sua existência a Jeová! Sem dúvida, ele é digno da honra, do poder e da glória que vêm com o fato de ele ser o Soberano Senhor e Criador de todas as coisas.

15 Outro título aplicado exclusivamente a Jeová é "Rei da eternidade". (1 Timóteo 1:17; Revelação 15:3) O que isso significa? É difícil para a nossa mente limitada entender, mas Jeová é eterno em ambas as direções — passado e futuro. O Salmo 90:2 diz: "De tempo indefinido a tempo indefinido, tu és Deus." Portanto, Jeová nunca teve princípio; ele sempre existiu. É corretamente chamado de "Antigo de Dias" — existia por uma eternidade antes de alguém ou alguma coisa no Universo ter vindo à existência! (Daniel 7:9, 13, 22) Quem pode questionar validamente seu direito de ser o Soberano Senhor?

16 No entanto, alguns realmente questionam esse direito, como fez Faraó. Parte do problema é que os homens imperfeitos confiam demais no que podem ver

15. Por que Jeová é chamado de "Rei da eternidade"?
16, 17. (a) Por que não podemos ver a Jeová, e por que isso não nos deve surpreender? (b) Em que sentido Jeová é mais real do que qualquer coisa que possamos ver ou tocar?

com os olhos literais. Não podemos ver o Soberano Senhor. Ele é um ser espiritual, invisível aos olhos humanos. (João 4:24) Além disso, se um ser humano, de carne e sangue, viesse a estar na presença literal de Jeová, isso lhe seria fatal. O próprio Jeová disse a Moisés: “Não podes ver a minha face, porque homem algum pode ver-me e continuar vivo.” — Êxodo 33:20; João 1:18.

[17] Isso não nos deve surpreender. Moisés chegou a ver apenas uma parte da glória de Jeová, evidentemente por meio de um representante angélico. Com que efeito? O rosto de Moisés “emitia raios” por um bom tempo depois. Os israelitas temiam até mesmo olhar diretamente para o rosto dele. (Êxodo 33:21-23; 34:5-7, 29, 30) Certamente, pois, nenhum mero ser humano poderia ver o próprio Soberano Senhor em toda a sua glória! Isso significa, então, que ele é menos real do que aquilo que podemos ver e tocar? Não, nós aceitamos prontamente como reais muitas coisas que não podemos ver — o vento, as ondas de rádio e os pensamentos, por exemplo. Além do mais, Jeová é permanente, não é afetado pela passagem do tempo, nem mesmo por incontáveis bilhões de anos! Nesse sentido, ele é muito mais real do que qualquer coisa que possamos tocar ou ver, pois o ambiente físico está sujeito ao envelhecimento e à decadência. (Mateus 6:19) Devemos imaginá-lo, então, como simples força abstrata, impessoal, ou como vaga Causa Primária? Vejamos.

Um Deus de personalidade

[18] Embora não possamos ver a Deus, há emocionantes trechos na Bíblia que nos dão vislumbres do próprio céu. Um exemplo é o primeiro capítulo de Ezequiel. Esse profeta teve uma visão da organização celestial de Jeová, na forma de um enorme carro celestial. Especialmente impressionante é a descrição das poderosas criaturas espirituais em volta de Deus. (Ezequiel 1:4-10) Essas "criaturas viventes" se associam intimamente com Jeová, e sua aparência nos revela algo importante sobre o Deus a quem servem. Cada qual tem quatro faces: de touro, de leão, de águia e de homem. Essas evidentemente simbolizam as quatro qualidades notáveis da personalidade de Jeová. — Revelação 4:6-8, 10.

Grandioso Instrutor. Ele é o todo-sábio Mestre, a quem devemos recorrer em busca de instrução e orientação. — Isaías 30:20; 48:17.

Pai. A fonte de toda a vida, incluindo a vida eterna; tem amor paternal pelos seus servos. — Provérbios 27:11; João 5:21.

Pastor. Ele guia e protege seus servos comparáveis a ovelhas, providenciando seu sustento espiritual. — Salmo 23:1.

Todo-Poderoso. Seu poder é ilimitado, insuperável. — Revelação 15:3.

forte. O leão, por sua vez, representa a justiça, pois a verdadeira justiça exige coragem, uma qualidade destacada dos leões. As águias são bem conhecidas por sua visão aguçada, podendo enxergar até mesmo pequenos objetos a quilômetros de distância. Assim, a face de águia representaria bem a previdente sabedoria de Deus. E a face de homem? Bem, o homem, feito à imagem de Deus, é único na capacidade de refletir a principal qualidade divina: o amor. (Gênesis 1:26) Essas facetas da personalidade de Jeová — poder, justiça, sabedoria e amor — são tantas vezes destacadas nas Escrituras que podem ser chamadas de atributos principais de Deus.

[20] Devemos temer que Deus possa ter mudado nos milhares de anos desde que foi descrito na Bíblia? Não, a personalidade de Deus não muda. Ele nos diz: "Eu sou Jeová; não mudei." (Malaquias 3:6) Em vez de mudar arbitrariamente, Jeová mostra ser um Pai ideal no modo de reagir a cada situação. Ele manifesta os aspectos de sua personalidade que sejam mais apropriados. Das quatro qualidades, a predominante é o amor, que permeia tudo o que Deus faz. Ele exerce o poder, a justiça e a sabedoria de maneira amorosa. De fato, a Bíblia declara algo extraordinário a respeito de Deus e dessa qualidade. Diz: "Deus é amor." (1 João 4:8) Note que não diz que Deus tem amor ou que Deus é amoroso, e sim que Deus é amor. O amor, a sua própria essência, motiva-o em tudo o que ele faz.

"Eis! Este é o nosso Deus"

[21] Já viu alguma vez uma criancinha apontar o pai para seus amiguinhos e dizer, toda contente e orgulhosa: "Esse é o meu pai!"? Os adoradores de Jeová têm todos os motivos para sentirem o mesmo a respeito dele. A Bíblia predisse um tempo em que as pessoas fiéis exclamariam: "Eis! Este é o nosso Deus." (Isaías 25:8, 9) Quanto mais você entender as qualidades de Jeová, tanto mais verá que tem o melhor Pai imaginável.

[22] Esse Pai não é frio, arredio ou distante — apesar do que têm ensinado alguns religiosos e filósofos rígidos. Dificilmente nos sentiríamos atraídos a um Deus frio, e não é assim que a Bíblia retrata nosso Pai celestial. Ao contrário, ela o chama de "Deus feliz". (1 Timóteo 1:11) Ele tem sentimentos tanto fortes como ternos. Fica "magoado no coração" quando suas criaturas inteligentes violam as diretrizes que ele fornece para o bem-estar delas. (Gênesis 6:6; Salmo 78:41) Mas, quando agimos sabiamente segundo a sua Palavra, 'alegramos seu coração'. — Provérbios 27:11.

22, 23. Como a Bíblia retrata o nosso Pai celestial e como sabemos que ele quer que nos acheguemos a ele?

CAPÍTULO 2

É mesmo possível ‘achegar-se a Deus’?

COMO se sentiria se o Criador do céu e da Terra dissesse a seu respeito: “Este é meu amigo”? Muitos talvez achem isso fantasioso. Afinal, como poderia um mero ser humano ter amizade com Jeová? Mas a Bíblia garante que podemos realmente nos achegar a Deus.

[2] Abraão, da antiguidade, foi um dos que desfrutaram tal achego. Jeová referiu-se a esse patriarca como “meu amigo”. (Isaías 41:8) Sim, Deus o considerava como amigo pessoal. Abraão foi recompensado com esse relacionamento porque “depositou fé em Jeová”. (Tiago 2:23) Também hoje, Jeová busca oportunidades de ‘se afeiçoar’ aos que o servem por amor. (Deuteronômio 10:15) A sua Palavra exorta: “Chegai-vos a Deus, e ele se chegará a vós.” (Tiago 4:8) Essas palavras, na verdade, são tanto um convite como uma promessa.

1, 2. (a) O que muitos talvez achem fantasioso, mas que garantia a Bíblia nos dá? (b) Abraão foi recompensado com que relacionamento e por quê?

[4] Você tem um amigo bem achegado em quem pode confiar? Um amigo assim se importa com a sua pessoa. É alguém em quem você confia, pois mostrou-se leal. Partilhar suas alegrias com ele deixa você ainda mais feliz. Quando você está triste e precisa desabafar, ele o ouve com empatia. Mesmo quando ninguém mais parece entender você, ele entende. Da mesma forma, quando nos achegamos a Deus, ganhamos um Amigo especial que realmente nos valoriza, que se importa profundamente conosco e nos entende plenamente. (Salmo 103:14; 1 Pedro 5:7) Podemos ter a mais profunda confiança nele, sabendo que Deus é leal aos que lhe são leais. (Salmo 18:25) No entanto, essa privilegiada intimidade com Deus só está ao nosso alcance porque ele a tornou possível.

Jeová abriu o caminho

[5] Como pecadores, jamais poderíamos nos achegar a Deus sem ajuda. (Salmo 5:4) "Mas Deus recomenda a nós o seu próprio amor, por Cristo ter morrido por nós enquanto éramos ainda pecadores", escreveu o apóstolo Paulo. (Romanos 5:8) Sim, Jeová providenciou que Jesus 'desse a sua alma como resgate em troca de muitos'. (Mateus 20:28) Nossa fé nesse sacrifício de resgate possibilita nos achegarmos a Deus. Visto que ele "nos amou primeiro", lançou a base para entrarmos numa relação de amizade com ele. — 1 João 4:19.

[6] Jeová tomou outra medida: revelou-se a nós. Numa amizade, só pode haver achego se realmente conhecermos a pessoa, valorizando suas qualidades e seu modo de ser. Assim, se Jeová fosse um Deus oculto e indecifrável, jamais poderíamos nos achegar a ele. No entanto, longe de se ocultar, Deus quer que o conheçamos. (Isaías 45:19) Além do mais, o que ele revela sobre si mesmo está disponível a todos, mesmo aos que são considerados humildes segundo os padrões do mundo. — Mateus 11:25.

[7] Como Jeová se revela a nós? As suas obras criativas dão a conhecer certos aspectos de sua personalidade: seu vasto poder, sua profunda sabedoria, seu incomparável amor. (Romanos 1:20) Mas Jeová não se revela apenas por meio das coisas que criou. Como Grandioso Comunicador, ele forneceu uma revelação escrita a respeito de si mesmo na sua Palavra, a Bíblia.

Contemple "a afabilidade de Jeová"

[8] A própria Bíblia é evidência do amor de Jeová por nós. Em sua Palavra, ele revela a si mesmo em termos que podemos compreender — uma prova de que ele não apenas nos ama, mas deseja que o conheçamos e amemos. O que lemos nesse livro precioso nos possibilita contemplar "a afabilidade de Jeová" e nos motiva a querer nos achegar a ele. (Salmo 90:17) Vejamos algumas das animadoras maneiras pelas quais Jeová se revela na sua Palavra.

8. Por que se pode dizer que a própria Bíblia é evidência do amor de Jeová por nós?

[9] As Escrituras contêm muitas declarações diretas que identificam as qualidades de Deus. Note alguns exemplos. "Jeová ama a justiça." (Salmo 37:28) Deus é "sublime em poder". (Jó 37:23) "'Sou leal', é a pronunciação de Jeová." (Jeremias 3:12) "Ele é sábio de coração." (Jó 9:4) Ele é "Deus misericordioso e clemente, vagaroso em irar-se e abundante em benevolência e em verdade". (Êxodo 34:6) "Tu, ó Jeová, és bom e estás pronto a perdoar." (Salmo 86:5) E, como mencionado no capítulo anterior, uma qualidade é predominante: "Deus é amor." (1 João 4:8) Ao refletir sobre essas qualidades agradáveis, não se sente atraído a esse Deus incomparável?

[10] Além de nos revelar as suas qualidades, Jeová amorosamente incluiu na sua Palavra exemplos reais dessas qualidades em ação. Esses relatos vívidos nos ajudam a visualizar e entender melhor as várias facetas de sua personalidade, contribuindo para que nos acheguemos mais a ele. Veja um exemplo.

[11] Uma coisa é ler que Deus é "vigoroso em poder".

9. Cite alguns exemplos de declarações bíblicas diretas que identificam as qualidades de Deus.

10, 11. (a) Para nos ajudar a entender melhor a sua personalidade, o que Jeová incluiu na sua Palavra? (b) Que exemplo bíblico nos ajuda a visualizar o poder de Deus em ação?

[12] Jeová, que é espírito, fez ainda mais para nos ajudar a conhecê-lo. Como humanos, nossa visão se limita às realidades visíveis, de modo que não podemos ver o domínio espiritual. Se Deus descrevesse a si mesmo para nós usando termos espirituais, seria como tentar explicar detalhes de nossa aparência, como a cor dos olhos ou a existência de sardas, a um cego de nascença. Em vez disso, Jeová bondosamente nos ajuda a "vê-lo" em termos que podemos entender. Às vezes, emprega metáforas e analogias, comparando-se a coisas que conhecemos. Ele até mesmo descreve a si mesmo como tendo certas características humanas.*

[13] Note a descrição de Jeová, em Isaías 40:11: "Qual pastor ele pastoreará a sua própria grei. Com o seu braço reunirá os cordeiros; e os carregará ao colo." Jeová é comparado aqui a um pastor que apanha os cordeiros com o "braço". Isso denota que Deus pode proteger e apoiar o seu povo, mesmo os mais vulneráveis. Podemos nos sentir seguros nos seus fortes braços, pois, se formos leais, ele jamais nos abandonará. (Romanos 8:38, 39) O Grandioso Pastor carrega os cordeiros "ao colo" — uma expressão que se refere a folgadas dobras na parte superior da roupa, onde o pastor às vezes carregava um cordeiro recém-nascido. Isso nos assegura de que Jeová nos preza e cuida ter-namente de nós. É somente natural querer achegar-se a ele.

‘O Filho está disposto a revelá-lo’

14 Na sua Palavra, Jeová fornece a mais plena revelação de si mesmo por meio de seu Filho amado, Jesus. Ninguém poderia refletir melhor o modo de pensar e os sentimentos de Deus, ou explicá-lo mais vividamente, do que Jesus. Afinal, esse Filho primogênito existia junto a seu Pai antes de outras criaturas espirituais e o Universo físico serem criados. (Colossenses 1:15) Jesus conhecia muito bem a Jeová. É por isso que podia dizer: “Quem o Filho é, ninguém sabe, exceto o Pai; e quem o Pai é, ninguém sabe exceto o Filho, e aquele a quem o Filho estiver disposto a revelá-lo.” (Lucas 10:22) Quando esteve na Terra como homem, Jesus revelou seu Pai de duas maneiras importantes.

15 Primeiro, os ensinos de Jesus nos ajudam a conhecer o seu Pai. Jesus descreveu Jeová em termos que tocam o nosso coração. Por exemplo, para explicar que Deus é misericordioso e acolhe de volta

14. Por que se pode dizer que Jeová fornece a mais plena revelação de si mesmo por meio de Jesus?
15, 16. De que duas maneiras Jesus revelou seu Pai?

pecadores arrependidos, Jesus assemelhou Jeová a um pai perdoador que, de tão comovido que fica ao ver seu filho pródigo voltar, sai correndo e se lança ao pescoço dele, beijando-o ternamente. (Lucas 15:11-24) Jesus também retratou Jeová como Deus que 'atrai' pessoas retas porque as ama como indivíduos. (João 6:44) Ele sabe até mesmo quando um pequenino pardal cai ao chão. "Não temais", Jesus explicou, "vós valeis mais do que muitos pardais". (Mateus 10:29, 31) Não podemos deixar de nos sentir atraídos a um Deus tão afetuoso.

16 Segundo, o exemplo de Jesus nos mostra como Jeová é. Jesus refletiu seu Pai com tanta perfeição, que podia dizer: "Quem me tem visto, tem visto também o Pai." (João 14:9) Assim, quando lemos sobre ele nos Evangelhos — os sentimentos que demonstrou e como tratou os outros —, estamos de certa forma vendo um retrato vivo de seu Pai. Jeová não poderia nos ter dado uma revelação mais clara de suas qualidades do que essa. Por quê?

17 Para ilustrar: imagine tentar explicar o que é bondade. Você poderia defini-la em palavras. Mas, se pudesse apontar alguém realizando um ato bondoso e dizer: “Isso é um exemplo de bondade”, a palavra assumiria maior significado e ficaria mais fácil de entender. Jeová fez algo similar para nos ajudar a entender como ele é. Além de descrever a si mesmo em palavras, forneceu-nos o exemplo vivo de seu Filho. Em Jesus, as qualidades de Deus são vistas em ação. Por meio dos relatos evangélicos a respeito de Jesus, Jeová está, na realidade, dizendo: “É assim que eu sou.” Como o registro inspirado descreve Jesus quando esteve na Terra?

17. Ilustre o que Jeová fez para nos ajudar a entender como ele é.

18 Jesus expressou muito bem as quatro qualidades principais de Deus. Ele tinha poder sobre as doenças, a fome e até mesmo a morte. No entanto, ao contrário de homens egoístas que abusam do poder, Jesus jamais usou o poder milagroso em benefício próprio, ou para prejudicar outros. (Mateus 4:2-4) Ele amava a justiça. Seu coração encheu-se de indignação justa ao ver vendedores inescrupulosos explorando o povo. (Mateus 21:12, 13) Ele tratou os pobres e os oprimidos com imparcialidade, ajudando-os a ‘achar revigoramento’ para a sua alma. (Mateus 11:4, 5, 28-30) Havia inigualável sabedoria nos ensinos de Jesus, que era

18. Como Jesus expressou as qualidades de poder, justiça e sabedoria?

"maior do que Salomão". (Mateus 12:42) Mas Jesus jamais fez uso exibicionista de sua sabedoria. Suas palavras tocavam o coração das pessoas comuns, pois seus ensinos eram claros, simples e práticos.

[19] Jesus foi um exemplo notável de amor. Durante todo o seu ministério, ele demonstrou amor em suas muitas facetas, incluindo a empatia e a compaixão. Ele não deixava de sentir pena ao ver o sofrimento alheio. Vez após vez, essa sensibilidade induziu-o à ação. (Mateus 14:14) Embora curasse doentes e alimentasse famintos, Jesus mostrou compaixão de um modo muito mais vital. Ele ajudou outros a conhecer, a aceitar e a amar a verdade a respeito do Reino de Deus, que trará bênçãos eternas à humanidade. (Marcos 6:34; Lucas 4:43) Acima de tudo, Jesus mostrou amor abnegado por entregar voluntariamente a sua vida em favor de outros. — João 15:13.

[20] É de admirar que pessoas de todas as idades e formações se sentissem atraídas a esse homem tão caloroso e de sentimentos tão profundos? (Marcos 10:13-16) Ao lermos e refletirmos a respeito do exemplo

vivo de Jesus, porém, tenhamos sempre em mente que nesse Filho vemos um reflexo claro de seu Pai. — Hebreus 1:3.

Um compêndio que nos ajuda

[21] Por revelar a si mesmo tão claramente na sua Palavra, Jeová não deixa dúvidas de que deseja que nos acheguemos a ele. Ao mesmo tempo, ele não nos obriga a procurar uma relação aprovada com ele. Cabe a nós buscarmos a Jeová "enquanto pode ser achado". (Isaías 55:6) Isso envolve vir a conhecer as suas qualidades e o seu modo de agir, revelados na Bíblia. O livro que você está lendo foi produzido para ajudá-lo nesse sentido.

[22] Verá que este livro é dividido em seções correspondentes às quatro qualidades principais de Jeová: poder, justiça, sabedoria e amor. Cada seção começa com um resumo da respectiva qualidade. Os capítulos seguintes da seção abordam como Jeová manifesta essa qualidade, em seus vários aspectos. Cada seção contém também um capítulo que mostra como Jesus exemplificou a qualidade e outro que examina como podemos refleti-la na nossa vida.

Os textos e as perguntas não foram preparados para servir como recapitulação do capítulo. Antes, seu objetivo é ajudar você a refletir sobre outros aspectos importantes do assunto. Como poderá usar bem essa parte? Procure todos os textos citados e leia-os atentamente. Daí, tente responder à pergunta que acompanha cada citação. Medite nas respostas. Talvez possa fazer pesquisas. Faça a si mesmo perguntas adicionais: 'O que essa informação me diz a respeito de Jeová? Como afeta a minha vida? Como posso usar isso para ajudar outros?'

24 Essa meditação nos ajudará a nos achegarmos ainda mais a Jeová. Por quê? A Bíblia associa a meditação com o coração. (Salmo 19:14) Quando refletimos com apreço sobre o que aprendemos a respeito de Deus, as informações se infiltram no nosso coração simbólico, onde afetam o nosso modo de pensar, estimulam os sentimentos e, por fim, nos movem à ação. O nosso amor a Deus se aprofunda e esse amor, por sua vez, nos move a desejar agradá-lo como nosso Amigo mais querido. (1 João 5:3) Para chegar a essa relação, temos de conhecer as qualidades e o modo de Jeová agir. Primeiro, no entanto, vamos considerar um aspecto da natureza de Deus que nos impele a nos achegar a ele — a santidade.

"Santo, santo, santo é Jeová"

ISAÍAS ficou pasmado com o que presenciou numa visão da parte de Deus. Parecia tão real! Mais tarde, ele escreveu que realmente 'chegou a ver Jeová' em Seu trono enaltecido e Suas longas 'vestes' que enchiam o enorme templo de Jerusalém. — Isaías 6:1, 2.

[2] Isaías também ficou pasmado com o que ouviu: um canto tão forte que estremecia os alicerces do templo. Os cantores eram serafins, criaturas espirituais de altíssimo posto. A poderosa melodia deles soava palavras de pura grandeza: "Santo, santo, santo é Jeová dos exércitos. A plenitude de toda a terra é sua glória." (Isaías 6:3, 4) Entoar a palavra "santo" três vezes conferiu-lhe ênfase especial e isso é bem apropriado, pois Jeová é santo em grau superlativo. (Revelação [Apocalipse] 4:8) A santidade de Jeová é enfatizada na Bíblia inteira. Centenas de versículos associam o Seu nome às palavras "santo" e "santidade".

[3] Obviamente, pois, uma das primeiras coisas que Jeová deseja que entendamos a seu respeito é que ele é santo. Essa ideia, no entanto, afasta a muitos hoje que erroneamente associam santidade com farisaísmo, ou falsa piedade. Para pessoas que lutam contra sentimentos negativos a respeito de si mesmas, a santidade de Deus pode parecer mais intimidadora do que atraente. Talvez temam jamais ser dignas de se achegarem a esse Deus santo. Assim, muitos se afastam dele por causa de sua santidade. Isso é lamentável, pois a santidade de Deus, na verdade, deveria impelir-nos a nos achegarmos a ele. Como assim? Antes de respondermos a essa pergunta, vejamos o que é a verdadeira santidade.

O que é santidade?

[4] Ser santo não significa que Deus seja presunçoso, altivo ou arrogante. Ao contrário, ele odeia essas características. (Provérbios 16:5; Tiago 4:6) Assim, o que realmente significa a palavra "santo"? No hebraico bíblico, ela deriva de um termo que significa "separado". Na adoração, "santo" se aplica ao que é separado do uso comum, ou tido como sagrado. A santidade tem também forte conotação de limpeza e pureza. Em que sentido essa palavra se aplica a Jeová? Significa que ele está "separado" de humanos imperfeitos, bem longe de nós?

4, 5. (a) O que significa santidade e o que não significa? (b) Em que dois sentidos importantes Jeová está "separado"?

[5] De modo algum. Como "Santo de Israel", Jeová disse que morava no "meio" de seu povo, embora esse fosse pecaminoso. (Isaías 12:6; Oseias 11:9) Assim, a santidade de Jeová não o torna distante. Em que sentido, então, ele está "separado"? De duas maneiras importantes. Primeiro, ele está separado, ou distinto, de toda a criação no sentido de que somente ele é o Altíssimo. A sua pureza é absoluta e infinita. (Salmo 40:5; 83:18) Segundo, Jeová está inteiramente separado de toda pecaminosidade, uma ideia consoladora. Por quê?

[6] Vivemos num mundo em que a verdadeira santidade é uma raridade. Tudo a respeito da sociedade humana alienada de Deus é poluído de alguma maneira, manchado com pecado e imperfeição. Todos nós temos de lutar contra o pecado dentro de nós. E todos corremos o risco de sermos vencidos pelo pecado, se baixarmos a guarda. (Romanos 7:15-25; 1 Coríntios 10:12) Jeová não corre esse risco. Totalmente afastado da pecaminosidade, jamais será manchado pelo mais leve traço do pecado. Isso reforça nosso conceito de Jeová como Pai ideal, pois significa que ele é inteiramente confiável. Ao contrário de muitos pais humanos pecadores, Jeová jamais se tornará corrupto, dissoluto ou abusivo. A sua santidade impede tais coisas. Algumas vezes, Jeová até mesmo jurou em nome de sua própria santidade, pois nada poderia ser mais digno de confiança. (Amós 4:2) Não acha isso animador?

6. Por que o fato de Jeová estar absolutamente separado da pecaminosidade é consolador?

[7] A santidade faz parte da própria natureza de Jeová. O que isso significa? Para ilustrar: considere as palavras "homem" e "imperfeito". Não podemos falar da primeira sem lembrar da segunda. Somos marcados pela imperfeição e ela deixa vestígios em tudo o que fazemos. Considere agora duas palavras bem diferentes: "Jeová" e "santo". A santidade é própria de Jeová. Tudo a seu respeito é limpo, puro e correto. Não podemos conhecer a Jeová como ele realmente é sem entender essa palavra profunda — "santo".

"A santidade pertence a Jeová"

[8] Visto que Jeová personifica a qualidade da santidade, pode-se dizer corretamente que ele é a fonte de toda a santidade. Ele não retém egoistamente essa qualidade preciosa; divide-a com outros, de forma generosa. Ora, quando Deus falou a Moisés, por meio de um anjo no espinheiro ardente, até mesmo o solo em

8, 9. O que mostra que Jeová ajuda humanos imperfeitos a se tornarem santos em sentido relativo?

volta tornou-se santo devido à sua ligação com Jeová! — Êxodo 3:5.

[9] Podem humanos imperfeitos se tornar santos com a ajuda de Jeová? Sim, em sentido relativo. Deus ofereceu ao seu povo Israel a perspectiva de se tornarem "uma nação santa". (Êxodo 19:6) Ele abençoou essa nação com um sistema de adoração santo, limpo e puro. De modo que a santidade é um tema recorrente na Lei mosaica. De fato, o sumo sacerdote usava uma lâmina de ouro na frente do turbante, onde todos podiam vê-la reluzindo. Gravadas nela havia as palavras: "A santidade pertence a Jeová." (Êxodo 28:36) Portanto, a adoração dos israelitas e, sem dúvida, seu modo de vida, se distinguiriam por um alto padrão de limpeza e pureza. Jeová disse-lhes: "Deveis mostrar-vos santos, porque eu, Jeová, vosso Deus, sou santo." (Levítico 19:2) Enquanto viviam à altura dos conselhos de Deus, dentro dos limites da imperfeição humana, os israelitas eram santos em sentido relativo.

[10] Essa ênfase na santidade estava em nítido contraste com a adoração praticada pelas nações vizinhas de Israel. Essas nações pagãs adoravam deuses cuja pró-pria existência era uma mentira e uma farsa, deuses estes representados como violentos, gananciosos e promíscuos. Eram pervertidos em todos os sentidos. A adoração de tais deuses pervertia as pessoas. Por isso, Jeová alertou seus servos a se manterem separados dos adoradores pagãos e de suas contaminadas práticas religiosas. — Levítico 18:24-28; 1 Reis 11:1, 2.

[11] Quando muito, a nação escolhida de Jeová, o Israel antigo, podia fornecer apenas um leve reflexo da santidade da organização celestial de Deus. Os milhões de criaturas espirituais que servem lealmente a Deus são chamados de "santas miríades". (Deuteronômio 33:2; Judas 14) Eles refletem com perfeição o brilho e a pura beleza da santidade de Deus. E lembre-se dos serafins que Isaías observou na visão. O conteúdo do cântico deles sugere que essas poderosas criaturas espirituais desempenham um papel importante na divulgação da santidade de Jeová em todo o Universo. Mas há uma criatura espiritual que está acima de todos eles — o Filho unigênito de Deus. Jesus é o mais sublime reflexo da santidade de Jeová. Corretamente, ele é conhecido como "o Santo de Deus". — João 6:68, 69.

[12] Que dizer do nome do próprio Deus? Como vimos no Capítulo 1, esse nome não é mero título ou rótulo. Representa a Jeová Deus, englobando todas as suas qualidades. Assim, a Bíblia nos diz que seu "nome é santo". (Isaías 57:15) A Lei mosaica previa a pena de morte para quem profanasse o nome de Deus. (Levítico 24:16) E note o que Jesus colocou como prioridade na oração: "Nosso Pai nos céus, santificado seja o teu nome." (Mateus 6:9) Santificar algo significa colocá-lo à parte como sagrado e venerá-lo, defendê-lo como santo. Mas por que algo puro por natureza, como o nome do próprio Deus, necessitaria ser santificado?

[13] O santo nome de Deus tem sido contestado, manchado com mentiras e calúnias. No Éden, Satanás mentiu a respeito de Jeová e deu a entender que Ele é um Soberano injusto. (Gênesis 3:1-5) Desde então, Satanás — o governante deste mundo ímpio — tem cuidado de que as mentiras a respeito de Deus se multiplicassem. (João 8:44; 12:31; Revelação 12:9) As religiões têm representado a Deus como arbitrário, distante ou cruel. Têm afirmado ter o apoio dele em suas guerras sangrentas. O crédito pelas maravilhosas criações de Deus muitas vezes é dado ao acaso cego, ou evolução. Sim, o nome de Deus tem sido maldosamente difamado. Precisa ser santificado; a sua merecida glória tem de ser restabelecida. Ansiamos a santificação de seu nome e a vindicação de sua soberania, e alegra-nos ter certa participação nesse grandioso objetivo.

14 Há algo mais, estreitamente ligado a Jeová, que quase sempre é chamado de santo: seu espírito, ou força ativa. (Gênesis 1:2) Jeová usa essa força poderosa para realizar seus propósitos. Deus realiza tudo de maneira santa, pura e limpa, de modo que sua força ativa é apropriadamente chamada de espírito santo, ou espírito de santidade. (Lucas 11:13; Romanos 1:4) Blasfemar esse espírito santo, que implica agir deliberadamente contra os propósitos de Jeová, é um pecado imperdoável. — Marcos 3:29.

Por que a santidade de Jeová nos atrai a ele?

15 Não é difícil ver, portanto, por que a Bíblia faz uma ligação entre a santidade de Deus e o temor piedoso da parte do homem. Por exemplo, o Salmo 99:3 reza: "Elogiem eles o teu nome. Grande e atemorizante, santo ele é." Mas esse temor não é um pavor mórbido. Em vez disso, é um senso profundo de admiração reverente, respeito na sua forma mais enobrecedora. É apropriado sentir-se assim, visto que a santidade de Deus está tão acima de nós. Ela é fulgurantemente limpa, gloriosa. Ainda assim, não nos deve repelir. Ao contrário, o conceito correto sobre a santidade de Deus nos achegará ainda mais a ele. Por quê?

16 Por um lado, a Bíblia associa a santidade à beleza. Em Isaías 63:15, o céu é descrito como "morada excelsa de santidade e beleza". A beleza nos atrai. Por exemplo, veja a foto na página 33, na edição de tamanho regular. Acha esse cenário atraente? Por quê? Note como a água parece pura. Até mesmo o ar deve ser limpo, pois o céu é azul e a luz parece cintilar. Mas se o cenário fosse alterado — o riacho entulhado de lixo, as árvores e as pedras cobertas de pichações, o ar poluído — não nos atrairia mais; nos repeliria. Normalmente, associamos a beleza à limpeza, à pureza e à luz. Essas mesmas palavras podem ser usadas para descrever a santidade de Jeová. Não é de admirar que as descrições visionárias de Jeová nos encantem! Reluzente, deslumbrante como pedras preciosas, fulgurante como fogo, ou como os mais puros e brilhantes metais preciosos — assim é a beleza de nosso Deus santo. — Ezequiel 1:25-28; Revelação 4:2, 3.

[17] Mas será que a santidade de Deus deveria nos fazer sentir inferiores, em comparação? A resposta, naturalmente, é sim. Afinal, somos mesmo muitíssimo inferiores a Jeová, para dizer o mínimo. Seria esse um motivo para nos afastarmos dele? Considere a reação de Isaías ao ouvir os serafins proclamarem a santidade de Jeová. "Eu passei a dizer: 'Ai de mim! Pois, a bem dizer, fui silenciado, porque sou homem de lábios impuros e moro no meio de um povo de lábios impuros; pois os meus olhos viram o próprio Rei, Jeová dos exércitos!' " (Isaías 6:5) Sim, a infinita santidade de Jeová lembrou Isaías de como ele era pecaminoso e imperfeito. Inicialmente, esse homem fiel ficou arrasado. Mas Jeová não o deixou nesse estado.

[18] Um serafim prontamente consolou o profeta. Como? Esse poderoso espírito voou até o altar, apanhou uma brasa ali e, com ela, tocou nos lábios de

17, 18. (a) Qual foi a reação inicial de Isaías diante da visão que teve? (b) Como Jeová usou um serafim para consolar Isaías, e que significado teve o gesto do serafim?

Isaías. Isso talvez pareça mais uma tortura do que um consolo. Mas lembre-se de que era uma visão, rica em simbolismos. Isaías, um judeu fiel, bem sabia que diariamente eram oferecidos sacrifícios no altar do templo, para expiação de pecados. E o serafim amorosamente lembrou o profeta de que, embora fosse mesmo imperfeito, "de lábios impuros", ainda assim podia ter uma posição limpa perante Deus.* Jeová se dispunha a considerar santo um homem imperfeito e pecaminoso — pelo menos em sentido relativo. — Isaías 6:6, 7.

19 O mesmo se aplica hoje. Todos aqueles sacrifícios oferecidos no altar em Jerusalém eram apenas sombras de algo maior — o perfeito sacrifício único, oferecido por Jesus Cristo em 33 EC. (Hebreus 9:11-14) Se realmente nos arrependermos de nossos pecados, corrigirmos nosso modo errado de agir e exercermos fé nesse sacrifício, seremos perdoados. (1 João 2:2) Também podemos ter uma posição limpa perante Deus. Assim, o apóstolo Pedro nos lembra: "Está escrito: 'Tendes de ser santos, porque eu sou santo.'" (1 Pedro 1:16) Note

* A expressão "de lábios impuros" é apropriada, pois a Bíblia muitas vezes usa os lábios como símbolo da fala, ou linguagem. Em todos os humanos imperfeitos, uma grande proporção de pecados pode ser atribuída ao modo de usar a faculdade da fala. — Provérbios 10:19; Tiago 3:2, 6.

19. Como podemos ser santos em sentido relativo, mesmo sendo imperfeitos?

que Jeová não disse que temos de ser tão santos quanto ele. Ele jamais espera o impossível de nós. (Salmo 103:13, 14) Em vez disso, Jeová diz para sermos santos porque ele é santo. "Como filhos amados", tentamos imitá-lo da melhor maneira, dentro do que é possível para humanos imperfeitos. (Efésios 5:1) Portanto, alcançar a santidade é um processo contínuo. À medida que crescemos espiritualmente, procuramos 'aperfeiçoar a santidade' todos os dias. — 2 Coríntios 7:1.

20 Jeová ama o que é direito e puro. Ele odeia o pecado. (Habacuque 1:13) Mas ele não nos odeia. Enquanto encararmos o pecado como ele o encara — odiarmos o que é mau e amarmos o que é bom — e nos esforçarmos em seguir as pisadas perfeitas de Cristo Jesus, Jeová perdoará nossos pecados. (Amós 5:15; 1 Pedro 2:21) Quando entendemos que podemos ser puros aos olhos de nosso Deus santo, os efeitos são profundos. Lembre-se de que a santidade de Jeová, de início, fez Isaías lembrar-se de sua própria impureza. Ele bradou: "Ai de mim!" Mas, uma vez que entendeu que seus pecados haviam sido expiados, sua disposição mudou. Quando Jeová pediu um voluntário para cumprir certa

“VIGOROSO EM PODER”

Nesta seção examinaremos relatos bíblicos que atestam o poder de Jeová de criar, destruir, proteger e restaurar. Entender como Jeová Deus, que é “vigoroso em poder”, usa a sua “energia dinâmica” encherá o nosso coração de profunda reverência. — Isaías 40:26.

"Jeová é . . . grande em poder"

ELIAS já havia visto coisas espantosas: corvos lhe trouxeram comida duas vezes por dia, enquanto vivia num esconderijo; dois recipientes supriram farinha e azeite sem nunca esvaziar durante uma fome prolongada; até mesmo fogo caiu do céu em resposta à sua oração. (1 Reis, capítulos 17, 18) Mas Elias nunca havia visto nada como o que se segue.

[2] Abrigado à entrada de uma caverna no monte Horebe, ele presenciou uma série de eventos espetaculares. Primeiro, um vento. Deve ter causado um ruído ensurdecedor, pois, de tão forte, 'rompia montes e destroçava rochedos'. Depois houve um terremoto, que liberou forças tremendas confinadas na crosta terrestre. Em seguida, fogo. Enquanto esse ardia, Elias deve ter sentido o sopro de seu calor escaldante. — 1 Reis 19:8-12.

[3] Todos esses eventos de naturezas diversas, presenciados por Elias, tiveram algo em comum — eram demonstrações do grande poder de Jeová. Naturalmente,

1, 2. Que coisas espantosas Elias já havia visto, mas que eventos espetaculares presenciou à entrada de uma caverna no monte Horebe?
3. Elias presenciou evidências de que qualidade divina e onde podemos ver evidências dessa mesma qualidade?

não é preciso ver um milagre para discernir que Deus tem essa qualidade. Ela é óbvia. A Bíblia diz que a criação é prova do "sempiterno poder e Divindade" de Jeová. (Romanos 1:20) Pense nos clarões e estrondos de uma tempestade, na majestosa precipitação das águas de uma cachoeira, na estonteante vastidão de um céu estrelado! Não vê nessas manifestações o poder de Deus? No entanto, poucos no mundo atual realmente reconhecem o poder divino. Menos ainda encaram de maneira apropriada esse poder. Entender essa qualidade divina, porém, nos dá muitos motivos para nos achegar a Jeová. Nesta seção, vamos realizar um estudo detalhado do poder inigualável de Jeová.

Qualidade essencial de Jeová

[4] Jeová é incomparável em poder. Jeremias 10:6 diz: "De modo algum há alguém igual a ti, ó Jeová. Tu és grande e teu nome é grande em potência." Note que potência, ou poder, está relacionada com o nome de Jeová. Lembre-se de que esse nome evidentemente significa "Ele Causa que Venha a Ser". O que habilita Jeová a criar qualquer coisa que ele queira e se tornar o que quer que ele deseje se tornar? O poder. Sim, Jeová tem capacidade ilimitada para agir, para cumprir a sua vontade. Esse poder é uma de suas qualidades essenciais.

[5] Visto que jamais poderíamos entender a plenitude de seu poder, Jeová usa ilustrações para nos ajudar. Como já vimos, ele usa o touro como símbolo de poder. (Ezequiel 1:4-10) É uma escolha apropriada, pois mesmo o touro domesticado é uma criatura grande e poderosa. O povo da Palestina nos tempos bíblicos raramente, se é que alguma vez, se confrontava com algum animal mais forte. Mas eles conheciam, sim, um tipo de touro ainda mais temível — o touro selvagem, ou auroque, hoje extinto. (Jó 39:9-12) O imperador romano Júlio César disse certa vez que os touros selvagens eram quase do tamanho de elefantes. "É grande a força deles", escreveu, "e é grande a sua velocidade". Imagine como você se sentiria pequeno e fraco perto de uma criatura dessas!

[6] Similarmente, o homem é bem pequeno e fraco em comparação com o Deus de poder, Jeová. Para este, até mesmo nações poderosas são como mera camada fina de pó numa balança. (Isaías 40:15) Diferentemente de qualquer criatura, o poder de Jeová é ilimitado, pois só ele é chamado de "Todo-Poderoso".* (Revelação [Apocalipse] 15:3) Jeová é "vigoroso em poder" e 'abundante em energia dinâmica'. (Isaías 40:26) Ele é a fonte perene, inesgotável, de força e de poder. Ele não depende de uma fonte externa de energia, pois "a força pertence a Deus". (Salmo 62:11) De que maneiras, porém, Jeová usa seu poder?

6. Por que somente Jeová é chamado de "Todo-Poderoso"?

Como Jeová usa seu poder

[7] Espírito santo emana de Jeová em quantidade ilimitada. É o poder de Deus em ação. De fato, em Gênesis 1:2 a Bíblia refere-se ao espírito santo como "força ativa" de Deus. As palavras hebraica e grega originais vertidas "espírito" podem, em outros contextos, ser traduzidas por "vento", "fôlego" e "sopro". Segundo os lexicógrafos, as palavras dos idiomas originais transmitem a ideia de uma força invisível em ação. Assim como o vento, o espírito de Deus é invisível para nós, mas seus efeitos são reais e discerníveis.

[8] O espírito santo de Deus é infinitamente versátil.

* A palavra grega traduzida por "Todo-Poderoso" literalmente significa "Governante de Todos; Aquele Que Tem Todo o Poder".

7. O que é o espírito santo de Jeová, e que ideia transmitem as palavras dos idiomas originais usadas na Bíblia?

8. Que expressões simbólicas a Bíblia usa para referir-se ao espírito santo, e por que são apropriadas?

Jeová pode usá-lo para realizar qualquer propósito que tenha em mente. É apropriado, pois, que na Bíblia o espírito santo seja simbolicamente chamado de "dedo", "mão forte" ou "braço estendido" de Deus. (Lucas 11:20; Deuteronômio 5:15; Salmo 8:3) Assim como o homem pode usar as mãos para realizar uma grande variedade de tarefas que exigem diferentes graus de força ou de destreza, Deus podia, e ainda pode, usar seu espírito para realizar qualquer coisa — como criar o infinitésimo átomo, partir o mar Vermelho ou capacitar os cristãos do primeiro século a falar em línguas.

[9] Jeová também usa o poder no exercício de sua autoridade como Soberano Universal. Consegue imaginar ter sob seu comando milhões e milhões de súditos inteligentes e capazes, ansiosos de cumprir as suas ordens? Jeová tem tal poder de comando. Ele tem servos humanos, que as Escrituras muitas vezes comparam a um exército. (Salmo 68:11; 110:3) No entanto, o ser humano é uma criatura fraca, em comparação com um anjo. Ora, quando os soldados assírios atacaram o povo de Deus, um único anjo matou 185 mil deles numa só noite! (2 Reis 19:35) Os anjos de Deus são "poderosos em poder". — Salmo 103:19, 20.

9. Até que ponto vai o poder de comando de Jeová?

[10] Quantos anjos existem? O profeta Daniel, numa visão que teve do céu, observou bem mais de 100 milhões de criaturas espirituais perante o trono de Jeová. Mas nada indica que ele tenha visto a totalidade dos anjos. (Daniel 7:10) Portanto, talvez existam centenas de milhões de anjos. De modo que Deus é chamado de Jeová dos exércitos. Esse título indica sua posição poderosa de Comandante de uma vasta e organizada formação de anjos poderosos. Acima de todas essas criaturas espirituais ele colocou alguém como responsável, seu Filho amado, "o primogênito de toda a criação". (Colossenses 1:15) Como arcanjo — superior a todos os anjos, serafins e querubins —, Jesus é a criatura mais poderosa de Jeová.

[11] Mas Jeová usa o poder ainda de outras maneiras. Hebreus 4:12 diz: "A palavra de Deus é viva e exerce poder." Já observou o poder fenomenal da palavra de Deus, a mensagem inspirada pelo espírito, preservada na Bíblia? Ela pode nos fortalecer, edificar a nossa fé e nos ajudar a fazer grandes mudanças pessoais. O apóstolo Paulo alertou concrentes contra indivíduos que levavam uma vida crassamente imoral. Daí acrescentou: “No entanto, isso é o que fostes alguns de vós.” (1 Coríntios 6:9-11) Sim, “a palavra de Deus” havia exercido seu poder sobre eles e os ajudado a fazer mudanças.

[12] O poder de Jeová é tão imenso, e seus meios de usá-lo são tão eficazes, que nada pode impedi-lo. Jesus disse: “A Deus todas as coisas são possíveis.” (Mateus 19:26) Com que objetivos Jeová usa seu poder?

Poder guiado por um propósito

[13] O espírito de Jeová é muito superior a qualquer força física; e Jeová não é uma força impessoal, uma mera fonte de energia. É um Deus pessoal, no pleno controle de seu próprio poder. O que, então, o induz a usá-lo?

[14] Como veremos, Deus usa seu poder para criar, destruir, proteger e restaurar — em suma, para fazer tudo o que se enquadra nos seus propósitos perfeitos. (Isaías 46:10) Em certos casos, Jeová usa o poder para revelar aspectos importantes de sua personalidade e de seus padrões. Acima de tudo, ele o usa para cumprir Sua vontade — vindicar sua soberania e santificar seu santo nome por meio do Reino messiânico. Nada pode frustrar esse propósito.

13, 14. (a) Por que se pode dizer que Jeová não é uma fonte impessoal de energia ou poder? (b) De que maneiras Jeová usa seu poder?

[15] Jeová também usa seu poder para nos beneficiar pessoalmente. Note o que diz 2 Crônicas 16:9: "Quanto a Jeová, seus olhos percorrem toda a terra, para mostrar a sua força a favor daqueles cujo coração é pleno para com ele." O que aconteceu com Elias, conforme mencionado no início, ilustra isso. Por que Jeová lhe fez aquelas demonstrações assombrosas de poder divino? Bem, a perversa Rainha Jezabel havia jurado matar Elias. O profeta estava fugindo para salvar a vida. Ele se sentia sozinho, assustado e desanimado — como se todo o seu trabalho árduo tivesse sido em vão. Para consolar esse homem aflito, Jeová lembrou-o vividamente da grandeza do poder divino. O vento, o terremoto e o fogo indicavam que o Ser mais poderoso do Universo apoiava Elias. Por que deveria ter medo de Jezabel, tendo o apoio do Deus Todo-Poderoso? — 1 Reis 19:1-12.*

[16] Embora atualmente não seja sua época de fazer

* A Bíblia diz que 'Jeová não estava no vento, no tremor ou no fogo'. Ao contrário dos adoradores de míticos deuses da natureza, os servos de Jeová não o procuram dentro das forças da natureza. Ele é grandioso demais para ficar confinado em algo que ele mesmo criou. — 1 Reis 8:27.

milagres, Jeová não mudou desde os dias de Elias. (1 Coríntios 13:8) Ele está tão desejoso como sempre esteve de usar seu poder em favor dos que o amam. É verdade que ele reside num elevado domínio espiritual, mas não está longe de nós. Seu poder é ilimitado, de modo que a distância não é nenhum obstáculo. Na verdade, "Jeová está perto de todos os que o invocam". (Salmo 145:18) Certa vez, quando o profeta Daniel orou a Jeová pedindo ajuda, um anjo lhe apareceu antes mesmo de ele terminar de orar! (Daniel 9:20-23) Nada pode impedir Jeová de ajudar e fortalecer aqueles a quem ele ama. — Salmo 118:6.

O grande poder de Deus o torna inacessível?

[17] Será que deveríamos temer a Deus por causa do seu poder? A única resposta possível é sim e não. Sim, no sentido de que tal qualidade nos dá amplos motivos para termos temor reverente, aquele profundo respeito que consideramos brevemente no capítulo anterior. Esse temor, diz a Bíblia, é "o princípio da sabedoria". (Salmo 111:10) Mas também respondemos não, no sentido de que o poder de Deus não nos dá motivo para ter pavor dele ou evitar nos dirigir a ele.

17. Em que sentido o poder de Jeová nos inspira temor, mas que tipo de temor não inspira?

[18] “O poder tende a corromper; o poder absoluto corrompe absolutamente.” Assim escreveu o historiador inglês Lorde Acton, em 1887. Essa declaração já foi citada muitas vezes, talvez porque tantas pessoas veem nela uma verdade inegável. Humanos imperfeitos costumam abusar do poder, como a História confirma vez após vez. (Eclesiastes 4:1; 8:9) Por isso, muitos não confiam nos poderosos e se afastam deles. Tendo em vista que o poder de Jeová é absoluto, será que isso o corrompeu de alguma maneira? Certamente que não! Como já vimos, ele é santo, absolutamente incorruptível. Jeová é diferente dos imperfeitos homens e mulheres de poder neste mundo corrupto. Ele nunca abusou de seu poder, e jamais o fará!

[19] Lembre-se de que o poder não é a única qualidade de Jeová. Ainda estudaremos sua justiça, sua sabedoria e seu amor. Mas não pense que as qualidades de Jeová se manifestam de modo rígido ou mecânico, como se ele exercesse apenas uma delas por vez. Ao contrário, veremos nos próximos capítulos que Jeová sempre usa seu poder em harmonia com a justiça, a sabedoria e o amor. Considere ainda outra qualidade de Deus, rara entre os governantes do mundo — o autocontrole.

[20] Imagine encontrar um homem tão alto e tão forte que você se sinta intimidado por ele. Com o tempo, porém, você percebe que ele parece ser gentil. Está sempre disposto e ansioso para usar seu poder para ajudar e proteger as pessoas, em especial os indefesos e vulneráveis. Ele jamais abusa de sua força. Você o vê ser caluniado sem justa causa e ainda assim o comportamento dele é firme, porém calmo, digno, até mesmo bondoso. Talvez fique imaginando se seria capaz de mostrar a mesma mansidão e autocontrole, em especial se fosse tão forte quanto ele! À medida que fosse conhecendo melhor esse homem, não teria vontade de se achegar mais a ele? Temos muitos outros motivos para nos achegar ao todo-poderoso Jeová. Note a sentença inteira em que se baseia o título deste capítulo: "Jeová é vagaroso em irar-se e grande em poder." (Naum 1:3) Jeová não se apressa em usar seu poder contra as pessoas, nem mesmo contra os perversos. Ele é brando e bondoso. Mostrou ser "vagaroso em irar-se" diante de muitas provocações. — Salmo 78:37-41.

Perguntas para Meditação

2 Crônicas 16:7-13 De que modo o exemplo do Rei Asa mostra a seriedade de não confiar no poder de Jeová?

Salmo 89:6-18 O poder de Jeová tem que efeito sobre seus adoradores?

Isaías 40:10-31 Como se descreve aqui o poder de Jeová? Como é descrita a grandeza desse poder e como ele pode beneficiar-nos pessoalmente?

Revelação 11:16-18 O que Jeová promete fazer mediante o seu poder no futuro? Por que isso anima os cristãos verdadeiros?

[21] Considere o autocontrole de Jeová de outro ângulo. Se você tivesse poder ilimitado, acha que se sentiria, às vezes, tentado a obrigar as pessoas a fazer as coisas do seu jeito? Jeová, com todo o seu poder, não compele as pessoas a servi-lo. Embora servir a Deus seja o único caminho para a vida eterna, ele não nos obriga a prestar-lhe tal serviço. Em vez disso, bondosamente dignifica cada pessoa com a liberdade de escolha. Ele alerta contra as consequências das escolhas erradas e fala das recompensas das escolhas certas. Mas nós é que temos de escolher. (Deuteronômio 30:19, 20)

21. Por que Jeová não obriga as pessoas a fazer a Sua vontade, e o que isso nos ensina a respeito dele?

Jeová simplesmente não tem interesse em que seus servos o obedeçam por obrigação, ou por temor mórbido de seu assombroso poder. Ele procura os que se oferecem voluntariamente para servi-lo, por amor. — 2 Coríntios 9:7.

[22] Vejamos mais um motivo pelo qual não precisamos ter pavor do Deus Todo-Poderoso. Humanos poderosos, em geral, temem partilhar o poder. Jeová, no entanto, se agrada em dar poder a seus adoradores leais. Ele delega grande autoridade a outros, como a seu Filho, por exemplo. (Mateus 28:18) Jeová também dá poder a seus servos de outra maneira. A Bíblia explica: "Tuas, ó Jeová, são a grandeza, e a potência, e a beleza, e a excelência, e a dignidade; pois teu é tudo nos céus e na terra. . . . Na tua mão há poder e potência, e na tua mão há a capacidade para engrandecer e para dar força a todos." — 1 Crônicas 29:11, 12.

[23] Sim, Jeová terá prazer em lhe dar força. Ele até mesmo confere "poder além do normal" aos que desejam servi-lo. (2 Coríntios 4:7) Não se sente atraído a esse Deus dinâmico, que usa seu poder de modo tão bondoso e correto? No próximo capítulo, focalizaremos como Jeová usa seu poder para criar.

22, 23. (a) Que indicações há de que Jeová se agrada em dar poder a outros? (b) O que consideraremos no próximo capítulo?

Poder criativo — “Aquele que fez o céu e a terra”

JÁ FICOU alguma vez perto do fogo numa noite fria? Talvez tenha mantido as mãos na distância certa das chamas, para sentir seu calor agradável. Se você momentaneamente chegou perto demais, o calor ficou insuportável. E, caso tenha se afastado demais, o ar gelado da noite o fez sentir frio.

[2] Existe um “fogo” que esquenta o nosso corpo durante o dia. Está a uma distância de uns 150 milhões de quilômetros.* Para que sintamos o calor do Sol de uma distância tão grande, que tremenda energia ele precisa ter! Mas a Terra orbita essa assombrosa fornalha termonuclear na distância exata. Perto demais, as águas da Terra evaporariam; longe demais, congelariam. Ambos os extremos eliminariam a vida no nosso planeta. Essencial para a vida na Terra, a luz solar é também limpa e eficiente, além de agradável. — Eclesiastes 11:7.

1, 2. De que modo o Sol demonstra o poder criativo de Jeová?

[3] No entanto, a maioria das pessoas encara o Sol como algo corriqueiro, embora dependam dele para viver. Com isso, deixam de aprender uma lição importante. A Bíblia diz a respeito de Jeová: 'Preparaste o luzeiro, o Sol.' (Salmo 74:16) Sim, o Sol honra a Jeová, "Aquele que fez o céu e a terra". (Salmo 19:1; 146:6) Ele é apenas um dos incontáveis corpos celestes que nos conscientizam do tremendo poder criativo de Jeová. Vamos examinar alguns desses e depois voltaremos nossa atenção para a Terra e sua grande variedade de vida.

"Levantai ao alto os vossos olhos e vede"

[4] Como sem dúvida sabe, o Sol é uma estrela. Ele parece ser maior do que as estrelas noturnas, pois está bem mais perto de nós. Qual é a sua capacidade? No núcleo, sua temperatura é de uns 15 milhões de graus Celsius. Se você pudesse apanhar do núcleo do Sol um pedacinho do tamanho de uma cabeça de alfinete e trazê-lo aqui para a Terra, ninguém estaria seguro a menos de 140 quilômetros distante dessa minúscula fonte de calor! A cada segundo, o Sol emite energia

3. O Sol confirma que verdade importante?

4, 5. Qual é a capacidade e o tamanho do Sol, mas como se compara isso com outras estrelas?

equivalente à explosão de muitas centenas de milhões de bombas nucleares.

5 O Sol é tão grande que, dentro dele, caberiam mais de 1 milhão e 300 mil Terras. Mas será que ele é uma estrela excepcionalmente grande? Não, os astrônomos chamam-na de anã amarela. O apóstolo Paulo escreveu que "estrela difere de estrela em glória". (1 Coríntios 15:41) Ele nem tinha noção de como essas palavras inspiradas eram verdadeiras. Existe uma estrela tão grande que, se fosse colocada no lugar do Sol, a Terra ficaria dentro dela. Se fosse feita a mesma coisa com outra estrela gigante, essa ocuparia todo o espaço até Saturno — embora esse planeta esteja tão distante da Terra que uma espaçonave, viajando 40 vezes mais rápido do que uma bala de fuzil, levou quatro anos para chegar lá!

6 Ainda mais assombroso do que o tamanho das estrelas é a sua quantidade. De fato, a Bíblia sugere que as estrelas são praticamente inumeráveis, tão difíceis de contar como a "areia do mar". (Jeremias 33:22) Isso subentende que há muito mais estrelas do que se pode ver a olho nu. Afinal, se um escritor bíblico, como Jeremias, erguesse os olhos e tentasse contar as estrelas à noite, teria contado apenas umas três mil — o total que se pode detectar a olho nu numa noite estrelada. Isso é comparável ao número de grãos num mero punhado de areia. Na realidade, porém, o número de estrelas é inimaginável, como o de grãos de areia do mar.* Quem seria capaz de contá-lo?

6. Como a Bíblia mostra que o número de estrelas é vasto do ponto de vista humano?

[7] Isaías 40:26 responde: "Levantai ao alto os vossos olhos e vede. Quem criou estas coisas? Foi Aquele que faz sair o exército delas até mesmo por número, chamando a todas elas por nome." O Salmo 147:4 diz: 'Ele conta o número das estrelas.' Qual é "o número das estrelas"? Não é uma pergunta fácil de ser respondida. Os astrônomos calculam que há mais de 100 bilhões delas só na nossa galáxia, a Via Láctea.# Mas a nossa galáxia é apenas uma dentre muitas outras, muitas das quais fervilham com mais estrelas ainda. Quantas galáxias existem? Alguns astrônomos estimam em

* Alguns acham que os antigos, nos tempos bíblicos, devem ter usado algum tipo de telescópio primitivo. Senão, ponderam, como as pessoas daquele tempo poderiam saber que o número de estrelas é tão vasto e incontável do ponto de vista humano? Essa especulação infundada não leva em conta Jeová, o Autor da Bíblia. — 2 Timóteo 3:16.

Sabe quanto tempo você levaria apenas para contar 100 bilhões de estrelas? Se pudesse contar uma por segundo — 24 horas por dia —, levaria 3.171 anos!

7. (a) Mais ou menos quantas estrelas existem na galáxia Via Láctea e, em comparação com o total, será que esse é um número muito grande? (b) Por que é significativo que os astrônomos achem difícil contar as galáxias, e o que isso nos diz a respeito do poder criativo de Jeová?

50 bilhões. Outros calculam que possam existir até 125 bilhões. De modo que o homem não consegue determinar nem mesmo o número de galáxias e muito menos o total exato dos bilhões de estrelas que elas contêm. Mas Jeová sabe quantas são. Além disso, ele dá um nome a cada estrela!

8 A nossa reverência só pode aumentar quando pensamos no tamanho das galáxias. Calcula-se que a extensão da Via Láctea seja de uns 100 mil anos-luz. Imagine um raio de luz viajando à tremenda velocidade de 300 mil quilômetros por segundo. Esse raio levaria 100 mil anos para cruzar a nossa galáxia! E há galáxias muito maiores do que a nossa. A Bíblia diz que Jeová 'estende' esses vastos céus como se fossem um simples tecido. (Salmo 104:2) Ele também controla os movimentos dessas criações. Desde a menor partícula de poeira interestelar até a mais poderosa galáxia, tudo se move segundo leis físicas formuladas e aplicadas por Deus. (Jó 38:31-33) Assim, alguns cientistas comparam os movimentos precisos dos corpos celestes à coreografia de um complexo balé. Pense, então, Naquele que criou essas coisas. Não sente profunda reverência pelo Deus de tamanho poder criativo?

8. (a) Como se pode ter uma ideia do tamanho da galáxia Via Láctea? (b) Por que meios Jeová controla os movimentos dos corpos celestes?

“Quem fez a terra pelo seu poder”

[9] O poder criativo de Jeová é evidente em nosso lar, a Terra. Ele a situou com muita precisão dentro do vasto Universo. Alguns cientistas acreditam que muitas galáxias sejam inóspitas para um planeta em que há vida, como o nosso. A maior parte da Via Láctea evidentemente não foi projetada para sustentar vida. O centro galáctico está coalhado de estrelas. A radiação é alta e quase colisões entre estrelas são comuns. Nas extremidades da galáxia não existem muitos dos elementos essenciais à vida. O nosso sistema solar se localiza no ponto ideal, entre esses extremos.

[10] A Terra se beneficia de um remoto, porém gigante, protetor — o planeta Júpiter. Mais de mil vezes maior do que a Terra, Júpiter exerce uma tremenda influência gravitacional. O resultado? Ele absorve ou desvia objetos que cruzam o espaço. Os cientistas calculam que, se não fosse Júpiter, a chuva de projéteis maciços que atingem a Terra seria 10 mil vezes maior do que é no presente. Mais perto, a Terra é abençoada com um satélite incomum — a Lua. Mais do que um ornamento e fonte de “luz noturna”, a Lua mantém a Terra numa inclinação constante e firme. Essa inclina-ção produz aqui estações previsíveis e estáveis — outro fator importante que favorece a vida.

[11] O poder criativo de Jeová é evidente em todas as facetas do projeto da Terra. Veja a atmosfera, que serve como um grande escudo. O Sol emite tanto raios benéficos como mortíferos. Ao atingirem a parte superior da atmosfera, os raios letais transformam o oxigênio comum em ozônio. A resultante camada de ozônio, por sua vez, absorve a maioria desses raios. Assim, nosso planeta tem seu próprio "guarda-chuva" protetor.

[12] Esse é apenas um dos aspectos da atmosfera, uma complexa mistura de gases, ideal para sustentar a vida das criaturas na superfície da Terra ou perto dela. Outra maravilha da atmosfera é o ciclo da água. Todo ano, o sol faz mais de 400 mil quilômetros cúbicos de água evaporar dos oceanos e mares da Terra. Essas águas formam nuvens, que os ventos atmosféricos espalham por toda a parte. Depois, filtradas e purificadas, elas caem como chuva, neve ou gelo, reabastecendo os suprimentos de água. É exatamente como diz Eclesiastes 1:7: "Todas as torrentes hibernais correm para o mar, contudo, o próprio mar não está cheio. Ao lugar de onde correm as torrentes hibernais, para lá elas voltam a fim de sair correndo." Somente Jeová poderia ter acionado tal ciclo.

11. Como a atmosfera da Terra foi projetada para servir de escudo protetor?

12. Como o ciclo de água atmosférico ilustra o poder criativo de Jeová?

[13] Onde existe vida, há evidência do poder do Criador. Desde as majestosas sequoias-sempre-verdes (mais altas do que um prédio de 30 andares) até as plantas microscópicas que pululam nos oceanos e suprem grande parte do oxigênio que respiramos, o poder criativo de Jeová é evidente. O próprio solo fervilha de coisas vivas — minhocas, fungos e micróbios, todos interagindo de maneiras complexas que ajudam no crescimento das plantas. Apropriadamente, a Bíblia fala do solo como tendo "poder". — Gênesis 4:12.

[14] Sem dúvida, é Jeová "Quem fez a terra pelo seu poder". (Jeremias 10:12) O poder de Deus é evidente até mesmo nas menores criações. Por exemplo, um milhão de átomos colocados lado a lado não atingiriam a espessura de um fio de cabelo humano. E, mesmo se um átomo fosse aumentado até a altura de um prédio de 14 andares, seu núcleo seria do tamanho de um mero grão de sal no sétimo andar. No entanto, esse infinité-simo núcleo é a fonte da espantosa energia liberada numa explosão nuclear!

“Toda coisa que respira”

[15] Outra prova vívida do poder criativo de Jeová é a abundância de vida animal na Terra. Entre as muitas coisas que louvam a Jeová, alistadas no Salmo 148, o versículo 10 inclui “feras e todos os animais domésticos”. Para mostrar por que o homem deve ter reverência pelo Criador, Jeová falou certa vez a Jó a respeito de animais como o leão, a zebra, o touro selvagem, o beemote (ou hipopótamo) e o leviatã (pelo visto, o crocodilo). Qual era o ponto em questão? Se o homem se admira dessas criaturas fortes, temíveis e indomáveis, como deveria se sentir com relação ao Criador delas? — Jó, capítulos 38-41.

[16] O Salmo 148:10 menciona também “aves aladas”. Pense na enorme variedade! Jeová falou a Jó da avestruz, que “ri do cavalo e do seu cavaleiro”. (Jó 39:13, 18) De fato, essa ave de 2,5 metros de altura talvez não saiba voar, mas pode correr a 65 quilômetros por hora, com passadas de até uns 4 metros! (Jó 39:13, 18) O albatroz, por sua vez, é um planador nato que passa a maior parte da vida no ar, sobre os oceanos. Essa ave tem uns 3 metros de envergadura e pode planar por horas a fio sem bater as asas. Em contraste, o beija-flor-abelha, de apenas uns 5 centímetros de comprimento, é a menor ave do mundo. Ele pode bater as asas 80 vezes por segundo! Beija-flores, reluzentes como pequeninas gemas aladas, podem pairar no ar como helicópteros e até voar de marcha a ré.

[17] O Salmo 148:7 diz que até mesmo os "monstros marinhos" louvam a Jeová. Considere o que em geral é considerado o maior animal que já viveu neste planeta, a baleia-azul. Esse "monstro" marinho pode chegar a mais de 30 metros de comprimento. Pode igualar-se ao peso de uma manada de 30 elefantes adultos. Só a sua língua tem o peso de um elefante. O coração é do tamanho de um carro popular. Esse enorme órgão bate apenas 9 vezes por minuto — em contraste com o coração do beija-flor, que pode bater umas 1.200 vezes por minuto. Pelo menos um dos vasos sanguíneos da baleia-azul é tão grande que uma criança poderia se arrastar por dentro dele. Com certeza, nosso coração nos induz a repetir a exortação final do li-vro dos Salmos: “Toda coisa que respira — louve ela a Jah.” — Salmo 150:6.

Aprendamos do poder criativo de Jeová

[18] O que nos ensina o uso do poder criativo de Jeová? A diversidade da criação nos assombra. Certo salmista exclamou: “Quantos são os teus trabalhos, ó Jeová! . . . A terra está cheia das tuas produções.” (Salmo 104:24) É verdade! Os biólogos já identificaram bem mais de um milhão de espécies de coisas vivas na Terra; mas as opiniões variam quanto a se o total é de 10 milhões, 30 milhões, ou mais. Um artista humano pode achar que às vezes esgota a sua criatividade. Em contraste, a criatividade de Jeová — seu poder de inventar e criar coisas diversificadas — é obviamente inesgotável.

[19] O uso que Jeová faz de seu poder criativo nos ensina algo a respeito de Sua soberania. A própria palavra “Criador” distingue Jeová de qualquer outra coisa no Universo, onde tudo o que existe é “criação”. Até mesmo o Filho unigênito de Jeová, que serviu como “mestre de obras” durante a criação, jamais é chamado de Criador, ou de Cocriador, na Bíblia. (Provérbios 8:30; Mateus 19:4) Em vez disso, ele é “o primogênito

[20] Será que Jeová parou de usar seu poder criativo? Bem, a Bíblia diz que Jeová "passou a repousar no sétimo dia de toda a sua obra que fizera" nos anteriores seis dias criativos. (Gênesis 2:2) O apóstolo Paulo indicou que a duração desse sétimo "dia" é de milhares de anos, pois ainda estava em curso nos seus dias. (Hebreus 4:3-6) Mas será que "repousar" significa que Jeová parou totalmente de trabalhar? Não, Jeová nun-

ca para de trabalhar. (Salmo 92:4; João 5:17) Portanto, seu repouso deve simplesmente significar que ele encerrou suas obras criativas materiais com relação à Terra. As obras para cumprir os seus propósitos, porém, têm continuado sem interrupção. Essas obras incluem a inspiração das Escrituras Sagradas e até mesmo "uma nova criação", assunto que será abordado no Capítulo 19. — 2 Coríntios 5:17.

Poder de destruição — "Jeová é pessoa varonil de guerra"

OS ISRAELITAS estavam encurralados — espremidos entre rochedos íngremes de um lado e um mar intransponível de outro. O exército egípcio, uma cruel máquina de matança, os perseguia a todo o vapor, decidido a aniquilá-los.* Apesar disso, Moisés exortou o povo de Deus a não perder a esperança. "O próprio Jeová lutará por vós", garantiu-lhes. — Êxodo 14:14.

* Segundo o historiador judeu Josefo, os hebreus foram perseguidos por "seiscentos carros de guerra, cinquenta mil cavaleiros e duzentos mil homens de infantaria bem armados". — Antiguidades Judaicas, Volume 1, p. 244.

1-3. (a) Que ameaça dos egípcios os israelitas enfrentaram? (b) Como Jeová lutou pelo seu povo?

Salmo 105:39) Moisés estendeu a mão. Impelido por um vento forte, o mar se abriu. As águas de alguma maneira ficaram estáticas e se ergueram como muralhas, abrindo uma passagem suficientemente larga para a nação inteira! — Êxodo 14:21; 15:8.

[3] Diante dessa prova de poder, Faraó deveria ter ordenado o recuo de suas tropas. Mas ele era orgulhoso demais para isso e mandou atacar. (Êxodo 14:23) Os egípcios lançaram-se ao leito do mar atrás dos israelitas, mas a caçada logo virou um caos, porque as rodas dos carros de guerra começaram a se desprender. Quando os israelitas estavam seguros na outra margem, Jeová ordenou a Moisés: "Estende tua mão sobre o mar, para que as águas voltem sobre os egípcios, sobre seus carros de guerra e seus cavalarianos." As muralhas de água desabaram, afogando Faraó e suas forças. — Êxodo 14:24-28; Salmo 136:15.

[4] A salvação do povo de Israel no mar Vermelho foi um evento momentoso na história dos tratos de Deus com a humanidade. Naquela ocasião, Jeová mostrou ser "pessoa varonil de guerra". (Êxodo 15:3) Mas como reage ao saber que Jeová às vezes é descrito dessa maneira? Na verdade, as guerras têm causado muitas dores e sofrimento para a humanidade. Acha, então, que o poder de destruição de Deus parece mais um obstáculo do que um incentivo para se achegar a ele?

Guerras divinas versus conflitos humanos

[5] Quase trezentas vezes nas Escrituras Hebraicas, e duas vezes nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, Deus é chamado de "Jeová dos exércitos". (1 Samuel 1:11) Como Governante Soberano, Jeová comanda um vasto exército de forças angélicas. (Josué 5:13-15; 1 Reis 22:19) O potencial de destruição desse exército é assombroso. (Isaías 37:36) A ideia de destruir seres humanos não é agradável. Mas cabe lembrar que as guerras divinas são diferentes dos mesquinhos conflitos humanos. Líderes militares e políticos talvez tentem atribuir motivos nobres à sua agressão. Mas as guerras humanas são sempre marcadas pela ganância e pelo egoísmo.

[6] Em contraste com isso, Jeová não se guia pela emoção cega. Deuteronômio 32:4 diz: "A Rocha, perfeita é a sua atuação, pois todos os seus caminhos são justiça. Deus de fidelidade e sem injustiça; justo e reto é ele." A Palavra de Deus condena a fúria, a crueldade e a violência desenfreadas. (Gênesis 49:7; Salmo 11:5) Portanto, Jeová jamais age sem motivos. Seu poder de destruição é usado com moderação e como último recurso. É como ele declarou por meio de seu profeta Ezequiel: "'Acaso me agrado de algum modo na morte do iníquo', é a pronunciação do Soberano Senhor Jeová, 'e não em que ele recue dos seus caminhos e realmente continue a viver?'" — Ezequiel 18:23.

[7] Por que, então, Jeová usa o poder de destruição? Antes de responder, convém lembrar-nos de Jó, um homem justo. Satanás duvidava de que Jó — na realidade de que qualquer ser humano — se manteria íntegro sob provação. Jeová aceitou o desafio, permitindo que Satanás testasse a integridade de Jó. Em resultado disso, Jó sofreu doenças, perda dos bens e dos filhos. (Jó 1:1–2:8) Sem saber das questões envolvidas, Jó concluiu erroneamente que seu sofrimento era uma punição injusta da parte de Deus. Ele perguntou a Deus por que fizera dele um "alvo", um "inimigo". — Jó 7:20; 13:24.

[8] Um jovem chamado Eliú expôs a falha do raciocínio

7, 8. (a) O que Jó concluiu erroneamente a respeito de seus sofrimentos? (b) Como Eliú corrigiu o raciocínio de Jó nesse respeito? (c) Que lição podemos aprender daquilo que Jó passou?

de Jó, dizendo: “Disseste: ‘Minha justiça é maior do que a de Deus.’ ” (Jó 35:2) Sim, é insensato pensar que sabemos mais do que Deus, ou supor que ele tenha agido com injustiça. “Longe está do verdadeiro Deus agir ele iniquamente, e do Todo-Poderoso agir injustamente”, disse Eliú. Mais adiante, acrescentou: “Quanto ao Todo-Poderoso, não o descobrimos; ele é sublime em poder, e não depreciará [a retidão] e a abundância da justiça.” (Jó 34:10; 36:22, 23; 37:23) Podemos ter certeza de que Deus, quando luta, tem bons motivos para fazê-lo. Com isso em mente, analisemos algumas das razões de o Deus de paz às vezes vestir o manto de guerreiro. — 1 Coríntios 14:33.

Por que o Deus de paz é impelido a lutar

[9] Depois de louvar a Deus como “pessoa varonil de guerra”, Moisés declarou: “Quem entre os deuses é semelhante a ti, ó Jeová? Quem é semelhante a ti, mostrando-se poderoso em santidade?” (Êxodo 15:11) O profeta Habacuque também escreveu: “És de olhos puros demais para ver o que é mau; e não podes olhar para a desgraça.” (Habacuque 1:13) Embora Jeová seja um Deus de amor, ele é também um Deus de santidade, de

9. Por que o Deus de paz às vezes precisa lutar?

retidão e de justiça. Às vezes, tais qualidades o impelem a usar o seu poder de destruição. (Isaías 59:15-19; Lucas 18:7) Portanto, Deus não macula a sua santidade quando luta. Na verdade, ele luta porque é santo. — Êxodo 39:30.

[10] Considere a situação que surgiu depois que o primeiro casal humano, Adão e Eva, se rebelou contra Deus. (Gênesis 3:1-6) Se tivesse tolerado a iniquidade deles, Jeová teria minado sua posição como Soberano Universal. Como Deus justo, foi obrigado a condená-los à morte. (Romanos 6:23) Na primeira profecia bíblica, ele predisse inimizade entre seus servos e os seguidores da "serpente", Satanás. (Revelação [Apocalipse] 12:9; Gênesis 3:15) Essa inimizade só poderia ser definitivamente resolvida pelo esmagamento de Satanás. (Romanos 16:20) Mas executar esse julgamento resultaria em grandes bênçãos para os humanos justos, livrando a Terra da influência de Satanás e abrindo o caminho para um paraíso global. (Mateus 19:28) Até chegar esse dia, os partidários de Satanás constituiriam uma ameaça constante ao bem-estar físico e espiritual do povo de Deus. Vez por outra, Jeová teria de intervir.

Deus age para eliminar a perversidade

[11] O Dilúvio dos dias de Noé é um exemplo dessa intervenção. Gênesis 6:11, 12 diz: "A terra veio a estar arruinada à vista do verdadeiro Deus, e a terra ficou cheia de violência. Deus viu, pois, a terra e eis que estava arruinada, porque toda a carne havia arruinado seu caminho na terra." Será que Deus permitiria que os perversos apagassem o último vestígio de boa moral na Terra? Não. Jeová viu-se obrigado a provocar um dilúvio global para livrar a Terra das pessoas fortemente propensas à violência e à imoralidade.

[12] A situação era similar no caso da condenação divina dos cananeus. Jeová havia revelado que Abraão teria um "descendente", por meio do qual todas as famílias da Terra abençoariam a si mesmas. Em harmonia com esse propósito, Deus decretou que a descendência de Abraão receberia a terra de Canaã, que era habitada por um povo chamado de amorreus. Que justificativa Deus teria para expulsar essas pessoas de sua terra? Jeová predisse que a expulsão só ocorreria depois de uns 400 anos — só depois de 'se completar o erro dos amorreus'.* (Gênesis 12:1-3; 13:14, 15; 15:13, 16; 22:18) Nesse período, aquele povo se afundou cada vez mais na corrupção moral. Canaã tornou-se uma terra de idolatria, derramamento de sangue e práticas sexuais degradantes. (Êxodo 23:24; 34:12, 13; Números 33:52) Os habitantes do país até mesmo matavam crianças em fogos sacrificiais. Poderia um Deus santo expor seu povo a tais perversidades? Não! Ele declarou: "A terra é impura e eu trarei sobre ela punição pelo seu erro, e a terra vomitará os seus habitantes." (Levítico 18:21-25) Mas Jeová não executou as pessoas indiscriminadamente. Cananeus de índole justa, como Raabe e os gibeonitas, foram poupados. — Josué 6:25; 9:3-27.

Deus luta em favor de Seu nome

[13] Visto que Jeová é santo, seu nome também é santo. (Levítico 22:32) Jesus ensinou seus discípulos a orar: "Santificado seja o teu nome." (Mateus 6:9) A rebelião no Éden profanou o nome de Deus, lançando dúvidas sobre Sua reputação e maneira de governar. Jeová

* Ao que tudo indica, o termo "amorreus" aqui inclui todos os povos de Canaã. — Deuteronômio 1:6-8, 19-21, 27; Josué 24:15, 18.

jamais poderia tolerar essa calúnia e rebelião. Ele viu-se na obrigação de limpar seu nome de toda a desonra. — Isaías 48:11.

[14] Considere, mais uma vez, o caso dos israelitas. Enquanto eram escravos no Egito, a promessa de Deus a Abraão — de que por meio de seu Descendente todas as famílias da Terra abençoariam a si mesmas — parecia sem sentido. Mas, ao libertá-los e fazer deles uma nação, Jeová limpou seu nome. Assim, o profeta Daniel lembrou em oração: "Ó Jeová, nosso Deus, . . . fizeste teu povo sair da terra do Egito por mão forte e passaste a fazer um nome para ti mesmo." — Daniel 9:15.

[15] Curiosamente, Daniel fez essa oração numa época em que os judeus precisavam que Jeová agisse de novo pela causa de Seu nome. Os judeus desobedientes estavam no cativeiro, dessa vez em Babilônia. A capital deles, Jerusalém, estava em ruínas. Daniel sabia que a volta dos judeus para sua terra natal magnificaria o nome de Jeová. De modo que orou: "Ó Jeová, perdoa deveras. Ó Jeová, presta deveras atenção e age. Não tardes, por tua própria causa, ó meu Deus, pois o teu próprio nome foi invocado sobre a tua cidade e sobre o teu povo." — Daniel 9:18, 19.

15. Por que Jeová libertou os judeus do cativeiro em Babilônia?

Deus luta pelo seu povo

[16] Será que o interesse de Jeová em defender o seu nome indica que ele é frio e egocêntrico? Não, porque agindo de acordo com a sua santidade e seu amor à justiça, Deus protege o seu povo. Analise Gênesis, capítulo 14. Lemos ali que quatro reis invasores raptaram o sobrinho de Abraão, Ló, junto com a família deste. Com a ajuda de Deus, Abraão impôs uma derrota colossal a forças imensamente superiores! O relato dessa vitória provavelmente foi o primeiro registro no "livro das Guerras de Jeová", que pelo visto era um livro que documentava também alguns embates militares não registrados na Bíblia. (Números 21:14) Muitas outras vitórias se seguiriam.

[17] Pouco antes de os israelitas entrarem na terra de Canaã, Moisés garantiu-lhes: "Jeová, vosso Deus, é quem vai na vossa frente. Ele lutará por vós segundo tudo o que fez convosco no Egito." (Deuteronômio 1:30; 20:1) Começando com o sucessor de Moisés, Josué, e continuando por todo o período dos juízes e dos reinados de reis fiéis de Judá, Jeová realmente lutou pelo seu povo, dando-lhe muitas vitórias espetaculares sobre seus inimigos. — Josué 10:1-14; Juízes 4:12-17; 2 Samuel 5:17-21.

[18] Jeová não mudou; tampouco mudou o seu propósito de fazer deste planeta um pacífico paraíso. (Gênesis 1:27, 28) Deus ainda odeia a perversidade. Ao mesmo tempo, ele ama ternamente o seu povo e agirá em breve em favor dele. (Salmo 11:7) De fato, a inimizade mencionada em Gênesis 3:15 deve chegar a um ponto dramático e violento no futuro próximo. Para santificar seu nome e proteger seu povo, Jeová de novo se tornará uma "pessoa varonil de guerra"! — Zacarias 14:3; Revelação 16:14, 16.

[19] Veja uma ilustração: suponha que uma mãe e seus filhos estivessem sendo atacados por um animal feroz e que o pai entrasse na luta e matasse o violento animal. Acha que esse ato afastaria dele a esposa e os filhos? Ao contrário, seria de se esperar que eles se co-

Achegue-se à "pessoa varonil de guerra"

[20] Naturalmente, a Bíblia não explica em cada caso todos os detalhes das decisões de Jeová a respeito de guerras divinas. Mas de uma coisa podemos estar certos: Jeová jamais usa o poder de destruição de modo

injusto, leviano ou cruel. Muitas vezes, considerar o contexto de um relato bíblico, ou certas informações de fundo, nos ajuda a colocar as coisas na perspectiva correta. (Provérbios 18:13) Mesmo se não tivermos todos os detalhes, simplesmente aprender mais sobre Jeová e meditar nas suas preciosas qualidades pode nos ajudar a dirimir qualquer dúvida que surja. Se fizermos isso, veremos que temos amplos motivos para confiar em nosso Deus, Jeová. — Jó 34:12.

[21] Embora Jeová seja uma "pessoa varonil de guerra" quando a situação exige, isso não significa que ele tenha um coração de guerreiro. Na visão que Ezequiel teve do carro celestial, Jeová é retratado como estando pronto para lutar contra seus inimigos. No entanto, Ezequiel viu Deus rodeado de um arco-íris — um símbolo da paz. (Gênesis 9:13; Ezequiel 1:28; Revelação 4:3) Obviamente, Jeová é sereno e pacífico. "Deus é amor", escreveu o apóstolo João. (1 João 4:8) Todas as qualidades de Jeová existem em perfeito equilíbrio. Portanto, como é grande o nosso privilégio de podermos nos achegar a um Deus de tamanho poder, porém amoroso!

Poder protetor — 'Deus é para nós um refúgio'

OS ISRAELITAS corriam perigo ao entrar na região do Sinai, no início de 1513 AEC. Tinham à frente uma jornada assustadora, por um "enorme e perigoso deserto, cheio de cobras venenosas e escorpiões". (Deuteronômio 8:15, Bíblia na Linguagem de Hoje) Havia também a ameaça de ataque de nações hostis. Jeová havia levado seu povo a essa situação. Como Deus deles, poderia protegê-los?

[2] As palavras de Jeová eram muito animadoras: "Vós mesmos vistes o que fiz aos egípcios, para vos carregar sobre asas de águias e vos trazer a mim." (Êxodo 19:4) Jeová lembrou ao seu povo que ele os havia libertado dos egípcios, usando águias, por assim dizer, para levá-los à segurança. Mas há outros motivos pelos quais "asas de águias" ilustram bem a proteção divina.

[3] A águia não usa suas asas largas e fortes apenas para planar nas alturas. No calor do dia, a mãe águia arqueia as asas — que podem se estender até dois metros — formando uma sombra que protege os filhotinhos do sol escaldante. Outras vezes, ela encobre os filhotes com as asas para protegê-los do vento frio. Assim como a águia os protege, Jeová havia defendido e protegido a jovem nação de Israel. Então no deserto, seu povo continuaria a se refugiar à sombra de Suas asas poderosas, desde que permanecesse fiel. (Deuteronômio 32:9-11; Salmo 36:7) Mas, e nós hoje, podemos contar com a proteção de Deus?

A promessa de proteção divina

4 Jeová certamente é capaz de proteger seus servos. Ele é o "Deus Todo-Poderoso" — um título que indica que seu poder é insuperável. (Gênesis 17:1) Como uma indomável onda do mar, é impossível impedir o poder aplicado de Jeová. Visto que Ele pode fazer tudo o que dita a sua vontade, nos perguntamos: 'É da vontade de Jeová usar seu poder para proteger seu povo?'

5 A resposta é bem simples: sim! Jeová nos garante que protegerá seu povo. "Deus é para nós refúgio e força, uma ajuda encontrada prontamente durante aflições", diz o Salmo 46:1. Visto que Deus "não pode mentir”, podemos ter confiança absoluta na sua promessa de proteção. (Tito 1:2) Vejamos alguns vívidos exemplos da linguagem figurada que Jeová usa para descrever seus cuidados protetores.

[6] Jeová é um Pastor, e nós “somos seu povo e ovelhas do seu pasto”. (Salmo 23:1; 100:3) Poucos animais são tão indefesos como a ovelha doméstica. O pastor dos tempos bíblicos tinha de ser corajoso para proteger as ovelhas contra leões, lobos e ursos, bem como contra ladrões. (1 Samuel 17:34, 35; João 10:12, 13) Mas havia momentos em que proteger as ovelhas exigia ternura. Se uma delas desse à luz longe do curral, o prestimoso pastor acudiria o animal nesses momentos difíceis, apanharia o filhote indefeso e o levaria até o curral.

[7] Comparando-se a um pastor, Jeová nos garante seu desejo sincero de nos proteger. (Ezequiel 34:11-16) Lembre-se do que se diz sobre Jeová em Isaías 40:11, considerado no Capítulo 2 deste livro: “Qual pastor ele pastoreará a sua própria grei. Com o seu braço reunirá os cordeiros; e os carregará ao colo.” Como é que um cordeirinho viria a estar no “colo” do pastor — nas dobras na parte superior de sua roupa? Ele talvez se aproximasse do pastor, até mesmo tocando de leve nas suas pernas. Mas é o pastor que precisaria se abaixar, pegar o cordeirinho e delicadamente acomodá-lo na segurança do colo. Que terna representação da disposição de nosso Grandioso Pastor de nos defender e proteger!

[8] A promessa de proteção divina é condicional — só a recebe quem se achega a Jeová. Provérbios 18:10 diz: "O nome de Jeová é uma torre forte. O justo corre para dentro dela e recebe proteção." Nos tempos bíblicos, às vezes se construíam torres nos lugares desabitados como locais de refúgio. Mas cabia a quem estivesse em perigo fugir até a torre em busca de segurança. É similar no caso de encontrar refúgio no nome de Deus. Isso envolve mais do que apenas repeti-lo; o nome divino em si não é um talismã. Em vez disso, temos de conhecer o Portador desse nome, confiar Nele e viver de acordo com os seus padrões justos. Quanta bondade da parte de Jeová em nos garantir que, se o buscarmos com fé, ele se tornará uma torre de proteção para nós!

‘Nosso Deus poderá salvar-nos’

[9] Jeová tem feito mais do que apenas prometer proteção. Nos tempos bíblicos, ele mostrou de maneiras milagrosas que pode proteger seu povo. Durante a história de Israel, a “mão” de Jeová muitas vezes reprimiu inimigos poderosos. (Êxodo 7:4) Mas Jeová também usou seu poder protetor em favor de indivíduos.

[10] Quando três jovens hebreus — Sadraque, Mesaque e Abednego — se recusaram a curvar-se perante a imagem de ouro do Rei Nabucodonosor, o rei furioso ameaçou lançá-los numa fornalha superaquecida. “Quem é esse deus que vos pode salvar das minhas mãos?”, zombou Nabucodonosor, o monarca mais poderoso da Terra. (Daniel 3:15) Os três rapazes tinham confiança absoluta no poder de seu Deus para os proteger, mas não pressupunham que ele faria isso. Assim, responderam: “Se for preciso, nosso Deus, a quem servimos, poderá salvar-nos.” (Daniel 3:17) Ora, aquela fornalha, mesmo que aquecida sete vezes mais do que o normal, não representava nenhum desafio para o Deus todo-poderoso. Ele realmente protegeu os três hebreus, e o rei foi obrigado a reconhecer: “Não há outro deus que possa livrar assim como este." — Daniel 3:29.

[11] Jeová fez também uma demonstração realmente notável de seu poder protetor ao transferir a vida de seu Filho unigênito para o ventre da virgem judia Maria. Um anjo disse a Maria que ela 'conceberia na sua madre e daria à luz um filho'. O anjo explicou: "Espírito santo virá sobre ti e poder do Altíssimo te encobrirá." (Lucas 1:31, 35) Pelo visto, o Filho de Deus nunca havia estado tão vulnerável. Será que o pecado e a imperfeição da mãe humana maculariam o embrião? Satanás seria capaz de ferir ou matar esse Filho antes que nascesse? Impossível! Na verdade, a partir do momento da concepção, Jeová como que cercou Maria de uma muralha protetora, de modo que nada — imperfeição, força prejudicial, assassino humano ou algum demônio — poderia prejudicar o desenvolvimento do embrião. Jeová continuou a proteger Jesus durante sua juventude. (Mateus 2:1-15) Até que chegasse o tempo marcado por Deus, seu amado Filho seria inatacável.

[12] Por que Jeová protegeu algumas pessoas de tais maneiras milagrosas? Em muitos casos, ele fez isso a fim de proteger algo muito mais importante: a realização de Seu propósito. Por exemplo, a sobrevivência do menino Jesus era essencial para o cumprimento do propósito de Deus, que, por fim, beneficiaria toda a humanidade. O registro das muitas demonstrações de poder protetor faz parte das Escrituras inspiradas, "escritas para a nossa instrução, para que, por intermédio da nossa perseverança e por intermédio do consolo das Escrituras, [tenhamos] esperança". (Romanos 15:4) Sem dúvida, esses exemplos fortalecem nossa fé no Deus todo-poderoso. Mas que proteção podemos esperar de Deus hoje?

Que tipo de proteção divina não se pode esperar

[13] A promessa de proteção divina não significa que Jeová seja obrigado a fazer milagres em nosso favor. Não, nosso Deus não nos garante uma vida sem problemas neste velho sistema. Muitos servos fiéis de Jeová sofrem severas adversidades, incluindo pobreza, guerras, doenças e morte. Jesus disse claramente a seus discípulos que, como indivíduos, poderiam ser mortos por causa de sua fé. É por isso que Jesus frisou a necessidade de perseverar até o fim. (Mateus 24:9, 13. Jeová é obrigado a realizar milagres em nosso favor? Explique.

13) Se Jeová usasse seu poder de efetuar libertações milagrosas em todos os casos, poderia dar margem para Satanás zombar dele e questionar a genuinidade de nossa devoção a Deus. — Jó 1:9, 10.

[14] Mesmo nos tempos bíblicos, Jeová não usou seu poder protetor para poupar da morte prematura cada um de seus servos. Por exemplo, o apóstolo Tiago foi executado por Herodes, por volta de 44 EC; no entanto, pouco tempo depois, Pedro foi livrado "da mão de Herodes". (Atos 12:1-11) E João, irmão de Tiago, viveu mais do que Pedro e Tiago. Obviamente, não podemos esperar que Deus proteja todos os seus servos de maneiras idênticas. Além disso, "o tempo e o imprevisto" sobrevêm a todos nós. (Eclesiastes 9:11) Como, então, Jeová nos protege hoje em dia?

Jeová dá proteção física

[15] Considere, primeiro, o aspecto da proteção física. Nós, adoradores de Jeová, podemos ter certeza de que ele nos protegerá como grupo. Do contrário, seríamos presa fácil de Satanás. Pense nisso: Satanás, "o governante deste mundo", teria o maior prazer em eliminar a adoração verdadeira. (João 12:31; Revelação [Apocalipse] 12:17) Alguns dos mais poderosos governantes da Terra proibiram nossa obra de pregação e tentaram nos exterminar. No entanto, o povo de Jeová permanece firme e continua a pregar sem cessar! Por que nações poderosas não conseguiram parar a atividade desse grupo de cristãos relativamente pequeno e aparentemente indefeso? Porque Jeová, de modo simbólico, nos protege com suas poderosas asas! — Salmo 17:7, 8.

16 Podemos esperar ter proteção física durante a vindoura "grande tribulação"? Não precisamos temer a execução dos julgamentos de Deus. Afinal, "Jeová sabe livrar da provação os de devoção piedosa, mas reservar os injustos para o dia do julgamento, para serem decepados". (Revelação 7:14; 2 Pedro 2:9) Nesse meio-tempo, podemos sempre estar certos de duas coisas. Primeiro, Jeová jamais permitirá que seus servos leais sejam varridos da Terra. Segundo, ele recompensará os íntegros com vida eterna no seu novo mundo justo — se necessário, por meio da ressurreição. Para os que morrem, não existe lugar mais seguro do que estar na memória de Deus. — João 5:28, 29.

[17] Mesmo agora, Jeová nos protege por meio de sua "palavra" viva, cuja força motiva as pessoas, curando seu coração e ajudando-as a mudar de vida. (Hebreus 4:12) Pela aplicação de seus princípios podemos, em certos sentidos, ser protegidos contra danos físicos. 'Eu, Jeová, te ensino a tirar proveito', diz Isaías 48:17. Sem dúvida, viver em harmonia com a Palavra de Deus pode melhorar nossa saúde e prolongar a vida. Por exemplo, se aplicarmos o conselho bíblico de evitar a fornicação e nos 'purificar de toda a imundície', evitaremos práticas impuras e hábitos nocivos que causam estragos na vida de muitos que não temem a Deus. (Atos 15:29; 2 Coríntios 7:1) Como somos gratos pela proteção da Palavra de Deus!

Jeová nos protege espiritualmente

[18] O mais importante é que Jeová nos dá proteção espiritual. Nosso Deus amoroso nos protege contra o dano espiritual, fornecendo-nos o que precisamos para suportar provações e preservar nossa relação com ele. Desse modo, Jeová age para preservar nossa vida, não apenas por alguns anos, mas pela eternidade. Considere algumas das provisões de Deus que podem proteger-nos espiritualmente.

---

17. Como Jeová nos protege por meio de sua Palavra?
18. Que proteção espiritual Jeová nos dá?

[19] Jeová é o "Ouvinte de oração". (Salmo 65:2) Quando as pressões da vida parecerem esmagadoras, abrir nosso coração a ele pode nos dar muito alívio. (Filipenses 4:6, 7) Jeová talvez não acabe milagrosamente com as provações, mas, em resposta a nossas orações sinceras, ele pode nos dar a sabedoria para lidar com elas. (Tiago 1:5, 6) Mais do que isso, Jeová dá espírito santo aos que lhe pedem. (Lucas 11:13) Esse poderoso espírito nos ajuda a enfrentar qualquer provação ou problema que tenhamos. Pode dar-nos "poder além do normal" para suportarmos todos os problemas dolorosos até que Jeová os remova no novo mundo tão próximo. — 2 Coríntios 4:7.

[20] Às vezes, o poder protetor de Jeová é expresso por meio de nossos irmãos cristãos. Jeová reuniu seu povo numa 'associação de irmãos' mundial. (1 Pedro 2:17; João 6:44) O amor que caracteriza essa fraternidade é um testemunho vivo do poder do espírito santo de Deus de influenciar pessoas para o bem. Esse espírito produz frutos em nós — belas e preciosas qualidades, como o amor, a benignidade e a bondade.

usa publicações, como as revistas A Sentinela e Despertai!, bem como reuniões, assembleias e congressos, para nos fornecer "alimento no tempo apropriado" — o que necessitamos e quando o necessitamos. Já lhe aconteceu de um artigo específico de nossas revistas lhe tocar profundamente? Lembre-se, Jeová faz todas essas provisões para nos proteger espiritualmente.

[22] Jeová é certamente um escudo "para todos os que se refugiam nele". (Salmo 18:30) Entendemos que ele não usa seu poder protetor para nos defender de toda calamidade agora. Mas ele sempre o usa para garantir a realização de seu propósito. A longo prazo, isso resulta nos melhores interesses de seu povo. Se nos achegarmos a ele e permanecermos no seu amor, Jeová nos dará uma eternidade de vida perfeita. Poder de restauração — Jeová 'faz novas todas as coisas'

JÁ VIU uma criança chorar de tristeza por ter perdido ou quebrado seu brinquedo preferido? É de partir o coração! Mas quando o pai ou a mãe encontra o brinquedo ou o conserta, o rosto da criança se ilumina com um sorriso! Para os pais, talvez tenha sido uma tarefa simples. Mas a criança fica muito contente e admirada. O que parecia perdido para sempre foi recuperado!

[2] Jeová, o Pai supremo, tem o poder de recuperar, ou restaurar, o que seus filhos terrestres talvez encarem como perda irremediável. Naturalmente, não estamos falando de meros brinquedos. Nestes "tempos críticos, difíceis de manejar", enfrentamos perdas muito mais sérias. (2 Timóteo 3:1-5) Muitas das coisas que as pessoas têm em alta estima parecem estar sempre em perigo — a casa, os bens, o emprego, até mesmo a saúde. Também nos entristece ver a destruição do meio ambiente e a extinção de muitas espé-

cies de coisas vivas. No entanto, nada nos atinge mais duramente do que a morte de uma pessoa amada. Os sentimentos de perda e de impotência podem ser esmagadores. — 2 Samuel 18:33.

* "Os tempos do restabelecimento de todas as coisas" começaram quando o Reino messiânico foi estabelecido, tendo no trono um herdeiro do fiel Rei Davi. Jeová havia prometido a Davi que um herdeiro seu seria rei para sempre. (Salmo 89:35-37) Mas, depois que Babilônia destruiu Jerusalém, em 607 AEC, nenhum descendente humano de Davi ocupou o trono de Deus. Após algum tempo, Jesus nasceu na Terra como herdeiro de Davi. Quando foi entronizado no céu, Jesus tornou-se aquele Rei há muito prometido.

3. Que perspectiva consoladora apresenta Atos 3:21, e que meios Jeová usará para isso?

A restauração da adoração pura

[4] Uma das coisas já restauradas por Jeová é a adoração pura. Para entendermos o que isso significa, examinemos brevemente a História do reino de Judá. Isso nos dará uma emocionante visão do poder de restauração de Jeová em ação. — Romanos 15:4.

[5] Tente imaginar como os judeus fiéis se sentiram em 607 AEC, quando Jerusalém foi destruída. A amada cidade deles foi arruinada, suas muralhas foram derrubadas. Pior ainda, o glorioso templo construído por Salomão, que era o único centro da adoração pura de Jeová na Terra, ficou em ruínas. (Salmo 79:1) Os sobreviventes foram exilados para Babilônia, e a terra natal deles virou um desolado refúgio de animais selvagens. (Jeremias 9:11) Do ponto de vista humano, tudo parecia perdido. (Salmo 137:1) Mas Jeová, que muito antes havia predito essa destruição, apresentou a esperança de um futuro período de restauração.

[6] Realmente, a restauração era um tema recorrente nos escritos dos profetas hebreus.* Por meio deles, Jeová prometera uma terra restaurada e repovoada, fértil, protegida contra animais selvagens e ataques de inimigos. Sua descrição da terra restaurada era de um autêntico paraíso! (Isaías 65:25; Ezequiel 34:25; 36:35) Acima de tudo, a adoração pura seria restabelecida e o templo, reconstruído. (Miqueias 4:1-5) Essas profecias deram esperança para os judeus exilados, ajudando-os a suportar o cativeiro de 70 anos em Babilônia.

7 Finalmente, chegara o tempo de restauração. Libertados de Babilônia, os judeus retornaram para Jerusalém e reconstruíram o templo de Jeová ali. (Esdras 1:1, 2) Enquanto praticavam a adoração pura, Jeová os abençoava e fazia com que a terra deles fosse fértil e próspera. Ele os protegia contra inimigos e os animais selvagens que, por décadas, haviam ocupado a terra. Quanta alegria deve ter-lhes dado o poder de restauração de Jeová! Mas esses acontecimentos eram apenas um cumprimento inicial e limitado das profecias de restauração. Viria um cumprimento maior "na parte final dos dias", nos nossos tempos, quando o Herdeiro do Rei Davi, há muito prometido, estaria entronizado. — Isaías 2:2-4; 9:6, 7.

[8] Pouco depois de ter sido entronizado no Reino celestial em 1914, Jesus passou a suprir as necessidades espirituais do povo fiel de Deus na Terra. Assim como o conquistador persa Ciro libertou um restante de judeus de Babilônia em 537 AEC, Jesus libertou um restante de judeus espirituais — seguidores de suas pisadas — da influência de uma Babilônia moderna, o império mundial da religião falsa. (Romanos 2:29; Revelação [Apocalipse] 18:1-5) De 1919 em diante, a adoração pura voltou a ocupar o lugar correto na vida dos cristãos genuínos. (Malaquias 3:1-5) Desde então, o povo de Jeová o adora no Seu templo espiritual purificado — Seu sistema de adoração pura. Por que isso é importante para nós hoje?

Restauração espiritual — Por que é importante?

[9] Analise a História. Os cristãos no primeiro século tiveram muitas bênçãos espirituais. Mas Jesus e os apóstolos predisseram que a adoração verdadeira seria corrompida e desapareceria. (Mateus 13:24-30; Atos 20:29, 30) Depois da era apostólica, surgiu a cristandade. Seu clero adotou ensinos e práticas pagãs. Além disso, tornou praticamente impossível achegar-se a Deus, retratando-o como uma incompreensível Trindade, ensinando o povo a confessar pecados a sacerdotes e a orar a Maria e a vários "santos", em vez de a Jeová. Essa falsidade persistiu por muitos séculos, mas o que Jeová fez então? No meio do mundo atual — abarrotado de mentiras religiosas e poluído por práticas pecaminosas —, ele interveio e restaurou a adoração pura! Pode-se dizer, sem exagero, que essa restauração é um dos acontecimentos mais importantes dos tempos modernos.

9. Depois da era apostólica, como as religiões da cristandade deturparam a adoração divina, mas o que Jeová fez em nossos dias?

10 Por isso, os cristãos verdadeiros na atualidade desfrutam um paraíso espiritual. O que esse paraíso abrange? Primariamente, dois aspectos. O primeiro é a adoração pura do Deus verdadeiro, Jeová. Ele nos abençoou com uma forma de adoração sem mentiras e distorções. E também nos abençoou com alimento espiritual. Assim, podemos aprender a respeito de nosso Pai celestial, agradá-lo e nos achegar a ele. (João 4:24) O segundo aspecto do paraíso espiritual envolve pessoas. Conforme Isaías predisse, "na parte final dos dias" Jeová ensina seus adoradores a serem pacíficos. Ele aboliu a guerra entre nós. Apesar de nossas imperfeições, ele nos ajuda a desenvolver a "nova personalidade". Abençoa nossos esforços dando-nos seu espírito santo, que produz excelentes qualidades em nós. (Efésios 4:22-24; Gálatas 5:22, 23) Se você age em harmonia com o espírito de Deus, realmente faz parte do paraíso espiritual.

10, 11. (a) O paraíso espiritual abrange que dois aspectos e como isso o afeta? (b) Que tipo de pessoas Jeová tem trazido ao paraíso espiritual, e o que elas terão o privilégio de presenciar?

[11] Jeová tem trazido a esse paraíso espiritual o tipo de pessoas que ele ama — pessoas que o amam, que amam a paz e estão 'cônscias de sua necessidade espiritual'. (Mateus 5:3) Elas terão o privilégio de presenciar uma restauração ainda mais espetacular — da humanidade e da Terra inteira.

"Eis que faço novas todas as coisas"

[12] Muitas das profecias de restauração se referem a mais do que apenas uma restauração espiritual. Isaías, por exemplo, escreveu a respeito de um tempo em que doentes, deficientes físicos, cegos e surdos seriam curados e até mesmo a morte seria eliminada para sempre. (Isaías 25:8; 35:1-7) Tais promessas não se cumpriram literalmente no Israel antigo. E, embora elas se cumpram em nossos dias em sentido espiritual, há todos os motivos para crer que, no futuro, haverá um cumprimento literal em plena escala. Como sabemos disso?

12, 13. (a) Por que as profecias de restauração ainda terão de ter outro cumprimento? (b) Qual é o propósito de Jeová para a Terra, conforme declarado no Éden, e por que isso nos dá esperança?

[13] Lá no Éden, Jeová deixou claro qual era seu propósito para a Terra: ser habitada por uma família humana feliz, sadia e unida. O homem e a mulher cuidariam deste planeta e de todas as suas criaturas, transformando todo ele num paraíso. (Gênesis 1:28) Isso é bem diferente de como as coisas são hoje em dia. Mas você pode estar certo disto: os propósitos de Jeová nunca falham. (Isaías 55:10, 11) Jesus, como Rei messiânico designado por Jeová, tornará realidade esse Paraíso global. — Lucas 23:43.

[14] Imagine ver a Terra inteira ser transformada num Paraíso! Jeová diz a respeito daquele tempo: "Eis que faço novas todas as coisas." (Revelação 21:5) Pense no que isso significará. Depois de Jeová ter usado seu poder de destruição contra este perverso velho sistema, existirão "novos céus e uma nova terra". Isso significa que um novo governo regerá do céu uma nova sociedade terrestre composta de pessoas que amam a Jeová e fazem a Sua vontade. (2 Pedro 3:13) Satanás e seus demônios estarão fora de ação. (Revelação 20:3) Pela primeira vez em milhares de anos, a humanidade ficará livre dessa influência corrompedora, odiosa e prejudicial. Que sensação de alívio!

15 Finalmente, poderemos cuidar deste belo planeta como deveria ter sido desde o princípio. A Terra tem capacidades naturais de recuperação. Lagos e rios poluídos limparão a si mesmos se a fonte da poluição for eliminada; paisagens danificadas pela guerra podem se recuperar, se os conflitos cessarem. Que prazer será trabalhar em harmonia com as leis naturais da Terra, ajudando a transformá-la num parque ajardinado, um Éden global de infinita variedade! Em vez de levianamente exterminar espécies animais e vegetais, o homem estará em paz com toda a criação na Terra. Nem mesmo as crianças terão qualquer temor dos animais selvagens. — Isaías 9:6, 7; 11:1-9.

16 Teremos uma restauração também em nível pessoal. Após o Armagedom, os sobreviventes presenciarão curas milagrosas em escala global. Como fez

16. No Paraíso, que restauração afetará todas as pessoas fiéis?

quando esteve na Terra, Jesus usará o poder divino para restaurar a visão aos cegos, a audição aos surdos e corpos sadios e normais aos deficientes físicos e aos doentes. (Mateus 15:30) Os idosos ficarão felizes ao recuperar a força, a saúde e o vigor da juventude. (Jó 33:25) As rugas desaparecerão, os membros se regenerarão e os músculos recuperarão o vigor. Todos os humanos obedientes sentirão os efeitos do pecado e da imperfeição diminuir gradativamente, até desaparecer. Quanta gratidão sentiremos a Jeová Deus por seu maravilhoso poder de restauração! Focalizemos agora um aspecto especialmente animador desse emocionante tempo de restauração.

Mortos voltarão a viver

[17] No primeiro século EC, alguns líderes religiosos, chamados saduceus, não criam na ressurreição. Jesus os repreendeu com as palavras: "Estais equivocados, porque não conheceis nem as Escrituras, nem o poder de Deus." (Mateus 22:29) Sim, as Escrituras revelam que Jeová tem esse poder de restauração. Como assim?

[18] Visualize o que aconteceu nos dias de Elias. Uma viúva segurava nos braços o corpo inerte de seu filho único. O menino estava morto. O profeta Elias, que havia sido hóspede dela por algum tempo, com certeza estava chocado. Anteriormente, ele havia ajudado a salvar essa criança da inanição. É provável que Elias tivesse se apegado ao garoto. A mãe estava arrasada. O menino era a única lembrança viva de seu falecido esposo. Ela talvez esperasse que esse filho cuidasse dela na velhice. Desolada, a viúva temia estar sendo punida por algum erro do passado. Elias não suportou ver essa tragédia. Com cuidado, apanhou o cadáver do colo da mãe, subiu ao seu quarto e pediu a Jeová que restaurasse a alma, ou vida, da criança. — 1 Reis 17:8-21.

19 Elias não foi a primeira pessoa a crer na ressurreição. Séculos antes, Abraão já acreditava que Jeová tem tal poder de restauração — e com bons motivos. Quando Abraão tinha 100 anos de idade e Sara tinha 90, Jeová restaurou as faculdades reprodutivas do casal, tornando possível que Sara milagrosamente tivesse um filho. (Gênesis 17:17; 21:2, 3) Mais tarde, quando o filho já era adulto, Jeová pediu a Abraão que o sacrificasse. Abraão mostrou fé, reconhecendo que Jeová poderia restaurar a vida de seu amado Isaque. (Hebreus 11:17-19) Essa forte fé talvez explique por que Abraão, antes de subir ao monte para oferecer seu filho, garantiu aos seus servos que ele e Isaque voltariam juntos. — Gênesis 22:5.

[22] No Paraíso, Jesus cumprirá seu papel de ser "a ressurreição e a vida". (João 11:25) Ele ressuscitará incontáveis milhões de pessoas, dando-lhes a oportunidade de viverem para sempre no Paraíso na Terra. (João 5:28, 29) Imagine o reencontro de amigos e parentes, há muito separados pela morte, ao se abraçarem — quase fora de si de tanta alegria! Toda a humanidade louvará a Jeová por esse poder de restauração.

[23] Jeová forneceu uma garantia sólida como uma rocha de que tais esperanças são seguras. Na maior de todas as demonstrações de poder, ele ressuscitou seu Filho, Jesus, como poderosa criatura espiritual, colocando-o numa posição inferior apenas à Sua própria. O ressuscitado Jesus apareceu a centenas de testemunhas oculares. (1 Coríntios 15:5, 6) Até mesmo para os cépticos, essa evidência deve ser conclusiva. Jeová tem o poder de restaurar a vida.

[24] Jeová não apenas tem o poder de ressuscitar os mortos, mas também o desejo de fazer isso. Pelo que o fiel Jó foi inspirado a dizer podemos deduzir que Jeová realmente anseia ressuscitar os mortos. (Jó 14:15) Não se sente atraído ao nosso Deus, que está ansioso de usar seu poder de restauração de maneira tão amorosa? Lembre-se, porém, de que a ressurreição é apenas um dos aspectos da futura grande obra de restauração de Jeová. Ao se achegar cada vez mais a ele, preze sempre a preciosa esperança de poder estar presente para ver Jeová 'fazer novas todas as coisas'. — Revelação 21:5.

"Cristo é o poder de Deus"

OS DISCÍPULOS estavam apavorados. Quando atravessavam o mar da Galileia, também conhecido como lago de Genesaré, uma tempestade começou de repente. Sem dúvida, eles já haviam enfrentado tempestades naquele lago, afinal alguns deles eram pescadores experientes.* (Mateus 4:18, 19) Mas essa era "uma violenta tempestade de vento" que rapidamente agitou as águas, deixando o mar em fúria. Os homens faziam de tudo para controlar a embarcação, mas a tempestade era forte demais. Ondas altas "abatiam-se sobre o barco", inundando-o. Apesar de toda essa agitação, Jesus dormia profundamente na popa, exausto depois de um dia ensinando as multidões. Temendo por suas vidas, os discípulos acordaram-no e imploraram: "Senhor, salva-nos, pois estamos prestes a perecer!" — Marcos 4:35-38; Mateus 8:23-25.

* Tempestades súbitas são comuns no mar da Galileia, que fica numa depressão (uns 200 metros abaixo do nível do mar). O ar ali é muito mais quente do que nas regiões ao redor, o que gera perturbações atmosféricas. Ventos fortes descem o vale do Jordão vindos do monte Hermom, que fica ao norte. Num momento, tudo está calmo; no outro, pode começar uma tempestade violenta.

1-3. (a) Que situação assustadora os discípulos enfrentaram no mar da Galileia, e o que Jesus fez? (b) Por que é apropriado dizer que "Cristo é o poder de Deus"?

[2] Jesus não demonstrou nenhum medo. Com total confiança, censurou o vento e disse ao mar: "Silêncio! Cala-te!" Ambos obedeceram imediatamente — a tempestade cessou, as ondas desapareceram e "deu-se uma grande calmaria". Os discípulos ficaram muito assustados. "Quem é realmente este?", cochicharam entre si. De fato, que homem era esse que censurava o vento e o mar como se repreendesse uma criança levada? — Marcos 4:39-41; Mateus 8:26, 27.

[3] Jesus não era um homem qualquer. Jeová demonstrou poder a favor dele e por meio dele de maneiras extraordinárias. A respeito de Jesus, o apóstolo Paulo escreveu apropriadamente, sob inspiração: "Cristo é o poder de Deus." (1 Coríntios 1:24) De que maneiras o poder de Deus se manifestou em Jesus? E como o modo de Jesus usar o poder deve influenciar nossa vida?

O poder do Filho unigênito de Deus

[4] Pense no poder que Jesus tinha durante sua existência pré-humana. Jeová exerceu seu "sempiterno poder" quando criou seu Filho unigênito, que veio a ser conhecido como Jesus Cristo. (Romanos 1:20; Colossenses 1:15) Depois, Jeová delegou grande poder e autoridade ao Filho para, por meio dele, criar tudo o que existe. A respeito do Filho, a Bíblia diz: "Todas as coisas vieram à existência por intermédio dele, e à parte dele nem mesmo uma só coisa veio à existência." — João 1:3.

---

4, 5. (a) Que poder e autoridade Jeová delegou para seu Filho unigênito? (b) Como o Filho conseguiu executar as tarefas criativas de que o Pai lhe incumbiu?

5 Nós nem fazemos ideia da grandiosidade dessa incumbência. Imagine o poder necessário para criar milhões de anjos poderosos, o Universo físico com seus bilhões de galáxias e a Terra com sua enorme variedade de formas de vida! Para realizar essas tarefas, o Filho unigênito tinha à disposição a força mais poderosa do Universo: o espírito santo de Deus. O Filho teve muito prazer em ser o Mestre de Obras usado por Jeová para criar todas as outras coisas. — Provérbios 8:22-31.

6 Será que o Filho unigênito receberia ainda mais poder e autoridade? Depois de sua morte e ressurreição, Jesus disse: "Foi-me dada toda a autoridade no céu e na terra." (Mateus 28:18) Portanto, foram concedidos a Jesus tanto a capacidade como o direito de exercer poder em todo o Universo. Como "Rei dos reis e Senhor dos senhores", ele recebeu autorização de reduzir "a nada todo governo, e toda autoridade e poder" — visível ou invisível — que se oponha ao seu Pai. (Revelação [Apocalipse] 19:16; 1 Coríntios 15:24-26) Deus "não deixou nada que não . . . fosse sujeito” a Jesus, exceto, é claro, ele próprio, Jeová. — Hebreus 2:8; 1 Coríntios 15:27.

[7] Será que precisamos ficar preocupados que Jesus use mal seu poder? De modo algum! Jesus ama de verdade o seu Pai e nunca faria nada para desagradá-lo. (João 8:29; 14:31) Ele sabe que Jeová nunca usa mal seu poder ilimitado. Observou de primeira mão como o Criador procura oportunidades de “mostrar a sua força a favor daqueles cujo coração é pleno para com ele”. (2 Crônicas 16:9) De fato, Jesus, assim como seu Pai, ama muito a humanidade, de modo que podemos ter confiança de que ele sempre usará seu poder para o bem. (João 13:1) As ações de Jesus no passado confirmam isso. Ele jamais usou mal o poder. Vamos analisar o poder que ele tinha quando estava na Terra e como se sentiu motivado a usá-lo.

“Poderoso em . . . palavra”

[8] Evidentemente, Jesus não realizou milagres quando era menino e crescia em Nazaré. Mas isso mudou depois que ele foi batizado em 29 EC, com cerca de 30 anos de idade. (Lucas 3:21-23) A Bíblia nos diz: “Deus o ungiu com espírito santo e poder, e ele percorria o país, fazendo o bem e sarando a todos os oprimidos pelo Diabo." (Atos 10:38) "Fazendo o bem" — isso indica que Jesus usou corretamente o poder, não acha? Depois de ser ungido, ele "se tornou profeta poderoso em obras e palavra". — Lucas 24:19.

[9] Em que sentido Jesus era poderoso em palavra? Ele muitas vezes ensinava ao ar livre: à beira de lagos, nas colinas, nas ruas e nas feiras. (Marcos 6:53-56; Lucas 5:1-3; 13:26) Ou seja, seus ouvintes poderiam simplesmente ir embora se suas palavras não prendessem a atenção. Naquela época, em que não havia livros impressos, os ouvintes apreciativos tinham de guardar as palavras dele na mente e no coração. De modo que o ensino de Jesus tinha de prender a atenção, ser fácil de entender e de lembrar. Mas isso não era problema para ele. Veja um exemplo: o Sermão do Monte.

pessoa gravemente doente entre eles, ele começou a ensinar. (Lucas 6:17-19) Quando terminou de falar algum tempo depois, as pessoas estavam fascinadas com o que tinham ouvido. Por quê?

[11] Anos depois, alguém que havia ouvido aquele sermão escreveu: "As multidões ficaram assombradas com o seu modo de ensinar; pois ele as ensinava como quem tinha autoridade." (Mateus 7:28, 29) As pessoas sentiam o poder de Jesus quando ele falava como representante divino, baseando seu ensino na autoridade da Palavra de Deus. (João 7:16) As declarações de Jesus eram claras, suas exortações, persuasivas; e seus argumentos, irrefutáveis. Suas palavras chegavam ao âmago das questões e tocavam o coração dos ouvintes. Ele os ensinou a encontrar felicidade, a orar, a buscar o Reino de Deus e a ter um futuro seguro. (Mateus 5:3–7:27) Suas palavras estimulavam o coração dos que tinham fome da verdade e da justiça. Esses se dispunham a 'negar' a si mesmos e a abandonar tudo para segui-lo. (Mateus 16:24; Lucas 5:10, 11) Que demonstração do poder das palavras de Jesus!

"Poderoso em obras"

[12] Jesus também era "poderoso em obras". (Lucas

12, 13. Por que se diz que Jesus era "poderoso em obras", e em que sentidos seus milagres eram variados?

24:19) Os Evangelhos relatam mais de 30 milagres específicos que ele realizou — todos pelo "poder de Jeová".* (Lucas 5:17) Os milagres de Jesus beneficiaram milhares de pessoas. Em apenas dois desses milagres — quando ele alimentou primeiro 5 mil homens e mais tarde 4 mil homens, "além de mulheres e criancinhas" —, estiveram envolvidas multidões de, provavelmente, umas 20 mil pessoas. — Mateus 14:13-21; 15:32-38.

[13] Os milagres de Jesus eram bem variados. Ele tinha autoridade sobre demônios, expulsando-os facilmente. (Lucas 9:37-43) Tinha poder sobre elementos físicos, transformando água em vinho. (João 2:1-11) Para surpresa dos discípulos, ele caminhou sobre o revolto mar da Galileia. (João 6:18, 19) Tinha o poder de curar todo tipo de defeitos físicos, de doenças crônicas, ou potencialmente fatais. (Marcos 3:1-5; João 4:46-54) As maneiras de ele curar também variavam. Alguns foram curados à distância; outros foram tocados diretamente por Jesus. (Mateus 8:2, 3, 5-13) Alguns foram curados na hora; outros, aos poucos. — Marcos 8:22-25; Lucas 8:43, 44.

* Além disso, os Evangelhos às vezes agrupam muitos milagres sob uma única descrição geral. Por exemplo, em certa ocasião uma "cidade toda" foi vê-lo e ele curou "muitos" doentes. — Marcos 1:32-34.

[14] Além disso, Jesus tinha uma habilidade notável: o poder de anular a morte. Há registros de três ocasiões em que ele ressuscitou mortos: devolveu uma menina de 12 anos aos pais; um filho único à mãe, que era viúva; e um irmão muito querido às suas irmãs. (Lucas 7:11-15; 8:49-56; João 11:38-44) Para ele, nenhuma circunstância era tão difícil que o impedisse de realizar uma ressurreição. A menina de 12 anos, por exemplo, foi trazida de volta à vida pouco depois de ter morrido. Já o filho da viúva foi ressuscitado quando era transportado no seu esquife, sem dúvida no mesmo dia em que morreu. E a ressurreição de Lázaro se deu quatro dias depois de ele ter morrido.

Poder usado de forma altruísta, responsável e compassiva

[15] Consegue imaginar o que aconteceria se o poder de Jesus caísse nas mãos de um governante imperfeito? Possivelmente, haveria abuso de poder. Mas Jesus não tinha pecado. (1 Pedro 2:22) Ele se recusou a ser manchado pelo egoísmo, pela ambição e pela ganância que levam os humanos imperfeitos a usar o poder para prejudicar outros.

---

14. Em que circunstâncias Jesus demonstrou que tinha o poder de anular a morte?

15, 16. O que demonstra que Jesus usava o poder de forma altruísta?

[16] Jesus usava o poder de forma altruísta, nunca para obter vantagens pessoais. Quando estava faminto, recusou-se a transformar pedras em pão, em proveito próprio. (Mateus 4:1-4) Ele tinha poucos bens, o que demonstra claramente que não usava o poder para obter lucros materiais. (Mateus 8:20) Há outro fato que prova que suas obras poderosas não tinham motivação egoísta. Realizar milagres lhe custava algo. Quando curava doentes, saía poder dele. Ele sentia isso até quando curava uma única pessoa. (Marcos 5:25-34) Mesmo assim, deixava que multidões o tocassem, e elas eram curadas. (Lucas 6:19) Que abnegação!

[17] Jesus usava o poder de modo responsável. Ele nunca fez obras poderosas só para se mostrar ou por exibicionismo, sem um propósito. (Mateus 4:5-7) Ele se recusou a realizar sinais só para satisfazer a curiosidade de Herodes, que tinha motivações erradas. (Lucas 23:8, 9) Em vez de propagar os seus feitos aos quatro ventos, Jesus muitas vezes dizia aos curados que não contassem nada a ninguém. (Marcos 5:43; 7:36) Não queria que as pessoas tirassem conclusões a seu respeito com base em relatos sensacionalistas. — Mateus 12:15-19.

17. Como Jesus mostrou que usava o poder de modo responsável?

[18] Jesus era um homem poderoso, mas era bem diferente de certos governantes que exercem o poder de forma insensível, sem levar em conta as necessidades e o sofrimento dos outros. Jesus se preocupava com as pessoas. Só de ver os aflitos, ele sentia tanta compaixão que simplesmente tinha de aliviar seu sofrimento. (Mateus 14:14) Ele levava em consideração seus sentimentos e necessidades, e essa preocupação amorosa influenciava seu modo de usar o poder. Em Marcos 7:31-37 encontra-se um exemplo comovente disso.

[19] Naquela ocasião, grandes multidões encontraram Jesus e trouxeram-lhe muitos doentes, e ele curou a todos. (Mateus 15:29, 30) Mas Jesus mostrou consideração especial por um homem surdo que mal conseguia falar. Talvez ele tenha percebido que o homem estava muito nervoso ou embaraçado. Bondosamente, levou o homem para longe da multidão. Daí, em particular, usou sinais para explicar ao homem o que faria. Então, "pôs os seus dedos nos ouvidos do homem, e, depois de cuspir, tocou na língua dele".* (Marcos 7:33) Depois,

* Cuspir era um método ou sinal de cura conhecido tanto por judeus como por gentios, e o uso de saliva em curas está registrado em escritos rabínicos. Possivelmente, Jesus cuspiu apenas para mostrar ao homem que ele ia ser curado. Seja como for, Jesus não usou a saliva como substância curativa natural.

18-20. (a) O que influenciava o modo de Jesus usar o poder? (b) O que você acha do modo de Jesus curar um surdo?

Jesus olhou para o céu e suspirou. Com essas ações, ele queria dizer ao homem: "O que vou fazer por você se deve ao poder de Deus." Por fim, Jesus disse: "Abre-te." (Marcos 7:34) Com isso, a audição do homem foi restaurada e ele começou a falar normalmente.

20 Como é emocionante pensar que, mesmo quando usava o poder dado por Deus para curar os aflitos, Jesus mostrava empatia e consideração pelos sentimentos deles! Não ficamos mais tranquilos de saber que Jeová colocou o Reino messiânico nas mãos de um Governante tão bondoso e compassivo?

suficiente a milhares de pessoas. Isso nos assegura que, sob seu domínio, a fome desaparecerá. De fato, haverá muito alimento, que será distribuído de forma justa, eliminando a fome para sempre. (Salmo 72:16) Como ele é capaz de curar doenças, podemos ter certeza de que os enfermos, cegos, surdos, mutilados e deficientes físicos serão curados de forma completa e permanente. (Isaías 33:24; 35:5, 6) E ele também tem a habilidade de trazer os mortos de volta à vida! Portanto, podemos ter certeza de que, como poderoso Rei celestial, ele ressuscitará os incontáveis milhões que seu Pai guarda na memória. — João 5:28, 29.

[24] Ao refletirmos no poder de Jesus, é bom termos em mente que ele imita seu Pai de forma perfeita. (João 14:9) Assim, o modo como o Filho usa o poder mostra-nos claramente como Jeová também o usa. Por exemplo, pense em como Jesus mostrou consideração ao curar um leproso. Cheio de compaixão, Jesus tocou no homem e disse: "Eu quero." (Marcos 1:40-42) Em relatos como esse, é como se Jeová nos dissesse: "É assim que eu uso o poder!" Não sente vontade de louvar nosso Deus todo-poderoso e agradecer-lhe por usar seu poder de modo tão amoroso?

"Tornai-vos imitadores de Deus" no uso do poder

"NÃO há poder sem sutil laço." Essas palavras de uma poetisa do século 19 revelam um perigo insidioso: o mau uso do poder. Infelizmente, com muita frequência os humanos, que são imperfeitos, caem nesse laço. De fato, ao longo de toda a História, "homem tem dominado homem para seu prejuízo". (Eclesiastes 8:9) O poder exercido sem amor tem resultado em indescritível sofrimento para a humanidade.

[2] Não acha notável, então, que Jeová Deus nunca use mal seu poder ilimitado? Como notamos nos capítulos anteriores, ele sempre usa seu poder — criativo, de destruição, protetor ou de restauração — em harmonia com seus propósitos amorosos. Se analisarmos seu modo de usar o poder, sentiremos o desejo de nos achegar a ele. Isso, por sua vez, nos motivará a nos tornarmos "imitadores de Deus" ao usar nosso poder. (Efésios 5:1) Mas que poder nós, humanos frágeis, possuímos?

1. Com frequência, os humanos, que são imperfeitos, caem em que laço sutil?
2, 3. (a) O que é notável quanto ao modo de Jeová usar o poder? (b) O que está incluído no nosso poder e como devemos usá-lo?

[3] Lembre-se de que os humanos foram criados "à imagem de Deus" e à Sua semelhança. (Gênesis 1:26, 27) De modo que também temos certa medida de poder: o poder de fazer coisas, de trabalhar; o controle ou a autoridade sobre outros; a habilidade de influenciar outros, em especial os que nos amam; a força física (vigor); ou os recursos materiais. O salmista disse o seguinte a respeito de Jeová: "Contigo está a fonte da vida." (Salmo 36:9) Portanto, direta ou indiretamente, Deus é a fonte de todo poder legítimo que possamos ter. Assim, devemos usá-lo de forma a agradar a Ele. Como fazer isso?

O segredo é o amor

[4] O segredo para usarmos corretamente o poder é o amor. O exemplo do próprio Deus demonstra isso. Lembre-se dos quatro atributos principais de Deus, analisados no Capítulo 1: poder, justiça, sabedoria e amor. Qual é a mais destacada dessas quatro qualidades? O amor. "Deus é amor", diz 1 João 4:8. Na verdade, o amor é a própria essência do que Jeová é e influencia tudo o que ele faz. Assim, quando usa seu poder, o

Criador sempre é motivado pelo amor e tem por objetivo final o bem dos que o amam.

[5] O amor também nos ajudará a usar corretamente o poder. Afinal, a Bíblia diz que o amor é "benigno" e "não procura os seus próprios interesses". (1 Coríntios 13:4, 5) Assim, ele não nos deixará agir de modo duro ou cruel para com os que estão debaixo de nossa autoridade. Pelo contrário, trataremos os outros com dignidade e colocaremos suas necessidades e sentimentos à frente dos nossos. — Filipenses 2:3, 4.

[6] O amor está relacionado a outra qualidade que nos ajuda a usar bem o poder: o temor de Deus. Por que essa qualidade é importante? "No temor de Jeová a pessoa se desvia do mal", diz Provérbios 16:6. O uso incorreto do poder sem dúvida está incluído entre as coisas más das quais devemos nos desviar. O temor de Deus impedirá que tratemos mal aqueles que estão sob nossa autoridade. Por quê? Um dos motivos é que sabemos que teremos de prestar contas a Deus pelo modo como os tratamos. (Neemias 5:1-7, 15) Mas o temor de Deus envolve mais do que isso. Os termos para "temor" nas línguas originais muitas vezes se referem à profunda reverência a Deus e à admiração por ele. Assim, a Bíblia associa o temor com o amor a Deus. (Deuteronômio 10:12, 13) Essa admiração reverente inclui o temor saudável de desagradar a Deus, não apenas porque temos medo das consequências, mas porque realmente o amamos.

[7] Para ilustrar: pense no bom relacionamento entre um garotinho e seu pai. O menino sente o interesse carinhoso e amoroso do pai por ele. Mas também sabe o que o pai exige dele e que vai discipliná-lo se ele se comportar mal. O menino não vive com um medo mórbido do pai. Pelo contrário, ele o ama muito. Procura agir de um modo que venha a ter a aprovação do pai. O mesmo se dá com o temor de Deus. Visto que amamos a Jeová, nosso Pai celestial, tememos fazer algo que o deixe "magoado no coração". (Gênesis 6:6) Temos muita vontade de alegrar o coração Dele. (Provérbios 27:11) É por isso que nos esforçamos para usar corretamente nosso poder. Vamos analisar em mais detalhes como podemos fazer isso.

Na família

[8] Analisemos primeiro o círculo familiar. "O marido

8. (a) Que autoridade o marido tem na família, e como se espera que ele a exerça? (b) Como o marido pode mostrar que honra a esposa?

é cabeça de sua esposa”, diz Efésios 5:23. Como o marido deve exercer a autoridade que recebeu de Deus? A Bíblia diz que os maridos devem morar com a esposa “segundo o conhecimento, [atribuindo-lhe] honra como a um vaso mais fraco”. (1 Pedro 3:7) O substantivo grego traduzido “honra” significa “preço, valor, . . . respeito”. Algumas formas dessa palavra são traduzidas como “dádivas” e “precioso”. (Atos 28:10; 1 Pedro 2:7) O marido que honra a esposa nunca a ataca fisicamente, nem a humilha ou rebaixa, fazendo com que se sinta inútil. Ao contrário, ele reconhece o valor dela e a trata com respeito. Mostra por suas palavras e ações — em público e em particular — que ela é preciosa para ele. (Provérbios 31:28) O marido que age assim não só obtém o amor e o respeito da esposa, mas também, o que é mais importante, a aprovação de Deus.

[9] A esposa também tem certo poder na família. A Bíblia menciona mulheres tementes a Deus que, sem desrespeitar a chefia, tomaram a iniciativa, influenciando o marido de modo positivo ou ajudando-o a não cometer erros de critério. (Gênesis 21:9-12; 27:46–28:2) A esposa talvez tenha um raciocínio mais rápido do que o do marido, ou outras habilidades que ele não possui.

9. (a) Que poder a esposa tem na família? (b) O que ajudará a esposa a usar suas habilidades para apoiar o marido, e com que resultado?

Mesmo assim, ela deve ter “profundo respeito” por ele e ‘estar sujeita’ a ele “como ao Senhor”. (Efésios 5:22, 33) O desejo de agradar a Deus a ajudará a usar suas habilidades para apoiar o marido, em vez de rebaixá-lo ou tentar dominá-lo. Essa “mulher realmente sábia” coopera com o marido para edificar a família. Assim, ela mantém a paz com Deus. — Provérbios 14:1.

10 Os pais também têm autoridade dada por Deus. A Bíblia incentiva: “Pais, não estejais irritando os vossos filhos, mas prosseguí em criá-los na disciplina e na regulação mental de Jeová.” (Efésios 6:4) Na Bíblia, a palavra “disciplina” pode significar “criação, treinamento, instrução”. As crianças precisam de disciplina; elas crescem felizes quando têm orientações, restrições e limites claros. A Bíblia associa essa disciplina, ou instrução, com o amor. (Provérbios 13:24) Portanto, “a vara da disciplina” nunca deve ser usada de forma abusiva, quer em sentido emocional quer físico.* (Provérbios 22:15; 29:15) Pais que disciplinam de forma rígida,

* Nos tempos bíblicos, a palavra hebraica para “vara” significava um bastão ou cajado, como o que o pastor usava para guiar as ovelhas. (Salmo 23:4) De modo similar, “a vara” de autoridade dos pais sugere orientação amorosa, não punição cruel ou brutal.

10. (a) Que autoridade Deus concedeu aos pais? (b) Qual é o sentido da palavra “disciplina” e como deve ser administrada? (Veja também a nota.)

cruel ou desamorosa estão abusando da autoridade e podem esmagar o espírito da criança. (Colossenses 3:21) Por outro lado, a disciplina equilibrada e administrada de forma correta demonstra para a criança que os pais a amam e se preocupam com o tipo de pessoa que ela está se tornando.

[11] E os filhos? Como podem usar corretamente o seu poder? "A beleza dos jovens é o seu poder", diz Provérbios 20:29. Sem dúvida, o melhor modo de os jovens usarem sua força e seu vigor é servindo ao nosso "Grandioso Criador". (Eclesiastes 12:1) É bom que os jovens se lembrem de que suas ações podem afetar os sentimentos dos pais. (Provérbios 23:24, 25) Quando os filhos obedecem aos pais tementes a Deus e seguem o caminho correto, alegram o coração dos pais. (Efésios 6:1) Agir assim é algo "bem agradável no Senhor". — Colossenses 3:20.

Na congregação

[12] Jeová providenciou que superintendentes tomassem a dianteira na congregação cristã verdadeira. (Hebreus 13:17) Esses homens qualificados devem usar a autoridade concedida por Deus para dar a ajuda necessária e contribuir para o bem-estar do rebanho. Será que, devido à sua posição, os anciãos têm o direito de dominar sobre os concrentes? De modo algum! Esses homens devem ter um conceito equilibrado e humilde sobre o seu papel na congregação. (1 Pedro 5:2, 3) A Bíblia diz aos superintendentes: "[Pastoreiem] a congregação de Deus, que ele comprou com o sangue do seu próprio Filho." (Atos 20:28) Esta última expressão revela uma razão muito importante para tratar cada membro do rebanho com bondade.

[13] Para ilustrar isso, digamos que um grande amigo lhe pedisse para cuidar de um bem precioso. Você sabe que o seu amigo pagou um preço muito alto por ele. Não o trataria com delicadeza, com extremo cuidado? De modo similar, Deus encarregou os anciãos da responsabilidade de cuidar de um bem muito valioso: a congregação, cujos membros são comparados a ovelhas. (João 21:16, 17) Jeová considera suas ovelhas tão preciosas que as comprou com o sangue valioso do seu Filho unigênito, Jesus Cristo — o preço mais alto que Ele poderia ter pago por elas. Anciãos humildes não se esquecem disso e tratam as ovelhas de Jeová concordemente.

O “poder da língua”

14 “Morte e vida estão no poder da língua”, diz a Bíblia. (Provérbios 18:21) De fato, a língua pode causar grandes estragos. Quem de nós nunca se sentiu magoado por um comentário impensado ou depreciativo? Mas a língua também tem o poder de curar. “A língua dos sábios é uma cura”, diz Provérbios 12:18. De fato, palavras positivas e benéficas são comparáveis a uma pomada suavizante e curativa para o coração. Veja alguns exemplos.

15 “Falai consoladoramente às almas deprimidas”, incentiva 1 Tessalonicenses 5:14. Até servos fiéis de Jeová vez por outra talvez tenham de lutar contra a depressão. Como podemos ajudá-los? Dê elogios sinceros a respeito de pontos específicos que os ajudem a ver como são preciosos aos olhos de Jeová. Leia com eles trechos das Escrituras que revelam como Jeová ama e se importa com os “que têm coração quebrantado” e “espírito esmagado”. (Salmo 34:18) Quando usamos o poder da língua para consolar outros, imitamos nosso Deus compassivo, “que consola os abatidos”. — 2 Coríntios 7:6.

14. Que poder tem a língua?
15, 16. De que maneiras podemos usar a língua para animar outros?

[16] Também podemos usar o poder da língua para dar a outros o incentivo de que precisam. Conhece um concrente que perdeu uma pessoa querida? Palavras compassivas que expressem nossa preocupação ajudarão a consolar o coração do enlutado. Um irmão idoso está se sentindo inútil? Palavras compreensivas podem reanimar os idosos, assegurando-lhes que são valiosos e apreciados. Sabe de alguém que está lutando contra uma doença crônica? Palavras bondosas ditas pelo telefone ou pessoalmente podem contribuir muito para melhorar a disposição de ânimo do adoentado. Como nosso Criador deve ficar contente quando usamos o poder da fala para proferir uma palavra "boa para a edificação"! — Efésios 4:29.

[17] Mas a maneira mais importante de usarmos o poder da língua é transmitindo as boas novas do Reino de Deus a outros. "Não negues o bem àqueles a quem é devido, quando estiver no poder da tua mão fazê-lo", diz Provérbios 3:27. É nossa obrigação transmitir a outros as boas novas de salvação. Não seria correto guardar para nós mesmos a mensagem urgente que Jeová nos transmitiu de forma tão generosa. (1 Coríntios

17. De que maneira importante podemos usar a língua para o benefício de outros e por que devemos fazer isso?

9:16, 22) Mas até que ponto Jeová espera que participemos dessa obra?

Sirvamos a Jeová com ‘toda a nossa força’

18 O amor por Jeová nos leva a participar plenamente no ministério cristão. O que ele espera de nós nesse respeito? Algo que todos nós, não importa a situação na vida, podemos dar: “O que for que fizerdes, trabalhai nisso de toda a alma como para Jeová, e não como para homens.” (Colossenses 3:23) Segundo Jesus, o maior mandamento de todos é: “Tens de amar a Jeová, teu Deus, de todo o teu coração, e de toda a tua alma, e de toda a tua mente, e de toda a tua força.” (Marcos 12:30) De modo que aquilo que Jeová espera de cada um de nós é que o amemos e o sirvamos de toda a alma.

19 O que significa servir a Deus de toda a alma? A alma se refere à pessoa como um todo, com todas as suas habilidades físicas e mentais. Visto que a alma abrange o coração, a mente e a força, por que se mencionam essas outras faculdades em Marcos 12:30? A seguinte ilustração nos ajudará a entender: nos tempos bíblicos, a pessoa podia vender a si mesma (a sua alma) como escrava. Mas o escravo talvez não servisse ao dono de todo o coração; é possível que não usasse toda sua energia ou todas as suas habilidades mentais em benefício do dono. (Colossenses 3:22) Assim, provavelmente Jesus mencionou essas outras faculdades para enfatizar que não devemos reter nada de Deus no nosso serviço a Ele. Servi-lo de toda a alma significa dar de nós mesmos, usando nossa força e energias ao máximo possível no seu serviço.

[20] Será que o serviço de toda a alma significa que todos temos de gastar a mesma quantidade de tempo e energia no ministério? Isso seria impossível, porque as circunstâncias e habilidades diferem de pessoa para pessoa. Por exemplo, um jovem com boa saúde e vigor físico talvez possa gastar mais tempo na pregação do que aqueles cuja força diminuiu devido à idade avançada. Uma pessoa solteira, livre de obrigações familiares, possivelmente conseguirá realizar mais do que aqueles que têm uma família para cuidar. Se nossa força e circunstâncias nos permitem fazer muito no ministério, devemos ser gratos por isso. Naturalmente, não devemos nos tornar críticos, comparando-nos com outros nessas questões. (Romanos 14:10-12) Em vez disso, queremos usar nosso poder para incentivar outros.

[21] Jeová deu o exemplo perfeito em usar o poder corretamente. Nós, humanos imperfeitos, devemos nos esforçar para imitá-lo da melhor maneira possível. Podemos usar bem o poder tratando com dignidade os que estão sob nossa autoridade. Além disso, queremos realizar de toda a alma a obra salvadora de que Jeová nos incumbiu: a pregação. (Romanos 10:13, 14) Jeová fica muito contente quando vê que você — sua alma — está dando o seu melhor. Não se sente motivado de coração a fazer tudo o que pode no serviço desse Deus amoroso e compreensivo? Não existe maneira melhor ou mais importante de usar nosso poder.

"AMA A JUSTIÇA"

Hoje se vê injustiça em toda a parte, e muitos equivocadamente culpam a Deus por isso. Mas a Bíblia ensina uma verdade maravilhosa: "Jeová ama a justiça." (Salmo 37:28) Nesta seção, aprenderemos como ele demonstrou que essas palavras são verdadeiras. Isso é motivo de esperança para toda a humanidade.

CAPÍTULO 11

"Todos os seus caminhos são justiça"

QUE injustiça! Ele era um homem bonito e não havia cometido nenhum crime. Mesmo assim foi jogado num calabouço, sob a acusação falsa de tentativa de estupro. Mas não era a primeira vez que esse jovem, José, se deparava com injustiças. Anos antes, quando tinha 17 anos, ele havia sido traído pelos próprios irmãos, que quase o assassinaram. Acabou sendo vendido como escravo em um país estrangeiro. Ali resistiu às propostas imorais da esposa do seu dono que, sentindo-se rejeitada, forjou a acusação falsa que levou José à prisão. Lamentavelmente, parecia que ninguém ia intervir a favor dele.

2 Mas o Deus que "ama a justiça e o juízo" observava tudo. (Salmo 33:5) Jeová manobrou os eventos e fez com que se corrigisse a injustiça, de modo que José — que havia sido lançado numa "masmorra" — por fim foi libertado. E não foi só isso! Ele acabou sendo designado para um cargo de grande responsabilidade e extraordinária honra. (Gênesis 40:15; 41:41-43;

1, 2. (a) Que tremendas injustiças José sofreu? (b) Como Jeová as corrigiu?

Salmo 105:17, 18) Com o tempo a inocência de José ficou provada, e ele usou sua posição de destaque a favor dos propósitos de Deus. — Gênesis 45:5-8.

[3] Não acha esse relato emocionante? Quem nunca testemunhou ou foi vítima de uma injustiça? De fato, todos nós desejamos ser tratados de modo justo e imparcial. Era de se esperar que nos sentíssemos assim, porque Jeová colocou em nós qualidades que refletem sua personalidade, e a justiça é um de Seus atributos principais. (Gênesis 1:27) Para conhecer bem a Jeová, precisamos entender seu senso de justiça. Assim, apreciaremos ainda mais seus modos maravilhosos e nos sentiremos motivados a nos achegar a ele.

O que é justiça?

3. Por que não é de admirar que todos tenhamos o desejo de ser tratados de modo justo?

4. Do ponto de vista humano, o que é considerado justiça?

apenas impor regulamentos de forma insensível, devido a um senso de dever ou obrigação.

[5] Podemos entender melhor o pleno alcance da justiça de Jeová analisando as palavras que descrevem essa qualidade nas línguas originais em que a Bíblia foi escrita. Nas Escrituras Hebraicas, usam-se três palavras para expressar essa ideia. Uma delas, que algumas vezes é traduzida por "justiça", e outras por "juízo", também pode ser vertida como "o que é direito". (Gênesis 18:25) As outras duas em geral são traduzidas por "justiça". Nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, a palavra traduzida "justiça" é definida como "qualidade de ser direito ou justo". Basicamente, não há distinção entre justiça e juízo. — Amós 5:24.

[6] Assim, quando a Bíblia diz que Deus é justo, quer dizer que ele sempre faz o que é correto e direito, de modo imparcial. (Romanos 2:11) Na verdade, é impensável que ele possa agir de outra maneira. O fiel Eliú declarou: "Longe está do verdadeiro Deus agir ele iniquamente, e do Todo-Poderoso agir injustamente!" (Jó 34:10) Para Jeová, é impossível "agir injustamente". Por quê? Por duas razões importantes.

5, 6. (a) Qual é o sentido das palavras originais que expressam a ideia de justiça? (b) Quando se afirma que Deus é justo, o que se quer dizer?

[7] Primeiramente, porque ele é santo. Como notamos no Capítulo 3, Jeová é infinitamente puro e direito. Portanto, ele é incapaz de agir de modo injusto. Pense no que isso significa. Visto que nosso Pai celestial é santo, temos boas razões para confiar que ele nunca tratará mal os seus filhos. Jesus tinha essa confiança. Na última noite da sua vida terrestre, ele orou: "Santo Pai, vigia sobre eles [os discípulos] por causa do teu próprio nome." (João 17:11) "Santo Pai" — nas Escrituras esse título é aplicado única e exclusivamente a Jeová. Isso é apropriado porque nenhum pai humano se compara a Ele em santidade. Jesus tinha total confiança que seus discípulos ficariam a salvo sob os cuidados do Pai, que é absolutamente puro, limpo e separado de todo pecado. — Mateus 23:9.

[8] Em segundo lugar, porque o amor altruísta é parte essencial da própria personalidade de Deus. Esse amor o leva a ser justo nos seus tratos com outros. A injustiça em suas muitas formas — incluindo racismo, discriminação e parcialidade — muitas vezes surge devido à ganância e ao egoísmo, que são opostos ao amor. Falando sobre o Deus de amor, a Bíblia nos assegura: “Jeová é justo; deveras ama atos justos.” (Salmo 11:7) Jeová diz o seguinte a seu próprio respeito: “Eu, Jeová, amo a justiça.” (Isaías 61:8) Não ficamos mais tranquilos sabendo que nosso Deus sente prazer em fazer o que é certo, ou justo? — Jeremias 9:24.

A misericórdia e a justiça perfeita de Jeová

9 A justiça de Jeová, como todas as outras facetas de sua personalidade incomparável, é perfeita, impecável. Moisés louvou a Jeová, dizendo: “A Rocha, perfeita é a sua atuação, pois todos os seus caminhos são justiça. Deus de fidelidade e sem injustiça; justo e reto é ele.” (Deuteronômio 32:3, 4) Quando expressa sua justiça, Jeová sempre o faz com perfeição — nunca é tolerante demais, nem severo demais.

10 A justiça e a misericórdia de Jeová estão intimamente ligadas. O Salmo 116:5 diz: “Jeová é clemente e justo; e nosso Deus é quem mostra ter misericórdia.” De fato, Jeová é justo e misericordioso. Essas duas qualidades não são conflitantes. A misericórdia divina não abranda ou suaviza sua justiça, como se esta fosse severa demais. Em vez disso, Deus muitas vezes demonstra as duas qualidades ao mesmo tempo, às vezes até no mesmo ato. Veja um exemplo.

[11] Todos os humanos herdaram o pecado e, portanto, merecem a penalidade correspondente: a morte. (Romanos 5:12) Mas Jeová não se agrada da morte de pecadores. Ele é "um Deus de atos de perdão, clemente e misericordioso". (Neemias 9:17) Mas como é santo, ele não pode tolerar a injustiça. Como seria possível, então, mostrar misericórdia para com humanos inerentemente pecadores? A resposta encontra-se em uma das verdades mais preciosas da Palavra de Deus: o resgate que Jeová providenciou para a salvação da humanidade. No Capítulo 14, aprenderemos mais sobre essa dádiva amorosa, que é, ao mesmo tempo, extremamente justa e maravilhosamente misericordiosa. Por meio dela, Jeová pode expressar terna misericórdia para com pecadores arrependidos e, ainda assim, defender Suas normas perfeitas de justiça. — Romanos 3:21-26.

A justiça de Jeová acalenta nosso coração

[12] A justiça de Jeová não é uma qualidade fria, que

12, 13. (a) Por que a justiça de Jeová nos atrai a ele? (b) No que se refere à justiça de Jeová, a que conclusão Davi chegou, e como isso nos tranquiliza?

nos afasta; é atraente e nos faz querer achegar-nos a ele. A Bíblia descreve claramente como a justiça de Jeová é compassiva. Analisemos algumas das maneiras animadoras em que Jeová exerce sua justiça.

[13] A justiça perfeita de Jeová o leva a agir com fidelidade e lealdade para com seus servos. O salmista Davi vivenciou essa faceta da justiça de Jeová. Com base na experiência pessoal e no estudo do modo de Deus agir, a que conclusão Davi chegou? Ele declarou: "Jeová ama a justiça e ele não abandonará aqueles que lhe são leais. Hão de ser guardados por tempo indefinido." (Salmo 37:28) Que promessa tranquilizadora! Nem por um momento sequer nosso Deus abandonará os que lhe são leais. Assim, podemos ter certeza de que ele sempre estará perto de nós, demonstrando seu cuidado amoroso para conosco. Sua justiça garante isso! — Provérbios 2:7, 8.

[14] A justiça divina leva em conta as necessidades dos aflitos. A preocupação de Jeová para com os menos favorecidos é evidente na Lei que ele deu a Israel. Por exemplo, a Lei tinha regulamentos especiais que asseguravam que órfãos e viúvas fossem bem cuidados.

14. Como a preocupação de Jeová para com os menos favorecidos fica evidente na Lei que ele deu a Israel?

(Deuteronômio 24:17-21) Sabendo que a vida dessas pessoas podia ser muito difícil, o próprio Jeová assumiu o papel de seu Juiz e Protetor paterno, aquele que executava "julgamento pelo menino órfão de pai e pela viúva".* (Deuteronômio 10:18; Salmo 68:5) Jeová avisou aos israelitas que, se eles se aproveitassem de mulheres e crianças indefesas, ele sem dúvida ouviria o clamor delas. Ele declarou: "Deveras se acenderá a minha ira." (Êxodo 22:22-24) Embora a ira não seja uma das qualidades dominantes de Jeová, atos deliberados de injustiça, em especial contra os humildes e indefesos, o deixam indignado — e com toda a razão. — Salmo 103:6.

15 Jeová também nos assegura que ele "não trata a ninguém com parcialidade, nem aceita suborno". (Deuteronômio 10:17) Diferentemente de muitos humanos que têm poder ou prestígio, Jeová não é influenciado por riquezas ou aparência. Ele não tem absolutamente nenhum preconceito, nem demonstra

* Embora a palavra hebraica para "órfão de pai" esteja no masculino, isso de modo algum indica falta de interesse pelas meninas. Jeová incluiu na Lei um relato sobre uma decisão judicial que assegurou a herança das filhas de Zelofeade. Aquela decisão estabeleceu um precedente que defendia os direitos das órfãs. — Números 27:1-8.

15, 16. Qual é um exemplo realmente notável da imparcialidade de Jeová?

favoritismo. Veja um exemplo notável da imparcialidade de Jeová. A oportunidade de adorar a ele em verdade, com a perspectiva de vida infindável, não se restringe a uma pequena elite. Muito pelo contrário, “em cada nação, o homem que o teme e que faz a justiça lhe é aceitável”. (Atos 10:34, 35) Essa perspectiva maravilhosa está aberta a todos, não importa qual seja sua posição social, a cor da pele ou o país onde vive. Não concorda que isso é justiça expressa com perfeição?

[16] Há outro aspecto da justiça perfeita de Jeová que merece nossa consideração e respeito: o modo como ele lida com os que violam suas normas justas.

Não deixa de punir

[17] Alguns se perguntam: ‘Visto que Jeová não aprova a injustiça, como se explica o sofrimento injusto e as práticas corruptas tão comuns no mundo hoje?’ Essas injustiças de modo algum refutam a justiça de Jeová. As muitas injustiças que vemos neste mundo perverso são consequências do pecado que os humanos imperfeitos herdaram de Adão. Visto que eles escolheram seguir seus próprios modos pecaminosos, a injustiça se espalhou por toda a parte — mas não continuaria por muito tempo. — Deuteronômio 32:5.

17. Explique por que as injustiças do mundo não refutam a justiça de Jeová.

[18] Embora demonstre grande misericórdia para com os que se achegam a ele sinceramente, Jeová não tolerará para sempre uma situação que envergonha seu santo nome. (Salmo 74:10, 22, 23) Não se pode zombar do Deus de justiça; ele não impedirá que pecadores deliberados recebam o julgamento merecido. Jeová é um "Deus misericordioso e clemente, vagaroso em irar-se e abundante em benevolência e em verdade, . . . mas de modo algum isentará da punição". (Êxodo 34:6, 7) Em harmonia com essas palavras, Jeová às vezes acha necessário executar julgamento nos que deliberadamente violam suas leis justas.

[19] Pense, por exemplo, nos tratos dele com o Israel antigo. Mesmo depois de estabelecidos na Terra Prometida, os israelitas repetidas vezes se tornaram infiéis. Embora seus modos corrompidos fizessem Jeová "sentir-se magoado", ele não os rejeitou imediatamente. (Salmo 78:38-41) Demonstrando misericórdia, deu-lhes oportunidades de mudar de proceder. Ele disse: "Não me agrado na morte do iníquo, mas em que o iníquo recue do seu caminho e realmente continue vivendo. Recuai, recuai dos vossos maus caminhos, pois, por que devíeis morrer, ó casa de Israel?” (Ezequiel 33:11) Jeová encara a vida como preciosa e, por isso, enviou os seus profetas vez após vez para incentivar os israelitas a abandonar a conduta errada. Mas, de modo geral, teimosamente o povo recusou-se a escutar e a se arrepender. Finalmente, por causa do seu santo nome e de tudo o que esse significa, Jeová os entregou nas mãos de seus inimigos. — Neemias 9:26-30.

[20] A maneira como Jeová lidou com Israel nos ensina muito a respeito Dele. Aprendemos que seus olhos observam tudo, incluindo a injustiça, e que aquilo que ele vê o aflige profundamente. (Provérbios 15:3) É também tranquilizador saber que ele procura mostrar misericórdia quando há base para isso. Além disso, aprendemos que ele nunca exerce a justiça de forma precipitada. Visto que ele mostra paciência e longanimidade, muitas pessoas concluem erroneamente que Jeová nunca executará um julgamento contra os perversos. Mas isso não é verdade, porque os tratos Dele com Israel também nos mostram que a paciência divina tem limites. Jeová é inabalável ao defender a justiça. Diferentemente dos humanos, que muitas vezes se refreiam de exercê-la, ele sempre defende corajosamente o que é direito. De forma bem apropriada, o leão, que é símbolo de justiça corajosa, está associado à presença e ao trono de Deus.* (Ezequiel 1:10; Revelação [Apocalipse] 4:7) Assim, podemos ter certeza de que ele cumprirá sua promessa de acabar com a injustiça na Terra. Seu modo de julgar pode ser resumido da seguinte maneira: firmeza quando necessário, misericórdia sempre que possível. — 2 Pedro 3:9.

* O interessante é que Jeová comparou a si mesmo com um leão ao executar julgamento contra o Israel infiel. — Jeremias 25:38; Oseias 5:14.

Como se achegar ao Deus de justiça

[21] Quando meditamos na maneira de Jeová exercer a justiça, não devemos encará-lo como um juiz frio e severo, preocupado apenas em sentenciar os transgressores. Em vez disso, devemos pensar nele como um Pai amoroso, mas firme, que sempre lida com os filhos da melhor maneira possível. Como Pai justo, Jeová concilia a firmeza a favor do que é certo com a terna compaixão para com seus filhos terrestres, que precisam de sua ajuda e do seu perdão. — Salmo 103:10, 13.

[22] Como somos gratos de que a justiça divina envolve muito mais do que sentenciar transgressores! Guiado por essa qualidade, Jeová tornou possível que tivéssemos uma perspectiva emocionante: vida perfeita e infindável num mundo onde "há de morar a justiça". (2 Pedro 3:13) Nosso Deus lida conosco dessa forma porque sua justiça tem por objetivo salvar em vez de condenar. De fato, entender melhor o pleno alcance da justiça de Jeová nos achega a ele. Nos próximos capítulos, analisaremos com mais atenção as maneiras em que Ele expressa essa qualidade admirável.

"Há injustiça da parte de Deus?"

VIÚVA idosa é vítima de fraude e perde as economias de uma vida inteira. Bebê indefeso é abandonado pela mãe insensível. Homem é preso por um crime que não cometeu. Como reage a isso? Provavelmente, fica perturbado, o que é bem compreensível. Nós, humanos, temos um forte senso do que é certo e do que é errado. Quando vemos uma injustiça, ficamos indignados. Queremos que a vítima seja compensada e o causador da injustiça, punido. Quando isso não acontece, alguns se perguntam: 'Será que Deus não vê o que acontece? Por que ele não faz nada?'

abençoou com uma pequena medida do seu profundo senso de justiça.

Jeová odeia a injustiça

[3] Jeová não é indiferente à injustiça. Ele vê o que está acontecendo. A Bíblia nos diz o seguinte sobre os dias de Noé: "Jeová viu que a maldade do homem era abundante na terra e que toda inclinação dos pensamentos do seu coração era só má, todo o tempo." (Gênesis 6:5) Pense no que isso significa. Muitas vezes, nosso conceito de injustiça baseia-se em alguns poucos incidentes sobre os quais ouvimos falar ou que presenciamos. Em contraste, Jeová vê todas as injustiças, em escala global! Mais do que isso, ele discerne as inclinações do coração, os raciocínios depravados por trás dos atos injustos. — Jeremias 17:10.

[4] Mas Jeová faz mais do que simplesmente observar a injustiça. Ele também se preocupa com os que foram vítimas dela. Quando seu povo era tratado cruelmente por nações inimigas, Jeová ficava perturbado com o "seu gemido por causa dos seus opressores e dos que os empurravam". (Juízes 2:18) Talvez já tenha percebido

3. Por que se pode dizer que Jeová está muito mais ciente da injustiça do que nós?

4, 5. (a) Como a Bíblia mostra que Jeová se importa com os que foram tratados injustamente? (b) Como o próprio Jeová sofreu injustiças?

o que acontece com algumas pessoas: quanto mais são expostas à violência, mais se tornam insensíveis a ela. Isso não acontece com Jeová! Ele viu todo tipo de injustiça imaginável ao longo de uns 6 mil anos, mas seu ódio por ela não diminuiu nem um pouco. Pelo contrário, a Bíblia assegura que coisas como "língua falsa", "mãos que derramam sangue inocente" e "a testemunha falsa que profere mentiras" são detestáveis para ele. — Provérbios 6:16-19.

[5] Note também como Jeová censurou fortemente os líderes injustos de Israel. Ele inspirou um profeta a perguntar-lhes: "Não é vosso negócio conhecerdes a justiça?" Depois de descrever em termos vívidos o abuso de poder desses homens corruptos, Jeová predisse o resultado para eles: "Clamarão a Jeová por socorro, mas ele não lhes responderá. E naquele tempo esconderá deles a sua face, conforme a maldade que praticaram nas suas ações." (Miqueias 3:1-4) Como Jeová abomina a injustiça! Ora, ele mesmo tem sofrido por causa dela! Há milhares de anos, Satanás o desafia injustamente. (Provérbios 27:11) Além disso, Jeová foi profundamente afetado pelo mais horrível ato de injustiça: seu Filho, que "não cometeu pecado", foi executado como criminoso. (1 Pedro 2:22; Isaías 53:9) É óbvio que Jeová não ignora o sofrimento das vítimas de injustiças, nem é indiferente a ele.

6 Mesmo assim, quando vemos uma injustiça — ou quando nós mesmos nos tornamos vítimas dela —, é natural ficarmos indignados. Afinal, fomos criados à imagem de Deus, e a injustiça é exatamente o contrário de tudo o que Jeová representa. (Gênesis 1:27) Por que, então, Deus permite a injustiça?

A questão da soberania de Deus

7 A resposta a essa pergunta tem que ver com a questão da soberania. Como vimos, o Criador tem o direito de dominar sobre a Terra e todos os que moram nela. (Salmo 24:1; Revelação [Apocalipse] 4:11) Mas logo no início da história humana a soberania de Jeová foi desafiada. Como isso aconteceu? Jeová ordenou que o primeiro homem, Adão, não comesse de certa árvore que crescia no jardim, seu lar paradisíaco. E se ele desobedecesse? Deus avisou: "Positivamente morrerás." (Gênesis 2:17) Não seria difícil para Adão nem para sua esposa, Eva, cumprir a ordem de Deus. Contudo, Satanás convenceu Eva de que Deus estava sendo indevidamente restritivo. Segundo ele, o que aconteceria se Eva comesse da árvore? Satanás afirmou: "Positivamente não morrereis. Porque Deus sabe que, no mesmo dia em que comerdes dele, forçosamente se abrirão os vossos olhos e forçosamente sereis como Deus, sabendo o que é bom e o que é mau." — Gênesis 3:1-5.

muito importantes: Jeová tem mesmo o direito de reinar sobre a humanidade ou será que o homem pode se governar sozinho? Deus exerce sua soberania da melhor maneira possível? O Criador poderia ter usado seu poder ilimitado para destruir os rebeldes na hora. Mas o que se questionou foi o seu modo de governar, não o seu poder. Assim, eliminar Adão, Eva e Satanás não teria comprovado que o domínio de Deus é justo. Pelo contrário, poderia ter levantado ainda mais dúvidas a esse respeito. A única maneira de determinar se os humanos conseguiriam ser bem-sucedidos em governar a si mesmos de maneira independente de Deus, era dar tempo ao tempo.

10 Com o passar do tempo, o que ficou comprovado? Ao longo dos milênios, as pessoas experimentaram muitas formas de governo: autocracia, democracia, socialismo, comunismo, etc. Qual foi o resultado? A seguinte declaração sucinta e honesta da Bíblia responde muito bem: "Homem tem dominado homem para seu prejuízo." (Eclesiastes 8:9) O profeta Jeremias tinha boas razões para afirmar: "Bem sei, ó Jeová, que não é do homem terreno o seu caminho. Não é do homem que anda o dirigir o seu passo." — Jeremias 10:23.

10. No que se refere ao domínio humano, o que a História demonstra?

[11] Jeová sabia desde o início que o governo humano independente dele resultaria em muito sofrimento. Foi injusto da parte dele, então, permitir que o inevitável acontecesse? De modo algum! Para ilustrar: suponhamos que seu filho precise de uma cirurgia por causa de uma doença que poderia matá-lo. Você sabe que a operação causará certo sofrimento ao seu filho e isso o deixa muito triste. Ao mesmo tempo, sabe que ela permitirá que seu filho tenha saúde melhor. De modo similar, Deus sabia — e até predisse — que, ao permitir que os humanos se governassem sozinhos, o resultado seria dor e sofrimento. (Gênesis 3:16-19) Mas sabia também que o alívio duradouro e significativo só seria possível se ele permitisse que toda a humanidade visse os maus resultados da rebelião. Dessa forma, a questão seria resolvida de uma vez para sempre.

A questão da integridade do homem

[12] Há algo mais a se levar em conta. Satanás contestou o domínio divino — se era legítimo e justo — e, ao fazer isso, difamou a soberania de Jeová. Mas não parou por aí. Com esse desafio, ele também caluniou os servos de Deus a respeito da sua integridade. Note, por

11. Por que Jeová permitiu que a raça humana sofresse?
12. Como ilustrado no caso de Jó, que acusação Satanás lançou contra os humanos?

exemplo, o que Satanás disse a Jeová a respeito de Jó, um homem justo: "Não puseste tu mesmo uma sebe em volta dele, e em volta da sua casa, e em volta de tudo o que ele tem? Abençoaste o trabalho das suas mãos, e o próprio gado dele se tem espalhado pela terra. Mas, ao invés disso, estende tua mão, por favor, e toca em tudo o que ele tem, e vê se não te amaldiçoará na tua própria face." — Jó 1:10, 11.

[13] Satanás afirmou que Jeová usava Seu poder protetor para comprar a devoção de Jó. Isso, por sua vez, dava a entender que a integridade de Jó era só da boca para fora, que ele adorava a Deus apenas por interesse. Satanás disse que, se fosse privado da bênção de Deus, até mesmo Jó amaldiçoaria ao Criador. O Diabo sabia que Jó se destacava como "homem inculpe e reto, temendo a Deus e desviando-se do mal".* Se conseguisse destruir a integridade de Jó, o que se poderia esperar do restante da humanidade? Assim, o Diabo na verdade estava questionando a lealdade de todos os

* A respeito de Jó, Jeová disse: "Não há ninguém igual a ele na terra." (Jó 1:8) É provável, então, que ele tenha vivido depois da morte de José e antes de Moisés se tornar o líder designado de Israel. Assim, podia-se dizer que, naquela época, ninguém era tão leal quanto Jó.

13. O que Satanás deu a entender com suas acusações contra Jó, e como isso envolve a todos os humanos?

que querem servir a Deus. De fato, levando a questão mais adiante, Satanás disse a Jeová: "Tudo o que o homem [não apenas Jó] tem dará pela sua alma." — Jó 1:8; 2:4.

[14] A História demonstra que muitos, como Jó, permaneceram leais a Jeová em face de provações — exatamente o contrário do que Satanás afirmou. Pela sua fidelidade, alegraram o coração de Jeová e permitiram que Ele desmentisse o desafio arrogante do Diabo de que os humanos não serviriam a Deus se passassem por dificuldades. (Hebreus 11:4-38) Muitas pessoas sinceras se recusaram a dar as costas a Deus. Quando confrontadas com as situações mais perturbadoras, elas confiaram totalmente que Jeová lhes daria forças para perseverar. — 2 Coríntios 4:7-10.

[15] Mas a justiça de Jeová não tem que ver apenas com as questões da soberania e da integridade do homem. A Bíblia apresenta um registro dos julgamentos de Jeová contra pessoas e até nações inteiras. Também contém profecias sobre julgamentos que ele fará no futuro. Será que Jeová sempre foi justo nos seus julgamentos? Por que podemos ter confiança que Ele sempre julgará com justiça?

Por que a justiça divina é superior

[16] Sobre Jeová, pode-se dizer corretamente: “Todos os seus caminhos são justiça.” (Deuteronômio 32:4) Nenhum de nós pode afirmar isso a seu próprio respeito, porque muitas vezes nossa limitada compreensão das coisas impede que entendamos plenamente o que é certo. Veja um exemplo disso. Quando Jeová estava para destruir Sodoma, por causa da maldade excessiva daquela cidade, Abraão perguntou-lhe: “Arrasarás realmente o justo junto com o iníquo?” (Gênesis 18:23-33) É claro que a resposta era não. Só depois que o justo Ló e suas filhas estavam a salvo na cidade de Zoar é que Jeová “fez . . . chover enxofre e fogo” sobre Sodoma. (Gênesis 19:22-24) Em contraste, quando Deus estendeu misericórdia ao povo de Nínive, “acendeu-se a . . . ira” de Jonas. Visto que já havia anunciado a destruição da cidade, ele queria vê-la aniquilada — apesar do arrependimento de coração dos seus habitantes. — Jonas 3:10–4:1.

[17] Jeová assegurou a Abraão que sua justiça incluía

16, 17. Que exemplos demonstram que os humanos não entendem bem o que é a verdadeira justiça?

não só destruir os perversos, mas também salvar os justos. Por outro lado, Jonas teve de aprender que Jeová é misericordioso. Se pessoas perversas mudam de atitude, ele está "pronto a perdoar". (Salmo 86:5) Ao contrário de alguns humanos inseguros, Jeová não executa julgamentos desfavoráveis só para reafirmar seu poder, nem deixa de mostrar compaixão por medo de ser encarado como fraco. Seu modo de agir é mostrar misericórdia sempre que há base para ela. — Isaías 55:7; Ezequiel 18:23.

18 Mas Jeová não se deixa cegar por sentimentalismo. Quando seu povo se atolou na idolatria, Jeová declarou, com firmeza: "Vou julgar-te segundo os teus caminhos e trazer sobre ti todas as tuas coisas detestáveis. E meu olho não terá dó de ti, nem terei compaixão, pois trarei sobre ti os teus próprios caminhos." (Ezequiel 7:3, 4) De modo que, quando humanos ficam obstinados no seu modo de agir, Jeová julga-os de acordo com isso. Mas seu julgamento baseia-se em provas conclusivas. Assim, quando um alto "clamor de queixa" chegou aos seus ouvidos por causa de Sodoma e Gomorra, Jeová declarou: "Estou de todo resolvido a descer para ver se de fato agem segundo o clamor sobre isso, que tem chegado a mim." (Gênesis 18:20, 21) Como somos gratos de que Jeová não é como muitos humanos que tiram conclusões precipitadas antes de ouvir todos os fatos! Na verdade, Jeová é, como a Bíblia o descreve muito bem, "Deus de fidelidade e sem injustiça". — Deuteronômio 32:4.

Tenha confiança na justiça de Jeová

19. O que devemos fazer se ficarmos intrigados ao estudar as demonstrações da justiça de Jeová?

Quando ficamos intrigados com relatos ou profecias bíblicas que não dão esses detalhes, devemos demonstrar a mesma lealdade que o profeta Miqueias, que escreveu: "Mostrarei uma atitude de espera pelo Deus da minha salvação." — Miqueias 7:7.

[20] Podemos estar certos de que, em todas as situações, Jeová sempre fará o que é certo. Embora às vezes os humanos aparentemente ignorem as injustiças, Jeová promete: "A vingança é minha; eu pagarei de volta." (Romanos 12:19) Nossa atitude de espera revelará que temos a mesma convicção que o apóstolo Paulo: "Há injustiça da parte de Deus? Que isso nunca se torne tal!" — Romanos 9:14.

[21] Enquanto isso, vivemos em "tempos críticos, difíceis de manejar". (2 Timóteo 3:1) Por causa da injustiça e dos "atos de opressão", presenciamos muitos abusos cruéis. (Eclesiastes 4:1) Mas Jeová não mudou. Ele ainda odeia a injustiça e se preocupa muito com as vítimas dela. Se permanecermos leais a Jeová e à sua soberania, ele nos dará forças para perseverarmos até o tempo designado, sob o domínio do seu Reino, quando ele corrigirá todas as injustiças. — 1 Pedro 5:6, 7.

20, 21. Por que podemos ter certeza de que Jeová sempre fará o que é certo?

"A lei de Jeová é perfeita"

"A LEI é um buraco sem fundo, . . . engole tudo." Essa declaração aparece num livro publicado em 1712. O autor expressava sua desaprovação a um sistema jurídico em que os processos muitas vezes se arrastavam por anos nos tribunais, resultando em ruína financeira para os que buscavam justiça. Em muitos países, o sistema judicial e legal é tão complexo, tão cheio de injustiças, preconceitos e incoerências que o desprezo pela lei se tornou comum.

2 Em contraste, veja estas palavras escritas há uns 2.700 anos: "Quanto eu amo a tua lei!" (Salmo 119:97) Por que o salmista tinha sentimentos tão intensos? Porque a lei que ele amava não havia sido criada por governos seculares, mas por Jeová Deus. À medida que estudar as leis de Jeová, provavelmente você também se sentirá cada vez mais como o salmista. Esse estudo o ajudará a entender um pouco melhor o maior Legislador do Universo.

1, 2. Por que muitas pessoas desprezam a lei, mas como talvez venhamos a nos sentir em relação às leis de Deus?

O Legislador supremo

[3] "Há um que é legislador e juiz", diz a Bíblia. (Tiago 4:12) De fato, Jeová é o Legislador por excelência. Até os movimentos dos corpos celestes são governados pelas "leis dos céus", que ele criou. (Jó 38:33; A Bíblia de Jerusalém) Os milhares e milhares de santos anjos de Jeová estão organizados em categorias definidas e servem sob a ordem direta de Deus, como Seus ministros. Portanto, também são governados pela lei divina. — Salmo 104:4; Hebreus 1:7, 14.

[4] Jeová também deu leis à humanidade. Cada um de nós tem uma consciência, que reflete o senso de justiça de Jeová. Ela é uma espécie de lei interior que nos ajuda a distinguir o certo do errado. (Romanos 2:14) Nossos primeiros pais foram abençoados com uma consciência perfeita, de modo que precisavam de poucas leis. (Gênesis 2:15-17) Humanos imperfeitos, porém, precisam de mais leis para orientá-los a fim de fazer a vontade de Deus. Patriarcas, como Noé, Abraão e Jacó, receberam leis de Jeová Deus e as transmitiram às suas famílias. (Gênesis 6:22; 9:3-6; 18:19; 26:4, 5) Jeová se tornou Legislador de uma forma sem precedentes quando deu à nação de Israel o código da Lei por meio de Moisés. Esse código jurídico nos ajuda a entender melhor o senso de justiça de Jeová.

3, 4. De que modos Jeová mostrou ser Legislador?

Lei mosaica — um apanhado geral

[5] Muitos acham que a Lei mosaica era um conjunto de leis volumoso e complexo. Mas estão redondamente enganados! O código inteiro incluía mais de 600 leis. Isso talvez pareça bastante, mas pense: no fim do século 20, as leis federais dos Estados Unidos enchiam 150 mil páginas de livros jurídicos. A cada dois anos, acrescentavam-se mais umas 600 leis! Assim, em termos apenas de volume, a Lei mosaica parece minúscula em comparação com essa montanha de leis humanas. Mas a lei de Deus orientava os israelitas em áreas da vida que as leis modernas nem de longe abrangem. Vamos ver um apanhado geral dela.

[6] A Lei exaltava a soberania de Jeová. Por isso, nenhum outro código jurídico se compara a ela. A maior de suas leis era: "Escuta, ó Israel: Jeová, nosso Deus, é um só Jeová. E tens de amar a Jeová, teu Deus, de todo o teu coração, e de toda a tua alma, e de toda a tua força vital." Como o povo de Deus poderia expressar amor por

6, 7. (a) O que torna a Lei mosaica diferente de qualquer outro código jurídico, e qual era o maior mandamento expresso nela? (b) Como os israelitas mostravam que aceitavam a soberania de Jeová?

Ele? Deveriam servi-lo e se sujeitar à Sua soberania. — Deuteronômio 6:4, 5; 11:13.

[7] Como os israelitas mostravam que aceitavam a soberania de Jeová? Sujeitando-se àqueles que representavam a autoridade divina, como pais, maiorais, juízes, sacerdotes e, mais tarde, reis. Jeová encarava qualquer rebelião contra essas autoridades como rebelião contra ele próprio. Por outro lado, autoridades que lidassem de forma injusta ou arrogante com o povo de Jeová se arriscavam a incorrer na ira dele. (Êxodo 20:12; 22:28; Deuteronômio 1:16, 17; 17:8-20; 19:16, 17) Assim, ambas as partes deveriam defender a soberania de Deus.

[8] A Lei defendia a norma divina de santidade. As palavras "santo" e "santidade" aparecem mais de 280 vezes na Lei mosaica. A Lei ajudava o povo de Deus a distinguir entre o que era puro e o que era impuro, citando cerca de 70 coisas que tornavam um israelita cerimonialmente impuro. Essas leis traziam benefícios notáveis para a saúde, porque tratavam de higiene física, dieta e até manejo de lixo e resíduos.* Mas elas tinham um objetivo mais nobre: manter o povo no favor de

* Por exemplo, leis que exigiam que o excremento humano fosse enterrado, que doentes fossem postos de quarentena e que aqueles que tocassem num cadáver se lavassem estavam séculos à frente do seu tempo. — Levítico 13:4-8; Números 19:11-13, 17-19; Deuteronômio 23:13, 14.

8. Como a Lei defendia a norma divina de santidade?

Jeová, separado das práticas pecaminosas das nações degeneradas que os rodeavam. Vejamos um exemplo.

[9] Estatutos do pacto da Lei declaravam que o parto e as relações sexuais — mesmo entre casados — resultavam num período de impureza. (Levítico 12:2-4; 15:16-18) Isso não depreciava essas dádivas puras de Deus. (Gênesis 1:28; 2:18-25) Ao contrário, essas leis defendiam a santidade de Jeová, ajudando Seus adoradores a evitar depravações. Como? As nações ao redor de Israel costumavam misturar sexo e ritos de fertilidade na sua adoração. A religião cananeia incluía prostituição masculina e feminina. O resultado disso era depravação da pior espécie, que se espalhava facilmente. Em contraste com isso, a Lei separava totalmente a adoração de Jeová de assuntos sexuais.* Também havia outros benefícios.

[10] Essas leis serviam para ensinar uma verdade fundamental.# Afinal de contas, como é que o pecado

* Nos templos cananeus havia salas reservadas para atividades sexuais, mas a Lei mosaica declarava que alguém impuro não podia nem mesmo entrar no templo. Assim, visto que as relações sexuais resultavam num período de impureza, ninguém poderia legalmente incluir o sexo como parte da adoração na casa de Jeová.

O objetivo principal da Lei era ensinar. Na verdade, a obra Conhecimento Judaico menciona que a palavra hebraica para "lei", tohráh, significa "instrução".

9, 10. O pacto da Lei incluía que estatutos sobre relações sexuais e parto, e que benefícios essas leis traziam?

adâmico é transmitido de geração para geração? Não é por meio das relações sexuais e do parto? (Romanos 5:12) De modo que a Lei de Deus lembrava ao Seu povo que o pecado era uma realidade da vida. De fato, todos nascemos com ele. (Salmo 51:5) Precisamos de perdão e redenção para poder nos achegar ao nosso Deus santo.

[11] A Lei defendia a justiça perfeita de Jeová. Ela sustentava o princípio da equivalência, ou equilíbrio, em questões judiciais. Por isso, declarava: "Será alma por alma, olho por olho, dente por dente, mão por mão, pé por pé." (Deuteronômio 19:21) Portanto, a punição pelos crimes tinha de ser proporcional à gravidade deles. Esse aspecto da justiça divina permeava a Lei e até hoje é essencial para entendermos o sacrifício de resgate de Cristo Jesus, conforme mostrará o Capítulo 14. — 1 Timóteo 2:5, 6.

[12] A Lei também incluía regulamentos para evitar que a justiça fosse deturpada. Por exemplo, era preciso pelo menos duas testemunhas para confirmar uma acusação. A penalidade por perjúrio era severa. (Deuteronômio 19:15, 18, 19) Também se proibia categoricamente a corrupção e o suborno. (Êxodo 23:8; Deuteronômio 27:25) Até mesmo nas práticas comerciais o povo de Deus devia defender as elevadas normas divinas de justiça. (Levítico 19:35, 36; Deuteronômio 23:19, 20) A Lei mosaica era um código jurídico sublime e justo. Foi uma grande bênção para Israel.

Leis que ressaltavam a misericórdia e a imparcialidade

[14] Em alguns países hoje, parece que as leis mostram mais compaixão e consideração pelos criminosos do que pelas vítimas. Por exemplo, os ladrões são mandados para a prisão, mas, nesse meio-tempo, as vítimas ficam privadas dos bens roubados e ainda têm de pagar os impostos que servem para abrigar e alimentar os criminosos. No Israel antigo, não havia prisões como as que existem hoje, e leis específicas determinavam a severidade das punições. (Deuteronômio 25:1-3) O ladrão tinha de indenizar a vítima por aquilo que havia roubado e ainda pagar uma multa adicional. De quanto? Isso variava. Em Levítico 6:1-7 estipula-se uma multa bem menor do que a mencionada em Êxodo 22:7. Pelo visto, isso se dava porque os juízes tinham autonomia para avaliar diversos fatores, como o arrependimento do transgressor, antes de estipular o valor da multa.

15 Numa demonstração de misericórdia, a Lei reconhecia que nem todos os pecados são deliberados. Por exemplo, se alguém matasse outra pessoa por acidente, não precisava pagar alma por alma se tomasse a ação correta: fugir para uma das cidades de refúgio espalhadas pelo território de Israel. Juízes capacitados examinavam o caso e o fugitivo tinha de morar na cidade de refúgio até a morte do sumo sacerdote. Daí, estaria livre para morar onde quisesse. Assim, ele se beneficiava da misericórdia divina, mas ao mesmo tempo essa lei lembrava o grande valor da vida humana. — Números 15:30, 31; 35:12-25.

16 A Lei defendia os direitos individuais. Veja como ela protegia os endividados. Era proibido que alguém entrasse na casa de outra pessoa para pegar um bem como garantia de uma dívida. O credor tinha de esperar, na porta, que o devedor trouxesse o bem até ele. Ou seja, o lar de um homem era considerado inviolável. Se o credor pegasse a roupa exterior de alguém como garantia, deveria devolvê-la à noite, visto que o devedor provavelmente precisaria dela para se aquecer. — Deuteronômio 24:10-14.

[17] A Lei tinha regulamentos até mesmo em relação à guerra. O povo de Deus ia à guerra, não para satisfazer uma ânsia por poder ou conquistas, mas para servir como representantes de Deus nas "Guerras de Jeová". (Números 21:14) Em muitos casos, os israelitas eram obrigados a oferecer a rendição primeiro. Somente se a cidade rejeitasse a oferta é que Israel podia sitiá-la, mas ainda assim era preciso seguir as orientações de Deus. Diferentemente de muitos soldados ao longo da História, os homens do exército de Israel não podiam estuprar as mulheres nem promover massacres injustificáveis. Deviam até mesmo respeitar o meio ambiente: não podiam derrubar as árvores frutíferas nas terras do inimigo.* Outros exércitos não tinham essas restrições. — Deuteronômio 20:10-15, 19, 20; 21:10-13.

* A Lei perguntava de modo direto: "É a árvore do campo algum homem a ser sitiado por ti?" (Deuteronômio 20:19) Filo, erudito judeu do primeiro século, citou essa lei, explicando que Deus acha "injusto que a ira que se acende contra homens seja lançada contra coisas que são inocentes de todo o mal".

17, 18. No que se refere à guerra, em que sentidos os israelitas eram diferentes das outras nações, e por quê?

[18] Fica horrorizado quando ouve falar que, em alguns países, crianças são treinadas como soldados? No Israel antigo, nenhum homem com menos de 20 anos podia ser recrutado para o exército. (Números 1:2, 3) Até homens adultos eram eximidos se tivessem muito medo. Um recém-casado era eximido por um ano inteiro para que, antes de partir para esse serviço perigoso, pudesse ver o nascimento de um herdeiro. Dessa forma, explicava a Lei, o jovem marido poderia "alegrar" sua jovem esposa. — Deuteronômio 20:5, 6, 8; 24:5.

[20] Nesse respeito, porém, alguns se perguntam: 'Por que a Lei permitia a poligamia?' (Deuteronômio 21:15-17) É preciso analisar essas leis no seu contexto histórico. Quem avalia a Lei mosaica à luz da cultura e dos tempos modernos com certeza vai entendê-la mal. (Provérbios 18:13) A norma de Jeová, estabelecida lá no Éden, era que o casamento fosse uma união duradoura entre um só homem e uma só mulher. (Gênesis 2:18, 20-24) Mas, quando Jeová deu a Lei a Israel, costumes como o da poligamia já eram praticados por séculos. Jeová sabia muito bem que seu "povo de dura cerviz" frequentemente falharia em obedecer até aos mandamentos mais simples, como o que proibia a idolatria. (Êxodo 32:9) Assim, de forma muito sensata, ele não tentou fazer naquela época grandes reformas nos costumes matrimoniais. É preciso lembrar, porém, que não foi Jeová quem instituiu a poligamia. Mas ele usou a Lei mosaica para regulamentar essa prática entre o seu povo e evitar abusos.

[21] De modo similar, a Lei mosaica apresentava uma lista relativamente ampla de razões graves que permitiam que um homem se divorciasse da esposa. (Deuteronômio 24:1-4) Jesus chamou isso de uma concessão da parte de Deus ao povo judeu "por causa da dureza dos . . . corações" deles. Mas essa era uma concessão grantes que morassem entre eles, lembrando-se de que eles próprios haviam vivido numa terra estrangeira no passado. Deviam mostrar amor pelos pobres e sofredores, ajudando-os em sentido material e não tirando vantagem de sua situação. Os israelitas foram até mesmo orientados a tratar seus animais de carga com bondade e consideração. — Êxodo 23:6; Levítico 19:14, 33, 34; Deuteronômio 22:4, 10; 24:17, 18.

A Lei promovia o amor

22 Sabe de algum sistema jurídico moderno que incentive o amor? Pois a Lei mosaica promovia o amor acima de tudo. Só no livro de Deuteronômio a palavra "amor", e outras derivadas, aparece mais de 20 vezes. O segundo maior mandamento de toda a Lei era: "Tens de amar o teu próximo como a ti mesmo." (Levítico 19:18; Mateus 22:37-40) O povo de Deus devia mostrar esse amor não só a outros israelitas, mas também aos imi-

[23] Que outra nação foi abençoada com um código jurídico semelhante? Não é de estranhar, então, que o salmista escrevesse: "Quanto eu amo a tua lei!" Longe de ser apenas um sentimento, seu amor o movia à ação — ele se esforçava a obedecer àquela lei e a viver segundo os seus princípios. Ele prosseguiu, dizendo: "O dia inteiro [tua lei] é a minha preocupação." (Salmo 119:11, 97) Ele regularmente passava tempo estudando as leis de Jeová. Sem dúvida, à medida que fazia isso, aumentava o seu amor tanto por essas leis quanto pelo Legislador, Jeová Deus. Continue a estudar a lei divina e você também se achegará mais a Jeová, o Grandioso Legislador, o Deus de justiça.

Jeová providenciou um "resgate em troca de muitos"

"TODA a criação junta persiste em gemer e junta está em dores." (Romanos 8:22) Essas palavras do apóstolo Paulo descrevem muito bem o estado deplorável em que nos encontramos. Do ponto de vista humano, parece não haver saída do sofrimento, do pecado e da morte. Mas Jeová não é como os humanos — ele não tem limitações. (Números 23:19) O Deus de justiça providenciou uma maneira de escaparmos do sofrimento. Chama-se resgate.

² O resgate é o maior presente de Jeová para a humanidade. Torna possível que sejamos libertos do pecado e da morte. (Efésios 1:7) É a base da esperança de vida eterna, quer no céu quer no Paraíso na Terra. (Lucas 23:43; João 3:16; 1 Pedro 1:4) Mas o que é exatamente o resgate? O que nos ensina sobre a inigualável justiça de Jeová?

1, 2. Como a Bíblia descreve a condição da humanidade e qual é a única saída?

Como surgiu a necessidade de um resgate

[3] O resgate se tornou necessário devido ao pecado de Adão. Ele desobedeceu a Deus e, com isso, deixou para a sua descendência uma herança de doença, pesar, dor e morte. (Gênesis 2:17; Romanos 8:20) Deus não podia simplesmente ceder ao sentimentalismo e substituir a sentença de morte por um castigo menor. Se fizesse isso, estaria ignorando sua própria lei: "O salário pago pelo pecado é a morte." (Romanos 6:23) E se Jeová desconsiderasse suas próprias normas de justiça, o resultado seria caos e anarquia universais.

[4] Como vimos no Capítulo 12, a rebelião no Éden levantou questões ainda mais importantes. Satanás difamou o bom nome de Deus. Na verdade, ele acusou Jeová de ser um mentiroso, um ditador cruel que privava Suas criaturas de liberdade. (Gênesis 3:1-5) Quando aparentemente frustrou o propósito divino de encher a Terra de humanos justos, Satanás também deu a entender que Deus era um fracassado. (Gênesis 1:28;

3. (a) Por que surgiu a necessidade de um resgate? (b) Por que Deus não podia simplesmente mudar a sentença de morte da descendência de Adão?

4, 5. (a) Como Satanás caluniou a Deus, e por que este se sentiu na obrigação de responder aos desafios? (b) Do que Satanás acusou os servos leais de Jeová?

Isaías 55:10, 11) Se Jeová tivesse deixado de responder a esses desafios, muitas de suas criaturas inteligentes talvez tivessem perdido a confiança no Seu domínio.

[5] Satanás também caluniou os servos leais de Jeová, acusando-os de servir a Ele apenas por motivos egoístas e afirmando que, sob pressão, nenhum deles permaneceria fiel a Deus. (Jó 1:9-11) Essas questões eram muito mais importantes do que as dificuldades da humanidade. Com toda a razão, Jeová se sentiu na obrigação de responder às acusações caluniosas de Satanás. Mas como Ele poderia resolver essas questões e ainda assim salvar a humanidade?

Resgate — uma equivalência

[6] A solução que Jeová apresentou era totalmente misericordiosa, extremamente justa e maravilhosamente simples — uma solução que nenhum humano poderia ter imaginado. É chamada de várias maneiras: compra, reconciliação, redenção, propiciação e expiação. (Salmo 49:8; Daniel 9:24; Gálatas 3:13; Colossenses 1:20; Hebreus 2:17) Mas a expressão que melhor a define é aquela usada pelo próprio Jesus, que disse: "O Filho do homem não veio para que se lhe ministrasse, mas para

6. Quais são algumas expressões usadas na Bíblia para descrever o modo de Deus salvar a humanidade?

ministrar e dar a sua alma como resgate [em grego, lýtron] em troca de muitos." — Mateus 20:28.

[7] O que é um resgate? A palavra grega usada aqui vem de um verbo que significa "deixar ir, libertar". Esse termo era usado para o preço pago em troca da liberdade de prisioneiros de guerra. Basicamente, então, pode-se definir resgate como algo pago para recomprar outra coisa. Nas Escrituras Hebraicas, a palavra para "resgate" (kófer) deriva de um verbo que significa "cobrir". Por exemplo, Deus disse a Noé que 'cobrisse' (uma forma da mesma palavra) a arca com alcatrão. (Gênesis 6:14) Isso nos ajuda a entender que resgatar também significa cobrir pecados. — Salmo 65:3.

[8] Um dicionário teológico afirma que essa palavra (kófer) "sempre denota uma equivalência", ou correspondência. (Theological Dictionary of the New Testament) Assim, a tampa da arca do pacto tinha um formato que correspondia, ou equivalia, ao da própria arca. De modo similar, a fim de resgatar, ou cobrir, o pecado, era preciso pagar um preço que correspondesse, ou cobrisse, plenamente o dano causado pelo pecado. Em harmonia com isso, a Lei de Deus a Israel declarava: “Será alma por alma, olho por olho, dente por dente, mão por mão, pé por pé.” — Deuteronômio 19:21.

[9] Homens fiéis, a partir de Abel, ofereceram sacrifícios de animais a Deus. Ao fazer isso, demonstraram que estavam cientes de que o pecado existia e que se precisava de redenção, e mostraram sua fé na libertação prometida por Deus por intermédio do seu “descendente”. (Gênesis 3:15; 4:1-4; Levítico 17:11; Hebreus 11:4) Jeová se agradava desses sacrifícios e concedia uma condição limpa a seus adoradores. Contudo, os sacrifícios de animais eram, na melhor das hipóteses, apenas representativos. Não podiam cobrir totalmente os pecados humanos, pois os animais são inferiores ao homem. (Salmo 8:4-8) Por isso, a Bíblia diz: “Não é possível que o sangue de touros e de bodes tire pecados.” (Hebreus 10:1-4) Esses sacrifícios eram apenas ilustrativos, simbolizando o verdadeiro sacrifício de resgate futuro.

[10] “Em Adão todos morrem”, disse o apóstolo Paulo.

---

9. Por que razão homens fiéis ofereceram sacrifícios de animais, e como Jeová encarava esses sacrifícios?
10. (a) O resgatador tinha de ser equivalente a quem, e por quê? (b) Por que foi necessário só um sacrifício humano?

(1 Coríntios 15:22) Assim, o resgate precisava envolver a morte do equivalente exato de Adão: um humano perfeito. (Romanos 5:14) Nenhuma outra criatura podia equilibrar a balança da justiça. Somente um humano perfeito, que não estivesse debaixo da sentença de morte adâmica, poderia oferecer um "resgate [perfeitamente] correspondente" a Adão. (1 Timóteo 2:6) Não seria preciso que incontáveis milhões de humanos se sacrificassem para corresponder a cada descendente de Adão. O apóstolo Paulo explicou: "Por intermédio de um só homem [Adão] entrou o pecado no mundo, e a morte por intermédio do pecado." (Romanos 5:12) E "visto que a morte é por intermédio dum homem", Deus providenciou a redenção para a humanidade "por intermédio dum homem". (1 Coríntios 15:21) Como?

[11] Jeová tomou providências para que um homem perfeito sacrificasse voluntariamente a sua vida. Segundo Romanos 6:23, "o salário pago pelo pecado é a morte". Ao sacrificar sua vida, o resgatador 'provaria a morte por todo homem'. Em outras palavras, pagaria o salário pelo pecado de Adão. (Hebreus 2:9; 2 Coríntios

[12] Para ilustrar: imagine-se morando numa cidade em que a maioria dos habitantes trabalha em uma grande fábrica. Você e seus vizinhos têm um bom salário e uma vida confortável. Até que um dia a fábrica fecha as portas. Por que motivo? O diretor se tornou corrupto e levou a firma à falência. De repente, você e seus vizinhos estão desempregados e as contas começam a se acumular. Cônjuges, filhos e credores sofrem por causa da corrupção daquele homem. Existe saída? Sim! Um benfeitor rico resolve intervir. Ele sabe quanto vale a companhia e imagina o que os empregados e suas famílias estão passando. Assim, paga as dívidas da firma e rea-

* Adão e Eva não podiam se beneficiar do resgate. A Lei mosaica declarou o seguinte princípio com respeito a assassinos deliberados: "Não deveis aceitar nenhum resgate pela alma dum assassino que merece morrer." (Números 35:31) É óbvio que Adão e Eva mereciam morrer porque desobedeceram a Deus deliberadamente e com plena consciência dos seus atos. Dessa forma, abriram mão de suas perspectivas de vida eterna.

bre a fábrica. O cancelamento daquela única dívida traz alívio para muitos empregados, suas famílias e credores. De modo similar, o cancelamento da dívida de Adão beneficia incontáveis milhões de pessoas.

Quem providenciou o resgate?

[13] Somente Jeová poderia providenciar "o Cordeiro . . . que tira o pecado do mundo". (João 1:29) Mas Deus não enviou um simples anjo para resgatar a humanidade. Enviou Aquele que poderia fornecer uma resposta definitiva e conclusiva à acusação de Satanás contra os servos de Jeová. De fato, Deus fez o sacrifício supremo de enviar seu Filho unigênito, "aquele de quem ele gostava especialmente". (Provérbios 8:30) Voluntariamente, o Filho de Deus "se esvaziou" de sua natureza espiritual. (Filipenses 2:7) De forma milagrosa, Jeová transferiu a vida e a personalidade do seu Filho primogênito do céu para o útero de uma virgem judia, chamada Maria. (Lucas 1:27, 35) Como homem, recebeu o nome de Jesus. Mas em sentido jurídico, poderia ser chamado de o segundo Adão, porque era o equivalente exato de Adão. (1 Coríntios 15:45, 47)

13, 14. (a) Como Jeová providenciou o resgate para a humanidade? (b) A quem este é pago, e por que esse pagamento é necessário?

Assim, Jesus podia se oferecer em sacrifício como resgate pela humanidade pecadora.

[14] A quem o resgate seria pago? O Salmo 49:7 diz especificamente que seria pago "a Deus". Mas não foi Jeová quem providenciou o resgate? Sim, mas isso não é razão para encararmos esse ato como uma troca inútil e mecânica, como se ele tirasse dinheiro de um bolso e colocasse no outro. Deve-se entender que o resgate não é uma troca física, mas uma transação jurídica. Ao providenciar o pagamento do resgate, a um enorme custo para si mesmo, Jeová confirmou sua inabalável aderência à sua própria justiça perfeita. — Gênesis 22:7, 8, 11-13; Hebreus 11:17; Tiago 1:17.

[15] No início do ano 33 EC, Jesus Cristo voluntariamente se submeteu a uma provação que resultou no pagamento do resgate. Ele se deixou ser preso sob acusações falsas, julgado culpado e pregado numa estaca de execução. Era realmente necessário que Jesus sofresse tanto? Sim, porque era preciso resolver a questão da integridade dos servos de Deus. O interessante é que Deus não permitiu que Herodes matasse Jesus enquanto este era bebê. (Mateus 2:13-18) Mas quando se tornou adulto, Jesus estava apto a resistir aos ataques de Satanás com pleno entendimento das questões envolvidas.* Ao se manter "leal, cândido, imaculado, separado dos pecadores" apesar do horrível tratamento que recebeu, Jesus provou de forma maravilhosa e conclusiva que Jeová tem mesmo servos que permanecem fiéis sob provações. (Hebreus 7:26) Não é de admirar, então, que no momento de sua morte Jesus clamasse em triunfo: "Está consumado!" — João 19:30.

Ele leva até o fim seu trabalho de redenção

[16] Jesus ainda tinha de concluir seu trabalho de redenção. No terceiro dia depois da sua morte, Jeová o ressuscitou dos mortos. (Atos 3:15; 10:40) Por meio desse ato marcante, Jeová não só recompensou o Filho por seu serviço fiel, mas também lhe deu a oportunidade de terminar seu trabalho de redenção como Sumo Sacerdote de Deus. (Romanos 1:4; 1 Coríntios 15:3-8) O apóstolo Paulo explica: "Quando Cristo veio como sumo sacerdote . . . , ele entrou no lugar santo, não, não com o

* Para contrabalançar o pecado de Adão, Jesus tinha de morrer, não como criança perfeita, mas como homem perfeito. Lembre-se de que o pecado de Adão foi deliberado, cometido com pleno conhecimento da seriedade do ato e de suas consequências. Assim, a fim de se tornar "o último Adão" e cobrir o pecado, Jesus tinha de fazer uma escolha madura e consciente de manter a integridade a Jeová. (1 Coríntios 15:45, 47) De modo que a conduta fiel de Jesus durante toda a vida — incluindo sua morte sacrificial — serviu como "um só ato de justificação". — Romanos 5:18, 19.

sangue de bodes e de novilhos, mas com o seu próprio sangue, de uma vez para sempre, e obteve para nós um livramento eterno. Porque Cristo entrou, não num lugar santo feito por mãos, que é uma cópia da realidade, mas no próprio céu, para aparecer agora por nós perante a pessoa de Deus." — Hebreus 9:11, 12, 24.

[17] Cristo não podia levar seu sangue literal para o céu. (1 Coríntios 15:50) Em vez disso, ele levou o que o sangue simbolizava: o valor legal do sacrifício de sua vida humana perfeita. Daí, perante a pessoa de Deus, ele apresentou formalmente o valor da sua vida como resgate em troca da humanidade pecadora. Será que Jeová aceitou esse sacrifício? Sim, e isso ficou evidente no Pentecostes de 33 EC, quando foi derramado espírito santo sobre 120 discípulos em Jerusalém. (Atos 2:1-4) Embora isso tenha sido emocionante, era apenas o primeiro dos maravilhosos benefícios que o resgate ainda traria.

tortura. Paulo também explica que essa reconciliação envolve dois grupos de pessoas: "as coisas nos céus" e "as coisas na terra". (Colossenses 1:19, 20; Efésios 1:10) O primeiro grupo é composto de 144 mil cristãos que recebem a esperança de servir como sacerdotes celestiais e reinar sobre a Terra com Cristo Jesus. (Revelação [Apocalipse] 5:9, 10; 7:4; 14:1-3) Por intermédio deles, os benefícios do resgate serão aplicados gradativamente à humanidade obediente por um período de mil anos. — 1 Coríntios 15:24-26; Revelação 20:6; 21:3, 4.

não precisam esperar até lá para se beneficiar do resgate. Eles já "lavaram as suas vestes compridas e as embranqueceram no sangue do Cordeiro". Visto que exercem fé no resgate, desde já recebem bênçãos espirituais por meio dessa provisão amorosa. Por exemplo, são declarados justos como amigos de Deus. (Tiago 2:23) Em resultado do sacrifício de Jesus, podem 'se aproximar, com franqueza no falar, do trono de benignidade imerecida'. (Hebreus 4:14-16) Quando erram, recebem perdão genuíno. (Efésios 1:7) Apesar de imperfeitos, têm uma consciência limpa. (Hebreus 9:9; 10:22; 1 Pedro 3:21) Assim, a reconciliação com Deus não é algo que aguardam para o futuro — já é uma realidade! CAPÍTULO 15

Jesus 'estabelece justiça na Terra'

CONSEGUE imaginar Jesus furioso? Talvez ache isso difícil porque, afinal de contas, ele era conhecido como um homem muito manso. (Mateus 21:5) Houve uma ocasião, porém, em que ele ficou realmente zangado. É claro que, apesar disso, Jesus manteve perfeito controle — sua raiva era totalmente justa.* Mas o que havia deixado esse homem pacífico tão furioso? Uma vergonhosa injustiça.

[2] Jesus prezava muito o templo em Jerusalém. No mundo todo, aquele era o único lugar sagrado dedicado à adoração de seu Pai celestial. Judeus de muitos lugares viajavam grandes distâncias para adorar ali. Até mesmo gentios tementes a Deus vinham e ficavam no pátio do templo reservado para eles. Mas certa vez, no início do seu ministério, quando entrou no templo, Jesus ficou chocado com o que viu. E não era para menos, o lugar mais parecia um mercado do que uma casa de adoração!

* Quando demonstrou ira justa, Jesus imitou a Jeová, que "está disposto ao furor" contra toda a maldade. (Naum 1:2) Por exemplo, depois de dizer ao seu povo rebelde que eles haviam transformado sua casa em "um mero covil de salteadores", Jeová acrescentou: "Eis que se despeja a minha ira e o meu furor sobre este lugar." — Jeremias 7:11, 20.

1, 2. Qual foi uma ocasião em que Jesus ficou furioso, e por quê?

Estava cheio de comerciantes e cambistas. Mas qual era a injustiça? Para esses homens, o templo de Deus não passava de um lugar para explorar e até roubar as pessoas. Como assim? — João 2:14.

[3] Uma regra, inventada pelos líderes religiosos, dizia que somente um tipo específico de moeda poderia ser usado para pagar o imposto do templo. Os visitantes tinham de trocar o dinheiro para conseguir essas moedas. De modo que os cambistas armavam suas mesas dentro do templo e cobravam uma taxa pelas transações. O negócio de venda de animais também era muito lucrativo. Os visitantes que quisessem oferecer sacrifícios podiam comprar animais de qualquer comerciante da cidade, mas os funcionários do templo poderiam julgá-los impróprios como ofertas e rejeitá-los. Por outro lado, os animais para sacrifício comprados no templo sempre eram aceitos. Assim, com o povo à sua mercê, os comerciantes muitas vezes cobravam preços exorbitantes.*

* Segundo a Míxena, anos depois aconteceu um protesto contra os preços cobrados pelas pombas vendidas no templo. Imediatamente, o preço foi reduzido em 99%! Quem é que mais lucrava com esse comércio? Alguns historiadores indicam que os mercados do templo eram de propriedade da casa do Sumo Sacerdote Anás, o que contribuía muito para a vasta riqueza daquela família sacerdotal. — João 18:13.

3, 4. Que exploração gananciosa acontecia na casa de Jeová, e que ação Jesus tomou para corrigir o problema?

Isso não era apenas uma prática comercial condenável. Era, na realidade, roubo!

[4] Jesus não podia tolerar essa injustiça. Tratava-se da casa do seu próprio Pai! Ele fez um chicote de cordas e expulsou o gado e as ovelhas do templo. Daí, se dirigiu aos cambistas e virou suas mesas. Imagine todas aquelas moedas rolando pelo chão de mármore! Com voz firme, ele ordenou aos vendedores de pombas: "Tirai estas coisas daqui!" (João 2:15, 16) Parece que ninguém se atreveu a opor-se a esse homem corajoso.

"Tal pai, tal filho"

[5] Naturalmente, depois de algum tempo os comerciantes voltaram. Cerca de três anos depois, Jesus se deparou com a mesma injustiça e dessa vez citou as palavras do próprio Jeová que condenou os que transformavam Sua casa em "um covil de salteadores". (Mateus 21:13; Jeremias 7:11) Quando viu a ganância daqueles exploradores e como o templo de Deus havia sido profanado, Jesus se sentiu exatamente como seu Pai. E não é de admirar! Por incontáveis milhões de anos, Jesus foi ensinado por seu Pai celestial. Em resultado disso, desenvolveu o mesmo senso de justiça que Jeová. Nele, se cumpriu bem

o ditado: “Tal pai, tal filho.” Assim, se quisermos entender plenamente a justiça divina, não há nada melhor do que meditar no exemplo de Jesus Cristo. — João 14:9, 10.

[6] O Filho unigênito de Jeová estava presente quando Satanás injustamente chamou o Criador de mentiroso e levantou a questão sobre se o Seu domínio era justo. Que calúnia! O Filho também ouviu o desafio posterior de Satanás de que ninguém serviria a Jeová altruistamente, por amor. Dá para imaginar que essas acusações falsas deixaram aquele Filho justo profundamente magoado. Quando soube que desempenharia o papel principal em resolver essas questões, como isso deve tê-lo deixado emocionado! (2 Coríntios 1:20) Como faria isso?

[7] Como aprendemos no Capítulo 14, Jesus Cristo deu a resposta definitiva, conclusiva, à acusação de Satanás contra a integridade das criaturas de Jeová. Assim, lançou a base para a vindicação final da soberania de Jeová e a santificação do Seu nome. Como Agente Principal de Jeová, Jesus estabelecerá a justiça divina em todo o Universo. (Atos 5:31) Seu modo de vida na Terra também refletia a justiça divina. A respeito dele, Jeová disse: “Porei sobre ele o meu espírito e ele esclarecerá às nações o que é justiça.” (Mateus 12:18) Como Jesus cumpriu essas palavras?

Jesus esclarece “o que é justiça”

[8] Jesus amava a Lei de Jeová e vivia de acordo com ela. Mas os líderes religiosos dos seus dias distorciam a Lei e a aplicavam incorretamente. Jesus lhes disse: “Ai de vós, escribas e fariseus, hipócritas! . . . desconsiderastes os assuntos mais importantes da Lei, a saber, a justiça, a misericórdia e a fidelidade.” (Mateus 23:23) É óbvio que esses instrutores da Lei de Deus não estavam esclarecendo “o que é justiça”. Pelo contrário, eles obscureciam a justiça divina. Como? Veja alguns exemplos.

[9] Jeová ordenou que Seu povo se mantivesse separado das nações pagãs ao seu redor. (1 Reis 11:1, 2) Mas alguns líderes religiosos fanáticos incentivavam o povo a desprezar todos os não judeus. A Míxena até incluía a seguinte regra: “Não se deve deixar gado nas hospedarias dos gentios, pois se suspeita que pratiquem a bestialidade.” Esse preconceito generalizado contra todos os não judeus era injusto e totalmente contrário ao espírito da Lei mosaica. (Levítico 19:34) Outras regras criadas por homens rebaixavam as mulheres. A lei oral dizia que a mulher tinha de andar atrás, não ao lado, do marido. Os homens não deviam conversar com mulheres em público, nem com a própria esposa. Depoimentos de mulheres, assim como os de escravos, não eram aceitos nos tribunais. Havia até uma oração formal na qual os homens agradeciam a Deus por não terem nascido mulher.

10 Os líderes religiosos soterraram a Lei de Deus sob uma montanha de regras e regulamentos inventados por homens. A lei do sábado, por exemplo, simplesmente proibia o trabalho naquele dia, reservando-o para adoração, revigoramento espiritual e descanso. Mas os fariseus transformaram aquela lei num fardo. Assumiram a tarefa de determinar exatamente o que significava a expressão "trabalho". Consideravam 39 atividades como trabalho, entre elas colher e caçar. Por causa dessas classificações, surgiam perguntas intermináveis. Se um homem matasse uma pulga no sábado, isso seria considerado caçar? Se arrancasse um punhado de cereais para comer ao passar por uma plantação, estaria colhendo? Se curasse um doente, estaria trabalhando? Havia regras rígidas e detalhadas para tratar dessas questões.

11 Em um ambiente como esse, como Jesus ajudaria as pessoas a entender o que é justiça? Nos seus ensinos e no seu modo de vida, ele tomou uma posição corajosa contra os líderes religiosos. Primeiramente, veja como

11, 12. Como Jesus indicou que era contrário às tradições não bíblicas dos fariseus?

ele fez isso por meio dos seus ensinos. Ele condenou diretamente os milhares de regras inventadas por homens, dizendo: “Invalidastes a palavra de Deus pela vossa tradição que transmitistes.” — Marcos 7:13.

[12] Jesus ensinou de modo vigoroso que os fariseus estavam errados a respeito da lei do sábado — que, na verdade, não haviam captado o espírito daquela lei. O Messias, explicou ele, é “Senhor do sábado” e, portanto, podia curar pessoas naquele dia. (Mateus 12:8) Para ressaltar isso, ele abertamente realizou curas milagrosas no sábado. (Lucas 6:7-10) Essas curas eram uma amostra daquelas que ele realizará na Terra inteira durante seu Reinado Milenar. Aquele Milênio será o sábado definitivo, em que toda a humanidade fiel por fim descansará dos séculos de labuta sob o fardo do pecado e da morte.

[13] Jesus também esclareceu o que é justiça por meio de uma nova lei, “a lei do Cristo”, que entrou em vigor depois que ele terminou seu ministério terrestre. (Gálatas 6:2) Diferentemente de sua predecessora, a Lei mosaica, essa nova lei se baseava, na maior parte, não em uma série de mandamentos escritos, mas em princípios. Mas ela também incluía alguns mandamentos diretos. Jesus chamou um deles de “novo mandamento”. Ensinou seus seguidores a amar uns aos outros assim como ele os amou. (João 13:34, 35) O amor altruísta deveria ser o sinal identificador de todos os que vivessem sob "a lei do Cristo".

Exemplo vivo de justiça

[14] Em vez de simplesmente ensinar o amor, Jesus viveu "a lei do Cristo". Ela fazia parte da sua conduta diária. Vejamos três modos em que o exemplo de Jesus esclareceu o que é justiça.

[15] Primeiro, ele evitou escrupulosamente cometer qualquer injustiça. Já notou que, quando humanos imperfeitos se tornam arrogantes e extrapolam os limites da sua autoridade, isso muitas vezes resulta em injustiças? Jesus não tinha esse problema. Em certa ocasião, um homem se aproximou dele e disse: "Instrutor, dize a meu irmão que divida comigo a herança." Qual foi a resposta de Jesus? "Homem, quem me designou juiz ou partidor sobre vós?" (Lucas 12:13, 14) Não acha isso notável? O intelecto, o discernimento e até a autoridade de Jesus — que Deus lhe dera — eram muito superiores aos de qualquer outra pessoa na Terra; mesmo assim, ele se recusou a envolver-se no assunto, visto que não recebera autoridade específica para isso. Nesse respeito, Jesus sempre foi modesto, até durante os milênios de sua existência pré-humana. (Judas 9) Uma de suas qualidades notáveis é que ele confia humildemente no que Jeová determina ser justo.

[16] Segundo, Jesus mostrou justiça no seu modo de pregar as boas novas do Reino de Deus. Ele nunca agiu com preconceito. Pelo contrário, se esforçava muito para alcançar todo tipo de pessoas, quer fossem ricas quer pobres. Em contraste com isso, os fariseus desprezavam as pessoas comuns; referiam-se a elas usando o termo preconceituoso ʽam ha·ʼá·rets ("povo da terra"). O Filho de Deus corajosamente denunciou essa injustiça. Quando ensinava as boas novas às pessoas — ou quando comia com elas, as curava ou as ressuscitava —, Jesus defendia a justiça de Deus, visto que Ele deseja alcançar "toda sorte de homens".* — 1 Timóteo 2:4.

[17] Terceiro, o senso de justiça de Jesus estava ligado a profunda misericórdia. Ele se esforçava a ajudar os

* Os fariseus consideravam os humildes, que não eram versados na Lei, como 'amaldiçoados'. (João 7:49) Diziam que não se deviam instruir essas pessoas, nem ter negócios, comer ou orar com elas. Permitir que uma filha se casasse com um desses humildes era considerado pior do que expô-la a animais selvagens. Afirmavam que tais pessoas não podiam esperar ser ressuscitadas.

pecadores. (Mateus 9:11-13) Defendia prontamente os indefesos. Por exemplo, Jesus não agia como os líderes religiosos que promoviam a desconfiança contra todos os gentios. Ele ajudou e ensinou misericordiosamente alguns estrangeiros, embora sua missão principal fosse pregar aos judeus. Ele concordou em fazer uma cura milagrosa para um oficial do exército romano, dizendo: "Em ninguém em Israel tenho encontrado tamanha fé." — Mateus 8:5-13.

18 De modo similar, Jesus não defendeu os conceitos comuns sobre as mulheres; ele fez corajosamente o que era justo. As samaritanas eram consideradas tão impuras quanto os gentios. Mas Jesus não hesitou em pregar para uma samaritana junto ao poço em Sicar. De fato, foi a essa mulher que Jesus, pela primeira vez, identificou-se abertamente como o prometido Messias. (João 4:6, 25, 26) Os fariseus diziam que não se devia ensinar a lei de Deus às mulheres, mas Jesus gastou bastante tempo e energia ensinando-as. (Lucas 10:38-42) E embora a tradição considerasse que o depoimento de mulheres não era digno de confiança, Jesus deu a várias mulheres a honra de serem as primeiras a vê-lo após a ressurreição. Ele até lhes disse que fossem contar a seus discípulos a respeito desse evento importantíssimo! — Mateus 28:1-10.

[19] De fato, Jesus esclareceu às nações o que é justiça. Em muitos casos, ele fez isso apesar de correr grandes riscos. O exemplo dele nos ajuda a entender que defender a verdadeira justiça requer coragem. Ele foi apropriadamente chamado de "o Leão que é da tribo de Judá". (Revelação [Apocalipse] 5:5) Lembre-se de que o leão é símbolo de justiça corajosa. No futuro próximo, porém, Jesus executará ainda mais atos de justiça. Ele estabelecerá 'justiça na Terra' no mais pleno sentido. — Isaías 42:4.

O Rei messiânico 'estabelece justiça na Terra'

[20] Desde que se tornou o Rei messiânico em 1914, Jesus tem promovido a justiça na Terra. Como? Ele tem dado orientações para que se cumpra sua profecia encontrada em Mateus 24:14. Os seguidores de Cristo na Terra ensinam a pessoas de todas as nações a verdade sobre o Reino de Jeová. Como Jesus, pregam de maneira imparcial e justa, procurando dar a todos — jovens ou idosos, ricos ou pobres, homens ou mulheres — a oportunidade de vir a conhecer a Jeová, o Deus de justiça.

[21] Jesus também promove a justiça dentro da congregação cristã verdadeira, da qual ele é o Cabeça. Conforme profetizado, ele providenciou "dádivas em homens", fiéis anciãos cristãos que tomam a dianteira na congregação. (Efésios 4:8-12) Ao pastorear o precioso rebanho de Deus, esses homens seguem o exemplo de Jesus Cristo em promover a justiça. Sempre têm em mente que Jesus deseja que suas ovelhas sejam tratadas com justiça, não importa qual seja sua posição, status ou situação financeira.

[22] Contudo, no futuro próximo, Jesus estabelecerá justiça na Terra numa escala sem precedentes. Neste mundo corrupto, a injustiça é generalizada. Cada criança que morre de fome é vítima de uma injustiça imperdoável, em especial quando pensamos no dinheiro e no tempo desperdiçados na produção de armas de guerra ou na satisfação dos caprichos egoístas daqueles que se empenham pelos prazeres. Os milhões de mortes desnecessárias a cada ano são apenas uma das muitas formas de injustiça. E todas elas provocam a justa indignação de Jeová. Ele designou seu Filho para travar uma guerra justa contra este inteiro sistema perverso, a fim de eliminar todas as injustiças de uma vez por todas. — Revelação 16:14, 16; 19:11-15.

22. Como Jeová se sente em relação às injustiças tão comuns no mundo hoje, e ele designou seu Filho para fazer o que a esse respeito?

23 Mas a justiça de Jeová exige mais do que a mera destruição dos perversos. Ele também designou seu Filho para reinar como "Príncipe da Paz". Depois da guerra do Armagedom, o domínio de Jesus estabelecerá paz em toda a Terra e ele dominará "por meio da justiça". (Isaías 9:6, 7) Jesus então terá prazer em desfazer todas as injustiças que causaram tanta dor e sofrimento no mundo. Por toda a eternidade, ele defenderá fielmente a justiça perfeita de Jeová. Portanto, é vital que nos esforcemos a imitar a justiça de Jeová agora. Vejamos como podemos fazer isso.

‘Exerça a justiça’ ao andar com Deus

IMAGINE-SE preso num navio que está afundando. Quando acha que não há mais esperança, aparece alguém que o resgata e leva para um lugar seguro. Que alívio você sente quando ele lhe diz: “Agora você está a salvo”! Não se sentiria em dívida com essa pessoa? No mais pleno sentido, poderia dizer: “Devo minha vida a você.”

[2] Em certos aspectos, isso ilustra o que Jeová fez por nós. É evidente que temos uma dívida com ele. Afinal, ele forneceu o resgate, que tornou possível nosso livramento das garras do pecado e da morte. Nós nos sentimos seguros por saber que, enquanto exercermos fé naquele sacrifício valioso, nossos pecados serão perdoados e nosso futuro eterno estará assegurado. (1 João 1:7; 4:9) Como vimos no Capítulo 14, o resgate é a suprema expressão do amor e da justiça de Jeová. Em vista disso, qual deveria ser nossa atitude?

[3] Nada mais apropriado do que analisarmos o que nosso amoroso Resgatador pede que façamos em troca. Por meio do profeta Miqueias, Jeová diz: “Ele te informou, ó homem terreno, sobre o que é bom. E o que é que Jeová pede de volta de ti senão que exerças a justiça, e ames a benignidade, e andes modestamente com o teu Deus?” (Miqueias 6:8) Note que uma das coisas que Jeová nos pede é que ‘exerçamos a justiça’. Como podemos fazer isso?

Empenhe-se pela “verdadeira justiça”

[4] Jeová espera que sigamos suas normas do que é certo e do que é errado. Visto que elas são justas, quando as obedecemos estamos nos empenhando pela justiça. “Aprendei a fazer o bem; buscai a justiça”, diz Isaías 1:17. A Palavra de Deus nos incentiva a ‘procurar a justiça’. (Sofonias 2:3) Ela também nos encoraja a nos revestirmos “da nova personalidade, que foi criada segundo a vontade de Deus, em verdadeira justiça”. (Efésios 4:24) A verdadeira justiça não admite a violência, a impureza e a imoralidade, visto que essas práticas violam o que é santo. — Salmo 11:5; Efésios 5:3-5.

[5] É difícil demais para nós nos harmonizarmos com as normas justas de Jeová? Não. Se estivermos achegados a Deus de coração, não consideraremos a vontade

4. Como sabemos que Jeová espera que vivamos em harmonia com suas normas justas?

5, 6. (a) Por que não deve ser difícil demais para nós nos harmonizarmos com as normas de Jeová? (b) Como a Bíblia indica que se empenhar pela justiça é um processo contínuo?

Dele um fardo. Visto que amamos o tipo de pessoa que nosso Criador é, queremos levar a vida de um modo que o agrade. (1 João 5:3) Lembre-se de que Jeová "deveras ama atos justos". (Salmo 11:7) Se realmente imitarmos a justiça divina, nos esforçaremos a amar o que Jeová ama e odiar o que ele odeia. — Salmo 97:10.

6 Para humanos imperfeitos, não é fácil empenhar-se pela justiça. Temos de nos livrar da velha personalidade com suas práticas pecaminosas e nos revestir duma nova, que, segundo a Bíblia, está "sendo renovada" por meio do conhecimento exato. (Colossenses 3:9, 10) A expressão "sendo renovada" indica que revestir-se da nova personalidade é um processo contínuo, que exige bastante esforço. Mas, não importa quanto tentemos fazer o que é direito, haverá ocasiões em que nossa natureza imperfeita nos fará tropeçar em pensamento, palavras ou ações. — Romanos 7:14-20; Tiago 3:2.

7 Ao nos empenharmos pela justiça, como devemos encarar nossas recaídas? É claro que não devemos minimizar a seriedade do pecado. Ao mesmo tempo, jamais devemos desistir, achando que nossas falhas nos tornam indignos de servir a Jeová. Nosso Deus bondoso tomou providências para que os sinceramente arrependidos voltem a ter o Seu favor. Note estas palavras tranquilizadoras do apóstolo João: "Escrevo-vos estas coisas para que não cometais um pecado." Mas daí, de forma bem realista, ele acrescentou: "Contudo, se alguém cometer um pecado [por causa da imperfeição herdada], temos um ajudador junto ao Pai, Jesus Cristo." (1 João 2:1) De modo que Jeová forneceu o sacrifício resgatador de Jesus para que pudéssemos servir-lhe aceitavelmente apesar de nossa natureza pecaminosa. Isso nos motiva a querer fazer o melhor para agradar a Jeová, não é verdade?

As boas novas e a justiça divina

[8] Podemos exercer — ou melhor, imitar — a justiça divina participando plenamente na pregação das boas novas do Reino de Deus a outros. Mas que relação existe entre a justiça de Jeová e as boas novas?

[9] Jeová não acabará com este sistema perverso sem antes dar o aviso. Na sua profecia sobre o que aconteceria no tempo do fim, Jesus disse: "Em todas as nações têm de ser pregadas primeiro as boas novas." (Marcos 13:10; Mateus 24:3) O uso da palavra "primeiro" indica que outros eventos se seguiriam à obra de pregação mundial. Esses incluem a predita grande tribulação, na qual os perversos serão destruídos, abrindo caminho para um novo mundo justo. (Mateus 24:14, 21, 22) Com certeza, ninguém pode acusar a Jeová de ser injusto para com os perversos. Ele soa o aviso e, assim, dá toda a oportunidade para que mudem de vida e escapem da destruição. — Jonas 3:1-10.

10 Como a nossa pregação das boas novas reflete a justiça divina? Em primeiro lugar, nos empenharmos ao máximo para ajudar outros a ganhar a salvação é a coisa certa a fazer. Pense novamente na ilustração sobre ser resgatado dum navio que está afundando. Quando estivesse seguro num bote salva-vidas, você sem dúvida tentaria ajudar outros que ainda estivessem na água. De modo similar, temos uma obrigação para com os que ainda estão se debatendo nas "águas" deste mundo perverso. É verdade que muitos rejeitam a nossa mensagem. Mas, enquanto Jeová continuar a demonstrar paciência, temos a responsabilidade de dar-lhes a oportunidade de 'alcançar o arrependimento' e de se candidatar à salvação. — 2 Pedro 3:9.

11 Quando pregamos as boas novas a todos os que encontramos, demonstramos justiça de outro modo importante: mostramos imparcialidade. Lembre-se de que "Deus não é parcial, mas, em cada nação, o homem que o teme e que faz a justiça lhe é aceitável". (Atos 10:34, 35) Se queremos imitar a justiça dele, não podemos prejulgar as pessoas. Antes, devemos transmitir as boas novas a outros não importa qual seja sua raça, posição social ou situação financeira. Assim, damos a todos os que nos escutam a oportunidade de ouvir as boas novas e reagir a elas. — Romanos 10:11-13.

Nosso modo de tratar outros

[12] Também podemos exercer justiça tratando outros como Jeová nos trata. É muito fácil julgar alguém, criticando seus defeitos e questionando suas motivações. Mas quem de nós gostaria que Jeová inspecionasse impiedosamente todas as nossas motivações e falhas? Não é assim que ele lida conosco. O salmista perguntou: "Se vigiasses os erros, ó Jah, ó Jeová, quem poderia ficar de pé?" (Salmo 130:3) Não somos gratos de que nosso Deus justo e misericordioso prefere não se concentrar nos nossos defeitos? (Salmo 103:8-10) Como, então, devemos tratar outros?

[13] Se compreendermos a natureza misericordiosa da justiça divina, não vamos nos apressar a julgar outros em questões que, na verdade, não nos competem ou que são de pouca importância. No seu Sermão do Monte, Jesus avisou: "Parai de julgar, para que não sejais julgados." (Mateus 7:1) Segundo o relato de Lucas, Jesus acrescentou: "Parai de condenar, e de modo algum sereis condenados."* (Lucas 6:37) Com essas palavras, Jesus demonstrou que se apercebia que humanos imperfeitos têm a tendência de julgar outros. Se algum de seus ouvintes tinha esse hábito, deveria parar com isso.

14 Por que devemos 'parar de julgar' outros? Primeiro, porque nossa autoridade é limitada. O discípulo Tiago nos lembra: "Há um que é legislador e juiz": Jeová. De modo que ele apropriadamente pergunta: "Quem és tu para julgares o teu próximo?" (Tiago 4:12; Romanos 14:1-4) Além disso, nossa natureza pecaminosa pode facilmente nos levar a sermos injustos no julgamento. Muitas atitudes e motivações — incluindo preconceito, orgulho ferido, ciúme e achar-nos jus-

* Algumas traduções dizem "não julguem" e "não condenem". Essas expressões transmitem a ideia de que 'não se deve começar a julgar' e 'não se deve começar a condenar'. Mas os escritores bíblicos usaram a forma negativa do tempo presente (contínuo). De modo que as ações descritas estavam acontecendo naquele momento, mas deviam cessar.

14. Por que razões devemos 'parar de julgar' outros?

tos — podem distorcer o modo como encaramos outras pessoas. Temos outras limitações e, se refletirmos nelas, isso nos ajudará a tolerar os defeitos de outros. Não podemos ler o coração, nem temos como saber de todas as circunstâncias que outros enfrentam. Quem somos nós, então, para atribuir motivações erradas a concrentes ou criticar os esforços deles ao servir a Deus? É muito melhor imitarmos a Jeová olhando o que nossos irmãos têm de bom, em vez de nos concentrarmos nas falhas deles.

15 E os membros da nossa família? Infelizmente, hoje em dia o lar — que deveria ser um lugar de refúgio e paz — muitas vezes é onde as pessoas são mais duramente julgadas. Com frequência, ouvimos falar de maridos, esposas ou pais que "sentenciam" seus familiares a uma saraivada constante de abusos verbais ou físicos. Mas entre os adoradores de Deus não há lugar para palavras duras, sarcasmo cruel e tratamento abusivo. (Efésios 4:29, 31; 5:33; 6:4) O conselho de Jesus de 'parar de julgar' e 'parar de condenar' se aplica mesmo quando estamos em casa. Lembre-se de que exercer a justiça envolve tratar os outros como Jeová nos trata. E nosso Deus nunca é duro ou cruel ao lidar conosco. Pelo contrário, ele "é mui terno em afeição" para com os que o amam. (Tiago 5:11) Que exemplo maravilhoso para imitarmos!

Anciãos que servem "para o próprio juízo"

[16] Todos temos de exercer justiça, mas quem tem a maior responsabilidade nesse sentido são os anciãos da congregação cristã verdadeira. Note a descrição profética dos "príncipes", ou anciãos, registrada por Isaías: "Eis que um rei reinará para a própria justiça; e quanto a príncipes, governarão como príncipes para o próprio juízo." (Isaías 32:1) De fato, Jeová espera que os anciãos defendam a justiça. Como podem fazer isso?

[17] Esses homens espiritualmente qualificados sabem muito bem que a justiça exige que a congregação seja mantida limpa. Às vezes, surge a necessidade de julgarem casos de transgressão grave. Ao fazer isso, lembram-se de que a justiça divina procura estender misericórdia quando possível. Assim, procuram conduzir o pecador ao arrependimento. Mas o que fazer se ele deixa de demonstrar arrependimento genuíno, apesar dos esforços de ajudá-lo? Em perfeita justiça, a Palavra de

16, 17. (a) O que Jeová espera dos anciãos? (b) O que é preciso fazer quando um pecador deixa de demonstrar arrependimento genuíno, e por quê?

Jeová diz que se deve tomar uma atitude firme: "Removei o homem iníquo de entre vós." Isso quer dizer expulsá-lo da congregação. (1 Coríntios 5:11-13; 2 João 9-11) Os anciãos ficam tristes quando têm de tomar essa ação, mas reconhecem que isso é necessário a fim de proteger a pureza moral e espiritual da congregação. Mesmo depois disso, esperam que, algum dia, o pecador caia em si e volte à congregação. — Lucas 15:17, 18.

[18] Servir aos interesses da justiça também envolve dar conselhos bíblicos quando necessário. É claro que os anciãos não procuram defeitos nos outros. Nem ficam dando conselho sobre cada coisinha. Mas um concristão talvez "dê um passo em falso antes de se aperceber disso". Lembrando-se de que a justiça divina não é cruel nem insensível, os anciãos se sentem motivados a tentar "reajustar tal homem num espírito de brandura". (Gálatas 6:1) Assim, não seria correto que eles insultassem a pessoa que errou ou falassem com ela de forma grosseira. O que encoraja o aconselhado são conselhos amorosos. Mesmo quando dão repreensão pertinente — indicando de forma bem direta as consequências de um proceder imprudente —, os anciãos têm em mente que um concristão que errou é uma ovelha do rebanho de Jeová.* (Lucas 15:7) Quando fica óbvio que o conselho ou a repreensão são motivados por amor e dados de forma amorosa, é mais provável que o transgressor mude de atitude.

18. De que os anciãos devem se lembrar ao dar conselhos bíblicos a outros?

[19] Muitas vezes, os anciãos precisam tomar decisões que afetam a vida de concrentes. Por exemplo, eles se reúnem periodicamente para avaliar se outros irmãos na congregação se qualificam para serem recomendados como anciãos ou servos ministeriais. Os anciãos sabem que é importante ser imparcial. Em vez de confiar em sentimentos pessoais, deixam que os requisitos de Deus para essas designações os orientem nas suas decisões. Assim, agem "sem preconceito, não fazendo nada por parcialidade". — 1 Timóteo 5:21.

[20] Os anciãos administram a justiça divina ainda de outras maneiras. Depois de predizer que eles serviriam "para o próprio juízo", Isaías continuou: "Cada

* Em 2 Timóteo 4:2, a Bíblia diz que os anciãos às vezes têm de 'repreender, advertir, exortar'. A palavra grega traduzida 'exortar' (pa·ra·ka·lé·o) pode significar "encorajar". Uma palavra derivada, pa·rá·kle·tos, pode se referir a um assistente legal ou advogado. Assim, mesmo quando os anciãos dão repreensão firme, devem agir como ajudadores dos que precisam de orientação espiritual.

19. Que decisões os anciãos precisam tomar, e em que eles devem se basear?

Perguntas para Meditação

Deuteronômio 1:16, 17 O que Jeová exigia dos juízes em Israel e o que os anciãos aprendem disso?

Jeremias 22:13-17 Jeová adverte contra que práticas injustas e o que é essencial para imitarmos a justiça dele?

Mateus 7:2-5 Por que não devemos nos apressar em procurar defeitos nos nossos concrentes?

Tiago 2:1-9 O que Jeová acha de se mostrar favoritismo e como podemos aplicar esse conselho nos nossos tratos com outros?

um deles terá de mostrar ser como abrigo contra o vento e como esconderijo contra o temporal, como correntes de água numa terra árida, como a sombra dum pesado rochedo numa terra esgotada." (Isaías 32:2) Assim, os anciãos se esforçam a ser fontes de consolo e revigoramento para seus concrentes.

[21] Hoje, com tantos problemas que tendem a causar desânimo, muitos precisam de encorajamento. Anciãos, o que podem fazer para ajudar as "almas deprimidas"? (1 Tessalonicenses 5:14) Escutem-nas com empatia. (Tiago 1:19) Devido à "ansiedade no coração", talvez esses irmãos precisem desabafar com alguém em quem confiam. (Provérbios 12:25) Assegurem-lhes de que são queridos, valiosos e amados — tanto por Jeová como pelos irmãos. (1 Pedro 1:22; 5:6, 7) Além disso, orem com eles e a favor deles. É muito consolador ouvir um ancião orar de coração a nosso favor. (Tiago 5:14, 15) Seus esforços amorosos de ajudar os deprimidos não passarão despercebidos ao Deus de justiça.

[22] Na verdade, quando imitamos a justiça de Jeová, nos achegamos cada vez mais a ele. Quando defendemos suas normas justas, participamos em transmitir as boas novas de salvação a outros e procuramos nos concentrar nas boas qualidades das pessoas, em vez de procurar seus defeitos, estamos demonstrando justiça divina. Anciãos, quando vocês protegem a pureza da congregação, dão conselhos bíblicos edificantes, tomam decisões imparciais e encorajam os desanimados, refletem a justiça divina. Como o coração de Jeová deve ficar feliz quando ele olha desde os céus e observa que o seu povo procura, da melhor maneira possível, 'exercer a justiça' ao andar com seu Deus!

“SÁBIO DE CORAÇÃO”

A sabedoria genuína é um dos tesouros mais preciosos que se pode desejar. Jeová é a única fonte dela. Nesta seção, vamos analisar de perto a sabedoria ilimitada de Jeová Deus. Sobre ele, o fiel Jó disse: “Ele é sábio de coração.” — Jó 9:4.

‘Ó profundidade da sabedoria de Deus!’

QUE pena! O sexto dia criativo de Deus havia atingido seu ponto culminante com a criação da humanidade. Jeová dissera, então, que “tudo o que tinha feito” — incluindo os humanos — “era muito bom”. (Gênesis 1:31) Mas, no início do sétimo dia, Adão e Eva decidiram se juntar à rebelião de Satanás. A raça humana de repente se viu atolada no pecado, na imperfeição e na morte.

ções sobre algo maravilhoso: seu propósito de corrigir todos os males que surgiriam em resultado daquela rebelião. (Gênesis 3:15) O propósito de Jeová estende-se desde o Éden, passando por todos os milhares de anos da História humana e avança para o futuro. É maravilhosamente simples, mas tão profundo que um leitor da Bíblia poderia passar uma vida inteira estudando-o e meditando nele. Além disso, o propósito de Jeová tem êxito garantido. Resultará no fim de toda a maldade, pecado e morte. Levará a humanidade fiel à perfeição. Tudo isso se dará antes do fim do sétimo dia, de modo que, apesar de tudo, Jeová cumprirá seu propósito para a Terra e a humanidade bem dentro do cronograma.

4 Não fica admirado com essa demonstração de sabedoria? O apóstolo Paulo sentiu-se motivado a escrever: 'Ó profundidade da sabedoria de Deus!' (Romanos 11:33) À medida que estudarmos várias facetas dessa qualidade divina, não se esqueça do seguinte: na melhor das hipóteses, só conseguiremos arranhar a superfície da profunda sabedoria de Jeová. (Jó 26:14) Mas, primeiro, vamos definir o que é essa qualidade admirável.

O que é a sabedoria divina?

5 Sabedoria não é a mesma coisa que conhecimento.

5, 6. Qual é a relação entre conhecimento e sabedoria e qual é o alcance do conhecimento de Jeová?

Os computadores podem armazenar enormes quantidades de conhecimento, mas dificilmente alguém os consideraria máquinas sábias. Contudo, o conhecimento e a sabedoria estão relacionados. (Provérbios 10:14) Por exemplo, se precisasse de conselho sábio sobre um problema de saúde, consultaria alguém com pouco ou sem nenhum conhecimento de medicina? É pouco provável! De modo que o conhecimento exato é essencial para a verdadeira sabedoria.

[6] O conhecimento de Jeová é infinito. Como "Rei da eternidade", somente ele é eterno. (Revelação [Apocalipse] 15:3) E durante todas as incontáveis eras, ele sempre soube de tudo. A Bíblia diz: "Não há criação que não esteja manifesta à sua vista, mas todas as coisas estão nuas e abertamente expostas aos olhos daquele com quem temos uma prestação de contas." (Hebreus 4:13; Provérbios 15:3) Como Criador, Jeová entende plenamente tudo o que fez e tem observado as atividades humanas desde o início. Ele examina o coração humano; nada lhe escapa. (1 Crônicas 28:9) Visto que nos criou com livre-arbítrio, fica feliz quando nos vê fazer escolhas sábias na vida. Como "Ouvinte de oração", ele escuta inúmeras expressões ao mesmo tempo! (Salmo 65:2) E nem é preciso mencionar que a memória de Jeová é perfeita.

[7] Porém, Jeová tem mais do que conhecimento. Ele também entende a inter-relação dos fatos e tem a visão geral dos assuntos, levando em consideração incontáveis detalhes. Ele avalia e julga, distinguindo entre o que é bom e o que é mau, o importante e o trivial. Além disso, ele olha mais fundo; examina o coração. (1 Samuel 16:7) Assim, Jeová tem entendimento e discernimento, qualidades superiores ao conhecimento. Mas a sabedoria é superior a todas essas.

7, 8. Como Jeová demonstra entendimento, discernimento e sabedoria?

Indícios da sabedoria divina

[9] Já ficou impressionado com o talento de um artesão que, de forma habilidosa, produz objetos lindos que funcionam bem? Esse é um tipo notável de sabedoria. (Êxodo 31:1-3) O próprio Jeová é a fonte e o maior detentor dessa sabedoria. Sobre ele, o Rei Davi disse: "Elogiar-te-ei porque fui feito maravilhosamente, dum modo atemorizante. Teus trabalhos são maravilhosos, de que minha alma está bem apercebida." (Salmo 139:14) De fato, quanto mais aprendemos sobre o corpo humano, mais nos maravilhamos da sabedoria de Jeová.

[10] Para ilustrar: quando sua vida começou, você era uma única célula — um óvulo de sua mãe, fertilizado por um espermatozoide do seu pai. Logo, aquela célula começou a se dividir. Você, o produto final, tem uns 100 trilhões de células. Elas são minúsculas. Na cabeça de um alfinete cabem cerca de 10 mil células de tamanho médio. Mas cada uma delas é uma criação tão complexa que nos deixa pasmados. A célula é muito mais intrincada do que qualquer máquina ou fábrica humana. Os cientistas comparam-na a uma cidade murada: tem entradas e saídas vigiadas, sistema de transporte, rede de comunicações, usinas de energia, fábricas, centrais de tratamento de lixo e reciclagem, órgãos de defesa e até uma espécie de governo central no núcleo. Além disso, a célula pode fazer uma cópia completa de si mesma em poucas horas!

[11] Naturalmente, nem todas as células são iguais. À medida que as células do embrião vão se dividindo, elas assumem funções bem distintas. Algumas se tornarão células nervosas; outras, células ósseas, musculares, sanguíneas ou oculares. Toda essa diferenciação está programada no “arquivo” de plantas genéticas da célula: o DNA. O interessante é que Davi foi inspirado a dizer sobre Jeová: “Teus olhos viram até mesmo meu embrião, e todas as suas partes estavam assentadas por escrito no teu livro.” — Salmo 139:16.

[12] Alguns órgãos do corpo são extremamente complexos. Um exemplo disso é o cérebro humano. Alguns o chamam de o mais complexo objeto já descoberto no Universo. Contém cerca de 100 bilhões de células nervosas; nossa galáxia tem mais ou menos a mesma quantidade de estrelas. Cada uma dessas células se ramifica, estabelecendo milhares de conexões com outras células. Os cientistas dizem que um cérebro humano poderia conter as informações de todas as bibliotecas do mundo e que, de fato, talvez seja impossível medir sua capacidade de armazenamento. Já faz décadas que os cientistas estudam esse órgão que foi "feito maravilhosamente", mas admitem que talvez nunca consigam entender totalmente como ele funciona.

[13] Os humanos, porém, são apenas um exemplo da sabedoria criativa de Jeová. O Salmo 104:24 diz: "Quantos são os teus trabalhos, ó Jeová! A todos eles fizeste em sabedoria. A terra está cheia das tuas produções." A sabedoria de Jeová é evidente em todas as criações que nos rodeiam. As formigas, por exemplo, são "instintivamente sábias". (Provérbios 30:24) Realmente, os formigueiros são muito bem organizados. Algumas colônias de formigas criam "gado": cuidam, abrigam e se nutrem de insetos chamados afídeos. Há também formigas "agricultoras", que cultivam "plantações" de fungos. Muitas outras criaturas foram programadas com um instinto que lhes permite fazer coisas notáveis. Uma mosca comum realiza feitos aeronáuticos que nem as mais avançadas aeronaves humanas são capazes de imitar. As aves migratórias se guiam pelas estrelas, pelo campo magnético da Terra ou por algum tipo de mapa interno. Os biólogos passam anos estudando os comportamentos sofisticados que foram programados nessas criaturas. Como deve ser sábio, então, o Programador divino!

[14] Os cientistas já aprenderam muita coisa sobre a sabedoria criativa de Jeová. Existe até um ramo da engenharia, chamado biomimética, que procura imitar os projetos encontrados na natureza. Por exemplo, talvez já tenha admirado a beleza de uma teia de aranha. Mas um engenheiro vê nela um projeto espetacular. Alguns desses fios que parecem tão frágeis são, proporcionalmente, mais resistentes do que o aço, mais fortes do que as fibras usadas em coletes à prova de bala. Uma comparação ajuda a entender como são resistentes: imagine uma teia de aranha que fosse ampliada em escala até ficar do tamanho de uma rede usada num barco de pesca. Uma teia dessas proporções conseguiria apanhar um avião de passageiros em pleno voo! De fato, Jeová fez todas as coisas "em sabedoria".

Sabedoria fora da Terra

[15] A sabedoria de Jeová é evidente em suas obras espalhadas por todo o Universo. As estrelas, que já analisamos um pouco no Capítulo 5, não estão espalhadas a esmo pelo espaço. Em sabedoria, Jeová estabeleceu as “leis dos céus”, de modo que o espaço está elegantemente organizado em galáxias estruturadas, agrupadas em aglomerados que, por sua vez, se juntam para formar superaglomerados. (Jó 38:33, A Bíblia de Jerusalém) Não é de admirar que Jeová se refira aos corpos celestes como “exército”. (Isaías 40:26) Mas existe outro exército que comprova de modo ainda mais notável a sabedoria de Jeová.

16 Como vimos no Capítulo 4, Deus tem o título de “Jeová dos exércitos” devido à sua posição como Comandante Supremo de um vasto exército de centenas de milhões de criaturas espirituais. Isso evidencia o poder de Jeová. Mas como a sabedoria está envolvida? Pense no seguinte: Jeová e Jesus nunca ficam desocupados. (João 5:17) A conclusão lógica, portanto, é que os ministros angélicos do Altíssimo também estão sempre atarefados. E lembre-se de que eles são superiores aos humanos, superinteligentes e superpoderosos. (Hebreus 1:7; 2:7) Apesar disso, há bilhões de anos Jeová mantém todos esses anjos ocupados, fazendo alegremente trabalho significativo — “cumprindo a sua palavra” e “fazendo a sua vontade”. (Salmo 103:20, 21) A sabedoria desse Administrador é de fato impressionante!

Jeová é o “único sábio”

[17] Em vista desses indícios, é de admirar que a Bíblia afirme que a sabedoria de Jeová é sem igual? Por exemplo, as Escrituras dizem que Jeová é o “único sábio”. (Romanos 16:27) Somente Ele possui sabedoria no grau absoluto; é a fonte de toda a verdadeira sabedoria. (Provérbios 2:6) É por isso que Jesus, embora fosse a mais sábia das criaturas de Jeová, não confiava na própria sabedoria, mas falava o que o Pai havia mandado. — João 12:48-50.

[18] Note como o apóstolo Paulo descreveu a inigualável sabedoria de Jeová: “Ó profundidade das riquezas, e da sabedoria, e do conhecimento de Deus! Quão inescrutáveis são os seus julgamentos e além de pesquisa são os seus caminhos!” (Romanos 11:33) Note como Paulo iniciou o versículo com a exclamação “Ó”, que revela forte emoção, nesse caso, profunda reverência. O termo grego que ele usou para “profundidade” está diretamente relacionado com a palavra para “abismo”. Podemos, assim, formar uma vívida imagem mental. Quando refletimos na sabedoria de Jeová, é como se olhássemos para dentro de um precipício aparentemente sem fundo, tão profundo e vasto que não podemos sequer imaginar sua imensidão — que dirá avaliar todos os seus detalhes! (Salmo 92:5) Não nos sentimos humildes ao pensar nisso?

17, 18. Por que a Bíblia diz que Jeová é o “único sábio”, e por que sua sabedoria deve nos deixar abismados?

[19] Jeová é o "único sábio" também em outro sentido: somente ele é capaz de ver o futuro. Lembre-se de que Jeová usa a águia como símbolo da sabedoria divina. Uma águia-real pesa apenas uns cinco quilos, mas seus olhos são maiores do que os de um homem adulto. Sua visão é incrivelmente aguçada, permitindo que ela localize pequenas presas mesmo quando está voando a centenas de metros — ou talvez até a quilômetros — do chão! O próprio Jeová certa vez disse o seguinte sobre a águia: "Seus olhos olham para longe." (Jó 39:29) De modo similar, Jeová pode olhar "para longe" no tempo — para o futuro!

19, 20. (a) Por que a águia é um símbolo apropriado da sabedoria divina? (b) Como Jeová demonstrou sua habilidade de ver o futuro?

Perguntas para Meditação

Jó 28:11-28 Qual é o valor da sabedoria divina? Que bom resultado podemos obter se meditarmos nesse assunto?

Salmo 104:1-25 Como a sabedoria de Jeová se manifesta na criação e que sentimentos isso produz em você?

Provérbios 3:19-26 Se meditarmos na sabedoria de Jeová e a pusermos em prática, qual será o efeito na nossa vida diária?

Daniel 2:19-28 Por que Jeová é chamado de Revelador de segredos? Como deveríamos reagir à sabedoria profética encontrada na sua Palavra?

21 Significa isso, porém, que Deus já previu as escolhas que você fará na vida? Aqueles que pregam a doutrina da predestinação insistem em dizer que a resposta é Sim. Mas esse conceito na verdade rebaixa a sabedoria de Jeová, porque dá a entender que ele é incapaz de controlar sua habilidade de ver o futuro. Para ilustrar: digamos que sua voz fosse de uma beleza sem igual. Quer dizer, então, que você não teria escolha a não ser cantar dia e noite? Isso seria um absurdo! De modo similar, Jeová tem a habilidade de predizer o futuro, mas ele não a usa o tempo todo. Se fizesse isso, estaria infringindo nosso livre-arbítrio, uma dádiva preciosa que Jeová nunca revogará. — Deuteronômio 30:19, 20.

[22] O pior é que a ideia da predestinação sugere que a sabedoria de Jeová é fria, desamorosa, insensível ou sem compaixão. Mas isso não é verdade. A Bíblia ensina que Jeová é "sábio de coração". (Jó 9:4) Não que ele tenha um coração literal, mas a Bíblia muitas vezes usa esse termo com relação àquilo que a pessoa tem no íntimo, incluindo suas motivações e sentimentos, como o amor. Assim, a sabedoria de Jeová, como suas outras qualidades, é guiada pelo amor. — 1 João 4:8.

[23] Naturalmente, a sabedoria de Jeová é perfeitamente confiável. É tão superior à nossa sabedoria que a Palavra de Deus nos incentiva amorosamente: "Confia em Jeová de todo o teu coração e não te estribes na tua própria compreensão. Nota-o em todos os teus caminhos, e ele mesmo endireitará as tuas veredas." (Provérbios 3:5, 6) Vamos agora analisar com cuidado a sabedoria de Jeová para que possamos nos achegar mais ao nosso Deus totalmente sábio.

23. A superioridade da sabedoria de Jeová deve nos motivar a fazer o quê?

Sabedoria encontrada na ‘Palavra de Deus’

LEMBRA-SE da última vez que recebeu uma carta de uma pessoa querida, de bem longe? Poucas coisas nos deixam mais contentes do que isso. Ficamos felizes de saber de seu bem-estar, o que tem feito e quais são seus planos. Assim, nos sentimos mais achegados ao remetente da carta, embora fisicamente ele talvez esteja longe.

[2] O que, então, poderia nos dar mais prazer do que receber uma mensagem escrita do Deus que amamos? Jeová, em certo sentido, nos escreveu uma “carta”: sua Palavra, a Bíblia. Nela, ele nos conta quem é, o que fez, o que vai fazer e muito mais. Jeová nos deu sua Palavra porque deseja que nos acheguemos a ele. Nosso Deus sábio escolheu o melhor método possível para se comunicar conosco. O modo em que a Bíblia foi escrita e o seu conteúdo revelam sabedoria incomparável.

Por que uma mensagem escrita?

[3] Alguns se perguntam: ‘Por que Jeová não usou um método mais chamativo — como, por exemplo, uma voz ressoando desde o céu — para se comunicar com o homem?’

1, 2. Que “carta” Jeová nos escreveu e por quê?

3. De que modo Jeová transmitiu a Lei a Moisés?

Para falar a verdade, em algumas ocasiões Jeová se comunicou mesmo desde o céu por meio de representantes angélicos. Fez isso, por exemplo, quando deu a Lei a Israel. (Gálatas 3:19) A voz que ressoou do céu foi assombrosa — tanto que os israelitas apavorados pediram que Jeová não falasse com eles dessa maneira, mas que se comunicasse por meio de Moisés. (Êxodo 20:18-20) Assim, a Lei, que consistia em uns 600 estatutos, foi ditada a Moisés palavra por palavra.

[4] Mas o que provavelmente teria acontecido se aquela Lei nunca tivesse sido colocada por escrito? Acha que Moisés teria se lembrado de todas as palavras daquele código detalhado e as transmitido com exatidão para o restante da nação? E as gerações posteriores? Teriam de se basear apenas em relatos orais? Esse não seria um método muito confiável de se transmitir as leis de Deus. Possivelmente você já brincou de telefone sem fio, um jogo em que a primeira pessoa de uma fila diz uma frase no ouvido de quem está ao seu lado e assim sucessivamente até chegar ao fim da fila. Quando a última pessoa diz o que entendeu, em geral trata-se de algo bem diferente do original. A Lei de Deus não correu o perigo de ser deturpada da mesma maneira. Por quê?

4. Explique por que a transmissão oral não seria um método confiável de preservar as leis de Deus.

[5] Porque, sabiamente, Jeová decidiu que suas palavras fossem escritas. Ele instruiu a Moisés: "Escreve para ti estas palavras, porque é de acordo com estas palavras que deveras concluo um pacto contigo e com Israel." (Êxodo 34:27) Assim, em 1513 AEC, começou o período de escrita da Bíblia. Durante os 1.610 anos que se seguiram, Jeová falou "em muitas ocasiões e de muitos modos" com os cerca de 40 humanos que escreveram a Bíblia. (Hebreus 1:1) Durante esse mesmo período, copistas dedicados cuidadosamente produziram cópias exatas das Escrituras, a fim de preservá-las. — Esdras 7:6; Salmo 45:1.

[6] Sem dúvida, para nós é uma grande bênção o fato de Jeová se comunicar conosco por escrito. Já recebeu uma carta tão especial — talvez porque o consolou numa hora em que você precisava — que você a guardou e releu vez após vez? Isso se dá com a "carta" de Jeová para nós. Visto que ele pôs suas palavras por escrito, podemos lê-las regularmente e meditar no que dizem. (Salmo 1:2) Podemos ter o "consolo das Escrituras" sempre que precisamos. — Romanos 15:4.

Por que usou escritores humanos?

[7] Numa demonstração de sabedoria, Jeová usou

5, 6. Jeová instruiu Moisés a fazer o que com Suas palavras, e por que é uma bênção para nós o fato de termos a Palavra de Jeová por escrito?
7. Por que podemos dizer que foi uma expressão da sabedoria de Jeová usar ele humanos para escrever a Bíblia?

humanos para escrever sua Palavra. Imagine: se Jeová tivesse usado anjos para escrever a Bíblia, será que ela seria tão fascinante? É verdade que os anjos poderiam ter descrito a Jeová do ângulo da sua posição privilegiada, expressado sua devoção a Ele e contado a história de fiéis servos humanos de Deus. Mas será que nos identificaríamos com o ponto de vista de criaturas espirituais perfeitas, cujo conhecimento, experiência e força são muito superiores aos nossos? — Hebreus 2:6, 7.

[8] Ao usar homens como escritores, Jeová nos deu exatamente o que precisávamos: um registro 'inspirado por Deus', mas que ainda assim é profundamente humano. (2 Timóteo 3:16) Como conseguiu essa façanha? Em muitos casos, ele evidentemente permitiu que os escritores usassem suas faculdades mentais para escolher "palavras deleitosas e a escrita de palavras corretas de verdade". (Eclesiastes 12:10, 11) Isso explica a diversidade de estilos encontrados na Bíblia; os escritos refletem a formação e a personalidade de cada escritor.* Mas esses homens "fa-

* Por exemplo, Davi, que havia sido pastor, empregou exemplos tirados da vida no campo. (Salmo 23) Mateus, um ex-cobrador de impostos, fez várias referências a números e valores monetários. (Mateus 17:27; 26:15; 27:3) O médico Lucas usou palavras que refletiam sua formação. — Lucas 4:38; 14:2; 16:20.

8. Até que ponto os escritores bíblicos tiveram permissão de usar suas faculdades mentais? (Veja também a nota.)

laram da parte de Deus conforme eram movidos por espírito santo". (2 Pedro 1:21) De modo que o produto final é, de fato, "a palavra de Deus". — 1 Tessalonicenses 2:13.

[9] Por que a leitura da Bíblia tem um impacto emocional tão forte sobre nós? Porque seus escritores eram homens com sentimentos iguais aos nossos. Sendo imperfeitos, enfrentaram provações e pressões semelhantes às nossas. Em alguns casos, o espírito de Jeová os inspirou a escrever, na primeira pessoa, sobre seus sentimentos e dificuldades pessoais, algo que nenhum anjo poderia ter feito. — 2 Coríntios 12:7-10.

[10] Veja o exemplo do Rei Davi, de Israel. Depois de cometer vários erros graves, ele compôs um salmo em que abria seu coração, implorando o perdão de Deus. Escreveu: "Purifica-me mesmo do meu pecado. Pois eu mesmo conheço as minhas transgressões e meu pecado está constantemente diante de mim. Eis que em erro fui dado à luz com dores de parto, e em pecado me concebeu minha mãe. Não me lances fora de diante da tua face; e não tires de mim o teu espírito santo. Os sacrifícios a Deus são um espírito quebrantado; um coração quebrantado e esmagado não desprezarás, ó Deus." (Salmo 51:2, 3, 5, 9, 10. Por que o fato de Deus ter usado escritores humanos faz com que a Bíblia tenha maior impacto emocional sobre nós?

11, 17) Dá para sentir a angústia do escritor nessas palavras, não é verdade? Quem, além de um homem imperfeito, poderia expressar sentimentos tão sinceros?

Por que um livro sobre pessoas?

[11] Há mais uma coisa que torna a Bíblia fascinante. Na maior parte, trata-se de um livro sobre pessoas reais que serviram, ou não, a Deus. Lemos sobre o que passaram na vida, suas dificuldades e alegrias. Aprendemos sobre o resultado das escolhas que fizeram. Esses relatos foram incluídos na Bíblia "para a nossa instrução". (Romanos 15:4) Por meio desses casos da vida real, Jeová nos ensina de uma maneira que toca o coração. Veja alguns exemplos.

[12] A Bíblia relata o que aconteceu com os infiéis ou perversos. Nesses relatos, vemos qualidades indesejáveis em ação, o que torna mais fácil entendê-las. Por exemplo, consegue pensar em uma maneira melhor de condenar a deslealdade do que descrever o exemplo de Judas ao executar sua conspiração traiçoeira contra Jesus? (Mateus 26:14-16, 46-50; 27:3-10) Relatos como esse tocam mais eficazmente o nosso coração, ajudando-nos a identificar e rejeitar características ruins.

11. Por que se pode dizer que os casos da vida real incluídos na Bíblia são "para a nossa instrução"?
12. De que maneira os relatos bíblicos sobre humanos infiéis são de ajuda para nós?

[13] A Bíblia também descreve muitos servos fiéis de Deus. Lemos sobre sua devoção e lealdade. Podemos observar na prática as qualidades que temos de cultivar a fim de nos achegarmos a Deus. Veja o caso da fé. A Bíblia traz a definição dela e nos diz que ela é essencial para agradarmos a Deus. (Hebreus 11:1, 6) Mas as Escrituras também contêm exemplos significativos de fé em ação. Pense na fé que Abraão demonstrou quando tentou oferecer Isaque. (Gênesis, capítulo 22; Hebreus 11:17-19) Relatos como esse fazem com que a palavra "fé" assuma um sentido totalmente novo e tornam mais fácil entendê-la. Como foi sábio da parte de Jeová não só nos incentivar a cultivar qualidades desejáveis, mas também nos dar exemplos delas em ação!

[14] Os relatos da vida real, encontrados na Bíblia, muitas vezes nos ensinam algo a respeito do tipo de pessoa que Jeová é. Um exemplo é o caso duma mulher que Jesus observou no templo. Enquanto estava sentado perto dos cofres do tesouro, Jesus observava as pessoas colocando suas contribuições. Muitos ricos vinham e davam "dos seus excedentes". Mas Jesus se concentrou numa viúva humilde. Sua dádiva foi "duas pequenas moedas de muito pouco valor".* Era o último dinheirinho que ela possuía. Jesus, que refletia com perfeição o conceito de Jeová sobre os assuntos, disse: "Esta viúva pobre lançou neles mais do que todos estes que lançam dinheiro nos cofres do tesouro." Segundo essas palavras, ela contribuiu mais do que todos os outros juntos. — Marcos 12:41-44; Lucas 21:1-4; João 8:28.

15 Não é significativo que, de todas as pessoas que compareceram ao templo naquele dia, essa viúva tenha sido escolhida para ser mencionada na Bíblia? Por meio desse exemplo, Jeová nos ensina que ele é um Deus apreciativo. Ele fica contente de receber nossas dádivas de toda a alma, não importa o valor delas em comparação com o que outros possam dar. Jeová não poderia ter achado uma maneira melhor de nos ensinar essa verdade comovente!

O que a Bíblia não contém

16 Quando resolve escrever uma carta para um amigo ou parente, você tem de usar de bom-senso e decidir o que vai incluir nela; ela precisa ter um limite. De modo similar, Jeová decidiu mencionar determinadas pessoas ou

* Cada moeda dessas era um lépton, a menor moeda judaica em circulação naquele tempo. Dois léptons equivaliam a 1/64 do salário de um dia. Essas duas moedinhas não eram suficientes nem para comprar um único pardal, a ave mais barata usada como alimento pelos pobres.

acontecimentos na sua Palavra. Mas a Bíblia nem sempre dá todos os detalhes desses relatos descritivos. (João 21:25) Por exemplo, quando se mencionam os julgamentos de Deus, nem sempre as informações fornecidas na Bíblia são suficientes para responder a todas as perguntas que possamos ter. A sabedoria de Jeová fica evidente até naquilo que ele decidiu não incluir na sua Palavra. Como assim?

[17] O modo em que a Bíblia foi escrita serve para testar o que temos no coração. Hebreus 4:12 diz: "A palavra [ou, mensagem] de Deus é viva e exerce poder, e é mais afiada do que qualquer espada de dois gumes, e penetra até a divisão da alma e do espírito . . . e é capaz de discernir os pensamentos e as intenções do coração." A mensagem da Bíblia penetra fundo, revelando nossos verdadeiros raciocínios e motivações. Aqueles que a leem com olho crítico muitas vezes ficam perplexos, porque se deparam com relatos que não contêm todas as informações que os satisfariam. Essas pessoas talvez até questionem se, de fato, Jeová é amoroso, sábio e justo.

[18] Em contraste, quando estudamos cuidadosamente a Bíblia com coração sincero, passamos a conhecer a Jeová no contexto em que a sua Palavra o apresenta. Assim, não ficamos perturbados se determinado relato levanta algumas questões para as quais não encontramos respostas imediatas. Para ilustrar: se estiver montando um grande quebra-cabeça, talvez de início você não consiga encontrar determinada peça ou não entenda como uma peça se encaixa. Mas talvez já tenha juntado peças suficientes para entender qual é a aparência geral do quadro. De modo similar, quando estudamos a Bíblia, pouco a pouco aprendemos sobre o tipo de Deus que Jeová é e formamos um quadro mental dele. Mesmo que, de início, não entendamos certo relato nem percebamos como ele se encaixa na personalidade do Criador, nosso estudo da Bíblia já nos ensinou mais do que o suficiente sobre Jeová para sabermos que ele é um Deus infalivelmente amoroso, imparcial e justo.

18, 19. (a) Por que não devemos nos sentir perturbados se determinado relato bíblico levantar questões para as quais não encontramos respostas imediatas? (b) O que é preciso para entender a Palavra de Deus, e como isso é uma evidência da grande sabedoria de Jeová?

19 Assim, para entender a Palavra de Deus, devemos lê-la e estudá-la com coração sincero e mente aberta. Não é essa uma evidência da grande sabedoria de Jeová? Homens inteligentes são capazes de escrever livros que somente os 'sábios e os intelectuais' conseguem entender. Mas para escrever um livro que só pode ser entendido por aqueles que têm a correta motivação de coração é preciso sabedoria divina! — Mateus 11:25.

Um livro de "sabedoria prática"

[20] Na sua Palavra, Jeová nos ensina qual é o melhor modo de vida. Como nosso Criador, ele conhece nossas necessidades melhor do que nós mesmos. E as necessidades humanas básicas — incluindo o desejo de ser amado e feliz, e de ter relacionamentos bem-sucedidos — ainda são as mesmas. A Bíblia contém muita "sabedoria prática" que pode nos ajudar a ter uma vida significativa. (Provérbios 2:7) Cada seção deste livro contém um capítulo que mostra como aplicar o conselho sábio da Bíblia, mas vejamos só um exemplo.

[21] Já notou que as pessoas que guardam rancor ou ressentimento muitas vezes acabam magoando a si mesmas? O ressentimento é um fardo muito pesado para carregar. Quando o nutrimos, ele absorve os pensamentos, tira nossa paz e sufoca a alegria. Estudos científicos indicam que alimentar a raiva pode aumentar o risco de doenças cardíacas e muitas outras doenças crônicas. Bem antes desses estudos científicos, porém, a Bíblia já dizia sabiamente: "Larga a ira e abandona o furor." (Salmo 37:8) Mas como podemos fazer isso?

1 Coríntios 10:6-12 O que podemos aprender dos exemplos de aviso, envolvendo Israel, que encontramos na Bíblia?

22 A Palavra de Deus dá o seguinte conselho prudente: "A perspicácia do homem certamente torna mais vagarosa a sua ira, e é beleza da sua parte passar por alto a transgressão." (Provérbios 19:11) Perspicácia é a habilidade de ver abaixo da superfície, de ver além do óbvio. A perspicácia resulta em compreensão, porque nos ajuda a discernir por que a outra pessoa falou ou agiu de determinada maneira. Se nos esforçarmos a entender suas verdadeiras motivações, sentimentos e circunstâncias, isso nos ajudará a deixar de lado pensamentos e sentimentos negativos para com ela.

23 A Bíblia traz outro conselho: "Continuai a suportar-vos uns aos outros e a perdoar-vos uns aos outros liberalmente." (Colossenses 3:13) A expressão "continuai a suportar-vos uns aos outros" indica que se deve ter pa-ciência, tolerando algumas características das outras pessoas que talvez achemos irritantes. Essa longanimidade nos ajudará a evitar guardar rancor por coisinhas sem importância. “Perdoar” transmite a ideia de cessar de ter ressentimento. Nosso Deus sabe que precisamos perdoar outros quando há base sólida para isso. Não se trata de algo proveitoso apenas para a outra pessoa, mas também preserva nossa própria paz mental e de coração. (Lucas 17:3, 4) Quanta sabedoria encontramos na Palavra de Deus!

24 Devido ao seu amor ilimitado, Jeová quis se comunicar conosco. Ele escolheu o melhor método possível: uma “carta” escrita por homens sob a orientação do espírito santo. Em resultado disso, encontramos nas páginas dela a sabedoria do próprio Jeová. Trata-se de sabedoria ‘mui fidedigna’. (Salmo 93:5) Quando harmonizamos nossa vida com ela e a transmitimos a outros, nos achegamos naturalmente ao nosso Deus sábio. No próximo capítulo, analisaremos outro exemplo notável da sabedoria de Jeová: sua habilidade de prever o futuro e de cumprir seus propósitos.

"A sabedoria de Deus em segredo sagrado"

SEGREDOS! Por que é tão difícil guardá-los? Talvez tenha algo que ver com sua aura de mistério que nos deixa intrigados e fascinados. Mas a Bíblia diz: "A glória de Deus é manter um assunto em segredo." (Provérbios 25:2) De modo que, como Governante Supremo e Criador, Jeová mantém algumas coisas em segredo até que chegue o Seu tempo devido para revelá-las à humanidade.

[2] Mas há um segredo fascinante e intrigante que Jeová revelou na sua Palavra. É chamado de 'o segredo sagrado da vontade de Deus'. (Efésios 1:9) Se o conhecermos, além de satisfazer a curiosidade, nos candidataremos a obter a salvação e entenderemos um pouco mais a imensurável sabedoria de Jeová.

Revelado progressivamente

[3] Quando Adão e Eva pecaram, talvez parecesse que o propósito de Jeová de ter um paraíso na Terra, povoado por humanos perfeitos, havia sido frustrado. Mas Deus imediatamente atacou o problema. Ele disse: "Porei inimizade entre ti [a serpente] e a mulher, e entre o teu descendente e o seu descendente. Ele te machucará a cabeça e tu lhe machucarás o calcanhar." — Gênesis 3:15.

[4] Que palavras intrigantes e misteriosas! Quem era a mulher? a serpente? e o "descendente" que machucaria a cabeça da serpente? O casal infiel (Adão e Eva) não tinha como saber. Mas as palavras de Deus dariam esperança aos descendentes deles que se mostrassem fiéis. A justiça haveria de triunfar. O propósito de Jeová seria realizado. Mas como? Ah! Isso era um mistério. A Bíblia o chama de "a sabedoria de Deus em segredo sagrado, a sabedoria escondida". — 1 Coríntios 2:7.

[5] Como "Revelador de segredos", Jeová com o tempo divulgaria detalhes pertinentes sobre o desfecho desse segredo. (Daniel 2:28) Mas faria isso gradativamente, aos poucos. Para ilustrar, pense na resposta que um pai amoroso dá quando o filhinho pergunta: "Pai, de onde eu vim?" Se for sensato, o pai só dará as informações que o menino tem condições de entender. À medida que ele for crescendo, o pai explicará mais detalhes. De modo similar, Jeová determina quando seu povo está preparado para receber revelações adicionais de sua vontade e propósito. — Provérbios 4:18; Daniel 12:4.

5. Ilustre por que Jeová revelou seu segredo aos poucos.

[6] Como Jeová fez essas revelações? Ele usou uma série de pactos, ou contratos, que revelavam muitos detalhes. Possivelmente você já assinou um contrato: ao comprar uma casa, ao fazer um empréstimo ou ao emprestar dinheiro a alguém. Um contrato é uma garantia legal de que os termos dum acordo serão cumpridos. Mas por que Jeová precisava fazer pactos, ou contratos, formais com o homem? Naturalmente, Sua palavra é garantia suficiente de que ele cumprirá Suas promessas. Mesmo assim, em várias ocasiões, Deus bondosamente reforçou a validade da sua palavra fazendo contratos legais. Esses acordos invioláveis dão a nós, humanos imperfeitos, uma base ainda mais sólida para confiar nas promessas de Jeová. — Hebreus 6:16-18.

O pacto com Abraão

[7] Mais de 2 mil anos depois de o homem ter sido expulso do Paraíso, Jeová disse a seu servo fiel Abraão: "Seguramente multiplicarei o teu descendente como as estrelas dos céus . . . e todas as nações da terra hão de abençoar a si mesmas por meio de teu descendente, pelo fato de que escutaste a minha voz." (Gênesis 22:17, 18) Isso não era apenas uma promessa; Jeová formulou-a como um pacto legal e confirmou-a com um juramento imutável. (Gênesis 17:1, 2; Hebreus 6:13-15) Que fato notável! O Soberano Senhor fez um contrato para abençoar a humanidade.

[8] O pacto abraâmico revelou que o Descendente prometido viria como humano, pois descenderia de Abraão. Mas quem seria? Com o tempo Jeová revelou que, dos filhos de Abraão, Isaque seria antepassado do Descendente. Entre os dois filhos de Isaque, Jacó foi escolhido. (Gênesis 21:12; 28:13, 14) Mais tarde, Jacó disse as seguintes palavras proféticas a respeito de um de seus 12 filhos: "O cetro não se afastará de Judá, nem o bastão de comandante de entre os seus pés, até que venha Siló ["Aquele a Quem Pertence"]; e a ele pertencerá a obediência dos povos." (Gênesis 49:10) A partir daí, soube-se que o Descendente seria um rei e que Judá seria seu ancestral.

O pacto com Israel

[9] Em 1513 AEC, Jeová concluiu um pacto com os descendentes de Abraão, a nação de Israel. Isso preparou o caminho para novas revelações a respeito do segredo sagrado. Embora não esteja mais em vigor hoje, o pacto da Lei mosaica era parte essencial do propósito de Jeová de produzir o Descendente prometido. Como? De três modos. Primeiro, a Lei era como um muro de proteção. (Efésios 2:14) Seus estatutos justos serviam como barreira entre judeus e gentios. Assim, ajudou a preservar a linhagem do Descendente prometido. Em grande parte por causa dessa proteção, a nação ainda existia quando chegou o tempo devido de Deus para que o Messias nascesse na tribo de Judá.

10 Segundo, a Lei, que era perfeita, demonstrou que a humanidade precisava mesmo do resgate, pois o homem imperfeito era incapaz de cumprir todos os seus requisitos. Assim, ela serviu para "tornar manifestas as transgressões, até que chegasse o descendente a quem se fizera a promessa". (Gálatas 3:19) Por meio de sacrifícios de animais, a Lei oferecia expiação provisória dos pecados. Mas visto que, como Paulo escreveu, "não é possível que o sangue de touros e de bodes tire pecados", essas ofertas só prefiguravam o sacrifício de resgate de Cristo. (Hebreus 10:1-4) De modo que, para os judeus fiéis, aquele pacto se tornou um "tutor, conduzindo a Cristo". — Gálatas 3:24.

[11] Terceiro, o pacto da Lei deu à nação de Israel uma perspectiva maravilhosa: tornar-se “um reino de sacerdotes e uma nação santa”. Mas Jeová lhes disse que isso só aconteceria se eles fossem fiéis àquele contrato. (Êxodo 19:5, 6) E, de fato, com o tempo, o Israel carnal acabou fornecendo os primeiros membros de um reino celestial de sacerdotes. Mas, como um todo, aquela nação se rebelou contra o pacto da Lei, rejeitou o Descendente messiânico e perdeu essa oportunidade. Quem, então, completaria o reino de sacerdotes? E que relação teria aquela nação abençoada com o Descendente prometido? Esses aspectos do segredo sagrado seriam revelados no tempo devido de Deus.

O pacto davídico do Reino

[12] No século 11 AEC, Jeová esclareceu mais detalhes sobre o segredo sagrado quando fez outro pacto. Ele prometeu ao fiel Rei Davi: “Hei de suscitar o teu descendente depois de ti, . . . e deveras estabelecerei firmemente o seu reino. . . . Eu hei de estabelecer firmemente o trono do seu reino por tempo indefinido.” (2 Samuel 7:12, 13; Salmo 89:3) Com isso, a linhagem do Descendente prometido ficava restrita à família de Davi. Mas será que um simples governante humano poderia reinar "por tempo indefinido"? (Salmo 89:20, 29, 34-36) E poderia esse rei humano resgatar a humanidade do pecado e da morte?

12. Que pacto Jeová fez com Davi e que detalhe sobre o segredo sagrado isso ajudou a esclarecer?

[13] Sob inspiração, Davi escreveu: "A pronunciação de Jeová a meu Senhor é: 'Senta-te à minha direita, até que eu ponha os teus inimigos como escabelo para os teus pés.' Jeová jurou (e não o deplorará): 'Tu és sacerdote por tempo indefinido à maneira de Melquisedeque!'" (Salmo 110:1, 4) As palavras de Davi se aplicavam diretamente ao Descendente prometido, ou Messias. (Atos 2:35, 36) Esse Rei governaria, não em Jerusalém, mas desde os céus, à "direita" de Jeová. Isso lhe daria autoridade não só sobre o território de Israel, mas sobre toda a Terra. (Salmo 2:6-8) Mais um detalhe foi revelado naquela declaração. Note que Jeová fez o juramento solene de que o Messias seria "sacerdote . . . à maneira de Melquisedeque" — um rei-sacerdote que viveu nos dias de Abraão. Como Melquisedeque, o vindouro Descendente seria designado diretamente por Deus para ser Rei e Sacerdote! — Gênesis 14:17-20.

13, 14. (a) Segundo o Salmo 110, que promessa Jeová fez ao seu Rei ungido? (b) Que revelações adicionais a respeito do vindouro Descendente foram feitas por meio dos profetas de Jeová?

[14] Ao longo dos anos, Jeová usou seus profetas para fazer revelações adicionais sobre o segredo sagrado. Por exemplo, Isaías revelou que o Descendente teria uma morte sacrificial. (Isaías 53:3-12) Miqueias profetizou o lugar em que o Messias nasceria. (Miqueias 5:2) E Daniel predisse até o tempo exato do aparecimento do Descendente e de sua morte. — Daniel 9:24-27.

Revelado o segredo sagrado!

[15] Como essas profecias se cumpririam continuou a ser um mistério até que o Descendente finalmente apareceu. Gálatas 4:4 diz: "Quando chegou o pleno limite do tempo, Deus enviou o seu Filho, que veio a proceder duma mulher." No ano 2 AEC, um anjo disse a uma virgem judia chamada Maria: "Eis que conceberás na tua madre e darás à luz um filho, e deves dar-lhe o nome de Jesus. Este será grande e será chamado Filho do Altíssimo; e Jeová Deus lhe dará o trono de Davi, seu pai . . . Espírito santo virá sobre ti e poder do Altíssimo te encobrirá. Por esta razão, também, o nascido será chamado santo, Filho de Deus." — Lucas 1:31, 32, 35.

[16] Depois, Jeová transferiu a vida de seu Filho do céu para o útero de Maria, de modo que ele nasceu duma mulher imperfeita. Mas Jesus não herdou a imperfeição dela porque era "Filho de Deus". No entanto, os pais humanos de Jesus eram descendentes de Davi, de modo que ele herdou deles tanto o direito natural como legal de ser herdeiro daquele rei. (Atos 13:22, 23) Quando Jesus se batizou, em 29 EC, Jeová o ungiu com espírito santo e disse: "Este é meu Filho, o amado." (Mateus 3:16, 17) Finalmente, ali estava o Descendente! (Gálatas 3:16) Chegara o tempo para se revelar mais detalhes sobre o segredo sagrado. — 2 Timóteo 1:10.

[17] Durante seu ministério, Jesus identificou a serpente de Gênesis 3:15 como Satanás e o descendente da serpente como os seguidores do Diabo. (Mateus 23:33; João 8:44) Posteriormente, revelou-se como esses seriam esmagados para sempre. (Revelação [Apocalipse] 20:1-3, 10, 15) E a mulher foi identificada como a "Jerusalém de cima", a organização-esposa de Jeová nos céus, composta de criaturas espirituais.* — Gálatas 4:26; Revelação 12:1-6.

* "O segredo sagrado [da] devoção piedosa" também foi revelado em Jesus. (1 Timóteo 3:16) Durante muito tempo foi um segredo, ou mistério, se alguém conseguiria manter perfeita integridade a Jeová. Jesus forneceu a resposta. Ele manteve a integridade durante todas as provações que Satanás lançou contra ele. — Mateus 4:1-11; 27:26-50.

17. Como se esclareceu o significado de Gênesis 3:15?

O novo pacto

[18] Uma das revelações mais emocionantes foi dada na noite antes da morte de Jesus, quando ele falou aos seus discípulos fiéis sobre "o novo pacto". (Lucas 22:20) Como seu predecessor, o pacto da Lei mosaica, esse novo pacto deveria produzir "um reino de sacerdotes". (Êxodo 19:6; 1 Pedro 2:9) Mas, em vez de estabelecer uma nação carnal, fundaria uma nação espiritual, "o Israel de Deus", composta exclusivamente de fiéis seguidores ungidos de Cristo. (Gálatas 6:16) Com Jesus, esses participantes do novo pacto abençoariam a raça humana.

[19] Mas por que o novo pacto consegue produzir "um reino de sacerdotes" para abençoar a humanidade? Porque, em vez de condenar os discípulos de Cristo como pecadores, ele permite o perdão dos seus pecados mediante o sacrifício Dele. (Jeremias 31:31-34) Quando eles obtêm uma condição justa perante Jeová, este os adota como parte de sua família celestial, ungindo-os com espírito santo. (Romanos 8:15-17; 2 Coríntios 1:21) Assim, passam por "um novo nascimento para uma esperança viva . . . reservada nos céus". (1 Pedro 1:3, 4) Visto que uma condição tão enaltecida é algo totalmente novo para os humanos, os cristãos ungidos e gerados pelo espírito são chamados de "uma nova criação". (2 Coríntios 5:17) A Bíblia revela que, por fim, 144 mil deles ajudarão a reinar desde o céu sobre a humanidade resgatada. — Revelação 5:9, 10; 14:1-4.

[20] Com Jesus, os ungidos se tornam o "descendente de Abraão".* (Gálatas 3:29) Os primeiros a serem escolhidos foram judeus carnais. Mas, em 36 EC, outra faceta do segredo sagrado foi revelada: gentios (não judeus) também teriam parte na esperança celestial. (Romanos 9:6-8; 11:25, 26; Efésios 3:5, 6) Os cristãos ungidos seriam os únicos a desfrutar as bênçãos prometidas a Abraão? Não, porque o sacrifício de Jesus beneficia o mundo inteiro. (1 João 2:2) Com o tempo, Jeová revelou que um número não especificado de pessoas faria parte de uma "grande multidão" que sobreviveria ao fim do sistema de Satanás. (Revelação 7:9, 14) Muitos outros seriam ressuscitados com a perspectiva de viver

* Jesus também fez "um pacto . . . para um reino" com o mesmo grupo. (Lucas 22:29, 30) Trata-se de um contrato que ele fez com o "pequeno rebanho" para que reinem com ele no céu como parte secundária do descendente de Abraão. — Lucas 12:32.

“Sábio de coração”, mas humilde

UM PAI quer ensinar uma lição importante ao filho, tocando-lhe o coração. Que método usar? Deve ficar de pé de forma intimidadora e usar palavras duras? Ou seria melhor agachar-se diante da criança e falar de modo bondoso e amistoso? Sem dúvida, um pai sábio e humilde escolheria a segunda opção.

2 Que tipo de Pai é Jeová: orgulhoso ou humilde? severo ou bondoso? Jeová sabe de tudo, quer dizer, é sábio em escala absoluta. Já notou, porém, que o conhecimento e a inteligência nem sempre tornam as pessoas mais humildes? Como diz a Bíblia, “o conhecimento enfuna”. (1 Coríntios 3:19; 8:1) Mas Jeová, que é “sábio de coração”, é também humilde. (Jó 9:4) Não que ele esteja numa posição inferior ou pouco enaltecida; mas percebe-se nele a total ausência de arrogância. Por que isso se dá?

3 Jeová é santo. Visto que a arrogância é uma qualidade que avilta a pessoa, ela é completamente inexistente nele. (Marcos 7:20-22) Além disso, note o que o profeta Jeremias disse a Jeová: “Sem falta, a tua alma

1-3. Por que podemos ter certeza de que Jeová é humilde?

[o próprio Jeová] se lembrará e se curvará sobre mim."* (Lamentações 3:20) Imagine! Jeová, o Soberano Senhor do Universo, estava disposto a 'se curvar', ou se colocar no mesmo nível que Jeremias, a fim de mostrar favor àquele humano imperfeito. (Salmo 113:7) De fato, Jeová é humilde. Mas o que está envolvido na humildade divina? O que ela tem que ver com a sabedoria? E por que é importante para nós?

Como Jeová demonstra humildade

[4] Humildade é ausência de orgulho ou arrogância; despretensão. Trata-se de uma qualidade íntima, do coração, e manifesta-se em características como brandura, paciência e razoabilidade. (Gálatas 5:22, 23) Mas não se engane! Essas qualidades de Jeová não têm nada que ver com fraqueza ou acanhamento, porque não o impedem de expressar ira justa nem de usar seu poder para destruir. Na verdade, a humildade e a brandura de

* Os escribas antigos (soferins) alteraram esse versículo para dizer que Jeremias, não Jeová, é que se curvava. Pelo visto, acharam impróprio atribuir a Deus um ato humilde como esse. Em resultado disso, muitas traduções deixam de transmitir corretamente a ideia desse belo versículo. Mas uma Bíblia em inglês traduz de forma exata a expressão de Jeremias para Deus, dizendo: "Lembra-te, ó lembra-te, e inclina-te na minha direção." — The New English Bible.

Jeová revelam seu imenso poder, pois ele é capaz de controlar-se com perfeição. (Isaías 42:14) Qual é a ligação entre humildade e sabedoria? Uma obra de referência bíblica afirma: "Humildade é conclusivamente definida . . . em termos de altruísmo e é uma base essencial para toda a sabedoria." A sabedoria genuína, portanto, não pode existir sem humildade. Como a humildade de Jeová nos beneficia?

5 O Rei Davi cantou a Jeová: "Tu me darás o teu escudo de salvação, e a tua própria direita me amparará, e a tua própria humildade me engrandecerá." (Salmo 18:35) Jeová como que se curvou para lidar com esse mero humano imperfeito, protegendo-o e amparando-o dia após dia. Davi entendia que era só por causa da disposição de Deus de humilhar-se desse modo que ele podia esperar receber a salvação e chegar a ter certa medida de grandeza como rei. De fato, quem de nós poderia ter esperança de salvação se Jeová não fosse humilde, se ele não estivesse disposto a se rebaixar para lidar conosco como um Pai bondoso e amoroso?

6 É bom notarmos que há uma diferença entre humildade e modéstia. Esta última é uma bela qualidade que os humanos fiéis devem cultivar. Como a humildade, ela está ligada à sabedoria. Por exemplo, Provérbios 11:2 diz: "A sabedoria está com os modestos." Mas a Bíblia nunca fala que Jeová é modesto. Por que não? Conforme usada nas Escrituras, modéstia pode ter o sentido de conscientizar-se das próprias limitações. O Todo-Poderoso não tem limitações, exceto as que ele impõe a si mesmo por causa de suas normas justas. (Marcos 10:27; Tito 1:2) Além disso, como o Altíssimo, ele não está sujeito a ninguém. Assim, o conceito de modéstia simplesmente não se aplica a Jeová.

6, 7. (a) Por que a Bíblia nunca fala que Jeová é modesto? (b) Qual é a relação entre brandura e sabedoria, e quem dá o melhor exemplo nesse respeito?

[7] Mas Jeová é humilde e brando. Por meio de sua Palavra, ele ensina a seus servos que a brandura é essencial para a verdadeira sabedoria, mencionando "a brandura que pertence à sabedoria".* (Tiago 3:13) Note o exemplo que o Criador dá nesse respeito.

Jeová delega e escuta humildemente

[8] Há muitos indícios da humildade de Jeová. Entre esses se destaca a sua disposição de delegar responsabilidades e de escutar. O mero fato de Deus fazer isso já é, em si mesmo, surpreendente, pois ele não precisa de ajuda ou conselho. (Isaías 40:13, 14; Romanos 11:34, 35)

* Outras versões falam da "humildade que provém da sabedoria" e da "mansidão própria da sabedoria".

8-10. (a) Por que a disposição de Jeová de delegar responsabilidades e de escutar é notável? (b) Como o Todo-Poderoso usou de humildade ao lidar com os anjos?

Mesmo assim, a Bíblia mostra repetidas vezes que ele se dispõe a agir desse modo.

[9] Veja, por exemplo, um incidente notável na vida de Abraão. Ele recebeu três visitantes e dirigiu-se a um deles como "Jeová". Na verdade, os visitantes eram anjos, mas um deles veio e agiu em nome de Deus. O que aquele anjo falou e fez era, na verdade, como se o próprio Jeová estivesse falando e agindo. Por meio dele, Deus contou a Abraão que tinha ouvido um alto "clamor de queixa a respeito de Sodoma e Gomorra". Jeová declarou: "Estou de todo resolvido a descer para ver se de fato agem segundo o clamor sobre isso, que tem chegado a mim, e se não for assim, ficarei sabendo disso." (Gênesis 18:3, 20, 21) Naturalmente, essa declaração de Jeová não significava que o Todo-Poderoso 'desceria' em pessoa. Ele enviou anjos para representá-lo. (Gênesis 19:1) Por quê? Será que Jeová, que vê tudo, não tinha os meios para 'ficar sabendo', por conta própria, da real condição daquela região? É claro que sim. Mas em vez disso, ele humildemente deu àqueles anjos uma designação de investigar a situação e visitar Ló e sua família em Sodoma.

[10] Além disso, Jeová escuta. Certa vez, ele pediu aos anjos que sugerissem várias maneiras de trazer a ruína ao perverso Rei Acabe. É claro que Jeová não precisava de ajuda. Mesmo assim, aceitou a sugestão de um anjo e o designou para executar o plano. (1 Reis 22:19-22) Quanta humildade!

[11] Jeová está até mesmo disposto a escutar humanos imperfeitos que desejem expressar suas preocupações. Por exemplo, quando ele contou a Abraão a sua intenção de destruir Sodoma e Gomorra, aquele homem fiel ficou perplexo. “É inconcebível a teu respeito”, disse Abraão, e acrescentou: “Não fará o Juiz de toda a terra o que é direito?” Ele perguntou se Jeová pouparia as cidades caso houvesse 50 homens justos nelas. Deus lhe assegurou que as pouparia. Mas Abraão continuou perguntando, abaixando o número para 45, daí para 40, e assim por diante. Apesar das garantias de Jeová, Abraão prosseguiu, até que o número chegou a apenas 10 homens. Talvez Abraão ainda não entendesse plenamente o alcance da misericórdia divina. Seja como for, Jeová de modo paciente e humilde permitiu que seu amigo e servo Abraão expressasse suas preocupações. — Gênesis 18:23-33.

[12] Quantos humanos inteligentes e bem instruídos escutariam com tanta paciência a uma pessoa de intelecto muitíssimo inferior?* Mas nosso Deus é tão humilde que faz exatamente isso. Durante a mesma conversa,

* O interessante é que a Bíblia contrasta a paciência com a arrogância (soberba). (Eclesiastes 7:8) A paciência de Jeová é outra evidência de sua humildade. — 2 Pedro 3:9.

11, 12. Como Abraão veio a entender a humildade de Jeová?

Abraão também se apercebeu de que Jeová é "vagaroso em irar-se". (Êxodo 34:6) Talvez se dando conta de que não tinha o direito de questionar as ações do Altíssimo, o patriarca implorou duas vezes: "Por favor, não se acenda a ira de Jeová." (Gênesis 18:30, 32) É claro que isso não aconteceu. Deus sem dúvida tem a "brandura que pertence à sabedoria".

Jeová é razoável

[13] A humildade de Jeová também é demonstrada por outra bela qualidade: a razoabilidade. Infelizmente, os humanos imperfeitos falham de forma lamentável em demonstrá-la. Além de escutar suas criaturas inteligentes, Jeová se dispõe a ceder quando não há conflito com seus princípios justos. A palavra "razoável", conforme usada na Bíblia, literalmente significa "flexível, disposto a ceder". Trata-se de uma característica própria da sabedoria divina. Tiago 3:17 diz: "A sabedoria de cima é . . . razoável." Em que sentido Jeová, que é totalmente sábio, é também razoável? Em primeiro lugar, ele é adaptável. Lembre-se de que até mesmo seu nome indica que ele se torna tudo o que for necessário para cumprir seus propósitos. (Êxodo 3:14) Isso revela Sua adaptabilidade e razoabilidade, não concorda?

13. Conforme usada na Bíblia, qual é o sentido da palavra "razoável"? Por que essa é uma boa descrição de Jeová?

[14] Há uma notável passagem bíblica que nos ajuda a ter uma ideia de como Jeová é adaptável. Em uma visão, o profeta Ezequiel observou a organização celestial de Deus, composta de criaturas espirituais, representada por um carro de dimensões assombrosas — o próprio “veículo” de Jeová, sempre sob o Seu controle. O modo como esse carro se movia era muito interessante. Suas rodas gigantescas tinham quatro lados cheios de olhos para que pudessem ver em todas as direções e mudar de rumo instantaneamente, sem precisar parar nem se virar. E esse carro gigantesco não se arrastava pesadamente como um veículo desengonçado feito por humanos. Podia mover-se à velocidade de um raio e até mudar de direção em ângulos retos! (Ezequiel 1:1, 14-28) De fato, a organização de Jeová, assim como o Soberano todo-poderoso que a controla, é totalmente adaptável, ajustando-se a situações e necessidades em constante mutação.

[15] O máximo que o ser humano pode fazer é procurar imitar essa perfeita adaptabilidade. Na maioria dos casos, os humanos e suas organizações tendem mais a ser rígidos do que adaptáveis; costumam ser inflexíveis em vez de maleáveis. Para ilustrar: o tamanho e a força de um superpetroleiro ou de um trem de carga são impressionantes. Mas conseguem fazer mudanças súbitas para ajustar-se às circunstâncias? Suponhamos que surja um obstáculo nos trilhos à frente de um trem de carga. O que fazer? Mudar de direção é impossível. Parar subitamente também não é muito fácil. Para se ter uma ideia, um trem de carga carregado ainda percorrerá quase dois quilômetros antes de parar, depois de acionados os freios. Algo similar acontece com um superpetroleiro. Ele ainda se deslocará uns oito quilômetros depois de os motores terem sido desligados. Mesmo que se reverta a rotação dos motores, o navio continuará a se arrastar por uns três quilômetros. As organizações humanas são semelhantes: caracterizam-se pela rigidez e falta de razoabilidade. Devido ao orgulho, muitas pessoas se recusam a adaptar-se a novas necessidades e circunstâncias. Essa intransigência já levou empresas à falência e derrubou governos. (Provérbios 16:18) Como ficamos contentes de saber que nem Jeová nem sua organização são assim!

Como Jeová demonstra razoabilidade

instruções específicas do anjo de Jeová: "Escapa para a região montanhosa." Mas Ló não ficou muito contente com isso e implorou: "Não isso, por favor, Jeová!" Convencido de que morreria se fugisse para as montanhas, implorou para que ele e sua família recebessem permissão de fugir para uma cidade próxima, Zoar. Bem, Jeová pretendia destruir aquela cidade. Além disso, os temores de Ló eram infundados. Sem dúvida, Deus tinha capacidade de preservá-lo vivo nas montanhas! Apesar disso, Jeová cedeu ao pedido dele e poupou Zoar. O anjo disse a Ló: "Eis que também neste ponto tenho deveras consideração para contigo." (Gênesis 19:17-22) Não foi uma demonstração de razoabilidade da parte de Jeová?

17 Jeová também se adapta diante do arrependimento de coração, sempre fazendo o que é misericordioso e correto. Pense no que aconteceu quando o profeta Jonas foi enviado a Nínive, uma cidade cheia de perversidade e violência. Quando marchou pelas ruas daquela cidade poderosa, a mensagem inspirada que proclamou era bem simples: ela seria destruída em 40 dias. Mas as circunstâncias mudaram drasticamente. Os ninivitas se arrependeram! — Jonas, capítulo 3.

18 É instrutivo compararmos a reação de Jeová com

a de Jonas diante da mudança nas circunstâncias. Nesse caso, Jeová se adaptou, tornando-se Perdoador de pecados em vez de "pessoa varonil de guerra".* (Êxodo 15:3) Jonas, por outro lado, foi inflexível e nada misericordioso. Em vez de refletir a razoabilidade de Jeová, ele reagiu mais como o trem de carga ou o superpetroleiro já mencionados. Ele havia proclamado destruição e era isso que tinha de acontecer! Mas Jeová pacientemente ensinou ao profeta inconformado uma lição memorável de razoabilidade e misericórdia. — Jonas, capítulo 4.

[19] Por fim, Jeová é razoável no que espera de nós. O Rei Davi disse: "Ele mesmo conhece bem a nossa formação, lembra-se de que somos pó." (Salmo 103:14) Jeová entende nossas limitações e imperfeições melhor do que nós mesmos. Nunca espera de nós mais do que podemos dar. A Bíblia contrasta os donos humanos que são "bons e razoáveis" com os que são "difíceis de agradar". (1 Pedro 2:18) Que tipo de Dono Jeová é? Note o que Provérbios 19:17 diz: "Aquele que mostra favor ao

* No Salmo 86:5, diz-se que Jeová 'é bom e está pronto a perdoar'. Quando esse salmo foi traduzido para o grego, a expressão "pronto a perdoar" foi vertida pela palavra e·pi·ei·kés, ou "razoável".

19. (a) Por que podemos ter certeza de que Jeová é razoável no que espera de nós? (b) Como Provérbios 19:17 mostra que Jeová é um Dono 'bom, razoável' e profundamente humilde?

de condição humilde está emprestando a Jeová." É óbvio que só um dono bom e razoável prestaria atenção a cada ato de bondade realizado a favor dos humildes. Mais do que isso, esse texto indica que o Criador do Universo na verdade se considera endividado para com meros seres humanos que agem com misericórdia! Isso é humildade no mais alto grau.

[20] Ainda hoje Jeová demonstra ser manso e razoável nos seus tratos com seu povo. Quando oramos com fé, ele nos escuta. E embora não envie mensageiros angélicos para falar conosco, não devemos concluir que ele não responda nossas orações. Lembre-se de que o após-tolo Paulo pediu que concrentes 'fizessem orações' para que ele fosse libertado da prisão, e daí acrescentou: "Para que eu vos seja restituído tanto mais cedo." (Hebreus 13:18, 19) Assim, nossas orações podem levar Jeová a fazer algo que de outro modo não faria! — Tiago 5:16.

[21] É claro que nenhuma dessas manifestações da humildade de Jeová — sua brandura, disposição de escutar, paciência e razoabilidade — significa que Ele transija nos Seus princípios justos. Os clérigos da cristandade talvez pensem que estão sendo razoáveis quando fazem cócegas nos ouvidos do seu rebanho, abrandando as normas de moral de Jeová. (2 Timóteo 4:3) Mas a tendência humana de transigir por conveniência não tem nada que ver com a razoabilidade divina. Jeová é santo; nunca vai profanar suas normas justas. (Levítico 11:44) Assim, demonstremos apreço pela razoabilidade de Jeová devido ao que ela realmente é: uma prova de sua humildade. Não fica emocionado de pensar que Jeová Deus, o Ser mais sábio do Universo, é também extremamente humilde? Que maravilha é nos achegarmos a esse Deus espantoso, mas brando, paciente e razoável!

Jesus revela a "sabedoria de Deus"

OS OUVINTES estavam assombrados. O jovem Jesus, de pé diante deles na sinagoga, ensinava. Conheciam-no muito bem; ele havia crescido naquela cidade e, durante anos, trabalhara ali como carpinteiro. Talvez alguns deles morassem em casas que Jesus havia ajudado a construir ou, quem sabe, trabalhassem com arados e jugos que ele havia feito com as próprias mãos.* Mas como reagiriam aos ensinos desse ex-carpinteiro?

² A maioria dos presentes, espantados, perguntavam: "Onde obteve este homem tal sabedoria?" Mas também comentavam: "Não é este o carpinteiro, filho de Maria?" (Mateus 13:54-58; Marcos 6:1-3) Infelizmente, os anteriores vizinhos de Jesus raciocinaram: "Esse carpinteiro é só um homem como qualquer um de nós." Apesar das palavras sábias dele, rejeitaram-no. Mal sabiam que a sabedoria que ele transmitia não era dele.

* Nos tempos bíblicos, os carpinteiros eram contratados para construir casas, fabricar móveis e fazer implementos agrícolas. Justino, o Mártir, do segundo século EC, escreveu sobre Jesus: "Enquanto estava entre os homens, tinha por hábito trabalhar como carpinteiro fabricando arados e jugos."

1-3. Como os anteriores vizinhos de Jesus reagiram ao seu ensino e o que não reconheceram a respeito dele?

[3] De onde, afinal, Jesus obteve toda aquela sabedoria? “O que eu ensino não é meu”, disse ele, “mas pertence àquele que me enviou”. (João 7:16) O apóstolo Paulo explicou que Jesus “se tornou para nós sabedoria de Deus”. (1 Coríntios 1:30) A sabedoria do próprio Jeová é revelada por meio de seu Filho, Jesus. Tanto que este podia dizer: “Eu e o Pai somos um.” (João 10:30) Analisemos três campos em que Jesus manifestou a “sabedoria de Deus”.

Seu ensino

[4] Primeiro, vamos analisar aquilo que Jesus ensinava. O tema da sua mensagem eram “as boas novas do reino”. (Lucas 4:43) Isso era muito relevante em vista do papel que o Reino desempenharia em vindicar a soberania de Jeová e em trazer bênçãos duradouras para a humanidade. No seu ensino, Jesus também deu conselhos sábios para a vida cotidiana. Comprovadamente, ele foi um “Maravilhoso Conselheiro”, conforme havia sido profetizado. (Isaías 9:6) E, de fato, seus conselhos não poderiam ser nada mais nada menos do que maravilhosos. Afinal, ele conhecia em detalhes a Palavra e a vontade de Deus, entendia a fundo a natureza humana

4. (a) Qual era o tema da mensagem de Jesus e por que isso era relevante? (b) Por que os conselhos de Jesus sempre eram práticos e visavam os melhores interesses dos seus ouvintes?

e amava muito a humanidade. De modo que seus conselhos sempre eram práticos e visavam os melhores interesses dos seus ouvintes. Jesus transmitiu "declarações de vida eterna". Sem dúvida, seguir os conselhos dele resulta em salvação. — João 6:68.

[5] O Sermão do Monte é um exemplo notável da sabedoria sem igual encontrada nos ensinos de Jesus. Conforme registrado em Mateus 5:3–7:27, provavelmente levaria apenas uns 20 minutos para proferi-lo. Mas seus conselhos são de valor permanente e são tão relevantes hoje como no dia em que foram proferidos. Jesus tratou de diversos assuntos: como melhorar relacionamentos (5:23-26, 38-42; 7:1-5, 12), como se manter moralmente limpo (5:27-32) e como ter uma vida significativa (6:19-24; 7:24-27). Mas Jesus fez mais do que apenas dizer a seus ouvintes qual é a maneira sábia de agir; ele mostrou-lhes isso, explicando, raciocinando e apresentando provas.

[6] Veja, por exemplo, o conselho sábio de Jesus sobre como lidar com as ansiedades relacionadas às coisas materiais, conforme registrado no capítulo 6 de Mateus:

5. Quais são alguns dos assuntos de que Jesus tratou no Sermão do Monte?

6-8. (a) Que fortes razões Jesus apresenta para evitarmos a ansiedade? (b) O que mostra que os conselhos de Jesus refletem sabedoria de origem divina?

“Parai de estar ansiosos pelas vossas almas, quanto a que haveis de comer ou quanto a que haveis de beber, ou pelos vossos corpos, quanto a que haveis de vestir.” (Versículo 25) Alimento e roupa são necessidades básicas e é natural preocupar-se em obtê-las. Mas Jesus nos diz para ‘pararmos de estar ansiosos’ por essas coisas.* Por quê?

7 Preste atenção ao raciocínio convincente de Jesus. Visto que Jeová nos deu a vida e o corpo, será que ele não pode nos fornecer o alimento para sustentar a vida e roupas para proteger o corpo? (Versículo 25) Se Deus dá alimento às aves e veste lindamente as flores, quanto mais cuidará de seus adoradores humanos! (Versículos 26, 28-30) Na verdade, ficar ansioso demais é inútil. Não vai aumentar a duração de nossa vida nem um segundo sequer.# (Versículo 27) Mas então como evitar a ansiedade? Jesus nos aconselha: continue a dar prioridade à adoração de Deus. Quem faz isso pode ter confiança de que todas as suas necessidades diárias lhe “serão acrescentadas”. (Versículo 33) Por fim, Jesus dá uma sugestão muito prática: viva um dia por vez. Por que juntar as ansiedades de amanhã com as que você já tem hoje? (Versículo 34) Além disso, por que se preocupar indevidamente com coisas que talvez nunca aconteçam? Aplicar esses conselhos sábios pode nos poupar muitas dores de cabeça neste mundo estressante.

* O verbo grego traduzido “estar ansiosos” significa “ter a mente distraída”. Conforme usado em Mateus 6:25, refere-se ao temor apreensivo que distrai ou divide a mente, tirando a alegria de viver.

Na verdade, estudos científicos revelaram que preocupação e estresse excessivos aumentam os riscos de doenças cardiovasculares e de muitas outras enfermidades que encurtam a vida.

[8] É evidente que os conselhos de Jesus são tão práticos hoje como eram 2 mil anos atrás. Não é esse um indício de sabedoria divina? Até as melhores recomendações de conselheiros humanos tendem a se tornar obsoletas e logo têm de ser revisadas ou substituídas. Os ensinos de Jesus, porém, resistiram à passagem do tempo. Mas isso não deveria nos surpreender, porque esse Maravilhoso Conselheiro transmitiu "as declarações de Deus". — João 3:34.

Seu modo de ensinar

[9] Um segundo campo em que Jesus refletiu a sabedoria de Deus foi na sua maneira de ensinar. Em certa ocasião, alguns soldados enviados para prendê-lo voltaram de mãos vazias, dizendo: "Nunca homem algum falou como este." (João 7:45, 46) Eles não estavam exagerando. De todos os humanos que já viveram, Jesus, que era "dos domínios de cima", tinha o mais vasto cabedal de conhecimento e experiência. (João 8:23) Ele realmente

---

9. O que alguns soldados disseram sobre o ensino de Jesus e por que eles não estavam exagerando?

ensinava de uma maneira que nenhum outro humano poderia ensinar. Vejamos apenas dois dos métodos usados por esse Instrutor sábio.

10 Uso eficaz de ilustrações. "Jesus [falava] às multidões por meio de ilustrações", nos diz a Bíblia. "Deveras, nada lhes falava sem ilustração." (Mateus 13:34) É impossível não ficarmos maravilhados com sua capacidade de inigualável de usar coisas do dia a dia para ensinar verdades profundas. Agricultores semeando, mulheres fazendo pão, crianças brincando na feira, pescadores puxando as redes, pastores procurando ovelhas perdidas — seus ouvintes tinham visto essas coisas muitas vezes. Relacionar coisas conhecidas com verdades importantes faz com que estas fiquem, quase que de imediato, profundamente gravadas na mente e no coração. — Mateus 11:16-19; 13:3-8, 33, 47-50; 18:12-14.

11 Jesus usava muitas parábolas, quer dizer, histórias curtas das quais se aprende uma verdade moral ou espiritual. Visto que é mais fácil entender e lembrar histórias do que ideias abstratas, as parábolas ajudaram a preservar os ensinos de Jesus. Em muitas delas, ele descreveu seu Pai com termos vívidos que dificilmente seriam esquecidos. Por exemplo, quem não entenderia o ponto-chave da parábola do filho pródigo: que quando alguém que se desviou mostra arrependimento genuíno, Jeová sente pena dele e amorosamente o aceita de volta? — Lucas 15:11-32.

[12] Uso perito de perguntas. Jesus usava perguntas para ajudar os ouvintes a tirar as próprias conclusões, examinar suas motivações ou tomar decisões. (Mateus 12:24-30; 17:24-27; 22:41-46) Quando líderes religiosos questionaram se Jesus tinha mesmo autoridade da parte de Deus, ele respondeu: "Era o batismo de João do céu ou dos homens?" Perplexos com a pergunta, eles raciocinaram entre si: "Se dissermos: 'Do céu', ele nos dirá: 'Então, por que não acreditastes nele?' Se, porém, dissermos: 'Dos homens', temos a multidão para temer, porque todos eles consideram João como profeta." Por fim, responderam: "Não sabemos." (Marcos 11:27-33; Mateus 21:23-27) Com uma simples pergunta, Jesus os deixou sem palavras e denunciou o coração traiçoeiro deles.

[13] Às vezes, Jesus combinava os métodos, introduzin-

do perguntas intrigantes em suas ilustrações. Quando um advogado judeu lhe perguntou o que era preciso para ganhar a vida eterna, Jesus mencionou a Lei mosaica que ordenava amar a Deus e ao próximo. Querendo se mostrar justo, o homem perguntou: "Quem é realmente o meu próximo?" Em resposta, Jesus contou uma história. Certo judeu viajava sozinho quando foi atacado por assaltantes, que o deixaram quase morto. Passaram dois outros judeus por aquela estrada: primeiro um sacerdote, depois um levita. Ambos o ignoraram. Mas então passou um samaritano. Com pena do judeu, ele bondosamente tratou das feridas dele e amorosamente o levou para um lugar seguro, uma hospedaria, onde poderia se recuperar. Concluindo a história, Jesus perguntou ao advogado: "Qual destes três te parece ter-se feito próximo do homem que caiu entre os salteadores?" O homem teve de responder: "Aquele que agiu misericordiosamente para com ele." — Lucas 10:25-37.

[14] Como essa parábola reflete a sabedoria de Jesus? Naquele tempo, os judeus só aplicavam o termo "próximo" aos que guardavam suas tradições, o que não era o caso dos samaritanos. (João 4:9) Se na história que Jesus contou a vítima fosse o samaritano e o judeu o ajudasse, será que isso teria ajudado a combater o preconceito? Sabiamente, Jesus formulou a história de tal modo que o samaritano é quem cuidou bondosamente do judeu. Note também a pergunta que Jesus fez no fim da história. Ele mudou o foco do termo "próximo". O advogado tinha, em outras palavras, perguntado: "Quem deve ser o alvo do meu amor, ou seja, meu próximo?" Mas Jesus perguntou: "Qual destes três te parece ter-se feito próximo?" Jesus não enfocou aquele que recebeu a bondade (a vítima), mas aquele que a demonstrou (o samaritano). Quem realmente age como "próximo" toma a iniciativa de mostrar amor aos outros, não importa qual seja a origem étnica desses. Não dá para imaginar uma maneira melhor de Jesus ressaltar esse ponto.

15 É de admirar, então, que as pessoas ficassem assombradas com o "modo de ensinar" de Jesus e se achegassem a ele? (Mateus 7:28, 29) Em certa ocasião, "uma grande multidão" o acompanhou por três dias, ficando até mesmo sem comer! — Marcos 8:1, 2.

Seu modo de vida

16 O terceiro campo em que Jesus refletiu a sabedoria de Jeová foi no seu modo de vida. A sabedoria funciona na prática. "Quem entre vocês é sábio?", perguntou o discípulo Tiago. Daí, respondeu à própria

16. De que modo Jesus deu "prova prática" de que se deixava guiar pela sabedoria divina?

pergunta, dizendo: "Que sua conduta correta dê prova prática disso." (Tiago 3:13, The New English Bible) A conduta de Jesus dava "prova prática" de que ele se deixava guiar pela sabedoria divina. Vejamos como ele mostrou bom critério, tanto no seu modo de vida como nos tratos com outros.

[17] Já notou que as pessoas que não têm bom critério muitas vezes se tornam extremistas? Isso se dá porque é preciso sabedoria para ser equilibrado. Refletindo a sabedoria divina, Jesus tinha perfeito equilíbrio. Acima de tudo, deu primazia às coisas espirituais. Envolveu-se plenamente na obra de declarar as boas novas. "É com este objetivo que saí", disse ele. (Marcos 1:38) É evidente que bens materiais não eram de importância primária para ele, pois aparentemente ele tinha muito pouco em sentido material. (Mateus 8:20) Mas ele não era um asceta. Como seu Pai, o "Deus feliz", Jesus era uma pessoa alegre e contribuía para a felicidade de outros. (1 Timóteo 1:11; 6:15) Quando assistiu a uma festa de casamento — onde é comum haver música, canto e alegria —, ele não agiu como desmancha-prazeres. Pelo contrário, quando acabou a bebida, ele transformou água em vinho, "que alegra o coração do homem mortal". (Salmo 104:15; João 2:1-11) Jesus aceitou muitos convites para refeições e, com frequência, usou essas ocasiões para ensinar. — Lucas 10:38-42; 14:1-6.

17. O que indica que Jesus levava uma vida perfeitamente equilibrada?

[18] Jesus demonstrou impecável bom critério ao lidar com outros. Sua compreensão da natureza humana lhe permitia ter um conceito claro sobre os seus discípulos. Sabia muito bem que eles não eram perfeitos. Mas percebia suas boas qualidades. Via o potencial desses homens que Jeová havia atraído. (João 6:44) Apesar de suas falhas, Jesus estava disposto a dar-lhes um voto de confiança. Demonstrando isso, delegou uma responsabilidade muito grande aos discípulos: pregar as boas novas. Confiava na habilidade deles de cumprir essa tarefa. (Mateus 28:19, 20) O livro de Atos confirma que realizaram fielmente a obra que ele lhes mandara fazer. (Atos 2:41, 42; 4:33; 5:27-32) É óbvio, então, que Jesus havia sido sensato ao confiar neles.

[19] Como vimos no Capítulo 20, a Bíblia associa a humildade e a brandura com a sabedoria. Naturalmente, o melhor exemplo em demonstrar essas qualidades é o de Jeová. Mas e Jesus? É emocionante ver a humildade que ele mostrou ao lidar com os discípulos. Como homem perfeito, ele era superior a eles. Mas não os me-implorou que curasse sua filha terrivelmente endemoninhada. De três maneiras, Jesus indicou que não a ajudaria: primeiro, não respondeu; segundo, disse diretamente que havia sido enviado, não aos gentios, mas aos judeus; e terceiro, contou uma ilustração que bondosamente ressaltou esse mesmo ponto. Mas a mulher persistiu, dando evidência de que tinha fé extraordinária. Em vista dessa circunstância excepcional, como Jesus reagiu? Ele fez exatamente aquilo que afirmara que não faria: curou a filha da mulher. (Mateus 15:21-28) Que notável demonstração de humildade! E lembre-se de que a humildade é a base da verdadeira sabedoria.

20. Como Jesus mostrou razoabilidade ao lidar com uma mulher gentia cuja filha estava endemoninhada?

21 Como somos gratos de que os Evangelhos nos revelam as palavras e ações do homem mais sábio que já viveu! Lembre-se de que Jesus refletia com perfeição o modo de agir do Seu Pai. Se imitarmos a personalidade, a maneira de falar e a conduta de Jesus, estaremos cultivando a sabedoria de cima. No próximo capítulo, veremos como podemos pôr a sabedoria divina em prática na nossa vida.

21. Por que devemos nos esforçar a imitar a personalidade, a maneira de falar e a conduta de Jesus?

Está pondo em prática “a sabedoria de cima”?

ERA um caso difícil: duas mulheres discutiam por causa de um bebê. Elas viviam na mesma casa e, com poucos dias de diferença, cada uma havia dado à luz um filho. Um dos bebês morrera e agora cada mulher afirmava ser a mãe do que estava vivo.* Não havia testemunhas do acontecido. Possivelmente, o caso já havia sido apresentado a um tribunal de menor instância, mas não se chegara a um veredicto. Por fim, a disputa foi levada a Salomão, rei de Israel. Será que ele conseguiria descobrir a verdade?

[2] Depois de escutar um pouco a discussão das mulheres, Salomão pediu uma espada. Daí, aparentemente cheio de convicção, ordenou que a criança fosse cortada em duas partes e que se desse metade a cada uma das

* Conforme 1 Reis 3:16, as duas mulheres eram prostitutas. A obra Estudo Perspicaz das Escrituras diz: “Tais mulheres podem ter sido prostitutas, não em sentido comercial, mas mulheres que tinham cometido fornicação, quer mulheres judias, quer, bem possivelmente, mulheres de ascendência estrangeira.” — Publicada pelas Testemunhas de Jeová.

1-3. (a) Como Salomão demonstrou sabedoria extraordinária no modo como resolveu uma disputa entre duas mulheres? (b) O que Jeová promete nos dar? Que perguntas surgem?

mulheres. Imediatamente, a mãe verdadeira implorou que o rei desse o bebê — seu querido filho — à outra mulher, que insistia que a criança fosse cortada em dois. Salomão descobrira a verdade. Ele sabia da compaixão e do carinho que uma mãe sente pelo filho que carregou no ventre e usou esse conhecimento para resolver a disputa. Imagine o alívio da mãe quando Salomão lhe entregou seu bebê e disse: "Ela é sua mãe." — 1 Reis 3:16-27.

[3] Que sabedoria extraordinária, não concorda? Quando as pessoas souberam como Salomão resolvera o caso, ficaram assombradas, "pois viram que havia nele a sabedoria de Deus". De fato, a sabedoria de Salomão era uma dádiva divina. Jeová lhe concedera "um coração sábio e entendido". (1 Reis 3:12, 28) E nós? Será que também podemos receber a sabedoria divina? Sim, porque sob inspiração Salomão escreveu: "O próprio Jeová dá sabedoria." (Provérbios 2:6) Jeová promete dar sabedoria — a habilidade de usar bem o conhecimento, o entendimento e o discernimento — a todos que a buscam com sinceridade. Como podemos obter a sabedoria de cima? E como podemos aplicá-la na vida?

Como 'adquirir sabedoria'?

[4] Precisamos de inteligência extraordinária ou de muita instrução para receber a sabedoria divina? Não.

4-7. Quais são quatro requisitos para adquirir sabedoria?

Jeová está disposto a partilhá-la conosco não importa qual seja a nossa formação ou quanto estudo tenhamos. (1 Coríntios 1:26-29) Mas temos de tomar a iniciativa, porque a Bíblia nos incentiva a 'adquirir sabedoria'. (Provérbios 4:7) Como podemos fazer isso?

[5] Primeiro, é preciso temer a Deus. "O temor de Jeová é o início da sabedoria ["o primeiro passo para a sabedoria", The New English Bible]", diz Provérbios 9:10. O temor de Deus é a base da sabedoria verdadeira. Por quê? Lembre-se de que a sabedoria envolve a habilidade de usar com êxito o conhecimento. Temer a Deus não significa encolher-se de medo diante dele, mas curvar-se com assombro, respeito e confiança. Esse temor é saudável e nos motiva a harmonizar nossa vida com o conhecimento da vontade e dos modos de Deus. Essa é a maneira mais sensata de agir, pois as normas de Jeová sempre resultam nos maiores benefícios para os que as seguem.

[6] Em segundo lugar, precisamos ser humildes e modestos. Essas qualidades são vitais para se obter sabedoria divina. (Provérbios 11:2) Por quê? Se formos humildes e modestos, estaremos dispostos a admitir que não temos resposta para tudo, que nossas opiniões nem sempre são corretas e que precisamos saber qual é o conceito de Jeová sobre os assuntos. "Deus opõe-se aos soberbos", mas alegremente dá sabedoria aos humildes de coração. — Tiago 4:6.

[7] Um terceiro fator essencial é estudar a Palavra escrita de Deus, visto que a sabedoria divina é revelada nela. Para obter essa sabedoria, temos de nos esforçar para buscá-la. (Provérbios 2:1-5) Um quarto requisito é a oração. Se formos sinceros ao pedir sabedoria a Deus, ele a dará generosamente. (Tiago 1:5) Se solicitarmos a ajuda do Seu espírito em oração, ele sem dúvida responderá. O espírito de Jeová nos orientará para que encontremos os tesouros da sua Palavra que nos ajudarão a resolver problemas, evitar perigos e tomar decisões sábias. — Lucas 11:13.

[8] Como mencionamos no Capítulo 17, a sabedoria de Jeová é prática. Assim, se realmente a adquirimos, isso ficará óbvio no modo como nos comportamos. O discípulo Tiago descreveu os frutos da sabedoria divina: "A sabedoria de cima é primeiramente casta, depois pacífica, razoável, pronta para obedecer, cheia de misericórdia e de bons frutos, sem parcialidade, sem hipocrisia." (Tiago 3:17) Ao analisarmos cada um desses aspectos da sabedoria divina, podemos nos perguntar: 'Será que estou pondo em prática na vida a sabedoria de cima?'

8. Se realmente adquirimos sabedoria divina, em que isso ficará óbvio?

“Casta, depois pacífica”

[9] “Primeiramente casta.” Ser casto significa ser puro e imaculado não só externamente, mas também no íntimo. A Bíblia diz que a sabedoria está ligada ao coração, mas ela não pode penetrar num coração aviltado por pensamentos, desejos e motivações errados. (Provérbios 2:10; Mateus 15:19, 20) Contudo, se nosso coração for casto — isto é, ao ponto em que isso é possível para humanos imperfeitos —, nós nos ‘desviaremos do que é mau e faremos o que é bom’. (Salmo 37:27; Provérbios 3:7) Não acha apropriado que a castidade seja a primeira qualidade da sabedoria a ser alistada? Afinal, se não formos moral e espiritualmente limpos, como poderemos refletir de forma plena as outras qualidades da sabedoria de cima?

[10] “Depois pacífica.” A sabedoria celestial nos motiva a nos empenharmos pela paz, que é um fruto do espírito de Deus. (Gálatas 5:22) Fazemos tudo o que é possível para não romper o “vínculo . . . da paz” que une o povo de Jeová. (Efésios 4:3) Também procuramos restaurar a paz quando ela é perturbada. Por que isso é

9. O que significa ser casto? Por que é apropriado que a castidade seja a primeira qualidade da sabedoria a ser alistada?

10, 11. (a) Por que é importante sermos pacíficos? (b) Se achar que ofendeu um companheiro de adoração, como poderá mostrar ser um pacificador? (Veja também a nota.)

importante? A Bíblia diz: "Continuai . . . a viver pacificamente; e o Deus de amor e de paz estará convosco." (2 Coríntios 13:11) De modo que o Deus de paz estará conosco desde que continuemos a viver pacificamente. O modo como tratamos os companheiros de adoração afeta de forma direta o nosso relacionamento com Jeová. Como podemos mostrar ser pacificadores? Veja um exemplo.

11 O que fazer se perceber que ofendeu um companheiro de adoração? Jesus disse: "Se tu, pois, trouxeres a tua dádiva ao altar e ali te lembrares de que o teu irmão tem algo contra ti, deixa a tua dádiva ali na frente do altar e vai; faze primeiro as pazes com o teu irmão, e então, tendo voltado, oferece a tua dádiva." (Mateus 5:23, 24) Poderá aplicar esse conselho tomando a iniciativa de ir falar com o irmão. Com que objetivo? 'Fazer as pazes.'* Para conseguir isso, talvez seja necessário admitir, não negar, que você feriu os sentimentos dele. Se ao conversarem você mantiver em mente que o seu objetivo é restaurar a paz, é bem provável que se esclareçam os mal-entendidos, se peçam desculpas e se estenda o perdão. Quando toma a iniciativa de fazer as pa-

* A expressão grega traduzida 'faze as pazes' vem de um verbo que significa "'mudar, trocar' e, consequentemente, 'reconciliar'". De modo que o seu objetivo é ocasionar uma mudança, se possível removendo o rancor do coração do ofendido. — Romanos 12:18.

zes, você mostra que se deixa guiar pela sabedoria divina.

"Razoável, pronta para obedecer"

[12] "Razoável." O que significa ser razoável? Segundo certos eruditos, é difícil traduzir a palavra grega original vertida "razoável" em Tiago 3:17. Alguns tradutores usaram termos como "bondosa", "condescendente" e "compreensiva". O sentido literal da palavra grega é "flexível, disposto a ceder". Como podemos demonstrar que aplicamos esse aspecto da sabedoria de cima na nossa vida?

[13] "Seja a vossa razoabilidade conhecida de todos os homens", diz Filipenses 4:5. Outra tradução diz: "Tende a reputação de ser razoáveis." (The New Testament in Modern English, de J. B. Phillips) Note que não é tanto uma questão de como encaramos a nós mesmos; devemos levar em conta como outros nos encaram, como somos conhecidos. A pessoa razoável não insiste em aplicar a lei ao pé da letra ou em que as coisas sejam sempre feitas do seu jeito. Em vez disso, está disposta a escutar outros e, quando apropriado, a ceder aos desejos deles. Uma pessoa assim não é dura ou grosseira, mas bondosa nos seus tratos com outros. Embora essa qualidade seja essencial para todos os cristãos, é especialmente importante para os que servem como anciãos. Se estes forem atenciosos, outros se sentirão atraídos a eles, considerando-os acessíveis. (1 Tessalonicenses 2:7, 8) Seria bom nos perguntarmos: 'Tenho a reputação de ser alguém compreensivo, flexível e bondoso?'

12, 13. (a) Qual é o sentido da palavra traduzida "razoável" em Tiago 3:17? (b) Como podemos mostrar que somos razoáveis?

[14] "Pronta para obedecer." A palavra grega traduzida "pronta para obedecer" não se encontra em nenhuma outra parte das Escrituras Gregas Cristãs. Segundo certo erudito, essa palavra "é muitas vezes usada referente à disciplina militar". Transmite a ideia de ser "fácil de persuadir" e "submisso". Quem é governado pela sabedoria de cima se submete prontamente ao que as Escrituras dizem. Não é conhecido como alguém que toma uma decisão e daí se recusa a ser influenciado por quaisquer fatos que contrariem seu ponto de vista. Pelo contrário, está sempre pronto a fazer mudanças quando lhe apresentam provas bíblicas incontestáveis de que sua atitude está errada ou de que tirou conclusões incorretas. Será que você é conhecido como alguém que age assim?

"Cheia de misericórdia e de bons frutos"

[15] *"Cheia de misericórdia e de bons frutos." A misericór-

* Ao verter essas palavras, outras traduções usaram expressões como "cheia de compaixão" e "boas ações". — Tradução Ecumênica; Bíblia na Linguagem de Hoje.

14. Como podemos demonstrar que somos 'prontos para obedecer'?
15. O que é misericórdia? Por que é apropriado que "misericórdia" e "bons frutos" sejam mencionados juntos em Tiago 3:17?

dia é uma parte importante da sabedoria de cima, que é descrita como sendo "cheia de misericórdia". Note que se mencionam juntos a "misericórdia" e os "bons frutos". Isso é apropriado porque, na Bíblia, a misericórdia em geral se refere à preocupação ativa com outros, à compaixão que produz uma grande quantidade de atos bondosos. Uma obra de referência define misericórdia como "sentimento de tristeza devido à situação ruim de alguém e a tentativa de fazer algo a respeito". De modo que a sabedoria divina não é severa, fria ou meramente intelectual. Pelo contrário, ela é branda, calorosa e sensível. Como podemos mostrar que estamos cheios de misericórdia?

16 Sem dúvida, um modo importante de fazer isso é por transmitir as boas novas do Reino de Deus a outros. O que nos leva a fazer essa obra? Em primeiro lugar, o amor a Deus. Mas também somos motivados pela misericórdia, ou compaixão por outros. (Mateus 22:37-39) Muitas pessoas hoje são "esfoladas e empurradas dum lado para outro como ovelhas sem pastor". (Mateus 9:36) Falsos pastores religiosos as negligenciam e cegam em sentido espiritual. Em resultado disso, elas não sabem que a Palavra de Deus tem orientações sábias nem que o Reino logo trará bênçãos para a Terra. Quando meditamos nas necessidades espirituais dos que nos rodeiam, nossa compaixão de coração nos motiva a fazer tudo o que podemos para lhes falar dos amorosos propósitos de Jeová.

[17] De que outras maneiras podemos mostrar que estamos cheios de misericórdia? Lembra-se da ilustração de Jesus sobre o samaritano que encontrou um viajante caído à beira da estrada após ser espancado e assaltado? Movido pela compaixão, o samaritano "agiu misericordiosamente", tratando dos ferimentos da vítima e cuidando dela. (Lucas 10:29-37) Isso ilustra muito bem que a misericórdia envolve dar ajuda prática aos necessitados. A Bíblia nos ordena que façamos "o que é bom para com todos, mas especialmente para com os aparentados conosco na fé". (Gálatas 6:10) Veja alguns exemplos: um concrente idoso precisa de transporte para assistir às reuniões cristãs. Uma viúva da congregação precisa de ajuda para fazer alguns consertos em casa. (Tiago 1:27) Uma pessoa deprimida precisa de uma "boa palavra" que a reanime. (Provérbios 12:25) Quando mostramos misericórdia dessas maneiras, damos prova de que colocamos em prática a sabedoria de cima.

“Sem parcialidade, sem hipocrisia”

[18] “Sem parcialidade.” A sabedoria divina dá forças para se superar o preconceito racial e o orgulho nacional. Se formos guiados por ela, nos esforçaremos a eliminar do coração toda tendência de mostrar favoritismo. (Tiago 2:9) Não favoreceremos outros em virtude da sua formação educacional, condição financeira ou responsabilidade congregacional; nem desprezaremos companheiros de adoração, não importa o quanto pareçam humildes. Se Jeová demonstrou o Seu amor por eles, sem dúvida devemos considerá-los dignos do nosso amor.

[19] “Sem hipocrisia.” A palavra grega para “hipócrita” pode significar “aquele que faz o papel de ator”. No passado, os atores gregos e romanos usavam grandes máscaras quando representavam. Assim, a palavra grega para “hipócrita” passou a ser usada para quem é fingido ou falso. Sabermos que a sabedoria divina é “sem hipocrisia” deve influenciar não só o modo como tratamos nossos companheiros de adoração, mas também como nos sentimos em relação a eles.

[20] O apóstolo Pedro mencionou que nossa "obediência à verdade" deve resultar em "afeição fraternal sem hipocrisia". (1 Pedro 1:22) De modo que nossa afeição pelos irmãos não pode ser apenas da boca para fora. Não devemos 'usar máscaras' nem 'desempenhar um papel' para enganar outros. Nossa afeição precisa ser genuína, de coração. Assim, conquistaremos a confiança de nossos concrentes, porque eles perceberão que somos exatamente o que parecemos ser, ou seja, sinceros. Isso nos possibilitará ter relacionamentos abertos e honestos com outros cristãos e criará um clima de confiança na congregação.

“Resguarda a sabedoria prática”

[22] Como podemos resguardar a sabedoria prática? Além de ler regularmente a Bíblia e as publicações baseadas nela, fornecidas pelo “escravo fiel e discreto”, devemos nos empenhar em aplicar o que aprendemos. (Mateus 24:45) Temos motivos de sobra para fazer isso. A sabedoria divina torna a nossa vida muito melhor agora. Permite que nos ‘apeguemos firmemente à verdadeira vida’, quer dizer, à vida no novo mundo de Deus. (1 Timóteo 6:19) E, o mais importante de tudo, cultivar a sabedoria de cima nos achega à fonte de toda a sabedoria, Jeová Deus.

“DEUS É AMOR”

De todas as qualidades de Jeová, o amor é a principal. É também a mais atraente. Ao examinarmos algumas das lindas facetas dessa qualidade preciosa, entenderemos melhor por que a Bíblia diz que “Deus é amor”. — 1 João 4:8.

CAPÍTULO 23

"Ele nos amou primeiro"

QUASE 2 mil anos atrás, um homem inocente foi julgado, condenado por crimes que não cometera e torturado até à morte. Essa não foi a primeira execução cruel e injusta da História — nem a última, infelizmente. Mas aquela morte foi diferente de todas as outras.

[2] À medida que aquele homem sofria suas agonizantes horas finais, viram-se indícios no próprio céu de que se tratava de um acontecimento incomum. Embora fosse o meio do dia, subitamente uma escuridão cobriu a terra, ou, como descreveu um historiador, "a luz do sol falhou". (Lucas 23:44, 45) Daí, pouco antes de dar seu último suspiro, aquele homem proferiu estas palavras inesquecíveis: "Está consumado!" Na verdade, ao dar sua vida, ele consumou, ou realizou, algo maravilhoso. Seu sacrifício foi o maior ato de amor já realizado por qualquer ser humano. — João 15:13; 19:30.

[3] Aquele homem, naturalmente, era Jesus Cristo. Seu sofrimento e morte naquele dia sombrio, 14 de nisã de 33 EC, são bem conhecidos. Mas um fato importante é frequentemente ignorado: embora Jesus sofresse muito, houve alguém que sofreu mais do que ele. De fato, naquele dia outra pessoa fez um sacrifício ainda maior, o maior ato de amor já feito por qualquer pessoa no Universo inteiro. Qual foi? A resposta a essa pergunta servirá de introdução apropriada para começarmos a analisar o mais importante de todos os assuntos: o amor de Jeová.

1-3. Quais são alguns fatores que tornaram a morte de Jesus diferente de todas as outras na História?

O maior ato de amor

[4] O centurião romano que supervisionou a execução de Jesus ficou assombrado tanto com a escuridão que precedeu sua morte como com o fortíssimo terremoto que se seguiu. "Certamente este era o Filho de Deus", disse ele. (Mateus 27:54) É evidente que Jesus não era um homem comum. Aquele soldado havia ajudado a executar o Filho unigênito do Deus Altíssimo! Qual a intensidade do amor que o Pai sentia por seu Filho?

[5] A Bíblia chama Jesus de "primogênito de toda a criação". (Colossenses 1:15) Imagine: o Filho de Jeová existia antes de ser criado o Universo físico. Então, por quanto tempo Pai e Filho estiveram juntos? Alguns cientistas calculam a idade do Universo em 13 bilhões

4. Como um soldado romano percebeu que Jesus não era um homem comum e a que conclusão chegou?

5. Como se pode ilustrar a imensa duração do tempo que Jeová e seu Filho passaram juntos no céu?

de anos. Consegue imaginar todo esse tempo? Para ajudar as pessoas a entender a idade do Universo, conforme calculada pelos cientistas, certo planetário tem uma linha do tempo de 110 metros de comprimento. Os visitantes caminham ao longo dessa linha e cada passo deles representa cerca de 75 milhões de anos na existência do Universo. No fim da linha do tempo, toda a História humana é representada por uma única marca da espessura de um fio de cabelo humano! Mesmo que essa estimativa esteja correta, aquela inteira linha do tempo não é suficiente para representar a duração da vida do Filho de Jeová! O que ele fazia durante todas aquelas eras?

[6] O Filho alegremente serviu como "mestre de obras" do Pai. (Provérbios 8:30) A Bíblia diz: "À parte [do Filho] nem mesmo uma só coisa veio à existência." (João 1:3) De modo que Jeová e seu Filho, trabalhando em conjunto, fizeram tudo que existe. Quantos momentos emocionantes e felizes passaram juntos! Pois bem, a maioria das pessoas reconhece que o amor entre pais e filhos é extremamente forte. E o amor "é o perfeito vínculo de união". (Colossenses 3:14) Assim, será que algum de nós consegue sequer imaginar como é forte a ligação — desenvolvida ao longo de tanto tempo — entre Jeová Deus e seu Filho? É óbvio que eles estão unidos pelo mais forte vínculo de amor que já existiu.

[7] Mesmo assim, Jeová enviou seu Filho para a Terra, onde nasceu como bebê humano. Ao fazer isso, o Pai abriu mão, por algumas décadas, do companheirismo achegado com seu Filho amado no céu. Com grande interesse, observou desde o céu Jesus crescer até se tornar um homem perfeito. Com cerca de 30 anos de idade, Jesus foi batizado. Não é preciso tentar adivinhar como Jeová se sentiu em relação a ele. O Pai em pessoa falou desde o céu: "Este é meu Filho, o amado, a quem tenho aprovado." (Mateus 3:17) Como deve ter ficado contente ao ver Jesus cumprir fielmente tudo o que havia sido profetizado, tudo o que lhe havia sido pedido! — João 5:36; 17:4.

[8] Mas como Jeová se sentiu em 14 de nisã de 33 EC quando Jesus foi traído e preso por uma turba à noite; quando foi abandonado por seus amigos e submetido a um julgamento ilegal; quando o ridicularizaram, cuspi-ram nele e o esmurraram; quando foi açoitado, até que suas costas ficaram em carne viva; quando pregaram as mãos e os pés em um poste de madeira e ele foi pendurado para morrer, ao passo que as pessoas zombavam dele? Como o Pai se sentiu quando seu Filho amado, agonizando, clamou a ele? Como Jeová se sentiu quando Jesus deu seu último suspiro, quando, pela primeira vez desde o início de toda a criação, Seu Filho querido não existia mais? — Mateus 26:14-16, 46, 47, 56, 59, 67; 27:38-44, 46; João 19:1.

9 É impossível descrever apropriadamente os sentimentos de Jeová. Não há palavras para expressar a dor que ele sentiu com a morte de seu Filho. Mas o que pode ser explicado é o motivo de Jeová ter permitido que isso acontecesse. Por que o Pai se submeteu a esses sentimentos? Em João 3:16, um versículo bíblico tão importante que já foi chamado de "o Evangelho em miniatura", Jeová nos faz uma revelação maravilhosa, dizendo: "Deus amou tanto o mundo, que deu o seu Filho unigênito, a fim de que todo aquele que nele exercer fé não seja destruído, mas tenha vida eterna." Assim, Jeová se sujeitou a todo aquele sofrimento por um só motivo: amor. Aquela dádiva de Deus — enviar seu Filho para sofrer e morrer por nós — foi o maior ato de amor de todos os tempos.

Como se define o amor divino?

[10] O que significa a palavra "amor"? O amor já foi descrito como a maior necessidade humana. Do berço ao túmulo, as pessoas o procuram, se desenvolvem sob sua influência e até definham e morrem por falta dele. Mesmo assim, é incrivelmente difícil defini-lo. É claro que as pessoas falam de amor o tempo todo. Incontáveis livros, canções e poemas são lançados sobre esse tema. Mas isso não ajuda a compreendê-lo melhor. Na verdade, a palavra é usada com tanta frequência que parece cada vez mais difícil descobrir o que realmente significa.

[11] A Bíblia, porém, explica claramente o que é o amor. Um dicionário de termos bíblicos diz: "O amor só pode ser conhecido pelas ações que promove." (Expository Dictionary of New Testament Words, de Vine) O registro bíblico sobre as ações de Jeová nos ensina muito sobre seu amor, a afeição bondosa que ele sente por suas criaturas. Por exemplo, já analisamos o supremo ato de amor de Jeová. Consegue pensar em uma maneira me-

lhor de aprendermos sobre essa qualidade? Nos capítulos seguintes, veremos muitos outros exemplos do amor de Jeová em ação. Além disso, analisarmos as palavras originais para "amor" usadas na Bíblia nos ajudará a compreender melhor essa qualidade. No grego antigo, havia quatro palavras para "amor".* Dessas, a mais frequentemente usada nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs é a·gá·pe. Um dicionário bíblico diz que essa é "a mais poderosa palavra imaginável para amor". Por quê?

12 A·gá·pe se refere a amor guiado por princípios. Assim, é mais do que apenas uma reação emocional em relação a outra pessoa. Seu alcance é maior; ele é mais absorvente e envolve reflexão. Acima de tudo, a·gá·pe é totalmente abnegado. Por exemplo, leia novamente João 3:16. O que é "o mundo" que Deus amou tanto que deu seu Filho unigênito por ele? É o mundo da humanidade que pode ser resgatada. Inclui muitas pessoas que levam uma vida de pecado. Será que Jeová ama a cada uma delas como amigos pessoais, assim como amou o fiel Abraão? (Tiago 2:23) Não, mas Jeová amorosamente demonstra bondade a todos, mesmo que isso envolva grandes sacrifícios para si mesmo. Ele deseja que todos se arrependam e mudem de vida. (2 Pedro 3:9) Muitos fazem isso, e Ele tem prazer em acolher a esses como seus amigos.

* O verbo fi·lé·o, que significa "ter afeição por ou gostar de (como de um amigo achegado ou irmão)", é usado com frequência nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs. Uma forma da palavra stor·gé, o amor por parentes achegados, é usada em 2 Timóteo 3:3 para mostrar que esse amor estaria em falta nos últimos dias. É·ros, o amor romântico entre os sexos, não é um termo usado nas Escrituras Gregas Cristãs, embora esse tipo de amor seja mencionado na Bíblia. — Provérbios 5:15-20.

[13] Alguns, porém, têm um conceito errado sobre a·gá-pe. Acham que se trata de um tipo de amor frio e intelectual. Na verdade, a·gá·pe muitas vezes inclui calorosa afeição pessoal. Por exemplo, quando João escreveu: "O Pai ama o Filho", usou uma forma da palavra a·gá-pe. Será que esse amor não inclui a afeição? Note que Jesus disse: "O Pai tem afeição pelo Filho", usando uma forma da palavra fi·lé·o. (João 3:35; 5:20) O amor de Jeová muitas vezes inclui terna afeição. Mas essa qualidade dele nunca é influenciada por mero sentimentalismo; sempre é guiada por princípios sábios e justos.

[14] Como vimos, todas as qualidades de Jeová são inigualáveis, perfeitas e atraentes. Mas a que mais nos atrai a Ele é o amor. Felizmente, esta é também Sua qualidade dominante. Como sabemos disso?

"Deus é amor"

[15] A Bíblia usa uma expressão, a respeito do amor, que

13, 14. O que mostra que a·gá·pe muitas vezes inclui afeição calorosa?
15. Que declaração a Bíblia faz sobre o atributo do amor de Jeová, e em que sentido essa declaração é única? (Veja também a nota.)

nunca utiliza para descrever nenhum dos outros atributos principais de Jeová. As Escrituras não dizem que Deus é poder, que Deus é justiça nem mesmo que Deus é sabedoria. Ele possui essas qualidades, é a derradeira fonte delas e, no que se refere a demonstrá-las, ninguém se compara a ele. Mas a respeito do quarto atributo, usa-se uma expressão que dá o que pensar: "Deus é amor."* (1 João 4:8) O que isso significa?

16 A expressão "Deus é amor" não se trata de uma espécie de fórmula matemática, como se a Bíblia quisesse dizer que "Deus é igual a amor". Além disso, não se pode inverter a ordem da frase; seria incorreto dizer: "O amor é Deus." Jeová é muito mais do que uma qualidade abstrata. Ele é uma pessoa com muitos sentimentos e características além do amor. Mas essa qualidade é parte fundamental de Deus como pessoa. Por isso, uma obra de referência diz o seguinte sobre esse versículo: "O amor está na própria essência ou natureza de Deus."

* Outras declarações bíblicas têm estrutura semelhante. Por exemplo, "Deus é luz" e "Deus é . . . um fogo consumidor". (1 João 1:5; Hebreus 12:29) Mas essas devem ser entendidas como metáforas, pois comparam Jeová a coisas físicas. Ele é como a luz, pois é santo e reto. A "escuridão", ou impureza, não tem nada que ver com ele. E ele pode ser comparado ao fogo, porque pode usar seu poder de forma destrutiva.

16-18. (a) Por que a Bíblia diz que "Deus é amor"? (b) De todas as criaturas na Terra, por que o homem é um símbolo apropriado do atributo divino do amor?

De modo geral, podemos entender a questão da seguinte maneira: o poder de Jeová lhe possibilita agir; a justiça e a sabedoria guiam seus atos; mas é o amor que o motiva a agir. E, quando usa seus outros atributos, Jeová sempre inclui o amor.

17 Muitas vezes se diz que Jeová é a própria personificação do amor. Assim, se quisermos aprender a respeito desse amor baseado em princípios, temos de aprender sobre Ele. É claro que os humanos também são capazes de demonstrar essa bela qualidade. Por quê? Na época da criação, Jeová falou, evidentemente ao seu Filho: "Façamos o homem à nossa imagem, segundo a nossa semelhança." (Gênesis 1:26) De todas as criaturas na Terra, apenas o ser humano pode decidir amar e, assim, imitar seu Pai celestial. Lembre-se de que Jeová usou várias criaturas para simbolizar seus atributos principais. Mas escolheu sua mais elevada criação terrestre, o homem, como símbolo de Sua qualidade dominante, o amor. — Ezequiel 1:10.

18 Se nosso amor for altruísta e baseado em princípios, estaremos refletindo a qualidade dominante de Jeová. É exatamente como o apóstolo João escreveu: "Quanto a nós, amamos porque ele nos amou primeiro." (1 João 4:19) Mas de que maneiras Jeová nos amou primeiro?

Jeová tomou a iniciativa

[19] O amor não é algo novo. Afinal, o que levou Jeová a começar a criar? Não foi solidão nem necessidade de companhia. Jeová é completo e perfeito em si mesmo; não lhe falta nada que outra pessoa possa suprir. Mas seu amor, uma qualidade ativa, o motivou a querer partilhar as alegrias da vida com criaturas inteligentes, capazes de apreciar essa dádiva. “O princípio da criação de Deus” foi seu Filho unigênito. (Revelação [Apocalipse] 3:14) Daí, Jeová usou esse Mestre de Obras para trazer todas as outras coisas à existência, a começar pelos anjos. (Jó 38:4, 7; Colossenses 1:16) Abençoados com liberdade, inteligência e sentimentos, esses espíritos poderosos tiveram a oportunidade de formar seus próprios laços de amor: uns com os outros e, acima de tudo, com Jeová Deus. (2 Coríntios 3:17) Assim, amaram porque foram amados primeiro.

[20] O mesmo se deu com a humanidade. Desde o início, Adão e Eva estavam praticamente cercados de amor. Para todo lado que olhassem no seu lar paradisíaco, o Éden, podiam ver provas do amor de seu Pai por eles. A Bíblia diz: “Jeová Deus plantou um jardim no Éden, do lado do oriente, e ali pôs o homem que havia formado.” (Gênesis

Da música de fundo produzida pelo murmúrio de um riacho, pelo canto dos pássaros e pelo zumbido dos insetos? Do perfume de árvores, flores e frutos? Seja como for, nenhum parque de hoje chega aos pés do Éden. Por quê?

companheirismo perfeito. Jeová os amou primeiro e eles tinham motivos de sobra para retribuir esse amor. Mas não fizeram isso. Em vez de amorosamente obedecer ao seu Pai celestial, eles, de forma egoísta, se rebelaram contra Ele. — Gênesis, capítulo 2.

[22] Como isso deve ter sido doloroso para Jeová! Mas será que Jeová ficou ressentido por causa dessa rebelião? Não! "Sua benevolência [ou, "amor leal", nota, NM com Referências] é por tempo indefinido." (Salmo 136:1) Assim, de forma amorosa, ele imediatamente tomou providências para resgatar os descendentes de Adão e Eva que tivessem a disposição correta. Como vimos, entre esses preparativos estava o sacrifício de resgate de Seu Filho amado, que lhe custou tão caro. — 1 João 4:10.

[23] De fato, desde o início Jeová tomou a iniciativa de mostrar amor à humanidade. De incontáveis maneiras, "ele nos amou primeiro". O amor promove harmonia e alegria, de modo que não é de admirar que Jeová seja descrito como o "Deus feliz". (1 Timóteo 1:11) Mas surge uma pergunta importante: Será que Jeová realmente nos ama em base individual? O próximo capítulo tratará dessa questão.

Nada pode "nos separar do amor de Deus"

SERÁ que Jeová Deus ama você como pessoa? Alguns concordam que Deus ama a humanidade em geral, conforme diz João 3:16, mas pensam: "Deus nunca poderia amar a mim como indivíduo." Até mesmo cristãos verdadeiros vez por outra têm dúvidas a esse respeito. Um homem desanimado disse: "Acho muito difícil crer que Deus se importe comigo." Sente dúvidas como essas de vez em quando?

[2] O que Satanás mais deseja é fazer-nos acreditar que Jeová Deus não nos ama nem nos dá valor. É verdade que muitas vezes ele seduz as pessoas apelando para a vaidade e o orgulho. (2 Coríntios 11:3) Mas ele também tem prazer em destruir o amor-próprio das pessoas mais vulneráveis. (João 7:47-49; 8:13, 44) Isso se dá, em especial, nestes "últimos dias" críticos. Muitos hoje são criados em famílias "sem afeição natural"; outros têm tratos diários com gente violenta, egoísta e teimosa. (2 Timóteo

1. Que sentimentos negativos afligem muitas pessoas, incluindo alguns cristãos verdadeiros?
2, 3. Quem deseja que acreditemos que, aos olhos de Jeová, somos inúteis ou que não merecemos ser amados? Como podemos combater essa ideia?

3:1-5) Anos de maus-tratos, racismo ou ódio talvez os tenham convencido de que não valem nada e que não merecem ser amados.

[3] Se você tiver esses sentimentos negativos no íntimo, não se desespere. Muitos de nós, de vez em quando, somos um pouco duros demais com nós mesmos. Mas lembre-se de que a Palavra de Deus serve para "endireitar as coisas" e "demolir as coisas fortemente entrincheiradas". (2 Timóteo 3:16; 2 Coríntios 10:4) A Bíblia diz: "Asseguraremos os nossos corações diante dele quanto a tudo em que os nossos corações nos possam condenar, porque Deus é maior do que os nossos corações e ele sabe todas as coisas." (1 João 3:19, 20) Vamos analisar, então, quatro maneiras em que as Escrituras nos ajudam a 'assegurar o nosso coração' do amor de Jeová.

Jeová o considera precioso

[4] Primeiro, a Bíblia ensina de forma bem direta que Deus dá valor a cada um de seus servos. Por exemplo, Jesus disse: "Não se vendem dois pardais por uma moeda de pequeno valor? Contudo, nem mesmo um deles cairá ao chão sem o conhecimento de vosso Pai. Porém, os próprios cabelos de vossa cabeça estão todos contados. Portanto, não temais; vós valeis mais do que muitos pardais."

4, 5. Como a ilustração de Jesus sobre os pardais mostra que temos valor aos olhos de Jeová?

(Mateus 10:29-31) Vejamos o que essas palavras significavam para os ouvintes de Jesus no primeiro século.

[5] Talvez você se pergunte por que alguém compraria um pardal. Acontece que, nos dias de Jesus, o pardal era a ave mais barata vendida como alimento. Note que, com uma moeda de pouco valor, o comprador podia levar dois pardais. Mais tarde, porém, Jesus declarou que, se a pessoa tivesse duas moedas, poderia comprar, não quatro pardais, mas cinco. O pássaro extra era acrescentado como se não tivesse nenhum valor. Talvez essas criaturas fossem sem valor aos olhos dos homens, mas como o Criador as encarava? Jesus disse: "Nem mesmo um deles [nem mesmo o pássaro extra] está esquecido diante de Deus." (Lucas 12:6, 7) Com isso, começamos a entender o que Jesus queria dizer: se Jeová dá tanto valor a um único pardal, quanto mais valioso ele deve considerar um ser humano! Como Jesus explicou, Deus sabe de todos os detalhes a nosso respeito. Ora, até os nossos cabelos estão contados!

[6] Nossos cabelos estão contados? Alguns acham essa ilustração de Jesus um pouco fantasiosa. Mas pense na esperança da ressurreição. Jeová deve nos conhecer muito bem para poder nos recriar. Ele nos considera tão valiosos que se lembra de cada detalhe, incluindo nosso có-digo genético, todos os nossos anos de lembranças e as coisas que passamos na vida.* Em comparação com isso, contar nossos cabelos (em média a cabeça humana tem uns 100 mil fios) seria uma façanha simples.

O que Jeová vê em nós?

[7] Em segundo lugar, a Bíblia ensina-nos o que Jeová aprecia nos seus servos: em termos simples, nossas boas qualidades e nossos esforços. O Rei Davi disse ao seu filho Salomão: "Jeová sonda todos os corações e discerne toda inclinação dos pensamentos." (1 Crônicas 28:9) Ao sondar bilhões de corações humanos neste mundo violento e cheio de ódio, como Jeová deve ficar contente quando encontra um coração que ama a paz, a verdade e a justiça! O que acontece quando Deus encontra um coração cheio de amor por ele, que procura aprender sobre ele e transmitir esse conhecimento a outros? Jeová nos informa que ele presta atenção aos que falam com outros a Seu respeito. Ele até mesmo tem "um livro de recordação" para todos 'os que temem a Jeová e para os que

* A Bíblia vez após vez relaciona a esperança da ressurreição com a memória de Jeová. O fiel Jó lhe disse: "Quem dera que . . . me fixasses um limite de tempo e te lembrasses de mim!" (Jó 14:13) Jesus falou da ressurreição de "todos os que estão nos túmulos memoriais". Isso é apropriado porque Jeová se lembra perfeitamente dos mortos que ele vai ressuscitar. — João 5:28, 29.

7, 8. (a) Ao sondar o coração dos humanos, Jeová fica contente quando se depara com que qualidades? (b) Quais são algumas das nossas obras a que Jeová dá valor?

pensam no seu nome'. (Malaquias 3:16) Para ele, essas qualidades são preciosas.

[8] Quais são algumas das boas obras a que Jeová dá valor? Sem dúvida, aos esforços que fazemos para imitar o seu Filho, Jesus Cristo. (1 Pedro 2:21) Uma obra muito importante que Deus aprecia é a divulgação das boas novas do Reino. Lemos, em Romanos 10:15: "Quão lindos são os pés daqueles que declaram boas novas de coisas boas!" Normalmente talvez não consideremos nossos humildes pés como "lindos", ou belos. Mas aqui eles representam os esforços dos servos de Jeová para pregar as boas novas. Esse empenho é belo e precioso aos Seus olhos. — Mateus 24:14; 28:19, 20.

[9] Jeová também dá valor à nossa perseverança. (Mateus 24:13) Lembre-se de que Satanás quer que você dê as costas a Jeová. Cada dia que você permanece leal a Deus é mais um dia em que ajudou a dar uma resposta às zombarias de Satanás. (Provérbios 27:11) Nem sempre é fácil perseverar. Problemas de saúde, dificuldades financeiras, aflição emocional e outros obstáculos podem tornar cada dia que passa uma provação. Expectativas adiadas também podem ser muito desanimadoras. (Provérbios 13:12) Quando nos mantemos firmes em face dessas provações, Jeová dá ainda mais valor à nossa perseverança. Foi por isso que o Rei Davi pediu que Deus guardasse suas lágrimas num "odre" e acrescentou, confiante: "Não estão no teu livro?" (Salmo 56:8) Sem dúvida, Jeová dá muito valor a todas as nossas lágrimas e aos sofrimentos que suportamos ao manter nossa lealdade a ele, não se esquecendo disso. São coisas valiosas aos seus olhos.

10 Mas talvez achemos difícil aceitar essas provas de nosso valor aos olhos de Deus se o nosso coração nos condena. Ele talvez sussurre insistentemente: 'Mas há tantos outros que são mais exemplares do que eu. Como Jeová deve ficar desapontado quando me compara com eles!' Mas o Criador não faz comparações, nem tem um conceito rígido ou severo. (Gálatas 6:4) Ele examina a fundo os corações humanos e dá valor às boas qualidades, mesmo que sejam mínimas.

Jeová procura o que temos de bom

11 Terceiro, quando Jeová nos examina, ele procura cuidadosamente o que temos de bom. Por exemplo, quando decretou que toda a dinastia apóstata do Rei Jeroboão fosse executada, Ele ordenou que Abias, um dos filhos do rei, recebesse um enterro decente. Por quê? "Nele se achou algo de bom para com Jeová, o Deus de Israel."

11. Ao analisar o modo como Jeová lidou com Abias, o que aprendemos sobre nosso Criador?

(1 Reis 14:1, 10-13) Jeová, na verdade, examinou o coração daquele jovem e encontrou "algo de bom" nele. Talvez se tratasse de muito pouca bondade, mas mesmo assim Deus considerou apropriado registrar isso na sua Palavra. Ele até recompensou aquele único membro de uma família apóstata, mostrando-lhe a misericórdia que julgou apropriada.

[12] Há um exemplo ainda mais positivo: o do bom Rei Jeosafá. Quando ele cometeu um ato tolo, o profeta de Jeová lhe disse: "Por isso há indignação contra ti da parte da pessoa de Jeová." De fato, palavras preocupantes! Mas a mensagem de Jeová não parou por aí. Acrescentou: "Não obstante, acharam-se boas coisas contigo." (2 Crônicas 19:1-3) De modo que, apesar de sua ira justa, Jeová não ficou cego para com a bondade de Jeosafá. Como isso é diferente do modo como agem os humanos imperfeitos! Quando ficamos aborrecidos com outros, nossa tendência é desconsiderar o que eles têm de bom. E, quando pecamos, o desapontamento, a vergonha e a culpa que sentimos nos fazem esquecer das boas qualidades que nós mesmos temos. Lembre-se, porém, de que, se nos arrependermos de nossos pecados e fizermos bastante esforço para não repeti-los, Jeová nos perdoará.

12, 13. (a) Como o caso do Rei Jeosafá mostra que Jeová procura o que temos de bom mesmo quando pecamos? (b) No que se refere a nossas boas obras e qualidades, em que sentido Jeová age como um Pai amoroso?

[13] Quando nos examina, Jeová põe de lado esses pecados, mais ou menos como um minerador à procura de ouro descarta o cascalho sem valor. E o que faz com nossas boas qualidades e obras? Ah, essas são as "pepitas" que ele guarda. Já notou que pais amorosos muitas vezes guardam os desenhos e trabalhos escolares dos filhos — às vezes por décadas, quando os filhos até já se esqueceram deles? Jeová é o Pai mais amoroso que existe. Se permanecermos fiéis, ele nunca se esquecerá de nossas boas obras e qualidades. De fato, ele consideraria uma injustiça esquecer-se delas — e ele nunca é injusto. (Hebreus 6:10) Jeová também procura o que temos de bom de outra maneira.

[14] Em vez de se concentrar em nossas imperfeições, Jeová vê o nosso potencial. Para ilustrar: os amantes da arte não medem esforços para restaurar pinturas ou outras obras seriamente danificadas. Por exemplo, quando alguém danificou com uma espingarda um esboço de Leonardo da Vinci, avaliado em mais de 30 milhões de dólares, na Galeria Nacional, em Londres, ninguém sugeriu que o desenho fosse jogado fora só porque estava danificado. O trabalho de restauração da obra-prima de quase 500 anos começou imediatamente. Por quê? Porque ela era preciosa para os amantes da arte. Será que você não vale mais do que um desenho a giz e carvão? Aos olhos de Deus, sem dúvida vale — não importa quanto a imperfeição herdada o tenha danificado. (Salmo 72:12-14) Jeová Deus, o perito Criador da família humana, fará o que for preciso para restabelecer à perfeição todos os que corresponderem ao seu cuidado amoroso. — Atos 3:21; Romanos 8:20-22.

15 É evidente que Jeová vê o que cada um de nós tem de bom, mesmo que nós não vejamos isso. E à medida que o servirmos, ele fará com que aquilo que temos de bom aumente até que, por fim, alcancemos a perfeição. Não importa como o mundo de Satanás tenha nos tratado, Jeová considera seus servos fiéis como desejáveis, ou preciosos. — Ageu 2:7, nota, NM com Referências.

Jeová demonstra seu amor de forma ativa

16 Em quarto lugar, Jeová faz muitas coisas para provar seu amor por nós. Sem dúvida, a melhor resposta à mentira satânica de que nós não valemos nada e que não merecemos ser amados é o sacrifício resgatador de Cristo. Nunca se esqueça de que a morte agonizante de Jesus na estaca de tortura e a agonia ainda maior que Jeová teve

16. Qual é a maior prova do amor de Jeová por nós, e como sabemos que essa dádiva foi feita para nós pessoalmente?

de suportar, observando a morte de seu Filho amado, foram prova do amor deles por nós. Infelizmente, muitas pessoas acham difícil aceitar que essa dádiva foi feita para elas pessoalmente. Sentem-se indignas. Lembre-se, porém, de que o apóstolo Paulo, que havia sido perseguidor dos seguidores de Cristo, escreveu: “O Filho de Deus . . . me amou e se entregou por mim.” — Gálatas 1:13; 2:20.

[17] Jeová nos dá provas de seu amor ajudando cada um de nós a tirar proveito do sacrifício de Cristo, que disse: “Ninguém pode vir a mim, a menos que o Pai, que me enviou, o atraia.” (João 6:44) Ou seja, Jeová pessoalmente nos atrai a seu Filho e à esperança de vida eterna. Como? Por meio da pregação, que alcança cada um de nós, e do seu espírito santo, que ele usa para nos ajudar a compreender e aplicar as verdades espirituais, apesar de nossas limitações e imperfeições. Por isso, Jeová pode dizer a nosso respeito o mesmo que disse sobre Israel: “Eu te amei com um amor por tempo indefinido. Por isso é que te atraí com benevolência.” — Jeremias 31:3.

17. De que maneiras Jeová nos atrai a si mesmo e ao seu Filho?

18, 19. (a) Por meio do que sentimos o amor de Jeová por nós de forma mais íntima, e o que mostra que ele cuida dessa atribuição pessoalmente? (b) Como a Palavra de Deus nos assegura que Jeová escuta com empatia?

que sentimos o amor de Jeová de forma mais íntima. A Bíblia convida cada um de nós a 'orar incessantemente' a Deus. (1 Tessalonicenses 5:17) Ele nos escuta. É até mesmo chamado de "Ouvinte de oração". (Salmo 65:2) Não delegou essa função a nenhuma outra pessoa — nem mesmo ao seu próprio Filho. Imagine: o Criador do Universo incentiva-nos a nos dirigir a ele em oração, com franqueza no falar. E que tipo de ouvinte ele é: frio, apático, insensível? De modo algum.

19 Jeová demonstra empatia. O que quer dizer essa palavra? Um fiel servo idoso de Jeová disse: "A empatia é a sua dor no meu coração." Será que Jeová é mesmo afetado pela nossa dor? A respeito do sofrimento de seu povo, Israel, lemos: "Durante toda a aflição deles, foi aflitivo para ele." (Isaías 63:9) Jeová não apenas via os problemas deles; ele sofria junto com seu povo. Comprovando quanto ele sente, note essas palavras do próprio Jeová aos seus servos: "Aquele que toca em vós, toca no globo do meu olho."* (Zacarias 2:8) Isso seria muito doloroso. De fato, Jeová compartilha a nossa dor. Quando sofremos, ele sofre junto.

* Algumas traduções desse texto dão a entender que quem toca no povo de Deus toca no próprio olho ou no olho de Israel, não no de Deus. Esse erro foi introduzido por escribas que consideravam esse trecho irreverente e, por isso, o "corrigiram". Esse esforço mal direcionado obscureceu a intensidade da empatia pessoal de Jeová.

Perguntas para Meditação

Salmo 139:1-24 Como as palavras inspiradas do Rei Davi mostram que Jeová está muito interessado em nós, como pessoas?

Isaías 43:3, 4, 10-13 Como Jeová se sente em relação aos que o servem como suas Testemunhas, e como esses sentimentos são expressos em ações?

Romanos 5:6-8 Por que podemos ter certeza de que nossa condição imperfeita não impede que o amor de Jeová nos alcance e nos beneficie?

Judas 17-25 Como podemos nos manter no amor de Deus? Que influências tornam difícil fazermos isso?

[20] Naturalmente, nenhum cristão equilibrado usaria essa evidência do amor e da estima de Deus como desculpa para demonstrar orgulho ou egoísmo. O apóstolo Paulo escreveu: "Por intermédio da benignidade imerecida que me foi dada, digo a cada um aí entre vós que não pense mais de si mesmo do que é necessário pensar; mas, que pense de modo a ter bom juízo, cada um conforme Deus lhe distribuiu uma medida de fé." (Romanos 12:3) Outra tradução diz assim: "Digo a todos vocês que não se achem melhores do que realmente são. Pelo contrário, pensem com humildade a respeito de vocês mesmos."

20. Se quisermos obedecer ao conselho de Romanos 12:3, que raciocínio desequilibrado deveremos evitar?

(Bíblia na Linguagem de Hoje) Assim, ao passo que desfrutamos do amor de nosso Pai celestial, devemos ser ajuizados e lembrar-nos de que o amor de Deus é imerecido. — Lucas 17:10.

[21] Façamos tudo ao nosso alcance para rejeitar todas as mentiras de Satanás, incluindo a de que não valemos nada e que não merecemos ser amados. Se por causa daquilo que passou na vida você se considera um obstáculo tão grande que nem mesmo o amor imenso de Deus pode superar, ou pensa que suas boas obras são insignificantes demais para serem notadas mesmo pelos olhos dele, que observam tudo, ou acha seus pecados graves demais para serem cobertos mesmo pela morte do Filho precioso dele, então lhe ensinaram uma mentira. Rejeite de todo o coração mentiras como essas! Que a verdade expressa nas palavras inspiradas do apóstolo Paulo nos ajude a nos 'assegurarmos', de coração, que Jeová nos ama! Ele disse: "Estou convencido de que nem a morte, nem a vida, nem anjos, nem governos, nem coisas presentes, nem coisas por vir, nem poderes, nem altura, nem profundidade, nem qualquer outra criação será capaz de nos separar do amor de Deus, que está em Cristo Jesus, nosso Senhor." — Romanos 8:38, 39.

A "terna compaixão de nosso Deus"

UM CHORO no meio da noite. Imediatamente, a mãe acorda. Desde que o bebê nasceu, ela nunca mais dormiu tão profundamente como antes. Além disso, aprendeu a identificar os diferentes choros do filho e, assim, sabe se ele quer mamar, ser embalado ou se precisa de alguma outra coisa. Mas não importa qual seja a razão do choro do bebê, a mãe sempre lhe dá atenção. Seu coração a impede de ignorar as necessidades da criança.

[2] A compaixão da mãe pelo filho está entre os sentimentos mais afetuosos conhecidos pelos humanos. Mas existe um sentimento infinitamente mais forte: a terna compaixão de nosso Deus, Jeová. Uma análise dessa qualidade maravilhosa ajudará a nos achegarmos mais a Ele. Vejamos, então, o que é compaixão e como nosso Deus a manifesta.

O que é compaixão?

[3] Na Bíblia, compaixão e misericórdia estão

1, 2. (a) Qual é a reação natural da mãe ao choro do bebê? (b) Que sentimento é mais forte do que a compaixão materna?
3. Qual é o significado do verbo hebraico traduzido "mostrar misericórdia" ou "ter pena"?

intimamente ligadas. Várias palavras hebraicas e gregas transmitem a ideia de terna compaixão. Veja, por exemplo, o verbo hebraico ra·hhám, frequentemente traduzido "mostrar misericórdia" ou "ter pena". Uma obra de referência explica que o verbo ra·hhám "expressa um sentimento profundo e terno de compaixão, tal como o que é provocado por vermos fraquezas ou sofrimentos naqueles que nos são queridos ou que precisam da nossa ajuda". Esse termo hebraico, que Jeová aplica a si mesmo, se relaciona com a palavra para "útero" e pode ser descrito como "compaixão maternal".* — Êxodo 33:19; Jeremias 33:26.

[4] A Bíblia usa os sentimentos que a mãe tem pelo bebê para nos ensinar o sentido da compaixão de Jeová. Em Isaías 49:15 lemos: "Haverá mãe que possa esquecer seu bebê que ainda mama e não ter compaixão [ra·hhám] do filho que gerou? Embora ela possa esquecê-lo, eu não me esquecerei de você!" (Nova Versão Internacional) Essa descrição emocionante destaca a intensidade da compaixão de Jeová pelo seu povo. Como assim?

* O interessante, porém, é que no Salmo 103:13 o verbo hebraico ra·hhám denota a misericórdia, ou compaixão, que um pai demonstra aos filhos.

4, 5. Como a Bíblia usa os sentimentos que a mãe tem pelo bebê para nos ensinar sobre a compaixão de Jeová?

[5] É difícil imaginar que uma mãe se esqueça de amamentar e cuidar do bebê. Afinal, a criança é indefesa e precisa da atenção e do afeto materno 24 horas por dia! Infelizmente, porém, a negligência materna não é tão incomum assim, em especial nestes "tempos críticos" marcados pela falta de "afeição natural". (2 Timóteo 3:1, 3) Mas Jeová diz: "Eu não me esquecerei de você!" A terna compaixão que Deus sente pelo seu povo é infalível. O mais afetuoso sentimento natural que conhecemos é a compaixão que a mãe costuma sentir pelo bebê. Mas a compaixão divina é incomparavelmente mais forte. Não é de admirar que um comentarista tenha dito o seguinte sobre Isaías 49:15: "Essa é uma das mais intensas (talvez a mais intensa) expressões do amor de Deus no Velho Testamento."

[6] Será que essa terna compaixão é sinal de fraqueza? Na opinião de muitos humanos imperfeitos, sim. Por exemplo, o filósofo romano Sêneca, contemporâneo de Jesus e um dos mais importantes intelectuais de Roma, ensinava que "sentir pena é uma fraqueza da mente". Sêneca era partidário do estoicismo, a filosofia que dava ênfase à calma desprovida de sentimentos. O sábio podia ajudar os necessitados, dizia ele, mas não devia ter pena, porque esse sentimento o privaria da serenidade. Segundo esse raciocínio egocêntrico, era inadmissível demonstrar compaixão de coração. Mas Jeová não é assim. Na sua Palavra, ele nos assegura que "é mui terno em afeição e é compassivo". (Tiago 5:11, nota, NM com Referências) Como veremos, a compaixão não é uma fraqueza, mas uma qualidade forte e vital. Analisemos como Jeová, igual a um pai ou uma mãe amorosos, a manifesta.

6. Qual é a opinião de muitos humanos imperfeitos a respeito da terna compaixão, mas do que Jeová nos assegura?

Jeová mostrou compaixão por uma nação

[7] Pode-se observar claramente a compaixão de Jeová no modo como ele lidou com a nação de Israel. No fim do século 16 AEC, milhões de israelitas eram escravos no Egito antigo. Ali, eram muito oprimidos, pois os egípcios "amarguravam-lhes a vida com dura escravidão, em argamassa argilosa e em tijolos". (Êxodo 1:11, 14) Por causa da aflição, os israelitas clamaram a Jeová por ajuda. Como o Deus de terna compaixão reagiu?

[8] A súplica do povo tocou o coração de Jeová. Ele

7, 8. Como os israelitas sofreram no Egito antigo, e qual foi a reação de Jeová aos sofrimentos deles?

disse: “Indubitavelmente, tenho visto a tribulação do meu povo que está no Egito e tenho ouvido seu clamor por causa daqueles que os compelem a trabalhar; porque eu bem sei das dores que sofrem.” (Êxodo 3:7) Jeová não conseguia ver o sofrimento do seu povo ou ouvir seus clamores sem sentir pena deles. Como vimos no Capítulo 24 deste livro, Jeová é um Deus de empatia. Essa qualidade — definida como a habilidade de sentir a dor dos outros — está intimamente ligada à compaixão. Mas, em vez de apenas sentir pena do seu povo, Jeová foi motivado a agir em favor dele. Isaías 63:9 diz: “Ele mesmo os resgatou no seu amor e na sua compaixão.” Com “mão forte”, Deus resgatou os israelitas do Egito. (Deuteronômio 4:34) Posteriormente, forneceu-lhes alimento de forma milagrosa e conduziu-os a uma terra fértil.

9 A compaixão de Jeová, porém, não parou por aí. Depois de se estabelecer na Terra Prometida, Israel repetidas vezes se tornou infiel e sofreu as consequências disso. Mas então o povo caía em si, suplicava a Jeová e ele os livrava, vez após vez. Por quê? ‘Porque tinha compaixão do seu povo.' — 2 Crônicas 36:15; Juízes 2:11-16.

[10] Veja o que aconteceu nos dias de Jefté. Visto que os israelitas haviam passado a adorar deuses falsos, Jeová permitiu que os amonitas os oprimissem por 18 anos. Por fim, se arrependeram. A Bíblia nos diz: "Começaram a remover os deuses estrangeiros do seu meio e a servir a Jeová, de modo que a alma dele ficou impaciente por causa da desgraça de Israel."* (Juízes 10:6-16) Uma vez que seu povo demonstrou arrependimento genuíno, Jeová não pôde mais suportar vê-los sofrer. De modo que o Deus de terna compaixão habilitou Jefté para livrar os israelitas das mãos de seus inimigos. — Juízes 11:30-33.

[11] O que os tratos de Jeová com a nação de Israel nos ensinam a respeito da terna compaixão? Primeiro, é fácil perceber que não se trata apenas de notar os problemas que as pessoas estão passando. Lembre-se do exemplo de compaixão da mãe que dá pronta atenção

* A expressão "a alma dele ficou impaciente" significa literalmente "sua alma foi encurtada; sua paciência se esgotou". A Bíblia Pastoral diz: "Não pôde mais suportar o sofrimento de Israel." A Bíblia — Mensagem de Deus traduz assim esse trecho: "Não tolerou mais a desgraça de Israel."

11. Quando analisamos os tratos de Jeová com os israelitas, o que aprendemos sobre a compaixão?

ao choro do bebê. De modo similar, Jeová não se faz de surdo diante das súplicas do seu povo. Sua terna compaixão o motiva a aliviar o sofrimento dele. Além disso, o modo como Jeová lidou com os israelitas nos ensina que a compaixão não é uma fraqueza, pois essa qualidade bondosa o levou a tomar ação firme e decisiva a favor do seu povo. Mas será que Jeová só mostra compaixão aos seus servos coletivamente?

Jeová demonstra compaixão em base individual

[12] A Lei que Deus deu à nação de Israel mostrou a compaixão que ele sente pelas pessoas em base individual. Um exemplo disso é sua preocupação com os pobres. Jeová sabia que, devido a circunstâncias inesperadas, um israelita poderia acabar se atolando na pobreza. Como os pobres deviam ser tratados? Jeová deu uma ordem direta aos israelitas: "Não deves endurecer teu coração, nem fechar a mão para com o teu irmão pobre. Deves terminantemente dar-lhe e teu coração não deve ser mesquinho ao lhe dares, porque é por esta razão que Jeová, teu Deus, te abençoará em todo ato teu." (Deuteronômio 15:7, 10) Deus também ordenou que não colhessem totalmente as beiradas

12. Como a Lei refletia a compaixão que Jeová sente pelas pessoas em base individual?

dos campos nem juntassem as sobras. A respiga deveria ser deixada para os menos favorecidos. (Levítico 23:22; Rute 2:2-7) Quando a nação de Israel obedecia a essas leis bondosas a favor dos pobres no seu meio, esses não precisavam mendigar por comida. Não concorda que isso refletia a terna compaixão de Jeová?

[13] Hoje também nosso Deus amoroso está profundamente interessado em nós como indivíduos. Podemos ter certeza de que ele está plenamente ciente de qualquer sofrimento que passemos. O salmista Davi escreveu: "Os olhos de Jeová estão atentos aos justos e seus ouvidos estão atentos ao seu clamor por ajuda. Perto está Jeová dos que têm coração quebrantado; e salva os que têm espírito esmagado." (Salmo 34:15, 18) Um comentarista bíblico disse o seguinte a respeito dos que são descritos nas palavras acima: "Têm o coração quebrantado e espírito contrito, isto é, o pecado os torna humildes e têm pouca autoestima; eles se acham insignificantes e não confiam nos próprios méritos." Talvez achem que Jeová está muito distante deles e que são insignificantes demais para que Deus se preocupe com eles. Mas não é bem assim. As palavras de Davi nos asseguram que Jeová não abandona os que “se acham insignificantes”. Nosso Deus compassivo sabe que, nessas ocasiões, precisamos dele mais do que nunca e ele está sempre perto de nós.

[14] Preste atenção à seguinte história: uma mãe nos Estados Unidos correu para o hospital com o filho de dois anos que estava com uma grave inflamação na garganta. Depois de examinar o menino, os médicos informaram a mãe de que, aquela noite, ele teria de ficar em observação no hospital. Onde você acha que a mãe passou a noite? Numa cadeira no quarto de hospital, ao lado do leito do filho! Seu filhinho estava doente e ela simplesmente tinha de ficar por perto. Sem dúvida, podemos esperar que nosso amoroso Pai celestial faça ainda mais por nós! Afinal, fomos criados à imagem dele. (Gênesis 1:26) As palavras comoventes do Salmo 34:18 nos dizem que, quando estamos com o “coração quebrantado” ou o “espírito esmagado”, Jeová, como um pai amoroso, ‘está perto’ — sempre compassivo e pronto para ajudar.

15. De que maneiras Jeová nos ajuda individualmente?

Mas ele fez muitas provisões para os que imploram a Sua ajuda. Sua Palavra, a Bíblia, fornece conselhos práticos que auxiliam bastante. Na congregação, Jeová providenciou que superintendentes espiritualmente qualificados, que se esforçam para refletir a compaixão divina, deem atenção aos seus companheiros de adoração. (Tiago 5:14, 15) Como "Ouvinte de oração", ele dará "espírito santo aos que lhe pedirem". (Salmo 65:2; Lucas 11:13) Esse espírito pode nos dar o "poder além do normal" a fim de perseverarmos até que o Reino de Deus remova todos os problemas estressantes. (2 Coríntios 4:7) Não somos gratos por tudo o que Jeová faz por nós? Não nos esqueçamos de que essas são demonstrações da terna compaixão de Deus.

16 Naturalmente, o maior exemplo da compaixão de Jeová é o fato de ele ter entregado seu Filho mais querido para nos resgatar. Foi um sacrifício amoroso da parte de Jeová e abriu caminho para a nossa salvação. Lembre-se de que o resgate se aplica a cada um de nós. Com toda a razão, Zacarias, pai de João Batista, predisse que essa dádiva magnificaria a "terna compaixão de nosso Deus". — Lucas 1:78.

16. Qual é o maior exemplo da compaixão de Jeová, e como nos afeta pessoalmente?

Quando Jeová se refreia de mostrar compaixão

[17] Quer dizer, então, que a terna compaixão de Jeová não tem limites? Muito pelo contrário, a Bíblia mostra claramente que, quando alguém se opõe aos modos corretos de Jeová, ele refreia-se de demonstrar compaixão — o que é bastante justo. (Hebreus 10:28) Para entender por que ele age assim, lembre-se do exemplo da nação de Israel.

[18] Embora vez após vez Jeová libertasse os israelitas dos seus inimigos, Sua compaixão por fim chegou ao limite. Aquele povo teimoso praticava idolatria a tal ponto que trazia seus ídolos repulsivos para dentro do templo de Jeová! (Ezequiel 5:11; 8:17, 18) Além disso, lemos: "Caçoavam continuamente dos mensageiros do verdadeiro Deus e desprezavam as suas palavras, e zombavam dos seus profetas até que subiu o furor de Jeová contra o seu povo, até que não havia mais cura." (2 Crônicas 36:16) Os israelitas chegaram a um ponto em que não havia mais base para compaixão. Despertaram a ira justa de Jeová. Qual foi o resultado?

[19] Jeová não pôde mais mostrar compaixão pelo seu povo. Declarou: "Não terei compaixão, nem terei dó, (Mateus 24:14) Ele ajuda os sinceros que aceitam essa mensagem a entender o sentido dela. (Atos 16:14) Mas essa obra não continuará para sempre. Não seria compassivo da parte de Jeová se ele permitisse que este mundo perverso, com toda a sua dor e sofrimento, continuasse existindo indefinidamente. Quando a compaixão divina atingir o limite, Jeová executará seu julgamento contra o atual sistema. Mesmo então, esse será um ato de compaixão — compaixão pelo seu "santo nome" e por seus servos dedicados. (Ezequiel 36:20-23) Jeová eliminará a maldade e introduzirá um novo mundo justo. Falando dos perversos, ele declara: "Meu olho não terá dó, nem terei compaixão. Hei de trazer o procedimento deles sobre a sua própria cabeça." — Ezequiel 9:10.

[21] Enquanto esse dia não chegar, Jeová continuará a sentir compaixão pelas pessoas, até pelas que se encaminham para a destruição. Os humanos pecadores que se arrependem sinceramente podem beneficiar-se de uma das maiores demonstrações da compaixão de Jeová: o seu perdão. No próximo capítulo, veremos algumas lindas ilustrações bíblicas que indicam o alcance do perdão divino.

Um Deus "pronto a perdoar"

"MEUS próprios erros passaram acima da minha cabeça", escreveu o salmista Davi. "Iguais a uma carga pesada, são pesados demais para mim. Fiquei entorpecido e quebrantado ao extremo." (Salmo 38:4, 8) Davi sabia que o fardo duma consciência culpada podia ser muito pesado. Mas ele obteve consolo para seu coração aflito. Estava ciente de que, embora odeie o pecado, Jeová não odeia o pecador, desde que este realmente se arrependa e rejeite seu proceder pecaminoso. Com plena fé na disposição de Jeová de conceder misericórdia aos arrependidos, Davi disse: "Tu, ó Jeová, . . . estás pronto a perdoar." — Salmo 86:5.

[2] Quando pecamos, talvez tenhamos de suportar, também, o fardo esmagador duma consciência pesada. Mas sentir remorso é saudável, porque pode induzir-nos a tomar medidas positivas para corrigir nossos erros. Há o perigo, contudo, de sermos esmagados pela culpa. Nosso coração talvez nos condene, insistindo que Jeová nunca nos perdoará, não importa quanto estejamos arrependidos. Se formos ‘tragados’ pela culpa, Satanás tentará nos fazer acreditar que Jeová nos considera inúteis ou que não somos dignos de servi-lo e que, portanto, só nos resta desistir. — 2 Coríntios 2:5-11.

[3] É isso que Jeová pensa? De modo algum! O perdão é um aspecto do seu grande amor. Em sua Palavra, ele nos assegura que, quando mostramos genuíno arrependimento de coração, ele está disposto a nos perdoar. (Provérbios 28:13) Para que nunca cheguemos à conclusão de que o perdão de Deus é inalcançável para nós, vamos examinar por que e como ele perdoa.

Por que Jeová está “pronto a perdoar”

[4] Jeová está ciente das nossas limitações. “Ele mesmo conhece bem a nossa formação, lembra-se de que somos pó”, diz o Salmo 103:14. Ele não se esquece de que somos criaturas de pó, fracas devido à imperfeição. A declaração de que ele conhece “a nossa formação” lembra-nos de que, na Bíblia, Jeová é comparado a um oleiro, e nós a vasos de barro que ele molda.* (Jeremias 18:2-6) O Grande Oleiro modera seus tratos conosco por causa da fragilidade de nossa natureza

* A palavra hebraica vertida “a nossa formação” também é usada com relação a vasos de barro moldados por um oleiro. — Isaías 29:16.

4. De que Jeová se lembra quanto à nossa natureza, e como isso afeta o modo como ele nos trata?

pecaminosa e de acordo com o modo como reagimos à sua orientação.

[5] Jeová entende o poder que o pecado exerce sobre nós. As Escrituras descrevem o pecado como uma força poderosa, que segura o homem nas suas garras mortíferas. Até que ponto vai o domínio do pecado? No livro de Romanos, o apóstolo Paulo explica: estamos "debaixo de pecado", assim como soldados estão sob a autoridade dum comandante (Romanos 3:9); ele tem 'reinado' sobre a humanidade (Romanos 5:21); "reside", ou "mora", em nós (Romanos 7:17, 20); sua "lei" opera continuamente em nós, na realidade, tentando controlar nosso modo de agir. (Romanos 7:23, 25) Que domínio poderoso o pecado exerce sobre nossa carne decaída! — Romanos 7:21, 24.

[6] Portanto, Jeová sabe que para nós é impossível sermos perfeitamente obedientes, não importa quanto tentemos. Ele nos assegura amorosamente que, se buscarmos sua misericórdia com o coração arrependido, ele nos concederá o perdão. O Salmo 51:17 diz: "Os sacrifícios a Deus são um espírito quebrantado; um coração quebrantado e esmagado não desprezarás, ó Deus." Jeová nunca rejeitará ou repudiará um coração "quebrantado e esmagado" pelo fardo da culpa.

[7] Significa isso, porém, que podemos abusar da misericórdia de Deus, usando nossa natureza pecaminosa como desculpa para o pecado? De modo algum! Jeová não é governado por mero sentimentalismo. Sua misericórdia tem limites. Ele de modo algum perdoará os que obstinadamente praticam pecados de forma deliberada sem mostrar arrependimento. (Hebreus 10:26) Por outro lado, quando detecta arrependimento de coração, ele está pronto a perdoar. Vamos analisar agora algumas das expressões vívidas usadas na Bíblia para descrever essa maravilhosa faceta do amor de Jeová.

Até que ponto vai o perdão de Jeová?

[8] O arrependido Davi disse: "Finalmente te confessei meu pecado e não encobri meu erro. . . . E tu mesmo perdoaste o erro dos meus pecados." (Salmo 32:5) A expressão "perdoaste" traduz uma palavra hebraica cujo sentido básico é "levantar" ou "levar". Conforme usada aqui, ela significa remover "a culpa, o pecado, a transgressão". De modo que Jeová como que levantou e levou embora os pecados de Davi. Sem dúvida, isso

8. O que podemos dizer que Jeová faz quando perdoa nossos pecados, e que confiança isso nos dá?

aliviou o sentimento de culpa que ele vinha suportando. (Salmo 32:3) Nós também podemos ter plena confiança em Deus, porque ele leva embora os pecados dos que procuram seu perdão à base da fé no sacrifício resgatador de Jesus. — Mateus 20:28.

[9] Davi usou outra expressão vívida para descrever o perdão de Jeová: "Tão longe quanto o leste está do oeste, para tão longe Ele removeu de nós as nossas transgressões." (O grifo é nosso; Salmo 103:12, The Amplified Bible) A que distância o leste fica do oeste? Pode-se dizer que eles estão no ponto mais distante um do outro; esses dois pontos cardeais nunca se encontram. Um erudito diz que essa expressão significa "o mais longe possível, o mais longe que alguém possa imaginar". As palavras inspiradas de Davi nos ensinam que, quando perdoa, Jeová coloca os nossos pecados o mais longe que podemos imaginar.

[10] Já tentou remover uma mancha de uma roupa clara? Talvez, apesar de todo o seu esforço, a mancha não tenha saído totalmente. Note como Jeová descreve Sua capacidade de perdoar: "Embora os vossos pecados se mostrem como escarlate, serão tornados brancos como

9. A que distância Jeová põe de nós os nossos pecados?

10. Quando Jeová perdoa nossos pecados, por que não devemos pensar que levaremos a mancha deles pelo resto da vida?

a neve; embora sejam vermelhos como pano carmesim, tornar-se-ão como a lã." (Isaías 1:18) A palavra "escarlate" refere-se a uma cor vermelha muito viva.* "Carmesim" era uma cor escura encontrada em tecidos tingidos. (Naum 2:3) Por meio de nossos próprios esforços, nunca seríamos capazes de remover a mancha do pecado. Mas Jeová pode remover pecados semelhantes a escarlate e carmesim, tornando-os brancos como a neve ou a lã não tingida. Quando Deus perdoa nossos pecados, não precisamos levar a mancha deles pelo resto da vida.

[11] Num comovente cântico de gratidão, composto depois de ele ter sido poupado de uma doença mortífera, Ezequias disse a Jeová: "Lançaste todos os meus pecados atrás das tuas costas." (Isaías 38:17) Aqui, descreve-se Jeová como que pegando os pecados do transgressor arrependido e jogando-os para trás de si, onde Ele não pode vê-los nem notá-los mais. Segundo um dicionário, a ideia desse texto pode ser expressa assim: "Acabaste com os [meus pecados] como se eles não tivessem acontecido." Não acha isso reanimador?

* Um erudito afirma que o escarlate "era uma cor firme, que não desbotava. Não saía com orvalho, chuva, lavagem nem com o uso".

11. Em que sentido Jeová joga nossos pecados atrás das costas?

[12] Numa profecia de restauração, o profeta Miqueias expressou a convicção de que Jeová perdoaria seu povo arrependido: “Quem é Deus como tu, . . . passando por alto a transgressão do restante da sua herança? . . . E a todos os seus pecados lançarás nas profundezas do mar.” (Miqueias 7:18, 19) Imagine o que essas palavras significavam para as pessoas dos tempos bíblicos. Havia alguma possibilidade de recuperar algo lançado “nas profundezas do mar”? Assim, as palavras de Miqueias indicam que, quando nos perdoa, Jeová remove nossos pecados permanentemente.

[13] Jesus usou o relacionamento entre credores e devedores para ilustrar como Jeová perdoa. Ele nos incentivou a orar: “Perdoa-nos as nossas dívidas.” (Mateus 6:12) Jesus compara assim pecados a dívidas. (Lucas 11:4) Quando pecamos, tornamo-nos “devedores” de Jeová. Uma obra de referência diz que o sentido do verbo grego traduzido ‘perdoar’ é “abrir mão ou desistir de uma dívida, não exigindo o pagamento”. Em certo sentido, quando Jeová perdoa, ele cancela a dívida que de outro modo seria lançada na nossa conta. De modo que os pecadores arrependidos podem consolar-

13. Qual é o sentido das palavras de Jesus: “Perdoa-nos as nossas dívidas”?

se. Jeová nunca exigirá o pagamento duma dívida que ele cancelou! — Salmo 32:1, 2.

[14] O perdão de Jeová é descrito adicionalmente em Atos 3:19: "Arrependei-vos, portanto, e dai meia-volta, a fim de que os vossos pecados sejam apagados." O trecho final é a tradução de um verbo grego que pode significar "'apagar', . . . 'cancelar' ou 'destruir'". Segundo alguns eruditos, a ideia expressa é a de apagar algo escrito à mão. Como se fazia isso? A tinta costumeiramente usada na antiguidade era feita duma mistura que incluía carvão, goma e água. Pouco depois de usá-la, a pessoa podia apagar a escrita com uma esponja úmida. Essa é uma bela maneira de ilustrar a misericórdia de Jeová. Quando ele perdoa nossos pecados, é como se os apagasse com uma esponja.

[15] Quando refletimos nessas ilustrações variadas, a que conclusão chegamos? Evidentemente, Jeová deseja que saibamos que ele está pronto a perdoar nossos pecados, desde que encontre em nós arrependimento sincero. Não precisamos temer que, no futuro, ele nos condene por esses pecados, porque a Bíblia revela algo mais sobre a grande misericórdia de Jeová: quando perdoa, ele esquece.

14. A expressão "que os vossos pecados sejam apagados" traz que ideia?
15. O que Jeová deseja que saibamos sobre ele?

“Não me lembrarei mais do seu pecado”

[16] A respeito dos que fazem parte do novo pacto, Jeová prometeu o seguinte: “Perdoarei seu erro e não me lembrarei mais do seu pecado.” (Jeremias 31:34) Será que isso significa que, quando perdoa, Jeová é incapaz de se lembrar dos pecados? É óbvio que não. A Bíblia nos fala dos pecados de muitos a quem Deus perdoou, incluindo Davi. (2 Samuel 11:1-17; 12:13) Sem dúvida, Jeová ainda está ciente dos erros que cometeram. O registro dos pecados deles, bem como do seu arrependimento e do perdão de Deus, foi preservado para nosso benefício. (Romanos 15:4) Então, o que se quer dizer quando a Bíblia afirma que Jeová ‘não se lembra’ dos pecados daqueles a quem perdoa?

[17] O verbo hebraico vertido “lembrarei” não significa apenas recordar o passado. Segundo o Dicionário Internacional de Teologia do Antigo Testamento, inclui “a implicação de agir em consonância com o pensamento”. Portanto, nesse sentido, “lembrar” pecados envolve agir contra pecadores. (Oseias 9:9) Mas quando Jeová diz: “Não me lembrarei mais do seu pecado”, ele nos assegura que, depois de perdoar a um pecador arrependido, não agirá contra ele no futuro por causa dos mesmos pecados. (Ezequiel 18:21, 22) Assim, ele esquece no sentido de não mencionar vez após vez os nossos pecados, acusando-nos ou punindo-nos repetidamente. Não acha consolador saber que Deus perdoa e esquece?

16, 17. Quando a Bíblia afirma que Jeová se esquece dos nossos pecados, o que quer dizer, e por que responde assim?

E as consequências?

[18] Será que a prontidão de Jeová em perdoar significa que o pecador arrependido fica isento de todas as consequências de suas ações erradas? De forma alguma. Não podemos pecar e escapar impunes. Paulo escreveu: "O que o homem semear, isso também ceifará." (Gálatas 6:7) Teremos de enfrentar as consequências de nossa ação, mas isso não quer dizer que, depois de conceder perdão, Jeová nos faça sofrer adversidades. Ao surgirem dificuldades, o cristão não deve pensar: "Jeová talvez esteja me punindo por pecados passados." (Tiago 1:13) Por outro lado, Deus não nos poupa dos efeitos de nossas ações erradas. Divórcio, gravidez indesejada, doenças sexualmente transmissíveis, perda de confiança ou de respeito — essas podem ser algumas das lamentáveis e inevitáveis consequências do pecado. Lembre-se de que, embora perdoasse os pecados de Davi relacionados com Bate-Seba e Urias, Jeová não o protegeu contra as consequências desastrosas. — 2 Samuel 12:9-12.

18. Por que o perdão não significa que o pecador arrependido fique isento das consequências de suas ações erradas?

[19] Nossos pecados também podem ter outras consequências, em especial se outros foram prejudicados pelas nossas ações. Por exemplo, analise o relato em Levítico, capítulo 6. Ali, a Lei mosaica trata de um erro grave: apossar-se dos bens de outro israelita por meio de roubo, extorsão ou fraude. Se o pecador negasse a culpa, atrevendo-se até mesmo a jurar falsamente, tornava-se um caso da palavra de um contra outro. No entanto, mais tarde o ofensor talvez sofresse devido à consciência pesada e confessasse seu pecado. Para obter o perdão de Deus, ele tinha de fazer mais três coisas: devolver o que havia tomado, pagar à vítima uma multa equivalente a 20% do valor dos bens roubados e oferecer um carneiro como oferta pela culpa. Daí, a lei dizia: "O sacerdote tem de fazer expiação por ele perante Jeová, e assim lhe tem de ser perdoado." — Levítico 6:1-7.

[20] Essa lei de Deus era muito misericordiosa, porque favorecia a vítima, cuja propriedade era devolvida e que, sem dúvida, se sentia aliviada quando o ofensor finalmente admitia seu pecado. Ao mesmo tempo, a lei beneficiava aquele cuja consciência por fim o induzia a admitir a culpa e corrigir o erro. De fato, se ele se negasse a fazer isso, não poderia esperar obter o perdão divino.

19-21. (a) Como a lei registrada em Levítico 6:1-7 beneficiava tanto a vítima quanto o ofensor? (b) Se outros foram prejudicados pelos nossos pecados, Jeová se agradará se tomarmos que medidas?

Perguntas para Meditação

2 Crônicas 33:1-13 Por que Jeová perdoou Manassés e o que isso nos ensina sobre Sua misericórdia?

Mateus 6:12, 14, 15 Por que devemos perdoar outros quando há base válida para isso?

Lucas 15:11-32 O que essa parábola nos ensina sobre a prontidão de Jeová de perdoar? O que acha disso?

2 Coríntios 7:8-11 O que temos de fazer para receber o perdão divino?

[21] Embora não estejamos sujeitos à Lei mosaica, ela nos ajuda a entender um pouco da mentalidade de Jeová, incluindo o modo como ele encara o perdão. (Colossenses 2:13, 14) Se outros foram prejudicados pelos nossos pecados, Deus se agradará se fizermos o possível para corrigir o erro. (Mateus 5:23, 24) Isso talvez envolva reconhecer nosso pecado, admitir a culpa e até pedir desculpas à vítima. Então podemos apelar para Jeová, à base do sacrifício de Jesus, e ter a certeza de que fomos perdoados por Deus. — Hebreus 10:21, 22.

[22] Igual a um pai amoroso, Jeová às vezes, ao conceder perdão, também administra disciplina. (Provérbios 3:11, 12) O cristão arrependido talvez tenha de

22. Apesar de conceder perdão, o que Jeová talvez administre?

renunciar ao seu privilégio de servir como ancião, servo ministerial ou evangelizador de tempo integral. Possivelmente será doloroso para ele perder por algum tempo privilégios que lhe eram preciosos. Isso, porém, não significa que Jeová não o perdoou. Temos de nos lembrar que a disciplina da parte de Jeová é prova do seu amor por nós. Aceitá-la e aplicá-la só resultará em bem para nós. — Hebreus 12:5-11.

[23] Como é reanimador saber que nosso Deus está "pronto a perdoar"! Apesar dos erros que talvez tenhamos cometido, nunca devemos concluir que estamos além do alcance da misericórdia de Jeová. Se nos arrependermos de coração, tomarmos medidas para endireitar o erro e orarmos seriamente pedindo perdão à base do sangue derramado de Jesus, poderemos ter plena confiança em que Jeová nos perdoará. (1 João 1:9) Imitemos o seu perdão ao lidar com outros. Afinal, se Jeová, que não peca, nos perdoa tão amorosamente, não deveríamos nós, humanos pecadores, fazer todo o possível para perdoar uns aos outros?

23. Por que nunca deveríamos concluir que estamos além do alcance da misericórdia de Jeová? Por que devemos imitar o perdão divino?

"Quão grande é a sua bondade!"

BANHADO pelo reflexo de um belíssimo pôr do sol, um grupo de amigos faz uma refeição ao ar livre — riem e conversam, enquanto admiram a paisagem. Longe dali, um agricultor olha para as plantações e sorri satisfeito — estão se formando nuvens escuras que logo trarão as primeiras gotas de chuva. Em outro lugar, um homem e a esposa ficam orgulhosos de ver o filhinho dar os primeiros passos inseguros.

[2] Quer se deem conta disso quer não, todas essas pessoas estão se beneficiando da mesma coisa: a bondade de Jeová Deus. É comum ouvirmos pessoas religiosas dizerem: "Deus é bom!" Mas a Bíblia é muito mais enfática. Ela diz: "Quão grande é a sua bondade!" (Zacarias 9:17) Parece, contudo, que poucas pessoas hoje sabem realmente o que significam essas palavras. O que, de fato, está envolvido na bondade de Jeová Deus? Como essa qualidade divina afeta cada um de nós?

1, 2. O que a bondade de Deus inclui, e como a Bíblia enfatiza essa qualidade?

Uma faceta notável do amor de Deus

[3] Em muitas línguas modernas, “bondade” é um termo um tanto genérico. Seu uso bíblico, porém, é bem diferente. Primariamente, essa palavra refere-se a virtude e excelência moral. Pode-se dizer, então, que a bondade faz parte da própria natureza de Jeová. Todos os seus atributos — incluindo poder, justiça e sabedoria — são inteiramente bons. Mas é mais correto descrever a bondade como expressão do amor de Jeová. Por quê?

[4] A bondade é uma qualidade ativa, expressa em ações para com outros. Segundo o apóstolo Paulo, as pessoas se sentem mais atraídas a quem é bondoso do que a um justo. (Romanos 5:7) Pode-se confiar em que alguém justo siga fielmente os requisitos legais; mas quem é bom faz mais do que isso. Ele toma a iniciativa, procurando meios de beneficiar outros. Como veremos, é nesse sentido que Jeová é bom. A bondade divina deriva do seu amor infinito.

[5] No que se refere à bondade, Jeová é inigualável. Pouco antes da morte de Jesus, um homem se aproxi-

3, 4. O que é bondade, e por que é mais correto descrever a bondade de Jeová como expressão do seu amor?
5-7. Por que Jesus se recusou a ser chamado de “Bom Instrutor”, e que verdade profunda ele queria ensinar?

mou dele para fazer uma pergunta e chamou-o de "Bom Instrutor". Jesus respondeu: "Por que me chamas de bom? Ninguém é bom, exceto um só, Deus." (Marcos 10:17, 18) Bem, você talvez fique um pouco perplexo com essa resposta. Por que Jesus corrigiu aquele homem? Afinal, Jesus era um "Bom Instrutor", não era?

[6] É evidente que o homem usou as palavras "Bom Instrutor" como título lisonjeiro. Jesus modestamente direcionou toda a glória ao seu Pai celestial, que é bom em sentido absoluto. (Provérbios 11:2) Mas Jesus também estava explicando uma verdade profunda: Jeová fornece o único padrão pelo qual se pode determinar o que é bom. Somente ele tem o direito soberano de especificar o que é bom e o que é mau. Quando Adão e Eva, de forma rebelde, comeram da árvore do conhecimento do que é bom e do que é mau, tentaram reivindicar para si esse direito. Diferentemente deles, Jesus de maneira humilde deixa que seu Pai decida esses assuntos.

[7] Além disso, Jesus sabia que Jeová é a fonte de tudo o que é realmente bom. Ele é o Dador de "toda boa dádiva e todo presente perfeito". (Tiago 1:17) Vejamos como a generosidade de Jeová revela sua bondade.

Provas da imensa bondade de Jeová

[8] Todos os humanos já se beneficiaram da bondade de Jeová. O Salmo 145:9 diz: "Jeová é bom para com todos." Quais são alguns exemplos de sua bondade ilimitada? A Bíblia diz: "Não se deixou sem testemunho, por fazer o bem, dando-vos chuvas do céu e estações frutíferas, enchendo os vossos corações plenamente de alimento e de bom ânimo." (Atos 14:17) Já sentiu aquela sensação de prazer ao saborear uma deliciosa refeição? Se não fosse pela bondade de Jeová em projetar a Terra com seu suprimento reciclável de água doce e com "estações frutíferas" que produzem muito alimento, não haveria refeições. Jeová demonstra essa bondade não só para com os que o amam, mas para com todos. Jesus disse: "Ele faz o seu sol levantar-se sobre iníquos e sobre bons, e faz chover sobre justos e sobre injustos." — Mateus 5:45.

[9] Muitos tratam com descaso a impressionante generosidade que Jeová demonstra à humanidade ao fornecer continuamente sol, chuva e estações frutíferas. Por exemplo, pense na maçã. Trata-se de uma fruta muito comum nas regiões de clima temperado. É bonita, deliciosa, suculenta, refrescante e cheia de nutrientes vitais. Sabia que, no mundo todo, há cerca de 7.500 variedades de maçã? Existem maçãs das mais variadas cores (vermelhas, douradas, amarelas, verdes) e tamanhos (algumas são pouco maiores que uma cereja; outras, pouco menores que um coco). Uma semente de maçã parece insignificante. Mas quando cresce se torna uma das árvores mais bonitas que existe. (O Cântico de Salomão 2:3) Na primavera, a macieira fica coberta por um lindíssimo manto de flores; no outono, produz os frutos. A produção média anual de uma macieira — que dá frutos por cerca de 75 anos — é suficiente para encher 20 caixotes de quase 20 quilos cada um!

10 Na sua infinita bondade, Jeová providenciou que nosso corpo fosse "feito maravilhosamente", com sentidos que nos ajudam a perceber suas obras e ter prazer com elas. (Salmo 139:14) Pense de novo nas cenas descritas na introdução deste capítulo. O sentido da visão é que tornou esses momentos agradáveis. As bochechas coradas de uma criança feliz; a chuva caindo sobre os campos; o vermelho, dourado e violeta do pôr do sol — tudo isso agrada ao olho humano, que é capaz de distinguir mais de 300 mil cores! E o sentido da audição nos permite notar as nuances de tom de voz de uma pessoa querida, o sussurro do vento entre as árvores, a risada gostosa de uma criancinha. Por que conseguimos desfrutar essas vistas e sons? A Bíblia diz: "O ouvido que ouve e o olho que vê — o próprio Jeová é que fez a ambos." (Provérbios 20:12) Mas esses são apenas dois dos sentidos.

[11] O olfato é outra prova da bondade de Jeová. O nariz humano é capaz de distinguir uns 10 mil odores. Pense em alguns deles: sua comida favorita, flores, folhas caídas, a fumaça de uma lareira aconchegante. E o sentido do tato permite que você sinta a brisa suave no rosto, o abraço amigo de alguém que você ama, a suavidade de uma fruta. Quando você dá uma mordida nela, entra em ação o paladar. Sua boca é inundada por uma mistura de sabores sutis, à medida que as papilas gustativas captam a complexa composição química da fruta. De fato, temos motivos de sobra para exclamar sobre Jeová: "Quão abundante é a tua bondade que entesouraste para os que te temem!" (Salmo 31:19) Mas como Jeová 'entesoura' bondade para os que têm temor dele?

Os benefícios eternos da bondade

12 Jesus disse: "Está escrito: 'O homem tem de viver, não somente de pão, mas de cada pronunciação procedente da boca de Jeová.'" (Mateus 4:4) De fato, as dádivas espirituais de Jeová podem nos beneficiar muito mais do que as físicas, pois resultam em vida eterna. No Capítulo 8 deste livro, vimos que Jeová usou seu poder restaurador nestes últimos dias para fazer surgir um paraíso espiritual. Uma das principais características desse paraíso é que nele há fartura de alimento espiritual.

13 Numa das grandes profecias bíblicas sobre restauração, o profeta Ezequiel recebeu uma visão dum templo restaurado e glorificado, de onde fluía um rio, que se alargava e aprofundava até se tornar uma "torrente de tamanho duplo". Por todo lugar onde passava, aquele rio trazia bênçãos. Nas suas margens, cresciam árvores que forneciam alimento e cura. O rio até mesmo trouxe vida e prosperidade ao mar Morto, que é extremamente salgado e sem vida. (Ezequiel 47:1-12) Mas o que significava tudo isso?

12. Quais são as dádivas mais importantes de Jeová e por quê?
13, 14. (a) Que visão o profeta Ezequiel teve, e qual o significado dela para nós hoje? (b) Que dádivas espirituais vitalizadoras Jeová faz para seus servos fiéis?

[14] A visão indicava que Jeová restauraria sua adoração pura, conforme representada pelo templo que Ezequiel viu. Como o rio daquela visão, as dádivas de Deus para a vida fluiriam para o Seu povo em quantidades cada vez maiores. Desde que a adoração pura foi restaurada em 1919, Jeová tem abençoado seu povo com dádivas vitalizadoras. Como? Bíblias, publicações bíblicas, reuniões e congressos levam verdades vitais a milhões de pessoas. Por esses meios, Jeová lhes ensina sobre sua dádiva mais importante para a vida: o sacrifício de resgate de Cristo, que torna possível que todos os que realmente amam e temem a Deus tenham uma posição limpa perante ele e esperança de vida eterna.* Assim, ao longo desses últimos dias, ao passo que o mundo está espiritualmente faminto, o povo de Jeová usufrui um banquete espiritual. — Isaías 65:13.

[15] Mas o rio da visão de Ezequiel não vai parar de correr quando este velho sistema chegar ao fim. Pelo contrário, ele fluirá com ímpeto ainda maior durante

* O resgate é o maior exemplo da bondade de Jeová. Entre os milhões de criaturas espirituais que Jeová poderia ter escolhido, ele selecionou seu amado Filho unigênito para morrer a nosso favor.

15. Em que sentido a bondade de Jeová fluirá para a humanidade durante o Reinado Milenar de Cristo?

o Reinado Milenar de Cristo. Então, por meio do Reino messiânico, Jeová aplicará o pleno valor do sacrifício de Jesus, elevando gradativamente a humanidade fiel à perfeição. Como exultaremos então por causa da bondade de Jeová!

Facetas adicionais da bondade de Jeová

[17] "Clemente." Essa qualidade de Jeová faz com que ele seja educado e acessível ao lidar com suas criaturas. Em vez de ser grosseiro, frio ou tirânico, como muitas vezes são os que detêm poder, Jeová é gentil e

16. Como a Bíblia mostra que a bondade de Jeová inclui outras qualidades, e quais são algumas dessas?

17. Como Jeová lida com meros humanos imperfeitos, e que qualidade faz com que ele aja assim?

bondoso. Por exemplo, Jeová disse a Abrão: "Levanta os teus olhos, por favor, e olha desde o lugar onde estás, para o norte, e para o sul, e para o leste, e para o oeste." (Gênesis 13:14) Muitas traduções omitem a expressão "por favor". Mas eruditos bíblicos afirmam que a fraseologia usada no hebraico original inclui uma partícula que transforma uma ordem em um pedido educado. Há outras ocorrências semelhantes. (Gênesis 31:12; Ezequiel 8:5) Imagine só: o Soberano do Universo diz "por favor" a meros humanos! Num mundo onde a grosseria, a agressividade e a descortesia são a norma, não é reanimador lembrar-nos de que o nosso Deus clemente, Jeová, é educado e acessível?

[18] "Abundante em . . . verdade." A desonestidade é comum no mundo hoje. Mas a Bíblia nos lembra: "Deus não é homem para mentir." (Números 23:19) De fato, Tito 1:2 diz que "Deus . . . não pode mentir". Ele é bom demais para isso. Assim, as promessas de Jeová são completamente dignas de confiança; sua palavra sempre se cumpre. Ele é até mesmo chamado de "Deus da verdade". (Salmo 31:5) Além de não mentir, ele transmite uma abundância de verdades. Não é reservado, fechado ou cheio de segredos; pelo contrário, ele generosamente usa sua infindável sabedoria para dar esclarecimentos aos seus servos fiéis.* Ele até mesmo os ensina a viver de acordo com as verdades que transmite, de modo que possam continuar "andando na verdade". (3 João 3) Que efeito a bondade de Jeová deveria ter em cada um de nós?

'Fique radiante com a bondade de Jeová'

[19] Quando Satanás tentou Eva no jardim do Éden, sua primeira tática foi abalar sutilmente a confiança dela na bondade de Jeová. O Criador dissera a Adão: "De toda árvore do jardim podes comer à vontade." Dos milhares de árvores que devem ter adornado aquele jardim, Jeová reservara apenas uma. Mas note como Satanás formulou sua primeira pergunta a Eva: "É realmente assim que Deus disse, que não deveis comer de toda árvore do jardim?" (Gênesis 2:9, 16; 3:1) Satanás distorceu as palavras de Jeová para fazer Eva pensar que Ele a estava impedindo de ter algo bom. Infelizmente, a tática funcionou. Eva, como muitos homens e mulheres depois dela, começou a duvidar da bondade de Deus, a fonte de tudo o que ela possuía.

* Apropriadamente, a Bíblia relaciona verdade com luz. "Envia tua luz e tua verdade", cantou o salmista. (Salmo 43:3) Jeová emite muita luz espiritual para os que se dispõem a ser ensinados, ou esclarecidos, por ele. — 2 Coríntios 4:6; 1 João 1:5.

[20] Todos sabemos quais foram os lastimáveis resultados dessas dúvidas. Por isso, tenhamos bem em mente as palavras de Jeremias 31:12: "Certamente . . . ficarão radiantes com a bondade de Jeová." A bondade de Deus deveria, de fato, nos deixar extremamente alegres. Não precisamos duvidar das motivações de nosso Deus bondoso. Podemos confiar totalmente nele, porque ele deseja só o bem para aqueles que o amam.

[21] Além disso, ficamos contentes quando temos oportunidades de falar a outros sobre a bondade de Deus. A respeito do Seu povo, o Salmo 145:7 diz: “Transbordarão com a menção da abundância da tua bondade.” A cada dia da nossa vida, nos beneficiamos de alguma forma da bondade de Jeová. Que tal tomar por hábito agradecer a Jeová todo dia por sua bondade, sendo o mais específico possível? Se pensarmos nessa qualidade, agradecermos a Jeová diariamente por demonstrá-la e falarmos a outros sobre ela, ficará mais fácil imitarmos nosso Deus bondoso. E à medida que buscarmos maneiras de fazer o que é bom, como Jeová faz, nos achegaremos cada vez mais a ele. O idoso apóstolo João escreveu: “Amado, sê imitador, não daquilo que é mau, mas daquilo que é bom. Quem faz o bem origina-se de Deus.” — 3 João 11.

[22] A bondade de Jeová está relacionada a outras qualidades. Por exemplo, Deus é “abundante em benevolência”, ou amor leal. (Êxodo 34:6) Essa qualidade é mais específica do que a bondade, pois Jeová a expressa em especial para com seus servos fiéis. No próximo capítulo, aprenderemos como ele faz isso.

21, 22. (a) De que maneiras você pode corresponder à bondade de Jeová? (b) Que qualidade analisaremos no próximo capítulo, e em que ela difere da bondade?

CAPÍTULO 28

"Só tu és leal"

O REI Davi sabia muito bem o que era deslealdade. A certa altura de seu reinado turbulento, ele se viu confrontado com intrigas e tramas às mãos de seus próprios conterrâneos. Além disso, foi traído por alguns daqueles que deveriam ser seus companheiros mais achegados. Por exemplo, Mical, sua primeira esposa, de início "amava a Davi", sem dúvida apoiando-o em seus deveres reais. Mais tarde, porém, ela "começou a desprezá-lo no seu coração", até mesmo encarando Davi "como um dos homens inanes". — 1 Samuel 18:20; 2 Samuel 6:16, 20.

[2] Outro exemplo de traição na vida de Davi foi o de seu conselheiro pessoal, Aitofel. Seus conselhos, muito apreciados, eram considerados como a palavra do próprio Jeová. (2 Samuel 16:23) Mas com o tempo esse confidente de Davi tornou-se um traidor, juntando-se a uma rebelião organizada contra o rei. E quem era o instigador da conspiração? Um dos próprios filhos de Davi, Absalão! Aquele oportunista astuto "furtava os corações dos homens de Israel", estabelecendo-se como rei rival. A revolta de Absalão atingiu tamanhas proporções que o Rei Davi foi obrigado a fugir para salvar a vida. — 2 Samuel 15:1-6, 12-17.

[3] Será que, durante todas aquelas provações, ninguém permaneceu leal a Davi? Aquele rei sabia que alguém sempre lhe era leal. Quem? Ninguém mais ninguém menos do que Jeová Deus. "Com alguém leal agirás com lealdade", disse Davi a Jeová. (2 Samuel 22:26) O que é lealdade e como Jeová dá o melhor exemplo em demonstrá-la?

O que é lealdade?

[4] "Lealdade", conforme usada nas Escrituras Hebraicas, é bondade que amorosamente se apega ao objeto dessa lealdade e não desiste até que seu propósito com relação a ele se realize. Ela vai além da fidelidade, ou confiabilidade. Afinal, alguém pode ser fiel apenas por senso de dever. Em contraste com isso, a lealdade baseia-se no amor.* A palavra "fiel" também pode ser

* O interessante é que a palavra traduzida "lealdade" em 2 Samuel 22:26 é em outras partes traduzida "benevolência" ou "amor leal".

3. Que confiança Davi tinha?

4, 5. (a) O que é "lealdade"? (b) Em que sentido lealdade e fidelidade são diferentes?

usada para descrever coisas inanimadas. Por exemplo, o salmista chamou a Lua de "fiel testemunha no céu" devido à regularidade com que ela surge. (Salmo 89:37) Mas não se pode dizer que a Lua é leal. Por que não? Porque a lealdade é uma expressão de amor, uma qualidade que coisas inanimadas não podem demonstrar.

5 No sentido bíblico, a lealdade é uma qualidade cordial. Pressupõe um relacionamento entre aquele que demonstra lealdade e a pessoa a quem ela é demonstrada. Não se trata de uma qualidade instável, como as ondas do mar, alteradas por ventos mutáveis. Pelo contrário, a lealdade, ou amor leal, tem estabilidade e força para superar os mais difíceis obstáculos.

6 É verdade que esse tipo de lealdade é raro atualmente. Muitos companheiros achegados estão "dispostos a se fazerem mutuamente em pedaços". Cada vez mais ouvimos falar em pessoas que abandonam o marido ou a esposa. (Provérbios 18:24; Malaquias 2:14-16) A traição é tão comum que talvez digamos, como o profeta Miqueias: "Pereceu da terra aquele que é leal." (Miqueias 7:2) Embora os humanos muitas vezes falhem em demonstrar benevolência, a lealdade é uma qualidade destacada de Jeová. De fato, a melhor maneira de aprender exatamente o que significa lealdade é examinar como Jeová demonstra essa faceta notável do seu amor.

6. (a) Atualmente, até que ponto a lealdade é rara entre os humanos, e como isso é indicado na Bíblia? (b) Qual é a melhor maneira de aprender o que significa lealdade, e por quê?

A incomparável lealdade de Jeová

[7] Sobre Jeová, a Bíblia diz: "Só tu és leal." (Revelação [Apocalipse] 15:4) Por que se diz isso? Não é verdade que humanos e anjos têm às vezes demonstrado lealdade notável? (Jó 1:1; Revelação 4:8) E pense em Jesus Cristo. Não é ele a pessoa mais leal a Deus? (Salmo 16:10) Por que, então, se pode dizer que só Jeová é leal?

[8] Primeiro, lembre-se de que a lealdade é uma faceta do amor. Visto que "Deus é amor" — é a própria personificação dessa qualidade —, quem poderia demonstrar lealdade mais plenamente do que ele? (1 João 4:8) É claro que anjos e humanos são capazes de refletir os atributos divinos, mas apenas Jeová é leal em grau superlativo. Como "o Antigo de Dias", ele demonstra benevolência há muito mais tempo do que qualquer criatura na Terra ou no céu. (Daniel 7:9) De modo que Jeová é a lealdade em pessoa. Ele demonstra essa qualidade de um modo que nenhuma criatura é capaz de igualar. Veja alguns exemplos.

[9] Jeová é “leal em todos os seus trabalhos”. (Salmo 145:17) De que modo? O Salmo 136 dá a resposta. Nele, citam-se vários atos salvadores de Jeová, incluindo a extraordinária libertação dos israelitas quando os conduziu pelo mar Vermelho. O interessante é que todos os versículos desse salmo terminam com a expressão: “Pois a sua benevolência [ou, lealdade] é por tempo indefinido.” Lendo esse salmo — incluído nas Perguntas para Meditação, na página 375 —, é impossível não ficar impressionado com os muitos modos em que Jeová usou de benevolência para com seu povo. De fato, Deus demonstra lealdade para com seus servos fiéis ouvindo seus pedidos de ajuda e agindo no tempo devido. (Salmo 34:6) O amor leal de Jeová para com seus servos é inabalável, desde que estes permaneçam leais a ele.

[10] Além disso, Jeová demonstra lealdade aos seus servos apegando-se às suas normas. Ao contrário de alguns humanos volúveis, que se deixam levar por caprichos pessoais ou sentimentalismo, Jeová não vacila nos seus conceitos do que é certo e do que é errado. Ao lon-go dos milênios, seu ponto de vista em relação a questões como espiritismo, idolatria e assassinato não mudou. “Mesmo até a velhice da pessoa, eu sou o Mesmo”, declarou ele por meio do profeta Isaías. (Isaías 46:4) Assim, podemos ter confiança que, se seguirmos as claras orientações morais encontradas na Palavra de Deus, sempre seremos beneficiados. — Isaías 48:17-19.

[11] Outra maneira de Jeová demonstrar lealdade é cumprindo suas promessas. Tudo o que ele prediz se cumpre. Assim, ele podia declarar: “A minha palavra que sai da minha boca . . . não voltará a mim sem resultados, mas certamente fará aquilo em que me agradei e terá êxito certo naquilo para que a enviei.” (Isaías 55:11) Permanecendo fiel à sua palavra, Jeová demonstra lealdade para com seu povo. Ele não os deixa na expectativa ansiosa de algo que não pretende tornar realidade. Nesse sentido, a reputação de Jeová é tão impecável que seu servo Josué pôde dizer: “Não falhou nem uma única de todas as boas promessas que Jeová fizera à casa de Israel; tudo se cumpriu.” (Josué 21:45) Podemos confiar, então, que nunca ficaremos desapontados por causa de alguma falha da parte de Jeová em cumprir suas promessas. — Isaías 49:23; Romanos 5:5.

11. Dê exemplos que comprovam que Jeová é fiel a suas promessas.

[12] Conforme já mencionado, a Bíblia nos diz que a benevolência de Jeová "é por tempo indefinido". (Salmo 136:1) Como isso se dá? Um aspecto é que Jeová perdoa pecados permanentemente. Como vimos no Capítulo 26, ele não repisa erros passados dos quais a pessoa já tenha sido perdoada. Visto que "todos pecaram e não atingem a glória de Deus", deveríamos ser gratos de que a benevolência de Jeová é por tempo indefinido. — Romanos 3:23.

[13] Mas a benevolência de Deus é por tempo indefinido também em outro sentido. Sua Palavra diz que o justo "há de tornar-se qual árvore plantada junto a correntes de água, que dá seu fruto na sua estação e cuja folhagem não murcha, e tudo o que ele fizer será bem-sucedido". (Salmo 1:3) Imagine uma árvore frondosa cuja folhagem nunca murcha. De modo similar, se tivermos apreço genuíno pela Palavra de Deus, nossa vida será longa, pacífica e frutífera. As bênçãos que Jeová lealmente concederá aos seus servos fiéis serão eternas. De fato, no novo mundo justo que ele trará, a humanidade obediente desfrutará a sua benevolência por tempo indefinido. — Revelação 21:3, 4.

12, 13. Em que sentidos a benevolência de Jeová é "por tempo indefinido"?

Jeová “não abandonará aqueles que lhe são leais”

[14] Jeová, com frequência, demonstra lealdade para com seus servos fiéis e, como ele é perfeito, a intensidade dessa qualidade nunca diminui. O salmista escreveu: “Eu era moço, também fiquei velho, e, no entanto, não vi nenhum justo completamente abandonado, nem a sua descendência procurando pão. Porque Jeová ama a justiça e ele não abandonará aqueles que lhe são leais.” (Salmo 37:25, 28) É verdade que, sendo o Criador, Jeová merece nossa adoração. (Revelação 4:11) Mesmo assim, por ser leal ele aprecia nossos atos fiéis. — Malaquias 3:16, 17.

[15] Na sua benevolência, Jeová vez após vez vem em auxílio do seu povo quando esse passa por dificuldades. O salmista nos diz: “Ele guarda as almas dos que lhe são leais; livra-os da mão dos iníquos.” (Salmo 97:10) Veja os seus tratos com a nação de Israel. Depois de serem milagrosamente libertados através do mar Vermelho, os israelitas proclamaram o seguinte, em um cântico para Jeová: “Tu, na tua benevolência [ou, “amor leal”, nota, NM com Referências], guiaste o povo que recuperaste." (Êxodo 15:13) A libertação no mar Vermelho sem dúvida foi um ato de amor leal da parte de Jeová. Por isso, Moisés disse aos israelitas: "Não foi por serdes o mais populoso de todos os povos, que Jeová vos teve afeição a ponto de vos escolher, pois éreis o mínimo de todos os povos. Mas foi por Jeová vos amar e por ele cumprir a declaração juramentada que fizera aos vossos antepassados, que Jeová vos fez sair, com mão forte, para te remir da casa dos escravos, da mão de Faraó, rei do Egito." — Deuteronômio 7:7, 8.

15. Explique como os tratos de Jeová com Israel ressaltam Sua lealdade.

16 Sabemos muito bem que a nação de Israel, como um todo, deixou de demonstrar apreço pela benevolência de Jeová, porque depois de sua libertação "eles prosseguiram pecando ainda mais contra [Jeová], rebelando-se contra o Altíssimo". (Salmo 78:17) Ao longo dos séculos, rebelaram-se vez após vez, abandonando a Jeová e voltando-se para deuses falsos e práticas pagãs que só resultaram em corrupção entre eles. Mesmo assim, Jeová não rompeu seu pacto. Em vez disso, por meio do profeta Jeremias, ele implorou ao povo: "Vol-ta deveras, ó renegada Israel . . . Não deixarei a minha face decair em ira para convosco, porque sou leal." (Jeremias 3:12) Como vimos no Capítulo 25, porém, a maioria dos israelitas não se comoveu com essa súplica. De fato, "caçoavam continuamente dos mensageiros do verdadeiro Deus e desprezavam as suas palavras, e zombavam dos seus profetas". Com que resultado? Por fim, "subiu o furor de Jeová contra o seu povo, até que não havia mais cura". — 2 Crônicas 36:15, 16.

17 O que aprendemos disso? Que a lealdade de Jeová não é cega nem ingênua. É verdade que Deus é "abundante em benevolência" e tem prazer em mostrar misericórdia quando existe base para isso. Mas como ele reage quando um transgressor demonstra ser incorrigivelmente perverso? Nesse caso, Jeová adere a suas próprias normas justas e pune o pecador. Como se disse a Moisés, "de modo algum [Jeová] isentará da punição". — Êxodo 34:6, 7.

18 A própria punição que Deus trará sobre os perversos já é em si mesma um ato de lealdade. Como assim? Para entender isso, veja a ordem que Jeová deu a sete anjos numa visão registrada no livro de Revelação: "Ide e derramai na terra as sete tigelas da ira de Deus." Quando o terceiro anjo derrama sua tigela "nos rios e nas fontes de águas", eles se transformam em sangue. Daí, o anjo diz a Jeová: "Tu, Aquele que é e que era, Aquele que é leal, és justo, porque fizeste estas decisões, pois derramaram o sangue dos santos e dos profetas, e tu lhes deste sangue para beber. Merecem isso." — Revelação 16:1-6.

19 Note que, no meio da mensagem de julgamento, o anjo se refere a Jeová como "Aquele que é leal". Por quê? Porque ao destruir os maus Jeová demonstra lealdade aos seus servos, muitos dos quais foram perseguidos até a morte. Lealmente, Jeová os mantém bem vivos na memória. Ele anseia ver de novo esses seus servos fiéis que faleceram e, como a Bíblia confirma, seu propósito é recompensá-los por meio da ressurreição. (Jó 14:14, 15) Jeová não se esquece de seus servos leais simplesmente porque eles não estão mais vivos. Pelo contrário, "para ele, todos estes vivem". (Lucas 20:37, 38) O propósito do Criador de trazer de volta à vida todos os que estão na sua memória é uma forte comprovação de sua lealdade.

O amor leal de Jeová abre o caminho para a salvação

20. Quem são os "vasos de misericórdia", e como Jeová lhes demonstrou lealdade?

19:28) Ao abrir o caminho da salvação para esses vasos de misericórdia, Jeová demonstrou sua lealdade a Abraão, a quem fizera a seguinte promessa relacionada com seu pacto: "Todas as nações da terra hão de abençoar a si mesmas por meio de teu descendente, pelo fato de que escutaste a minha voz." — Gênesis 22:18.

21 De modo similar, Jeová demonstra lealdade a "uma grande multidão" que tem a perspectiva de sobreviver à "grande tribulação". (Revelação 7:9, 10, 14) Embora esses servos seus sejam imperfeitos, o Criador lealmente lhes apresenta a oportunidade de viver para sempre no Paraíso na Terra. Como faz isso? Por meio do resgate: a maior demonstração da lealdade de Jeová. (João 3:16; Romanos 5:8) Essa qualidade atrai os que, de coração, anseiam a justiça. (Jeremias 31:3) Não se sente mais achegado a Jeová por causa da grande lealdade que ele demonstrou e ainda demonstrará? Se o nosso desejo é nos achegar mais a Deus, demonstremos isso reagindo favoravelmente ao seu amor, fortalecendo nossa determinação de servi-lo com lealdade.

CAPÍTULO 29

"Para que conheçais o amor do Cristo"

JÁ OBSERVOU um menininho tentando imitar o jeito de o pai caminhar, falar ou agir? Com o tempo, ele possivelmente aprenderá até os valores morais e espirituais do pai. De fato, por causa do amor e da admiração que sente por seu pai amoroso, o filho quer ser como ele.

2 Como é o relacionamento entre Jesus e seu Pai celestial? "Eu amo o Pai", disse Jesus em certa ocasião. (João 14:31) Ninguém ama a Jeová mais do que seu Filho, que estava ao lado do Pai muito antes de qualquer outra criatura vir a existir. O amor motivou esse Filho leal a querer ser como o Pai. — João 14:9.

3 Em capítulos anteriores deste livro, vimos como Jesus imitou com perfeição o poder, a justiça e a sabedoria de Jeová. Como, porém, ele refletiu o amor de seu Pai? Examinemos três facetas do amor de Jesus: o espírito abnegado, a terna compaixão e a disposição de perdoar.

1-3. (a) O que motivou Jesus a querer ser como seu Pai? (b) Que facetas do amor de Jesus examinaremos?

“Ninguém tem maior amor do que este”

[4] Jesus foi um excelente exemplo de amor abnegado. Abnegação envolve altruistamente pôr as necessidades e preocupações de outros à frente das nossas. Como Jesus demonstrou esse tipo de amor? Ele mesmo explicou: “Ninguém tem maior amor do que este, que alguém entregue a sua alma a favor de seus amigos.” (João 15:13) Jesus voluntariamente deu sua vida perfeita por nós. Essa foi a maior expressão de amor já feita por um humano. Mas ele também mostrou amor abnegado de outras maneiras.

[5] Em sua existência pré-humana, o Filho unigênito de Deus tinha uma posição privilegiada e exaltada nos céus. Teve associação íntima com Jeová e com multidões de criaturas espirituais. Abrindo mão desses privilégios, o Filho amado “se esvaziou e assumiu a forma de escravo, vindo a ser na semelhança dos homens”. (Filipenses 2:7) Ele voluntariamente veio viver entre humanos pecadores num mundo que “jaz no poder do iníquo”. (1 João 5:19) Não foi esse um sacrifício amoroso da parte do Filho de Deus?

4. Como Jesus deu o maior exemplo de amor abnegado por parte de um humano?

5. Por que deixar os céus foi um sacrifício amoroso da parte do Filho unigênito de Deus?

[6] Ao longo do seu ministério terrestre, Jesus demonstrou amor abnegado de várias maneiras. Ele era totalmente altruísta. Estava tão envolvido no seu trabalho que se dispôs a abrir mão dos confortos normais a que o homem está acostumado. "As raposas têm covis e as aves do céu têm poleiros", disse ele, "mas o Filho do homem não tem onde deitar a cabeça". (Mateus 8:20) Jesus era carpinteiro profissional e poderia ter tirado tempo para construir uma casa confortável para morar, ou para fazer lindos móveis e vendê-los a fim de ter dinheiro extra. Mas não usou suas habilidades para conseguir bens.

[7] Um exemplo realmente comovente do amor abnegado de Jesus se encontra em João 19:25-27. Imagine como Jesus devia estar preocupado na tarde da sua morte! Enquanto sofria na estaca, ele pensava nos seus discípulos, na obra de pregação, e especialmente na própria integridade e em como ela refletiria sobre o nome de seu Pai. De fato, o futuro de toda a humanidade estava nas mãos dele! Mas um pouco antes de morrer, Jesus mostrou preocupação com sua mãe, Maria, que aparentemente já era viúva. Ele pediu que João cuidasse dela como se fosse sua própria mãe e, depois disso, o apóstolo levou-a para a casa dele. Assim, Jesus providenciou que se cuidassem das necessidades materiais e espirituais de sua mãe. Que comovente demonstração de amor altruísta!

“Teve pena”

[8] Como seu Pai, Jesus tinha compaixão. As Escrituras descrevem-no como alguém que fazia de tudo para ajudar os necessitados porque se sentia profundamente comovido. Ao descrever a compaixão de Jesus, a Bíblia usa uma palavra grega que é traduzida “teve pena”. Um erudito diz o seguinte a respeito dela: “Descreve . . . uma emoção que comove o homem até às próprias profundezas do seu ser. É a palavra mais enfática em grego para o sentimento da compaixão.” Vejamos algumas situações em que Jesus sentiu profunda compaixão que o motivou a agir.

[9] Motivado a atender às necessidades espirituais. O relato de Marcos 6:30-34 mostra o que, principalmente, levou Jesus a expressar pena. Imagine a cena. Os apóstolos estavam alegres porque haviam acabado de voltar de uma extensa viagem de pregação. Quando encontraram Jesus, contaram-lhe com entusiasmo todas as coisas que haviam visto e ouvido. Mas ajuntou-se uma grande multidão, de modo que Jesus e os apóstolos não tiveram tempo nem para comer. Muito observador, ele notou que os apóstolos estavam cansados. Disse-lhes: "Vinde, vós mesmos, em particular, a um lugar solitário, e descansai um pouco." Entraram num barco e atravessaram a extremidade norte do mar da Galileia, rumo a um lugar sossegado. Mas a multidão os viu partir. Outros ficaram sabendo disso. Todos eles correram ao longo da costa norte e chegaram ao outro lado antes do barco!

10 Será que Jesus ficou irritado com essa falta de privacidade? De modo algum! Ao ver milhares de pessoas esperando-o, ficou comovido de coração. Marcos escreveu: "Ele viu uma grande multidão, mas teve pena deles, porque eram como ovelhas sem pastor. E principiou a ensinar-lhes muitas coisas." Jesus percebeu as necessidades espirituais dessas pessoas. Eram como ovelhas perdidas, sem pastor para guiá-las ou protegê-las. Jesus sabia que, em vez de agirem como pastores amorosos, os líderes religiosos insensíveis desprezavam o povo. (João 7:47-49) Penalizado, começou a ensinar-lhes sobre o "reino de Deus". (Lucas 9:11) Note que

Jesus sentiu pena das pessoas antes de ver qual seria a reação delas aos seus ensinos. Em outras palavras, a terna compaixão não foi o resultado de seu ensino às multidões, mas o motivo de ele ensiná-las.

[11] Motivado a aliviar o sofrimento. Pessoas com várias doenças percebiam a compaixão de Jesus e, por isso, se achegavam a ele. Isso ficou especialmente evidente quando um homem "cheio de lepra" se aproximou de Jesus e da multidão que o seguia. (Lucas 5:12) Nos tempos bíblicos, os leprosos ficavam de quarentena para proteger os outros contra a contaminação. (Números 5:1-4) Com o tempo, porém, os líderes rabínicos desenvolveram um conceito cruel em relação à lepra e impuseram suas próprias regras opressivas.* Note, porém, como Jesus respondeu ao leproso: "Veio também a ele um leproso, suplicando-lhe, até de joelhos, e dizendo-lhe: 'Se apenas quiseres, podes tornar-me limpo.' Em vista disso, penalizou-se, e, estendendo a mão, tocou nele e disse-lhe: 'Eu quero. Torna-te limpo.' E a lepra desapareceu-lhe imediatamente." (Marcos 1:40-42) Jesus sabia que, pela lei, o leproso não poderia nem estar ali. Mesmo assim, em vez de rejeitá-lo, Jesus ficou tão profundamente comovido que fez algo impensável: tocou no homem!

* As regras rabínicas determinavam que era preciso ficar no mínimo a quatro côvados (cerca de 1,80 metro) de um leproso. Mas, se estivesse ventando, o leproso tinha de ficar a pelo menos 100 côvados (uns 45 metros). O Midrash Rabah (O Grande Midrash) fala de um rabino que se escondia dos leprosos e de outro que jogava pedras neles para afastá-los. Assim, esses doentes sabiam como era doloroso sentir-se rejeitado, desprezado e indesejado.

11, 12. (a) Como os leprosos eram encarados nos tempos bíblicos, mas como Jesus reagiu quando um homem "cheio de lepra" se aproximou dele? (b) Como o toque de Jesus possivelmente afetou o leproso, e como o relato dum médico nos ajuda a entender isso?

12 Consegue imaginar o que aquele toque significou para o leproso? Para ajudá-lo a entender, acompanhe o relato do Dr. Paul Brand, especialista em lepra. Ele conta que, ao examinar um leproso na Índia, colocou a mão no ombro do homem e explicou, por meio de uma intérprete, o tratamento a que ele teria de se submeter. De repente, o leproso começou a chorar. "Eu disse algo que não devia?", perguntou o médico. A intérprete perguntou ao jovem na língua dele e respondeu: "Não, doutor. Ele disse que está chorando porque o senhor colocou a mão no ombro dele. Fazia anos que ninguém tocava nele." Para o leproso que se aproximou de Jesus, aquele toque teve um significado ainda maior. Resultou no fim da doença que o transformara num pária!

13 Motivado a acabar com o pesar. Jesus ficava muito

13, 14. (a) Com o que Jesus se deparou ao se aproximar da cidade de Naim, e por que essa era uma situação especialmente trágica? (b) A compaixão de Jesus o moveu a fazer o que a favor da viúva de Naim?

comovido com o pesar alheio. Analise, por exemplo, o relato de Lucas 7:11-15. Naquela ocasião, mais ou menos no meio do seu ministério, Jesus se aproximava da cidade galileia de Naim quando se deparou com um cortejo fúnebre, próximo ao portão da cidade. As circunstâncias envolvidas eram especialmente trágicas. Um jovem — filho único de uma viúva — havia morrido. Ela já passara, em outra ocasião, por algo semelhante ao perder o marido. Agora, seu filho, talvez a única fonte de sustento, estava morto. A multidão acompanhante talvez incluísse outros pranteadores declamando lamentações e músicos tocando melodias fúnebres. (Jeremias 9:17, 18; Mateus 9:23) Mas o olhar de Jesus fixou-se na mãe aflita que, sem dúvida, caminhava perto do esquife que transportava o corpo do filho.

14 Jesus "teve pena" da mãe enlutada. Num tom reanimador, ele lhe disse: "Para de chorar." Sem ser convidado, aproximou-se e tocou no esquife. Os carregadores — e talvez o resto da multidão — pararam. Com voz de autoridade, Jesus falou para o corpo sem vida: "Jovem, eu te digo: Levanta-te!" O que aconteceu? "O morto sentou-se e principiou a falar" como se tivesse sido acordado de um sono profundo! Note esta descrição comovente do que aconteceu a seguir: "E [Jesus] o entregou à sua mãe."

[15] O que aprendemos desses relatos? Em cada caso, note a ligação entre compaixão e ações. Jesus não conseguia observar o sofrimento alheio sem sentir pena, e essa compaixão, por sua vez, o impelia a agir. Como podemos seguir o exemplo dele? Como cristãos, temos a obrigação de pregar as boas novas e fazer discípulos. Em primeiro lugar, somos motivados pelo amor a Deus. Mas lembre-se de que essa obra também é motivada pela compaixão. Se sentirmos pena das pessoas como Jesus sentia, nosso coração nos motivará a fazer tudo o que pudermos para transmitir-lhes as boas novas. (Mateus 22:37-39) Devemos também mostrar compaixão a concrentes que sofrem ou choram por terem perdido alguém amado. Não podemos curar milagrosamente a dor física nem ressuscitar os mortos. Mas podemos agir em harmonia com a compaixão, tomando a iniciativa de expressar nossa preocupação ou de dar ajuda prática. — Efésios 4:32.

"Pai, perdoa-lhes"

[16] Outra maneira importante de Jesus refletir com perfeição o amor de seu Pai foi por estar "pronto a

15. (a) Os relatos bíblicos que falam de Jesus ter pena mostram que ligação entre compaixão e ações? (b) Como podemos imitar Jesus nesse respeito?

perdoar". (Salmo 86:5) Essa disposição ficou evidente até quando ele estava na estaca de tortura. Confrontando-se com uma morte vergonhosa, com pregos atravessando-lhe as mãos e os pés, o que Jesus falou? Pediu que Jeová punisse seus executores? Muito pelo contrário, entre as últimas palavras de Jesus estavam: "Pai, perdoa-lhes, pois não sabem o que estão fazendo." — Lucas 23:34.*

[17] Um exemplo ainda mais comovente do perdão de Jesus é demonstrado no modo como ele lidou com o apóstolo Pedro. Não há dúvidas de que Pedro amava muito a Jesus. Em 14 de nisã, a última noite da vida terrestre de Jesus, aquele apóstolo lhe disse: "Senhor, estou pronto a ir contigo tanto para a prisão como para a morte." Mas, poucas horas depois, três vezes ele negou até mesmo conhecer a Jesus! A Bíblia nos conta o que aconteceu quando Pedro o negou pela terceira vez:

* A primeira parte de Lucas 23:34 foi omitida de certos manuscritos antigos. Mas, visto que essas palavras se encontram em muitos outros manuscritos confiáveis, a Tradução do Novo Mundo e muitas outras traduções incluem-nas no texto. Jesus evidentemente falava dos soldados romanos que o pregaram na estaca. Eles não sabiam o que faziam, ou ignoravam quem Jesus realmente era. Naturalmente, os líderes religiosos que instigaram a execução eram muito mais repreensíveis, pois agiram deliberada e maldosamente. Muitos deles jamais seriam perdoados. — João 11:45-53.

17-19. De que modos Jesus demonstrou que havia perdoado o apóstolo Pedro, que o negara três vezes?

"O Senhor voltou-se e olhou para Pedro." Arrasado pela gravidade do pecado, ele "saiu e chorou amargamente". Quando Jesus morreu, mais tarde naquele dia, o apóstolo talvez tenha se perguntado: 'Será que o Senhor me perdoou?' — Lucas 22:33, 61, 62.

18 Pedro não teve de esperar muito para ter uma resposta. Na manhã de 16 de nisã, Jesus foi ressuscitado e, evidentemente naquele mesmo dia, apareceu a Pedro. (Lucas 24:34; 1 Coríntios 15:4-8) Por que Jesus deu atenção especial ao apóstolo que o havia negado de forma tão enfática? Talvez ele quisesse confirmar ao arrependido Pedro que seu Senhor ainda o amava e prezava. Mas Jesus fez ainda mais para reanimar a Pedro.

19 Pouco tempo depois, ele apareceu aos discípulos junto ao mar da Galileia. Nessa ocasião, Jesus perguntou a Pedro três vezes (o mesmo número de vezes que ele negara o Senhor) se este o amava. Depois da terceira vez, Pedro respondeu: "Senhor, tu sabes todas as coisas; tu te apercebes que eu tenho afeição por ti." De fato, Jesus podia ler o coração e estava plenamente ciente do amor e da afeição de Pedro por ele. Mesmo assim, ele deu ao apóstolo a oportunidade de confirmar seu amor. Mais do que isso, Jesus comissionou-o a alimentar e pastorear Suas "ovelhinhas". (João 21:15-17)

(Lucas 5:10) Mas então, numa notável demonstração de confiança, Jesus lhe deu outra grande responsabilidade: cuidar dos que se tornariam seguidores de Cristo. Cristo, que ultrapassa o conhecimento'. (Efésios 3:19) Como vimos, os relatos evangélicos sobre a vida e o ministério de Jesus nos ensinam muita coisa a respeito do amor dele. Mas 'conhecer o amor do Cristo' de forma plena envolve mais do que aprender o que a Bíblia diz sobre Ele.

21 O termo grego traduzido 'conhecer' significa conhecer "na prática, por experiência própria". Quando demonstramos amor assim como Jesus demonstrou — de forma altruísta dando de nós mesmos a favor de outros, compassivamente correspondendo às suas necessidades e perdoando-os de coração —, passamos realmente a entender Seus sentimentos. Desse modo, chegamos a conhecer, por experiência própria, "o amor do Cristo, que ultrapassa o conhecimento". E nunca nos esqueçamos de que, quanto mais nos assemelharmos a Cristo, mais nos achegaremos àquele que Jesus imitou com perfeição, nosso Deus amoroso, Jeová.

"Prossegui andando em amor"

"HÁ MAIS felicidade em dar do que há em receber." (Atos 20:35) Essas palavras de Jesus destacam uma verdade importante: o amor altruísta é recompensador em si mesmo. Embora receber amor dê muita felicidade, há felicidade ainda maior em dar, ou demonstrar, amor a outros.

[2] Ninguém sabe disso melhor do que nosso Pai celestial. Como vimos nos capítulos anteriores desta seção, Jeová é o exemplo supremo de amor. Ninguém demonstrou amor de maneiras mais grandiosas ou por um período mais longo do que ele. É de admirar, então, que ele seja chamado de "Deus feliz"? — 1 Timóteo 1:11.

[3] Nosso Deus amoroso deseja que procuremos ser como ele, em especial no que se refere a demonstrar amor. Efésios 5:1, 2 nos diz: "Tornai-vos imitadores de Deus, como filhos amados, e prossegui andando em amor." Quando imitamos o exemplo de Jeová em demonstrar amor, sentimos a felicidade maior que vem de dar. Também temos a satisfação de saber que agradamos a Jeová, pois a sua Palavra nos incentiva a 'amarmos uns aos outros'. (Romanos 13:8) Mas há outras razões para 'prosseguirmos andando em amor'.

Por que o amor é essencial

[4] Por que é importante que demonstremos amor a concrentes? Dito de maneira simples, o amor é a essência do cristianismo verdadeiro. Se não demonstrarmos essa qualidade, não poderemos desenvolver um relacionamento achegado com outros cristãos e, mais importante ainda, nossos esforços não terão valor aos olhos de Jeová. Veja como a Palavra de Deus destaca essas verdades.

[5] Na última noite de sua vida terrestre, Jesus disse aos seus seguidores: "Eu vos dou um novo mandamento, que vos ameis uns aos outros; assim como eu vos amei, que também vos ameis uns aos outros. Por meio disso saberão todos que sois meus discípulos, se tiverdes amor entre vós." (João 13:34, 35) "Assim como eu vos amei" — essa é a ordem para os cristãos: mostrar o mesmo tipo de amor que Jesus demonstrou. No Capítulo 29, vimos que Jesus deu um exemplo maravilhoso em demonstrar amor abnegado, colocando as necessidades e os interesses de outros à frente dos seus. Nós também devemos demonstrar amor altruísta de forma tão clara que ele fique evidente até para os de fora da congregação cristã verdadeira. De fato o amor fraternal abnegado é o sinal que nos identifica como verdadeiros seguidores de Cristo.

6 E se não demonstrarmos amor? "Se eu . . . não tiver amor", disse o apóstolo Paulo, "tenho-me tornado um pedaço de latão que ressoa ou um címbalo que retine". (1 Coríntios 13:1) Um címbalo que retine produz um som desagradável. E um pedaço de latão que ressoa? Outras versões usam as expressões "um gongo barulhento" ou "o ruído de um gongo". Que ilustrações apropriadas! A pessoa sem amor é como um instrumento musical que faz um barulho alto e estridente, que repele em vez de atrair. Como uma pessoa assim poderia ter relacionamentos achegados com outros? Paulo também disse: "Se eu tiver toda a fé, de modo a transplantar montanhas, mas não tiver amor, nada sou." (1 Coríntios 13:2) Imagine só! Uma pessoa sem amor 'não presta para nada', não importa que obras realize. (Novo Testamento, Interconfessional) Não fica claro que a Palavra de Jeová dá grande ênfase a se demonstrar amor?

7 Mas como podemos demonstrar essa qualidade ao lidar com outros? Para nos ajudar a responder a essa pergunta, analisemos as palavras de Paulo, encontradas em 1 Coríntios 13:4-8. Esses versículos não se concentram no amor de Deus por nós nem no nosso amor por Ele. Em vez disso, o enfoque das palavras de Paulo é em como devemos demonstrar amor uns pelos outros. Ele descreveu certas coisas que o amor é e outras que ele não é.

O que o amor é

[8] "O amor é longânime." Ser longânime significa suportar pacientemente as outras pessoas. (Colossenses 3:13) Todos precisamos demonstrar esse tipo de paciência, não é verdade? Visto que somos criaturas imperfeitas servindo ombro a ombro, é de esperar que, de vez em quando, nossos irmãos cristãos nos irritem e que nós também os incomodemos. Mas a paciência e o autocontrole podem nos ajudar a lidar com pequenas desavenças e atritos que surgirem nos nossos tratos com outros, preservando assim a paz da congregação.

[9] "O amor é . . . benigno." A benignidade é demonstrada por atos prestativos e palavras que revelam consideração pelos outros. O amor nos motiva a procurar maneiras de demonstrar benignidade, em especial para com os mais necessitados. Por exemplo, um concrente idoso talvez se sinta solitário e precise de uma visita de encorajamento. Uma mãe sem cônjuge ou uma irmã que vive num lar dividido em sentido religioso pode estar precisando de ajuda. Uma pessoa doente ou que passa por problemas graves talvez precise ouvir palavras bondosas de um amigo leal. (Provérbios 12:25; 17:17) Quando tomamos a iniciativa de demonstrar benignidade dessas maneiras, comprovamos que nosso amor é genuíno. — 2 Coríntios 8:8.

[10] "O amor . . . alegra-se com a verdade." Outra versão da Bíblia diz: "O amor . . . alegremente fica do lado da verdade." O amor nos motiva a defender a verdade e a 'falar verazmente uns com os outros'. (Zacarias 8:16) Se, por exemplo, uma pessoa querida se envolveu num pecado grave, o amor por Jeová — e por aquele que errou — nos ajudará a defender as normas de Deus em vez de tentar esconder, racionalizar ou até mentir sobre a transgressão. É verdade que talvez seja difícil aceitar a situação. Mas, para o próprio bem da pessoa, estaremos interessados em que ela receba e aceite a disciplina amorosa de Deus. (Provérbios 3:11, 12) Como cristãos amorosos, também desejamos "comportar-nos honestamente em todas as coisas". — Hebreus 13:18.

10. Como o amor nos ajudará a defender a verdade e a não mentir, mesmo quando isso não for fácil?

[11] "O amor . . . suporta todas as coisas." Essa expressão significa, literalmente, "cobre todas as coisas". (Kingdom Interlinear) Em 1 Pedro 4:8 lemos: "O amor cobre uma multidão de pecados." De fato, um cristão guiado pelo amor não estará sempre ansioso para expor todas as imperfeições e defeitos de seus irmãos cristãos. Em muitos casos, os erros e as falhas de nossos concristãos não são muito graves e podem ser cobertos pelo amor. — Provérbios 10:12; 17:9.

[12] "O amor . . . acredita todas as coisas." Outra tradução diz que o amor está "sempre ansioso para crer no melhor". (Moffatt) Não desconfiamos indevidamente de concrentes, questionando cada motivação deles. O amor nos ajuda a "crer no melhor" em relação aos nossos irmãos e a confiar neles.* Note um exemplo disso na carta de Paulo a Filêmon. Ele escreveu para incentivar Filêmon a receber bondosamente de volta seu escravo fugitivo, Onésimo, que havia se tornado cristão. Em vez de coagir Filêmon a fazer isso, porém, Paulo fez um apelo baseado no amor. Afirmou ter confiança em que aquele homem faria a coisa certa, dizendo: "Escrevo-te confiante no teu acatamento, sabendo que farás ainda mais do que as coisas que digo." (Versículo 21) Motivados pelo amor, procuremos, de forma semelhante, dar um voto de confiança a nossos irmãos. Isso os ajudará a revelarem o que têm de melhor.

[13] "O amor . . . espera todas as coisas." Além de demonstrar confiança, o amor gera esperança. Movidos pelo amor, esperamos o melhor de nossos irmãos. Por exemplo, se um irmão dá um "passo em falso antes de se aperceber disso", esperamos que ele reaja aos esforços amorosos de corrigi-lo. (Gálatas 6:1) Temos também esperança de que os fracos na fé se recuperarão. Somos pacientes com eles, ajudando-os na medida do possível a fortalecer a sua fé. (Romanos 15:1; 1 Tessalonicenses 5:14) Mesmo que alguém que amamos se desvie, não perdemos a esperança de que, algum dia, ele caia em si e volte para Jeová, como o filho pródigo da ilustração de Jesus. — Lucas 15:17, 18.

[14] "O amor . . . persevera em todas as coisas." A perseverança nos capacitará para manter-nos firmes quando enfrentarmos desapontamentos ou dificuldades. As provas para a nossa perseverança não vêm apenas de fora da congregação; às vezes, vêm de dentro. Devido à imperfeição, nossos irmãos vez por outra nos desapontarão. Uma palavra impensada pode nos magoar. (Provérbios 12:18) Talvez um assunto congregacional não seja cuidado do modo como achamos que devia. A conduta de um irmão respeitado talvez nos incomode, fazendo-nos pensar: "Como um cristão pode agir assim?" Quando nos depararmos com situações como essas, abandonaremos a congregação e deixaremos de servir a Jeová? Não, se tivermos amor! Essa qualidade impedirá que sejamos cegados pelas falhas de um irmão a ponto de não conseguir ver mais nada de bom nele, nem na congregação como um todo. O amor nos ajudará a permanecer fiéis a Deus e a apoiar a congregação, não importa o que outros humanos imperfeitos possam dizer ou fazer. — Salmo 119:165.

O que o amor não é

[15] "O amor não é ciumento." O ciúme pode nos tornar invejosos daquilo que os outros têm: seus bens, privilégios ou habilidades. Trata-se de uma emoção egoísta e destrutiva que, se não for controlada, pode perturbar a paz da congregação. O que nos ajudará a resistir à “tendência de invejar”? (Tiago 4:5) O amor. Essa qualidade preciosa fará com que nos alegremos com os que parecem ter certas vantagens na vida que nós mesmos não temos. (Romanos 12:15) Se outros forem elogiados por suas habilidades excepcionais ou realizações notáveis, o amor nos ajudará a não encarar isso como uma afronta pessoal.

[16] “O amor . . . não se gaba, não se enfuna.” O amor pelos irmãos nos impedirá de nos gabarmos de nossos talentos ou realizações, do êxito no ministério ou dos privilégios na congregação. Isso só os desanimaria, fazendo-os sentir-se inferiores. O amor não deixará que nos gabemos de coisas que Deus nos permite fazer no Seu serviço. (1 Coríntios 3:5-9) Afinal, o amor “não se enfuna”, ou, como diz certa versão, não “nutre ideias exageradas sobre sua própria importância”. O amor nos impedirá de ter um conceito distorcido sobre nós mesmos. — Romanos 12:3.

[17] “O amor . . . não se comporta indecentemente.” Quem se comporta indecentemente age de modo impróprio ou ofensivo. Essa atitude é desamorosa, porque mostra total desrespeito pelos sentimentos e pelo bem-estar de outros. Em contraste com isso, o amor é cortês, levando-nos a mostrar consideração pelos outros. Ele promove boas maneiras, conduta reverente e respeito pelos concristãos. Assim, o amor não permitirá que nos envolvamos em “conduta vergonhosa”, ou seja, em qualquer proceder que chocaria ou ofenderia nossos irmãos cristãos. — Efésios 5:3, 4.

[18] “O amor . . . não procura os seus próprios interesses.” Nesse texto, certa versão diz: “O amor não insiste em que as coisas sejam feitas do seu jeito.” Quem é amoroso nunca terá essa atitude, como se suas opiniões sempre estivessem corretas. Não manipulará os outros, usando sua habilidade de persuasão para vencer pelo cansaço os que têm uma opinião diferente. Isso seria teimosia e revelaria orgulho, e a Bíblia diz: “O orgulho vem antes da derrocada.” (Provérbios 16:18) Se realmente amarmos os nossos irmãos, respeitaremos seus pontos de vista e, sempre que possível, estaremos dispostos a ceder. Essa disposição para ceder está em harmonia com as palavras de Paulo: “Que cada um persista em buscar, não a sua própria vantagem, mas a da outra pessoa.” — 1 Coríntios 10:24.

[19] “O amor . . . não fica encolerizado . . . , não leva em conta o dano.” O amor não se irrita facilmente com o que outros dizem ou fazem. É natural ficarmos contrariados quando outros nos ofendem. Mas, mesmo que tenhamos boas razões para ficarmos bravos, o amor nos ajudará a não continuar irritados. (Efésios 4:26, 27) Não manteremos como que um registro das palavras ou ações que nos magoaram, para não esquecê-las. Em vez disso, o amor nos levará a imitar nosso Deus amoroso. Como vimos no Capítulo 26, Jeová perdoa quando há base sólida para isso. Quando perdoa, ele esquece, quer dizer, jamais vai nos condenar por esses pecados no futuro. Não ficamos contentes de que Jeová não leva em conta o dano?

20 “O amor . . . não se alegra com a injustiça.” Nesse texto, a Bíblia na Linguagem de Hoje diz: “Quem ama não fica alegre quando alguém faz uma coisa errada.” Outra tradução diz: “O amor nunca fica contente quando outros erram.” (Moffatt) O amor não deriva nenhum prazer da injustiça, de modo que não fazemos vista grossa a nenhum tipo de imoralidade. Mas como reagimos quando um concrente é enlaçado pelo pecado e sofre as consequências? O amor não permitirá que nos alegremos, como se disséssemos: “Bem feito! Ele mere-

"Um caminho que ultrapassa isso"

[21] "O amor nunca falha." O que Paulo queria dizer com essas palavras? Como se nota no contexto, ele comentava os dons do espírito que os cristãos do primeiro século receberam. Esses serviam como sinais de que o favor de Deus estava com essa congregação recém-formada. Mas nem todos os cristãos tinham o poder de curar, profetizar ou falar em línguas. Isso, porém, não importava, pois de qualquer maneira os dons milagrosos

com o tempo cessariam. Contudo, uma coisa permaneceria, algo que todos os cristãos poderiam cultivar e que era mais duradouro e permanente do que qualquer dom milagroso. De fato, Paulo o chamou de “um caminho que ultrapassa isso”. (1 Coríntios 12:31) Que “caminho” era esse? O caminho do amor.

[22] De fato, o amor cristão que Paulo descreveu “nunca falha”, isto é, nunca tem fim. Até hoje o amor fraternal abnegado identifica os verdadeiros seguidores de Jesus. Não vemos evidência desse amor nas congregações dos adoradores de Jeová em toda a Terra? Essa qualidade existirá para sempre, porque Jeová promete vida eterna aos seus servos fiéis. (Salmo 37:9-11, 29) Continuemos fazendo todo o possível para ‘prosseguir andando em amor’. Assim, sentiremos a felicidade maior que vem de dar. Mais do que isso, poderemos continuar a viver — e amar — por toda a eternidade, imitando nosso Deus amoroso, Jeová.

[23] Neste capítulo, que conclui a seção sobre o amor, vimos como podemos demonstrar amor uns pelos outros. Mas, em vista dos muitos modos em que nos beneficiamos do amor de Jeová — bem como do seu poder, justiça e sabedoria —, faríamos bem em perguntar: ‘Como posso mostrar a Jeová que realmente o amo?’ Essa pergunta será analisada no último capítulo.

“Chegai-vos a Deus, e ele se chegará a vós”

UM SORRISO do filhinho recém-nascido enche os pais de alegria. Às vezes, eles chegam bem pertinho dele, falando com ternura e sorrindo entusiasmados. Esperam uma reação. E ela logo vem: formam-se covinhas nas bochechas do bebê, seus lábios se curvam e surge um lindo sorriso. Aquele sorriso expressa afeição de um jeito todo especial. O bebê está começando a aprender com os pais a expressar amor.

2 O sorriso do bebê nos faz lembrar de algo importante a respeito da natureza humana: quando recebemos amor, nossa reação natural é amar. Foi assim que fomos criados. (Salmo 22:9) À medida que crescemos, vamos desenvolvendo nossa capacidade de reagir ao amor. Você talvez se lembre de quando era criança e de como seus pais, parentes e amigos expressavam amor por você. A afeição se arraigou no seu coração, cresceu e deu frutos: você passou a demonstrar amor também. Será que acontece algo similar no seu relacionamento com Jeová Deus?

[3] A Bíblia diz: "Quanto a nós, amamos porque ele nos amou primeiro." (1 João 4:19) A matéria das Seções 1 a 3 deste livro lembrou você que Jeová Deus, de forma amorosa, exerceu poder, justiça e sabedoria em seu benefício. E, na Seção 4, viu que ele expressou Seu amor diretamente à humanidade — e a você pessoalmente — de modos notáveis. Mas surge uma questão. De certa forma, esta é a pergunta mais importante que você pode fazer a si mesmo: 'Como posso corresponder ao amor de Jeová?'

O que significa amar a Deus

[4] Jeová, o Originador do amor, sabe muito bem que essa qualidade tem o dom de revelar o que há de melhor nas pessoas. Assim, apesar da constante rebeldia da humanidade infiel, ele sempre teve confiança de que alguns humanos corresponderiam ao seu amor. E, de fato, milhões corresponderam. Infelizmente, porém, as religiões deste mundo corrupto deixaram as pessoas confusas sobre o que significa amar a Deus. Muitas pessoas dizem que o amam, mas parecem achar que se trata apenas de um sentimento que se expressa em palavras. O

4. Por que as pessoas estão confusas sobre o que significa amar a Deus?

amor a Deus talvez comece dessa forma, assim como o amor do bebê pelos pais se manifesta inicialmente por meio de um sorriso. Mas, no caso dos adultos, o amor envolve mais coisas.

[5] Jeová explica o que significa amá-lo. Sua Palavra diz: "O amor de Deus significa o seguinte: que observemos os seus mandamentos." Assim, o amor a Deus precisa ser expresso em ações. É verdade que muitas pessoas não acham agradável a ideia de ter de obedecer. Mas o mesmo versículo bondosamente esclarece: "Contudo, os . . . mandamentos [de Deus] não são pesados." (1 João 5:3) O objetivo das leis e dos princípios de Jeová não é nos oprimir, mas nos beneficiar. (Isaías 48:17, 18) A Palavra de Deus está cheia de princípios que ajudam a nos achegarmos mais a ele. Como? Examinemos três aspectos de nosso relacionamento com Deus: comunicação, adoração e imitação.

Comunicação com Jeová

[6] O Capítulo 1 começa com a pergunta: "Consegue se imaginar conversando com Deus?" Vimos que essa não é uma ideia sem cabimento. De fato, Moisés conversou

com Jeová. E nós? Atualmente, Ele não envia anjos para conversar com humanos. Mas ainda tem meios excelentes de se comunicar conosco. Como podemos escutar a Jeová?

[7] Visto que "toda a Escritura é inspirada por Deus", escutamos a Jeová quando lemos sua Palavra, a Bíblia. (2 Timóteo 3:16) O salmista incentivou os servos de Deus a fazer essa leitura "dia e noite". (Salmo 1:1, 2) Isso exige esforço considerável da nossa parte. Mas vale a pena! Como vimos no Capítulo 18, a Bíblia é como uma carta valiosa de nosso Pai celestial. Assim, não devemos encarar a leitura dela como uma obrigação. Devemos dar vida ao que lemos nas Escrituras. Como se faz isso?

[8] Visualize o relato bíblico à medida que lê. Procure encarar os personagens bíblicos como pessoas reais. Tente entender a formação, as circunstâncias e as motivações deles. Daí, analise bem o que lê, fazendo perguntas como: 'O que esse relato me ensina sobre Jeová? Que qualidades dele ficam evidentes? Que princípio Jeová deseja que eu aprenda e como posso aplicá-lo na vida?' Leia, medite e aplique. À medida que fizer isso, a Palavra de Deus ganhará vida. — Salmo 77:12; Tiago 1:23-25.

[9] Jeová também fala conosco por meio do "escravo fiel

9. Quem faz parte do "escravo fiel e discreto"? Por que é importante prestar atenção a esse "escravo"?

e discreto". Como Jesus predisse, um pequeno grupo de homens cristãos ungidos foi designado para fornecer "alimento no tempo apropriado" durante estes turbulentos últimos dias. (Mateus 24:45-47) Quando lemos publicações preparadas para nos ajudar a obter conhecimento exato da Bíblia e quando assistimos a reuniões e congressos cristãos, estamos recebendo alimento espiritual desse escravo. Visto que se trata do escravo de Cristo, convém pôr em prática as palavras de Jesus: "Prestai atenção a como escutais." (Lucas 8:18) Escutamos com atenção porque reconhecemos que o escravo fiel é um dos meios que Jeová usa para se comunicar conosco.

poderosos humanos “são como gafanhotos”! (Isaías 40:22) Deveríamos nos sentir intimidados? De jeito nenhum!

[11] Jeová nos deu um meio direto e simples de chegarmos a ele: a oração. Até uma criança pode orar a Jeová com fé, em nome de Jesus. (João 14:6; Hebreus 11:6) Mas a oração nos permite transmitir nossos pensamentos e sentimentos mais complexos e íntimos, até mesmo aqueles que são tão dolorosos que nem sabemos expressar em palavras. (Romanos 8:26) Não adianta nada tentar impressionar Jeová com um vocabulário vasto e sofisticado ou com orações longas e verbosas. (Mateus 6:7, 8) Por outro lado, ele não especifica a duração máxima de nossas orações nem com que frequência podemos fazê-las. Sua Palavra até nos convida a ‘orar incessantemente’. — 1 Tessalonicenses 5:17.

[12] Lembre-se de que só Jeová é chamado de “Ouvinte de oração”, e ele escuta com verdadeira empatia. (Salmo 65:2) Será que ele apenas tolera as orações de seus servos fiéis? Não, ele realmente deriva prazer delas. Sua Palavra as compara a incenso que, quando queimado, libera uma nuvem de fumaça de cheiro doce e repousante. (Salmo 141:2; Revelação [Apocalipse] 5:8; 8:4) Não é consolador saber que nossas orações sinceras, de modo similar, ascendem até o Soberano Senhor e lhe agradam? Assim, se quiser se achegar a Jeová, ore a ele humilde e frequentemente, todo dia. Abra seu coração para ele, sem receio. (Salmo 62:8) Fale ao seu Pai celestial sobre suas preocupações e alegrias; expresse seus agradecimentos e louvores. Em resultado disso, o vínculo entre você e ele ficará cada vez mais forte.

Adoração a Jeová

[13] A comunicação com Jeová Deus é diferente de uma conversa com um amigo ou parente, em que simplesmente escutamos e falamos. Quando nos comunicamos com ele, estamos na verdade adorando-o, dando-lhe a honra reverente que lhe é bem merecida. A adoração verdadeira é a nossa vida. É o modo de demonstrarmos a Jeová nosso amor e devoção de toda a alma. Ela une todas as criaturas fiéis de Jeová, no céu e na Terra. Em visão, o apóstolo João ouviu um anjo dar esta ordem: "Adorai Aquele que fez o céu, e a terra, e o mar, e as fontes das águas." — Revelação 14:7.

[14] Por que devemos adorar a Jeová? Pense nas qualidades que analisamos: santidade, poder, autodomínio, justiça, coragem, misericórdia, sabedoria, humildade, amor, compaixão, lealdade e bondade. Vimos que Jeová é o próprio ápice, o padrão mais elevado possível, de cada um desses atributos valiosos. Quando procuramos entender plenamente essas qualidades como um todo, notamos que o Criador é muito mais do que um Personagem grandioso e notável. Ele é glorioso ao extremo e incomparavelmente mais elevado do que nós. (Isaías 55:9) Sem sombra de dúvida, Jeová tem o direito de ser nosso Soberano e, por certo, merece nossa adoração. Mas como devemos adorá-lo?

13, 14. O que significa adorar a Jeová e por que é apropriado fazermos isso?

15. Como podemos adorar a Jeová "com espírito e verdade"? As reuniões cristãs nos dão que oportunidade?

[16] Também adoramos a Jeová quando falamos dele a outros, dando-lhe louvor em público. (Hebreus 13:15) De fato, pregar as boas novas do Reino de Deus é um dos maiores mandamentos de que os cristãos verdadeiros foram incumbidos. (Mateus 24:14) Obedecemos entusiasticamente porque amamos ao Criador. "O deus deste sistema de coisas", Satanás, o Diabo, "tem cegado as mentes dos incrédulos", espalhando mentiras cruéis sobre Jeová. Por isso, ansiamos servir como Testemunhas a favor do nosso Deus, combatendo essas calúnias. (2 Coríntios 4:4; Isaías 43:10-12) E, quando meditamos nas maravilhosas qualidades de Jeová, não sentimos um desejo cada vez mais forte de falar dele a outros? De fato, não há privilégio maior do que ajudar outras pessoas a conhecer e a amar nosso Pai celestial assim como nós.

[17] Mas não é só isso. A adoração a Jeová abrange cada aspecto de nossa vida. (Colossenses 3:23) Se realmente aceitarmos a Jeová como nosso Senhor Soberano, procuraremos fazer sua vontade em tudo: na vida familiar, no serviço secular, nos tratos com outros, no tempo de folga. Faremos empenho para servir a Jeová "de pleno coração", com integridade. (1 Crônicas 28:9) Nesse tipo de adoração, não há lugar para um coração dividido nem para vida dupla (a atitude hipócrita de aparentemente servir a Jeová enquanto se praticam pecados graves em segredo). Para quem realmente demonstra integridade, é impossível ser hipócrita; quem é amoroso acha a hipocrisia repugnante. O temor de Deus também ajuda. A Bíblia afirma que essa reverência contribui para um relacionamento íntimo com Jeová. — Salmo 25:14.

17. O que a nossa adoração a Jeová abrange, e por que devemos adorar em integridade?

Imitar a Jeová

18 Cada seção deste livro termina com um capítulo que explica como podemos nos 'tornar imitadores de Deus, como filhos amados'. (Efésios 5:1) É vital lembrarmos que, apesar da nossa imperfeição, podemos realmente imitar o modo perfeito de Jeová usar o poder, exercer a justiça, empregar a sabedoria e demonstrar amor. Como sabemos que é realmente possível imitar o Todo-Poderoso? Lembre-se de que o significado do nome de Jeová nos ensina que ele se torna tudo o que decide ser para cumprir seus propósitos. É natural ficarmos espantados com essa habilidade, mas será que ela está completamente fora do nosso alcance? Não.

18, 19. Por que não é irrealista pensar que meros humanos imperfeitos sejam capazes de imitar a Jeová Deus?

[19] Fomos criados à imagem de Deus. (Gênesis 1:26) Assim, o homem é diferente de todas as outras criaturas da Terra. Não somos guiados por mero instinto, pela genética ou por fatores ambientais. Jeová nos deu uma dádiva preciosa: o livre-arbítrio. Apesar de nossas limitações e imperfeições, somos livres para escolher o que nos tornaremos. Deseja ser uma pessoa amorosa, sábia e justa que usa corretamente o poder? Graças à ajuda do espírito de Jeová, você pode ser exatamente assim! Pense em todo o bem que você poderá realizar.

[20] Você agradará seu Pai celestial, alegrando Seu coração. (Provérbios 27:11) Poderá até 'agradar plenamente' a Jeová, pois ele entende suas limitações. (Colossenses 1:9, 10) E, à medida que continuar desenvolvendo boas qualidades ao imitar seu Pai amoroso, será abençoado com um grande privilégio: num mundo em escuridão, alienado de Deus, você será um portador de luz. (Mateus 5:1, 2, 14) Ajudará a espalhar pela Terra alguns reflexos da gloriosa personalidade de Jeová. Que honra!

Nunca deixaremos de nos achegar cada vez mais a Jeová. Afinal, sempre haverá coisas a aprender sobre ele. Não pense que este livro ensinou tudo o que se pode saber sobre Jeová. Nós mal começamos a analisar tudo o que a Bíblia diz sobre o nosso Deus! E nem a Bíblia inteira contém todas as informações sobre ele. O apóstolo João acreditava que, se tudo o que Jesus fez durante seu ministério terrestre tivesse sido escrito, “o próprio mundo não poderia conter os rolos escritos”. (João 21:25) Se isso se dá no caso do Filho, quanto mais com o Pai!

[22] Nem mesmo a vida eterna será suficiente para aprender tudo sobre Jeová. (Eclesiastes 3:11) Pense, então, no que nos aguarda. Depois de viver por centenas, milhares, milhões ou até bilhões de anos, saberemos muito mais sobre Jeová Deus do que sabemos hoje. Mas ainda haverá incontáveis outras coisas maravilhosas para aprendermos. Ficaremos ansiosos de aprender mais, pois sempre teremos razões para nos sentir como o salmista, que cantou: “Chegar-me a Deus é bom para mim.” (Salmo 73:28) A vida eterna será inimaginavelmente significativa e variada — e a parte mais recompensadora dela sempre será achegar-nos mais a Jeová.

[23] Corresponda agora ao amor de Jeová, amando-o de todo o coração, alma, mente e força. (Marcos 12:29, 30) Desenvolva amor leal e inabalável. Que todas as decisões — pequenas ou grandes — que você toma dia após dia reflitam o mesmo princípio orientador: fazer todo o possível para fortalecer cada vez mais o relacionamento com seu Pai celestial! Acima de tudo, achegue-se cada vez mais a Jeová e ele se achegará cada vez mais a você — por toda a eternidade!

‘Seja meu seguidor’ — o que Jesus quis dizer com isso?

QUAL foi o melhor convite que você já recebeu? Talvez lhe venha à mente um convite para uma ocasião especial, como por exemplo o casamento de alguém muito querido. Ou talvez se lembre de quando foi convidado para cuidar de uma tarefa importante. Se já recebeu convites desse tipo, com certeza se sentiu muito alegre e até honrado. Mas a verdade é que você recebeu um convite muito melhor do que esses. Todos nós o recebemos. E a decisão de aceitá-lo ou não terá profundo efeito sobre nós. Será a decisão mais importante da nossa vida.

[2] De que convite estamos falando? É um convite que está na Bíblia, feito por Jesus Cristo, o Filho unigênito do Deus Todo-Poderoso, Jeová. Em Marcos 10:21, Jesus disse: “Vem ser meu seguidor.” Na verdade, Jesus faz esse convite a cada um de nós. Seria bom perguntarmos a nós mesmos: ‘Vou aceitá-lo?’ A resposta talvez pareça óbvia. Afinal,

1, 2. Qual é o melhor convite que um ser humano pode receber, e que pergunta precisamos fazer a nós mesmos?

quem recusaria um convite tão maravilhoso? Surpreendentemente, porém, a maioria das pessoas o recusa. Por quê?

[3] Veja o exemplo de um homem que recebeu pessoalmente esse convite uns 2 mil anos atrás. Tratava-se de alguém muito respeitado. Ele tinha pelo menos três coisas que as pessoas em geral gostariam de ter e até invejam: juventude, riqueza e poder. O relato bíblico diz que ele era "jovem", "muito rico" e era um "governante". (Mateus 19:20; Lucas 18:18, 23) Mas havia algo a respeito daquele homem que era ainda mais importante. Ele tinha ouvido falar sobre o Grande Instrutor, Jesus, e gostou do que tinha ouvido.

[4] A maioria dos governantes daquela época não dava a Jesus o respeito que ele merecia. (João 7:48; 12:42) Mas aquele governante era diferente. A Bíblia nos diz: "Enquanto [Jesus] saía, chegou correndo certo homem e se pôs de joelhos diante dele, perguntando-lhe: 'Bom Instrutor, que tenho de fazer para herdar a vida eterna?'" (Marcos 10:17) Note que aquele homem queria muito falar com Jesus, pois foi correndo ao encontro dele na frente de todos, como faziam as pessoas pobres e humildes. Além disso, ele respeitosamente se ajoelhou diante de Cristo. Portanto, até certo ponto ele era humilde e reconhecia que tinha necessidades espirituais. Jesus dava valor a essas qualidades. (Mateus 5:3; 18:4) Assim, não é de admirar que 'Jesus tenha olhado para ele e sentido amor por ele'. (Marcos 10:21) O que Jesus respondeu àquele jovem?

O melhor convite de todos

[5] Jesus mostrou que seu Pai já tinha dado informações a respeito de como ganhar a vida eterna. Jesus chamou a atenção para as Escrituras e o jovem disse que obedecia fielmente à Lei mosaica. Mas, com muita perspicácia, Jesus viu além do óbvio. (João 2:25) Ele notou que aquele governante tinha um problema espiritual — um problema grave. Por isso, disse: "Uma coisa falta a respeito de ti." O que estava faltando? Jesus continuou: "Vai, vende o que tiveres e dá aos pobres." (Marcos 10:21) Será que Jesus queria dizer que a pessoa precisa ser pobre para servir a

5. Qual foi a resposta de Jesus ao jovem governante rico, e como sabemos que o problema não era o fato de ele ser rico? (Veja também a nota.)

Deus? Não.* Ele estava ensinando algo muito mais importante.

[6] Para deixar claro o que faltava àquele jovem, Jesus ofereceu-lhe uma oportunidade de ouro: “Vem ser meu seguidor.” Imagine — o Filho do Deus Altíssimo convidou pessoalmente aquele homem a segui-lo! Jesus também prometeu a ele uma recompensa inimaginável. Ele disse: “Terás um tesouro no céu.” Será que o jovem governante rico agarrou aquela oportunidade, aceitou aquele convite excelente? O relato continua: “Ele ficou triste com as palavras e se afastou contristado, pois tinha muitas propriedades.” (Marcos 10:21, 22) Assim, a resposta inesperada de Jesus revelou um problema no coração daquele homem. Ele era apegado demais aos seus bens e sem dúvida gostava do poder e do prestígio que esses lhe proporcionavam. Infelizmente, ele amava muito mais essas coisas do que a Cristo. O que estava faltando,

* Jesus não pediu a quem o seguia que abrisse mão de tudo o que tinha. Embora ele tenha falado sobre como seria difícil para uma pessoa rica entrar no Reino de Deus, ele acrescentou: “Para Deus todas as coisas são possíveis.” (Marcos 10:23, 27) De fato, alguns ricos se tornaram seguidores de Cristo. Eles receberam conselhos específicos na congregação cristã, mas não se pediu que doassem todos os seus bens aos pobres. — 1 Timóteo 6:17.

6. Qual foi o convite de Jesus, e o que a reação do jovem governante rico revelou sobre seu coração?

portanto, era o amor abnegado e de todo o coração por Jesus e por Jeová. Por não ter esse amor, aquele jovem recusou o melhor convite da sua vida. Mas o que isso tem a ver com você?

[7] O convite de Jesus não se limitou àquele homem; nem apenas a algumas pessoas. Jesus disse: "Se alguém quer vir após mim, . . . siga-me continuamente." (Lucas 9:23) Note que qualquer pessoa pode seguir a Cristo se realmente 'quiser'. Deus atrai os sinceros ao seu Filho. (João 6:44) A oportunidade de aceitar o convite de Jesus não é dada apenas aos ricos, aos pobres, aos de determinada raça ou nação nem apenas aos que viveram naquela época, mas a todos. Assim, as palavras de Jesus 'venha ser meu seguidor' realmente são dirigidas a você. Mas por que seguir a Cristo? O que está envolvido nisso?

Por que ser seguidor de Cristo?

[8] Temos de reconhecer uma verdade: precisamos muito de boa liderança. Nem todos os humanos admitem ter essa necessidade; contudo, ela realmente existe. Jeremias, profeta de Jeová, foi inspirado a registrar a seguinte verdade imutável: "Bem sei, ó Jeová, que não é do homem terreno o seu caminho.

---

7. Como sabemos que o convite de Jesus é para todos nós?
8. Que necessidade todos os humanos têm, e por quê?

Não é do homem que anda o dirigir o seu passo." (Jeremias 10:23) Os humanos não têm a capacidade nem o direito de governar a si mesmos. De fato, a história humana tem sido marcada por má liderança. (Eclesiastes 8:9) Nos dias de Jesus, os líderes oprimiam, maltratavam e enganavam as pessoas. Jesus percebeu que as pessoas comuns eram como "ovelhas sem pastor". (Marcos 6:34) O mesmo ocorre hoje em dia. Individual e coletivamente, precisamos de uma liderança que possamos respeitar e na qual possamos confiar. Jesus satisfaz essa necessidade? Sim, veja por quê.

[9] Primeiro, Jesus foi escolhido por Jeová Deus. A maioria dos líderes humanos imperfeitos são escolhidos por cidadãos também imperfeitos, que geralmente se enganam e acabam fazendo escolhas equivocadas. Jesus é um líder diferente, conforme mostra seu próprio título. A palavra "Cristo", assim como a palavra "Messias", significa "Ungido". E de fato, Jesus foi ungido, ou especialmente designado para o seu cargo sagrado, por nenhum outro senão o Soberano Senhor do Universo. Jeová Deus disse a respeito de seu Filho: "Eis o meu servo a quem tenho escolhido, meu amado, a quem a minha alma tem aprovado! Porei sobre ele o meu espírito." (Mateus 12:18) Ninguém melhor do que o nosso Criador para saber o tipo de líder que precisamos. A sabedoria de Jeová é infinita, por isso, temos bons motivos para confiar em sua escolha. — Provérbios 3:5, 6.

[10] Segundo, Jesus estabeleceu um exemplo perfeito e inspirador para nós. Os melhores líderes têm qualidades que seus seguidores podem admirar e imitar. Eles lideram pelo exemplo, motivando outros a se tornarem pessoas melhores. Que qualidades você mais respeitaria num líder? Coragem? Sabedoria? Compaixão? Que dizer de perseverança ao enfrentar dificuldades? Ao estudar os relatos sobre a vida de Jesus na Terra, verá que ele tinha essas qualidades — e muito mais. Sendo um reflexo perfeito de seu Pai celestial, Jesus possuía todas as qualidades divinas em pleno grau. Ele foi tudo que um ser humano perfeito poderia ser. De modo que, em tudo o que fez, em cada palavra que falou e em cada sentimento que externou, encontramos algo que merece ser imitado. A Bíblia diz que Jesus estabeleceu 'um modelo para seguirmos de perto os seus passos'. — 1 Pedro 2:21.

[11] Terceiro, Cristo realmente foi "o pastor excelente",

10. Por que Jesus é o melhor exemplo para os humanos seguirem?
11. Como Jesus provou ser "o pastor excelente"?

conforme descreveu a si mesmo. (João 10:14) As pessoas nos tempos bíblicos podiam entender facilmente essa comparação. Os pastores trabalhavam muito para cuidar das suas ovelhas. Um "pastor excelente" estava disposto a pôr a segurança e o bem-estar do rebanho à frente dos seus. Por exemplo, Davi, um ancestral de Jesus, era pastor quando jovem. Mais de uma vez ele arriscou a vida para proteger suas ovelhas de animais selvagens ferozes. (1 Samuel 17:34-36) Jesus foi ainda mais longe em favor de seus seguidores. Deu a vida por eles. (João 10:15) Quantos líderes estão dispostos a se sacrificar assim?

12 Jesus foi "o pastor excelente" também em outro sentido. Ele disse: "Conheço as minhas ovelhas e as minhas ovelhas conhecem a mim." (João 10:14) Pense no belo cenário descrito por Jesus. Um observador casual talvez não veja nenhuma diferença entre as muitas ovelhas de um rebanho. O pastor, porém, conhece cada uma delas individualmente. Ele sabe quais as fêmeas que em breve precisarão de sua ajuda quando forem dar cria, que cordeirinhos ainda precisam ser carregados por serem muito pequenos e fracos para andar longas distâncias, e que ovelhas adoeceram ou se machucaram recentemente. As ovelhas também conhecem seu pastor. Elas reconhecem sua voz e não a confundem com a de nenhum outro pastor. Quando percebem um tom de perigo ou urgência em sua voz, elas reagem de imediato. Elas o seguem para onde quer que ele vá. E ele sabe exatamente para onde conduzi-las. Sabe também onde o pasto está verde, onde há riachos de água fresca e cristalina e onde há pastagens seguras. Sob os olhares do pastor, as ovelhas se sentem seguras. — Salmo 23.

13 Não é esse o tipo de liderança que você deseja? Foi exatamente assim que o Pastor Excelente sempre tratou seus seguidores. Ele promete ajudá-lo a ter uma vida feliz e gratificante tanto agora como num futuro eterno. (João 10:10, 11; Revelação [Apocalipse] 7:16, 17) Sendo assim, precisamos saber em detalhes o que está envolvido em seguir a Cristo.

O que significa ser seguidor de Cristo

14 Centenas de milhões de pessoas hoje acreditam ter aceitado o convite de Cristo. Afinal, até mesmo optaram por ser identificadas como cristãs. Pode ser

---

14, 15. Para ser seguidor de Cristo, por que não basta afirmar ser cristão ou amar a Jesus?

que elas pertençam à igreja em que seus pais as batizaram. Outros talvez afirmem amar a Jesus e o aceitam como seu Salvador. Mas será que isso os torna seguidores de Cristo? Era isso que Jesus tinha em mente quando nos convidou a segui-lo? Há muito mais envolvido.

15 Veja, por exemplo, o mundo da cristandade — as nações cuja maioria dos cidadãos afirma seguir a Cristo. Será que a cristandade pratica os ensinamentos de Jesus Cristo? Ou o que vemos nessas nações é ódio, opressão, crimes e injustiça, não muito diferente do que se vê no resto do mundo? O respeitado líder hindu Mohandas Gandhi disse: "Não conheço ninguém que tenha feito mais para a humanidade do que Jesus. De fato, não há nada de errado no cristianismo." Ele acrescentou: "O problema são vocês, cristãos. Vocês nem começaram a viver segundo os seus próprios ensinos."

16 Jesus disse que seus seguidores verdadeiros seriam conhecidos não apenas pelas palavras ou pelo título que adotassem, mas principalmente pelas suas ações. Por exemplo, ele disse: "Nem todo o que me disser: 'Senhor, Senhor', entrará no reino dos céus, senão aquele que fizer a vontade de meu Pai, que está nos céus." (Mateus 7:21) Por que tantas pessoas que afirmam que Jesus é seu Senhor não fazem a vontade de seu Pai? Lembre-se do jovem governante rico. Em geral 'falta uma coisa' aos que se dizem cristãos: o amor de toda a alma por Jesus e por Aquele que o enviou.

16, 17. O que em geral falta aos que se dizem cristãos, e o que distingue os verdadeiros seguidores de Cristo?

17 Como isso é possível? Não é verdade que muitos que se identificam como cristãos afirmam também amar a Cristo? Sem dúvida. Mas amar a Jesus e a Jeová envolve muito mais do que palavras. Jesus disse: "Se alguém me amar, observará a minha palavra." (João 14:23) E falando novamente como um pastor, ele disse: "Minhas ovelhas escutam a minha voz e eu as conheço, e elas me seguem." (João 10:27) Não são necessariamente as nossas palavras ou o que sentimos por Cristo que provam o nosso amor por ele, mas principalmente as nossas ações.

18 Mas nossas ações não são fruto do acaso. Elas refletem a pessoa que somos no íntimo. É a isso que precisamos dar atenção. Jesus disse: "Isto significa vida eterna, que absorvam conhecimento de ti, o único Deus verdadeiro, e daquele que enviaste, Jesus Cristo." (João 17:3) Assimilar conhecimento exato sobre Jesus e meditar no que aprendemos terá bom efeito sobre nosso coração. Nosso amor por Jesus e o desejo de segui-lo diariamente aumentarão cada vez mais.

19 Este é o objetivo deste livro: ele foi preparado não para contar em detalhes como foi a vida e o ministério de Jesus, mas para ajudar-nos a entender melhor como ser seu seguidor.* Este livro também nos ajudará a fazer uma autoanálise com o auxílio das Escrituras e perguntar-nos: 'Estou realmente seguindo a Jesus?' (Tiago 1:23-25) Talvez você já se considere há muito tempo uma ovelha guiada pelo Pastor Excelente. Mas não concorda que sempre podemos melhorar em alguns aspectos? A Bíblia nos aconselha: "Persisti em examinar se estais na fé, persisti em provar o que vós mesmos sois." (2 Coríntios 13:5) Vale a pena fazer todo esforço para continuarmos a ser guiados pelo nosso amoroso Pastor Excelente, Jesus, que foi escolhido pelo próprio Jeová para nos liderar.

Convites do Filho unigênito de Deus

Imagine que Jesus lhe estivesse fazendo pessoalmente estes convites. Como reagiria, e por quê?

"Sê meu seguidor." — Mateus 9:9; Lucas 9:59; João 1:43.

"Se alguém quer vir após mim negue-se a si mesmo e apanhe a sua estaca de tortura, e siga-me continuamente." — Mateus 16:24.

"Vinde a mim, todos os que estais labutando e que estais sobrecarregados, e eu vos reanimarei. Tomai sobre vós o meu jugo e aprendei de mim." — Mateus 11:28, 29.

"Se alguém tiver sede, venha a mim e beba." — João 7:37.

[20] Que o estudo deste livro contribua para aumentar seu amor por Jesus e por Jeová. Ao passo que for guiado por esse amor, você sentirá a maior paz e o maior contentamento possíveis neste velho mundo e viverá para louvar eternamente a Jeová por nos ter providenciado o Pastor Excelente. É claro que o estudo sobre Cristo precisa ser baseado no conhecimento exato. Por isso, é apropriado considerarmos o papel de Jesus no propósito de Jeová para suas criaturas. Veremos isso no Capítulo 2.

‘O caminho, a verdade e a vida’

JÁ SE perdeu alguma vez? Talvez se lembre de quando viajou para visitar um amigo ou um parente, mas não conseguiu encontrar o endereço. Enquanto procurava, parou para pedir informações? Com certeza teria ficado aliviado se, em vez de apenas indicar o caminho, uma pessoa bondosa lhe dissesse: “Siga-me. Vou levá-lo até lá.”

[2] De certo modo, é isso que Jesus faz por nós. Sem ajuda, seria impossível achegar-nos a Deus. Por causa do pecado herdado e da imperfeição, a humanidade está perdida, ‘apartada da vida que pertence a Deus’. (Efésios 4:17, 18) Precisamos de ajuda para encontrar o caminho certo. Jesus, nosso bondoso Exemplo, faz mais do que apenas dar conselhos e indicar o caminho. Como vimos no Capítulo 1, ele nos convida, dizendo: “Vem ser meu seguidor.” (Marcos 10:21) Ele também nos dá um bom motivo para aceitar seu convite. Certa ocasião, ele disse: "Eu sou o caminho, e a verdade, e a vida. Ninguém vem ao Pai senão por mim." (João 14:6) Vamos analisar por que só é possível nos aproximar do Pai por meio do Filho. Depois, com isso em mente, vamos considerar como Jesus de fato é 'o caminho, a verdade e a vida'.

1, 2. Por que seria impossível achegar-nos a Jeová sem ajuda, e o que Jesus Cristo faz por nós nesse sentido?

Papel vital no propósito de Jeová

[3] Em primeiro lugar, Jesus é o meio para nos achegarmos a Deus porque Jeová achou apropriado dar a seu Filho o papel mais importante de todos.* O Pai fez dele a figura central na realização dos Seus propósitos. (2 Coríntios 1:20; Colossenses 1:18-20) Para entendermos o papel vital do Filho, precisamos analisar o que aconteceu no jardim do Éden, onde o primeiro casal humano se juntou a Satanás em rebelião contra Jeová. — Gênesis 2:16, 17; 3:1-6.

[4] A rebelião no Éden levantou uma questão que

* O papel do Filho é tão importante que ele recebe vários títulos e nomes proféticos na Bíblia. — Veja o quadro na página 31.

3. Por que Jesus é o meio para nos achegarmos a Deus?
4. A rebelião no Éden levantou que questão, e o que Jeová decidiu fazer para resolvê-la?

afetou todas as criaturas de Deus: será que Jeová Deus exerce domínio sobre suas criaturas do modo correto? Para resolver essa questão fundamental, Jeová decidiu que um filho espiritual perfeito teria de vir à Terra. A missão desse filho não poderia ser mais importante — dar a vida para vindicar a soberania de Jeová e servir como resgate para a salvação da humanidade. Por permanecer fiel até a morte, esse filho escolhido tornaria possível resolver todos os problemas que surgiram com a rebelião de Satanás. (Hebreus 2:14, 15; 1 João 3:8) Mas Jeová tinha muitos milhões de filhos espirituais perfeitos. (Daniel 7:9, 10) Quem ele escolheu para essa tarefa tão importante? Jeová escolheu o seu "Filho unigênito", que mais tarde veio a ser conhecido como Jesus Cristo. — João 3:16.

[5] Devíamos nos surpreender com a escolha de Jeová? De modo algum! O Pai confiava plenamente em seu Filho unigênito. Séculos antes de o Filho vir à Terra, Jeová predisse que ele permaneceria leal apesar de enfrentar todo tipo de sofrimento.

5, 6. Como Jeová demonstrou que confiava no seu Filho, e em que se baseava essa confiança?

(Isaías 53:3-7, 10-12; Atos 8:32-35) Pense no que estava envolvido em Jeová predizer isso. O Filho, como todas as outras criaturas inteligentes, tinha livre-arbítrio e podia escolher o que fazer. Mas Jeová tinha tanta confiança nele que predisse que ele manteria a fidelidade. Em que se baseava essa confiança? Em conhecimento. Jeová conhece intimamente seu Filho e sabe que ele deseja muito agradá-lo. (João 8:29; 14:31) O Filho ama o Pai e este, por sua vez, ama o Filho. (João 3:35) O amor que o Pai e o Filho sentem um pelo outro cria entre eles um vínculo inquebrantável de união e confiança. — Colossenses 3:14.

[6] Em vista da importância do papel do Filho, da confiança que o Pai tem nele e do amor que os une, é de admirar que se achegar a Deus só seja possível por meio de Jesus? Mas há ainda outro motivo pelo qual apenas o Filho pode nos conduzir ao Pai.

Só o Filho conhece plenamente o Pai

[7] Precisamos satisfazer algumas exigências para

7, 8. Por que Jesus podia dizer com toda razão que ninguém conhece plenamente o Pai "exceto o Filho"?

nos achegarmos a Jeová. (Salmo 15:1-5) Quem além do Filho sabe exatamente o que é necessário para satisfazer os requisitos de Deus e agradá-lo? Jesus disse: "Todas as coisas me foram entregues por meu Pai, e ninguém conhece plenamente o Filho, exceto o Pai, tampouco há quem conheça plenamente o Pai, exceto o Filho e todo aquele a quem o Filho estiver disposto a revelá-lo." (Mateus 11:27) Vejamos por que Jesus tinha razão ao dizer, sem exageros, que ninguém conhece plenamente o Pai "exceto o Filho".

8 Como "o primogênito de toda a criação", Jesus tem um relacionamento especial com Jeová. (Colossenses 1:15) Imagine a intimidade que se desenvolveu entre o Pai e o Filho durante as incontáveis eras em que existiam apenas os dois — dos primórdios da criação até outras criaturas espirituais virem à existência. (João 1:3; Colossenses 1:16, 17) Pense na valiosa oportunidade que o Filho teve ao lado do Pai de assimilar os pensamentos Dele e entender Sua vontade, Suas normas e Seu modo de agir. De fato, não é exagero dizer que Jesus conhece seu Pai melhor do que qualquer outro. Essa intimidade certamente habilitou Jesus a refletir seu Pai como nenhuma outra criatura.

[9] Os ensinos de Jesus deixaram claro que ele conhece a fundo os pensamentos e os sentimentos de Jeová e sabe exatamente o que Ele requer de seus adoradores.* Mas Jesus refletiu seu Pai de outro modo importante. Jesus disse: "Quem me tem visto, tem visto também o Pai." (João 14:9) Jesus imitou perfeitamente seu Pai em tudo o que disse e fez. Assim, quando lemos sobre Jesus na Bíblia — suas palavras tocantes e cativantes ao ensinar, a compaixão que o motivou a curar outros e a empatia que o fez chorar — podemos muito bem imaginar Jeová dizendo e fazendo exatamente o mesmo. (Mateus 7:28, 29; Marcos 1:40-42; João 11:32-36) As palavras e as ações do Filho refletem perfeitamente os modos de agir e a vontade do Pai. (João 5:19; 8:28; 12:49, 50) Portanto, para agradarmos a Jeová, precisamos acatar os ensinamentos de Jesus e seguir seu exemplo. — João 14:23.

* Veja, por exemplo, as palavras de Jesus em Mateus 10:29-31; 18:12-14, 21-35; 22:36-40.

9, 10. (a) De que modo Jesus refletiu seu Pai? (b) Para agradarmos a Jeová, o que precisamos fazer?

[10] Visto que Jesus conhece intimamente a Jeová e o imita de modo perfeito, não é de admirar que Jeová tenha determinado que seu Filho seja o meio para nos achegarmos ao Pai. Agora que entendemos por que podemos nos achegar a Jeová somente por meio de Jesus, vamos analisar o que significam as suas palavras: "Eu sou o caminho, e a verdade, e a vida. Ninguém vem ao Pai senão por mim." — João 14:6.

"Eu sou o caminho"

[11] Já vimos que é impossível nos achegarmos a Deus a não ser por meio de Jesus. Considere mais especificamente o que isso significa. Jesus é "o caminho" no sentido de que é só por meio dele que podemos entrar num relacionamento com Deus. Como assim? Por ser fiel até a morte, Jesus sacrificou sua vida como resgate. (Mateus 20:28) Sem essa provisão de resgate, seria impossível termos acesso a Deus. O pecado cria uma barreira entre os humanos e Deus porque Jeová é santo e, portanto, nun-

11. (a) Por que só podemos entrar num relacionamento com Deus por meio de Jesus? (b) Como as palavras registradas em João 14:6 deixam claro a exclusividade do papel de Jesus? (Veja a nota.)

ca poderia aceitar o pecado. (Isaías 6:3; 59:2) Mas o sacrifício de Jesus removeu essa barreira; ele forneceu o que era necessário para cobrir, ou expiar, o pecado. (Hebreus 10:12; 1 João 1:7) Se aceitarmos a provisão de Deus por meio de Cristo e tivermos fé nela, poderemos ser aprovados por Jeová. Simplesmente não há outro modo de sermos "reconciliados com Deus".* — Romanos 5:6-11.

[12] Jesus é "o caminho" no que diz respeito às orações. É apenas por meio dele que podemos nos dirigir a Jeová em oração com a garantia de que nossos pedidos sinceros serão ouvidos favoravelmente. (1 João 5:13, 14) O próprio Jesus disse: "Se pedirdes ao Pai qualquer coisa, ele vo-la dará em meu nome. . . . Pedi e recebereis, para que a vossa alegria seja plena." (João 16:23, 24) Por meio do nome de Jesus é correto orarmos a Deus e chamá-Lo de "nosso Pai". (Mateus 6:9) Jesus é "o caminho" em ainda outro sentido — pelo seu exemplo.

* Em João 14:6, o uso do pronome pessoal "eu" junto com o artigo definido "o" deixa claro que a função de Jesus é exclusiva, que ele é o único caminho para nos achegarmos ao Pai.

12. Em que sentidos Jesus é "o caminho"?

Conforme já mencionado, ele imitou perfeitamente seu Pai. Assim, seu exemplo nos mostra como viver de um modo que agrada a Jeová. Para nos achegarmos a Jeová, portanto, precisamos andar nas pisadas de Jesus. — 1 Pedro 2:21.

"Eu sou . . . a verdade"

[13] Jesus sempre falou a verdade a respeito da palavra profética de seu Pai. (João 8:40, 45, 46) Nunca saiu algo enganoso de sua boca. (1 Pedro 2:22) Até mesmo seus opositores admitiram que ele ensinava "o caminho de Deus em harmonia com a verdade". (Marcos 12:13, 14) No entanto, quando Jesus disse "eu sou . . . a verdade", não estava apenas dizendo que tornava a verdade conhecida ao falar, pregar e ensinar. Muito mais do que palavras estava envolvido.

[14] Lembre-se de que com séculos de antecedência Jeová inspirou os escritores bíblicos a registrar muitas profecias sobre o Messias, ou Cristo. Essas profecias predisseram detalhes sobre sua vida, seu ministério e sua morte. Além disso, a Lei mosaica continha sombras, ou modelos proféticos, que se aplicavam ao Messias. (Hebreus 10:1) Será que Jesus seria fiel até a morte, cumprindo assim tudo o que tinha sido profetizado sobre ele? Só então ficaria provado que Jeová é o Deus de profecias verdadeiras. Jesus tinha essa enorme responsabilidade sobre seus ombros. Pelo modo como viveu — cada palavra que disse e cada ação que realizou — ele fez com que os modelos proféticos se tornassem realidade. (2 Coríntios 1:20) Desse modo, Jesus era "a verdade". Era como se a verdade da palavra profética de Jeová viesse à existência na pessoa de Jesus. — João 1:17; Colossenses 2:16, 17.

13, 14. (a) Como Jesus foi veraz em tudo o que disse? (b) O que Jesus teve de fazer para ser "a verdade", e por quê?

"Eu sou . . . a vida"

[15] Jesus é "a vida" no sentido de que apenas por meio dele podemos receber a vida — quer dizer, "a verdadeira vida". (1 Timóteo 6:19) A Bíblia diz: "Quem exerce fé no Filho tem vida eterna; quem desobedece ao Filho não verá a vida, mas o furor de Deus permanece sobre ele." (João 3:36) O que

15. O que significa exercer fé no Filho, e fazer isso pode resultar em quê?

significa exercer fé no Filho de Deus? Significa que estamos convencidos de que não podemos ganhar a vida eterna sem ele. Mais do que isso, significa que demonstramos nossa fé por meio de obras, que continuamos a aprender de Jesus e que fazemos o nosso melhor para seguir seus ensinamentos e seu exemplo. (Tiago 2:26) Assim, exercer fé no Filho de Deus resulta em vida eterna — vida espiritual imortal no céu para um "pequeno rebanho" de cristãos ungidos pelo espírito, e vida humana perfeita num paraíso terrestre para "uma grande multidão" de "outras ovelhas". — Lucas 12:32; 23:43; Revelação (Apocalipse) 7:9-17; João 10:16.

[16] Mas que dizer dos que já morreram? Para eles, Jesus também é "a vida". Pouco antes de ressuscitar seu amigo Lázaro, Jesus disse a Marta, irmã de Lázaro: "Eu sou a ressurreição e a vida. Quem exercer fé em mim, ainda que morra, viverá outra vez." (João 11:25) Jeová confiou ao seu Filho "as chaves da morte e do Hades"; portanto, foi-lhe dado poder para ressuscitar pessoas. (Revelação 1:17, 18) Com essas chaves, o glorificado Jesus destrancará os portões do Hades e libertará todos os que estão presos na sepultura comum da humanidade. — João 5:28, 29.

[17] 'Eu sou o caminho, a verdade e a vida' — com essa declaração simples, Jesus resumiu o objetivo de sua vida e de seu ministério na Terra. Essas palavras têm muito significado para nós hoje. Lembre-se de que Jesus acrescentou: "Ninguém vem ao Pai senão por mim." (João 14:6) Essas palavras de Jesus são tão importantes hoje quanto eram na ocasião em que ele as proferiu. Portanto, podemos ter total confiança de que, se seguirmos a Jesus, nunca nos perderemos. Apenas ele nos mostrará o caminho para chegar "ao Pai".

Aceitará o convite?

[18] Em vista do papel vital de Jesus e do conhecimento profundo que ele tem do Pai, temos bons motivos para seguir o Filho. Conforme vimos no capítulo anterior, ser verdadeiro seguidor de Jesus

---

18. O que envolve ser verdadeiro seguidor de Jesus?

envolve ações, não apenas palavras ou sentimentos. Seguir a Cristo envolve moldarmos nossa vida segundo seus ensinamentos e seu exemplo. (João 13:15) Este livro pode ajudá-lo a fazer isso.

19 Nos próximos capítulos, faremos um estudo profundo da vida e do ministério de Jesus. Os capítulos estão divididos em três seções. Na primeira vamos ter uma visão geral de suas qualidades e modos de agir. Na segunda vamos analisar seu exemplo de zelo ao pregar e ensinar. E na terceira vamos considerar como ele demonstrou amor. A partir do Capítulo 3, há um quadro intitulado "Como Ser Seguidor de Jesus?". Esses quadros, com textos e perguntas, foram preparados para nos ajudar a meditar em como podemos imitar a Jesus em palavras e ações.

20 Graças à ajuda de Jeová Deus, você não precisa ficar perdido, apartado dele por causa do pecado herdado. Apesar de ter sido muito difícil para si mesmo, Jeová enviou seu Filho para nos mostrar que caminho seguir a fim de termos um relacionamento com Deus. (1 João 4:9, 10) Que você se sin-

‘Sou humilde de coração’

JERUSALÉM está em comoção. Alguém muito importante está chegando! As pessoas se ajuntam ao longo da estrada que dá acesso à cidade, pois estão ansiosas para receber o homem que, segundo dizem, é descendente do Rei Davi e tem o direito de ser o governante de Israel. Muitos trazem folhas de palmeiras para lhe dar boas-vindas; outros espalham roupas e ramos de árvores na estrada para facilitar a sua passagem. (Mateus 21:7, 8; João 12:12, 13) Muitos provavelmente estão imaginando como será sua entrada na cidade.

[2] Alguns talvez esperem uma demonstração de suntuosidade. Com certeza já ouviram falar de pessoas importantes que se apresentaram com muita pompa. Por exemplo, Absalão, filho de Davi, tinha 50 homens correndo à frente de seu carro quando se proclamou rei. (2 Samuel 15:1, 10) O governador romano Júlio César quis mais destaque ainda; em certa ocasião, liderou uma procissão triunfal até o capitólio romano acompanhado por 40 elefantes que portavam lâmpadas. Mas agora o povo de Jerusalém espera um homem muito mais importante. Quem está chegando na cidade é o Messias, o maior homem que já viveu na Terra, embora nem todos talvez entendam plenamente o que isso significa. Quando avistam esse futuro rei, porém, alguns ficam surpresos.

1-3. Descreva a entrada de Jesus em Jerusalém; e por que alguns dos observadores talvez tenham ficado surpresos?

[3] Não há nenhum carro, nem corredores, nem cavalos — muito menos elefantes. Em vez disso, Jesus vem montado num simples animal de carga, um jumento.* Nem ele nem o animal estão adornados. Não há uma sela cara no jumento, mas sim roupas que alguns dos seguidores mais achegados de Jesus puseram sobre o animal. Por que Jesus entrou em Jerusalém de modo tão humilde, quando homens muito inferiores a ele fizeram questão de muita pompa e cerimônia?

[4] Jesus está cumprindo uma profecia: "Jubila gran-

* Comentando essa ocasião, uma obra de referência diz que o jumento "é uma criatura humilde" e acrescenta: "Trata-se de um animal de tração costumeiramente usado pelos pobres; é lento, teimoso e não é muito elegante."

4. O que a Bíblia predisse sobre o modo como o Rei messiânico entraria em Jerusalém?

demente . . . Brada em triunfo, ó filha de Jerusalém. Eis que vem a ti o teu próprio rei. Ele é justo, sim, salvo; humilde, e montado num jumento." (Zacarias 9:9) Essa profecia indicava que o Ungido de Deus, o Messias, um dia se apresentaria ao povo de Jerusalém como Rei divinamente designado. Indicava também que até mesmo o modo de ele fazer isso, incluindo o animal em que estaria montado, revelaria uma bela qualidade de coração: a humildade.

5 A humildade de Jesus está entre as suas qualidades mais atraentes; é uma qualidade comovente. Conforme vimos no capítulo anterior, apenas Jesus é 'o caminho, a verdade e a vida'. (João 14:6) Sem dúvida, ninguém entre os bilhões de humanos que já viveram na Terra foi tão importante quanto o Filho de Deus. Apesar disso Jesus nunca mostrou nenhum sinal do orgulho, da arrogância e do convencimento demonstrados por muitos humanos imperfeitos. Para sermos seguidores de Cristo, precisamos combater a tendência para o orgulho. (Tiago 4:6) Lembre-se de que Jeová odeia a arrogância. Por isso, é importante aprendermos a imitar a humildade de Jesus.

5. Por que a humildade de Jesus é comovente, e por que é importante aprendermos a imitá-lo nesse respeito?

Um longo histórico de humildade

[6] Humildade é despretensão, ausência de arrogância ou de orgulho. É uma qualidade que se origina no coração e que fica evidente na conversa da pessoa, em sua conduta e no modo como trata os outros. Como Jeová sabia que o Messias seria humilde? Ele sabia que seu Filho refletia seu próprio exemplo de humildade. (João 10:15) Também já tinha visto a humildade do Filho em ação. Como?

[7] O livro bíblico de Judas dá um ótimo exemplo: "Quando Miguel, o arcanjo, teve uma controvérsia com o Diabo e disputava acerca do corpo de Moisés, não se atreveu a lançar um julgamento contra ele em termos ultrajantes, mas disse: 'Jeová te censure.'" (Judas 9) Miguel é outro nome de Jesus — antes e depois de sua vida na Terra — na posição de arcanjo, ou comandante do exército de anjos de Jeová.* (1 Tessalonicenses 4:16) Mas note como Miguel agiu nessa disputa com Satanás.

* Para mais provas de que Miguel é Jesus, veja as páginas 218-219 do livro O Que a Bíblia Realmente Ensina?, publicado pelas Testemunhas de Jeová.

6. O que é humildade, e como Jeová sabia que o Messias seria humilde?
7-9. (a) Como Miguel demonstrou humildade em sua disputa com Satanás? (b) Como os cristãos podem imitar Miguel em demonstrar humildade?

[8] O relato de Judas não diz o que Satanás queria fazer com o corpo de Moisés, mas podemos ter certeza de que suas intenções não eram boas. Talvez ele quisesse usar os restos mortais daquele homem fiel para promover a adoração falsa. Miguel frustrou a trama perversa de Satanás, mas também demonstrou notável autocontrole. Aquele anjo mau certamente merecia ser censurado, mas Miguel, que na época ainda não tinha recebido toda a autoridade para julgar, reconheceu que apenas Jeová Deus podia julgar Satanás. (João 5:22) Como arcanjo, Miguel tinha muita autoridade. Mesmo assim, ele humildemente se submeteu a Jeová em vez de tentar apoderar-se de mais autoridade. Além de humildade ele demonstrou modéstia, ou seja, reconheceu suas limitações.

[9] Judas foi inspirado a escrever sobre esse incidente por um motivo: infelizmente, alguns cristãos na época de Judas não eram humildes. Eles arrogantemente 'falavam de modo ultrajante de todas as coisas que realmente não conheciam'. (Judas 10) Para nós, humanos imperfeitos, é muito fácil ser vencidos pelo orgulho. Como agimos quando não entendemos algo que é feito na congregação, talvez envolvendo alguma decisão do corpo de anciãos? Se começarmos a falar de modo negativo, crítico, apesar de não ser possível saber de todos os fatos envolvidos nas decisões, não estaremos demonstrando falta de humildade? Em vez de agir assim, imitemos Miguel, ou seja, Jesus, não julgando assuntos que Deus não nos deu autoridade para julgar.

[10] O Filho de Deus também mostrou humildade por aceitar a designação de vir à Terra. Considere o que ele teve de deixar para trás. Ele era o arcanjo. Além disso, ele também era "a Palavra" — o Porta-Voz do próprio Jeová. (João 1:1-3) Ele morava no céu, a "morada excelsa de santidade e beleza" de Jeová. (Isaías 63:15) Apesar disso, o Filho "se esvaziou e assumiu a forma de escravo, vindo a ser na semelhança dos homens". (Filipenses 2:7) Pense no que estava envolvido nessa designação aqui na Terra. Sua vida foi transferida para o ventre de uma virgem judia onde se desenvolveu durante nove meses. Ele nasceu como um bebê indefeso na família pobre de um carpinteiro, foi criança e adolescente. Embora fosse perfeito, continuou sujeito aos seus pais humanos imperfeitos durante toda a juventude. (Lucas 2:40, 51, 52) Quanta humildade!

10, 11. (a) O que é notável na disposição do Filho de Deus de vir à Terra? (b) Como podemos imitar a humildade de Jesus?

[11] Será que podemos imitar a humildade de Jesus por estar dispostos a aceitar designações de serviço que às vezes parecem humildes? Por exemplo, nossa designação de pregar as boas novas do Reino de Deus pode parecer humilde quando encontramos pessoas apáticas, hostis ou que nos ridicularizam. (Mateus 28:19, 20) Mas, se perseverarmos nessa obra, poderemos ajudar a salvar vidas. De qualquer modo, aprenderemos muito sobre a humildade e seguiremos os passos do nosso Mestre, Jesus Cristo.

A humildade de Jesus como homem

[12] Do começo ao fim do seu ministério, Jesus foi conhecido pela sua humildade. Ele demonstrou que era humilde ao dirigir todo louvor e glória a seu Pai. As pessoas às vezes elogiavam Jesus pela sua sabedoria, pelo seu poder de realizar milagres e pela sua bondade. Mas ele sempre direcionou a glória para o seu Pai. — Marcos 10:17, 18; João 7:15, 16.

[13] Jesus também mostrou humildade no modo como tratou as pessoas. Ele deixou claro que não

12-14. (a) Como Jesus mostrava humildade quando as pessoas o elogiavam? (b) De que modo Jesus tratou outros com humildade? (c) O que mostra que a humildade de Jesus não era apenas uma questão de formalidade ou boas maneiras?

tinha vindo à Terra para ser servido, mas para servir. (Mateus 20:28) Demonstrou humildade ao tratar as pessoas de modo bondoso e razoável. Quando seus seguidores o decepcionavam, ele não os repreendia duramente; ele continuava tentando tocar-lhes o coração. (Mateus 26:39-41) Quando as multidões não o deixavam descansar nem ter tranquilidade e privacidade, ele não as mandava embora, mas continuava a dar de si, ensinando-lhes "muitas coisas". (Marcos 6:30-34) Quando uma mulher não israelita implorou que Jesus curasse sua filha, de início parecia que ele não queria fazer isso. Mas não se recusou de modo irado a realizar a cura; ele cedeu diante da notável fé daquela mulher, conforme veremos no Capítulo 14. — Mateus 15:22-28.

14 De incontáveis modos, Jesus realmente viveu segundo o que disse a respeito de si mesmo: "Sou de temperamento brando e humilde de coração." (Mateus 11:29) Sua humildade não era superficial, uma simples questão de formalidade ou boas maneiras. Vinha do coração, do íntimo. Portanto, não é de admirar que Jesus tenha dado muita importância a ensinar seus seguidores a ser humildes.

Lições de humildade a seus seguidores

[15] Levou tempo para os apóstolos de Jesus cultivar humildade. Ele tentou tocar-lhes o coração vez após vez. Por exemplo, certa ocasião, Tiago e João pediram por meio de sua mãe que Jesus lhes garantisse posições de destaque no Reino de Deus. Modestamente, Jesus respondeu: "Assentar-se à minha direita e à minha esquerda não é meu para dar, mas pertence àqueles para quem tem sido preparado por meu Pai." Os outros dez apóstolos "indignaram-se" com Tiago e João. (Mateus 20:20-24) Como Jesus lidou com o problema?

deviam ser diferentes daqueles tiranos sedentos de poder; precisavam ser humildes. Será que os apóstolos aprenderam a lição?

[17] Não foi fácil para os apóstolos de Jesus. Aquela não foi a primeira nem a última vez que Jesus lhes ensinou a lição de humildade. Antes daquela ocasião, eles já tinham discutido sobre quem era o maior. Jesus havia colocado uma criança no meio deles e tinha lhes dito que fossem como as crianças, que, diferentemente de muitos adultos, em geral não têm orgulho, ambição nem se preocupam com posição. (Mateus 18:1-4) Apesar disso, até mesmo na noite antes de morrer Jesus percebeu que seus apóstolos ainda lutavam contra o orgulho. Assim, ensinou-lhes uma lição inesquecível. Cingiu-se com uma toalha e realizou a mais humilde de todas as tarefas, uma tarefa que normalmente era atribuída aos servos da casa: lavar os pés dos convidados de seu amo. Jesus lavou os pés de cada um dos apóstolos — incluindo Judas, que estava para traí-lo! — João 13:1-11.

[18] Jesus deixou bem claro o ponto em questão quan-

17-19. (a) Na véspera de sua morte, de que modo notável Jesus ensinou a humildade a seus apóstolos? (b) Qual foi a maior lição de humildade ensinada por Jesus quando esteve na Terra?

do lhes disse: "Estabeleci o modelo para vós." (João 13:15) Será que essa lição finalmente os sensibilizou? Bem, mais tarde naquela mesma noite, eles discutiram de novo sobre quem era o maior! (Lucas 22:24-27) Ainda assim, Jesus continuou sendo paciente com eles e lhes ensinou humildemente. Depois, deu-lhes a mais importante de todas as lições: "Humilhou-se e tornou-se obediente até à morte, sim, morte numa estaca de tortura." (Filipenses 2:8) Jesus voluntariamente se sujeitou a uma morte humilhante, tendo sido condenado de modo injusto como criminoso e blasfemador. Desse modo, o Filho de Deus mostrou-se incomparável, pois foi o único, dentre todos os seres criados por Jeová, que demonstrou humildade de modo perfeito e no mais alto grau.

19 Talvez essa última lição de humildade ensinada por Jesus quando esteve na Terra tenha sido a que tocou definitivamente o coração dos seus apóstolos fiéis. A Bíblia nos diz que eles continuaram trabalhando humildemente por anos, até mesmo por décadas. Que dizer de nós?

Você seguirá o modelo estabelecido por Jesus?

20 Paulo aconselha a cada um de nós: "Mantende

20. Como podemos saber se somos humildes de coração?

em vós esta atitude mental que houve também em Cristo Jesus." (Filipenses 2:5) Precisamos ser humildes de coração assim como Jesus. Como podemos saber se somos humildes no íntimo? Paulo nos lembra que não devemos 'fazer nada por briga ou por egotismo, mas, com humildade mental, considerar os outros superiores a nós'. (Filipenses 2:3) A chave, portanto, está no modo como encaramos os outros em relação a nós mesmos. Precisamos vê-los como superiores e mais importantes do que nós. Você porá em prática esse conselho?

[21] Muitos anos após a morte de Jesus, o apóstolo Pedro ainda tinha em mente a importância da humildade. Ele ensinou os superintendentes cristãos a cuidar de seus deveres de modo humilde, nunca dominando sobre as ovelhas de Jeová. (1 Pedro 5:2, 3) Responsabilidade não é desculpa para orgulho. Ao contrário, responsabilidades exigem ainda mais humildade genuína. (Lucas 12:48) É claro que essa qualidade é fundamental não apenas para os superintendentes, mas para todos os cristãos.

21, 22. (a) Por que os superintendentes cristãos precisam ser humildes? (b) Como podemos mostrar que estamos cingidos com humildade?

[22] Certamente Pedro nunca mais esqueceu aquela noite em que Jesus lavou seus pés, embora o próprio apóstolo de início não quisesse deixá-lo fazer isso. (João 13:6-10) Pedro escreveu aos cristãos: "Todos vós, porém, cingi-vos de humildade mental uns para com os outros." (1 Pedro 5:5) A expressão "cingi-vos" sugere a ação de um servo que colocava um avental para cuidar de tarefas humildes. A frase nos faz lembrar da ocasião em que Jesus se cingiu com uma toalha e depois se ajoelhou para lavar os pés dos apóstolos. Se seguirmos a Jesus, será que poderemos considerar alguma designação dada por Deus como estando abaixo de nossa dignidade? Nossa humildade de coração deve ser evidente a todos, como se estivéssemos cingidos com ela.

[23] O orgulho é como veneno. Seus efeitos podem ser muito ruins. É uma qualidade que pode fazer com que o humano mais talentoso se torne inútil para Deus. A humildade, por outro lado, pode tornar muito útil para Jeová até mesmo a pessoa mais simples. Se cultivarmos diariamente essa qualidade preciosa

23, 24. (a) Por que temos de resistir a qualquer tendência para o orgulho? (b) O próximo capítulo nos ajudará a corrigir que conceito errado sobre a humildade?

Como Ser Seguidor de Jesus?

- Como o exemplo de Jesus poderá ajudá-lo quando se sentir tentado a gabar-se de suas realizações? — Mateus 12:15-19; Marcos 7:35-37.
- Como você pode imitar o exemplo que Jesus deu quando realizou tarefas humildes para seus irmãos espirituais? — João 21:1-13.
- Como o exemplo de Jesus pode beneficiá-lo caso se sinta tentado a buscar destaque e sucesso neste mundo? — João 6:14, 15.

por nos esforçarmos em seguir os passos de Cristo com humildade, teremos uma recompensa maravilhosa. Pedro escreveu: "Humilhai-vos, portanto, sob a mão poderosa de Deus, para que ele vos enalteça no tempo devido." (1 Pedro 5:6) Jeová sem dúvida exaltou Jesus por ter demonstrado humildade de modo tão pleno. Da mesma forma, Deus terá prazer em recompensar você por sua humildade.

24 Infelizmente, alguns acham que a humildade é sinal de fraqueza. O exemplo de Jesus mostra que isso é um grande engano, pois o mais humilde de todos os homens era também o mais corajoso. Consideraremos isso no próximo capítulo.

‘Eis o Leão que é da tribo de Judá!’

UMA turba de soldados e homens armados com espadas e cassetetes está à procura de Jesus. Como que guiados por um único objetivo perverso, eles percorrem as ruas escuras de Jerusalém e atravessam o vale do Cédron em direção ao monte das Oliveiras. Apesar de ser noite de Lua cheia, carregam tochas e lampiões. Será que é porque há nuvens encobrindo a luz da Lua? Ou será que eles acham que a pessoa a quem procuram está escondida na escuridão? Uma coisa é certa: quem acha que Jesus ficará com medo sabe muito pouco sobre ele.

2 Jesus sabe do perigo que se aproxima. Apesar disso ele não foge, mas fica esperando. A turba se aproxima, liderada por Judas, um anterior amigo em quem Jesus confiava. Judas trai Jesus descaradamente, identificando aquele que havia sido seu mestre com um cumprimento hipócrita e um beijo. Ainda assim, Jesus não perde a compostura. Ele dá um passo à frente diante da turba e pergunta: “A quem procurais?" Eles respondem: "A Jesus, o nazareno."

1-3. Que perigo ameaça Jesus, e como ele reage?

[3] A maioria das pessoas ficaria aterrorizada diante de uma turba armada como essa. Talvez seja isso o que a multidão espera de Jesus. Mas ele não recua, não foge nem inventa alguma mentira para escapar. Ele simplesmente diz: "Sou eu." Jesus faz isso de modo tão calmo, tão corajoso, que os homens ficam perplexos. Eles recuam cambaleantes e caem no chão! — João 18:1-6; Mateus 26:45-50; Marcos 14:41-46.

[4] Como Jesus conseguiu enfrentar aquela situação perigosa com tanto autocontrole e serenidade? A resposta se resume numa palavra: coragem. Poucas qualidades são tão admiradas ou tão necessárias num líder quanto a coragem; e nenhum homem jamais se igualou a Jesus, muito menos o superou nesse sentido. No capítulo anterior aprendemos como Jesus foi humilde e manso. Por isso, ele podia apropriadamente ser chamado de "Cordeiro". (João 1:29) A coragem de Jesus, no entanto, merece uma descrição bem diferente. A Bíblia diz a respeito do Filho de Deus: 'Eis o Leão que é da tribo de Judá.' — Revelação (Apocalipse) 5:5.

[5] O leão é muitas vezes relacionado com coragem. Já esteve frente a frente com um leão? Se já, é bem provável que estivesse separado dele pelas grades de uma jaula num zoológico. Mesmo assim, isso causa um certo medo. Ao encarar bem nos olhos esse animal enorme e forte, e vê-lo olhando para você, é difícil imaginá-lo fugindo de medo de alguma coisa. A Bíblia fala sobre "o leão, que é o mais poderoso entre os animais e que não recua diante de ninguém". (Provérbios 30:30) A coragem de Cristo é assim.

[6] Vamos analisar três modos como Jesus demonstrou coragem semelhante à do leão: por defender a verdade, apoiar a justiça e enfrentar oposição. Vamos ver também que todos nós podemos imitar a Jesus em demonstrar coragem — quer sejamos corajosos por natureza, quer não.

Ele defendeu corajosamente a verdade

[7] Num mundo governado por Satanás, "o pai da

7-9. (a) O que aconteceu quando Jesus tinha 12 anos, e por que você acharia aquela situação intimidadora? (b) Como Jesus demonstrou coragem ao lidar com os instrutores no templo?

mentira", muitas vezes é necessário coragem para defender a verdade. (João 8:44; 14:30) Jesus não esperou ficar adulto para fazer isso. Quando tinha 12 anos, ele se separou de seus pais na Páscoa em Jerusalém. Maria e José o procuraram desesperadamente por três dias. Por fim o encontraram no templo. O que ele fazia ali? Estava 'sentado no meio dos instrutores, escutando-os e interrogando-os'. (Lucas 2:41-50) Pense naquele cenário.

8 Historiadores dizem que alguns dos mais destacados líderes religiosos costumavam permanecer no templo depois das festividades e ensinar em um dos espaçosos pórticos que havia ali. As pessoas sentavam-se à sua volta para escutá-los e fazer perguntas. Aqueles instrutores eram homens cultos. Conheciam profundamente a Lei mosaica e as complexas e intermináveis leis e tradições humanas que surgiram ao longo dos anos. Como você se sentiria se estivesse ali entre eles? Intimidado? Isso seria de esperar. E se você tivesse apenas 12 anos? Muitos jovens são tímidos. (Jeremias 1:6) Alguns tentam de todo jeito não atrair a atenção dos professores; também têm medo de ser chamados para responder a uma pergunta, de tornar-se o centro das atenções, de atrapalhar-se e de sofrer zombarias.

[9] Mas Jesus estava entre aqueles homens instruídos, corajosamente lhes fazendo perguntas profundas. E ele fez mais do que isso. O relato nos conta: "Todos os que o escutavam ficavam constantemente pasmados com o seu entendimento e suas respostas." (Lucas 2:47) A Bíblia não relata o que Jesus disse naquela ocasião, mas podemos ter certeza de que suas respostas não incluíram as falsidades tão defendidas por aqueles instrutores religiosos. (1 Pedro 2:22) Ele defendeu a verdade da Palavra de Deus, e as pessoas que o ouviram com certeza ficaram surpresas de ver um menino de 12 anos expressar-se com tanto conhecimento e coragem.

[10] Atualmente, muitos jovens cristãos seguem os passos de Jesus. É verdade que eles não são perfeitos como Jesus era. Mas, assim como ele, esses jovens não esperam ficar adultos para defender a verdade. Na escola e na vizinhança, respeitosamente fazem perguntas às pessoas, escutam as respostas e lhes transmitem a verdade. (1 Pedro 3:15)

10. Como os jovens cristãos atualmente imitam a coragem de Jesus?

Esses jovens ajudam colegas de classe, professores e vizinhos a tornar-se seguidores de Cristo. A coragem deles agrada muito a Jeová. A Bíblia compara jovens assim a gotas de orvalho — refrescantes, agradáveis e abundantes. — Salmo 110:3.

[11] Quando adulto, vez após vez Jesus demonstrou coragem em defender a verdade. Já no início de seu ministério, houve um confronto que muitos achariam aterrorizante. Como simples humano, e não como poderoso arcanjo, Jesus teve de enfrentar Satanás, o mais forte e perigoso inimigo de Jeová. Jesus não cedeu à tentação de Satanás e refutou a aplicação errada que ele fez das Escrituras inspiradas. Ele pôs fim ao confronto ordenando corajosamente: "Vai-te, Satanás!" — Mateus 4:2-11.

[12] Jesus estabeleceu assim o modelo para o seu ministério, defendendo corajosamente a Palavra de seu Pai contra tentativas de distorcê-la ou aplicá-la de modo errado. Naquele tempo, como hoje, esse tipo de desonestidade religiosa era muito comum. Jesus disse aos líderes religiosos de seus dias: "In-validastes a palavra de Deus pela vossa tradição que transmitistes." (Marcos 7:13) Aqueles homens eram muito respeitados pelas pessoas em geral, mas Jesus corajosamente os denunciou como guias cegos e hipócritas.* (Mateus 23:13, 16) Nesse sentido, como podemos imitar a coragem de Jesus?

[13] Com certeza sabemos que não temos capacidade de ler corações nem autoridade para julgar assim como Jesus. Mas podemos imitar o modo corajoso como ele defendeu a verdade. Por exemplo, quando expomos as falsidades religiosas — mentiras muitas vezes ensinadas sobre Deus, seus propósitos e sua Palavra — lançamos luz sobre este mundo, que está em escuridão por causa da propaganda de Satanás. (Mateus 5:14; Revelação 12:9, 10) Ajudamos a libertar as pessoas da escravidão a ensinamentos falsos que as enchem de pavor e prejudicam seu relacionamento com Deus. Que privilégio é ver o cumprimento da promessa de Jesus: "A verdade vos libertará"! — João 8:32.

* Historiadores mencionam que os túmulos dos rabinos eram venerados quase da mesma forma que os túmulos dos profetas e dos patriarcas.

13. De que devemos nos lembrar ao imitar a Jesus, e, ainda assim, que privilégio temos?

Ele apoioou corajosamente a justiça

[14] A profecia bíblica predisse que o Messias esclareceria às nações "o que é justiça". (Mateus 12:18; Isaías 42:1) Com certeza Jesus começou a fazer isso quando esteve aqui na Terra. Com muita coragem, ele sempre foi justo e imparcial com as pessoas. Por exemplo, ele não adotou os preconceitos e o fanatismo que eram tão comuns ao seu redor.

[15] Quando Jesus conversou com uma mulher samaritana junto a um poço em Sicar, seus discípulos ficaram surpresos. Por quê? Naquela época os judeus em geral odiavam os samaritanos; essa animosidade já existia havia muito tempo. (Esdras 4:4) Além disso, alguns rabinos encaravam as mulheres de modo depreciativo. As leis rabínicas, que mais tarde foram postas por escrito, desincentivavam os homens de conversar com mulheres; até davam a entender que não se lhes devia ensinar a Lei de Deus. Em especial as mulheres samaritanas eram encaradas como impuras. Jesus ignorou esses preconceitos injustos e ensinou abertamente à samaritana (que tinha uma vida imoral). Ele até revelou a ela sua identidade como o Messias. — João 4:5-27.

16. Por que os cristãos precisam de coragem para ser diferentes no que se refere a ter preconceito?
17. Que atitude Jesus tomou no templo, e por quê?

ganhou inimigos poderosos ao fazer isso, mas não teve medo. Por quê? Desde criança, ele falava daquele templo como a casa de seu Pai — e ele levava isso a sério. (Lucas 2:49) Poluir a adoração pura realizada ali era uma injustiça que ele jamais poderia tolerar. Seu zelo deu-lhe a coragem para fazer o que era necessário.

18 Os atuais seguidores de Cristo também zelam pela pureza do povo de Deus e pela adoração pura. Se souberem que um companheiro cristão está envolvido em séria transgressão, não fazem vista grossa. Corajosamente falam com a pessoa ou se certificam de que os anciãos da congregação sejam informados. (1 Coríntios 1:11) Os anciãos podem ajudar os que estão espiritualmente doentes e agir para preservar a pureza existente entre as ovelhas de Jeová. — Tiago 5:14, 15.

19 Mas será que Jesus lutou contra a injustiça social do mundo? Certamente havia injustiça em toda a parte. Sua terra natal estava ocupada por uma potência estrangeira. Os romanos oprimiam os judeus com a presença de um poderoso exército, cobravam pesados impostos e até interferiam em seus costumes religiosos. Não é de admirar que muitas pessoas quisessem que Jesus participasse na política daquela época. (João 6:14, 15) Mais uma vez, Jesus precisou de coragem.

20 Jesus explicou que seu Reino não fazia parte do mundo. Por meio de seu exemplo, ele ensinou seus seguidores a não se envolverem nas lutas políticas daqueles dias. Em vez disso, eles deviam concentrar-se na pregação das boas novas do Reino de Deus. (João 17:16; 18:36) Jesus deu uma grande lição de neutralidade quando a turba chegou para prendê-lo. O apóstolo Pedro, rápida e impulsivamente, puxou a espada e feriu um homem. Não é difícil entender a atitude de Pedro. Naquela noite, poderia parecer que a violência era justificável, afinal o Filho inocente de Deus estava sendo atacado. Mas na ocasião Jesus estabeleceu um modelo que é válido até hoje para seus seguidores na Terra: "Devolve a espada ao seu lugar, pois todos os que tomarem a espada perecerão pela espada." (Mateus 26:51-54) Para os seguidores de Cristo certamente era necessário ter coragem para agir de modo pacífico naquela época, assim como acontece hoje. Em resultado de sua neutralidade cristã, o povo atual de Deus nunca se envolve em guerras, holocaustos, revoltas e atos similares de violência. Esse brilhante histórico é uma recompensa por sua coragem.

Ele corajosamente enfrentou oposição

21 O Filho de Jeová sabia com muita antecedência que enfrentaria forte oposição aqui na Terra. (Isaías 50:4-7) Ele enfrentou muitas ameaças de morte, culminando na que foi mencionada no início deste capítulo. Como Jesus manteve a coragem diante dessas situações perigosas? Bem, o que ele estava fazendo antes de a turba chegar para prendê-lo? Estava orando fervorosamente a Jeová. E o que Jeová fez? A Bíblia nos diz que Jesus "foi ouvido favoravelmente". (Hebreus 5:7) Jeová enviou do céu um anjo para fortalecer seu corajoso Filho. — Lucas 22:42, 43.

22 Logo após ser fortalecido, Jesus disse aos apóstolos: "Levantai-vos, vamos." (Mateus 26:46) Pense na coragem por trás dessas palavras. Ele disse "vamos" mesmo sabendo que teria de pedir à turba para poupar seus amigos, que esses companheiros o abandonariam e que ele ia enfrentar sozinho a pior prova da sua vida. Sozinho, ele enfrentou um julgamento injusto e ilegal, além de zombaria, tortura e uma morte agonizante. Jesus nunca perdeu a coragem diante de tudo isso.

23 Jesus estava sendo imprudente? Não; imprudência não tem nada a ver com a verdadeira coragem. Tanto é que Jesus havia ensinado seus seguidores a ser cautelosos, ou seja, prudentes em evitar perigos a fim de poderem continuar fazendo a vontade de Deus. (Mateus 4:12; 10:16) Naquela situação, porém, Jesus sabia que era impossível recuar. Ele sabia o que a vontade de Deus exigia. Jesus estava decidido a manter a integridade; assim, a única coisa a fazer era encarar a provação.

24 Por muitas vezes os seguidores de Jesus foram corajosos ao seguir as pisadas de seu Mestre. Muitos permaneceram firmes diante de zombaria,

Como Ser Seguidor de Jesus?

- Como o exemplo de Jesus pode ajudar você a falar com coragem, mesmo que as pessoas não gostem das verdades que lhes transmite? — João 8:31-59.
- Por que nunca devemos permitir que o medo mórbido de Satanás ou dos demônios nos impeça de ajudar outros? — Mateus 8:28-34; Marcos 1:23-28.
- Por que devemos estar dispostos a enfrentar perseguição a fim de mostrar compaixão pelos oprimidos? — João 9:1, 6, 7, 22-41.
- Como a esperança de Jesus para o futuro o ajudou a enfrentar provações, e como a esperança que você tem pode lhe dar coragem? — João 16:28; 17:5; Hebreus 12:2.

perseguição, detenção, encarceramento, tortura e até mesmo diante da morte. De onde humanos imperfeitos tiram essa coragem? Não é algo que simplesmente vem do íntimo. Jesus recebeu ajuda de cima; o mesmo acontece com seus seguidores. (Filipenses 4:13) Portanto, nunca tenha medo do que pode acontecer no futuro! Esteja decidido a manter a integridade e Jeová lhe dará a coragem que precisar. Continue a derivar forças do exemplo de nosso Líder, Jesus, que disse: “Coragem! eu venci o mundo.” — João 16:33.

“Todos os tesouros da sabedoria”

É PRIMAVERA de 31 EC. Jesus Cristo está perto de Cafarnaum, uma cidade movimentada que fica na margem noroeste do mar da Galileia. Ele orou sozinho a noite inteira num monte não muito longe dali. Quando amanhece, ele reúne seus discípulos, escolhe 12 dentre eles e lhes dá o nome de apóstolos. Enquanto isso, um grande número de pessoas que o seguiram até aquele local, incluindo algumas que vêm de longe, estão reunidas num lugar plano na montanha. Elas estão ansiosas para ouvi-lo e ser curadas de suas doenças. Jesus não as desaponta. — Lucas 6:12-19.

2 Jesus aproxima-se da multidão e cura todos os doentes. Quando finalmente as pessoas ali ficam livres de seus graves problemas de saúde, ele se senta e começa a ensinar.* Suas palavras naquela fresca manhã de primavera sem dúvida surpreendem os ouvintes. Eles nunca ouviram ninguém ensinar como Jesus. Ele não recorre às tradições orais nem às palavras de algum famoso rabino para dar peso aos seus ensinamentos. Em vez disso, cita repetidas vezes as inspiradas Escrituras Hebraicas. Sua mensagem é direta, suas palavras simples, e seu objetivo claro. Quando ele conclui, a multidão está maravilhada! E não é para menos. Eles acabaram de ouvir o homem mais sábio que já viveu! — Mateus 7:28, 29.

[3] Assim como muitas outras coisas que Jesus disse e fez, esse sermão está registrado na Palavra de Deus. É bom examinar a fundo o que esse registro inspirado diz sobre Jesus, pois Nele estão "todos os tesouros da sabedoria". (Colossenses 2:3) Onde Jesus obteve essa sabedoria — a capacidade de usar o conhecimento e o entendimento de maneira prática? Como ele demonstrou sabedoria e de que modo podemos seguir seu exemplo?

"Onde obteve este homem tal sabedoria?"

[4] Numa de suas viagens de pregação Jesus visitou Nazaré, a cidade onde tinha sido criado. Ele começou a ensinar na sinagoga que havia ali. Muitos que o ouviram ficaram maravilhados e se perguntaram: "Onde obteve este homem tal sabedoria?" Eles conheciam os pais e os irmãos de Jesus e sabiam que ele tinha vindo de uma família humilde. (Mateus 13:54-56; Marcos 6:1-3) Com certeza, eles também sabiam que aquele carpinteiro que falava tão bem não tinha frequentado nenhuma das respeitadas escolas rabínicas. (João 7:15) Assim, aquela pergunta parecia lógica.

5 A sabedoria de Jesus não era resultado apenas de sua mente perfeita. Mais tarde em seu ministério, ao ensinar abertamente no templo, ele revelou que sua sabedoria vinha de uma fonte muito mais elevada. "O que eu ensino não é meu", disse ele, "mas pertence àquele que me enviou". (João 7:16) De fato, o Pai, aquele que tinha enviado o Filho, era a verdadeira fonte da sabedoria de Jesus. (João 12:49) Mas como Jesus obteve sabedoria de Jeová?

6 O espírito santo de Jeová atuava no coração e na mente de Jesus. A respeito de ele ser o prometido Messias, Isaías predisse: "Sobre ele terá de pousar o espírito de Jeová, o espírito de sabedoria e de compreensão, o espírito de conselho e de potência, o espírito de conhecimento e do temor de Jeová." (Isaías 11:2) Visto que o espírito de Jeová orientava os pensamentos e as decisões de Jesus, é de surpreender que suas palavras refletissem tanta sabedoria?

7 Jesus obteve sabedoria de seu pai de ainda outro modo. Conforme vimos no Capítulo 2, durante sua existência pré-humana, que durou incontáveis eras, Jesus teve a oportunidade de assimilar o ponto de vista de seu Pai sobre os assuntos. Não dá nem para imaginar quanta sabedoria o Filho obteve do Pai, trabalhando ao seu lado como "mestre de obras" na criação de todas as coisas. É com bons motivos que o Filho em sua existência pré-humana é descrito como a sabedoria personificada. (Provérbios 8:22-31; Colossenses 1:15, 16) Durante todo o seu ministério, Jesus utilizou a sabedoria que tinha aprendido de seu Pai no céu.* (João 8:26, 28, 38) Portanto, não devemos ficar surpresos ao notar o enorme conhecimento e o profundo entendimento demonstrados nas palavras de Jesus, ou ao perceber o bom-senso evidente em tudo o que ele fez.

* Tudo indica que, quando "os céus se abriram" por ocasião do batismo de Jesus, as lembranças de sua existência pré-humana lhe foram restauradas. — Mateus 3:13-17.

[8] Como seguidores de Jesus, nós também precisamos recorrer a Jeová como a fonte de sabedoria. (Provérbios 2:6) É claro que Jeová não nos dá sabedoria de modo milagroso. Mas ele atende às nossas orações sinceras quando pedimos sabedoria para sermos bem-sucedidos em lidar com os desafios da vida. (Tiago 1:5) Obter essa sabedoria exige muito esforço da nossa parte. Precisamos continuar buscando essa qualidade "como a tesouros escondidos". (Provérbios 2:1-6) É necessário continuarmos pesquisando a fundo a Palavra de Deus, onde sua sabedoria é revelada, e harmonizar nossa vida com o que aprendemos. O exemplo de Jesus é de muita ajuda para obtermos sabedoria. Vamos analisar algumas áreas em que ele demonstrou sabedoria e como podemos imitá-lo.

Palavras de sabedoria

[9] Multidões afluíam a Jesus apenas para ouvi-lo. (Marcos 6:31-34; Lucas 5:1-3) Isso não é de admirar, afinal, suas palavras refletiam sabedoria extraordinária. O que ele ensinou evidenciava conhecimento profundo da Palavra de Deus e uma habilidade inigualável de tocar no âmago das questões.

8. Como seguidores de Jesus, de que modo podemos obter sabedoria?
9. O que fez com que os ensinamentos de Jesus refletissem sabedoria?

Seus ensinamentos atraem todo tipo de pessoas, não importa onde vivam, e são práticos em qualquer época. Vamos ver alguns exemplos da sabedoria por trás das palavras de Jesus, o predito "Maravilhoso Conselheiro". — Isaías 9:6.

[10] O Sermão do Monte, citado no início deste capítulo, é a maior coleção de ensinamentos de Jesus em que não há interrupções na narrativa. Nesse sermão, Jesus não nos aconselha apenas a falar ou agir de modo correto. Seus conselhos vão muito além disso. Sabendo que palavras e ações são produto de pensamentos e emoções, Jesus nos incentiva a cultivar qualidades positivas na mente e no coração. Algumas dessas qualidades são: temperamento brando, anseio pela justiça, amor pelos outros, e disposição para perdoar e ser pacificador. (Mateus 5:5-9, 43-48) À medida que cultivarmos essas qualidades no coração, falaremos e agiremos da maneira correta, e isso por sua vez agradará a Jeová e promoverá bons relacionamentos. — Mateus 5:16.

[11] Ao dar conselhos contra a conduta errada, Jesus vai à raiz do problema. Ele não diz apenas que deve-mos evitar ser violentos. Ele nos avisa para não nutrirmos ira no coração. (Mateus 5:21, 22; 1 João 3:15) Ele não apenas proíbe o adultério, mas alerta contra o forte desejo que começa no coração e leva à traição. Ele nos incentiva a não permitir que os olhos despertem desejos impróprios, que podem resultar em conduta imoral. (Mateus 5:27-30) Jesus chama atenção para as causas, não para os sintomas. Fala sobre as atitudes e os desejos que levam à conduta errada. — Salmo 7:14.

[12] As palavras de Jesus refletem muita sabedoria. Não era para menos que 'as multidões ficassem assombradas com o seu modo de ensinar'. (Mateus 7:28) Como seguidores de Jesus, encaramos seus conselhos sábios como guia para a nossa vida. Procuramos cultivar as qualidades que ele recomendou, como a misericórdia e o amor, além de sermos pacíficos, pois isso servirá de base para a conduta que agrada a Jeová. Também nos esforçamos para tirar do coração os sentimentos negativos e os desejos contra os quais ele alertou, como ira amarga e desejos imorais, pois sabemos que isso nos ajudará a evitar a conduta errada. — Tiago 1:14, 15.

12. Como os seguidores de Jesus encaram seus conselhos, e por quê?

Modo de vida guiado pela sabedoria

[13] Jesus demonstrou sabedoria não apenas em palavras, mas também em ações. Todo o seu modo de vida — suas decisões, o conceito que tinha de si mesmo e seu relacionamento com outros — evidenciou muitos belos aspectos da sabedoria. Considere alguns exemplos que mostram como Jesus era guiado pela "sabedoria prática e o raciocínio". — Provérbios 3:21.

[14] A sabedoria envolve ter bom critério. Jesus teve bom-senso ao decidir como levaria a vida. Consegue imaginar a vida que ele poderia ter tido? A casa que ele poderia ter construído, os negócios que poderia ter empreendido ou o sucesso que poderia ter alcançado? Jesus sabia que dedicar a vida a essas coisas era "vaidade e um esforço para alcançar o vento". (Eclesiastes 4:4; 5:10) Tal atitude seria tolice, o oposto da sabedoria. Mas Jesus decidiu ter uma vida simples. Ele não tinha interesse em ganhar dinheiro ou juntar bens materiais. (Mateus 8:20) Em harmonia com o que ensinava, ele manteve o olho focalizado num único objetivo — fazer a vontade de Deus. (Mateus 6:22) Jesus sabiamente empregou seu tempo e suas energias nas atividades que promoviam o Reino, que são muito mais importantes e gratificantes do que coisas materiais. (Mateus 6:19-21) Assim, ele deixou um exemplo que merece ser imitado.

15 Os seguidores de Jesus hoje em dia percebem a sabedoria de concentrar-se num único objetivo. Por isso, evitam sobrecarregar-se com dívidas desnecessárias e com atividades deste mundo que demandam muita atenção e energia. (1 Timóteo 6:9, 10) Muitos fazem ajustes para simplificar a vida e poder dedicar mais tempo ao ministério cristão, talvez até servindo como proclamadores do Reino por tempo integral. Não há proceder mais sensato do que esse, pois manter as atividades relacionadas ao Reino no devido lugar resulta na maior felicidade e satisfação que alguém pode ter. — Mateus 6:33.

16 A Bíblia associa sabedoria com modéstia, que inclui reconhecermos nossas limitações. (Provérbios 11:2) Jesus foi modesto e realista no que esperava de si mesmo. Sabia que não ia converter todos os que o ouviam. (Mateus 10:32-39) Ele também reconhecia que conseguiria pregar apenas a um número limitado de pessoas. Assim, de modo sábio confiou a seus seguidores a obra de fazer discípulos. (Mateus 28:18-20) Ele modestamente reconheceu que seus seguidores 'fariam obras maiores do que' as suas, pois alcançariam mais pessoas numa área maior e num período mais longo. (João 14:12) Jesus também reconheceu que precisava de ajuda. Ele aceitou o apoio dos anjos que vieram ministrar-lhe no ermo e do anjo que veio fortalecê-lo em Getsêmani. No momento em que mais precisava, o Filho de Deus suplicou ajuda. — Mateus 4:11; Lucas 22:43; Hebreus 5:7.

17 Nós também precisamos ser modestos e realistas no que esperamos de nós mesmos. Com certeza desejamos trabalhar de toda a alma e nos empenhar vigorosamente na obra de pregar e de fazer discípulos. (Lucas 13:24; Colossenses 3:23) Ao mesmo tempo, precisamos lembrar que Jeová não nos compara com outros, e nós também não devemos fazer isso. (Gálatas 6:4) A sabedoria prática nos ajudará a estabelecer alvos realistas de acordo com nossas habilidades e circunstâncias. Além disso, a sabedoria fará com que os que estão em posições de responsabilidade reco-

nheçam que têm limitações e que precisam de ajuda e apoio de vez em quando. Por serem modestos, esses irmãos serão gratos pela ajuda, reconhecendo que Jeová pode usar um companheiro cristão como "um auxílio fortificante" para eles. — Colossenses 4:11.

18 "A sabedoria de cima é . . . razoável", diz Tiago 3:17. Jesus foi razoável e positivo ao lidar com seus discípulos. Ele estava bem ciente das imperfeições deles, mas concentrava-se nas suas boas qualidades. (João 1:47) Mesmo sabendo que seus discípulos o abandonariam na noite em que seria preso, Jesus não duvidou da lealdade deles. (Mateus 26:31-35; Lucas 22:28-30) Pedro chegou até mesmo a negar três vezes que conhecia Jesus. Ainda assim, Jesus fez súplicas por Pedro e expressou confiança em sua fidelidade. (Lucas 22:31-34) Quando orou ao Pai na última noite de sua vida na Terra, Jesus não se concentrou nos erros que seus discípulos haviam cometido. Falou de modo positivo sobre o proceder deles até aquela noite, dizendo: "Eles têm observado a tua palavra." (João 17:6) Apesar da imperfeição deles, Jesus confiou-lhes a obra de pregar o Reino e de fazer discípulos. (Mateus 28:19, 20) A confiança e a fé que demonstrou em seus discípulos sem dúvida os fortaleceu para realizarem a obra que ele lhes ordenou que fizessem.

19 Os seguidores de Jesus têm motivos para imitar seu exemplo nesse aspecto. Se o Filho perfeito de Deus foi paciente ao lidar com seus discípulos imperfeitos, quanto mais nós, humanos imperfeitos, devemos ser razoáveis no nosso relacionamento com outros! (Filipenses 4:5) Em vez de nos preocupar com as imperfeições de nossos irmãos, é melhor nos concentrar em suas boas qualidades. É bom lembrar que foi Jeová quem os atraiu. (João 6:44) Portanto, ele com certeza deve ter visto algo de bom neles, e nós devemos fazer o mesmo. Esse espírito nos ajudará a "desconsiderar as falhas" de outros e a ficar atentos a oportunidades para elogiá-los por suas qualidades. (Provérbios 19:11, The New English Bible) Quando demonstramos confiança em nossos irmãos, os ajudamos a fazer seu melhor e a ter alegria no serviço de Jeová. — 1 Tessalonicenses 5:11.

Na conclusão do Sermão do Monte, Jesus incentivou as pessoas ali a não apenas ouvir suas palavras sábias, mas também a praticá-las. (Mateus 7:24-27) Harmonizar nossos pensamentos, motivações e ações com as sábias palavras e ações de Jesus nos ajudará a ter a melhor vida possível agora e a permanecer na estrada que conduz à vida eterna. (Mateus 7:13, 14) Sem dúvida, não há coisa melhor ou mais sensata a fazer!

‘Ele aprendeu a obediência’

UM PAI observa pela janela seu filhinho jogando bola no quintal com alguns colegas. A certa altura, a bola vai parar na rua. O garoto fica olhando para ela, morrendo de vontade de ir pegá-la. Um de seus colegas diz para ele ir buscá-la, mas ele balança a cabeça e diz: “Não posso. Meu pai não quer que eu vá na rua.” O pai sorri satisfeito.

[2] Por que o pai fica tão contente? Porque ele orientou seu filho a não ir à rua sozinho. Quando o menino obedece — mesmo sem saber que o pai o observa —, o pai vê que seu filho está aprendendo a obedecer, e por isso está muito mais protegido. É assim que se sente o nosso Pai celestial, Jeová. Deus sabe que, para permanecermos fiéis e alcançarmos o maravilhoso futuro que ele nos promete, precisamos aprender a confiar nele e a obedecer-lhe. (Provérbios 3:5, 6) Para isso, ele nos enviou o melhor de todos os instrutores humanos.

[3] A Bíblia diz algo surpreendente sobre Jesus: “Em-

1, 2. Por que um pai amoroso fica contente ao ver o filho obedecer-lhe, e como os sentimentos desse pai refletem os sentimentos de Jeová?
3, 4. Como Jesus “aprendeu a obediência” e ‘foi aperfeiçoado’? Ilustre isso.

bora fosse Filho, aprendeu a obediência pelas coisas que sofreu; e, depois de ter sido aperfeiçoado, tornou-se responsável pela salvação eterna de todos os que lhe obedecem." (Hebreus 5:8, 9) Esse Filho havia existido por incontáveis eras no céu. Ele viu Satanás e outros anjos rebeldes serem desobedientes, mas nunca se juntou a eles. Referindo-se ao Filho primogênito, a profecia inspirada disse: 'Eu não fui rebelde.' (Isaías 50:5) Então, como as palavras 'ele aprendeu a obediência' podem aplicar-se a esse Filho que sempre obedeceu de modo perfeito? Como uma criatura perfeita poderia ser 'aperfeiçoada'?

4 Considere a seguinte ilustração: certo soldado tem uma espada de ferro. Embora ela nunca tenha sido testada numa batalha, é uma arma perfeita e muito bem fabricada. No entanto, o soldado troca essa espada por outra, feita de um metal mais resistente: aço temperado. Essa outra espada já foi testada em batalha. Não acha que ele fez uma excelente troca? Da mesma forma, a obediência de Jesus antes de vir à Terra era perfeita. Mas depois de viver aqui sua obediência passou a ter uma característica totalmente diferente. Agora ela havia sido testada, tornou-se mais resistente, por assim dizer; fora submetida a provas que Jesus nunca teria enfrentado no céu.

[5] A obediência era fundamental para a missão de Jesus aqui na Terra. Como "o último Adão", ele veio à Terra para fazer o que o nosso primeiro pai não fez — permanecer obediente a Jeová, mesmo sob provas. (1 Coríntios 15:45) Mas a obediência de Jesus não era superficial. Ele a demonstrou de todo coração, alma e mente. E fez isso com alegria. Para ele, fazer a vontade de seu pai era mais importante do que o alimento. (João 4:34) O que nos ajudará a imitar a obediência de Jesus? Primeiro, veremos por que ele foi obediente. Se formos obedientes pelos mesmos motivos que ele, conseguiremos resistir a tentações e fazer a vontade de Deus. Depois, vamos considerar como somos recompensados por imitar a obediência de Cristo.

Por que Jesus foi obediente

[6] A obediência de Jesus vinha do seu íntimo. Conforme vimos no Capítulo 3, Cristo era humilde de coração. O orgulho faz a pessoa desprezar a obediência, mas se a pessoa for humilde obedecerá a Jeová porque realmente quer fazer isso. (Êxodo 5:1, 2; 1 Pedro 5:5, 6) Além disso, a obediência de Jesus estava relacionada ao que ele amava e ao que ele odiava.

---

5. Por que a obediência de Jesus era tão importante, e o que consideraremos neste capítulo?

6, 7. Quais foram alguns dos motivos de Jesus ser obediente?

[7] Acima de tudo, Jesus amava seu Pai celestial, Jeová. Veremos mais detalhes sobre esse amor no Capítulo 13. O amor fez com que Jesus tivesse temor a Deus. Seu amor por Jeová era tão intenso e sua reverência tão profunda que ele temia desagradar seu Pai. Esse temor a Deus foi um dos motivos de as orações de Jesus terem sido ouvidas de modo favorável. (Hebreus 5:7) O temor a Jeová também é uma característica notável do reinado de Jesus como Rei messiânico. — Isaías 11:3.

[8] Amar a Jeová também envolve odiar o que ele odeia. Veja, por exemplo, esta profecia referente ao Rei messiânico: "Amaste a justiça e odiaste a iniquidade. É por isso que Deus, o teu Deus, te ungiu com óleo de exultação mais do que a teus associados." (Salmo 45:7) Os "associados" de Jesus eram os outros reis da linhagem do Rei Davi. Com respeito à sua unção, Jesus tem mais causa para exultação, ou grande alegria, do que todos eles. Por quê? Sua recompensa é muito maior do que a deles, seu reinado é infinitamente mais benéfico. Ele é recompensado porque seu amor pelo que é justo, ou certo, e seu ódio pelo que é iníquo, ou errado, o motivou a obedecer a Deus em todas as coisas.

8, 9. Conforme profetizado, como Jesus se sentia com relação ao que é certo e ao que é errado, e como ele deixou isso evidente?

[9] De que modo Jesus deixou evidente como se sentia com relação ao que é certo e ao que é errado? Por exemplo, como ele reagiu quando seus seguidores obedeceram à sua orientação de pregar e tiveram bons resultados? Ele ficou muito feliz. (Lucas 10:1, 17, 21) E como Jesus se sentiu quando o povo de Jerusalém repetidamente demonstrou um espírito de desobediência, rejeitando seus esforços amorosos de ajudá-los? Ele chorou por causa da atitude rebelde daquelas pessoas. (Lucas 19:41, 42) Tanto a boa como a má conduta afetavam profundamente a Jesus.

[10] Meditar em como Jesus se sentia nos ajuda a analisar com que motivação obedecemos a Jeová. Apesar de sermos imperfeitos, podemos cultivar amor de coração por ações corretas e ódio profundo pela conduta errada. Precisamos orar a Jeová pedindo que nos ajude a ter sentimentos como os dele e de seu Filho. (Salmo 51:10) Ao mesmo tempo, precisamos evitar influências que enfraqueçam esses sentimentos. É fundamental escolher bem nossas diversões e nossas amizades. (Provérbios 13:20; Filipenses 4:8) Se tivermos as mesmas motivações de Cristo, nossa obediência não será superficial. Agiremos da maneira correta

10. Que sentimentos precisamos ter em relação a ações corretas e conduta errada, e o que nos ajudará a fazer isso?

porque amamos o que é certo. Evitaremos ações erradas não por medo de ser descobertos, mas porque odiamos esse tipo de conduta.

“Ele não cometeu pecado”

[11] O ódio que Jesus tinha pelo pecado foi testado logo no início de seu ministério. Após seu batismo, ele passou 40 dias e 40 noites no deserto sem comer. No fim desse período, Satanás foi tentá-lo. Note como Satanás foi astuto. — Mateus 4:1-11.

[12] Primeiro Satanás disse: “Se tu és filho de Deus, dize a estas pedras que se transformem em pães.” (Mateus 4:3) Como Jesus estava se sentindo após aquele longo jejum? A Bíblia é clara em dizer que Jesus estava com fome. (Mateus 4:2) Desse modo, Satanás aproveitou-se do desejo natural por alimento. Ele sem dúvida esperou Jesus estar fisicamente enfraquecido. Note também o tom de desafio nas palavras de Satanás: “Se tu és filho de Deus.” Satanás sabia que Jesus era “o primogênito de toda a criação”. (Colossenses 1:15) Mas Jesus não se deixou levar pela provocação de Satanás para fazê-lo desobedecer. Ele sabia que não era da vontade de Deus que usasse seu poder para objetivos egoístas. Jesus recusou-se a fazer isso, mostrando que confiava humildemente que Jeová o sustentaria e orientaria. — Mateus 4:4.

[13] Na segunda tentação, Satanás levou Jesus a um lugar alto, no parapeito do templo. Distorcendo a Palavra de Deus com astúcia, Satanás tentou Jesus para que se exibisse por jogar-se dali a fim de que os anjos tivessem de salvá-lo. Se a multidão ali no templo visse um milagre assim, será que alguém duvidaria de que Jesus era o prometido Messias? Se as pessoas se convencessem de que ele era o Messias apenas com aquela incrível exibição, não teria ele evitado muito sofrimento e dificuldades? Talvez. Mas Jesus sabia que a vontade de Deus era que o Messias cumprisse sua missão de modo humilde, não que fizesse as pessoas acreditar nele por meio de exibições espetaculares. (Isaías 42:1, 2) Jesus mais uma vez se recusou a desobedecer a Jeová. A fama não era uma tentação para Jesus.

[14] Mas que dizer do poder? Na terceira tentativa, Satanás ofereceu a Jesus todos os reinos do mundo em troca de apenas um ato de adoração. Será que Jesus ficou pensando na oferta de Satanás? Sua resposta foi: "Vai-te, Satanás!" E acrescentou: "Pois está escrito: 'É a Jeová, teu Deus, que tens de adorar e é somente a ele que tens de prestar serviço sagrado.'" (Mateus 4:10) Nada convenceria Jesus de adorar outro deus. Nenhuma oferta de poder ou influência neste mundo o levaria à desobediência.

13-15. (a) Qual foi a segunda e a terceira tentação que Jesus sofreu, e como ele reagiu? (b) Por que sabemos que Jesus nunca pôde baixar a guarda contra Satanás?

15 Será que Satanás desistiu? Ele foi embora, segundo a ordem de Jesus. Mas o Evangelho de Lucas mostra que o Diabo 'se retirou dele até outra ocasião conveniente'. (Lucas 4:13) De fato, Satanás encontraria outras ocasiões para provar e tentar Jesus até o fim de sua vida na Terra. A Bíblia nos diz que Jesus foi "provado em todos os sentidos". (Hebreus 4:15) Por isso, ele nunca pôde baixar a guarda, nós também não podemos.

16 Satanás continua a tentar os servos de Deus hoje. Infelizmente, somos presas fáceis por causa das nossas imperfeições. Com astúcia, Satanás apela para nosso egoísmo, orgulho e ganância por poder. Usando o materialismo, ele pode até apelar para todas

16. Como Satanás tenta os servos de Deus hoje, e como podemos resistir a seus esforços?

essas imperfeições de uma só vez! É fundamental que vez por outra façamos uma autoanálise honesta. É bom meditarmos nas palavras de 1 João 2:15-17. Ao fazer isso, podemos nos perguntar se os desejos carnais deste mundo, o desejo por coisas materiais e a vontade de impressionar outros enfraqueceram de algum modo o amor que sentimos pelo nosso Pai celestial. Precisamos nos lembrar de que este mundo está com seus dias contados, e Satanás, seu governante, também. Assim, resistamos a seus esforços astutos para nos fazer pecar! Que o exemplo do nosso Mestre nos motive, pois ele "não cometeu pecado". — 1 Pedro 2:22.

"Faço sempre as coisas que lhe agradam"

[17] A obediência envolve muito mais do que apenas evitar o pecado. Cristo sempre cumpriu todos os mandamentos de Jeová. Ele disse: "Faço sempre as coisas que lhe agradam." (João 8:29) Essa obediência deu muita alegria a Jesus. Alguns podem argumentar que era muito mais fácil para ele obedecer. Talvez imaginem que ele tinha de prestar contas apenas a Jeová, que é perfeito, enquanto nós geralmente te-

17. Como Jesus encarava a obediência a seu Pai, mas que objeção pode surgir?

mos de prestar contas a humanos imperfeitos que têm autoridade. Mas a verdade é que Jesus foi obediente também a humanos imperfeitos que tinham autoridade.

[18] Quando era criança, Jesus estava sob a autoridade de seus pais imperfeitos, José e Maria. Mais do que qualquer outra criança, ele provavelmente via que eles tinham falhas. Será que Jesus se rebelou, indo além do papel que Deus lhe atribuiu como filho humano e dizendo a seus pais como deviam cuidar de uma família? Veja o que Lucas 2:51 diz a respeito de Jesus, na época com 12 anos: "Ele . . . continuou a estar-lhes sujeito." Desse modo, Jesus deixou um exemplo excelente para as crianças e os jovens cristãos, que se esforçam em obedecer a seus pais e mostrar-lhes o devido respeito. — Efésios 6:1, 2.

[19] Quanto a obedecer a humanos imperfeitos, Jesus enfrentou situações que os cristãos verdadeiros hoje nunca terão de enfrentar. Pense na época em que ele viveu, com situações bem incomuns. O sistema religioso judaico, com seu templo em Jerusalém e seu sacerdócio, era aprovado por Jeová havia muito tempo, mas em breve ia ser rejeitado e substituído pela congregação cristã. (Mateus 23:33-38) Enquanto isso, muitos líderes religiosos ensinavam falsidades que haviam se originado da filosofia grega. A corrupção no templo tinha se tornado tão grande que Jesus o chamou de "covil de salteadores". (Marcos 11:17) Será que Jesus deixou de ir ao templo e às sinagogas? Não. Jeová ainda aprovava o uso daqueles locais de adoração. Enquanto Deus não intervinha para fazer as mudanças, Jesus obedientemente ia à sinagoga e às festividades no templo. — Lucas 4:16; João 5:1.

20 Se Jesus foi obediente naquelas circunstâncias, quanto mais os cristãos verdadeiros hoje! Afinal, vivemos em tempos muito diferentes — na época da restauração da adoração pura, predita há muito tempo. Deus nos garante que nunca deixará Satanás corromper seu povo restaurado. (Isaías 2:1, 2; 54:17) É verdade que nos deparamos com pecados e imperfeições na congregação cristã. Mas será que devemos usar as falhas de outros como desculpa para desobedecermos a Jeová, talvez deixando de ir às reuniões ou criticando os anciãos? De modo algum. Em vez disso, damos todo apoio aos que tomam a dianteira na congregação. De modo obediente, assistimos às reuniões e às assembleias e aplicamos os conselhos bíblicos que recebemos nelas. — Hebreus 10:24, 25; 13:17.

[21] Jesus nunca permitiu que ninguém, nem mesmo amigos bem-intencionados, o impedisse de obedecer a Jeová. O apóstolo Pedro, por exemplo, tentou convencer seu Mestre de que ele não precisava sofrer e morrer. Jesus recusou de modo firme esse conselho bem-intencionado, porém infundado, de poupar a si mesmo. (Mateus 16:21-23) Hoje em dia, os seguidores de Jesus muitas vezes têm de lidar com parentes bem-intencionados que tentam convencê-los de que não é necessário obedecer às leis e aos princípios de Deus. Assim como os cristãos do primeiro século, concordamos que "temos de obedecer a Deus como governante antes que aos homens". — Atos 5:29.

mais pleno. Ele fez a vontade de seu Pai, não a sua. (Lucas 22:42) Ao agir assim, deixou um exemplo perfeito de integridade. (1 Timóteo 3:16) Ele forneceu a resposta a uma antiga pergunta: pode um humano perfeito permanecer obediente a Jeová mesmo sob prova? Adão e Eva já tinham falhado nesse teste. Daí Jesus veio, viveu, morreu e resolveu a questão para sempre. O ser mais importante que Jeová criou deu a melhor resposta possível. Ele obedeceu mesmo quando a obediência lhe custou muito caro.

23 A integridade, ou devoção de toda a alma a Jeová, é demonstrada por meio da obediência. Por obedecer, Jesus preservou sua integridade e beneficiou toda a humanidade. (Romanos 5:19) Jeová o recompensou ricamente, e também nos recompensará se obedecermos ao nosso Mestre, Cristo. A obediência a Cristo resulta na "salvação eterna"! — Hebreus 5:9.

24 Além disso, a integridade, por si só, já é uma recompensa. Provérbios 10:9 diz: "Quem anda em integridade andará em segurança." Se pudéssemos comparar a integridade a uma grande mansão construída

- De início, o que os parentes de Jesus acharam de seu ministério, e o que podemos aprender do modo como Jesus lidou com eles? — Marcos 3:21, 31-35.
- Por que nunca devemos nos preocupar de que obedecer a Jeová nos impeça de ter uma vida feliz? — Lucas 11:27, 28.
- O que podemos aprender da disposição de Jesus de obedecer a uma lei que nem mesmo se aplicava a ele? — Mateus 17:24-27.

com tijolos de excelente qualidade, cada ato de obediência poderia ser comparado a um tijolo. Um tijolo pode parecer insignificante, mas cada um tem o seu lugar e o seu valor. Quando se colocam muitos deles juntos, constrói-se algo de valor ainda maior. Quando juntamos atos de obediência, dia após dia, ano após ano, construímos a nossa bela casa de integridade.

25 A obediência demonstrada ao longo do tempo nos faz lembrar outra qualidade — a perseverança. Esse será o assunto do próximo capítulo.

Considere de perto a perseverança de Jesus

A PRESSÃO é muito grande. Jesus nunca sentiu uma angústia mental e emocional tão forte. São suas últimas horas de vida na Terra, e ele vai com seus apóstolos a um lugar que costuma visitar, o jardim de Getsêmani. Jesus já esteve ali com eles muitas vezes. Nessa noite, porém, precisa ficar um tempo sozinho. Afastando-se de seus apóstolos, Jesus entra um pouco mais no jardim, ajoelha-se e começa a orar. Ele ora com tanto fervor e fica tão aflito que seu suor se torna “como gotas de sangue caindo ao chão”. — Lucas 22:39-44.

[2] Por que Jesus sofre tamanha aflição? Embora ele saiba que em breve terá de enfrentar extrema dor física, não é por isso que está tão angustiado. Assuntos muito mais importantes o preocupam. Jesus está profundamente preocupado com o nome de seu Pai e sabe que o futuro da família humana depende de ele permanecer fiel. Ele sabe como é importante perseverar. Se falhar, trará grande vitupério ao nome de seu Pai. Mas ele não falha. Mais tarde naquele dia, pouco antes de dar o último suspiro, o homem que deixou o melhor exemplo de perseverança clama triunfantemente: "Está consumado!" — João 19:30.

1-3. (a) A que ponto chega a aflição de Jesus no jardim de Getsêmani, e por quê? (b) O que se pode dizer a respeito do exemplo de perseverança de Jesus, e que perguntas surgem?

[3] A Bíblia nos incentiva a 'considerar de perto' o exemplo de perseverança de Jesus. (Hebreus 12:1-3) Assim, surgem perguntas importantes: Quais foram algumas provas que Jesus teve de suportar? O que o ajudou a perseverar? Como podemos seguir seu exemplo? Mas antes de responder a essas perguntas, vamos considerar o que significa perseverar.

O que é perseverança?

[4] De tempos em tempos, todos nós ficamos "contristados por várias provações". (1 Pedro 1:6) Será que o fato de enfrentarmos uma provação significa que estamos perseverando? Não. O substantivo grego traduzido "perseverança" significa "capacidade de aguentar ou manter-se firme em face de dificuldades". Certo erudito bíblico diz o seguinte a respeito do tipo

4, 5. (a) O que significa "perseverança"? (b) Como poderíamos ilustrar que a perseverança envolve mais do que passar por uma dificuldade inevitável?

de perseverança mencionado pelos escritores da Bíblia: "É o espírito que pode suportar as coisas, não simplesmente com resignação, mas com a esperança fulgurante . . . É a qualidade que mantém o homem em pé enfrentando o vento. É a virtude que pode transmutar a provação mais severa em glória porque, além da dor, vê o alvo."

[5] Portanto, perseverar não significa simplesmente passar por uma dificuldade inevitável. No sentido bíblico, perseverança envolve firmeza, manter a atitude mental correta e não perder a esperança ao enfrentar provações. Veja a seguinte ilustração: dois homens estão presos em condições idênticas, mas por motivos bem diferentes. Um deles, um criminoso comum, cumpre sua pena com muita má vontade. O outro, um cristão verdadeiro que foi preso por seu proceder fiel, continua firme e mantém uma atitude positiva, porque encara sua situação como uma oportunidade de demonstrar sua fé. O criminoso dificilmente poderia ser considerado um exemplo de perseverança, mas o cristão leal sim. — Tiago 1:2-4.

[6] A perseverança é indispensável para nossa sal-

6. Como cultivamos a perseverança?

vação. (Mateus 24:13) Mas não nascemos com essa qualidade importante. É necessário cultivá-la. Como? "Tribulação produz perseverança", diz Romanos 5:3. Se realmente queremos desenvolver perseverança, não podemos temer os testes de fé e tentar nos esquivar deles. Precisamos enfrentá-los. Cultivamos perseverança quando enfrentamos e superamos provas grandes e pequenas dia após dia. Cada dificuldade que enfrentamos com êxito nos fortalece para enfrentar a próxima. É claro que não desenvolvemos perseverança sem ajuda. Somos 'dependentes da força que Deus fornece'. (1 Pedro 4:11) Para continuarmos firmes, Jeová nos deu a melhor ajuda possível — o exemplo de seu Filho. Vamos olhar mais de perto o exemplo perfeito de perseverança que Jesus deixou.

O que Jesus suportou?

7 No fim de sua vida terrestre, Jesus teve de suportar muitos atos de crueldade. Além da extrema aflição mental que ele sentiu na última noite de sua vida, considere a decepção e a humilhação que sofreu. Ele foi traído por alguém que lhe era muito íntimo,

7, 8. O que Jesus suportou no fim de sua vida terrestre?

abandonado por seus melhores amigos e submetido a um julgamento ilegal onde os membros da mais elevada corte religiosa do país o ridicularizaram, cuspiram nele e o esmurraram. Mesmo assim, Jesus foi forte e suportou tudo isso com dignidade. — Mateus 26:46-49, 56, 59-68.

8 Nas suas últimas horas de vida, Jesus suportou enorme sofrimento físico. Ele foi açoitado, ou seja, espancado violentamente de um modo que, segundo certa fonte, causava "profundas lacerações e considerável perda de sangue". Além disso, ele foi pregado numa estaca, uma forma de execução que resultava em "uma morte lenta com o máximo de dor e sofrimento". Pense na aflição que Jesus sentia ao passo que enormes pregos eram martelados e atravessavam-lhe os punhos e os pés, prendendo-o na estaca. (João 19:1, 16-18) Imagine a extrema dor que ele sentiu quando a estaca foi erguida rapidamente e o peso do seu corpo passou a ser sustentado apenas pelos pregos, e suas costas feridas rasparam na estaca. Ele suportou todo esse sofrimento físico além de estar mentalmente aflito, conforme descrito no início deste capítulo.

[9] Como seguidores de Cristo, o que talvez tenhamos de suportar? Ele disse: "Se alguém quer vir após mim . . . apanhe a sua estaca de tortura, e siga-me continuamente." (Mateus 16:24) A expressão "estaca de tortura" é usada aqui de modo figurativo para representar sofrimento, vergonha e até a morte. Seguir a Cristo não é algo fácil. Nosso modo de vida cristão nos torna diferentes. O mundo atual nos odeia porque não fazemos parte dele. (João 15:18-20; 1 Pedro 4:4) No entanto, estamos dispostos a carregar a nossa estaca de tortura — sim, estamos preparados para sofrer, e até morrer, em vez de desistir de seguir o nosso Exemplo. — 2 Timóteo 3:12.

[10] Durante o seu ministério, a imperfeição das pessoas resultou em outras provas para Jesus. Lembre-se de que ele foi o "mestre de obras" usado por Jeová para criar a Terra e tudo o que há nela. (Provérbios 8:22-31) Assim, Jesus sabia qual era a vontade de Jeová para a humanidade; os humanos deviam refletir as qualidades de Deus e usufruir a vida com saúde

9. O que significa apanhar a nossa "estaca de tortura" e seguir a Jesus?
10-12. (a) Por que as imperfeições das pessoas foram um teste de perseverança para Jesus? (b) Quais foram algumas das situações provadoras que Jesus suportou?

perfeita. (Gênesis 1:26-28) Na Terra, Jesus viu os resultados trágicos do pecado de um ponto de vista diferente — ele era homem, capaz de ter sentimentos e emoções humanas. Deve ter sido muito doloroso para ele ver como os humanos estavam longe da perfeição original de Adão e Eva. Isso foi um teste de perseverança para Jesus. Será que ele ficaria desanimado e desistiria, encarando os humanos pecaminosos como uma causa perdida? Vejamos.

11 A apatia dos judeus entristeceu tanto a Jesus que ele não conteve as lágrimas. Será que ele permitiu que a indiferença dos judeus diminuísse seu zelo ou o fizesse parar de pregar? Muito pelo contrário, ele “ia diariamente ensinar no templo”. (Lucas 19:41-44, 47) Jesus ficou “profundamente contristado” com a insensibilidade dos fariseus que o estavam observando para ver se ele curaria certo homem no sábado. Será que ele permitiu que aqueles opositores que se consideravam justos o intimidassem? Claro que não! Ele permaneceu firme e curou o homem — e bem no meio da sinagoga! — Marcos 3:1-5.

12 Outra coisa que deve ter sido uma prova para Jesus foram as fraquezas de seus discípulos mais ache-gados. Conforme vimos no Capítulo 3, eles estavam sempre querendo destaque. (Mateus 20:20-24; Lucas 9:46) Jesus os aconselhou mais de uma vez sobre a importância da humildade. (Mateus 18:1-6; 20:25-28) Mas eles demoraram a acatar esses conselhos. Até mesmo quando estavam com Jesus na sua última noite na Terra, os discípulos tiveram "uma disputa acalorada" sobre quem era o maior! (Lucas 22:24) Será que Jesus desistiu deles, concluindo que eram um caso perdido? Não. Sempre paciente, ele continuou positivo e esperançoso, concentrando-se em suas boas qualidades. Jesus sabia que, no fundo, eles amavam a Jeová e realmente queriam fazer a Sua vontade. — Lucas 22:25-27.

[13] Talvez enfrentemos provas parecidas às de Jesus. Por exemplo, podemos encontrar pessoas apáticas ou que até mesmo se opõem à mensagem do Reino. Deixaremos essas reações negativas nos desanimar ou continuaremos a pregar com zelo? (Tito 2:14) As imperfeições de nossos irmãos também podem ser uma prova para nós. Uma palavra irrefletida ou um gesto impensado podem nos magoar. (Provérbios 12:18)

13. Que provas parecidas às de Jesus talvez enfrentemos?

Permitiremos que as falhas de nossos irmãos nos façam desistir deles ou continuaremos a suportar suas falhas e a nos concentrar em suas boas qualidades? — Colossenses 3:13.

Por que Jesus perseverou

[14] O que ajudou Jesus a perseverar e manter a integridade apesar de todas as humilhações, decepções e sofrimentos que enfrentou? Dois fatores principais foram de ajuda. Primeiro, Jesus recorreu a Jeová, "o Deus que provê perseverança". (Romanos 15:5) Segundo, ele olhou à frente, concentrando-se no resultado de sua perseverança. Vamos analisar esses dois fatores, um por vez.

[15] Apesar de ser o Filho perfeito de Deus, Jesus não confiou em sua própria força para perseverar. Em vez disso, recorreu ao seu Pai celestial e orou pedindo ajuda de cima. O apóstolo Paulo escreveu: "Cristo . . . ofereceu súplicas e também petições Àquele que era capaz de salvá-lo da morte, com fortes clamores e lágrimas." (Hebreus 5:7) Note que Jesus "ofereceu" não apenas petições, mas também súplicas. O termo "sú-plica” refere-se a um apelo sincero e fervoroso — sim, um rogo por ajuda. O uso do plural “súplicas” indica que Jesus implorou a Jeová mais de uma vez. De fato, no jardim de Getsêmani, Jesus orou repetida e fervorosamente. — Mateus 26:36-44.

[16] Jesus tinha confiança absoluta de que Jeová responderia a suas súplicas, pois sabia que seu Pai é o “Ouvinte de oração”. (Salmo 65:2) Antes de vir à Terra, o Filho primogênito havia observado como seu Pai responde às orações de servos leais. Por exemplo, o Filho estava presente no céu quando Jeová enviou um anjo para responder à oração sincera do profeta Daniel — antes mesmo de Daniel ter terminado de orar. (Daniel 9:20, 21) Então, como o Pai poderia deixar de ouvir seu Filho unigênito quando ele derramou seu coração “com fortes clamores e lágrimas”? Jeová atendeu às súplicas dele e enviou um anjo para lhe dar forças a fim de suportar a provação. — Lucas 22:43.

[17] Para perseverar, nós também temos de recorrer ao Deus ‘que confere poder’. (Filipenses 4:13) Se o Filho perfeito de Deus achou necessário suplicar a Jeová

17. Por que devemos recorrer a Jeová para perseverar, e como podemos fazer isso?

por ajuda, quanto mais nós! Assim como Jesus, talvez tenhamos de implorar repetidamente a ajuda de Jeová. (Mateus 7:7) Embora não esperemos receber a visita de um anjo, podemos ter certeza de que nosso Deus amoroso responderá aos pedidos de todo cristão leal que "persiste em súplicas e em orações, noite e dia". (1 Timóteo 5:5) Não importa quais sejam as provas que venhamos a enfrentar — saúde fraca, morte de alguém querido ou perseguição —, Jeová nos responderá ao orarmos fervorosamente pedindo sabedoria, coragem e força para perseverar. — 2 Coríntios 4:7-11; Tiago 1:5.

[18] O segundo fator que ajudou Jesus a perseverar é que ele olhou à frente, além de seu sofrimento. A Bíblia diz a respeito dele: "Pela alegria que se lhe apresentou, ele aturou uma estaca de tortura." (Hebreus 12:2) O exemplo de Jesus deixa claro como a esperança, a alegria e a perseverança se complementam. Podemos resumir isso do seguinte modo: a esperança resulta em alegria, e a alegria, em perseverança. (Romanos 15:13; Colossenses 1:11) Jesus tinha perspectivas maravilhosas. Ele sabia que sua fidelidade contri-buiria para vindicar a soberania de seu Pai e lhe permitiria resgatar a humanidade do pecado e da morte. Também tinha a esperança de governar como Rei e servir como Sumo Sacerdote para trazer ainda mais bênçãos aos humanos obedientes. (Mateus 20:28; Hebreus 7:23-26) Ele sentiu muita alegria por concentrar-se em suas perspectivas e esperança, e essa alegria, por sua vez, ajudou-o a perseverar.

18. Como Jesus olhou além de seu sofrimento?

[19] Assim como Jesus, precisamos permitir que a esperança, a alegria e a perseverança nos beneficiem. "Alegrai-vos na esperança", disse o apóstolo Paulo. E depois acrescentou: "Perseverai em tribulação." (Romanos 12:12) Você está enfrentando um difícil teste de fé? Então olhe à frente. Não perca de vista o fato de que sua perseverança resultará em louvor para o nome de Jeová. Mantenha bem em foco a preciosa esperança do Reino. Imagine-se vivendo no vindouro novo mundo de Deus e usufruindo as bênçãos do Paraíso. Meditar no cumprimento das maravilhosas promessas de Deus — como a vindicação de sua soberania, a eliminação da maldade e o fim das doenças e da morte — encherá seu coração de alegria. Essa alegria

19. Quando enfrentamos testes de fé, como podemos permitir que a esperança, a alegria e a perseverança nos beneficiem?

pode ajudá-lo a perseverar, não importa as provas que venha a enfrentar. Em comparação com o que acontecerá quando a esperança do Reino se concretizar, qualquer sofrimento no mundo de hoje é realmente 'momentâneo e leve'. — 2 Coríntios 4:17.

'Siga de perto os seus passos'

[20] Jesus sabia que segui-lo seria desafiador e exigiria perseverança. (João 15:20) Ele estava preparado para dar o exemplo, sabendo que isso fortaleceria outros. (João 16:33) Jesus de fato deu o exemplo perfeito de perseverança, mas nós estamos bem longe de ser perfeitos. O que Jeová espera de nós? O apóstolo Pedro explica: "Cristo sofreu por vós, deixando-vos um modelo para seguirdes de perto os seus passos." (1 Pedro 2:21) Pelo modo como lidou com as provações, Jesus deixou "um modelo", um padrão a ser copiado.* O registro de perseverança que Jesus deixou pode ser comparado a "passos", ou pegadas. Não podemos se-

* A palavra grega traduzida "modelo" significa literalmente "subscrito". O apóstolo Pedro é o único escritor das Escrituras Gregas Cristãs a usar essa palavra, que segundo certa fonte significa "'um exemplo' num caderno escolar, um modelo perfeito de escrita para a criança copiar do modo mais exato que puder".

20, 21. No que diz respeito à perseverança, o que Jeová espera de nós, e qual deve ser a nossa determinação?

Como Ser Seguidor de Jesus?

- Como podemos encarar qualquer sofrimento pelo qual venhamos a passar por ser seguidores de Cristo? — Mateus 5:10-12.
- O que Jesus disse que seus seguidores podiam esperar, e como podemos seguir seus conselhos? — Mateus 10:16-22.
- Ao enfrentarmos oposição ou perseguição, como podemos seguir o exemplo de Jesus? — 1 Pedro 2:18-25.
- O que fica confirmado quando se persevera fielmente ao passar por sofrimentos? — 1 Pedro 4:12-14.

guir esses passos de modo perfeito, mas podemos segui-los "de perto".

‘ ‘ENSINAR E PREGAR AS BOAS NOVAS’

Jesus trabalhou como carpinteiro, fez milagres, curas e muitas outras coisas. No entanto, não foi por essas atividades que ficou conhecido. As pessoas o chamavam de Instrutor. De fato, ele dedicou sua vida à obra de ‘ensinar e pregar as boas novas’. (Mateus 4:23) Como seguidores de Jesus, temos a mesma obra a fazer. Nesta seção estudaremos seu exemplo, que nos mostra como realizar essa obra.

CAPÍTULO 8

“Fui enviado para isso”

JESUS e seus apóstolos já estão caminhando há horas. Eles saíram da Judeia em direção ao norte, para a Galileia. Tomaram o caminho mais curto, que leva cerca de três dias de viagem e passa por Samaria. Por volta do meio-dia, eles chegam a uma pequena cidade samaritana chamada Sicar e param ali para descansar e comer.

[2] Enquanto os apóstolos vão comprar comida, Jesus descansa ao lado de um poço fora da cidade. Uma mulher samaritana chega para tirar água. Jesus poderia simplesmente ignorá-la, pois está “cansado da jornada”. (João 4:6) Seria até compreensível se ele fizesse isso e a deixasse passar despercebida. Conforme vimos no Capítulo 4, é provável que ela já esperasse que um judeu a tratasse com desprezo. Mas Jesus começa a conversar com ela.

[3] Ele inicia a conversa com uma ilustração baseada no dia a dia da mulher — na verdade, relacionada com o que ela está fazendo naquele exato momento. Ela está ali para tirar água, e Jesus fala de uma água vitalizadora que saciará a sede espiritual dela. A mulher toca em questões polêmicas várias vezes durante a conversa.* Usando de tato, Jesus evita comentar essas questões e continua a falar sobre o assunto que tem em mente. Ele se concentra em assuntos espirituais tais como a adoração pura e Jeová Deus. Suas palavras têm grande repercussão, pois a mulher conta aos homens da cidade o que ele disse, e eles também querem ouvir Jesus. — João 4:3-42.

4 Quando os apóstolos chegam, como reagem ao ver Jesus dando notável testemunho àquela mulher? Não demonstram nenhum sinal de entusiasmo. Até ficam surpresos de ver Jesus falando com a samaritana e, pelo que parece, nem dirigem a palavra a ela. Depois que a mulher vai embora, os apóstolos insistem com Jesus para que coma o alimento que trouxeram. Mas Jesus lhes diz: "Tenho alimento para comer de que vós não sabeis." Intrigados, de início eles entendem as palavras de Jesus de modo literal. Daí ele explica: "Meu alimen-

* Por exemplo, ao perguntar por que Jesus, apesar de ser judeu, falava com uma samaritana, ela mencionou uma inimizade muito antiga entre os dois povos. (João 4:9) Ela também afirmou que seu povo descendia de Jacó, algo que os judeus da época negavam categoricamente. (João 4:12) Os judeus chamavam os samaritanos de cutianos, para enfatizar que descendiam de povos estrangeiros.

to é eu fazer a vontade daquele que me enviou e terminar a sua obra." (João 4:32, 34) Desse modo, Jesus lhes ensina que a principal obra da sua vida é mais importante para ele do que a comida. Ele deseja que seus apóstolos também a encarem desse modo. Que obra é essa?

5 Certa vez Jesus disse: "Tenho de declarar as boas novas do reino de Deus . . . porque fui enviado para isso." (Lucas 4:43) Ele foi enviado para pregar e ensinar as boas novas do Reino de Deus.* Os atuais seguidores de Jesus foram incumbidos dessa mesma obra. Assim, é muito importante que consideremos por que Jesus pregou, o que pregou e como encarava a sua incumbência.

Por que Jesus pregou

6 Vamos considerar como Jesus encarava as verdades que ensinava; depois analisaremos sua atitude para com as pessoas a quem instruía. Jesus usou uma ótima ilustração para mostrar como ele encarava a

* Pregar significa proclamar, ou declarar, uma mensagem. Ensinar tem um sentido parecido, mas inclui transmitir uma mensagem de modo mais profundo e detalhado. Ensinar bem envolve encontrar maneiras de tocar o coração daqueles a quem ensinamos a fim de motivá-los a agir em harmonia com o que ouvem.

5. Qual era a principal obra da vida de Jesus, e o que consideraremos neste capítulo?
6, 7. Como Jesus queria que "todo instrutor público" encarasse a oportunidade de transmitir as boas novas? Ilustre.

oportunidade de transmitir as verdades que Jeová lhe tinha ensinado. Ele disse: "Todo instrutor público, quando ensinado a respeito do reino dos céus, é semelhante a um homem, dono de casa, que tira do seu tesouro coisas novas e velhas." (Mateus 13:52) Qual é o motivo de o homem dessa ilustração trazer para fora coisas de seu tesouro?

7 Não é simplesmente para exibir seus bens, assim como o Rei Ezequias da antiguidade fez em certa ocasião — com amargas consequências. (2 Reis 20:13-20) Então por que aquele homem faz isso? Pense na seguinte ilustração: você vai à casa de um professor de quem você gosta muito. Ele abre uma gaveta e tira duas cartas — uma amarelada pelo tempo e outra mais nova. O professor as recebeu de seu pai — uma delas é de décadas atrás, quando ele ainda era criança, e a outra é mais recente. Os olhos do professor brilham ao contar-lhe como as cartas são preciosas para ele e como os conselhos contidos nelas mudaram a vida dele e poderiam ajudar você. O professor sem dúvida dá muito valor às cartas; elas têm um lugar especial em seu coração. (Lucas 6:45) Ele as mostra a você, não para se gabar ou para tirar algum proveito, mas para beneficiá-lo e dar-lhe uma ideia do valor que elas têm.

[8] O Grande Instrutor, Jesus, tinha a mesma motivação ao transmitir as verdades de Deus. Para ele, aquelas verdades eram tesouros inestimáveis. Ele as amava e queria muito falar sobre elas às pessoas. Queria que todos os seus seguidores, "todo instrutor público", as encarassem do mesmo modo. É assim que as encaramos? Esse é um bom motivo para amar todas as verdades que aprendemos da Palavra de Deus. Damos muito valor às joias da verdade, sejam elas crenças que já prezamos há muito tempo, sejam refinamentos recentes. Assim como Jesus, demonstramos esse amor por falar com entusiasmo sobre o que Jeová nos ensina e por continuar a amar essas verdades.

[9] Jesus também amava as pessoas a quem ensinava, conforme veremos em mais detalhes na Seção 3. Foi profetizado que o Messias teria "dó daquele de condição humilde e do pobre". (Salmo 72:13) De fato, Jesus se importava com as pessoas. Ele se preocupava com os conceitos e as atitudes que as influenciavam, com os fardos que as oprimiam e com aquilo que as impedia de entender a verdade. (Mateus 11:28; 16:13; 23:13, 15)

8. Por que temos um bom motivo para encarar as verdades que aprendemos da Palavra de Deus como tesouros?
9. (a) O que Jesus sentia pelas pessoas a quem ensinava? (b) Como podemos imitar o modo como Jesus encarava as pessoas?

Lembre-se, por exemplo, da samaritana. Ela sem dúvida ficou muito impressionada por ele ter se importado com ela. O fato de Jesus saber de sua situação fez com que ela o reconhecesse como profeta e falasse a outros sobre ele. (João 4:16-19, 39) É verdade que os seguidores de Jesus não sabem o que há no coração das pessoas a quem pregam. Mas podemos mostrar interesse nelas, assim como Jesus. Além de deixarmos evidente que nos preocupamos com elas, podemos escolher o que vamos dizer a fim de nos adaptar aos interesses, às necessidades e aos problemas de cada um.

O que Jesus pregou?

[10] O que Jesus pregou? Se você fosse procurar a resposta nos ensinamentos de muitas igrejas que afirmam segui-lo, talvez concluísse que ele divulgou algum tipo de evangelho social. Ou talvez tivesse a impressão de que ele defendeu reformas políticas ou destacou a salvação como a coisa mais importante. Mas, como já foi mencionado, Jesus disse claramente: “Tenho de declarar as boas novas do reino de Deus.” O que ele queria dizer com isso?

[11] Lembre-se de que Jesus estava presente quando Sa-

10, 11. (a) O que Jesus pregou? (b) Por que surgiu a necessidade do Reino de Deus?

tanás questionou a legitimidade da soberania de Jeová. Como deve ter sido doloroso para Jesus ver seu justo Pai ser caluniado e acusado de Governante injusto que priva Suas criaturas do que é bom! O Filho de Deus deve ter ficado muito triste quando Adão e Eva, os futuros pais da humanidade, deram ouvidos à calúnia de Satanás. Ele viu a família humana ser contaminada com o pecado e a morte em resultado dessa rebelião. (Romanos 5:12) Mas ele deve ter ficado muito feliz ao saber que seu Pai um dia corrigiria todos os problemas.

[12] Acima de tudo, o que precisava ser corrigido? O sagrado nome de Jeová tinha de ser santificado, limpo de toda calúnia lançada sobre ele por Satanás e os que tomaram seu lado. A legitimidade da soberania de Jeová, o seu modo de governar, tinha de ser vindicada. Jesus entendia essas questões vitais melhor do que qualquer outra pessoa. Na oração-modelo, ele ensinou seus seguidores a pedir primeiro a santificação do nome de seu Pai, a seguir a vinda do Reino e depois a realização da vontade de Deus na Terra. (Mateus 6:9, 10) O Reino de Deus, cujo Governante é Cristo Jesus, em breve eliminará da Terra o sistema corrupto de Satanás e estabelecerá para sempre o governo justo de Jeová. — Daniel 2:44.

12, 13. Que injustiças o Reino de Deus corrigirá, e como Jesus fez do Reino o tema principal de seu ministério?

[13] Esse Reino foi o tema do ministério de Jesus. Suas palavras e ações ajudaram a esclarecer o que é o Reino de Deus e como ele cumprirá o propósito de Jeová. Jesus não permitiu que nada o desviasse de sua missão de pregar as boas novas do Reino de Deus. Nos seus dias, havia problemas sociais urgentes e muita injustiça, mas ele se concentrou em sua mensagem e em sua obra. Será que o fato de Jesus agir assim significava que ele tinha a mente fechada e que seus métodos de pregação eram cansativos e repetitivos? Longe disso!

[14] Conforme veremos nesta seção, Jesus tornou seu ensino interessante e variado. Ele procurava tocar o coração das pessoas. Podemos nos lembrar do sábio Rei Salomão, que procurou palavras agradáveis, palavras corretas de verdade, para transmitir os pensamentos que Jeová o inspirou a escrever. (Eclesiastes 12:10) Jeová deu "largueza de coração" a Salomão, um homem imperfeito, para que ele pudesse falar sobre muitos assuntos, de aves a peixes, e de árvores a animais selvagens. Alguns vinham de longe para ouvi-lo. (1 Reis 14, 15. (a) De que modo Jesus foi "maior do que Salomão"? (b) Como podemos imitar Jesus ao pregar?

4:29-34) Mas Jesus era “maior do que Salomão”. (Mateus 12:42) Ele era muito mais sábio e tinha muito mais “largueza de coração”. Ao ensinar as pessoas, Jesus fazia uso do enorme conhecimento que tinha da Palavra de Deus e do que sabia sobre animais, agricultura, clima, acontecimentos da época, história e condições sociais. Ao mesmo tempo, nunca usou seu conhecimento para impressionar outros. Sua mensagem era sempre simples e clara. Não é de admirar que as pessoas tivessem prazer em ouvi-lo! — Marcos 12:37; Lucas 19:48.

15 Os cristãos hoje tentam seguir o exemplo de Jesus. Não temos tanta sabedoria e conhecimento quanto ele, mas todos nós temos certa medida de conhecimento e experiência. Podemos fazer uso disso ao transmitir as verdades da Palavra de Deus. Os pais, por exemplo, podem usar sua experiência em criar filhos para ilustrar o amor que Jeová tem por suas criaturas. Outros podem tirar exemplos ou ilustrações de sua profissão, do que acontece na escola, dos tratos com outros e dos acontecimentos atuais. Ao mesmo tempo, tomamos cuidado para que nada desvie a atenção que deve ser dada à nossa mensagem — as boas novas do Reino de Deus. — 1 Timóteo 4:16.

Como Jesus encarava seu ministério

[16] Para Jesus, seu ministério era um tesouro precioso. Ele tinha prazer em ajudar as pessoas a encarar seu Pai como ele realmente é, sem as distorções causadas pelas confusas doutrinas e tradições humanas. Jesus gostava muito de ajudar as pessoas a ter um relacionamento aprovado com Jeová e ter a esperança de vida eterna. Ele tinha prazer em levar a elas o consolo e a alegria que as boas novas proporcionavam. Como ele demonstrou que era assim que se sentia em relação ao ministério? Veja três modos.

[17] Primeiro, Jesus fez do ministério a coisa mais importante da sua vida. Ele dedicou sua vida a falar sobre o Reino. Essa obra era sua carreira, seu interesse principal. É por isso que Jesus teve uma vida simples, conforme vimos no Capítulo 5. Ele aconselhava outros a se concentrar no que era mais importante e agia exatamente desse modo. Não se ocupou com coisas pelas quais teria de pagar, ou que teria de manter, consertar ou substituir ao longo do tempo. Jesus viveu de modo simples para que nada atrapalhasse desnecessariamente seu ministério. — Mateus 6:22; 8:20.

16, 17. (a) Como Jesus encarava o ministério? (b) Como Jesus mostrou que o ministério era a coisa mais importante da sua vida?

[18] Segundo, Jesus gastou-se no ministério. Ele empregou muita energia para realizar sua obra, andando literalmente centenas de quilômetros pela Palestina à procura de pessoas a quem pudesse transmitir as boas novas. Falou com as pessoas em suas casas, nas praças, nos mercados e ao ar livre. Conversou com elas até quando estava cansado, com fome, com sede ou precisando de um pouco de privacidade. Mesmo quando estava morrendo, ele continuou a transmitir as boas novas do Reino de Deus! — Lucas 23:39-43.

[19] Terceiro, o ministério era algo urgente para Jesus. Pense na ocasião em que ele conversou com a samaritana em Sicar. Pelo visto seus apóstolos não achavam que era urgente transmitir as boas novas naquela ocasião. Jesus lhes disse: "Não dizeis que ainda faltam quatro meses até chegar a colheita? Eis que vos digo: Erguei os vossos olhos e observai os campos, que estão brancos para a colheita." — João 4:35.

[20] Jesus baseou essa ilustração na estação do ano em que se encontravam. Tudo indica que eles estavam no mês de quisleu (novembro/dezembro). A colheita da cevada seria dali a quatro meses, por volta da época da

18. De que modo Jesus se gastou no ministério?
19, 20. Como Jesus ilustrou a urgência da obra de pregação?

Páscoa, em 14 de nisã. Assim, os lavradores não viam urgência na colheita, pois ela ainda estava bem longe. Mas que dizer da colheita de pessoas? Bem, nesse caso, muitos estavam prontos para ouvir, aprender, tornar-se discípulos de Cristo e ter a esperança maravilhosa que Jeová lhes havia preparado. Era como se Jesus pudesse olhar para aqueles campos figurativos e ver que estavam brancos, com os cereais maduros balançando ao vento, indicando que estavam prontos para a colheita.* A hora tinha chegado e a obra era urgente. Por isso, quando os moradores de certa cidade tentaram impedir que Jesus fosse embora, ele disse: "Tenho de declarar as boas novas do reino de Deus também a outras cidades, porque fui enviado para isso." — Lucas 4:43.

[21] Podemos imitar Jesus dos três modos que acabamos de considerar. Um deles é por fazer do ministério cristão a coisa mais importante da nossa vida. Mesmo que tenhamos responsabilidades familiares e outros assuntos para cuidar, podemos mostrar que o ministério ocupa o primeiro lugar em nossa vida participando nele de forma zelosa e regular, assim como Jesus. (Mateus

* Uma obra de referência diz o seguinte a respeito desse versículo: "Quando o cereal está maduro, sua cor muda do verde para o amarelo, ou seja, para uma cor clara, indicando que chegou a hora da colheita."

21. Como podemos imitar Jesus?

Como Ser Seguidor de Jesus?

- Como podemos mostrar por meio de nossas orações e nossas ações que compreendemos a urgência do ministério? — Mateus 9:35-38.
- Se percebermos que o nosso zelo pelo ministério está diminuindo, como a atitude de Jesus poderá nos dar ânimo? — Marcos 1:35-39.
- Ao pregar, como devemos encarar as pessoas humildes, oprimidas ou desprezadas por outros? — Lucas 18:35–19:10.
- Por que nunca devemos permitir que diferentes tipos de reações ou hostilidade à nossa pregação diminuam o nosso zelo? — João 7:32-52.

6:33; 1 Timóteo 5:8) Outra maneira é por nos gastarmos no ministério, dando generosamente de nosso tempo, energia e recursos para apoiá-lo. (Lucas 13:24) E precisamos sempre nos lembrar que a nossa obra é urgente. (2 Timóteo 4:2) Temos de aproveitar todas as oportunidades para pregar!

[22] Jesus também mostrou que compreendia a importância da obra por se certificar de que ela continuasse a ser feita após a sua morte. Ele comissionou seus seguidores a dar continuidade à obra de pregar e ensinar. Essa incumbência será o assunto do próximo capítulo.

CAPÍTULO 9

“Ide . . . e fazei discípulos”

CERTO lavrador arou e semeou seus campos. Ficou atento ao surgimento das primeiras lâminas do cereal e alegrou-se com o crescimento das plantas. Agora todo o seu trabalho é recompensado, pois chegou a hora da colheita. Mas ele se depara com um enorme desafio: a safra é muito grande para ele colher sozinho. Assim, ele sabiamente decide contratar alguns trabalhadores e enviá-los aos campos, pois há pouco tempo para colher a preciosa safra.

[2] Na primavera de 33 EC, o ressuscitado Jesus confrontou-se com um desafio similar. Ele havia semeado a verdade durante seu ministério terrestre. Agora era necessário fazer a colheita, e a safra era abundante. Muitas pessoas receptivas tinham de ser ajuntadas para tornar-se discípulos. (João 4:35-38) O que Jesus fez para enfrentar esse desafio? Numa montanha na Galileia, pouco antes de ascender ao céu, ele comissionou seus discípulos para encontrar mais trabalhadores, dizendo: “Ide, portanto, e fazei discípulos de pessoas de todas as nações, batizando-as . . . , ensinando-as a observar todas as coisas que vos ordenei.” — Mateus 28:19, 20.

[3] Essa comissão é a essência do que significa ser verdadeiro seguidor de Cristo. Portanto, vamos analisar três perguntas. Por que Jesus deu essa comissão que resultaria em mais trabalhadores? Como ele treinou seus discípulos para encontrá-los? Como estamos envolvidos nessa comissão?

Por que era necessário mais trabalhadores?

[4] Ao iniciar seu ministério em 29 EC, Jesus sabia que estava começando uma obra que não terminaria sozinho. No curto tempo que lhe restava, ele conseguiria levar a mensagem do Reino a um número limitado de pessoas e alcançar apenas uma área limitada. É verdade que ele restringiu sua pregação principalmente aos judeus e prosélitos, as “ovelhas perdidas da casa de Israel”. (Mateus 15:24) No entanto, aquelas “ovelhas perdidas” estavam espalhadas por todo o território de Israel, um país que abrangia milhares de quilômetros quadrados. Além disso, todo o campo mundial por fim teria de ser alcançado com as boas novas. — Mateus 13:38; 24:14.

4, 5. Por que Jesus não terminaria a obra a que deu início, e quem teria de dar prosseguimento a ela quando ele retornasse ao céu?

[5] Jesus sabia que após a sua morte ainda haveria muito trabalho a ser feito. Ele disse aos 11 apóstolos fiéis: "Digo-vos em toda a verdade: Quem exercer fé em mim, esse fará também as obras que eu faço; e ele fará obras maiores do que estas, porque eu vou embora para o Pai." (João 14:12) Visto que o Filho retornaria ao céu, seus seguidores — não apenas os apóstolos, mas todos os futuros discípulos — teriam de dar prosseguimento à obra de pregar e ensinar. (João 17:20) Jesus humildemente reconheceu que as obras de seus discípulos seriam "maiores do que" as dele. Como se daria isso? De três maneiras.

[6] Primeiro, os seguidores de Jesus abrangeriam um território maior. Atualmente, o testemunho deles chega aos quatro cantos da Terra, muito além das fronteiras do país onde Jesus pregou. Segundo, eles alcançariam mais pessoas. O pequeno grupo de discípulos que Jesus deixou chegou rapidamente aos milhares.

6, 7. (a) De que modo as obras dos seguidores de Jesus seriam maiores do que as dele? (b) Como podemos provar que Jesus estava certo ao confiar em seus seguidores?

(Atos 2:41; 4:4) Agora existem milhões, e centenas de milhares de discípulos são batizados todo ano. Terceiro, a pregação deles continuaria por mais tempo. Ela estende-se até hoje, quase 2 mil anos após o fim do ministério de Jesus, que durou três anos e meio.

[7] Jesus demonstrou confiança nos discípulos quando disse que eles fariam "obras maiores do que" as dele. Estava confiando-lhes uma obra que era muito importante para ele: pregar e ensinar "as boas novas do reino de Deus". (Lucas 4:43) Ele tinha certeza de que os discípulos cumpririam fielmente essa incumbência. O que isso significa para nós hoje? Quando nos empenhamos com zelo e de todo o coração no ministério, provamos que Jesus estava certo ao confiar em seus seguidores. Que privilégio maravilhoso! — Lucas 13:24.

Instruídos para dar testemunho

[8] Jesus deu aos discípulos o melhor treinamento possível para o ministério. Acima de tudo, deixou um exemplo perfeito para eles. (Lucas 6:40) No capítulo anterior, analisamos como Jesus encarava o

8, 9. Que exemplo Jesus deixou ao realizar o ministério, e como podemos imitá-lo?

ministério. Pense nos discípulos que o acompanharam em suas viagens de pregação. Eles observaram que Jesus pregava onde quer que houvesse pessoas — às margens de lagos, nas montanhas, nas cidades, nos mercados e nas casas. (Mateus 5:1, 2; Lucas 5:1-3; 8:1; 19:5, 6) Também viram como ele era trabalhador, levantando cedo e pregando até tarde da noite. O ministério não era um simples passatempo para Jesus. (Lucas 21:37, 38; João 5:17) Os discípulos com certeza perceberam que ele era motivado por um profundo amor pelas pessoas. Talvez vissem refletida no rosto de Jesus a compaixão que ele sentia no coração. (Marcos 6:34) Que efeito você acha que o exemplo de Jesus teve sobre seus discípulos? Como você teria sido influenciado?

9 Como seguidores de Cristo, imitamos seu exemplo em nosso ministério. Por isso, não medimos esforços para dar "um testemunho cabal". (Atos 10:42) Assim como Jesus, visitamos as pessoas em suas casas. (Atos 5:42) Se necessário, ajustamos nossa programação para visitá-las num horário em que seja mais provável encontrá-las. Também vamos em busca das pessoas e pregamos discretamente em lugares públicos, como ruas, parques, lojas e no local de trabalho. Continuamos a 'trabalhar arduamente e a nos esforçar' no ministério porque levamos a sério essa obra. (1 Timóteo 4:10) O amor profundo e de coração por outros nos motiva a continuar buscando oportunidades de pregar em todos os lugares e ocasiões. — 1 Tessalonicenses 2:8.

[10] Jesus também treinou seus discípulos por dar-lhes instruções detalhadas. Antes de enviar à pregação os 12 apóstolos, e mais tarde os 70 discípulos, Jesus reuniu-se com eles e deu-lhes instruções detalhadas sobre como pregar. (Mateus 10:1-15; Lucas 10:1-12) Isso deu bons resultados. Lucas 10:17 diz: 'Os setenta voltaram com alegria.' Vamos analisar duas lições importantes que Jesus ensinou, lembrando que para entender suas palavras é preciso levar em conta os costumes judaicos da época.

[11] Jesus ensinou seus discípulos a confiar em Jeová. Ele lhes disse: "Não adquirais nem ouro, nem prata, nem cobre, para os bolsos dos vossos cintos, nem alforje para a viagem, nem duas peças de roupa interior, nem sandálias, nem bastão; pois o trabalhador merece o seu alimento.” (Mateus 10:9, 10) Quando as pessoas viajavam, era comum usarem um cinto com um bolso para carregar dinheiro, além de um alforje e um par adicional de sandálias.* Ao instruir seus discípulos a não se preocupar com essas coisas, Jesus na verdade estava dizendo: “Confiem plenamente em Jeová, pois ele cuidará das suas necessidades.” Jeová os ajudaria, motivando os que aceitassem as boas novas a ser hospitaleiros, o que era costume em Israel. — Lucas 22:35.

10-12. Que lições importantes Jesus ensinou a seus discípulos antes de enviá-los à pregação?

12 Jesus também ensinou seus discípulos a evitar coisas que desnecessariamente os distraíssem de seu objetivo. Ele disse: “Não abraceis a ninguém em cumprimento ao longo da estrada.” (Lucas 10:4) Será que Jesus queria dizer que eles deviam ser frios ou indiferentes? De modo algum. Nos tempos bíblicos, os cumprimentos geralmente envolviam mais do que uma simples saudação; incluíam várias formalidades e longas conversas. Um erudito bíblico diz: “Os cumprimentos entre os orientais não consistiam, como entre nós, em uma mesura, ou aperto de mãos, mas incluíam muitos abraços, reverências e até prostrar-se ao solo. Tudo isso tomava muito tempo.” Ao dizer a seus discípulos que não cumprimentassem outros do modo costumeiro, em certo sentido Jesus estava dizendo: “Usem seu tempo da melhor maneira possível, pois a mensagem é urgente.”*

* O bolso do cinto talvez fosse usado para guardar moedas. O alforje era uma bolsa maior, geralmente feita de couro, que era pendurada no ombro e usada para carregar alimentos e outras provisões.

[13] Nós levamos a sério as instruções que Jesus deu aos discípulos no primeiro século. Confiamos plenamente em Jeová ao realizar nosso ministério. (Provérbios 3:5, 6) Sabemos que nossas necessidades básicas nunca nos faltarão se ‘persistirmos em buscar primeiro o reino’. (Mateus 6:33) Evangelizadores por tempo integral no mundo todo podem comprovar que mesmo em tempos difíceis o braço de Jeová não é curto. (Salmo 37:25) Também reconhecemos que precisamos evitar coisas que nos distraiam de nosso objetivo. Se não tomarmos cuidado, este sistema pode

* O profeta Eliseu deu instruções similares em certa ocasião. Quando enviou seu servo Geazi à casa de uma mulher cujo filho havia morrido, Eliseu disse: “Caso encontres alguém, não o deves cumprimentar.” (2 Reis 4:29) A missão era urgente, por isso não havia tempo para demoras desnecessárias.

13. De que modo podemos demonstrar que levamos a sério as instruções que Jesus deu aos discípulos no primeiro século?

facilmente nos desviar. (Lucas 21:34-36) Mas agora não é hora de nos deixar distrair. Vidas estão em jogo, por isso nossa mensagem é urgente. (Romanos 10:13-15) Manter um senso de urgência nos ajudará a evitar que coisas deste mundo consumam o tempo e a energia que seriam mais bem aproveitados no ministério. Lembre-se de que o tempo que resta é curto, e a colheita é grande. — Mateus 9:37, 38.

Como estamos envolvidos nessa obra

[14] Ao dizer "ide . . . e fazei discípulos", o ressuscitado Jesus confiou uma grande responsabilidade a seus seguidores. Ele não tinha em mente apenas os discípulos que estavam presentes naquele dia numa montanha na Galileia.* A obra que ele ordenou envolve pregar a "pessoas de todas as nações", e continua "até a terminação do sistema de coisas". Fica claro que essa comissão se aplica a todos os seguidores de Cristo, incluindo nós hoje em dia. Vamos analisar mais de

* Visto que a maioria dos seus seguidores estavam na Galileia, provavelmente foi nessa ocasião descrita em Mateus 28:16-20 que o ressuscitado Jesus apareceu a "mais de quinhentos". (1 Coríntios 15:6) Portanto, centenas de pessoas talvez estivessem presentes quando Jesus lhes deu a comissão de fazer discípulos.

14. O que indica que a comissão registrada em Mateus 28:18-20 se aplica a todos os seguidores de Cristo? (Veja também a nota.)

perto as palavras de Jesus registradas em Mateus 28:18-20.

[15] Antes de comissionar seus discípulos, Jesus disse: "Foi-me dada toda a autoridade no céu e na terra." (Versículo 18) Será que Jesus realmente tem toda essa autoridade? Com certeza. Ele é o arcanjo e comanda milhões de anjos. (1 Tessalonicenses 4:16; Revelação [Apocalipse] 12:7) Como "cabeça da congregação", Jesus tem autoridade sobre seus seguidores na Terra. (Efésios 5:23) Ele está governando no céu como Rei messiânico desde 1914. (Revelação 11:15) Jesus tem autoridade até mesmo para ressuscitar os mortos. (João 5:26-28) Por mencionar primeiro sua grande autoridade, Jesus indica que suas próximas palavras não são uma sugestão, mas uma ordem. Fazemos bem em obedecer a ela, pois ele não assumiu essa autoridade por conta própria, ela lhe foi dada por Deus. — 1 Coríntios 15:27.

[16] Jesus passa então a dar a comissão, que começa com uma única palavra: "Ide." (Versículo 19)

15. Por que é apropriado obedecermos ao mandamento de Jesus de fazer discípulos?
16. O que Jesus quer que façamos ao dizer "ide", e como cumprimos esse aspecto de nossa comissão?

Desse modo, ele nos ordena a tomar a iniciativa de transmitir a outros a mensagem do Reino. Podemos usar muitos métodos para cumprir esse aspecto da nossa comissão. Pregar de casa em casa é a maneira mais eficaz de falar pessoalmente com outros. (Atos 20:20) Também aproveitamos as oportunidades no nosso dia a dia para dar testemunho informal, procurando iniciar conversas sobre as boas novas em todo lugar que for apropriado. Nossos métodos específicos de pregação podem variar para se adaptar às circunstâncias e às necessidades da região onde vivemos. Uma coisa, porém, não muda: nós 'vamos' em busca dos merecedores. — Mateus 10:11.

[17] Depois Jesus explica o objetivo de sua ordem, dizendo: "Fazei discípulos de pessoas de todas as nações." (Versículo 19) Como 'fazemos discípulos'? Basicamente, um discípulo é um aprendiz, alguém que é ensinado. Mas fazer discípulos não é uma simples questão de transmitir conhecimento a outros. Quando estudamos a Bíblia com os interessados, nosso objetivo é ajudá-los a se tornar seguidores de Cristo. Sempre que possível, destacamos o exemplo de Jesus para que nossos estudantes aprendam a encará-lo como seu Instrutor e Modelo, vivendo do modo como ele viveu e realizando a obra que ele fez. — João 13:15.

17. Como 'fazemos discípulos'?

[18] Uma parte vital da comissão que Jesus deu é expressa pelas palavras: "Batizando-as em o nome do Pai, e do Filho, e do espírito santo." (Versículo 19) O batismo é o evento mais importante na vida de um discípulo, pois é um símbolo apropriado de sua dedicação de toda a alma a Deus. Assim, o batismo é essencial para a salvação. (1 Pedro 3:21) O discípulo batizado pode aguardar bênçãos eternas no futuro novo mundo ao passo que continua fazendo o seu melhor no serviço prestado a Jeová. Você já ajudou alguém a se tornar discípulo batizado de Cristo? Essa é a maior alegria que podemos ter no ministério cristão. — 3 João 4.

[19] Jesus explica a próxima parte da comissão dizendo: "Ensinando-as a observar todas as coisas que vos ordenei." (Versículo 20) Ensinamos os novos a seguir os mandamentos de Jesus, o que inclui amar a Deus e ao próximo, e fazer discípulos. (Mateus 22:37-39)

18. Por que o batismo é o evento mais importante na vida do discípulo?
19. O que ensinamos aos novos, e por que o ensino não termina após o batismo?

Aos poucos lhes ensinamos a explicar as verdades da Bíblia e a defender a fé que vão adquirindo. Quando se qualificam para participar na pregação, trabalhamos junto com eles, ensinando-os por meio de palavras e exemplo a ter uma participação significativa nessa obra. O ensino não termina necessariamente com o batismo. Os recém-batizados talvez precisem de instruções adicionais para ajudá-los a enfrentar os desafios que sobrevêm aos seguidores de Cristo. — Lucas 9:23, 24.

"Estou convosco todos os dias"

20 As últimas palavras da comissão dada por Jesus nos inspiram muita confiança: "Eis que estou convosco todos os dias, até à terminação do sistema de coisas." (Mateus 28:20) Jesus sabe que essa designação é séria. Sabe também que cumpri-la às vezes resultará em hostilidade por parte de opositores. (Lucas 21:12) Mas não há motivo para ter medo. Nosso Líder não espera que cumpramos essa designação sem ajuda ou sozinhos. Não é animador saber que Aquele que tem

20, 21. (a) Por que não há motivo para ter medo ao cumprirmos a comissão de Jesus? (b) Por que não podemos diminuir o passo, e qual deve ser a nossa determinação?

Como Ser Seguidor de Jesus?

- Como devemos abordar as pessoas com a mensagem do Reino? — Mateus 10:11-13; Lucas 10:5.
- Como as palavras de Jesus podem nos ajudar a lidar com oposição à obra de pregação? — Marcos 13:9-13.
- Como devemos lidar com os que não aceitam a nossa mensagem? — Lucas 10:10, 11.
- Quando damos prioridade à pregação, que certeza podemos ter? — Lucas 12:22-31.

"toda a autoridade no céu e na terra" está nos apoiando no cumprimento dessa comissão?

[21] Jesus garantiu que estaria com seus seguidores em seu ministério ao longo dos séculos, "até à terminação do sistema de coisas". Devemos continuar a cumprir a comissão dada por Jesus até vir o fim. Agora não é hora para diminuirmos o passo. Uma enorme colheita espiritual está sendo feita! Pessoas receptivas à mensagem estão sendo ajuntadas em grande número. Como seguidores de Cristo, estejamos determinados a cumprir a importante comissão que nos foi confiada. Estejamos decididos a usar nosso tempo, energia e recursos para cumprir a ordem de Jesus: "Ide . . . e fazei discípulos."

CAPÍTULO 10

“Está escrito”

AINDA no início de seu ministério Jesus visita Nazaré, a cidade onde foi criado. Seu objetivo é ajudar as pessoas a chegar à importante conclusão de que ele é o prometido Messias. Que prova ele apresenta?

[2] Muitos sem dúvida esperam um milagre, pois ouviram falar das incríveis obras que Jesus já realizou. Mas em vez de lhes dar um sinal milagroso, ele vai à sinagoga, como é o seu costume. Ali, levanta-se para ler e recebe o rolo de Isaías. É um rolo comprido, provavelmente enrolado em dois bastões. Jesus o desenrola com cuidado, passando-o de um bastão para o outro até encontrar a passagem que está procurando. Então ele lê em voz alta as palavras que hoje se encontram em Isaías 61:1-3. — Lucas 4:16-19.

[3] Os presentes ali com certeza conhecem essa passagem. Trata-se de uma profecia sobre o Messias. Ninguém tira os olhos de Jesus; o silêncio paira no ar. Então Jesus começa a explicar o texto, talvez em detalhes, e diz: “Hoje se cumpriu esta escritura que aca-bais de ouvir." Todos ficam maravilhados com suas palavras cativantes, mas, pelo visto, muitos ainda querem ver um sinal espetacular. Em vez de fazer isso, Jesus corajosamente usa um exemplo tirado das Escrituras para expor a falta de fé daquelas pessoas. Pouco depois, os que estão ali tentam matá-lo! — Lucas 4:20-30.

4 Naquela ocasião, Jesus estabeleceu um modelo que ele seguiu durante todo o seu ministério. Tudo o que fez e disse se baseava na Palavra inspirada de Deus. É verdade que os milagres de Jesus eram de grande importância para provar que ele tinha o espírito de Deus, mas para ele nada era mais importante do que as Escrituras Sagradas. Vamos analisar como nosso Mestre citou, defendeu e explicou a Palavra de Deus, deixando-nos um exemplo.

Como Jesus citou a Palavra de Deus

5 Jesus queria que as pessoas soubessem qual era a origem de sua mensagem. Ele disse: "O que eu ensino não é meu, mas pertence àquele que me enviou." (João 7:16) Em outra ocasião, ele falou: "Não faço

5. O que Jesus queria deixar claro a seus ouvintes, e como ele provou que suas afirmações a respeito disso eram verdadeiras?

nada de minha própria iniciativa; mas assim como o Pai me ensinou, estas coisas eu falo." (João 8:28) Jesus disse também: "As coisas que vos digo não falo da minha própria iniciativa; mas o Pai, que permanece em união comigo, está fazendo as suas obras." (João 14:10) Um dos modos como Jesus provou que essas afirmações eram verdadeiras foi por citar vez após vez a Palavra escrita de Deus.

[6] Um estudo detalhado das palavras registradas de Jesus revela que ele fez citações diretas ou indiretas de mais da metade dos livros que fazem parte do cânon das Escrituras Hebraicas. De início isso talvez não pareça muito impressionante. Pode ser que você se pergunte por que razão Jesus, num ministério de três anos e meio, não fez citações de todos os livros inspirados disponíveis na época. Na verdade, é bem provável que ele tenha feito isso. Lembre-se de que a Bíblia registra apenas uma pequena parte do que Jesus disse e fez. (João 21:25) De fato, todas as suas palavras registradas podem ser lidas em apenas algumas horas. Mas imagine-se falando sobre Deus e Seu Rei-no durante apenas algumas horas e sendo capaz de citar trechos de mais da metade dos livros das Escrituras Hebraicas! Além disso, na maioria dos casos Jesus não tinha os rolos à mão. No seu famoso Sermão do Monte, ele citou muitas vezes as Escrituras Hebraicas direta e indiretamente — tudo de cor!

6, 7. (a) Quão extensivamente Jesus citou as Escrituras Hebraicas, e por que isso é impressionante? (b) Como o ensino de Jesus era diferente do ensino dos escribas?

[7] O fato de Jesus citar as Escrituras mostra que ele tinha profundo respeito pela Palavra de Deus. As pessoas 'ficavam assombradas com o seu modo de ensinar, pois as ensinava como quem tinha autoridade e não como os escribas'. (Marcos 1:22) Quando os escribas ensinavam, gostavam de mencionar a chamada lei oral, citando instruídos rabinos da antiguidade. Jesus nem uma única vez citou a lei oral ou algum rabino para apoiar o que dizia. Ele considerava a Palavra de Deus como autoridade máxima. Com frequência lemos estas palavras de Jesus: "Está escrito." Ele repetiu muitas vezes essa declaração ou outras similares ao ensinar seus seguidores e corrigir conceitos errados.

[8] Quando Jesus expulsou os comerciantes que

estavam no templo em Jerusalém, ele disse: “Está escrito: ‘Minha casa será chamada casa de oração’, mas vós fazeis dela um covil de salteadores.” (Mateus 21:12, 13; Isaías 56:7; Jeremias 7:11) No dia anterior, ele havia realizado ali muitas obras. Alguns meninos ficaram impressionados e começaram a louvá-lo. Os líderes religiosos, indignados, perguntaram a Jesus se ele estava ouvindo o que as crianças diziam. Ele respondeu: “Sim. Nunca lestes o seguinte: ‘Da boca de pequeninos e de crianças de peito forneceste louvor’?” (Mateus 21:16; Salmo 8:2) Jesus queria que aqueles homens soubessem que a Palavra de Deus apoiava o que estava acontecendo naquela ocasião.

[9] Os líderes religiosos juntaram-se mais tarde para desafiar Jesus, perguntando: “Com que autoridade fazes estas coisas?” (Mateus 21:23) Jesus já havia deixado bem claro qual era a Fonte de sua autoridade. Ele não tinha inventado doutrinas, estava simplesmente agindo segundo a Palavra inspirada de seu Pai. Fica claro, portanto, que aqueles sacerdotes e escribas demonstravam grande desrespeito por Jeová e Sua Palavra. Eles realmente mereciam que Jesus os censurasse, expondo suas más motivações. — Mateus 21:23-46.

[10] Assim como Jesus, os cristãos verdadeiros hoje baseiam seu ministério na Palavra de Deus. As Testemunhas de Jeová são conhecidas no mundo inteiro por seu zelo em transmitir a mensagem bíblica a outros. Nossas publicações citam constantemente a Bíblia. Fazemos o mesmo em nosso ministério, usando as Escrituras sempre que conversamos com as pessoas. (2 Timóteo 3:16) Ficamos muito contentes quando alguém nos permite ler textos bíblicos e conversar sobre o valor e o significado da Palavra de Deus. Apesar de não termos memória perfeita, assim como Jesus, hoje temos muitas ajudas disponíveis que ele não tinha. Além da Bíblia completa, impressa em cada vez mais idiomas, temos muitas publicações bíblicas para nos ajudar a encontrar qualquer versículo que quisermos. Estejamos decididos a continuar citando textos bíblicos e direcionando a atenção das pessoas para a Bíblia em toda oportunidade!

Como Jesus defendeu a Palavra de Deus

[11] Jesus percebeu que a Palavra de Deus estava constantemente sob ataque, mas isso com certeza não o

11. Por que Jesus teve de defender a Palavra de Deus muitas vezes?

surpreendeu. Ele disse em oração a seu Pai: "A tua palavra é a verdade." (João 17:17) E Jesus sabia que Satanás, "o governante do mundo", é "um mentiroso e o pai da mentira". (João 8:44; 14:30) Ao rejeitar as tentações de Satanás, Jesus citou as Escrituras três vezes. Satanás citou um versículo dos Salmos, propositalmente fazendo uma aplicação incorreta, mas Jesus defendeu a Palavra de Deus. — Mateus 4:6, 7.

[12] Jesus defendeu muitas vezes as Escrituras Sagradas contra entendimentos incorretos e distorcidos. Os instrutores religiosos da época apresentavam a Palavra de Deus de modo enganoso. Eles davam muita importância aos mínimos detalhes da Lei mosaica e pouca importância aos princípios nos quais as leis se baseavam. Desse modo eles promoviam uma adoração superficial, que dava mais destaque às aparências do que às questões mais importantes, como justiça, misericórdia e fidelidade. (Mateus 23:23) Como Jesus defendeu a Lei de Deus?

[13] No Sermão do Monte, Jesus usou várias vezes a frase "ouvistes que se disse" antes de citar um mandamento da Lei mosaica. Depois ele continuava com a frase "mas eu vos digo", e então explicava um princípio que envolvia muito mais do que apenas cumprir superficialmente a Lei. Será que Jesus estava falando contra a Lei? Não, ele a estava defendendo. Por exemplo, as pessoas conheciam bem a lei "não deves assassinar". Mas Jesus disse-lhes que odiar uma pessoa já violava o princípio por trás daquela lei. Do mesmo modo, se alguém nutrisse sentimentos românticos por uma pessoa que não fosse seu cônjuge, estaria violando o princípio no qual se baseava a lei de Deus contra o adultério. — Mateus 5:17, 18, 21, 22, 27-39.

14 Finalmente, Jesus declarou: "Ouvistes que se disse: 'Tens de amar o teu próximo e odiar o teu inimigo.' No entanto, eu vos digo: Continuai a amar os vossos inimigos e a orar pelos que vos perseguem." (Mateus 5:43, 44) Será que o mandamento de 'odiar o seu inimigo' constava na Palavra de Deus? Não, os próprios líderes religiosos inventaram essa regra. Eles enfraqueciam a Lei perfeita de Deus com conceitos humanos. Jesus defendeu corajosamente a Palavra de Deus contra os efeitos nocivos das tradições humanas. — Marcos 7:9-13.

[15] Os líderes religiosos também atacavam a Lei de Deus por fazê-la parecer muito restritiva e até severa. Na ocasião em que os discípulos de Jesus arrancaram algumas espigas de cereal ao passar por um campo, alguns fariseus disseram que eles estavam violando o sábado. Jesus usou um exemplo das Escrituras para defender a Palavra de Deus contra esse conceito desequilibrado. Ele citou a única referência que a Bíblia faz sobre o uso dos pães da proposição fora do santuário: quando Davi e os homens famintos que estavam com ele comeram os pães. Jesus mostrou aos fariseus que eles não tinham compreendido a questão principal: a misericórdia e a compaixão de Jeová. — Marcos 2:23-27.

[16] Os líderes religiosos também inventavam meios para se esquivar da Lei de Deus e diminuir sua força. Por exemplo, a Lei permitia que um homem se divorciasse de sua esposa se houvesse "alguma coisa indecente" da parte dela, evidentemente um problema sério que envergonhasse a família. (Deuteronômio

15. Como Jesus defendeu a Lei de Deus contra as tentativas de fazê-la parecer muito restritiva e até severa?
16. Como os líderes religiosos distorceram o mandamento de Moisés a respeito do divórcio, e qual foi a reação de Jesus?

24:1) Mas, nos dias de Jesus, os líderes religiosos usavam essa concessão como desculpa para um homem se divorciar de sua esposa por qualquer motivo — até por ter deixado a comida queimar!* Jesus mostrou que eles tinham distorcido gravemente as palavras inspiradas de Moisés e restaurou o padrão original de Jeová para o casamento, ou seja, a monogamia. A imoralidade sexual seria a única base legítima para o divórcio. — Mateus 19:3-12.

[17] Os seguidores atuais de Cristo também desejam defender as Escrituras Sagradas. Quando líderes religiosos dão a entender que os padrões morais da Palavra de Deus são antiquados, na verdade estão atacando a Bíblia. As Escrituras também estão sob ataque quando as religiões ensinam falsidades como se fossem doutrinas bíblicas. Para nós, é um privilégio defender a Palavra pura de Deus, que contém a verdade. Um modo de fazermos isso é por provar que Deus não faz parte de uma Trindade. (Deuteronômio 4:39) Ao

Jesus explicou a Palavra de Deus

18 Jesus estava vivo no céu quando as Escrituras Hebraicas foram registradas. Como ele deve ter apreciado a oportunidade de vir à Terra e explicar a Palavra de Deus! Lembre-se, por exemplo, daquele dia inesquecível após sua ressurreição, quando ele encontrou dois discípulos na estrada para Emaús. Antes de o reconhecerem, eles lhe contaram que estavam tristes e confusos por causa da morte de seu amado Mestre. O que Jesus fez? "Principiando por Moisés e por todos os Profetas, interpretou-lhes em todas as Escrituras as coisas referentes a si mesmo." Como os discípulos se sentiram? Mais tarde disseram um ao outro: "Não se nos abrasavam os corações quando nos falava na estrada, ao nos abrir plenamente as Escrituras?" — Lucas 24:15-32.

19 Depois, naquele mesmo dia, Jesus reuniu-se com seus apóstolos e outros discípulos. Veja o que ele fez: "Abriu-lhes . . . plenamente as mentes para que compreendessem o significado das Escrituras." (Lucas

18, 19. Que exemplos mostram que Jesus tinha uma habilidade maravilhosa para explicar a Palavra de Deus?

24:45) Aquela ocasião alegre com certeza os fez lembrar das muitas vezes que Jesus tinha ajudado a eles, e a todos os que o ouviam, a entender as Escrituras. Jesus em geral explicava textos bem conhecidos de uma maneira que seus ouvintes passavam a entender a Palavra de Deus de um ângulo diferente e de modo mais profundo.

[20] Em certa ocasião, Jesus estava falando a um grupo de saduceus. Eles faziam parte de uma seita do judaísmo associada ao sacerdócio judaico e não acreditavam na ressurreição. Jesus disse a eles: "Quanto à ressurreição dos mortos, não lestes o que vos foi falado por Deus, que disse: 'Eu sou o Deus de Abraão, e o Deus de Isaque, e o Deus de Jacó'? Ele é o Deus, não de mortos, mas de vivos." (Mateus 22:31, 32) Os saduceus conheciam muito bem esse texto escrito por Moisés, um homem que eles respeitavam muito. Consegue perceber a força da explicação de Jesus?

[21] Moisés ouviu essas palavras de Jeová perto de um espinheiro em chamas por volta de 1514 AEC. (Êxodo 3:2, 6) Naquela época, já fazia 329 anos que Abraão tinha morrido; Isaque tinha morrido havia 224 anos, 20, 21. Como Jesus explicou as palavras de Jeová a Moisés no espinheiro em chamas?

e Jacó, havia 197 anos. Mesmo assim, Jeová disse: "Eu sou" o Deus deles. Os saduceus sabiam que Jeová não é como um deus pagão dos mortos, que reina num mítico submundo. Não; como Jesus disse, ele é o Deus "de vivos". O que isso significa? A conclusão de Jesus era óbvia: "Para ele, todos estes vivem." (Lucas 20:38) Os amados servos de Jeová que já morreram estão guardados em segurança na sua ilimitada e infalível memória. O propósito de ressuscitá-los é tão certo que eles podem ser considerados como vivos. (Romanos 4:16, 17) Não acha essa explicação da Palavra de Deus maravilhosa? Não é de admirar que 'as multidões ficassem assombradas'! — Mateus 22:33.

[22] Os cristãos hoje têm o privilégio de explicar a Palavra de Deus imitando o exemplo de Jesus. Reconhecemos que não temos uma mente perfeita. Mas muitas vezes temos a oportunidade de ler para as pessoas um texto que elas já conhecem e explicar um ponto em que talvez nunca tenham parado para pensar. Por exemplo, elas talvez tenham repetido a vida inteira as palavras "santificado seja o vosso nome" e "venha a nós o vosso Reino” sem nunca ter aprendido qual é o nome de Deus ou o que é o Seu Reino. (Mateus 6:9, 10, Antônio Pereira de Figueiredo) É maravilhoso quando alguém nos permite dar explicações simples e claras sobre as verdades bíblicas!

23 Citar, defender e explicar a Palavra de Deus são maneiras de imitar o modo como Jesus transmitiu a verdade. No próximo capítulo vamos considerar alguns métodos eficazes que Jesus usou para tocar o coração de seus ouvintes com as verdades bíblicas.

"Nunca homem algum falou como este"

OS FARISEUS estão furiosos, pois Jesus está no templo ensinando sobre seu Pai. Os ouvintes estão divididos; muitos acreditam no que Jesus diz, outros querem que ele seja preso. Não podendo mais conter sua raiva, os líderes religiosos enviam oficiais para prender Jesus. Mas eles retornam de mãos vazias. Os principais sacerdotes e os fariseus exigem uma explicação: "Por que é que não o trouxestes para cá?" Os oficiais respondem: "Nunca homem algum falou como este." Eles ficaram tão impressionados com o ensino de Jesus que não tiveram coragem de prendê-lo.* — João 7:45, 46.

2 Aqueles oficiais não foram os únicos a ficar impressionados com o ensino de Jesus. Multidões ajuntavam-se só para ouvi-lo ensinar. (Marcos 3:7, 9; 4:1; Lucas 5:1-3) Por que Jesus foi um instrutor tão notável? Conforme vimos no Capítulo 8, ele amava as verdades que transmitia e as pessoas a quem ensinava. Também usava métodos de ensino de forma magistral. Vamos considerar três desses métodos práticos e como podemos usá-los.

Simplicidade no ensino

[3] Consegue imaginar o amplo vocabulário que Jesus poderia ter usado? Apesar disso, quando ensinava, sempre usava uma linguagem fácil de entender. Muitos de seus ouvintes eram "indoutos e comuns". (Atos 4:13) Jesus levava em conta as limitações deles, nunca os sobrecarregando com muita informação. (João 16:12) Suas palavras eram simples, mas as verdades que transmitiam eram muito profundas.

[4] Por exemplo, considere o Sermão do Monte, registrado em Mateus 5:3–7:27. Naquele sermão Jesus deu conselhos profundos, que tocavam o âmago das questões. As ideias e as frases não são complicadas. É difícil encontrar ali alguma palavra que até mesmo uma criança não consiga entender. Por isso, não é para menos que, quando Jesus terminou de falar, as multidões — provavelmente incluindo muitos lavradores, pastores e pescadores — tenham 'ficado assombradas com o seu modo de ensinar'. — Mateus 7:28.

3, 4. (a) Por que Jesus usava linguagem simples ao ensinar? (b) Como o Sermão do Monte é um exemplo da simplicidade com que Jesus ensinava?

[5] Ao ensinar, Jesus geralmente usava frases simples e curtas, mas cheias de significado. Desse modo, numa época muito anterior aos livros impressos, sua mensagem ficava bem gravada na mente e no coração de seus ouvintes. Veja alguns exemplos: "Parai de julgar, para que não sejais julgados." "As pessoas com saúde não precisam de médico, mas sim os enfermos." 'O espírito está ansioso, mas a carne é fraca.' 'Pagai a César as coisas de César, mas a Deus as coisas de Deus.' "Há mais felicidade em dar do que há em receber."* (Mateus 7:1; 9:12; 26:41; Marcos 12:17; Atos 20:35) Essas palavras são lembradas até hoje, quase 2 mil anos após terem sido proferidas.

* Essa última declaração, registrada em Atos 20:35, é citada apenas pelo apóstolo Paulo. Pode ser que ele a tenha ouvido de alguém que estava presente quando Jesus a proferiu ou do próprio Jesus após sua ressurreição. Outra possibilidade é que ele a tenha recebido por revelação divina.

5. Cite exemplos de frases de Jesus que, embora simples, são cheias de significado.

[6] Como podemos ensinar com simplicidade? É importante usarmos linguagem simples, que a maioria das pessoas consiga entender de imediato. As verdades básicas da Palavra de Deus não são complicadas. Jeová revelou seus propósitos aos de coração sincero e humilde. (1 Coríntios 1:26-28) Palavras simples e bem escolhidas podem transmitir eficazmente as verdades da Palavra de Deus.

[7] Para ensinar com simplicidade precisamos tomar cuidado para não sobrecarregar o estudante da Bíblia com muitas informações. Assim, ao dirigir um estudo bíblico, não é necessário explicar todos os detalhes nem estudar depressa a matéria como se o mais importante fosse cobrir certo número de páginas. É melhor que o ritmo do estudo se adapte às necessidades e habilidades do estudante. Nosso objetivo é ajudá-lo a se tornar seguidor de Cristo e adorador de Jeová. Para isso, precisamos usar o tempo que for necessário para ele entender razoavelmente bem o que está estudando. Só então a verdade bíblica tocará seu coração e o motivará a pôr em prática o que aprende. — Romanos 12:2.

Perguntas apropriadas

[8] Jesus fez uso notável de perguntas, mesmo quando teria sido mais rápido simplesmente dizer ao ouvinte qual era o ponto em questão. Por que, então, ele fazia perguntas? Às vezes para expor a motivação de seus opositores, deixando-os sem resposta. (Mateus 21:23-27; 22:41-46) Mas, em muitos casos, Jesus fez perguntas para saber o que seus discípulos pensavam e para estimular o raciocínio deles. Assim, ele fazia perguntas do tipo: "O que você acha?" "Acredita nisso?" (Mateus 18:12; João 11:26) As perguntas que Jesus fazia tocavam o coração dos discípulos. Vamos ver um exemplo.

[9] Em certa ocasião, cobradores de impostos perguntaram a Pedro se Jesus pagava o imposto do templo.* Pedro foi logo respondendo que sim. Jesus

* Os judeus tinham de pagar um imposto anual de duas dracmas para o templo, o equivalente a mais ou menos o salário de dois dias de trabalho. Uma obra de referência diz: "Esse imposto era usado principalmente para custear as despesas da oferta queimada diária e de todos os sacrifícios feitos em nome do povo."

8, 9. (a) Por que Jesus fazia perguntas? (b) Como Jesus fez perguntas para ajudar Pedro a chegar à conclusão correta sobre o assunto de pagar o imposto do templo?

depois raciocinou com ele: “O que achas, Simão? De quem recebem os reis da terra os direitos ou o imposto por cabeça? Dos seus filhos ou dos estranhos?” Pedro respondeu: “Dos estranhos.” Jesus disse: “Realmente, então, os filhos estão isentos de impostos.” (Mateus 17:24-27) O ponto em questão sem dúvida era óbvio para Pedro, pois todos sabiam que os membros da família real eram isentos de impostos. Portanto, como Filho unigênito do Rei celestial que era adorado no templo, Jesus não estava sob a obrigação de pagar o imposto. Em vez de simplesmente dizer a Pedro a resposta certa, Jesus, com tato, fez perguntas para ajudá-lo a chegar à conclusão correta e talvez perceber a necessidade de pensar melhor antes de responder.

10 Como podemos fazer bom uso de perguntas em nosso ministério? Na pregação de casa em casa, podemos usar perguntas para despertar interesse. Isso talvez abra oportunidades para falarmos sobre as boas novas. Por exemplo, se uma pessoa de mais idade nos atender, podemos perguntar de modo respeitoso: “Acha que o mundo mudou muito ao longo de sua vida?” Após ouvir a resposta, poderemos perguntar: “O que acha que seria necessário para tornar este mundo um lugar melhor para viver?” (Mateus 6:9, 10) Caso uma mãe com filhos pequenos nos atenda, podemos dizer: “Já se perguntou como será este mundo quando seus filhos tiverem crescido?” (Salmo 37:10, 11) Por sermos observadores quando chegamos numa casa, talvez consigamos fazer uma pergunta sobre um assunto que interessa ao morador.

10. Como podemos fazer bom uso de perguntas ao pregar de casa em casa?

11 Como podemos fazer bom uso de perguntas ao dirigir um estudo bíblico? Perguntas bem escolhidas podem nos ajudar a descobrir o que o estudante tem no coração. (Provérbios 20:5) Por exemplo, digamos que você esteja estudando o capítulo “Como viver de um modo que agrade a Deus”, no livro O Que a Bíblia Realmente Ensina?.* Esse capítulo explica o conceito de Deus a respeito de assuntos como imoralidade sexual, embriaguez e mentira. As respostas do estudan-te talvez indiquem que ele entende o que a Bíblia ensina, mas será que ele concorda com o que está aprendendo? Podemos perguntar: "Acha razoável o conceito de Deus sobre esses assuntos?" Também poderíamos perguntar: "Como você pode pôr em prática essas informações?" Mas lembre-se de que é necessário ter tato ao fazer perguntas, mostrando respeito pelo estudante. Nunca devemos fazer perguntas que o deixem constrangido. — Provérbios 12:18.

Lógica irrefutável

[12] Com sua inteligência perfeita, Jesus raciocinava com outros de modo magistral. Às vezes ele empregava a lógica para refutar as acusações falsas de seus opositores. Em muitas ocasiões, ele usou argumentos convincentes para ensinar lições importantes a seus seguidores. Vejamos alguns exemplos.

[13] Quando Jesus curou um homem cego, mudo e que estava possuído por um demônio, os fariseus disseram: "Este não expulsa os demônios senão por meio de Belzebu [Satanás], o governante dos demônios." Eles admitiram que era necessário poder sobre-humano para expulsar demônios, mas disseram que o poder de Jesus vinha de Satanás. Além de ser falsa, a acusação também não tinha lógica. Expondo o raciocínio errado deles, Jesus respondeu: “Todo reino dividido contra si mesmo cai em desolação, e toda cidade ou casa dividida contra si mesma não permanece. Do mesmo modo, se Satanás expulsa a Satanás, ele ficou dividido contra si mesmo; como permanecerá então o seu reino?” (Mateus 12:22-26) Era como se Jesus estivesse dizendo: “Se eu fosse agente de Satanás, desfazendo o que ele fez, então ele estaria trabalhando contra os seus próprios interesses e logo fracassaria.” Como os fariseus poderiam negar algo tão lógico?

14 Jesus continuou raciocinando com eles. Sabendo que alguns discípulos dos fariseus também expulsavam demônios, Jesus fez uma pergunta simples, mas poderosa: “Se eu expulso os demônios por meio de Belzebu, por meio de quem os expulsam os vossos filhos [ou discípulos]?” (Mateus 12:27) Basicamente, o argumento de Jesus era: “Se eu expulso demônios com o poder de Satanás, então seus discípulos devem estar usando esse mesmo poder.” O que os fariseus podiam falar? Eles nunca reconheceriam que seus discípulos agiam sob o poder de Satanás. Desse modo, Jesus usou o próprio argumento errado deles para fazê-los chegar a uma conclusão que os deixou incomodados. Não é emocionante ler a respeito de como Jesus raciocinou com eles? Imagine, então, as multidões que ouviram Jesus pessoalmente; sua presença e seu tom de voz com certeza davam mais força às suas palavras.

15 Jesus também usava raciocínio lógico e convincente para ensinar verdades animadoras sobre seu Pai. Ele fez isso muitas vezes usando a expressão "quanto mais". Essa técnica ajuda os ouvintes a ter uma convicção ainda mais forte a respeito de um assunto a partir de um fato que já conhecem bem.* Esse tipo de argumentação, baseada em contraste, pode causar um profundo efeito nas pessoas. Vamos considerar apenas dois exemplos.

16 Respondendo ao pedido de seus discípulos para que lhes ensinasse a orar, Jesus falou da disposição de pais humanos imperfeitos de “dar boas dádivas” a seus filhos. Daí concluiu: “Se vós, embora iníquos, sabeis dar boas dádivas a vossos filhos, quanto mais o Pai, no céu, dará espírito santo aos que lhe pedirem!” (Lucas 11:1-13) O raciocínio de Jesus baseava-se num contraste. Se pais humanos pecadores cuidam das necessidades de seus filhos, quanto mais o nosso Pai celestial, que é perfeito e justo em todos os sentidos! Com certeza ele dará espírito santo a seus adoradores leais que humildemente se achegarem a ele em oração.

* Esse tipo de argumentação é às vezes chamado de "a fortiori", uma expressão em latim que significa "com razão mais convincente; com muito mais motivo; com mais forte razão".

15-17. Dê um exemplo de como Jesus usou a expressão "quanto mais" para ensinar verdades animadoras sobre seu Pai.

17 Jesus usou uma linha de raciocínio semelhante ao dar bons conselhos sobre como lidar com ansiedades. Ele disse: “Os corvos nem semeiam nem ceifam, e . . . não têm nem palheiro nem celeiro, contudo, Deus os alimenta. De quanto mais valor sois vós do que as aves? Notai bem como os lírios crescem; eles nem labutam nem fiam . . . Então, se Deus reveste assim a vegetação do campo, que hoje existe e amanhã é lançada no forno, quanto mais vestirá ele antes a vós, ó vós com pouca fé!” (Lucas 12:24, 27, 28) Se Jeová cuida das aves e das flores, quanto mais dos humanos que o amam e o adoram! Com esse raciocínio Jesus sem dúvida tocou o coração de seus ouvintes.

18 No nosso ministério, devemos usar lógica bem fundamentada para refutar crenças falsas. Também precisamos usar argumentos convincentes para ensinar verdades animadoras sobre Jeová. (Atos 19:8; 28:23, 24) Será que precisamos aprender a usar lógica complicada? De forma alguma. A lição que aprendemos de Jesus é que os argumentos lógicos usados de modo simples são os mais eficazes.

19 Por exemplo, como poderíamos responder a alguém que diz que não acredita em um Deus a quem não consegue ver? Podemos raciocinar com base na lei natural de causa e efeito. Quando vemos um efeito, reconhecemos que tem de haver uma causa. Poderíamos dizer: "Se você estivesse num lugar isolado e se deparasse com uma casa bem construída e com um estoque de alimentos (efeito), não reconheceria de imediato que alguém (uma causa) deve ser responsável por tudo que há ali? Portanto, quando vemos o óbvio projeto da natureza e a grande quantidade de alimentos guardados na 'despensa' da Terra (efeito), não faz sentido concluir que Alguém (uma Causa) é responsável pela existência de tudo isso? A própria Bíblia usa uma linha de raciocínio similar: 'Cada casa é construída por alguém, mas quem construiu todas as coisas é Deus.'" (Hebreus 3:4) É claro que não importa quão bem fundamentados sejam os nossos argumentos, não conseguiremos convencer todas as pessoas. — 2 Tessalonicenses 3:2.

18, 19. Como podemos raciocinar com alguém que diz que não acredita num Deus a quem não consegue ver?

[20] Ao ensinarmos, tanto no ministério de campo como na congregação, podemos usar também a expressão "quanto mais" para destacar as qualidades e os modos de agir de Jeová. Por exemplo, para mostrar que a doutrina do tormento eterno num inferno de fogo na realidade desonra a Jeová, poderíamos dizer: "Que pai amoroso puniria seu filho pondo a mão dele no fogo? Quanto mais repugnante deve ser para o nosso amoroso Pai celestial a ideia de um inferno de fogo!" (Jeremias 7:31) A fim de ajudar um irmão deprimido a ver que Jeová realmente o ama, podemos dizer: "Se Jeová considera valioso até um pequenino pardal, quanto mais amor e carinho ele deve ter por seus adoradores terrestres individualmente, incluindo você!" (Mateus 10:29-31) Esses argumentos podem nos ajudar a tocar o coração de outros.

[21] Depois de analisar apenas três dos métodos de ensino de Jesus, é fácil entender que aqueles oficiais que não prenderam Jesus não estavam exagerando quando disseram: "Nunca homem algum falou como este." No próximo capítulo, vamos considerar o método de ensino pelo qual Jesus talvez seja mais conhecido: o uso de ilustrações.

“Nada lhes falava sem ilustração”

OS DISCÍPULOS que viajam com Jesus têm uma oportunidade sem igual. Eles aprendem diretamente do Grande Instrutor. Podem ouvir de primeira mão Jesus esclarecer a Palavra de Deus e ensinar verdades maravilhosas. Por enquanto eles têm de guardar suas valiosas palavras na mente e no coração, pois ainda não chegou o tempo de registrá-las.* Mas Jesus faz algo que ajuda seus discípulos a se lembrar do que ele lhes diz. O quê? Ele ensina usando ilustrações de modo magistral.

[2] De fato, dificilmente esquecemos boas ilustrações. Certo escritor disse que as ilustrações “transformam ouvidos em olhos e permitem que os ouvintes visualizem a mensagem”. Visto que em geral pensamos melhor com a ajuda de imagens, as ilustrações podem fa-

* Tudo indica que o primeiro relato inspirado sobre a vida terrestre de Jesus tenha sido o Evangelho de Mateus, escrito cerca de oito anos após sua morte.

zer com que até mesmo ideias abstratas sejam mais fáceis de entender. Elas dão vida às palavras, ensinando lições que ficam gravadas na mente.

[3] Nenhum instrutor humano usou ilustrações com tanta habilidade como Jesus Cristo. Até hoje, suas ilustrações são facilmente lembradas. Por que Jesus recorria com frequência a esse método de ensino? O que tornava suas ilustrações tão eficazes? Como podemos aprender a usar esse método de ensino?

Por que Jesus ensinava usando ilustrações

[4] A Bíblia mostra que Jesus usava ilustrações por duas razões principais. Primeiro, isso cumpria profecias. Lemos em Mateus 13:34, 35: "Jesus [falou] às multidões por meio de ilustrações. Deveras, nada lhes falava sem ilustração; para que se cumprisse o que fora dito por intermédio do profeta, que disse: 'Abrirei a boca com ilustrações.'" O profeta mencionado por Mateus era o escritor do Salmo 78:2. O salmista escreveu essas palavras sob inspiração do espírito de Deus séculos antes do nascimento de Jesus. Pense no que isso significa. Com centenas de anos de antecedência, Jeová havia determinado que o Messias ensinaria por meio de ilustrações. Portanto, Jeová com certeza deve dar muito valor a esse método de ensino.

---

4, 5. Por que Jesus usava ilustrações?

[5] Segundo, Jesus explicou que usava ilustrações para identificar aqueles cujo coração havia "ficado embotado". (Mateus 13:10-15; Isaías 6:9, 10) Como suas ilustrações expunham a motivação das pessoas? Em alguns casos, Jesus queria que seus ouvintes pedissem explicações para poderem entender plenamente o que ele dizia. Os humildes estavam dispostos a pedir mais explicações, os orgulhosos e indiferentes, não. (Mateus 13:36; Marcos 4:34) Assim, as ilustrações de Jesus revelavam a verdade aos que ansiavam por ela; ao mesmo tempo, suas ilustrações escondiam a verdade dos que eram orgulhosos.

[6] As ilustrações de Jesus também eram úteis em muitos outros sentidos. Elas despertavam o interesse das pessoas, motivando-as a escutar. Criavam quadros mentais fáceis de entender. Conforme mencionado no início deste capítulo, as ilustrações de Jesus ajudavam os ouvintes a lembrar-se do que ele dizia. O Sermão do Monte, registrado em Mateus 5:3–7:27, é um ótimo exemplo de como Jesus usava muitas ilustrações. Segundo uma contagem, esse sermão tem mais de 50 figuras de linguagem. Para ter uma ideia, lembre-se de que o Sermão do Monte pode ser lido em voz alta em cerca de 20 minutos. Nesse caso, em média uma figura de linguagem é mencionada aproximadamente a cada 20 segundos! Não há dúvida de que Jesus reconhecia as vantagens de usar ilustrações!

[7] Como seguidores de Cristo, queremos imitar seu modo de ensinar, incluindo o uso de ilustrações. Assim como os temperos deixam um alimento mais saboroso, boas ilustrações podem tornar nosso ensino mais agradável. Ilustrações bem pensadas também podem fazer com que verdades importantes fiquem mais fáceis de entender. Agora vamos ver em mais detalhes alguns fatores que fizeram com que as ilustrações de Jesus fossem tão eficazes. Com isso entenderemos melhor como fazer bom uso desse valioso método de ensino.

Comparações simples

[8] Ao ensinar, Jesus muitas vezes usava comparações simples, expressas em poucas palavras. Mas essas

---

7. Por que é bom usarmos ilustrações assim como Jesus?

8, 9. Como Jesus fez uso de comparações simples, e o que tornava suas comparações tão eficazes?

palavras simples criavam vívidos quadros mentais e ensinavam com clareza importantes verdades espirituais. Por exemplo, ao incentivar seus discípulos a não estar ansiosos pelas necessidades diárias, Jesus mencionou "as aves do céu" e os "lírios do campo". As aves não semeiam nem colhem, os lírios não fiam nem tecem. Mesmo assim, Deus cuida deles. É fácil entender o ponto, ou seja, se Deus cuida das aves e das flores, com certeza cuidará das pessoas que 'persistirem em buscar primeiro o reino'. — Mateus 6:26, 28-33.

9 Jesus também fez amplo uso de metáforas, comparações que têm ainda mais força. Uma metáfora refere-se a uma coisa como se fosse outra. Também nesse caso, Jesus usava comparações simples. Em certa ocasião, ele disse a seus discípulos: "Vós sois a luz do mundo." Os discípulos podiam facilmente entender essa metáfora, ou seja, por meio de suas palavras e ações eles podiam deixar brilhar a luz da verdade espiritual e ajudar outros a glorificar a Deus. (Mateus 5:14-16) Veja mais algumas metáforas usadas por Jesus: "Vós sois o sal da terra." "Eu sou a videira, vós sois os ramos." (Mateus 5:13; João 15:5) Apesar de serem simples, essas figuras de linguagem causam um profundo impacto.

[10] Ao ensinar, como você pode usar ilustrações? Não é necessário inventar histórias longas e detalhadas. Apenas tente pensar em comparações simples. Digamos que você esteja considerando o assunto da ressurreição e queira ilustrar que trazer os mortos de volta à vida não é problema para Jeová. Que comparação lhe vem à mente? A Bíblia usa o sono como uma metáfora para a morte. Você poderia dizer: "Deus pode ressuscitar os mortos com a mesma facilidade com que nós podemos acordar alguém que está dormindo." (João 11:11-14) Agora imagine que você queira ilustrar que as crianças precisam de amor e afeição para desenvolver-se bem. Que exemplo poderia usar? A Bíblia faz a seguinte comparação: os filhos são "como mudas de oliveiras". (Salmo 128:3) Você poderia dizer: "Os filhos precisam de amor e afeição assim como uma planta precisa de sol e água." Quanto mais simples for a comparação, mais fácil será para os ouvintes entenderem o ponto.

10. Quais são alguns exemplos que mostram como você pode usar ilustrações ao ensinar?

Ilustrações baseadas no dia a dia

[11] Jesus fazia bom uso de ilustrações relacionadas à vida das pessoas. Muitas de suas ilustrações se baseavam em circunstâncias do dia a dia que ele provavelmente havia observado enquanto crescia na Galileia. Pense um pouco na infância de Jesus. Imagine quantas vezes ele deve ter visto sua mãe moer cereais para fazer farinha, pôr fermento numa massa, acender uma lâmpada ou varrer a casa. (Mateus 13:33; 24:41; Lucas 15:8) Ele também deve ter observado muitas vezes os pescadores lançarem suas redes no mar da Galileia. (Mateus 13:47) E frequentemente deve ter visto crianças brincando na feira. (Mateus 11:16) Jesus sem dúvida deve ter observado outras coisas comuns que são mencionadas em muitas de suas ilustrações, tais como o plantio de sementes, alegres festas de casamento e campos de cereais amadurecendo ao sol. — Mateus 13:3-8; 25:1-12; Marcos 4:26-29.

[12] Nas suas ilustrações Jesus mencionava detalhes que seus ouvintes conheciam bem. Por exemplo, ele

11. Cite exemplos de como as ilustrações de Jesus se baseavam em coisas que ele sem dúvida havia observado durante sua infância na Galileia.
12, 13. Na parábola do bom samaritano, por que é significativo que Jesus tenha mencionado a estrada que ia "de Jerusalém para Jericó"?

iniciou a parábola do bom samaritano dizendo: "Certo homem descia de Jerusalém para Jericó e caiu entre salteadores, que tanto o despojaram como lhe infligiram golpes, . . . deixando-o semimorto." (Lucas 10:30) É interessante notar que Jesus mencionou a estrada que ia "de Jerusalém para Jericó". Quando contou essa parábola ele estava na Judeia, não muito longe de Jerusalém; portanto, seus ouvintes com certeza conheciam aquela estrada. Ela era perigosa, especialmente para alguém que estivesse viajando sozinho. Por ser uma estrada cheia de curvas e passar por uma região desabitada, havia muitos lugares onde ladrões podiam esconder-se.

[13] Jesus incluiu outros detalhes conhecidos sobre a estrada que ia "de Jerusalém para Jericó". Segundo a parábola, um sacerdote e depois um levita também passaram por aquela estrada, mas nenhum deles parou para ajudar a vítima. (Lucas 10:31, 32) Os sacerdotes serviam no templo em Jerusalém e os levitas eram seus ajudantes. Muitos deles moravam em Jericó quando não estavam a serviço no templo; Jericó ficava apenas a uns 23 quilômetros de Jerusalém. Por isso, era comum sacerdotes e levitas passarem por aquela estrada.

Note também que Jesus disse que o viajante "descia" — não subia — a estrada "de Jerusalém". Isso fazia sentido para seus ouvintes. Jerusalém era uma cidade mais alta do que Jericó. Desse modo, quando viajava "de Jerusalém para Jericó", o viajante realmente 'descia'.* Fica claro que, ao usar ilustrações, Jesus pensava em seus ouvintes.

14 Ao usarmos ilustrações, também precisamos levar em conta os ouvintes. Que fatores a respeito deles podem influir na nossa escolha de ilustrações? Talvez precisemos considerar fatores como idade, cultura, criação e profissão. Por exemplo, uma ilustração que mencione detalhes sobre agricultura talvez seja mais facilmente entendida numa área rural do que numa cidade grande. O dia a dia e as atividades de nossos ouvintes — seus filhos, sua casa, seus hobbies, o que comem — também podem ser fonte de boas ilustrações.

* Jesus também disse que o sacerdote e o levita estavam vindo "de Jerusalém", ou seja, voltando do templo. Assim, ninguém podia justificar a indiferença deles por dizer que se desviaram do homem que parecia estar morto porque não queriam ficar impuros, o que temporariamente os impediria de servir no templo. — Levítico 21:1; Números 19:16.

14. Ao usarmos ilustrações, como podemos ter em mente os nossos ouvintes?

Ilustrações baseadas na criação

[15] Muitas ilustrações de Jesus revelam seu conhecimento da natureza, incluindo plantas, animais e o clima. (Mateus 16:2, 3; Lucas 12:24, 27) Como ele adquiriu esse conhecimento? Enquanto crescia na Galileia, ele sem dúvida teve muitas oportunidades para observar a criação. Ainda mais importante, Jesus é "o primogênito de toda a criação" e o "mestre de obras" de Jeová na criação de todas as coisas. (Colossenses 1:15, 16; Provérbios 8:30, 31) É de admirar que Jesus conhecesse tão bem a criação? Vamos ver como ele habilmente tirou proveito desse conhecimento.

[16] Lembre-se de que Jesus disse que ele era "o pastor excelente", e seus seguidores "as ovelhas". Essas palavras mostram que ele conhecia muito bem as características das ovelhas. Sabia que havia um vínculo especial entre os pastores e as ovelhas. Ele percebia que esses animais dóceis facilmente aceitam ser guiados e são fiéis em seguir seu pastor. Por que as ovelhas seguem seu pastor? "Porque conhecem a sua voz", disse

16, 17. (a) O que mostra que Jesus conhecia muito bem as características das ovelhas? (b) Que exemplo mostra que as ovelhas realmente conhecem a voz do seu pastor?

Jesus. (João 10:2-4, 11) Será que as ovelhas realmente conhecem a voz do seu pastor?

[17] Por experiência própria, George A. Smith escreveu em seu livro The Historical Geography of the Holy Land (A Geografia Histórica da Terra Santa): "Às vezes descansávamos ao meio-dia, ao lado de um daqueles poços da Judeia, aos quais descem três ou quatro pastores com os seus rebanhos. As ovelhas se misturavam, e nós nos perguntávamos como cada pastor conseguiria separar seu rebanho. Mas depois de as ovelhas terem tomado água e brincado, os pastores subiam as diferentes encostas do vale um por um, e cada um fazia a sua chamada peculiar. As ovelhas de cada pastor se separavam do grupo, seguindo seu próprio pastor, e os rebanhos iam embora tão ordeiramente como tinham vindo." Jesus encontrou uma ótima ilustração para ensinar o que queria, ou seja, se reconhecermos seus ensinamentos, obedecermos a eles e seguirmos sua liderança, estaremos sob os cuidados do "pastor excelente".

[18] Como podemos aprender a usar ilustrações baseadas na criação? Características notáveis dos animais podem ser usadas para comparações simples, porém práticas. Onde podemos encontrar informações sobre as criações de Jeová? A Bíblia é uma rica fonte de conhecimento sobre muitos animais e, às vezes, usa suas características de modo ilustrativo. Ela faz referência a ser veloz como uma gazela ou um leopardo, cauteloso como uma serpente e inocente como uma pomba.* (1 Crônicas 12:8; Habacuque 1:8; Mateus 10:16) As revistas A Sentinela e Despertai! e outras publicações produzidas pelas Testemunhas de Jeová também são boas fontes de informação. Você pode aprender muito por notar como essas publicações usam comparações simples baseadas nas muitas criações maravilhosas de Jeová.

18. Onde podemos encontrar informações sobre as criações de Jeová?

Ilustrações baseadas em exemplos conhecidos

19 Também podemos fazer ilustrações baseando-nos em exemplos da vida real. Certa vez, Jesus mencionou um acidente recente em seus dias para expor como falsa a ideia de que as pessoas merecem as tragédias que sofrem. Ele disse: “Aqueles dezoito, sobre os quais caiu a torre de Siloé, matando-os, imaginais que eles se mostraram maiores devedores [pecadores] do que todos os outros homens que habitam em Jerusalém?" (Lucas 13:4) De fato, aquelas 18 pessoas não morreram por causa de algum pecado que tivesse resultado no desfavor de Deus. Sua morte trágica foi resultado 'do tempo e do imprevisto'. (Eclesiastes 9:11) Assim, Jesus desmentiu uma crença falsa usando um acontecimento bem conhecido de seus ouvintes.

20 Ao ensinar, como podemos usar exemplos da vida real? Digamos que você esteja falando sobre o cumprimento da profecia de Jesus a respeito do sinal da Sua presença. (Mateus 24:3-14) Você pode citar notícias recentes sobre guerras, fomes ou terremotos para mostrar que características específicas do sinal mencionado por Jesus estão se cumprindo. Ou imagine que você queira usar um caso real a fim de ilustrar as mudanças que precisam ser feitas para se revestir da nova personalidade. (Efésios 4:20-24) Onde poderia encontrar uma história da vida real que inclua esse ponto? Poderá citar as mudanças que diversos irmãos precisaram fazer ou usar um relato mencionado em alguma publicação das Testemunhas de Jeová.

21 Jesus realmente foi o Instrutor Magistral! Conforme vimos nesta seção, 'ensinar e pregar as boas novas' era a principal obra de sua vida. (Mateus 4:23) E é também a nossa. Ser bom instrutor é muito gratificante. Quando ensinamos, estamos dando a outros, e isso resulta em felicidade. (Atos 20:35) Essa felicidade é a alegria de saber que estamos transmitindo a outros algo que tem valor real e duradouro — a verdade sobre Jeová. Também podemos ter a satisfação que vem de saber que estamos seguindo o exemplo de Jesus, o maior Instrutor que já viveu na Terra.

"O AMOR DE CRISTO NOS COMPELE"

O que nos motiva a continuar seguindo a Jesus? O apóstolo Paulo responde: "O amor de Cristo nos compele." (2 Coríntios 5:14) Esta seção falará sobre o amor de Jesus por Jeová, pela humanidade e por nós individualmente. É um estudo que toca nosso coração e nos motiva a agir, a imitar cada vez mais o exemplo de nosso Mestre.

CAPÍTULO 13

“Eu amo o Pai”

COM a mente cheia de lembranças, um homem idoso mergulha uma pena num tinteiro. Seu nome é João, o último apóstolo vivo de Jesus Cristo. Com aproximadamente 100 anos de idade, João está pensando numa noite inesquecível há cerca de sete décadas — os últimos momentos que Jesus passou com seus apóstolos antes de morrer. Com a ajuda do espírito santo de Deus, João consegue lembrar e registrar em detalhes o que aconteceu naquela noite.

2 Naquela ocasião Jesus deixou claro que seria morto dali a algumas horas. Apenas João revela por que Jesus disse que se sujeitaria àquela morte terrível: “A fim de que o mundo saiba que eu amo o Pai, assim como o Pai me tem dado mandamento, assim faço. Levantai-vos, vamos embora daqui.” — João 14:31.

3 “Eu amo o Pai.” Para Jesus nada era mais importante do que esse amor. Isso não significa que ele ficava sempre repetindo que amava o Pai. Na verdade,

1, 2. O que o apóstolo João revelou sobre os últimos momentos que Jesus passou com os apóstolos antes de sua morte?
3. Como Jesus demonstrou que amava seu Pai?

João 14:31 é o único texto bíblico que menciona Jesus expressando amor pelo Pai de modo tão direto. O fato é que Jesus viveu segundo essas palavras. Seu amor por Jeová era evidente no seu dia a dia. Sua coragem, obediência e perseverança eram evidência de que ele amava a Deus. Também foi esse amor que o motivou a realizar o seu ministério.

4 Hoje em dia, alguns talvez achem que o amor é uma qualidade fraca. Talvez pensem em canções e poemas que falam de amor, ou até na frivolidade que às vezes está relacionada ao amor romântico. A Bíblia também fala sobre o amor romântico, mas de modo mais digno do que a forma em que geralmente é apresentado hoje. (Provérbios 5:15-21) No entanto, a Palavra de Deus fala muito mais de um outro tipo de amor. Esse amor não é apenas uma paixão ou emoção passageira; nem alguma filosofia intelectual e fria. Envolve tanto o coração como a mente. É um amor que vem do íntimo e é governado por princípios nobres. Além disso, é demonstrado por meio de boas ações. É tudo menos frívolo. A Palavra de Deus diz: "O amor nunca falha." — 1 Coríntios 13:8.

4, 5. A Bíblia dá destaque a que tipo de amor, e o que podemos dizer sobre o amor de Jesus por Jeová?

[5] De todos os humanos que já viveram, Jesus foi o que mais amou a Jeová. Ele disse que o maior de todos os mandamentos divinos é: "Tens de amar a Jeová, teu Deus, de todo o teu coração, e de toda a tua alma, e de toda a tua mente, e de toda a tua força." (Marcos 12:30) Ninguém cumpriu melhor essas palavras do que Jesus. Como ele cultivou esse amor? Como manteve forte seu amor por Deus durante o tempo em que permaneceu na Terra? E como podemos imitá-lo?

O mais forte e antigo vínculo de amor

[6] Já realizou alguma tarefa junto com um amigo? Percebeu que sua amizade ficou mais achegada por causa disso? Essa experiência agradável pode ajudá-lo a ter uma ideia do amor que se desenvolveu entre Jeová e seu Filho unigênito. Já citamos Provérbios 8:30 algumas vezes, mas vamos analisar mais detalhadamente esse versículo no seu contexto. Do versículo 22 ao 31, encontramos uma descrição inspirada da sabedoria personificada. Como sabemos que essas palavras se referem ao Filho de Deus?

6, 7. Como sabemos que Provérbios 8:22-31 descreve o Filho de Deus e não apenas a sabedoria?

[7] No versículo 22, a sabedoria diz: "O próprio Jeová me produziu como princípio do seu caminho, a mais antiga das suas realizações de há muito." Aqui, deve-se estar referindo a algo mais do que a sabedoria, porque essa qualidade nunca foi 'produzida'. Ela nunca teve um início, pois Jeová sempre existiu e sempre foi sábio. (Salmo 90:2) O Filho de Deus, porém, foi "o primogênito de toda a criação". Ele foi produzido, ou criado; ele é a mais antiga de todas as realizações de Jeová. (Colossenses 1:15) O Filho já existia antes da Terra e do céu, conforme descrito em Provérbios. Como a Palavra, ou o Porta-Voz do próprio Jeová, ele era a expressão perfeita da sabedoria de Jeová. — João 1:1.

[8] O que o Filho fez durante seu longo tempo de vida antes de vir à Terra? O versículo 30 diz que ele estava ao lado de Deus, "como mestre de obras". O que significa isso? Colossenses 1:16 explica: "Mediante ele foram criadas todas as outras coisas nos céus e na terra . . . Todas as outras coisas foram criadas por intermédio dele e para ele." Assim, Jeová, o Criador, trouxe à existência todas as outras criações por meio de seu Filho, o Mestre de Obras — das criaturas espirituais nos céus ao imenso Universo físico, da Terra e sua extraordinária variedade de plantas e animais à criação terrestre mais importante: o ser humano. De certo modo, podemos comparar esse trabalho em equipe entre Pai e Filho à cooperação que há entre um arquiteto e um construtor. O construtor é alguém especializado em executar os projetos engenhosos do arquiteto. Quando ficamos impressionados com algum aspecto da criação, na verdade estamos louvando o Grande Arquiteto. (Salmo 19:1) Mas podemos nos lembrar também do longo e feliz trabalho em equipe entre o Criador e o seu "mestre de obras".

8. O que o Filho fez durante sua existência pré-humana, e do que podemos nos lembrar ao admirar a criação?

[9] Quando dois humanos imperfeitos trabalham juntos, às vezes surgem dificuldades de relacionamento. Isso não aconteceu entre Jeová e seu Filho. O Filho trabalhou com o Pai durante incontáveis eras e 'regozijava-se perante ele todo o tempo'. (Provérbios 8:30) Ele tinha prazer na companhia do Pai, que por sua vez apreciava a companhia do Filho. Naturalmente, o Filho tornou-se cada vez mais parecido com o Pai, aprendendo a imitar as Suas qualidades. Assim, não é de admirar que o vínculo entre Pai e Filho tenha se tornado tão forte! Pode ser apropriadamente considerado o mais forte e antigo vínculo de amor de todo o Universo.

9, 10. (a) O que fortaleceu o vínculo de amor entre Jeová e seu Filho? (b) O que pode fortalecer seu vínculo de amor com seu Pai celestial?

10 Mas qual a importância disso para nós? Talvez você ache que nunca conseguirá cultivar esse vínculo com Jeová. De fato, ninguém tem uma posição tão elevada quanto à do Filho. No entanto, temos uma oportunidade maravilhosa. Lembre-se de que Jesus se achegou mais ao Pai por trabalhar junto com Ele. Jeová amorosamente nos oferece a oportunidade de ser seus "colaboradores". (1 Coríntios 3:9) Ao passo que seguimos o exemplo de Jesus no ministério, devemos sempre ter em mente que somos colaboradores de Deus. Assim, o vínculo de amor que nos une a Jeová fica cada vez mais forte. Pode haver privilégio maior do que esse?

Como Jesus manteve forte seu amor por Jeová

11 Pensar no amor como algo vivo pode ser de muita ajuda. Assim como uma planta, o amor precisa de

---

11-13. (a) Por que é de ajuda pensar no amor como algo vivo, e como Jesus manteve forte seu amor por Jeová quando era jovem? (b) Como o Filho de Deus mostrou que tinha interesse em aprender de Jeová antes de vir à Terra e depois, como homem?

nutrição e cuidados para crescer e desenvolver-se. Sem cuidados e nutrição, o amor enfraquece e morre. Jesus não considerava seu amor por Jeová como algo de pouca importância. Ele o manteve forte e o desenvolveu durante o tempo em que esteve na Terra. Vamos ver como ele fez isso.

[12] Pense novamente na ocasião em que Jesus era jovem e expressou seu ponto de vista quando estava no templo em Jerusalém. Lembre-se do que ele disse a seus pais, que haviam ficado preocupados: "Por que tivestes de ir à minha procura? Não sabíeis que eu tenho de estar na casa de meu Pai?" (Lucas 2:49) Quando era criança, Jesus evidentemente ainda não tinha nenhuma lembrança de sua existência pré-humana. Mesmo assim, o amor que tinha por seu Pai, Jeová, era muito forte. Ele sabia que o modo natural de expressar esse amor era por meio da adoração. Assim, a casa de adoração pura de seu Pai era o lugar onde ele mais queria estar. Ele não via a hora de estar lá, e não gostava de ir embora. Além disso, Jesus não ficava apenas assistindo passivamente o que ocorria ali. Ele gostava muito de aprender sobre Jeová e falar sobre o que sabia. Esses sentimentos não surgiram quando ele tinha 12 anos, nem acabaram quando ele ficou mais velho.

[13] O Filho aprendeu de seu Pai durante sua existência pré-humana. A profecia registrada em Isaías 50:4-6 revela que Jeová deu instrução específica a seu Filho sobre seu papel como Messias. Embora isso envolvesse ficar sabendo que o Ungido de Jeová passaria por algumas dificuldades, o Filho queria muito aprender. Mais tarde, quando Jesus veio à Terra e tornou-se adulto, ainda tinha prazer em ir à casa de seu Pai e participar na adoração e na instrução que Jeová desejava que fosse dada ali. A Bíblia relata que Jesus comparecia fielmente ao templo e à sinagoga. (Lucas 4:16; 19:47) Se queremos que nosso amor por Jeová continue vivo e cada vez mais forte, precisamos ser diligentes em assistir às reuniões cristãs, onde adoramos a Jeová e aprofundamos nosso conhecimento e apreço por ele.

[14] Outra maneira pela qual Jesus manteve forte seu amor por Jeová foi por orar regularmente. Embora ele fosse amistoso e sociável, é interessante notar que ele gostava de tirar tempo para ficar sozinho. Por exemplo, Lucas 5:16 diz: "Ele continuava em retiro nos desertos e orava." Do mesmo modo, Mateus 14:23 declara: "Por fim, tendo despedido as multidões, subiu sozinho ao monte para orar. Embora ficasse tarde, estava ali sozinho." Jesus procurou ficar a sós nessas e em outras ocasiões não porque fosse um eremita ou não gostasse da companhia de outros, mas porque queria ficar a sós com Jeová para falar livremente com seu Pai em oração.

14, 15. (a) Por que Jesus procurava ficar sozinho? (b) Como as orações de Jesus a seu Pai revelavam intimidade e respeito?

15 Ao orar, Jesus às vezes usava a expressão: "Aba, Pai." (Marcos 14:36) Nos dias de Jesus, "aba" era uma palavra carinhosa para "pai" usada no âmbito familiar. Em geral, estava entre as primeiras palavras que a criança aprendia a falar. Mesmo assim, era um termo respeitoso. Desse modo, além de revelar a intimidade de Jesus conversando com seu amado Pai, essa palavra também transmitia profundo respeito pela autoridade paterna de Jeová. Percebemos essa intimidade e esse respeito em todas as orações de Jesus registradas na Bíblia. Por exemplo, em João capítulo 17, o apóstolo João registrou a oração longa e sincera que Jesus fez em Sua última noite. É muito motivador estudar essa oração e é vital que a tomemos como exemplo — não por repeti-la, é claro, mas por encontrar maneiras de falar de coração com o nosso Pai celestial, tanto quanto pudermos. Fazer isso manterá vivo e forte o nosso amor por ele.

[16] Conforme vimos no início deste capítulo, Jesus não ficava sempre dizendo "eu amo o Pai". Mas ele muitas vezes expressou esse amor por meio de palavras. Como? O próprio Jesus disse: "Eu te louvo publicamente, ó Pai, Senhor do céu e da terra." (Mateus 11:25) Na Seção 2 deste livro, vimos que Jesus tinha prazer em louvar a seu Pai por ajudar as pessoas a conhecê-Lo. Por exemplo, ele comparou Jeová a um pai que estava tão ansioso para perdoar seu filho desobediente que esperou a chegada do jovem arrependido e, quando o viu de longe, correu até ele e o abraçou. (Lucas 15:20) É impossível ler essa passagem sem ficar emocionado com a descrição que Jesus fez do amor e do perdão de Jeová!

[17] Jesus elogiou seu Pai muitas vezes por Sua generosidade. Ele usou o exemplo de pais imperfeitos para mostrar que podemos estar certos de que o nosso Pai nos dará espírito santo na medida que precisarmos. (Lucas 11:13) Jesus também falou sobre a esperança que o Pai dá de modo generoso. Ele mencionou a sua própria esperança de estar novamente ao lado de seu Pai no céu. (João 14:28; 17:5) Falou também a seus seguidores sobre a esperança que Jeová estendeu ao "pequeno rebanho" de Cristo — viver no céu e governar junto com o Rei messiânico. (Lucas 12:32; João 14:2) Ele consolou um malfeitor à beira da morte com a esperança de vida no Paraíso. (Lucas 23:43) Falar sobre a grande generosidade de seu Pai certamente ajudou Jesus a manter forte seu amor por Jeová. Muitos seguidores de Jesus descobriram que nada fortalece mais sua fé e seu amor por Jeová do que falar a respeito dele e da esperança que ele dá aos que o amam.

16, 17. (a) Como Jesus expressou em palavras o amor que tinha por seu Pai? (b) De que modo Jesus descreveu a generosidade de seu Pai?

Você imitará o amor de Jesus por Jeová?

18 Há muitas maneiras de seguirmos a Jesus, mas nenhuma é mais importante do que amar a Jeová de todo o nosso coração, alma, mente e força. (Lucas 10:27) O que prova quanto amamos a Jeová não é

18. Qual é a maneira mais importante de seguirmos a Jesus, e por quê?

apenas a intensidade dos nossos sentimentos; nossas ações também são importantes. Jesus não se contentou apenas em sentir amor por seu Pai, nem apenas em dizer “eu amo o Pai”. Ele explicou: “A fim de que o mundo saiba que eu amo o Pai, assim como o Pai me tem dado mandamento, assim faço.” (João 14:31) Satanás alegou que nenhum humano serviria a Jeová por amor altruísta. (Jó 2:4, 5) A fim de dar a melhor resposta à calúnia maldosa de Satanás, Jesus corajosamente tomou ação e mostrou ao mundo quanto ele ama seu Pai. Ele foi obediente até mesmo a ponto de dar a sua vida pela humanidade. Você seguirá a Jesus? Mostrará ao mundo que realmente ama a Jeová Deus?

19 Temos grande necessidade de demonstrar esse amor. Assim, Jeová fez provisões para o adorarmos de um modo que nosso amor por Ele seja nutrido e fortalecido. Ao assistir às reuniões cristãs, tente lembrar que você está ali para adorar o seu Deus. Aspectos dessa adoração incluem fazer orações sinceras, entoar cânticos de louvor, ouvir atentamente e participar quando possível. As reuniões também dão oportunidade para encorajar seus irmãos cristãos. (Hebreus 10:24, 25) Adorar a Jeová regularmente nas reuniões cristãs o ajudará a fortalecer cada vez mais seu amor a Deus.

19, 20. (a) Por que motivo importante devemos ser regulares em assistir às reuniões? (b) Como devemos encarar o estudo pessoal, a meditação e as orações?

[20] Podemos dizer praticamente o mesmo a respeito do estudo pessoal, da meditação e das orações. Encare essas atividades como oportunidades para estar a sós com Jeová. Quando você estuda a Palavra de Deus e medita nela, Jeová está transmitindo os pensamentos dele a você. Quando ora, você está abrindo-lhe o coração. Lembre-se de que orar envolve mais do que apenas fazer pedidos a Deus. A oração também é uma oportunidade de agradecer a Jeová pelas bênçãos recebidas e de louvá-lo por suas obras maravilhosas. (Salmo 146:1) Além disso, louvar a Jeová publicamente com alegria e entusiasmo é o melhor modo de agradecer-lhe e mostrar que você o ama.

[21] O amor a Deus é a chave para a felicidade eterna. Era tudo o que Adão e Eva precisavam para ser obedientes, mas foi justamente esse amor que eles deixaram de cultivar. O amor a Deus é a coisa mais importante para vencer qualquer teste de fé, rejeitar qualquer tentação e perseverar sob qualquer tipo de tribulação. É a base para seguir a Jesus. Evidentemente, o amor a Deus está relacionado com o amor ao próximo. (1 João 4:20) Nos capítulos à frente veremos como Jesus demonstrou amor pelas pessoas. No próximo capítulo, consideraremos por que tantas pessoas achavam Jesus acessível.

CAPÍTULO 14

‘Grandes multidões aproximavam-se dele’

JESUS sabe que sua vida terrestre está chegando rapidamente ao fim. Ele só tem mais algumas semanas de vida e ainda há muita coisa a fazer. Está pregando com seus apóstolos na Pereia, uma região ao leste do rio Jordão. Eles vão pregando em direção a Jerusalém, ao sul, onde Jesus vai comemorar sua última Páscoa, que será muito marcante.

[2] Depois de uma importante conversa entre Jesus e alguns líderes religiosos, ocorre uma pequena agitação. Alguns pais trazem seus filhos para ver Jesus. Pelo visto há crianças de várias idades, pois Marcos refere-se a elas usando a mesma palavra que antes havia usado ao mencionar uma criança de 12 anos, ao passo que Lucas usa uma palavra que pode ser traduzida “bebês”. (Lucas 18:15; Marcos 5:41, 42; 10:13) É claro que, onde há crianças, em geral há muita agitação e barulho. Os discípulos de Jesus repreendem os pais, talvez achando que o Mestre está ocupado demais para dar atenção às crianças. Como Jesus reage?

1-3. O que acontece quando alguns pais trazem seus filhos até Jesus, e o que isso nos ensina sobre ele?

³ Ao ver o que está acontecendo, Jesus fica indignado. Com quem? Com as crianças? Com os pais? Não — com os discípulos! Ele diz: “Deixai vir a mim as criancinhas; não tenteis impedi-las, pois o reino de Deus pertence a tais. Deveras, eu vos digo: Quem não receber o reino de Deus como uma criancinha, de modo algum entrará nele.” Daí Jesus pega as crianças “nos seus braços” e as abençoa. (Marcos 10:13-16) As palavras que Marcos usou aqui sugerem que Jesus abraçou as crianças carinhosamente, talvez até pegando algumas delas “no colo”, conforme diz um tradutor. Fica claro que Jesus gosta de crianças. Mas aprendemos algo mais sobre ele nessa passagem: Jesus é acessível.

⁴ Se Jesus fosse um homem orgulhoso, de aparência séria ou hostil, é provável que aquelas crianças não se sentissem atraídas a ele; seus pais também não se sentiriam à vontade para aproximar-se de Jesus. Consegue imaginar a cena, vendo os pais radiantes enquanto aquele homem bondoso abençoava seus filhos, mostrava afeição por eles e reconhecia que eram preciosos para Deus? Embora Jesus estivesse sobrecarregado com a maior de todas as responsabilidades, não deixou de ser o homem mais acessível de todos.

4, 5. (a) O que nos dá certeza de que Jesus era acessível? (b) Que perguntas analisaremos neste capítulo?

[5] Quem mais achava Jesus uma pessoa acessível? Por que era fácil achegar-se a ele? Como podemos aprender a imitá-lo nesse sentido? Vejamos.

Quem achava Jesus acessível?

[6] Ao ler os Evangelhos, você talvez fique surpreso de ver que multidões não tinham receio de aproximar-se de Jesus. Muitas vezes ele é mencionado como estando cercado por "grandes multidões": "Seguiam-no grandes multidões, da Galileia." "Ajuntaram-se a ele grandes multidões." 'Aproximaram-se dele grandes multidões.' 'Grandes multidões viajavam com ele.' (Mateus 4:25; 13:2; 15:30; Lucas 14:25) Sim, Jesus estava frequentemente cercado por muitas pessoas.

[7] Em geral essas pessoas faziam parte do povo — pessoas a quem os líderes religiosos se referiam com desprezo como "povo da terra". Os fariseus e os sacerdotes diziam abertamente: "Esta multidão, que não sabe a Lei, são pessoas amaldiçoadas." (João 7:49) Escritos rabínicos posteriores confirmam que eles tinham mesmo esse conceito. Muitos líderes religiosos achavam aquelas pessoas desprezíveis e se recusavam a tomar refeições com elas, comprar algo delas ou associar-se com elas. Alguns afirmavam que não havia esperança de ressurreição para os que não conheciam a lei oral! Muitas pessoas humildes devem ter evitado aqueles líderes em vez de recorrer a eles em busca de ajuda ou orientação. Mas com Jesus era diferente.

[8] Jesus misturava-se com as pessoas comuns. Tomava refeições com elas, as curava, as ensinava e lhes dava esperança. É claro que Jesus era realista; reconhecia que a maioria ia rejeitar a oportunidade de servir a Jeová. (Mateus 7:13, 14) Mas ele tinha um ponto de vista otimista sobre cada um individualmente e via em muitos o potencial para fazer o que é certo. Que contraste com os sacerdotes e fariseus insensíveis! Surpreendentemente, porém, até mesmo sacerdotes e fariseus sentiram-se atraídos a Jesus, e muitos deles mudaram de atitude e o seguiram. (Atos 6:7; 15:5) Algumas pessoas ricas e influentes também achavam Jesus acessível. — Marcos 10:17, 22.

[9] As mulheres também não tinham receio de se dirigir a Jesus. Elas muitas vezes se sentiam humilhadas por causa do desprezo dos líderes religiosos. Os rabinos geralmente não aprovavam que as mulheres fossem instruídas. Não se lhes permitia serem testemunhas em julgamentos; elas não eram encaradas como testemunhas confiáveis. Os rabinos até faziam uma oração em que agradeciam a Deus por não terem nascido mulher! Mas as mulheres não se sentiam desprezadas por Jesus. Muitas se dirigiam a ele, ansiosas para aprender. Podemos citar como exemplo Maria, irmã de Lázaro; ela sentou-se aos pés do Senhor, escutando-o atentamente, ao passo que sua irmã, Marta, estava muito atarefada e preocupada em preparar a refeição. Jesus elogiou Maria por estabelecer prioridades corretas. — Lucas 10:39-42.

9. Por que as mulheres consideravam Jesus acessível?

10 Os doentes também iam até Jesus, embora em geral fossem rejeitados pelos líderes religiosos. A Lei mosaica determinava a quarentena para leprosos a fim de evitar contaminação, mas não dava margem para a falta de bondade. (Levítico, capítulo 13) No entanto, regras posteriores criadas pelos rabinos diziam que os leprosos eram tão repulsivos quanto excremento. Alguns líderes religiosos chegavam a jogar pedras nos

10. Em que sentido Jesus era diferente dos líderes religiosos no modo como tratava os doentes?

leprosos para mantê-los afastados! É difícil imaginar como alguém que tivesse sido tratado desse modo conseguiria criar coragem para aproximar-se de algum instrutor, mas leprosos aproximaram-se de Jesus. Um deles fez a bem conhecida expressão de fé dizendo: "Senhor, se apenas quiseres, podes tornar-me limpo." (Lucas 5:12) No próximo capítulo veremos o que Jesus fez nessa ocasião. Por enquanto, basta dizer que dificilmente haveria prova mais clara de que Jesus era acessível.

[11] Pessoas oprimidas por sentimentos de culpa sentiam-se à vontade para ir até Jesus. Considere, por exemplo, a ocasião em que ele estava jantando na casa de um fariseu. Uma mulher conhecida como pecadora se ajoelhou aos pés de Jesus chorando por causa de seu sentimento de culpa. Suas lágrimas caíam sobre os pés dele e ela as enxugava com o cabelo. Ao passo que o fariseu achou isso repulsivo e condenou Jesus por permitir que a mulher chegasse perto dele, Jesus bondosamente a elogiou por seu arrependimento sincero e garantiu-lhe o perdão de Jeová. (Lucas 7:36-50) Hoje, mais do que nunca, os que estão sobrecarrega-

11. Que exemplo mostra que os que eram oprimidos por sentimentos de culpa se sentiam à vontade para ir até Jesus, e por que isso é importante?

dos com sentimentos de culpa precisam sentir-se à vontade para se dirigir aos que podem ajudá-los a recuperar seu relacionamento com Deus. Mas o que fez de Jesus uma pessoa tão acessível?

O que fez de Jesus alguém acessível?

[12] Lembre-se de que Jesus imitou perfeitamente seu amado Pai celestial. (João 14:9) A Bíblia nos diz que Jeová 'não está longe de cada um de nós'. (Atos 17:27) Jeová, o "Ouvinte de oração", está sempre acessível a seus servos fiéis e a todos que desejam sinceramente encontrá-lo e servi-lo. (Salmo 65:2) Imagine! A Pessoa mais poderosa e importante do Universo é também a mais acessível! Assim como o Pai, Jesus ama as pessoas. Nos próximos capítulos, consideraremos esse profundo amor de Jesus. Mas uma das principais razões de ele ser acessível é que seu amor pelas pessoas era facilmente observado. Vamos analisar algumas características de Jesus que tornavam evidente esse amor.

[13] As pessoas logo percebiam que Jesus se interessava pessoalmente por elas. Mesmo sob pressão, ele não

12. Por que não é de admirar que Jesus fosse acessível?
13. Como os pais podem imitar a Jesus?

deixava de mostrar esse interesse. Conforme já vimos, quando aqueles pais levaram seus filhos até Jesus, ele continuou sendo acessível, mesmo estando ocupado e sobrecarregado com grandes responsabilidades. Que exemplo para os pais! Criar filhos é um desafio no mundo de hoje. Mas é muito importante que os filhos percebam que seus pais são acessíveis. Você que é pai ou mãe sabe que às vezes está muito ocupado para dar a seu filho a atenção que ele precisa. Nessas ocasiões, que tal dizer que falará com ele assim que puder? Ao passo que você cumpre sua palavra, seu filho aprenderá que vale a pena esperar. Ele vai aprender também que sempre poderá levar a você qualquer problema ou preocupação que tiver.

14 Jesus deixava claro que se importava com as preocupações das pessoas. Para exemplificar, considere seu primeiro milagre. Ele estava numa festa de casamento em Caná, uma cidade da Galileia. Surgiu um problema constrangedor — o vinho acabou! A mãe de Jesus, Maria, contou-lhe o que tinha acontecido. O que ele fez? Pediu que os ajudantes enchessem de água seis jarros grandes de pedra. Quando se pediu ao diretor da festa que experimentasse um pouco do que estava nos jarros, que surpresa, era vinho da melhor qualidade! Será que era algum truque? Não, a água "tinha sido transformada em vinho". (João 2:1-11) Os humanos sempre sonharam em conseguir transformar uma coisa em outra. Por séculos, homens chamados alquimistas tentaram transformar chumbo em ouro. Nunca conseguiram, embora chumbo e ouro sejam na verdade elementos muito parecidos.* Que dizer da água e do vinho? Quimicamente, a água é simples, uma combinação de dois elementos básicos. O vinho, por outro lado, contém quase mil componentes, muitos deles bem complexos! Por que Jesus realizaria um ato tão maravilhoso por causa de algo insignificante, como faltar vinho numa festa de casamento?

15 Bem, para a noiva e para o noivo, o problema não era insignificante. Antigamente no Oriente Médio dava-se muita importância à hospitalidade. Faltar vinho na festa de casamento deixaria a noiva e o noivo muito envergonhados e constrangidos, estragaria o dia do casamento e deixaria más lembranças que durariam muitos anos. O problema tinha muita importância para eles, por isso, era muito importante para Jesus também. Assim, ele tomou providências. Percebe por que as pessoas levavam suas preocupações a Jesus?

* Estudantes de química sabem que o chumbo e o ouro estão bem próximos na tabela periódica de elementos. Um átomo de chumbo tem simplesmente três prótons a mais no seu núcleo do que o átomo de ouro. Hoje em dia, físicos até já transformaram pequenas quantidades de chumbo em ouro, mas o processo demanda tanta energia que não é economicamente viável.

16 Mais uma vez vemos aqui uma lição prática para os pais. O que fazer se seu filho vier até você preocupado com alguma coisa? Você talvez fique tentado a achar que a preocupação dele seja insignificante. Talvez até sinta vontade de rir ao ouvir o que ele tem a dizer. É verdade que, em comparação com os seus problemas, o problema da criança talvez até pareça insignificante. Mas lembre-se de que não é assim para ela. Se é importante para alguém que você ama muito, não deveria ser importante para você também? Deixar claro para seu filho que você se importa com as preocupações dele fará de você um pai acessível.

17 Conforme vimos no Capítulo 3, Jesus era brando e humilde. (Mateus 11:29) A brandura é uma bela quali-

17. Jesus deu que exemplo de brandura, e por que essa qualidade é evidência de força?

dade, uma prova incontestável de que a pessoa é humilde no coração. A brandura é um dos frutos do espírito santo e está relacionada à sabedoria de Deus. (Gálatas 5:22, 23; Tiago 3:13) Mesmo sob a pior provocação, Jesus manteve o autocontrole. Sua brandura de modo algum era sinal de fraqueza. Um erudito disse sobre essa qualidade: "Por trás da suavidade está a força do aço." De fato, em geral é necessário força da nossa parte para controlar nosso temperamento e tratar outros com brandura. Mas, ao passo que Jeová abençoa nossos esforços, podemos imitar a Jesus em mostrar brandura; isso nos tornará mais acessíveis.

18 Jesus era razoável. Quando estava em Tiro, uma mulher dirigiu-se a ele porque sua filha estava "muito endemoninhada". Jesus indicou de três maneiras que não pretendia fazer o que ela queria. Primeiro ele ficou em silêncio; depois falou à mulher por que motivo não atenderia o pedido dela; por fim, fez uma ilustração que esclareceu ainda mais o ponto em questão. Mas será que ele a tratou de modo frio e inflexível? Será que deu a entender que ela estava se arriscando por ousar rebater as palavras de alguém tão importante? Não, era evidente que aquela mulher se sentia à vontade para falar com Jesus. Além de pedir ajuda, ela insistiu, apesar de ele aparentemente não querer ajudá-la. Jesus viu a notável fé que a fez insistir, e curou sua filha. (Mateus 15:22-28) Sem dúvida, a razoabilidade de Jesus e sua disposição em escutar e ceder quando apropriado fez com que as pessoas se sentissem atraídas a ele!

18. Que exemplo mostra a razoabilidade de Jesus, e por que você acha que essa qualidade torna a pessoa acessível?

Você é acessível?

[19] As pessoas em geral acham que são acessíveis. Alguns em posição de autoridade, por exemplo, gostam de dizer que estão sempre à disposição, que seus subordinados podem procurá-los a qualquer hora. A Bíblia, porém, adverte claramente: "Uma multidão de homens proclamará cada um a sua própria benevolência, mas quem pode achar um homem fiel?" (Provérbios 20:6) É fácil dizer que somos acessíveis, mas estamos mesmo imitando fielmente esse aspecto do amor de Jesus? A resposta pode estar, não em como encaramos a nós mesmos, mas em como outros nos encaram. Paulo disse: "Seja a vossa razoabilidade conhecida de todos os homens." (Filipenses 4:5) Cada um de nós

19. Como podemos saber se somos realmente acessíveis?

precisa perguntar-se: 'Como outros me veem? Qual é a minha reputação?'

[20] Os anciãos cristãos, em especial, esforçam-se em ser acessíveis. Desejam de coração fazer jus à descrição registrada em Isaías 32:1, 2: "Cada um deles terá de mostrar ser como abrigo contra o vento e como esconderijo contra o temporal, como correntes de água numa terra árida, como a sombra dum pesado rochedo numa terra esgotada." O ancião só poderá prover proteção, ânimo e alívio se for acessível. É verdade que nem sempre é fácil fazer isso, pois os anciãos têm uma pesada responsabilidade nestes tempos difíceis. Mas eles se esforçam em nunca parecer ocupados demais para cuidar das necessidades das ovelhas de Jeová. (1 Pedro 5:2) Os outros membros da congregação, por serem humildes e colaboradores, tentam ser razoáveis no que esperam desses homens fiéis. — Hebreus 13:17.

[21] Os pais procuram ser sempre acessíveis a seus filhos. Isso é de grande importância. Tanto o pai como a mãe querem que seus filhos saibam que podem ficar à vontade para conversar com eles. Assim, pais cristãos se preocupam em ser brandos e razoáveis, não reagindo de modo exagerado quando um filho conta que fez algo errado ou demonstra um modo de pensar incorreto. Ao passo que educam os filhos, os pais esforçam-se para manter abertas as linhas de comunicação. De fato, todos nós queremos ser acessíveis assim como Jesus. No próximo capítulo, analisaremos a profunda compaixão de Jesus — uma das principais qualidades que o tornaram acessível.

CAPÍTULO 15

Jesus ‘sentia pena’

DOIS cegos estão sentados à beira da estrada, perto de Jericó. Todos os dias eles procuram um lugar movimentado e ficam ali pedindo esmola. Hoje, porém, acontecerá algo marcante que mudará a vida desses homens.

[2] De repente, eles ouvem o som de uma multidão que se aproxima. Sem poder ver o que está acontecendo, um deles pergunta o porquê daquela agitação. Dizem-lhe: “Jesus, o nazareno, está passando por aqui!” Jesus está a caminho de Jerusalém pela última vez. Mas não está sozinho; uma multidão o segue. Ao ouvir que é Jesus quem está passando, os mendigos começam a causar certo tumulto, gritando: “Senhor, tem misericórdia de nós, Filho de Davi!” Incomodadas, as pessoas mandam os mendigos se calarem, mas eles estão desesperados e recusam-se a fazer isso.

[3] Apesar do barulho da multidão, Jesus ouve os mendigos gritando. O que ele faz? Ele está muito preocupado e aflito, pois lhe restam apenas mais alguns dias de vida na Terra. Jesus sabe que em breve passará por muitos sofrimentos e terá uma morte cruel em Jerusalém. Mesmo assim, não desconsidera os pedidos insistentes dos mendigos. Jesus para e pede que os que estão gritando sejam trazidos até ele. "Senhor, faze que os nossos olhos se abram", imploram eles. "Penalizado", Jesus toca os olhos dos cegos e eles recuperam a visão.* Sem demora, eles passam a seguir a Jesus. — Lucas 18:35-43; Mateus 20:29-34.

4 Esse não foi um caso isolado. Em muitas ocasiões e circunstâncias, Jesus sentiu-se profundamente motivado a demonstrar compaixão. A profecia bíblica predisse que ele 'teria dó daquele de condição humilde'. (Salmo 72:13) Em cumprimento dessas palavras, Jesus era sensível aos sentimentos dos outros. Ele também tomava a iniciativa de ajudar as pessoas. E sua compaixão o motivava a pregar. Vamos ver como

* A palavra grega traduzida "penalizado" e "teve pena" já foi descrita como uma das palavras mais enfáticas em grego para o sentimento da compaixão. Certa obra de referência diz que essa palavra indica "não apenas sentir dó diante do sofrimento, mas também um forte desejo de aliviá-lo e acabar com ele".

---

4. Como Jesus cumpriu a profecia de que 'teria dó daquele de condição humilde'?

os Evangelhos revelam a terna compaixão por trás das palavras e das ações de Jesus e como nós podemos demonstrar a mesma compaixão.

Teve consideração pelos sentimentos dos outros

[5] Jesus demonstrava muita empatia. Compreendia os sentimentos dos que sofriam e se compadecia. Embora não estivesse nas mesmas circunstâncias daquelas pessoas, ele realmente sentia a dor delas em seu próprio coração. (Hebreus 4:15) Quando curou uma mulher que já sofria de um fluxo de sangue por 12 anos, Jesus se referiu ao problema dela como uma "doença penosa", reconhecendo assim que a doença lhe havia causado muito sofrimento e aflição. (Marcos 5:25-34) Ver Maria e outras pessoas chorando por causa da morte de Lázaro tocou tanto a Jesus que ele ficou aflito no íntimo. Embora soubesse que ressuscitaria Lázaro, ele ficou tão comovido que chorou. — João 11:33, 35.

[6] Em outra ocasião, um leproso se aproximou de Jesus e implorou: "Se apenas quiseres, podes tornar-me limpo." Como Jesus reagiu, embora fosse perfeito e nunca tivesse ficado doente? Ele compreendeu como

5, 6. Que exemplos mostram que Jesus demonstrava empatia?

o leproso se sentia. De fato, a Bíblia diz que ele ‘ficou penalizado’. (Marcos 1:40-42) Daí Jesus fez algo extraordinário. Ele sem dúvida sabia que os leprosos eram impuros segundo a Lei e que não deviam aproximar-se de outros. (Levítico 13:45, 46) Jesus com certeza podia curar aquele homem sem tocar nele. (Mateus 8:5-13) Ainda assim, preferiu estender a mão e tocar no leproso, dizendo: “Eu quero. Torna-te limpo.” A lepra desapareceu imediatamente. Que demonstração de terna empatia!

[7] Como cristãos, somos incentivados a imitar a Jesus por mostrar empatia. A Bíblia nos incentiva a ‘compartilhar os sentimentos’.* (1 Pedro 3:8) Talvez não seja fácil compreender os sentimentos dos que sofrem de depressão ou de uma doença crônica, principalmente se nunca passamos por problemas desse tipo. Mas lembre-se de que para ter empatia não é preciso estar nas mesmas circunstâncias da outra pessoa. Jesus teve empatia pelos doentes, embora ele mesmo nunca tivesse ficado doente. Então, como po-

* O adjetivo grego traduzido ‘compartilhar os sentimentos’ significa literalmente “sofrer com”.

7. O que pode nos ajudar a desenvolver empatia, e como podemos demonstrar essa qualidade?

demos desenvolver empatia? Por ouvir pacientemente quando outros abrem o coração e expressam o que sentem. Podemos nos perguntar: 'Como eu me sentiria se estivesse no lugar dessa pessoa?' (1 Coríntios 12:26) Quanto maior for a nossa sensibilidade aos sentimentos dos outros, tanto mais fácil será 'falarmos consoladoramente às almas deprimidas'. (1 Tessalonicenses 5:14) Às vezes podemos demonstrar empatia não apenas com palavras, mas também com lágrimas. "Chorai com os que choram", diz Romanos 12:15.

[8] Jesus era bondoso e levava em consideração os sentimentos dos outros. Talvez se lembre da ocasião em que um homem surdo e que mal conseguia falar foi levado até ele. Pelo visto Jesus percebeu que o homem estava um pouco embaraçado, por isso fez algo que não costumava fazer ao curar outras pessoas: "Ele . . . levou [o homem] à parte, separado da multidão." Longe dos olhares das pessoas, Jesus curou o homem. — Marcos 7:31-35.

[9] Jesus também teve consideração quando as pessoas lhe trouxeram um homem cego e pediram que o curasse. Ele “tomou o cego pela mão” e “levou-o para fora da aldeia”. Daí curou o homem aos poucos. Talvez isso tenha permitido que o cérebro e os olhos do homem se ajustassem gradativamente às imagens ofuscantes e ao complexo cenário do mundo iluminado ao seu redor. (Marcos 8:22-26) Que consideração da parte de Jesus!

8, 9. Como Jesus mostrava consideração pelos sentimentos dos outros?

[10] Para seguirmos a Jesus, é necessário mostrarmos consideração pelos sentimentos dos outros. Assim, lembrando que palavras impensadas podem ferir os sentimentos das pessoas, damos atenção ao que falamos. (Provérbios 12:18; 18:21) Em vista disso, entre os cristãos não deve haver palavras duras, comentários depreciativos e sarcasmo. (Efésios 4:31) Anciãos, como vocês podem mostrar consideração pelos sentimentos dos outros? Ao aconselhar, falem com bondade, contribuindo para preservar a dignidade da pessoa. (Gálatas 6:1) Pais, como podem levar em conta os sentimentos de seus filhos? Ao disciplinar, esforcem-se para não causar constrangimentos desnecessários. — Colossenses 3:21.

10. De que modo podemos mostrar consideração pelos sentimentos dos outros?

Tomou a iniciativa de ajudar outros

[11] Jesus não demonstrava compaixão apenas quando as pessoas pediam ajuda. Afinal, a compaixão não é uma qualidade passiva, mas ativa. Portanto, não é de admirar que a terna compaixão de Jesus o motivasse a tomar a iniciativa de ajudar outros. Por exemplo, quando uma grande multidão ficou com ele durante três dias, sem comer, ninguém teve de dizer a Jesus que as pessoas estavam com fome nem teve de pedir que ele fizesse algo a respeito. O relato diz: "Jesus chamou a si os seus discípulos e disse: 'Tenho pena da multidão, porque já faz três dias que ficaram comigo e não têm nada para comer; e eu não quero mandá-los embora em jejum. Poderiam desfalecer pela estrada.'" Daí, de sua própria iniciativa, Jesus alimentou a multidão milagrosamente. — Mateus 15:32-38.

[12] Considere outra passagem bíblica. Ao chegar à cidade de Naim em 31 EC, Jesus se deparou com uma cena triste. Um cortejo fúnebre saía da cidade, talvez em direção a túmulos que ficavam na encosta de um monte perto dali. Era o enterro do 'filho unigênito de uma viúva’. Consegue imaginar o sofrimento daquela mãe? Ela ia enterrar seu único filho, e seu marido já não estava mais lá para compartilhar sua dor. No meio de todos os que seguiam o cortejo, Jesus ‘avistou’ aquela viúva, agora sem o seu filho. Isso o tocou profundamente; sim, Jesus “teve pena dela”. Ninguém precisou implorar que ele fizesse um milagre. Sua compaixão de coração o motivou a tomar a iniciativa. Ele “se aproximou e tocou no esquife”, trazendo o jovem de volta à vida. O que Jesus fez em seguida? Não pediu que o jovem se juntasse à multidão que viajava com Ele. Em vez disso, “o entregou à sua mãe”, unindo-os novamente como família e garantindo que a viúva tivesse alguém para cuidar dela. — Lucas 7:11-15.

[13] Como podemos seguir o exemplo de Jesus? É verdade que não podemos multiplicar alimentos milagrosamente nem ressuscitar mortos. Mas podemos imitar a Jesus tomando a iniciativa de ajudar os que passam necessidade. Um irmão cristão talvez sofra um revés financeiro ou perca o emprego. (1 João 3:17) A casa de uma viúva talvez esteja precisando urgentemente de reparos. (Tiago 1:27) Pode ser que conheçamos uma família enlutada que precise de consolo ou ajuda prática. (1 Tessalonicenses 5:11) Em casos de real necessidade, não precisamos esperar que outros nos peçam para só então oferecer ajuda. (Provérbios 3:27) A compaixão nos motivará a tomar a iniciativa de ajudar, conforme nossas circunstâncias permitirem. Nunca se esqueça de que um pequeno ato de bondade ou algumas palavras de consolo vindas do coração podem ser grandes demonstrações de compaixão. — Colossenses 3:12.

13. Como podemos imitar a Jesus tomando a iniciativa de ajudar os que passam necessidade?

A compaixão o motivou a pregar

[14] Como vimos na Seção 2 deste livro, Jesus nos deixou um excelente exemplo por pregar as boas novas. Ele disse: "Tenho de declarar as boas novas do reino de Deus . . . porque fui enviado para isso." (Lucas 4:43) Por que Jesus deu prioridade a essa obra? Em primeiro lugar por causa de seu amor a Deus. Mas havia outro motivo: sua compaixão de coração o motivou a agir para atender às necessidades espirituais das pessoas. Ele demonstrou compaixão de muitas maneiras, mas a principal foi por prover

14. Por que Jesus deu prioridade à obra de pregação das boas novas?

a outros o que precisavam em sentido espiritual. Vamos considerar duas ocasiões que mostram como Jesus encarava as pessoas a quem pregava. Isso nos ajudará a analisar nossas próprias motivações ao participar no ministério de pregação.

[15] Em 31 EC, após cerca de dois anos de serviço ativo no ministério, Jesus intensificou seus esforços por iniciar "uma viagem por todas as cidades e aldeias" da Galileia. O que ele viu o tocou profundamente. O apóstolo Mateus relatou: "Vendo as multidões, sentia compaixão delas, porque andavam esfoladas e empurradas dum lado para outro como ovelhas sem pastor." (Mateus 9:35, 36) Jesus sentia pena das pessoas comuns. Ele estava bem ciente da lastimável condição espiritual delas. Sabia que elas eram maltratadas e desprezadas, justamente por quem devia pastoreá-las — os líderes religiosos. Motivado por profunda compaixão, Jesus empenhou-se em levar uma mensagem de esperança às pessoas. O que elas mais precisavam eram as boas novas do Reino de Deus.

15, 16. Comente duas ocasiões que mostram como Jesus encarava as pessoas a quem pregava.

entraram num barco e atravessaram o mar da Galileia em busca de um lugar tranquilo para descansar. Mas uma multidão correu ao longo da costa e chegou ao outro lado antes do barco. Qual foi a reação de Jesus? "Ao desembarcar, ele viu uma grande multidão, mas teve pena deles, porque eram como ovelhas sem pastor. E principiou a ensinar-lhes muitas coisas." (Marcos 6:31-34) Mais uma vez Jesus "teve pena" por causa da triste condição espiritual das pessoas. Como "ovelhas sem pastor", elas estavam famintas em sentido espiritual e entregues à própria sorte. Era a compaixão que motivava Jesus a pregar, não um mero senso de dever.

[17] Como seguidores de Jesus, o que nos motiva a pregar? Conforme vimos no Capítulo 9, temos uma comissão, uma responsabilidade: pregar e fazer discípulos. (Mateus 28:19, 20; 1 Coríntios 9:16) Mas não devemos realizar essa obra apenas por mero senso de dever ou obrigação. Em primeiro lugar, é o amor a Jeová que nos motiva a pregar as boas novas do Reino. A compaixão pelos que não têm as mesmas crenças que nós também nos motiva a fazer isso. (Marcos

17, 18. (a) O que nos motiva a pregar? (b) Como podemos cultivar compaixão por outros?

12:28-31) Então, como podemos cultivar compaixão por outros?

18 Precisamos ver as pessoas como Jesus as via — "esfoladas e empurradas dum lado para outro como ovelhas sem pastor". Imagine que você encontre um cordeirinho perdido. O pobre animalzinho está faminto e com sede, pois não há um pastor que o leve até onde há água e boas pastagens. Não teria pena dele? Não se esforçaria para dar a ele um pouco de água e comida? Muitas pessoas que ainda não conhecem as boas novas são como esse cordeirinho. Negligenciadas pelos falsos líderes religiosos, elas estão sedentas e famintas em sentido espiritual e não têm verdadeira esperança para o futuro. Nós temos o que elas precisam: o nutritivo alimento espiritual e as refrescantes águas da verdade encontradas na Palavra de Deus. (Isaías 55:1, 2) Quando pensamos nas necessidades espirituais das pessoas à nossa volta, sentimos compaixão por elas. Se, assim como Jesus, tivermos pena das pessoas, faremos todo o possível para levar a elas a esperança do Reino.

19 Como podemos ajudar outros a seguir o exemplo

19. O que podemos fazer para motivar um estudante da Bíblia a começar a participar na obra de pregação?

de Jesus? Digamos que temos um estudante da Bíblia que já esteja em condições de participar no ministério e queremos incentivá-lo a começar a pregar. Ou talvez queiramos ajudar um irmão inativo a voltar a ter plena participação no ministério. Como podemos ajudá-los? Precisamos tocar seu coração. Lembre-se de que primeiro Jesus "teve pena" das pessoas, depois passou a ensiná-las. (Marcos 6:34) Portanto, se pudermos ajudar o estudante ou o irmão inativo a cultivar compaixão, é bem provável que o coração deles os motive a imitar a Jesus e pregar as boas novas a outros. Podemos lhes perguntar: "Como a mensagem do Reino mudou sua vida para melhor? Que dizer das pessoas que ainda não conhecem essa mensagem — não acha que elas também precisam ouvir as boas novas? O que você pode fazer para ajudá-las?" É claro que a principal motivação para participar na pregação é o amor a Deus e o desejo de servi-lo.

[20] Seguir a Jesus envolve mais do que apenas repetir suas palavras e copiar suas ações. Precisamos cultivar a mesma "atitude mental" que ele tinha.

20. (a) O que está envolvido em ser seguidor de Jesus? (b) O que será considerado no próximo capítulo?

Como Ser Seguidor de Jesus?

- Como Jesus demonstrou compaixão no modo como exerceu autoridade, e como podemos imitá-lo? — Mateus 11:28-30.
- Por que é importante seguirmos o exemplo de Jesus em mostrar misericórdia, ou compaixão, por outros? — Mateus 9:9-13; 23:23.
- De que modo Jesus demonstrou que compreendia os sentimentos dos outros, e como podemos imitar seu exemplo? — Lucas 7:36-50.
- Como a parábola do bom samaritano mostra que a compaixão é uma excelente qualidade, e de que modo podemos aplicar o que aprendemos dessa história? — Lucas 10:29-37.

CAPÍTULO 16

‘Jesus os amou até o fim’

AO REUNIR seus apóstolos numa sala de sobrado em Jerusalém, Jesus sabe que essa é a última noite que estará com eles. Em breve ele voltará para seu Pai. Em poucas horas será preso e sua fé será testada como nunca antes. Ainda assim, nem mesmo sua morte iminente faz com que ele deixe de lado as necessidades de seus apóstolos.

[2] Jesus já preparou os apóstolos para sua partida, porém, ainda tem mais a dizer a fim de fortalecê-los para o que vai acontecer no futuro. Assim, ele usa esses últimos momentos preciosos para ensinar importantes lições que os ajudarão a permanecer fiéis. Jesus nunca falou com eles de forma tão calorosa e amistosa como nessa ocasião. Mas por que ele está mais preocupado com seus apóstolos do que consigo mesmo? Por que motivo essas últimas horas com eles são tão preciosas para Jesus? A resposta está numa única palavra: amor. Jesus os ama profundamente.

1, 2. Como Jesus aproveita suas últimas horas com os apóstolos, e por que esses últimos momentos são tão preciosos para ele?

[3] Décadas mais tarde, ao iniciar sua narrativa sobre os acontecimentos daquela última noite, o apóstolo João escreveu: "Visto que ele sabia antes da festividade da páscoa que havia chegado a sua hora para se transferir deste mundo para o Pai, Jesus, tendo amado os seus próprios que estavam no mundo, amou-os até o fim." (João 13:1) Jesus não esperou até aquela ocasião para mostrar que amava seus discípulos. Ao longo de seu ministério, deixou isso claro de muitas maneiras. Vale a pena analisar algumas delas, pois por imitá-lo mostramos que somos seus genuínos discípulos.

Teve paciência

[4] O amor e a paciência estão interligados. "O amor é longânime", diz 1 Coríntios 13:4, e a longanimidade envolve tolerar outros pacientemente. Será que Jesus precisou de paciência para lidar com seus discípulos? Com certeza! Conforme vimos no Capítulo 3, os apóstolos demoraram a cultivar humildade. Eles discutiram várias vezes sobre qual deles era o mais importante. Qual foi a reação de Jesus? Ficou irado, irritado

3. Como sabemos que Jesus não esperou até a última noite para mostrar que amava seus discípulos?
4, 5. (a) Por que Jesus precisou de paciência ao lidar com seus discípulos? (b) Como Jesus reagiu quando três de seus apóstolos não permaneceram vigilantes no jardim de Getsêmani?

ou ressentido? Não, ele raciocinou de modo paciente com os discípulos, mesmo quando surgiu "uma disputa acalorada" sobre esse assunto na última noite que estava com eles. — Lucas 22:24-30; Mateus 20:20-28; Marcos 9:33-37.

[5] Mais tarde naquela noite, quando Jesus foi com os 11 apóstolos fiéis ao jardim de Getsêmani, sua paciência foi testada mais uma vez. Afastando-se de oito dos apóstolos, ele entrou um pouco mais no jardim com Pedro, Tiago e João. Então lhes disse: "Minha alma está profundamente contristada, até à morte. Ficai aqui e mantende-vos vigilantes." Jesus se distanciou um pouco e começou a orar fervorosamente. Após uma longa oração, voltou até o local onde se encontravam os três apóstolos. O que eles estavam fazendo? Estavam dormindo; justamente na ocasião em que Jesus ia enfrentar a pior prova de sua vida! Será que Jesus os repreendeu severamente por não terem ficado acordados? Não, ele os exortou com paciência. Suas palavras mostraram que ele compreendia o estresse que os apóstolos haviam passado e a fraqueza deles.*

* A sonolência dos apóstolos não foi causada apenas pelo cansaço físico. O relato paralelo em Lucas 22:45 diz que Jesus "os achou dormitando [ou cochilando] de pesar".

“O espírito, naturalmente, está ansioso”, disse Jesus, “mas a carne é fraca”. Ele continuou sendo paciente naquela noite, mesmo nas outras duas vezes em que voltou e encontrou os apóstolos dormindo novamente! — Mateus 26:36-46.

6 É muito animador ver que Jesus não desistiu de seus apóstolos. Sua paciência acabou dando resultado, pois aqueles homens fiéis aprenderam a importância de ser humildes e vigilantes. (1 Pedro 3:8; 4:7) Como podemos imitar a Jesus ao lidar com outros? Os anciãos, em especial, precisam ser pacientes. Irmãos cristãos talvez levem seus problemas a um ancião quando ele próprio está cansado ou preocupado com problemas pessoais. Às vezes, também, os que precisam de ajuda não acatam logo os conselhos. Apesar disso, anciãos pacientes darão orientações “com brandura” e “tratarão o rebanho com ternura”. (2 Timóteo 2:24, 25; Atos 20:28, 29) Os pais também precisam imitar a Jesus por ser pacientes porque, vez por outra, os filhos talvez não reajam prontamente aos conselhos e à correção. O amor e a paciência ajudarão os pais a não desistir de instruir seus filhos. Mostrar paciên-

Cuidou das necessidades dos discípulos

[7] O amor é demonstrado por gestos altruístas. (1 João 3:17, 18) O amor "não procura os seus próprios interesses". (1 Coríntios 13:5) Foi o amor que motivou Jesus a cuidar das necessidades físicas e materiais de seus discípulos. Ele muitas vezes fazia isso antes que eles lhe pedissem. Quando Jesus percebeu que os apóstolos estavam cansados, sugeriu que fossem com ele 'em particular a um lugar solitário e descansassem um pouco'. (Marcos 6:31) Ao perceber que eles estavam com fome, tomou a iniciativa de alimentá-los; alimentou também milhares de outros que tinham vindo para ouvi-lo ensinar. — Mateus 14:19, 20; 15:35-37.

[8] Jesus também reconhecia que seus discípulos tinham necessidades espirituais e fazia provisões para supri-las. (Mateus 4:4; 5:3) Ao ensinar, muitas vezes

7. De que maneiras Jesus cuidou das necessidades físicas e materiais de seus discípulos?

lhes dava atenção especial. O Sermão do Monte foi proferido especialmente para os discípulos. (Mateus 5:1, 2, 13-16) Quando ensinava usando ilustrações, Jesus "explicava todas as coisas em particular, aos seus discípulos". (Marcos 4:34) Ele predisse que designaria um "escravo fiel e discreto" para garantir que Seus seguidores fossem bem nutridos espiritualmente nos últimos dias. Esse escravo fiel, composto de um pequeno grupo dos irmãos ungidos de Jesus que estão na Terra, tem providenciado "alimento [espiritual] no tempo apropriado" desde 1919 EC. — Mateus 24:45.

[9] No dia da sua morte, Jesus mostrou de forma tocante sua preocupação pelo bem-estar espiritual daqueles a quem amava. Visualize esta cena: Jesus estava pregado na estaca, sentindo uma dor excruciante. Para respirar, ele provavelmente tinha de fazer força para cima, apoiando-se nos pés. Isso sem dúvida causava uma dor terrível, ao passo que o peso do seu corpo fazia com que o prego rasgasse ainda mais seus pés, e suas costas em carne viva raspavam na estaca. Falar devia ser muito difícil e doloroso, pois envolvia controlar também a respiração. Mesmo assim, pouco antes de morrer, Jesus disse algo que demonstrou seu profundo amor por Maria, sua mãe. Vendo Maria e o apóstolo João ali perto, Jesus disse à sua mãe, com voz suficientemente alta para que todos ali ouvissem: "Mulher, eis o teu filho!" Depois disse a João: "Eis a tua mãe!" (João 19:26, 27) Jesus sabia que aquele apóstolo fiel cuidaria não só das necessidades físicas e materiais de Maria, mas também de seu bem-estar espiritual.*

10 Pais que se preocupam com o bem-estar de seus filhos podem beneficiar-se por meditar no exemplo de Jesus. O pai que realmente ama sua família fará provisões materiais para ela. (1 Timóteo 5:8) Chefes de família equilibrados e amorosos de vez em quando providenciam descanso e diversão. Ainda mais importante, os pais cristãos cuidam das necessidades espirituais de seus filhos. Como? Por programar um estudo bíblico regular em família e por esforçar-se em tornar essas ocasiões edificantes e agradáveis para os filhos. (Deuteronômio 6:6, 7) Por meio de palavras e ações, os pais ensinam a seus filhos que o ministério é uma atividade importante, e que preparar-se para as reuniões e assistir a elas é parte essencial da rotina espiritual da família. — Hebreus 10:24, 25.

Estava disposto a perdoar

[11] O perdão é uma característica do amor. (Colossenses 3:13, 14) O amor "não leva em conta o dano", diz 1 Coríntios 13:5. Em várias ocasiões Jesus ensinou a seus seguidores a importância do perdão. Ele os incentivou a perdoar outros 'não até sete vezes, mas até setenta e sete vezes' — ou seja, um número ilimitado de vezes. (Mateus 18:21, 22) Ele ensinou que um pecador deve ser perdoado se, quando for censurado, mostrar arrependimento. (Lucas 17:3, 4) Mas Jesus não era como os fariseus hipócritas, que ensinavam apenas por palavras; ele ensinava também por meio de seu exemplo. (Mateus 23:2-4) Vejamos como ele mostrou que estava disposto a perdoar, até mesmo quando um amigo em quem confiava o decepcionou.

[12] Jesus tinha amizade achegada com o apóstolo Pedro, um homem amigável que às vezes era impulsivo.

11. O que Jesus ensinou a seus seguidores sobre o perdão?

12, 13. (a) Como Pedro decepcionou Jesus na noite em que ele foi preso? (b) Como as ações de Jesus após sua ressurreição deixaram claro que ele fez muito mais do que apenas falar sobre o perdão de pecados?

Jesus reconheceu as boas qualidades dele e lhe deu privilégios especiais. Pedro, junto com Tiago e João, presenciou alguns milagres que os outros apóstolos não viram. (Mateus 17:1, 2; Lucas 8:49-55) Conforme já mencionado, Pedro foi um dos apóstolos que acompanhou Jesus quando ele entrou no jardim de Getsêmani na noite em que foi preso. Mas quando Jesus foi traído e detido naquela mesma noite, Pedro e os outros apóstolos o abandonaram e fugiram. Mais tarde, ele mostrou que tinha coragem quando foi até o lugar onde Jesus estava sendo julgado ilegalmente e ficou esperando do lado de fora. Apesar disso, naquela ocasião Pedro ficou com medo e cometeu um erro sério — mentindo, até mesmo negou três vezes que conhecia Jesus! (Mateus 26:69-75) Como Jesus reagiu? O que você teria feito se um amigo achegado o decepcionasse desse modo?

13 Jesus estava disposto a perdoar Pedro. Sabia que ele estava arrasado por causa do pecado. Afinal, o apóstolo arrependido "ficou abatido e se entregou ao choro". (Marcos 14:72) No dia de Sua ressurreição, Jesus apareceu a Pedro provavelmente para o consolar e reanimar. (Lucas 24:34; 1 Coríntios 15:5) Menos de dois meses mais tarde, Jesus deu a Pedro o privilégio de tomar a dianteira em pregar às multidões em Jerusalém no dia de Pentecostes. (Atos 2:14-40) É digno de nota também que Jesus não guardou ressentimento dos apóstolos como grupo por eles o terem abandonado. Pelo contrário, após sua ressurreição ele continuou chamando-os de "meus irmãos". (Mateus 28:10) Não deixa isso claro que Jesus fez muito mais do que apenas falar sobre o perdão?

14 Como discípulos de Cristo, precisamos aprender a perdoar. Por quê? Diferentemente de Jesus, somos imperfeitos — assim como os que talvez pequem contra nós. Vez por outra todos nós tropeçamos em palavras e ações. (Romanos 3:23; Tiago 3:2) Por perdoarmos outros quando há base para misericórdia, abrimos caminho para que os nossos pecados sejam perdoados por Deus. (Marcos 11:25) Então, como podemos demonstrar que estamos dispostos a perdoar os que pecam contra nós? Em muitos casos, o amor nos ajuda a desconsiderar os pecados e as imperfeições menores de outros. (1 Pedro 4:8) Quando os que erram contra nós demonstram arrependimento since-

14. Por que precisamos aprender a perdoar, e como podemos demonstrar que estamos dispostos a fazer isso?

ro, assim como Pedro, devemos certamente imitar a disposição de Jesus de perdoar. Em vez de guardar ressentimento, é muito melhor esquecer o assunto. (Efésios 4:32) Desse modo, contribuímos para a paz da congregação e para a nossa paz mental e emocional. — 1 Pedro 3:11.

Mostrou que confiava nos discípulos

[15] O amor e a confiança andam de mãos dadas. O amor "acredita todas as coisas".* (1 Coríntios 13:7) Motivado pelo amor, Jesus estava disposto a confiar em seus discípulos apesar de suas imperfeições. Tinha confiança neles e sabia que, no coração, eles realmente amavam a Jeová e desejavam fazer Sua vontade. Mesmo quando erravam, Jesus não questionava suas motivações. Por exemplo, quando os apóstolos Tiago e João pediram por meio de sua mãe que Jesus lhes desse um lugar ao seu lado no Reino, Jesus não duvidou de sua lealdade nem lhes tirou o privilégio de ser apóstolos. — Mateus 20:20-28.

[16] Jesus demonstrou que confiava em seus

* Isso sem dúvida não significa que o amor é ingênuo. Antes, significa que não é indevidamente crítico nem desconfiado. O amor nos impede de nos apressarmos em julgar as motivações de outros e de pensar o pior a respeito deles.

15. Por que Jesus confiava nos discípulos apesar das suas imperfeições?
16, 17. Que responsabilidades Jesus deu a seus discípulos?

discípulos por dar-lhes várias responsabilidades. Nas duas vezes em que multiplicou milagrosamente alimento para as multidões, ele delegou aos discípulos a responsabilidade de distribuí-lo. (Mateus 14:19; 15:36) Também designou Pedro e João para ir a Jerusalém e fazer os preparativos para a última Páscoa. Eles providenciaram o cordeiro, o vinho, o pão não fermentado, as ervas amargas e todas as outras coisas necessárias. Aquela tarefa não era algo insignificante, pois celebrar a Páscoa da maneira correta era uma exigência da Lei mosaica, e Jesus tinha de cumprir a Lei. Além disso, mais tarde naquela noite Jesus usou o vinho e o pão não fermentado como importantes símbolos ao instituir a Comemoração da sua morte. — Mateus 26:17-19; Lucas 22:8, 13.

17 Jesus também achou apropriado dar responsabilidades ainda maiores a seus discípulos. Conforme já consideramos, ele delegou a um pequeno grupo de seus seguidores ungidos na Terra a grande responsabilidade de preparar e distribuir o alimento espiritual. (Lucas 12:42-44) Lembre-se também de que ele deu a seus seguidores a importante comissão de pregar e fazer discípulos. (Mateus 28:18-20) Mesmo hoje, embora governe do céu de modo invisível, Jesus confia sua congregação na Terra aos cuidados de homens com qualificações espirituais, como dádivas da parte dele. — Efésios 4:8, 11, 12.

[18] Como podemos imitar o exemplo de Jesus em nossos tratos com outros? Mostrar confiança em nossos irmãos cristãos é uma demonstração de amor. Lembre-se de que o amor é uma qualidade positiva, não negativa. Quando outros nos decepcionarem, o que de vez em quando vai acontecer, o amor nos impedirá de concluir precipitadamente que suas motivações são más. (Mateus 7:1, 2) Se tivermos um conceito positivo sobre nossos irmãos, vamos tratá-los de um modo que os edifique, não que os prejudique. — 1 Tessalonicenses 5:11.

[19] Será que podemos imitar a disposição de Jesus de delegar responsabilidades? Os que estão em posições de responsabilidade na congregação fazem bem em delegar a outros tarefas apropriadas e necessárias, confiando que eles farão o seu melhor. Desse modo, anciãos experientes podem dar treinamento valioso e necessário aos jovens qualificados que 'procuram'

20 Ao demonstrar seu amor por outros, Jesus nos deixou um maravilhoso exemplo. Há muitas maneiras de segui-lo, mas imitar seu amor é a mais importante. No próximo capítulo, consideraremos a maior demonstração de seu amor — sua disposição de dar a vida por nós.

"Ninguém tem maior amor do que este"

"EIS o homem!" Com essas palavras, o governador romano Pôncio Pilatos apresenta Jesus Cristo a uma multidão furiosa que está reunida em frente ao palácio do governador, na manhã da Páscoa de 33 EC. (João 19:5) Há apenas alguns dias, Jesus foi saudado pelas multidões em sua entrada triunfal em Jerusalém como Rei divinamente designado. Agora, no entanto, a multidão hostil o encara de modo muito diferente.

2 Jesus está com uma veste púrpura, semelhante à usada pelos membros da realeza, e tem uma coroa na cabeça. Mas a veste sobre suas costas em carne viva e a coroa de espinhos, colocada com força em sua cabeça, que agora está sangrando, são para zombar de sua posição régia. Instigado pelos principais sacerdotes, o povo rejeita o homem ferido à sua frente. Os sacerdotes gritam: "Para a estaca com ele! Para a estaca com ele!" Cheio de ódio no coração, o povo grita: 'Ele deve morrer!' — João 19:1-7.

1-4. (a) O que acontece quando Pilatos apresenta Jesus à furiosa multidão reunida em frente ao palácio do governador? (b) Como Jesus reage à humilhação e ao sofrimento, e que perguntas importantes surgem?

[3] Com dignidade e coragem, Jesus enfrenta a humilhação e o sofrimento sem se queixar.* Ele está pronto para morrer. Mais tarde naquele dia de Páscoa, ele voluntariamente se sujeita a uma morte dolorosa numa estaca de tortura. — João 19:17, 18, 30.

[4] Por dar a sua vida, Jesus provou ser um verdadeiro amigo para seus seguidores. "Ninguém tem maior amor do que este", disse ele, "que alguém entregue a sua alma a favor de seus amigos". (João 15:13) Isso levanta algumas perguntas importantes. Era realmente necessário que Jesus passasse por todo esse sofrimento e morresse? Por que ele estava disposto a tudo isso? Como podemos imitar seu exemplo, visto que somos "seus amigos" e seguidores?

Por que era necessário que Jesus sofresse e morresse?

[5] Como prometido Messias, Jesus sabia o que o aguardava. Conhecia as muitas profecias das Escrituras Hebraicas que prediziam em detalhes o sofrimento e a morte do Messias. (Isaías 53:3-7, 12; Daniel 9:26)

* Naquele dia os líderes religiosos, e depois os soldados romanos, cuspiram em Jesus. (Mateus 26:59-68; 27:27-30) Ele aturou esse tratamento humilhante sem se queixar, cumprindo a profecia: "Não escondi a minha face de coisas humilhantes e do escarro." — Isaías 50:6.

5. Como Jesus sabia das provações que o aguardavam?

Por mais de uma vez, ele preparou seus discípulos para as provações que enfrentaria. (Marcos 8:31; 9:31) Na viagem a Jerusalém para sua última Páscoa, Jesus disse claramente aos apóstolos: "O Filho do homem será entregue aos principais sacerdotes e aos escribas, e condená-lo-ão à morte e o entregarão a homens das nações, e divertir-se-ão às custas dele, e cuspirão nele, e o açoitarão, e o matarão." (Marcos 10:33, 34) Essas palavras de fato tinham significado. Como já vimos, as pessoas realmente zombaram de Jesus, cuspiram nele, o açoitaram e o mataram.

6 Mas por que era necessário que Jesus sofresse e morresse? Por vários motivos muito importantes. Primeiro, por permanecer leal Jesus provaria sua integridade e defenderia a soberania de Jeová. Lembre-se de que Satanás alegou falsamente que os humanos servem a Deus apenas por interesse egoísta. (Jó 2:1-5) Por permanecer fiel "até à morte . . . numa estaca de tortura", Jesus deu a resposta definitiva à acusação infundada de Satanás. (Filipenses 2:8; Provérbios 27:11) Segundo, o sofrimento e a morte de Jesus serviria para expiar o pecado de outros. (Isaías 53:5, 10; Daniel 9:24) Ele deu "a sua alma como resgate em troca de muitos", abrindo caminho para termos um relacionamento aprovado com Deus. (Mateus 20:28) Terceiro, por suportar todo tipo de dificuldade e sofrimento, Jesus "foi provado em todos os sentidos como nós mesmos". Assim, ele é um Sumo Sacerdote que pode se "compadecer das nossas fraquezas". — Hebreus 2:17, 18; 4:15.

6. Por que era necessário que Jesus sofresse e morresse?

Por que Jesus estava disposto a dar sua vida?

[7] Para ter uma ideia do que Jesus estava disposto a fazer, pense no seguinte: quem deixaria sua família e sua casa e se mudaria para um país estrangeiro sabendo que não seria aceito pela maioria das pessoas daquele lugar, que estaria sujeito a humilhação e sofrimento, e que por fim seria assassinado? Agora pense no que Jesus fez. Antes de vir à Terra, ele tinha uma posição privilegiada no céu ao lado de seu Pai. Mas voluntariamente deixou seu lar celestial e veio como humano à Terra. Ele fez isso sabendo que seria rejeitado pela maioria, que teria de enfrentar humilhação cruel, muito sofrimento e uma morte dolorosa. (Filipenses 2:5-7) O que o motivou a fazer esse sacrifício?

[8] Acima de tudo, Jesus foi motivado por profundo

7. Do que Jesus abriu mão ao vir à Terra?
8, 9. O que motivou Jesus a dar sua vida?

amor a seu Pai, Jeová. Foi esse amor que o fez perseverar. Também fez com que ele se preocupasse com o nome e a reputação do Pai. (Mateus 6:9; João 17:1-6, 26) Mais do que qualquer outra coisa, Jesus queria ver o nome de seu Pai livre do vitupério lançado sobre ele. Assim, para Jesus, sofrer por causa da justiça foi a maior honra e o maior privilégio que poderia ter, pois sabia que sua integridade seria muito importante na santificação do sublime nome de seu Pai. — 1 Crônicas 29:13.

9 Jesus tinha outro motivo para sacrificar a sua vida — amor pela humanidade. Esse amor existe desde o início da história humana. Veja como Jesus se sentia muito antes de vir à Terra: "As coisas de que eu gostava estavam com os filhos dos homens." (Provérbios 8:30, 31) Esse amor ficou evidente quando ele esteve na Terra. Conforme vimos nos três capítulos anteriores, Jesus demonstrou de muitos modos seu amor pelos humanos, e em especial por seus seguidores. Em 14 de nisã de 33 EC ele voluntariamente deu a sua vida por nós. (João 10:11) De fato, essa foi a maior demonstração de seu amor por nós. Será que devemos imitá-lo nesse sentido? Devemos, sim. Na verdade, recebemos um mandamento para fazer isso.

‘Amem-se uns aos outros assim como eu os amei’

[10] Na noite antes de sua morte, Jesus disse a seus discípulos mais achegados: “Eu vos dou um novo mandamento, que vos ameis uns aos outros; assim como eu vos amei, que também vos ameis uns aos outros. Por meio disso saberão todos que sois meus discípulos, se tiverdes amor entre vós.” (João 13:34, 35) ‘Amar uns aos outros’ — por que isso é “um novo mandamento”? A Lei mosaica já determinava: “Tens de amar o teu próximo como a ti mesmo.” (Levítico 19:18) O novo mandamento, porém, exige um amor ainda mais intenso, um amor que nos motiva a dar a vida por outros. O próprio Jesus deixou isso claro ao dizer: “Este é o meu mandamento, que vos ameis uns aos outros, assim como eu vos amei. Ninguém tem maior amor do que este, que alguém entregue a sua alma a favor de seus amigos.” (João 15:12, 13) Na verdade, o novo mandamento diz: “Ame aos outros não como a si mesmo, porém, mais do que a si mesmo.” Por meio de sua vida e de sua morte Jesus demonstrou o que esse amor realmente significa.

10, 11. Qual é o novo mandamento que Jesus deu a seus seguidores, o que envolve, e por que é importante obedecer a ele?

[11] Por que é importante que obedeçamos ao novo mandamento? Lembre-se de que Jesus disse: "Por meio disso [amor abnegado] saberão todos que sois meus discípulos." Sim, o amor abnegado nos identifica como cristãos verdadeiros. Podemos comparar esse amor a um crachá. Ao assistirem a seus congressos todo ano, as Testemunhas de Jeová usam crachás. Eles servem como identificação, informando o nome e a congregação da pessoa. O amor abnegado uns pelos outros é o "crachá" que identifica os cristãos verdadeiros. Em outras palavras, esse amor deve ser tão evidente a ponto de servir como uma identificação, um crachá, indicando aos que nos observam que realmente somos verdadeiros seguidores de Cristo. Cada um de nós deve se perguntar: 'Será que o meu "crachá", o amor abnegado, é bem evidente em minha vida?'

O que está envolvido no amor abnegado?

[12] Como seguidores de Jesus, precisamos amar uns aos outros assim como ele nos amou. Isso envolve estarmos dispostos a fazer sacrifícios por nossos irmãos cristãos. Até que ponto devemos estar dispostos a fazer isso? A Bíblia nos diz: “Por meio disso chegamos a conhecer o amor, porque esse entregou a sua alma por nós; e nós temos a obrigação de entregar as nossas almas pelos nossos irmãos.” (1 João 3:16) Assim como Jesus, devemos estar dispostos a morrer uns pelos outros se necessário. Em época de perseguição, preferimos sacrificar nossa própria vida a trair nossos irmãos espirituais e colocar sua vida em risco. Em países divididos por causa de diferenças raciais ou étnicas, arriscamos a nossa própria vida para proteger os irmãos, não importa sua raça ou etnia. Quando nações entram em guerra, preferimos ser presos e até morrer a guerrear contra nossos irmãos — ou qualquer outra pessoa. — João 17:14, 16; 1 João 3:10-12.

12, 13. (a) Até que ponto devemos estar dispostos a fazer sacrifícios para demonstrar amor uns pelos outros? (b) O que significa ser abnegado?

13 Estarmos dispostos a dar a vida pelos nossos irmãos não é a única maneira de mostrar amor abnegado. Afinal, poucos de nós talvez tenhamos de chegar a esse ponto. Mas, se amamos nossos irmãos a ponto de dar a vida por eles, não deveríamos estar dispostos a fazer pequenos sacrifícios, nos esforçando a ajudá-los já agora? Sermos abnegados significa abrir mão de vantagens pessoais ou confortos em benefício de outros. Colocamos os interesses e o bem-estar deles à frente dos nossos, mesmo que isso não seja o melhor para nós. (1 Coríntios 10:24) De que maneiras práticas podemos mostrar amor abnegado?

Amor abnegado na congregação e na família

[14] Os anciãos fazem muitos sacrifícios para 'pastorear o rebanho'. (1 Pedro 5:2, 3) Além de cuidar da família, precisam tirar tempo à noite ou nos fins de semana para cuidar de assuntos congregacionais, como preparar discursos para as reuniões, fazer visitas de pastoreio e cuidar de casos judicativos. Muitos anciãos fazem outros sacrifícios, trabalhando arduamente em assembleias e congressos e servindo como membros de Comissões de Ligação com Hospitais, Comissões Regionais de Construção e Grupos de Visitas a Pacientes. Anciãos, nunca se esqueçam de que por servir com um espírito disposto — gastando seu tempo, energia e recursos para pastorear o rebanho — vocês estão demonstrando amor abnegado. (2 Coríntios 12:15) Seus esforços altruístas são apreciados não só por Jeová, mas também pela congregação que vocês pastoreiam. — Filipenses 2:29; Hebreus 6:10.

14. (a) Que sacrifícios os anciãos fazem? (b) O que você acha dos esforços dos anciãos abnegados de sua congregação?

[15] Que dizer das esposas dos anciãos? Não é verdade que essas mulheres apoiadoras também fazem sacrifícios para que seus maridos possam cuidar do rebanho? Com certeza é um sacrifício para a esposa quando seu marido tem de dedicar o tempo que poderia gastar com a família aos assuntos congregacionais. Pense também nas esposas dos superintendentes viajantes e nos sacrifícios que fazem para acompanhar seus maridos de congregação em congregação e de circuito em circuito. Elas abrem mão de ter seu próprio lar e talvez tenham de dormir numa cama diferente cada semana. As esposas que voluntariamente põem os interesses da congregação à frente dos seus próprios interesses merecem elogios por suas generosas expressões de amor abnegado. — Filipenses 2:3, 4.

[16] Como podemos demonstrar amor abnegado na família? Pais e mães, vocês fazem muitos sacrifícios para cuidar de seus filhos e criá-los "na disciplina e na regulação mental de Jeová". (Efésios 6:4) Talvez tenham de trabalhar por longas horas em serviços cansativos só para seus filhos terem o que comer, o que vestir e onde morar. Vocês preferem se privar de algumas coisas a ver seus filhos passar necessidade. Também fazem muito esforço para estudar com seus filhos, levá-los às reuniões cristãs e acompanhá-los no ministério de campo. (Deuteronômio 6:6, 7) Seu amor abnegado agrada o Originador da família e pode significar vida eterna para seus filhos. — Provérbios 22:6; Efésios 3:14, 15.

[17] Maridos, como vocês podem imitar a Jesus e mostrar amor abnegado? A Bíblia responde: "Maridos, continuai a amar as vossas esposas, assim como também o Cristo amou a congregação e se entregou por ela." (Efésios 5:25) Conforme vimos, Jesus amou tanto seus seguidores que morreu por eles. O marido cristão imita a atitude altruísta de Jesus, que "não agradou a si mesmo". (Romanos 15:3) Ele põe as necessidades e os interesses de sua esposa à frente dos seus. Não é rígido, insistindo que as coisas sejam feitas do seu modo, mas está disposto a ceder quando não há nenhum princípio bíblico envolvido. O marido que mostra amor abnegado tem a aprovação de Jeová e ganha o amor e o respeito da esposa e dos filhos.

17. Como os maridos cristãos podem imitar o altruísmo de Jesus?

O que você fará?

[18] Obedecer ao novo mandamento de amar uns aos outros não é fácil, mas temos um motivo muito forte para fazer isso. Paulo escreveu: “O amor de Cristo nos compele, porque foi isso o que julgamos, que um só homem morreu por todos . . . , e ele morreu por todos, para que os que vivem não vivessem mais para si mesmos, mas para aquele que morreu por eles e foi levantado.” (2 Coríntios 5:14, 15) Visto que Jesus morreu por nós, não deveríamos nos sentir motivados a viver para ele? Podemos fazer isso por seguir o seu exemplo de amor abnegado.

[19] Jesus não estava exagerando quando disse: “Ninguém tem maior amor do que este, que alguém entregue a sua alma a favor de seus amigos.” (João 15:13) A disposição de Jesus de dar a sua alma em nosso favor foi a maior demonstração de seu amor por nós. Mas houve alguém que mostrou um amor ainda maior. Jesus explicou: “Deus amou tanto o mundo, que deu o seu Filho unigênito, a fim de que todo aquele que nele exercer fé não seja destruído, mas tenha vida eterna." (João 3:16) Deus nos ama tanto que deu seu Filho como resgate, tornando possível que fôssemos libertados do pecado e da morte. (Efésios 1:7) O resgate é um maravilhoso presente de Jeová, mas ele não nos obriga a aceitá-lo.

[20] Aceitar esse presente de Jeová depende apenas de nós. Como? Por "exercer fé" em seu Filho. No entanto, isso não envolve apenas dizer que temos fé. Mostramos nossa fé por meio de ações, pelo modo como vivemos. (Tiago 2:26) Demonstramos nossa fé em Jesus Cristo por segui-lo dia após dia. Fazer isso resultará em ricas bênçãos agora e no futuro, conforme será explicado no último capítulo deste livro.

‘Continue a seguir-me’

ONZE homens estão em pé numa montanha olhando com muito carinho e admiração outra pessoa que está ali. Apesar de ter forma humana, a pessoa que eles observam na verdade é o ressuscitado Jesus, que agora é novamente o Filho espiritual mais poderoso de Jeová. Jesus reúne seus apóstolos para um último encontro ali no monte das Oliveiras.

[2] Esse monte, que faz parte de uma cadeia de colinas calcárias, fica do outro lado do vale do Cédron para quem olha de Jerusalém. O lugar com certeza traz boas lembranças para Jesus. É nas encostas desse monte que fica a cidade de Betânia, onde ele ressuscitou Lázaro. Não muito longe dali fica a cidade de Betfagé, de onde Jesus saiu para fazer sua entrada triunfal em Jerusalém há apenas algumas semanas. O monte das Oliveiras também é o local onde provavelmente fica o jardim de Getsêmani; Jesus passou momentos de grande sofrimento ali antes de ser preso. Agora, nesse mesmo monte, ele se prepara para partir e deixar seus amigos e seguidores mais achegados. Ele lhes diz algumas palavras bondosas de despedida e, então, começa a subir em direção ao céu! Os apóstolos ficam ali paralisados, observando seu amado Mestre ascender ao céu. Por fim uma nuvem o encobre e eles não o veem mais. — Atos 1:6-12.

3 Ao imaginar essa cena triste, mas ao mesmo tempo alegre, tem a impressão de que esse é o final da história de Jesus? Na verdade não é. Conforme dois anjos dizem aos apóstolos, a história de Jesus está longe de terminar. (Atos 1:10, 11) De muitas maneiras, sua partida para o céu é apenas o começo. A Palavra de Deus não nos deixa sem informações sobre o que aconteceu com Jesus depois disso. Aprender sobre a vida dele após sua partida é importante. Por quê? Lembre-se das palavras de Jesus a Pedro: "Continua a seguir-me." (João 21:19, 22) Precisamos obedecer a essa ordem não apenas temporariamente, mas durante toda a nossa vida. Para isso, é necessário saber o que o nosso Mestre está fazendo agora e que designações ele recebeu no céu.

A vida de Jesus após sua partida

[4] As Escrituras não dizem nada a respeito da chegada de Jesus ao céu, das boas-vindas que recebeu nem do alegre reencontro com seu Pai. No entanto, a Bíblia já dizia com bastante antecedência o que ocorreria no céu logo após o retorno de Jesus. Durante mais de 15 séculos, os judeus observaram regularmente uma cerimônia sagrada. Uma vez por ano, o sumo sacerdote entrava no Santíssimo do templo e aspergia o sangue dos sacrifícios do Dia da Expiação diante da arca do pacto. Nesse dia, o sumo sacerdote prefigurava o Messias. Jesus cumpriu o significado profético daquela cerimônia uma vez para sempre quando retornou ao céu. Ele entrou na majestosa presença de Jeová — o lugar mais santo do Universo — e apresentou a seu Pai o valor de seu sacrifício de resgate. (Hebreus 9:11, 12, 24) Será que Jeová aceitou esse sacrifício?

[5] Encontramos a resposta ao considerar o que aconteceu poucos dias depois da ascensão de Jesus. Um pequeno grupo de cerca de 120 cristãos estava reunido

4. Como a Bíblia revelou com antecedência o que ocorreria no céu após o retorno de Jesus?

5, 6. (a) O que mostrou que Jeová tinha aceitado o sacrifício de resgate de Cristo? (b) Quem se beneficia do resgate, e como?

no andar de cima de uma casa em Jerusalém quando, de repente, houve um barulho como o de uma forte rajada de vento. Línguas como que de fogo apareceram sobre a cabeça deles. Eles ficaram cheios de espírito santo e começaram a falar em vários idiomas. (Atos 2:1-4) Esse acontecimento significou o nascimento de uma nova nação, o Israel espiritual, que era a nova "raça escolhida" de Deus e o novo "sacerdócio real" para executar a vontade divina na Terra. (1 Pedro 2:9) Era evidente que Jeová Deus tinha aceitado e aprovado o sacrifício de resgate de Cristo. Esse derramamento do espírito santo estava entre as primeiras bênçãos que o sacrifício tornou possível.

6 Desde então, o sacrifício de Cristo tem beneficiado seus seguidores no mundo todo. Independentemente de fazermos parte do ungido "pequeno rebanho", que governará com Cristo no céu, ou das "outras ovelhas", que viverão sob o seu governo na Terra, todos nós nos beneficiamos de seu sacrifício. (Lucas 12:32; João 10:16) Ele é a base para a nossa esperança e para o perdão dos nossos pecados. Enquanto continuamos a "exercer fé" nesse resgate, seguindo Jesus dia após dia, podemos ter uma consciência limpa e uma maravilhosa esperança para o futuro. — João 3:16.

[7] O que Jesus tem feito no céu desde que voltou para lá? Ele recebeu muita autoridade. (Mateus 28:18) Prova disso é que Jeová o designou para governar a congregação cristã, uma designação que ele tem cumprido de modo amoroso e justo. (Colossenses 1:13) Conforme predito, Jesus provê homens responsáveis para cuidar das necessidades do rebanho. (Efésios 4:8) Por exemplo, ele escolheu Paulo como "apóstolo para as nações" e o designou para levar as boas novas a lugares distantes. (Romanos 11:13; 1 Timóteo 2:7) Perto do fim do primeiro século, Jesus enviou mensagens de elogio, conselho e correção a sete congregações na província romana da Ásia. (Revelação [Apocalipse], capítulos 2-3) Você reconhece Jesus como o Cabeça da congregação cristã? (Efésios 5:23) Nesse caso, continuar a segui-lo significa promover um espírito de obediência e cooperação em sua congregação.

[8] Jesus recebeu ainda mais autoridade em 1914. Naquele ano, ele foi designado Rei do Reino messiânico de Jeová. Quando seu governo começou, "irrompeu uma guerra no céu". O resultado? Satanás e seus demônios foram lançados para a Terra, desencadeando uma era de dor e sofrimento. Guerras, crimes, terrorismo, doenças, terremotos e fome afligem a humanidade atualmente e são um lembrete de que Jesus está governando no céu neste exato momento. Satanás ainda é "o governante deste mundo", mas por pouco tempo. (Revelação 12:7-12; João 12:31; Mateus 24:3-7; Lucas 21:11) Jesus está dando às pessoas em toda a Terra a oportunidade de aceitar o Seu governo.

9 É imprescindível que tomemos a nossa posição ao lado do Rei messiânico. Em todas as nossas decisões, devemos buscar sua aprovação, não a deste mundo corrompido. Ao passo que o "Rei dos reis e Senhor dos senhores" inspeciona a humanidade, seu coração justo fica cheio de indignação, mas também transborda de alegria. (Revelação 19:16) Por quê?

A indignação e a alegria do Rei messiânico

10 Assim como o Pai, nosso Mestre é feliz por natureza. (1 Timóteo 1:11) Como homem, Jesus não foi crítico nem difícil de agradar. Mas muita coisa que acontece hoje na Terra deve enchê-lo de indignação justa. Ele com certeza está indignado com as organizações religiosas que falsamente afirmam representá-lo. Ele predisse: "Nem todo o que me disser: 'Senhor, Senhor', entrará no reino dos céus, senão aquele que fizer a vontade de meu Pai, que está nos céus. Muitos me dirão naquele dia: 'Senhor, Senhor, . . . não fizemos muitas obras poderosas em teu nome?' Contudo, eu lhes confessarei então: Nunca vos conheci! Afastai-vos de mim, vós obreiros do que é contra a lei." — Mateus 7:21-23.

---

10. Como Jesus é por natureza, mas o que o enche de indignação justa?

11 Muitos que hoje se autodenominam cristãos talvez achem essas palavras intrigantes. Por que Jesus diria essas palavras fortes a pessoas que fazem "muitas obras poderosas" em seu nome? As igrejas da cristandade têm apoiado instituições de caridade, ajudado os pobres, construído hospitais e escolas, e realizado muitas outras coisas. Para entender por que Jesus está indignado com elas, considere uma ilustração.

12 Certo pai e certa mãe precisam viajar. Visto que não podem levar seus filhos junto, providenciam que alguém tome conta deles. Suas instruções são simples: "Tome conta das crianças, dê-lhes comida, mantenhaas limpas e cuide para que nada lhes aconteça." Mas quando os pais voltam da viagem, ficam chocados ao ver as crianças com fome, sujas, doentes e tristes. Elas choram para receber os cuidados da pessoa que devia estar cuidando delas, mas são ignoradas. Por quê? Onde está essa pessoa? No alto de uma escada, lavando as janelas da casa. Furiosos, os pais pedem uma explicação. A pessoa diz: "Mas vejam tudo o que eu fiz! Limpei as janelas e fiz consertos na casa; tudo para vocês!" Será que isso diminuiria a indignação dos pais? Dificilmente. Eles não haviam pedido que a pessoa fizesse aqueles serviços; só queriam que ela tomasse conta das crianças. Os pais ficariam furiosos por ela não ter seguido suas instruções.

13 É assim que a cristandade tem agido. Jesus instruiu seus representantes a alimentar as pessoas em sentido espiritual por ensiná-las a verdade da Palavra de Deus e ajudá-las a permanecer espiritualmente limpas. (João 21:15-17) Mas a cristandade deixou de obedecer a essa orientação. Com isso, as pessoas estão famintas em sentido espiritual, confusas por causa de falsidades e não conhecem as verdades básicas da Bíblia. (Isaías 65:13; Amós 8:11) Até mesmo as tentativas da cristandade de melhorar o mundo não são desculpa para sua desobediência deliberada. Afinal, este sistema mundial é como uma casa que está destinada à demolição. A Palavra de Deus deixa claro que em breve o sistema mundial de Satanás será destruído. — 1 João 2:15-17.

14 Por outro lado, Jesus deve ficar muito feliz ao olhar desde o céu e ver que milhões de pessoas estão cumprindo a comissão de fazer discípulos que ele deu a seus seguidores antes de partir. (Mateus 28:19, 20) Que privilégio é contribuir para a alegria do Rei messiânico! Estejamos decididos a nunca desistir de apoiar "o escravo fiel e discreto". (Mateus 24:45) Ao contrário dos clérigos da cristandade, esse pequeno grupo de irmãos ungidos tem obedientemente dirigido a obra de pregação e fielmente alimentado as ovelhas de Cristo.

15 Podemos ter certeza de que o Rei fica indignado de ver a falta de amor que existe hoje na Terra. Lembre-se de que os fariseus criticavam Jesus por ele fazer curas no sábado. Eles eram tão insensíveis e obstinados que não conseguiam enxergar além da sua interpretação bitolada da Lei mosaica e da lei oral. Os milagres de Jesus resultavam em muitos benefícios. Mas a alegria, o alívio e o fortalecimento da fé que esses milagres proporcionavam não significavam nada para aqueles homens. Como Jesus se sentia em relação a eles? Em certa ocasião, Jesus olhou 'para eles com indignação, profundamente contristado com a insensibilidade dos seus corações'. — Marcos 3:5.

[16] Hoje em dia, Jesus vê muito mais coisas que o deixam "profundamente contristado". Os líderes da cristandade estão cegados por sua devoção a tradições e doutrinas contrárias às Escrituras. Além disso, odeiam a pregação das boas novas do Reino de Deus. Em muitas partes do mundo, os clérigos têm patrocinado uma perseguição cruel contra os cristãos que se empenham sinceramente em pregar a mensagem que Jesus pregou. (João 16:2; Revelação 18:4, 24) Ao mesmo tempo, esses clérigos incentivam seus seguidores a ir à guerra e tirar a vida de outros — como se isso fosse agradar a Jesus Cristo!

[17] Em contraste com isso, os seguidores verdadeiros de Jesus esforçam-se em mostrar amor ao próximo.

17. Como os seguidores verdadeiros de Jesus alegram seu coração?

Assim como ele, transmitem as boas novas a "toda sorte de homens", apesar de oposição. (1 Timóteo 2:4) E o amor que mostram uns aos outros é notável; é seu principal sinal identificador. (João 13:34, 35) Por tratar seus irmãos cristãos com amor, respeito e dignidade, estão realmente seguindo a Jesus e alegrando o coração do Rei messiânico!

18 Nunca nos esqueçamos também de que o nosso Mestre se entristece quando seus seguidores não perseveram, deixando que seu amor por Jeová esfrie e desistindo de servi-Lo. (Revelação 2:4, 5) Mas Jesus se alegra com os que perseveram até o fim. (Mateus 24:13) Assim, sempre tenhamos em mente a ordem de Cristo: 'Continue a seguir-me.' (João 21:19) Vamos ver algumas bênçãos que o Rei messiânico concederá aos que perseverarem até o fim.

Bênçãos aos fiéis servos do Rei

19 Seguir a Jesus é o caminho para uma vida verdadeiramente abençoada desde já. Se aceitarmos a Cristo como nosso Mestre, seguindo sua orientação e usando seu exemplo como nosso guia, obteremos coisas muito valiosas que as pessoas em todo o mundo procuram, mas não encontram. Seremos abençoados com atividades que darão objetivo à nossa vida, uma família de companheiros cristãos unida num verdadeiro vínculo de amor, uma consciência limpa e paz mental. Em resumo, teremos uma vida feliz e gratificante. E isso não é tudo.

[20] Jesus é o "Pai Eterno" que Jeová providenciou para os que têm a esperança de viver para sempre na Terra. Ele substitui o pai humano, Adão, que frustrou completamente os seus descendentes. (Isaías 9:6, 7) Por aceitarmos a Jesus como nosso "Pai Eterno", exercendo fé nele, temos a esperança certa de vida eterna. Além disso, nos achegamos cada vez mais a Jeová Deus. Conforme aprendemos, nos esforçar a seguir o exemplo de Jesus dia após dia é o melhor modo de obedecermos ao mandamento divino: "Tornai-vos imitadores de Deus, como filhos amados." — Efésios 5:1.

[21] Ao passo que imitamos a Jesus e seu Pai, Jeová, temos um privilégio maravilhoso. Refletimos uma brilhante luz. Num mundo mergulhado em escuridão, onde bilhões são enganados por Satanás e imitam suas características, nós, que seguimos a Cristo, irradiamos reflexos da luz mais brilhante que existe — a luz das verdades bíblicas, das excelentes qualidades cristãs, da verdadeira alegria, da paz genuína e do amor verdadeiro. Ao mesmo tempo, nos achegamos a Jeová. Esse é o alvo mais sublime, mais elevado, que uma criatura inteligente pode ter.

[22] Pense também no que Jeová deseja fazer por você no futuro, por meio do Rei messiânico. Em breve, o Rei travará uma guerra justa contra o sistema perverso de Satanás. A vitória de Jesus é garantida! (Revelação 19:11-15) Após isso, Cristo dará início ao seu Reinado Milenar sobre a Terra. Seu governo celestial concederá o benefício do resgate a todos os humanos fiéis, levando-os à perfeição. Imagine-se cheio de saúde, sempre jovem e forte, trabalhando alegremente com uma unida família humana para transformar a Terra num paraíso! No fim do milênio, Jesus devolverá o reinado a seu Pai. (1 Coríntios 15:24) Se você continuar seguindo a Cristo lealmente, ganhará uma bênção tão maravilhosa que é difícil até de imaginar: "a liberdade gloriosa dos filhos de Deus"! (Romanos

Como Ser Seguidor de Jesus?

- O que o ajudará a harmonizar seu modo de pensar com o de Cristo? — 1 Coríntios 2:13-16.
- De que maneiras você pretende seguir mais de perto a Jesus? — 1 Pedro 2:21.
- Como você poderá evitar o perigo de deixar que seu amor por Jesus esfrie? — Revelação 3:14-18.
- Como você pode mostrar que realmente deseja que Cristo governe sobre a Terra no futuro próximo? — Revelação 22:17, 20.

8:21) Sim, teremos todas as bênçãos que Adão e Eva tiveram, mas perderam. Como filhos e filhas terrestres de Jeová, estaremos livres para sempre da mancha do pecado de Adão. De fato, "não haverá mais morte". — Revelação 21:4.

[23] Lembra-se daquele jovem governante rico que mencionamos no Capítulo 1? Ele rejeitou o convite de Jesus: "Vem ser meu seguidor." (Marcos 10:17-22) Nunca caia no mesmo erro! Aceite o convite de Jesus com alegria e entusiasmo. Esteja decidido a perseverar, a continuar seguindo o Pastor Excelente dia após dia, ano após ano, e a viver para vê-lo cumprir finalmente todos os propósitos de Jeová de modo glorioso!

"ENCHESTES JERUSALÉM COM O VOSSO ENSINO"

ATOS 5:28

A partir do derramamento do espírito santo no Pentecostes de 33 EC, os discípulos de Jesus empenharam-se na obra de dar testemunho a respeito do Reino de Deus. Nesta seção, vamos analisar o emocionante relato do nascimento do cristianismo, do testemunho cada vez mais intenso em Jerusalém e da posição corajosa dos apóstolos diante de crescente oposição.

CAPÍTULO 2

“Sereis testemunhas de mim”

Como Jesus preparou seus apóstolos para tomar a liderança na obra de pregação

Baseado em Atos 1:1-26

ELES não querem que tudo aquilo acabe. Para os apóstolos, as últimas semanas foram emocionantes! Com a ressurreição de Jesus, eles passaram da profunda tristeza à intensa alegria. Por 40 dias, Jesus apareceu repetidas vezes, dando instrução e encorajamento adicionais a seus seguidores. Hoje, porém, é o dia em que fará isso pela última vez.

[2] Parados no monte das Oliveiras, os apóstolos escutam cada palavra de Jesus com muita atenção. Quando Jesus termina, o que para os apóstolos parece rápido demais, ele levanta as mãos e os abençoa. Então, começa a subir ao céu. Seus seguidores mantêm os olhos fixos em Jesus à medida que ele ascende ao céu. Por fim, uma nuvem o encobre. Ele desaparece, mas os apóstolos continuam olhando para o céu. — Luc. 24:50; Atos 1:9, 10.

[3] Essa cena marcou um momento decisivo na vida

1-3. Como Jesus partiu da Terra, e que perguntas surgem?

dos apóstolos. O que fariam agora que seu Mestre, Jesus Cristo, tinha ascendido ao céu? Podemos ter certeza de que Jesus os havia preparado para continuarem a obra que ele começou. Como ele os equipou para essa designação importante, e como os apóstolos agiram? De que maneira isso afeta os cristãos hoje? O primeiro capítulo do livro de Atos contém respostas animadoras a essas perguntas.

"Muitas provas positivas" (Atos 1:1-5)

[4] Lucas começa seu relato dirigindo-se a Teófilo, o mesmo homem a quem escreveu seu Evangelho.* Nos versículos iniciais, Lucas faz um resumo dos eventos registrados no fim do seu Evangelho, usando palavras diferentes e fornecendo mais detalhes. Assim, ele deixa claro que o livro de Atos é uma continuação do seu relato anterior.

[5] O que manteria forte a fé dos seguidores de Jesus?

* Em seu Evangelho, Lucas trata Teófilo por "excelentíssimo", levando alguns a concluir que Teófilo pode ter sido um homem importante que ainda não havia se tornado cristão. No livro de Atos, porém, Lucas dirige-se a ele simplesmente com as palavras "ó Teófilo". Alguns estudiosos sugerem que Teófilo se tornou cristão depois de ler o Evangelho de Lucas e que, por isso, Lucas não mais se dirige a ele como "excelentíssimo", mas o trata como irmão espiritual.

4. Como Lucas começa seu relato no livro de Atos?
5, 6. (a) O que ajudaria os seguidores de Jesus a manter forte a fé? (b) Por que podemos dizer que hoje a fé dos cristãos também se baseia em "muitas provas positivas"?

Lemos em Atos 1:3: "[Jesus] mostrou-se . . . vivo, por meio de muitas provas positivas." Na Bíblia, apenas Lucas, "o médico amado", usou o termo traduzido "provas positivas". (Col. 4:14) Esse termo era usado em documentos de medicina e significa "evidências demonstráveis, conclusivas e confiáveis". Jesus forneceu provas desse tipo. Ele apareceu muitas vezes a seus seguidores — em algumas ocasiões, a um ou dois deles; em outras, a todos os apóstolos; e em uma ocasião, a mais de 500 discípulos. (1 Cor. 15:3-6) Provas realmente incontestáveis!

[6] Hoje, de forma similar, a fé dos cristãos verdadeiros baseia-se em "muitas provas positivas". Será que há provas de que Jesus viveu na Terra, morreu por nossos pecados e foi ressuscitado? Com certeza! Relatos confiáveis de testemunhas oculares, registrados na Palavra inspirada de Deus, fornecem todas as provas convincentes de que precisamos. Estudar esses relatos e orar a respeito deles pode fortalecer muito a nossa fé. Lembre-se: provas conclusivas podem fazer a diferença entre a genuína fé e a mera credulidade. A genuína fé é essencial para ganhar a vida eterna. — João 3:16.

[7] Jesus também 'contou a seus discípulos as coisas a

7. Que exemplo Jesus deixou aos seus seguidores quanto a ensinar e pregar?

respeito do reino de Deus'. Por exemplo, ele explicou profecias que mostravam que o Messias teria de sofrer e morrer. (Luc. 24:13-32, 46, 47) Por esclarecer assim seu papel como Messias, Jesus deu ênfase ao Reino de Deus, pois ele era o Rei-Designado. O Reino sempre foi o tema da pregação de Jesus, e esse também é o tema da pregação dos seus seguidores hoje. — Mat. 24:14; Luc. 4:43.

"Até à parte mais distante da terra" (Atos 1:6-12)

8 No monte das Oliveiras, os apóstolos reuniram-se com Jesus pela última vez na Terra. Com grande expectativa, perguntaram-lhe: "Senhor, é neste tempo que restabeleces o reino a Israel?" (Atos 1:6) Nessa pergunta, os apóstolos demonstraram que tinham duas ideias incorretas. Primeiro, eles achavam que o Reino de Deus seria restaurado ao Israel carnal. Segundo, eles esperavam que o prometido Reino começasse seu domínio imediatamente, 'naquele tempo'. Como Jesus os ajudou a corrigir o modo como pensavam?

9 Jesus sem dúvida sabia que a primeira ideia seria logo corrigida. Na realidade, seus seguidores testemu-nhariam o nascimento de uma nova nação, o Israel espiritual, apenas dez dias mais tarde. Em breve, Deus deixaria de ter tratos com o Israel carnal. Quanto à segunda ideia, Jesus bondosamente lhes lembrou: “Não vos cabe obter conhecimento dos tempos ou das épocas que o Pai tem colocado sob a sua própria jurisdição.” (Atos 1:7) Jeová é o Grande Cronometrista. Antes de morrer, o próprio Jesus disse que, naquela época, nem mesmo o Filho sabia ‘o dia e a hora’ em que o fim viria, mas “unicamente o Pai”. (Mat. 24:36) Hoje, do mesmo modo, quando cristãos se preocupam demais com a data do fim deste sistema de coisas, eles estão, na verdade, preocupando-se com algo que não lhes “cabe”.

10 Mesmo assim, devemos tomar cuidado para não ter um conceito negativo dos apóstolos de Jesus, que eram homens de muita fé. Humildemente, eles aceitaram a correção que receberam de Jesus. Além disso, embora a pergunta deles se originasse de ideias incorretas, ela também revelava uma boa atitude. Jesus havia aconselhado seus seguidores repetidas vezes: “Mantende-vos vigilantes.” (Mat. 24:42; 25:13; 26:41) Eles estavam espiritualmente alertas, bem atentos a evidências de que Jeová agiria em breve. Precisamos cultivar essa mesma atitude hoje. Na verdade, estes "últimos dias" decisivos tornam ainda mais urgente que façamos isso. — 2 Tim. 3:1-5.

[11] Jesus lembrou aos apóstolos qual deveria ser a principal preocupação deles. Ele disse: "Ao chegar sobre vós o espírito santo, recebereis poder e sereis testemunhas de mim tanto em Jerusalém como em toda a Judeia e Samaria, e até à parte mais distante da terra." (Atos 1:8) A ressurreição de Jesus seria proclamada primeiro em Jerusalém, onde as pessoas o tinham entregado à morte. Dali, a mensagem seria espalhada por toda a Judeia, Samaria e então mais além.

[12] Apropriadamente, foi só depois de repetir a promessa de enviar o espírito santo para ajudar seus seguidores que Jesus falou a respeito da comissão de pregar. Essa é uma das mais de 40 vezes que a expressão "espírito santo" ocorre no livro de Atos. Vez após vez, esse livro emocionante deixa claro que não podemos fazer a vontade de Jeová sem a ajuda do espírito santo. Como é importante, então, orarmos regularmente, pedindo esse espírito! (Luc. 11:13) Hoje precisamos dele mais do que nunca.

[13] O significado do que constitui 'a parte mais distante da terra' mudou desde aqueles dias. Mesmo assim, conforme vimos no capítulo anterior, as Testemunhas de Jeová aceitaram de coração a comissão de pregar, pois sabem que Deus deseja que todo tipo de pessoa ouça as boas novas de Seu Reino. (1 Tim. 2:3, 4) Você está empenhado nessa obra que salva vidas? Não há obra mais gratificante e satisfatória do que essa. Jeová lhe dará a força necessária para realizá-la. O livro de Atos lhe mostrará que métodos usar e que atitude desenvolver para ser bem-sucedido.

[14] Como mencionado no início deste capítulo, Jesus subiu ao céu e desapareceu. Apesar disso, os 11 apóstolos continuaram parados, olhando para cima. Por fim, dois anjos apareceram e, com brandura, repreenderam os apóstolos: "Homens da Galileia, por que estais parados aí olhando para o céu? Este Jesus, que dentre vós foi acolhido em cima, no céu, virá assim da mesma maneira em que o observastes ir para o céu." (Atos 1:11) Será que os anjos queriam dizer que Jesus retornaria no mesmo corpo, conforme alguns religiosos ensinam? Não. Como sabemos disso?

[15] Os anjos disseram que Jesus voltaria "da mesma maneira", não na mesma forma.* De que maneira Jesus partiu? Quando os anjos falaram, não era mais possível vê-lo. Apenas os apóstolos perceberam que Jesus havia deixado a Terra e estava indo para o céu. Jesus voltaria de maneira similar. E assim aconteceu. Hoje, somente os que têm discernimento espiritual percebem que Jesus está presente com poder régio. (Luc. 17:20) Precisamos discernir as evidências da presença de Cristo e falar sobre elas a outras pessoas para que também vejam a urgência dos tempos em que vivemos.

"Indica qual destes . . . tens escolhido" (Atos 1:13-26)

[16] Diante de tudo o que aconteceu, não é de admirar que os apóstolos tenham 'voltado para Jerusalém com grande alegria'. (Luc. 24:52) Mas como eles reagiriam às orientações e instruções de Cristo? Em Atos capítu-

16-18. (a) Ao lermos Atos 1:13, 14, o que aprendemos a respeito das reuniões cristãs? (b) O que aprendemos do exemplo deixado por Maria, mãe de Jesus? (c) Por que as reuniões cristãs são vitais hoje?

lo 1, versículos 13 e 14, lemos que os apóstolos estavam reunidos em um “quarto de andar superior” e aprendemos alguns detalhes interessantes sobre as reuniões dos primeiros discípulos. Naquela época, era comum as casas na Palestina terem um cômodo no andar de cima, acessível por uma escada externa. Será que esse “quarto de andar superior” ficava na casa mencionada em Atos 12:12, que pertencia à mãe de Marcos? Seja como for, é provável que fosse um lugar simples e adequado para os seguidores de Cristo se reunirem. Mas quem esteve reunido ali, e o que fizeram?

17 Veja que naquela reunião não havia apenas os apóstolos nem se tratava de uma reunião exclusiva aos homens. “Algumas mulheres” estavam lá, incluindo Maria, mãe de Jesus. Essa é a última vez que a Bíblia menciona Maria de modo direto. É razoável concluir que ela não estava ali em busca de destaque, mas humildemente se reunia para adoração na companhia de seus irmãos espirituais. Deve ter sido consolador para Maria ver seus outros quatro filhos homens, que antes não eram seguidores de Jesus, reunidos ali. (Mat. 13:55; João 7:5) Esses homens haviam mudado desde a morte e ressurreição de Jesus, seu meio-irmão. — 1 Cor. 15:7.

[18] Observe, também, por que esses discípulos se reuniram: "De comum acordo, todos eles persistiam em oração." (Atos 1:14) Reunir-se sempre foi essencial na adoração cristã. Nós nos reunimos para encorajar uns aos outros, receber instruções e conselhos e, acima de tudo, adorar nosso Pai celestial, Jeová, junto com nossos irmãos. Nossas orações e cantos de louvor nessas ocasiões agradam muito a Jeová e são vitais para nós. Nunca deixemos de nos reunir nessas ocasiões sagradas e edificantes! — Heb. 10:24, 25.

[19] Mas agora esses seguidores de Cristo estavam diante de um importante assunto organizacional, e o apóstolo Pedro tomou a iniciativa de abordá-lo. (Versículos 15-26) Não nos encoraja ver como Pedro se recuperou espiritualmente em poucas semanas, depois de negar seu Senhor três vezes? (Mar. 14:72) Todos nós somos pecadores e precisamos de relatos como esse para nos lembrar que Jeová é 'bom e está pronto a perdoar' os que se arrependem sinceramente. — Sal. 86:5.

[20] Pedro chegou à conclusão de que Judas, o apóstolo que havia traído Jesus, devia ser substituído. Mas por quem? Pedro disse que o novo apóstolo deveria ser alguém que tivesse seguido a Jesus durante Seu ministério e que tivesse testemunhado Sua ressurreição. (Atos 1:21, 22) Isso estava em harmonia com a promessa do próprio Jesus: "Vós, os que me seguistes, também estareis sentados em doze tronos, julgando as doze tribos de Israel." (Mat. 19:28) Pelo visto, era do propósito de Jeová que 12 apóstolos que tivessem seguido a Jesus durante seu ministério terrestre constituíssem as futuras "doze pedras de alicerce" da Nova Jerusalém. (Rev. 21:2, 14) Assim, Deus permitiu que Pedro entendesse que a seguinte profecia se aplicava a Judas: "Tome outro seu cargo de superintendência." — Sal. 109:8.

21 Como a escolha foi feita? Lançando-se sortes, uma prática comum nos tempos bíblicos. (Pro. 16:33) No entanto, essa é a última vez que a Bíblia fala a respeito de sortes sendo usadas dessa maneira. Pelo visto, o derramamento do espírito santo, que ocorreu depois, tornou aquele método obsoleto. Observe, porém, por que foram usadas sortes. Os apóstolos oraram: "Ó Jeová, tu que conheces os corações de todos, indica qual destes dois homens tens escolhido." (Atos 1:23, 24) Eles queriam que Jeová fizesse a escolha. Matias, provavelmente um dos 70 discípulos que Jesus havia enviado para pregar, foi o escolhido. Assim, Matias tornou-se um dos "doze".* — Atos 6:2.

[22] Esse incidente nos lembra da importância de as coisas ocorrerem de forma organizada entre o povo de Deus. Até hoje, homens responsáveis são designados para servir como superintendentes nas congregações. Os anciãos consideram com cuidado as qualificações bíblicas que se exigem dos superintendentes e oram pedindo a orientação do espírito santo. Por isso, a congregação considera esses homens como designados pelo espírito santo. Da nossa parte, nós permanecemos submissos e obedientes à liderança desses homens, contribuindo para que haja um espírito de cooperação na congregação. — Heb. 13:17.

[23] Depois de terem visto o ressuscitado Jesus e de terem feito alguns ajustes organizacionais, aqueles discípulos estavam fortalecidos e plenamente preparados para o que aconteceria a seguir. O próximo capítulo vai considerar isso.

* Mais tarde, Paulo foi designado "apóstolo para as nações", mas nunca foi considerado um dos 12. (Rom. 11:13; 1 Cor. 15:4-8) Ele não tinha seguido a Jesus durante Seu ministério terrestre e, portanto, não se habilitava para esse privilégio especial.

22, 23. Por que devemos ser submissos e obedientes aos que hoje exercem a liderança na congregação?

Há muitos visitantes nas ruas. Eles vieram de lugares tão distantes como Elão, Mesopotâmia, Capadócia, Ponto, Egito e Roma.# Qual é o motivo? A Festividade de Pentecostes, chamada também de o “dia dos primeiros frutos maduros”. (Núm. 28:26) Essa festividade anual marca o fim da colheita da cevada e o início da colheita do trigo. 1. Descreva o clima da Festividade de Pentecostes.
2. Que eventos impressionantes ocorreram no Pentecostes de 33 EC?

JERUSALÉM — CENTRO DO JUDAÍSMO

Muito do que acontece nos primeiros capítulos do livro de Atos se passa em Jerusalém. Essa cidade se localiza entre as colinas da cordilheira central da Judeia, cerca de 55 quilômetros a leste do mar Mediterrâneo. Em 1070 AEC, o Rei Davi conquistou a fortaleza que ficava no topo do monte Sião, localizado nessa cordilheira, e a cidade que cresceu em volta dessa fortaleza se tornou a capital da antiga nação de Israel.

Próximo ao monte Sião está o monte Moriá, onde, de acordo com a antiga tradição judaica, Abraão tentou sacrificar Isaque, uns 1.900 anos antes dos eventos descritos em Atos. O monte Moriá passou a fazer parte de Jerusalém quando Salomão construiu o primeiro templo de Jeová no seu topo. Essa construção se tornou o centro da adoração e da vida pública dos judeus.

Judeus devotos de todas as partes se reuniam no templo de Jeová para oferecer sacrifícios, prestar adoração e observar as festividades periódicas. Eles faziam isso em obediência ao mandamento de Deus: "Três vezes no ano, todo macho teu deve comparecer perante Jeová, teu Deus, no lugar que ele escolher." (Deut. 16:16) Jerusalém também era a sede do Grande Sinédrio — supremo tribunal judaico e conselho administrativo nacional.

ROMA — CAPITAL DE UM IMPÉRIO

No período abrangido pelo livro de Atos, Roma era a maior e, politicamente, a mais importante cidade do mundo conhecido naquela época. Era a capital de um império que, no seu auge, estendia-se desde a Bretanha até o Norte da África, e desde o oceano Atlântico até o golfo Pérsico.

Em Roma havia uma grande mistura de culturas, raças, línguas e superstições. Uma rede de estradas bem cuidadas trazia à cidade viajantes e mercadorias de todos os cantos do império. Próximo dali, no porto de Óstia, navios de rotas comerciais movimentadas descarregavam alimentos e artigos de luxo que seriam usados na cidade.

No primeiro século EC, bem mais de um milhão de pessoas viviam em Roma. Talvez metade da população fosse composta de escravos — criminosos condenados, filhos vendidos ou abandonados pelos pais e prisioneiros capturados durante campanhas das legiões romanas. Entre os levados a Roma como escravos estavam judeus de Jerusalém. Isso aconteceu logo após a conquista dessa cidade pelo general romano Pompeu em 63 AEC.

A maior parte das pessoas livres era muito pobre; dependia de subsídios do governo e morava em alojamentos superlotados, de vários andares. Os imperadores, porém, adornavam sua capital com alguns dos mais majestosos edifícios públicos já vistos. Entre esses havia teatros e grandes estádios que apresentavam peças teatrais, lutas de gladiadores e corridas de bigas (carros romanos) — tudo para o entretenimento gratuito das massas.

JUDEUS NA MESOPOTÂMIA E NO EGITO

O livro The History of the Jewish People in the Age of Jesus Christ (175 B.C.–A.D. 135) (História do Povo Judeu no Tempo de Jesus Cristo [175 a.C.–135 a.D.]) declara: "Na Mesopotâmia, Média e Babilônia moravam os descendentes de membros do reino de dez tribos [de Israel] e do reino de Judá que haviam sido deportados para lá pelos assírios e babilônios." De acordo com Esdras 2:64, apenas 42.360 homens israelitas, junto com suas esposas e filhos, retornaram a Jerusalém depois do exílio em Babilônia. Isso aconteceu em 537 AEC. O historiador judeu Flávio Josefo disse que, no primeiro século EC, os judeus que "moravam na região de Babilônia" chegavam a dezenas de milhares. Entre o terceiro e o quinto séculos EC, as comunidades judaicas ali produziram a obra conhecida como Talmude Babilônico.

Existem provas documentais que indicam que os judeus estavam presentes no Egito já no sexto século AEC. Durante esse período, Jeremias proclamou uma mensagem aos judeus que viviam em vários lugares do Egito, incluindo Mênfis. (Jer. 44:1, nota) É bem provável que um grande número de judeus tenha imigrado para o Egito durante o período helenístico. Josefo disse que os judeus estavam entre os primeiros a se estabelecer em Alexandria. Com o tempo, uma parte inteira da cidade foi cedida a eles. No primeiro século EC, o escritor judeu Filo afirmou que um milhão de seus conterrâneos moravam no Egito, desde "o lado [que faz divisa com a] Líbia até a fronteira com a Etiópia".

O CRISTIANISMO EM PONTO

Entre os que ouviram o discurso de Pedro no Pentecostes de 33 EC estavam judeus de Ponto, um distrito no norte da Ásia Menor. (Atos 2:9) Pelo visto, alguns deles levaram as boas novas à sua terra natal ao voltarem para casa, pois entre aqueles a quem Pedro dirigiu a sua primeira carta estavam os que haviam sido "espalhados" por lugares como Ponto.* (1 Ped. 1:1) Sua carta revela que esses cristãos estavam "contristados por várias provações" que sofreram em resultado de sua fé. (1 Ped. 1:6) Sem dúvida, essas incluíam oposição e perseguição.

Cartas trocadas entre Plínio, o Moço, governador da província romana da Bitínia e Ponto, e o Imperador Trajano fazem alusão a outras provações que os cristãos enfrentaram em Ponto. Foi dali que, em 112 EC, Plínio relatou em uma de suas cartas que a "praga" do cristianismo ameaçava todas as pessoas, independentemente de sexo, idade ou posição social. Plínio dava aos acusados de ser cristãos a oportunidade de negar isso, e aqueles que se recusavam eram executados. Qualquer um que amaldiçoasse a Cristo ou rezasse aos deuses ou à estátua de Trajano era libertado. Plínio admitiu que essas eram coisas que 'não se podia obrigar os que eram realmente cristãos' a fazer.

* O termo grego traduzido "espalhados" também pode ser vertido "da Diáspora". Essa expressão tem conotações judaicas, indicando que muitos dos primeiros convertidos eram de comunidades judaicas.

maio de 33 EC, acontece algo que deixará pessoas admiradas durante séculos. De repente, 'ocorre do céu um ruído, bem semelhante ao duma forte brisa impetuosa', ou "parecido com o de uma ventania". (Atos 2:2; Bíblia Fácil de Ler) O forte ruído enche a casa onde cerca de 120 discípulos de Jesus estão reunidos. A seguir, acontece algo impressionante. Línguas como que de fogo tornam-se visíveis, uma sobre a cabeça de cada discípulo.* Então os discípulos ficam "cheios de espírito santo" e começam a falar em línguas estrangeiras. Quando os discípulos saem da casa e começam a falar com os visitantes que encontram nas ruas de Jerusalém, estes ficam boquiabertos, pois cada visitante os ouve "falar no seu próprio idioma". — Atos 2:1-6.

³ Esse relato empolgante descreve um marco na história da adoração verdadeira: a formação do Israel espiritual, a congregação dos cristãos ungidos. (Gál. 6:16) Além disso, quando Pedro se dirigiu à multidão naquele dia, ele usou a primeira das três "chaves do reino". Cada uma dessas chaves abriria uma porta de pri-

* As "línguas" não eram de fogo literal, mas "como que de fogo", pelo visto indicando que aquela manifestação vista sobre cada discípulo tinha a aparência e o brilho de fogo.

vilégios especiais para diferentes grupos. (Mat. 16:18, 19) Essa primeira chave permitiu que judeus e prosélitos aceitassem as boas novas e fossem ungidos com o espírito santo de Deus.* Assim, eles se tornariam parte do Israel espiritual e, dessa forma, teriam a esperança de governar como reis e sacerdotes durante o Reino messiânico. (Rev. 5:9, 10) Com o tempo, esse privilégio se estenderia a samaritanos e então a gentios. O que os cristãos hoje podem aprender dos eventos importantes que ocorreram no Pentecostes de 33 EC?

“Todos eles estavam juntos no mesmo lugar” (Atos 2:1-4)

[4] A congregação cristã teve início com cerca de 120 discípulos que “estavam juntos no mesmo lugar”, uma sala de sobrado, e que foram ungidos com espírito santo. (Atos 2:1) No fim do dia, o número de membros batizados daquela congregação já havia chegado à casa dos milhares. Mas esse era só o começo do crescimento de uma organização que continua a se expandir hoje. De fato, um grupo de homens e mulheres tementes a Deus, a atual congregação cristã, é o meio pelo

* Veja o quadro “Quem eram os prosélitos?” na página 40.

4. De que modo a atual congregação cristã é uma extensão da congregação formada em 33 EC?

QUEM ERAM OS PROSÉLITOS?

"Tanto judeus como prosélitos" escutaram a pregação de Pedro no Pentecostes de 33 EC. — Atos 2:10.

Um dos homens designados para cuidar da "incumbência necessária" de distribuir alimentos diariamente foi Nicolau, identificado como "prosélito de Antioquia". (Atos 6:3-5) Os prosélitos eram gentios (não judeus) que se tinham convertido ao judaísmo. Eles eram considerados judeus em todos os sentidos, pois aceitavam o Deus e a Lei de Israel, rejeitavam todos os outros deuses, submetiam-se à circuncisão (no caso dos homens) e tornavam-se parte da nação de Israel.

Depois que os judeus foram libertados do exílio em Babilônia, em 537 AEC, muitos deles se estabeleceram longe da terra de Israel, mas continuaram a praticar o judaísmo. Por causa disso, pessoas por todo o antigo Oriente Médio e outros lugares tiveram contato com a religião judaica. Antigos escritores, como Horácio e Sêneca, confirmam que inúmeras pessoas em diferentes terras simpatizaram com os judeus e suas crenças, e passaram a se associar com eles, tornando-se prosélitos.

qual as "boas novas do reino" são "pregadas em toda a terra habitada, em testemunho a todas as nações" antes do fim deste sistema. — Mat. 24:14.

[5] A congregação cristã também seria fonte de encorajamento espiritual para seus membros ungidos e, mais tarde, para as "outras ovelhas". (João 10:16) Paulo demonstrou seu apreço pelo apoio que os membros da congregação dão uns aos outros quando escreveu aos cristãos em Roma: "Anseio ver-vos, para vos conferir algum dom espiritual, a fim de que sejais firmados; ou, antes, para que haja um intercâmbio de encorajamento entre vós, cada um por intermédio da fé que o outro tem, tanto a vossa como a minha." — Rom. 1:11, 12.

[6] Hoje, a congregação cristã tem os mesmos objetivos que tinha no primeiro século. Jesus deu a seus discípulos uma obra desafiadora e ao mesmo tempo emocionante. Ele lhes disse: "Fazei discípulos de pessoas de todas as nações, batizando-as em o nome do Pai, e do Filho, e do espírito santo, ensinando-as a observar todas as coisas que vos ordenei." — Mat. 28:19, 20.

[7] A congregação cristã das Testemunhas de Jeová é o meio pelo qual essa obra é realizada hoje. Sem dúvida é um desafio pregar a pessoas de diferentes idiomas. Apesar disso, as Testemunhas de Jeová produzem publicações bíblicas em mais de 400 idiomas. Caso você esteja assistindo regularmente às reuniões cristãs e participando na obra de pregar o Reino e fazer discípulos, tem motivos para se alegrar. Você está entre os relativamente poucos na Terra que têm o privilégio de dar testemunho cabal a respeito do nome de Jeová!

deus e prosélitos deve ter ficado emocionado no Pentecostes de 33 EC. É provável que a maioria dos presentes tivesse um idioma em comum, talvez o grego ou o hebraico. Mas agora "cada um os ouvia [ou seja, os discípulos] falar no seu próprio idioma". (Atos 2:6) Ouvir as boas novas em sua língua materna com certeza tocou o coração daqueles ouvintes. Naturalmente, os cristãos de hoje não possuem o dom milagroso de falar em línguas estrangeiras. No entanto, muitos se têm colocado à disposição para divulgar a mensagem do Reino a pessoas de todas as nacionalidades. Como? Alguns aprendem um novo idioma para poder apoiar uma congregação de língua estrangeira em sua região ou até para se mudar para outro país. Com frequência, eles observam que os ouvintes ficam admirados pelos seus esforços.

10 Veja o caso de Christine, que fez um curso de guzerate com outras sete Testemunhas de Jeová. Ao encontrar com uma colega de trabalho cuja língua materna é o guzerate, Christine a cumprimentou nesse idioma. A mulher ficou impressionada e quis saber por que ela estava se esforçando para aprender guzerate. Christine pôde então dar um excelente testemunho. A mulher disse-lhe: “Nenhuma outra religião incentivaria seus membros a aprender uma língua tão difícil. Vocês devem ter algo muito importante para dizer.”

[11] É claro que nem todos nós podemos aprender uma nova língua, mas podemos estar preparados para pregar a mensagem do Reino a pessoas que falam outros idiomas. Como? Uma maneira é usar o folheto Boas Novas para Pessoas de Todas as Nações. Esse folheto contém uma mensagem breve em vários idiomas. Observe um caso em que essa publicação foi bem usada. Uma família de Testemunhas de Jeová visitou três parques nacionais pouco depois do lançamento do folheto. Nesses locais, encontraram pessoas das Filipinas, da Holanda, da Índia e do Paquistão. O marido disse: “Apesar de todas elas falarem um pouco de inglês, ficaram muito impressionadas quando lhes mostramos a mensagem em sua própria língua, mesmo estando a milhares de quilômetros de casa. Elas puderam notar claramente a natureza internacional de nossa obra e a união que há entre nós.”

11. Como podemos fazer bom uso do folheto Boas Novas para Pessoas de Todas as Nações?

“Pedro pôs-se de pé” (Atos 2:14-37)

[12] “Pedro pôs-se de pé” para falar com a multidão de várias nacionalidades. (Atos 2:14) A todos que estavam dispostos a ouvir, ele explicou que o dom milagroso de falar em línguas tinha sido dado por Deus em cumprimento da profecia de Joel: “Derramarei meu espírito sobre toda sorte de carne.” (Joel 2:28) Antes de ascender ao céu, Jesus disse a seus discípulos: “Eu solicitarei ao Pai e ele vos dará outro ajudador”, o qual Jesus identificou como “o espírito”. — João 14:16, 17.

[13] Ao concluir seu discurso, Pedro foi franco ao dizer: “Que toda a casa de Israel saiba com certeza que Deus o fez tanto Senhor como Cristo, a este Jesus, a quem pregastes numa estaca.” (Atos 2:36) Evidentemente, a maioria das pessoas ali não presenciou a morte de Jesus na estaca de tortura. Mas, como membros da nação, eles também tinham parte da culpa. Note, porém, que Pedro se dirigiu a seus companheiros judeus de modo respeitoso, tentando tocar-lhes o coração. O objetivo de Pedro não era condená-los, mas levá-los ao arrependimento. Será que a multidão se ofendeu com as palavras de Pedro? De forma alguma. Em vez disso, as pessoas ficaram 'compungidas no coração'. Perguntaram: "O que havemos de fazer?" Sem dúvida, o modo positivo como Pedro falou contribuiu para tocar o coração de muitos, levando-os a se arrepender. — Atos 2:37.

[14] Assim como Pedro, nós também podemos tentar tocar o coração das pessoas. Na pregação, não precisamos corrigir todo conceito antibíblico que o morador talvez tenha. Em vez disso, seria melhor nos concentrarmos naquilo que temos em comum com ele. Se fizermos isso, poderemos raciocinar com tato, usando a Palavra de Deus. Em geral, as pessoas sinceras aceitam nossa mensagem com mais facilidade quando apresentamos as verdades bíblicas dessa forma.

"Cada um de vós seja batizado" (Atos 2:38-47)

[15] No emocionante dia do Pentecostes de 33 EC, Pedro disse a judeus e prosélitos receptivos: "Arrependei-vos, e cada um de vós seja batizado." (Atos 2:38) Em resultado disso, cerca de 3 mil pessoas foram batizadas, provavelmente em reservatórios em Jerusalém ou perto dali.* Eles agiram por impulso? Será que esse relato serve de precedente para que estudantes da Bíblia ou filhos de pais cristãos se apressem a se batizar antes de estarem prontos? De modo algum. Lembre-se de que aqueles judeus e prosélitos que foram batizados no Pentecostes de 33 EC eram aplicados estudantes da Palavra de Deus e faziam parte de uma nação que antes era dedicada a Jeová. Além disso, eles já estavam demonstrando seu zelo — em alguns casos, viajando grandes distâncias para estarem presentes a essa festividade anual. Depois de aceitarem as verdades vitais a respeito do papel de Jesus Cristo no cumprimento do propósito de Deus, eles estavam prontos para continuar servindo a Deus — mas agora como seguidores batizados de Cristo.

16 Aquele grupo com certeza tinha a bênção de Jeová. O relato diz: "Todos os que se tornavam crentes estavam unidos em terem todas as coisas em comum, e foram vender as suas propriedades e bens, e distribuir a receita entre todos, conforme alguém tivesse necessidade."* (Atos 2:44, 45) Certamente, todos os cristãos verdadeiros querem imitar esse espírito de amor e abnegação.

* Para efeito de comparação, em 7 de agosto de 1993, num congresso internacional das Testemunhas de Jeová em Kiev, Ucrânia, 7.402 pessoas foram batizadas em seis piscinas, o que levou duas horas e quinze minutos.

[17] A Bíblia mostra que, antes da dedicação e do batismo cristãos, vários passos são necessários. A pessoa precisa obter conhecimento da Palavra de Deus. (João 17:3) Ela tem de exercer fé e demonstrar genuíno arrependimento de seu anterior modo de vida. (Atos 3:19) Daí, precisa converter-se, ou dar meia-volta, e passar a agir em harmonia com a vontade de Deus. (Rom. 12:2; Efé. 4:23, 24) Depois de dar esses passos, a pessoa dedica-se a Deus em oração e então é batizada. — Mat. 16:24; 1 Ped. 3:21.

[18] Você é um discípulo dedicado e batizado de Jesus Cristo? Em caso afirmativo, seja grato pelo privilégio que recebeu. Como os discípulos do primeiro século que ficaram cheios de espírito santo, você também pode receber poder de Jeová para dar testemunho cabal e fazer a vontade dele!

* Essa medida temporária foi necessária porque os visitantes permaneceram em Jerusalém para obter mais instrução espiritual. Foi uma ação voluntária e não deve ser confundida com alguma forma de comunismo. — Atos 5:1-4.

"Homens indoutos e comuns"

Os apóstolos agem com coragem e Jeová os abençoa

Baseado em Atos 3:1–5:11

O SOL da tarde brilha sobre a multidão. Judeus devotos e discípulos de Cristo entram no complexo do templo. Logo será "a hora da oração".* (Atos 2:46; 3:1) Espremidos no meio da multidão, Pedro e João caminham em direção ao portão do templo chamado Belo, cujas portas imponentes são revestidas de reluzente bronze da cidade de Corinto. Uma voz se sobressai no barulho da conversa e de pés arrastando no chão: um mendigo de meia-idade, manco de nascença, clama por esmolas. — Atos 3:2; 4:22.

² À medida que Pedro e João se aproximam, o mendigo pede dinheiro usando as mesmas palavras de sempre. Os apóstolos param, o que chama a atenção do homem e o deixa na expectativa de receber algo. "Não possuo prata nem ouro", diz Pedro, "mas o que tenho é o que te dou: Em nome de Jesus Cristo, o nazareno, anda!" Pedro segura o homem pela mão e o ajuda a levantar. Imagine a surpresa da multidão ao ver o homem manco ficar de pé pela primeira vez na vida! (Atos 3:6, 7) Consegue visualizar o homem olhando admirado para suas pernas curadas, tentando dar seus primeiros passos? Não é para menos que ele começa a pular de um lado para outro e a louvar a Deus com alta voz!

* Orações eram feitas no templo junto com os sacrifícios da manhã e da noitinha. O sacrifício da noitinha ocorria na "nona hora", ou seja, por volta das 15 horas.

[3] Pasmada, a multidão corre até Pedro e João, que estão na colunata de Salomão. Ali, no mesmo lugar em que Jesus muitas vezes ficava de pé e ensinava, Pedro lhes diz o real significado do que acaba de acontecer. (João 10:23) Ele oferece à multidão e ao homem anteriormente manco um presente mais valioso do que prata ou ouro. Esse presente envolve muito mais do que apenas saúde restaurada. É a oportunidade de eles se arrependerem, de terem os pecados apagados e de se tornarem seguidores do "Agente Principal da vida" designado por Jeová, Jesus Cristo. — Atos 3:15.

[4] Que dia marcante! Uma pessoa foi curada e agora podia andar. Outros milhares receberam a oportunidade de ser curados em sentido espiritual a fim de que pudessem andar de um modo digno de Deus. (Col. 1:9, 10) Além disso, os eventos daquele dia prepararam o cenário para um confronto entre os leais seguidores de Cristo e autoridades que tentariam impedi-los de cumprir o mandamento de Jesus de pregar a mensagem do Reino. (Atos 1:8) O que podemos aprender dos métodos usados e da atitude demonstrada por Pedro e João — "homens indoutos e comuns" — ao darem testemunho à multidão?* (Atos 4:13) E de que forma podemos imitar a maneira como eles e os outros discípulos lidaram com a oposição?

Não "por intermédio de poder pessoal" (Atos 3:11-26)

[5] Pedro e João ficaram de pé diante da multidão, sabendo que alguns ali talvez tivessem exigido que Jesus fosse executado na estaca. (Mar. 15:8-15; Atos 3:13-15) Pense na coragem que Pedro demonstrou ao declarar destemidamente que o homem manco tinha sido curado no nome de Jesus. Pedro não amenizou a verdade. De modo franco ele expôs a parcela de culpa que a multidão tinha na morte de Cristo. Apesar disso, Pedro não guardava ressentimento daquelas pessoas, pois haviam 'agido em ignorância'. (Atos 3:17) Ele tentou

5. O que aprendemos da maneira como Pedro falou à multidão?

PEDRO — DE PESCADOR A ATIVO APÓSTOLO

Nas Escrituras, Pedro é identificado por cinco nomes. Ele é conhecido como Simeão em hebraico, e pelo seu equivalente grego, Simão; e como Pedro e seu equivalente semítico, Cefas. O apóstolo também é identificado como Simão Pedro, união de dois de seus nomes. — Mat. 10:2; 16:16; João 1:42; Atos 15:14.

Pedro era casado, e sua sogra e seu irmão moravam com ele. (Mar. 1:29-31) Ele era pescador de Betsaida, cidade na margem norte do mar da Galileia. (João 1:44) Mais tarde, morou em Cafarnaum, perto de Betsaida. (Luc. 4:31, 38) Jesus estava no barco de Pedro quando se dirigiu a uma multidão que se reuniu na margem do mar da Galileia. Logo depois disso, sob a orientação de Jesus, por meio de um milagre Pedro apanhou uma grande quantidade de peixes. Pedro ajoelhou-se, tomado de medo; mas Jesus disse-lhe: "Para de estar com medo. Doravante apanharás vivos a homens." (Luc. 5:1-11) Pedro pescava com seu irmão André, bem como com Tiago e João. Os quatro abandonaram seu negócio pesqueiro quando aceitaram o convite de Jesus para se tornarem seus seguidores. (Mat. 4:18-22; Mar. 1:16-18) Mais ou menos um ano depois, Pedro estava entre os 12 que Jesus escolheu como "apóstolos", que significa "enviados". — Mar. 3:13-16.

Jesus escolhia Pedro, Tiago e João para acompanhálo em ocasiões especiais. Eles presenciaram a transfiguração de Jesus, testemunharam a ressurreição da filha de Jairo e viram a aflição de Jesus no jardim de Getsêmani. (Mat. 17:1, 2; 26:36-46; Mar. 5:22-24, 35-42; Luc. 22:39-46) Os três, junto com André, perguntaram a Jesus a respeito do sinal de sua presença. — Mar. 13:1-4.

Pedro era direto, ativo e às vezes agia por impulso. Parece que ele costumava falar antes dos outros apóstolos. Nos Evangelhos, encontramos mais palavras de Pedro do que de todos os outros 11 apóstolos juntos. Em geral, era Pedro quem fazia as perguntas e os outros ficavam calados. (Mat. 15:15; 18:21; 19:27-29; Luc. 12:41; João 13:36-38) Foi ele que não quis que Jesus lavasse seus pés e, depois, ao ser repreendido, pediu que Jesus lhe lavasse também as mãos e a cabeça! — João 13:5-10.

Fortes emoções levaram Pedro a tentar convencer Jesus de que este não teria de sofrer nem de ser morto. Jesus o repreendeu por essa falta de critério. (Mat. 16:21-23) Na última noite de Jesus na Terra, Pedro disse que mesmo que todos os outros apóstolos abandonassem a Jesus, ele nunca faria isso. Quando Jesus foi preso por seus inimigos, a coragem levou Pedro a defender Jesus com uma espada e mais tarde a segui-lo até o pátio da casa do sumo sacerdote. Apesar disso, não muito tempo depois, Pedro negou seu Mestre três vezes e, ao se dar conta do que havia feito, chorou amargamente. — Mat. 26:31-35, 51, 52, 69-75.

Pouco antes de Jesus aparecer pela primeira vez a seus apóstolos na Galileia após sua ressurreição, Pedro disse que ia pescar, e outros apóstolos foram com ele. De seu barco, Pedro reconheceu Jesus na praia e, agindo por impulso, jogou-se na água e nadou até ele. Jesus estava preparando alguns peixes para seus apóstolos. Durante a refeição, Jesus perguntou a Pedro: 'Amas-me mais do que a estes?' referindo-se aos peixes na frente deles. Jesus estava incentivando Pedro a segui-lo por tempo integral em vez de se empenhar por uma carreira, como a pescaria. — João 21:1-22.

Por volta de 62-64 EC, Pedro divulgou as boas novas em Babilônia, no atual Iraque, onde havia uma grande população de judeus. (1 Ped. 5:13) Em Babilônia, Pedro escreveu a primeira, e possivelmente a segunda, das duas cartas inspiradas que levam seu nome. Jesus confiou a Pedro "os poderes necessários a um apostolado para com os circuncisos". (Gál. 2:8, 9) Com compaixão e vigor, Pedro cumpriu sua comissão.

tocar-lhes o coração, dirigindo-se a eles como a irmãos e concentrando-se nos aspectos positivos da mensagem do Reino. Se eles se arrependessem e tivessem fé em Cristo, viriam "épocas de refrigério" da parte de Jeová. (Atos 3:19) Da mesma forma, nós precisamos ser corajosos e francos ao declarar o julgamento de Deus que está por vir. Ao mesmo tempo, nunca devemos ser rudes, duros ou críticos. Em vez disso, encaramos aqueles a quem pregamos como irmãos em potencial e, iguais a Pedro, nós nos concentramos principalmente nos aspectos positivos da mensagem do Reino.

[6] Os apóstolos eram homens modestos. Eles não tomaram para si o crédito daquele milagre que realizaram. Pedro disse à multidão: "Por que estais fitando os olhos em nós como se nós o tivéssemos feito andar por intermédio de poder pessoal ou de devoção piedosa?" (Atos 3:12) Pedro e os outros apóstolos sabiam que qualquer bem que realizassem no ministério se devia ao poder de Deus, não ao seu próprio. Por isso, eles modestamente dirigiram a Jeová e a Jesus todo o louvor por suas realizações.

[7] Nós também precisamos ser modestos ao participar na obra de pregação do Reino. É verdade que o espírito de Deus não habilita os cristãos atuais a realizar curas milagrosas. Mesmo assim, podemos ajudar as pessoas a desenvolver fé em Deus e em Cristo e a receber aquele mesmo presente que Pedro ofereceu: a oportunidade de ter seus pecados perdoados e ser revigorados por Jeová.

6. Como Pedro e João demonstraram humildade e modéstia?

7, 8. (a) Que presente podemos oferecer às pessoas? (b) Como a promessa de haver um "restabelecimento de todas as coisas" está se cumprindo hoje?

JOÃO — O DISCÍPULO QUE JESUS AMAVA

O apóstolo João era um dos filhos de Zebedeu e irmão do apóstolo Tiago. Parece que sua mãe era Salomé, possivelmente irmã de Maria, mãe de Jesus. (Mat. 10:2; 27:55, 56; Mar. 15:40; Luc. 5:9, 10) Dessa forma, João pode ter sido parente de Jesus. Pelo visto, a família de João tinha uma boa condição financeira. O negócio de pesca de Zebedeu era suficientemente grande a ponto de ele ter empregados. (Mar. 1:20) Salomé acompanhava Jesus, realizava tarefas para ele quando ele estava na Galileia e, quando ele morreu, ela comprou aromas a fim de untar o corpo dele, como parte do processo de sepultamento. (Mar. 16:1; João 19:40) Pelo visto, João tinha sua própria casa. — João 19:26, 27.

João foi um dos discípulos de João Batista. Provavelmente era ele que estava com André quando João Batista olhou para Jesus e disse: “Eis o Cordeiro de Deus!” (João 1:35, 36, 40) Depois dessa ocasião, João, filho de Zebedeu, pelo visto acompanhou Jesus até Caná, onde testemunhou o Seu primeiro milagre. (João 2:1-11) A forma vívida e a riqueza em detalhes com que João descreve as atividades posteriores de Jesus em Jerusalém, Samaria e na Galileia indicam que ele também testemunhou esses eventos. A prontidão com que João — assim como Tiago, Pedro e André — abandonou suas redes de pesca, seu barco e seu meio de vida quando Jesus o convidou a ser Seu seguidor comprova sua fé. — Mat. 4:18-22.

Nos Evangelhos, João não se destaca tanto quanto Pedro. Mas João também tinha uma personalidade forte, como indica o sobrenome que Jesus deu a ele e a seu irmão Tiago — Boanerges, que significa “Filhos do Trovão”. (Mar. 3:17) No começo, João queria muito ter destaque, tanto que ele e seu irmão fizeram com que sua mãe pedisse a Jesus que lhes desse posições privilegiadas em seu Reino. Embora esse desejo fosse egoísta, também era evidência de sua fé em que o Reino era uma realidade. A ambição desses dois irmãos deu a Jesus a chance de aconselhar todos os seus apóstolos sobre a necessidade de demonstrar humildade. — Mat. 20:20-28.

João manifestou sua forte personalidade quando tentou impedir que certo homem expulsasse demônios em nome de Jesus, visto que esse homem não era um dos Seus seguidores. Em outra ocasião, Jesus enviou mensageiros a uma aldeia samaritana a fim de fazer alguns preparativos para ele. Visto que as pessoas ali se recusaram a receber Jesus, João estava pronto para pedir fogo do céu para destruir os habitantes daquela aldeia. Por causa de atitudes como essas, Jesus repreendeu João. Tudo indica que, com o tempo, João passou a ser mais equilibrado e misericordioso, qualidades que antes aparentemente lhe faltavam. (Luc. 9:49-56) Apesar de suas falhas, porém, João era “o discípulo a quem Jesus amava”. Por isso, quando estava para morrer, Jesus confiou sua mãe, Maria, aos cuidados de João. — João 19:26, 27; 21:7, 20, 24.

João viveu mais tempo do que os outros apóstolos, como Jesus tinha profetizado. (João 21:20-22) João serviu fielmente a Jeová por uns 70 anos. Perto do fim de sua vida, durante o governo do imperador romano Domiciano, João foi exilado na ilha de Patmos "por ter falado a respeito de Deus e ter dado testemunho de Jesus". Ali, por volta de 96 EC, João recebeu as visões que registrou no livro de Revelação. (Rev. 1:1, 2, 9) Segundo a tradição, ao ser libertado, João foi para Éfeso, onde morreu por volta de 100 EC depois de ter escrito o Evangelho que leva seu nome e as cartas conhecidas como 1, 2 e 3 de João.

Todos os anos, centenas de milhares aceitam essa oportunidade e se tornam discípulos batizados de Cristo.

[8] Realmente, estamos vivendo no período a que Pedro se referiu como "os tempos do restabelecimento de todas as coisas". Em cumprimento da palavra que "Deus falou por intermédio da boca dos seus santos profetas dos tempos antigos", o Reino foi estabelecido no céu em 1914. (Atos 3:21; Sal. 110:1-3; Dan. 4:16, 17) Pouco depois, Cristo começou a supervisionar a obra de restauração espiritual na Terra. Em resultado disso, milhões têm sido atraídos ao paraíso espiritual, tornando-se súditos do Reino de Deus. Eles se despiram da velha e corrompida personalidade e 'se revestiram da nova persona-lidade, que foi criada segundo a vontade de Deus'. (Efé. 4:22-24) Como no caso da cura do mendigo manco, essa impressionante obra não é realizada por esforços humanos, mas pelo espírito de Deus. Assim como Pedro, devemos usar a Palavra de Deus de modo corajoso e eficaz para ensinar outros. Qualquer êxito que talvez tenhamos em ajudar pessoas a se tornarem discípulos de Cristo se deve ao poder de Deus, não ao nosso próprio.

"Não podemos parar de falar" (Atos 4:1-22)

* Veja o quadro "O sumo sacerdote e os principais sacerdotes", na página 60.

9-11. (a) Como os líderes judaicos reagiram à mensagem de Pedro e João? (b) O que os apóstolos estavam decididos a fazer?

O SUMO SACERDOTE E OS PRINCIPAIS SACERDOTES

O sumo sacerdote representava o povo perante Deus. No primeiro século EC, ele também presidia o Sinédrio. Junto com ele, como líderes dos judeus, estavam os principais sacerdotes. Esse grupo era composto por ex-sumos sacerdotes, como Anás, e por homens de famílias das quais os sumos sacerdotes eram escolhidos. Existiam talvez apenas quatro ou cinco dessas famílias. "O simples fato de pertencer a uma das famílias privilegiadas", escreveu o erudito Emil Schürer, "devia conferir [à pessoa] certo grau de prestígio" entre os sacerdotes.

As Escrituras indicam que o sumo sacerdócio era vitalício. (Núm. 35:25) Durante o período abrangido pelo livro de Atos, porém, os governadores romanos e os reis que governavam com a permissão de Roma designavam e destituíam sumos sacerdotes como bem entendiam. Mesmo assim, parece que quando esses governantes pagãos designavam sumos sacerdotes, eles os escolhiam da linhagem de Arão.

10 Os furiosos opositores jogaram Pedro e João na prisão e os levaram à força até o supremo tribunal judaico no dia seguinte. Do ponto de vista daqueles governantes arrogantes, Pedro e João eram "homens indoutos e comuns" e não tinham o direito de ensinar no templo. Eles não tinham estudado em nenhuma escola religiosa reconhecida. No entanto, seu destemor e sua convicção deixaram o tribunal admirado. Como Pedro e João conseguiam falar tão bem? Uma das razões era que eles "costumavam estar com Jesus". (Atos 4:13) Seu Mestre os havia ensinado com verdadeira autoridade, não como os escribas. — Mat. 7:28, 29.

[11] O tribunal ordenou que os apóstolos parassem de pregar. Naquela sociedade, as ordens do tribunal tinham muito peso. Apenas algumas semanas antes, esse mesmo tribunal havia declarado que Jesus merecia a morte. (Mat. 26:59-66) Ainda assim, Pedro e João não se sentiram intimidados. Diante daqueles homens ricos, bem-instruídos e influentes, Pedro e João destemidamente, mas com respeito, disseram: "Se é justo, à vista de Deus, escutar antes a vós do que a Deus, julgai-o vós mesmos. Mas, quanto a nós, não podemos parar de falar das coisas que vimos e ouvimos." — Atos 4:19, 20.

[12] Você também tem esse tipo de coragem? Como se sente quando tem a oportunidade de dar testemunho aos ricos, aos bem-instruídos e aos influentes na sua localidade? E quando familiares, colegas de escola ou de trabalho o ridicularizam por causa de suas crenças? Sente-se intimidado? Em caso afirmativo, você pode superar esses sentimentos. Quando esteve na Terra, Jesus ensinou os apóstolos a defender suas crenças com confiança e respeito. (Mat. 10:11-18) Depois de ser ressuscitado, Jesus prometeu a seus discípulos que continuaria com eles "todos os dias, até à terminação do sistema de coisas". (Mat. 28:20) Sob a orientação de Jesus, "o escravo fiel e discreto" nos ensina a defender nossas crenças. (Mat. 24:45-47; 1 Ped. 3:15) Isso é feito por meio de instruções recebidas nas reuniões congregacionais, como a Escola do Ministério Teocrático, e de publicações baseadas na Bíblia, como o livro Raciocínios à Base das Escrituras. Será que estamos fazendo bom uso dessas provisões? Se fizermos isso, nossa coragem e convicção vão aumentar. E, como os apóstolos, não permitiremos que nada nos impeça de falar das maravilhosas verdades espirituais 'que vimos e ouvimos'.

12. O que pode ajudar-nos a desenvolver coragem e convicção?

"Elevaram . . . as suas vozes a Deus" (Atos 4:23-31)

[13] Imediatamente depois de serem soltos da prisão, Pedro e João reuniram-se com os outros membros da congregação. Juntos, eles "elevaram . . . as suas vozes a Deus" e oraram pedindo coragem para continuar a pregar. (Atos 4:24) Pedro estava bem ciente da tolice de confiar

13, 14. O que devemos fazer quando enfrentamos oposição, e por quê?

nas próprias forças ao tentar fazer a vontade de Deus. Apenas algumas semanas antes, com excesso de confiança, ele havia dito a Jesus: "Ainda que todos os outros tropecem em conexão contigo, eu nunca tropeçarei!" Mas, como Jesus predisse, Pedro logo cedeu ao medo do homem e negou seu amigo e instrutor. No entanto, Pedro aprendeu de seu erro. — Mat. 26:33, 34, 69-75.

14 Para cumprir sua comissão de ser testemunha de Cristo, você precisa ter mais do que apenas determinação. Quando opositores tentarem destruir sua fé ou impedi-lo de pregar, siga o exemplo de Pedro e João. Ore a Jeová pedindo forças. Busque o apoio da congregação. Diga aos anciãos e a outros cristãos maduros as dificuldades que você enfrenta. As orações de nossos irmãos podem nos dar forças para perseverar. — Efé. 6:18; Tia. 5:16.

15 Se alguma vez você cedeu à pressão e parou de pregar por um tempo, não fique desanimado. Lembre-se de que todos os apóstolos pararam de pregar por um período depois da morte de Jesus, mas logo ficaram ativos novamente. (Mat. 26:56; 28:10, 16-20) Em vez de permitir que erros passados o desanimem, será que pode aprender desses erros e usar o que aprendeu para fortalecer outros?

15. Por que os que talvez tenham parado de pregar por um tempo não devem ficar desanimados?

[16] Pelo que devemos orar quando autoridades nos oprimem? Observe que os discípulos não pediram para ser poupados das provações. Eles se lembravam muito bem da declaração de Jesus: "Se me perseguiram a mim, perseguirão também a vós." (João 15:20) Em vez disso, esses leais discípulos pediram que Jeová 'desse atenção' às ameaças dos opositores. (Atos 4:29) Fica evidente que os discípulos enxergavam além das provações, reconhecendo que a perseguição que enfrentavam era, na verdade, cumprimento de profecia. Eles sabiam que, conforme Jesus os havia ensinado a orar, a vontade de Deus seria 'realizada na terra' independentemente do que meros governantes humanos pudessem dizer. — Mat. 6:9, 10.

[17] A fim de fazerem a vontade de Deus, os discípulos oraram: "Concede aos teus escravos que persistam em falar a tua palavra com todo o denodo." Qual foi a resposta de Jeová? Imediatamente "foi abalado o lugar onde estavam ajuntados; e todos juntos ficaram cheios de espírito santo e falaram a palavra de Deus com denodo". (Atos 4:29-31) Nada pode impedir que a vontade de Deus seja feita. (Isa. 55:11) Por maior que sejam os obstáculos, por mais poderoso que seja o adversário, se 'elevarmos nossa voz a Deus' em oração, podemos ter a certeza de que Ele nos dará forças para continuarmos a falar Sua palavra com destemor.

Prestaram contas "não a homens, mas a Deus" (Atos 4:32–5:11)

[18] A recém-formada congregação em Jerusalém logo chegou a mais de 5 mil membros.* Apesar de terem diferentes formações, os discípulos tinham "um só coração e alma". Eles estavam unidos na mesma mente e na mesma maneira de pensar. (Atos 4:32; 1 Cor. 1:10) Os discípulos faziam mais do que apenas pedir a Jeová que abençoasse seus esforços. Eles apoiavam uns aos outros em sentido espiritual e, quando necessário, em sentido material. (1 João 3:16-18) Um exemplo disso foi o discípulo José, chamado de Barnabé pelos apóstolos. Ele vendeu um pedaço de terra que possuía e doou de coração todo o valor para ajudar os que tinham vindo de longe. Assim eles podiam ficar mais tempo em Jerusalém a fim de aprenderem mais sobre sua nova fé.

[19] O casal Ananias e Safira também vendeu uma propriedade e fez uma contribuição. Eles disseram ter dado todo o dinheiro, mas ‘retiveram secretamente parte do preço’. (Atos 5:2) Jeová tirou a vida daquele casal, não porque a quantia doada fosse insuficiente, mas porque a motivação deles era má e eles mentiram. Eles ‘trapacearam, não a homens, mas a Deus’. (Atos 5:4) Como os hipócritas a quem Jesus condenou, Ananias e Safira estavam mais preocupados em obter a glória de homens do que a aprovação de Deus. — Mat. 6:1-3.

* Em 33 EC, talvez houvesse apenas uns 6 mil fariseus e um número ainda menor de saduceus em Jerusalém. Essa pode ser outra razão pela qual esses dois grupos se sentiam cada vez mais ameaçados pelos ensinos de Jesus.

20 Atualmente, milhões de Testemunhas de Jeová apoiam a obra mundial de pregação por meio de donativos, demonstrando o mesmo espírito de generosidade dos fiéis discípulos do primeiro século em Jerusalém. Ninguém é obrigado a dar de seu tempo ou de seu dinheiro para apoiar essa obra. De fato, Jeová não quer que o sirvamos contra a nossa vontade ou por obrigação. (2 Cor. 9:7) Quando damos algo a Jeová, ele se interessa não na quantidade, mas na nossa motivação. (Mar. 12:41-44) Jamais queremos ser como Ananias e Safira, permitindo que nosso serviço a Deus seja motivado pelo egoísmo ou pelo desejo de obter glória. Em vez disso, como Pedro, João e Barnabé, queremos que o nosso serviço a Jeová seja sempre motivado por genuíno amor a ele e ao próximo. — Mat. 22:37-40.

“Temos de obedecer a Deus como governante”

Os apóstolos tomam uma atitude que passa a servir de modelo para todos os cristãos verdadeiros

Baseado em Atos 5:12–6:7

OS JUÍZES do Sinédrio estão furiosos! Os apóstolos de Jesus estão sendo julgados perante esse supremo tribunal. Qual o motivo? José Caifás, o sumo sacerdote e presidente do Sinédrio, dirige-se a eles de forma dura: “Nós vos ordenamos positivamente que não ensinásseis à base deste nome.” O furioso presidente não quer nem pronunciar o nome de Jesus. “E, ainda assim”, continua Caifás, “enchestes Jerusalém com o vosso ensino, e estais resolvidos a trazer sobre nós o sangue deste homem”. (Atos 5:28) A mensagem é clara: parar de pregar ou sofrer as consequências!

[2] Como os apóstolos vão reagir? Sua comissão de pregar foi dada por Jesus, cuja autoridade havia sido concedida por Deus. (Mat. 28:18-20) Será que os apóstolos vão ceder ao medo do homem e ser silenciados? Ou terão a coragem de permanecer firmes e continuar pregando? Na verdade, a questão se resume a isto: A quem eles vão obedecer? A Deus ou aos homens? Sem hesitar, o apóstolo Pedro fala por todos os apóstolos. Suas palavras são claras e corajosas.

[3] Como cristãos verdadeiros, estamos muito interessados em saber como os apóstolos reagiram às ameaças do Sinédrio, pois a comissão de pregar também se aplica a nós. Ao cumprirmos essa designação dada por Deus, pode ser que nós também enfrentemos oposição. (Mat. 10:22) Os opositores podem tentar limitar ou proibir nossa obra. O que faremos? Para nos ajudar nesse sentido, será proveitoso considerar a atitude que os apóstolos tomaram e os eventos que levaram ao julgamento deles diante do Sinédrio.*

“O anjo de Jeová abriu as portas” (Atos 5:12-21a)

[4] Lembre-se de que na primeira vez que foram ordenados a parar de pregar, Pedro e João responderam:

* Veja o quadro “O Sinédrio — supremo tribunal dos judeus”, na página 69.

4, 5. Por que Caifás e os saduceus ficaram “cheios de ciúme”?

O SINÉDRIO — SUPREMO TRIBUNAL DOS JUDEUS

Embora a Judeia fosse uma província do Império Romano, Roma permitia que os judeus preservassem suas próprias tradições e tivessem certa autonomia. Crimes menores e casos civis eram julgados por tribunais locais, mas as questões que esses tribunais não podiam decidir eram encaminhadas ao Sinédrio, também chamado Grande Sinédrio, em Jerusalém. O Sinédrio funcionava como supremo tribunal judaico e como conselho administrativo nacional. Também dava a palavra final quanto à interpretação da lei judaica, e sua autoridade era respeitada pelos judeus em toda a parte.

O Sinédrio reunia-se na câmara de decisão, que provavelmente se localizava na área do templo ou nas suas imediações. O conselho era formado por 71 membros: o sumo sacerdote, que era o presidente; outros nobres sacerdotais, incluindo os saduceus; aristocratas leigos e escribas cultos. As decisões desse tribunal eram definitivas.

"Não podemos parar de falar das coisas que vimos e ouvimos." (Atos 4:20) Depois dessa situação tensa com o Sinédrio, Pedro, João e os outros apóstolos continuaram a pregar no templo. Os apóstolos realizaram grandes sinais, como curar doentes e expulsar demônios. Eles fizeram isso "na colunata de Salomão", uma grande área coberta do lado leste do templo onde muitos judeus costumavam reunir-se. Pelo visto, até mesmo a sombra de Pedro curava as pessoas! Muitos que foram curados em sentido físico aceitaram a mensagem de cura espiritual. Em resultado disso, "os crentes no Senhor continuavam a ser acrescidos, multidões deles, tanto de homens como de mulheres". — Atos 5:12-15.

[5] Caifás e os saduceus, membros da seita religiosa à qual Caifás pertencia, ficaram "cheios de ciúme" e ordenaram que os apóstolos fossem jogados na prisão. (Atos 5:17, 18) Por que os saduceus estavam furiosos? Os apóstolos ensinavam que Jesus tinha sido ressuscitado, mas os saduceus não acreditavam na ressurreição. Os apóstolos diziam que apenas por exercer fé em Jesus alguém poderia ser salvo; já os saduceus temiam uma represália de Roma se as pessoas passassem a encarar Jesus como líder. (João 11:48) Não é de admirar que os saduceus estivessem decididos a silenciar os apóstolos.

guição contra os servos de Jeová são opositores religiosos. Eles muitas vezes tentam usar sua influência na política e na mídia para silenciar nossa pregação. Será que deveríamos ficar surpresos com isso? Não. Nossa mensagem expõe a religião falsa. Por aceitarem as verdades da Bíblia, pessoas sinceras são libertadas de crenças e práticas antibíblicas. (João 8:32) É de estranhar então que nossa mensagem muitas vezes leve líderes religiosos a ficar cheios de ódio e ciúme?

[7] Enquanto aguardavam na prisão seu julgamento, é possível que os apóstolos se perguntassem se estavam para sofrer martírio às mãos dos seus inimigos. (Mat. 24:9) Mas, durante a noite, aconteceu algo surpreendente: "O anjo de Jeová abriu as portas da prisão."* (Atos 5:19) O anjo deu-lhes então uma orientação específica: 'Tomem posição no templo e persistam em falar.' (Atos 5:20) Essa ordem sem dúvida assegurou os apóstolos de que eles estavam fazendo o que era certo. As palavras do anjo também devem tê-los encorajado a permanecer firmes independentemente do que acontecesse. Com forte fé e coragem, os apóstolos "entraram no templo de madrugada e começaram a ensinar". — Atos 5:21.

8 Cada um de nós faria bem em se perguntar: 'Será que eu teria a fé e a coragem necessárias para continuar a pregar em circunstâncias similares?' Podemos nos sentir encorajados por saber que a obra vital de 'dar testemunho cabal a respeito do reino de Deus' tem apoio e orientação angélica. — Atos 28:23; Rev. 14:6, 7.

"Temos de obedecer a Deus como governante antes que aos homens" (Atos 5:21b-33)

9 Caifás e os outros juízes do Sinédrio agora estavam prontos para cuidar do caso dos apóstolos. Sem saber do que tinha acontecido na prisão, o tribunal mandou que guardas fossem buscar os prisioneiros. Imagine a surpresa dos guardas quando viram que os apóstolos não estavam na prisão, embora ela estivesse "fechada com toda a segurança e [com] os guardas postos às portas". (Atos 5:23) Logo o capitão do templo ficou sabendo que os apóstolos estavam de novo no templo, dando testemunho sobre Jesus Cristo — o mesmo motivo pelo qual haviam sido presos! O capitão e os guardas foram imediatamente ao templo para capturar os prisioneiros e escoltá-los até o Sinédrio.

10 Conforme descrito no início deste capítulo, os furiosos líderes religiosos deixaram claro que os apóstolos tinham de parar de pregar. Como os apóstolos reagiram? Agindo como porta-voz, Pedro respondeu com coragem: "Temos de obedecer a Deus como governante antes que aos homens." (Atos 5:29) Desse modo, os apóstolos estabeleceram um modelo para todos os cristãos verdadeiros. Os governantes humanos perdem o direito à obediência quando proíbem o que Deus requer ou exigem o que Deus proíbe. Então, em nossos dias, o que faremos caso as "autoridades superiores" proíbam a pregação das boas novas? Não poderemos deixar de cumprir nossa designação dada por Deus. (Rom. 13:1) Assim, encontraremos maneiras discretas de continuar dando testemunho cabal sobre o Reino de Deus.

11 Não é de surpreender que a reação corajosa dos apóstolos tenha levado aqueles juízes frustrados a ficar ainda mais furiosos e querer 'eliminar' os apóstolos. (Atos 5:33) O martírio parecia certo para aquelas testemunhas destemidas e zelosas. Mas eles receberiam ajuda de uma fonte totalmente inesperada.

“Não podereis derrubá-los” (Atos 5:34-42)

[12] Gamaliel, “instrutor da Lei, estimado por todo o povo”, manifestou-se.* Esse jurista devia ser muito respeitado pelos seus colegas, pois tomou a frente da situação e até mesmo “mandou que pusessem os [apóstolos] para fora por um pouco de tempo”. (Atos 5:34) Ao mencionar anteriores revoltas que logo fracassaram após a morte de seus líderes, Gamaliel incentivou o tribunal a ser paciente e tolerante ao lidar com os apóstolos, cujo Líder, Jesus, tinha morrido havia pouco tempo. O argumento de Gamaliel era muito convincente: “Não vos metais com estes homens, mas deixai-os em paz; (porque, se este desígnio ou esta obra for de homens, será derrubada; mas, se for de Deus, não podereis derrubá-los;) senão podereis talvez ser realmente achados como lutadores contra Deus.” (Atos 5:38, 39) Os juízes seguiram seu conselho. Mesmo assim, fizeram com que os apóstolos fossem chibateados e ordenaram “que parassem de falar à base do nome de Jesus”. — Atos 5:40.

12, 13. (a) Que conselho Gamaliel deu a seus colegas, e o que eles fizeram? (b) Como Jeová pode agir em favor do seu povo hoje, e do que podemos estar certos caso ele permita que ‘soframos pela causa da justiça’?

GAMALIEL — ESTIMADO ENTRE OS RABIS

O Gamaliel mencionado no livro de Atos costuma ser identificado como Gamaliel, o Velho, neto de Hilel, o fundador da mais liberal das duas escolas do farisaísmo. Gamaliel ocupava uma posição de destaque no Sinédrio e era tão estimado entre os rabis que foi o primeiro a receber o título honorífico "raban". A Míxena diz: "Quando morreu o Raban Gamaliel, o Velho, cessou a glória da Lei, e morreram a pureza e a abstinência." Atribui-se a ele a implementação de várias medidas humanitárias. "De especial importância", diz a Encyclopaedia Judaica, "foi a sua decisão de permitir que uma mulher casasse novamente mesmo que houvesse apenas uma testemunha da morte de seu marido". Ele também teria promulgado leis que protegiam esposas contra maridos inescrupulosos e viúvas contra filhos inescrupulosos, e lutado para que os gentios pobres tivessem o mesmo direito à respiga que os judeus pobres.

[13] Hoje, assim como no passado, Jeová pode fazer com que homens importantes como Gamaliel ajam em favor do Seu povo. (Pro. 21:1) Jeová pode usar seu espírito para levar governantes, juízes ou legisladores poderosos a agir em harmonia com sua vontade. (Nee. 2:4-8)

Mas, caso ele permita que 'soframos pela causa da justiça', podemos estar certos de duas coisas. (1 Ped. 3:14) Primeiro, Deus pode nos dar forças para perseverar. (1 Cor. 10:13) Segundo, os opositores 'não poderão derrubar' a obra de Deus. — Isa. 54:17.

[14] Será que os maus-tratos diminuíram o ânimo dos apóstolos ou enfraqueceram sua determinação? De modo algum! Eles se "retiraram do Sinédrio, alegrando-se". (Atos 5:41) "Alegrando-se"? Por quê? Sem dúvida não foi por causa da dor provocada pelos maus-tratos. Eles se alegraram porque sabiam que estavam sendo perseguidos por manter a integridade a Jeová e seguir os passos de seu Exemplo, Jesus. — Mat. 5:11, 12.

[15] Assim como nossos irmãos do primeiro século, nós também perseveramos com alegria quando sofremos por causa das boas novas. (1 Ped. 4:12-14) Embora não gostemos de ser ameaçados, perseguidos ou presos, manter a integridade nos dá profunda satisfação. Veja, por exemplo, o caso de Henryk Dornik, que suportou anos de maus-tratos sob governos totalitários. Ele se lembra de que em agosto de 1944 as autoridades deci-diram enviá-lo junto com seu irmão a um campo de concentração. Os opositores disseram: "É impossível convencê-los a fazer qualquer coisa. Eles gostam de ser mártires." O irmão Dornik explica: "Eu não queria ser mártir, mas sofrer com coragem e dignidade por causa da minha lealdade a Jeová realmente me dava alegria." — Tia. 1:2-4.

16 Os apóstolos não perderam tempo para retomar sua obra de testemunho. Sem se deixarem intimidar, eles continuaram "cada dia, no templo e de casa em casa", a obra de "declarar as boas novas a respeito do Cristo".* (Atos 5:42) Esses proclamadores zelosos estavam determinados a dar testemunho cabal. Observe que eles levavam a mensagem às casas das pessoas, conforme Jesus Cristo os havia orientado. (Mat. 10:7, 11-14) Sem dúvida, foi assim que conseguiram encher Jerusalém com seus ensinos. Hoje, as Testemunhas de Jeová são conhecidas por seguir esse método apostólico de pregação. Por visitarmos todas as casas em nosso território, deixamos claro que também queremos dar testemunho cabal, dando a todos a oportunidade de ouvir as boas

16. Como os apóstolos mostraram que estavam determinados a dar testemunho cabal, e como nós seguimos o método apostólico de pregação?

PREGAÇÃO “DE CASA EM CASA”

Apesar de o Sinédrio ter proibido a atividade de pregação dos discípulos, eles continuaram a pregar e ensinar “cada dia, no templo e de casa em casa”. (Atos 5:42) O que exatamente significa “de casa em casa”?

No grego original, a frase kat’·oí·kon literalmente significa “segundo [a] casa”. Muitos tradutores dizem que a palavra ka·tá deve ser entendida no sentido “distributivo”, ou seja, a pregação dos discípulos era “distribuída” pelas casas. Um uso parecido da palavra ka·tá ocorre em Lucas 8:1, onde diz que Jesus pregou “de cidade em cidade e de aldeia em aldeia”.

O plural, kat’·oí·kous, é usado em Atos 20:20. O apóstolo Paulo disse a superintendentes cristãos: “Não me refreei de . . . vos ensinar publicamente e de casa em casa.” Que Paulo não se referia simplesmente a ensinar na casa de anciãos, como alguns sugerem, é indicado no versículo seguinte: “Mas, eu dei cabalmente testemunho, tanto a judeus como a gregos, do arrependimento para com Deus e da fé em nosso Senhor Jesus.” (Atos 20:21) Companheiros de adoração já haviam se arrependido e depositado fé em Jesus. Fica claro então que a pregação e o ensino de casa em casa tinha a ver com dar testemunho aos que não eram cristãos.

novas. Será que Jeová está abençoando nosso ministério de casa em casa? Com certeza! Milhões já aceitaram a mensagem do Reino neste tempo do fim, e muitos ouviram as boas novas pela primeira vez quando uma Testemunha de Jeová bateu na sua porta.

Homens qualificados para cuidar de uma "incumbência necessária" (Atos 6:1-6)

[17] A recém-formada congregação enfrentava agora um perigo sutil que surgiu dentro da congregação. Do que se tratava? Muitos dos discípulos que estavam sendo batizados não eram de Jerusalém e queriam aprender mais antes de voltar para casa. Essas pessoas precisavam de comida e outros suprimentos, de modo que os discípulos voluntariamente doaram dinheiro para atender a essas necessidades. (Atos 2:44-46; 4:34-37) Com isso, surgiu uma situação delicada. "Na distribuição diária" de alimentos, as viúvas que falavam grego "estavam sendo passadas por alto". (Atos 6:1) Mas isso não acontecia com as que falavam hebraico. Parece, então, que o problema envolvia discriminação. Poucas questões têm tanto potencial para causar divisão.

[18] Os apóstolos, atuando como corpo governante da crescente congregação, reconheceram que não seria sábio eles 'deixarem a palavra de Deus para distribuir comida'. (Atos 6:2) Para resolver esse assunto, eles orientaram os discípulos a procurar sete homens "cheios de espírito e de sabedoria" a quem eles pudessem designar para cuidar dessa "incumbência necessária". (Atos 6:3) Era preciso usar homens qualificados porque aquela tarefa envolvia não apenas distribuir alimentos, mas também lidar com dinheiro, fazer compras e manter registros exatos. Todos os homens escolhidos tinham nome grego, o que talvez tenha ajudado as viúvas prejudicadas a ter mais confiança neles. Depois de considerarem as recomendações com oração, os apóstolos designaram os sete homens para cuidar dessa "incumbência necessária".*

19 Será que cuidar da distribuição de alimentos significava que aqueles sete homens designados estavam agora isentos da responsabilidade de pregar as boas novas? Definitivamente não! Um desses homens escolhidos foi Estêvão, que se mostraria uma testemunha corajosa e determinada. (Atos 6:8-10) Filipe também foi um dos sete e é chamado de "o evangelizador". (Atos 21:8) Fica evidente então que os sete homens continuaram a ser zelosos pregadores do Reino.

[20] O povo de Jeová hoje segue o procedimento adotado pelos apóstolos. Homens recomendados para cuidar de responsabilidades congregacionais têm de manifestar sabedoria divina e dar evidências de que o espírito santo age sobre eles. Sob a orientação do Corpo Governante, homens que preenchem os requisitos bíblicos são designados para servir como anciãos ou servos ministeriais nas congregações.* (1 Tim. 3:1-9, 12, 13) Pode-se dizer que os que preenchem as qualificações foram designados pelo espírito santo. Esses homens diligentes cuidam de muitas 'incumbências necessárias'. Por exemplo, anciãos podem providenciar ajuda prática para fiéis irmãos idosos com reais necessidades. (Tia. 1:27) Alguns anciãos se empenham em construir Salões do Reino, organizar congressos ou visitar médicos e hospitais para tratar de assuntos relacionados à questão do sangue. Servos ministeriais cuidam de muitas tarefas que não envolvem diretamente pastoreio ou ensino. Todos esses homens qualificados precisam equilibrar suas responsabilidades congregacionais e organizacionais com a designação dada por Deus de pregar as boas novas do Reino. — 1 Cor. 9:16.

“A palavra de Deus crescia” (Atos 6:7)

21 Com o apoio de Jeová, a recém-formada congregação sobreviveu à perseguição externa e evitou um problema interno que poderia causar divisões. A bênção de Jeová era evidente, pois lemos: “A palavra de Deus crescia e o número dos discípulos multiplicava-se grandemente em Jerusalém; e uma grande multidão de sacerdotes começou a ser obediente à fé.” (Atos 6:7) Esse é apenas um de vários relatórios do progresso da obra encontrados no livro de Atos. (Atos 9:31; 12:24; 16:5; 19:20; 28:31) Nos nossos dias, ouvir relatórios sobre o progresso da obra de pregação do Reino em outras partes do mundo nos dá muito encorajamento.

22 Lá no primeiro século EC, os enfurecidos líderes religiosos não tinham a menor intenção de desistir da luta contra os discípulos. Uma onda de perseguição estava prestes a começar. Logo, Estêvão seria o alvo de violenta oposição, conforme veremos no próximo capítulo.

ATOS 8:1

Estêvão — "cheio de graça e de poder"

O que aprendemos do testemunho corajoso de Estêvão perante o Sinédrio

Baseado em Atos 6:8–8:3

ESTÊVÃO está diante do tribunal. Numa sala imponente, provavelmente perto do templo em Jerusalém, 71 homens estão sentados em cadeiras dispostas em um grande semicírculo. Esse tribunal, o Sinédrio, está reunido para julgar Estêvão. Os juízes são homens poderosos e influentes, e a grande maioria deles não tem nenhum respeito por esse discípulo de Jesus. De fato, quem convocou o tribunal foi o Sumo Sacerdote Caifás, o mesmo que presidia o Sinédrio quando esse supremo tribunal judaico condenou Jesus Cristo à morte alguns meses antes. Será que Estêvão está assustado?

[2] Há algo notável no semblante de Estêvão nesse momento. Os juízes olham fixamente para ele e veem que seu rosto é "como o rosto dum anjo". (Atos 6:15) Os anjos transmitem mensagens de Jeová Deus e por isso têm motivos para serem destemidos, serenos e tranquilos. O mesmo acontece com Estêvão — até mesmo aqueles juízes cheios de ódio podem perceber isso. Como ele pode estar tão calmo?

[3] Como cristãos, podemos aprender muito da resposta a essa pergunta. Também precisamos saber o que exatamente levou Estêvão a esse momento decisivo. Como ele já havia defendido sua fé? E de que maneiras podemos imitá-lo?

"Atiçaram o povo" (Atos 6:8-15)

[4] Já vimos que Estêvão era muito valioso para a recém-formada congregação cristã. No capítulo anterior deste livro, vimos que ele foi um dos sete homens humildes que prontamente aceitaram dos apóstolos a designação de prestar ajuda. E sua humildade nos impressiona ainda mais quando lembramos dos dons que esse homem recebeu de Jeová. Em Atos 6:8, lemos que ele tinha recebido poder para realizar "grandes portentos e sinais", assim como alguns dos apóstolos, e que era "cheio de graça e de poder". O que isso quer dizer?

[5] Estêvão pelo visto lidava com as pessoas de modo bondoso, gentil e cativante. Pelo seu modo de falar, ele conquistava a confiança dos seus ouvintes. Muitos deles ficavam convencidos que ele era sincero e que as verdades que ensinava lhes seriam proveitosas. Estêvão era cheio de poder porque o espírito de Jeová atuava sobre ele. Isso mostra que ele humildemente se deixava guiar por esse espírito. Em vez de se vangloriar de seus dons e habilidades, ele direcionava todo o louvor a Jeová e mostrava genuíno interesse pelas pessoas com quem falava. Não é de admirar que seus inimigos o considerassem uma ameaça!

4, 5. (a) Por que Estêvão era muito valioso para a congregação? (b) Em que sentido Estêvão era "cheio de graça e de poder"?

6 Em certa ocasião, vários homens discutiram com Estêvão, mas 'não puderam fazer face à sabedoria e ao espírito com que ele falava'.* Frustrados, eles 'secretamente induziram' alguns homens a levantar acusações contra esse inocente seguidor de Cristo. Eles também "atiçaram o povo", bem como os anciãos e os escribas, de modo que Estêvão foi levado à força ao Sinédrio. (Atos 6:9-12) Os inimigos o acusaram de duas coisas:

* Alguns desses inimigos pertenciam à "Sinagoga dos Libertos". Pode ser que eles tivessem sido capturados pelos romanos e libertados mais tarde, ou talvez fossem escravos libertos que se tinham tornado prosélitos. Alguns eram da Cilícia, assim como era Saulo de Tarso. O relato não revela se Saulo estava entre aqueles cilicianos que não eram capazes de refutar Estêvão.

6-8. (a) Que duas acusações os inimigos de Estêvão levantaram contra ele, e por quê? (b) Por que o exemplo de Estêvão é de ajuda para os cristãos de hoje?

blasfemar a Deus e blasfemar a Moisés. De que maneira ele teria feito essas coisas?

[7] Os falsos acusadores diziam que Estêvão tinha blasfemado a Deus por ter falado contra 'esse santo lugar' — o templo em Jerusalém. (Atos 6:13) Diziam também que ele tinha blasfemado a Moisés por ter falado contra a Lei mosaica, mudando costumes transmitidos por Moisés. Essa era uma acusação muito séria, visto que os judeus da época davam grande importância ao templo, aos detalhes da Lei mosaica e às muitas tradições orais que eles haviam acrescentado a essa Lei. Sendo assim, a acusação significava que Estêvão era um homem perigoso que merecia a morte.

[8] Infelizmente, é comum pessoas religiosas usarem táticas similares para causar problemas aos servos de Deus. Mesmo hoje, opositores religiosos às vezes instigam líderes políticos a perseguir as Testemunhas de Jeová. Como devemos reagir quando somos confrontados com acusações falsas ou distorcidas? Podemos aprender muito do exemplo de Estêvão.

Um testemunho corajoso sobre "o Deus da glória" (Atos 7:1-53)

[9] Conforme mencionado no início deste capítulo, ao ser acusado, Estêvão permaneceu com o semblante sereno, como o de um anjo. Caifás virou-se então para ele e perguntou: “São assim estas coisas?” (Atos 7:1) Era a vez de Estêvão falar. E foi exatamente isso que ele fez!

[10] Alguns críticos atacam o discurso de Estêvão, afirmando que, apesar de sua extensão, não responde nem mesmo às acusações levantadas contra ele. Na verdade, porém, Estêvão nos deu um excelente exemplo de como “fazer uma defesa” das boas novas. (1 Ped. 3:15) Tenha em mente que Estêvão foi acusado de blasfemar a Deus por difamar o templo, e de blasfemar a Moisés por falar contra a Lei. A defesa de Estêvão é um resumo de três períodos da história de Israel e enfatiza cuidadosamente certos pontos específicos. Vamos considerar cada um desses períodos.

[11] A era dos patriarcas. (Atos 7:1-16) Estêvão começou falando sobre Abraão, a quem os judeus respeitavam por sua fé. Ao estabelecer esse ponto em comum, Estêvão enfatizou que Jeová, “o Deus da glória”, apareceu pela primeira vez a Abraão na Mesopotâmia. (Atos 7:2) Na verdade, aquele homem era residente forasteiro na Terra Prometida. Abraão não tinha nem um tem-plo nem a Lei mosaica. Como então poderia alguém insistir que a fidelidade a Deus deve sempre depender de coisas desse tipo?

[12] José, descendente de Abraão, também era muito estimado pelos ouvintes de Estêvão, mas Estêvão os lembrou de que os próprios irmãos de José, pais das tribos de Israel, perseguiram aquele homem justo e o venderam como escravo. Apesar disso, Deus o usou para salvar Israel da fome. Sem dúvida, Estêvão via as claras similaridades entre José e Jesus Cristo, mas evitou fazer logo essa comparação para que seus ouvintes continuassem a escutá-lo o máximo de tempo possível.

[13] O tempo de Moisés. (Atos 7:17-43) Estêvão falou bastante sobre Moisés, o que foi sábio visto que muitos dos membros do Sinédrio eram saduceus, que rejeitavam todos os livros da Bíblia que não tivessem sido escritos por Moisés. Lembre-se também de que Estêvão havia sido acusado de blasfemar a Moisés. As palavras de Estêvão foram uma resposta direta a essa acusação, pois mostraram que ele tinha grande respeito por Moisés e pela Lei. (Atos 7:38) Estêvão destacou que Moisés também teve de enfrentar rejeição da parte daqueles

13. Como a análise do exemplo de Moisés respondeu às acusações feitas contra Estêvão, e que tema isso ajudou a desenvolver?

“MÁRTIR” — EM QUE SENTIDO?

A palavra portuguesa “mártir” deriva do termo grego már·tys, que significa “testemunha”, ou seja, alguém que observa um ato ou um evento. Mas a palavra grega significa mais do que isso. Conforme um léxico grego, na Bíblia, a pessoa que é már·tys é “ativa” no sentido de que toma uma ação. Ela “tem o dever de contar o que viu e ouviu, declarar o que sabe”. Todos os cristãos verdadeiros têm a obrigação de dar testemunho do que sabem sobre Jeová e seus propósitos. (Luc. 24:48; Atos 1:8) As Escrituras chamam Estêvão de “testemunha” por ele ter falado sobre Jesus. — Atos 22:20.

Para os cristãos, dar testemunho muitas vezes resulta em oposição, prisão, espancamento e até morte. Por isso, desde o segundo século EC, “mártir” também passou a referir-se à pessoa que sofre essas consequências em vez de renunciar à sua fé. É nesse sentido que Estêvão pode ser chamado de o primeiro mártir cristão. Mas, originalmente, a pessoa era considerada “mártir” não porque houvesse morrido, mas porque dava testemunho.

que tentou salvar. O povo rejeitou Moisés quando ele tinha 40 anos e, mais de 40 anos depois, desafiou sua liderança em várias ocasiões.* Estêvão assim foi coerente ao desenvolver um tema importante: o povo de Deus vez após vez rejeitou aqueles a quem Jeová havia designado para liderá-los.

[14] Estêvão lembrou a seus ouvintes que Moisés havia predito que um profeta semelhante ao próprio Moisés surgiria em Israel. Quem seria esse profeta, e como seria recebido? Bem, Estêvão deixou as respostas a essas perguntas para o final de seu discurso. Antes, Estêvão destacou outro ponto importante: Moisés havia aprendido que qualquer solo pode tornar-se santo, como no caso do solo do arbusto ardente, onde Jeová havia falado com ele. Então, será que se pode limitar ou restringir a adoração a Jeová a um único local, como o templo em Jerusalém? Vejamos.

[15] O tabernáculo e o templo. (Atos 7:44-50) Estêvão lembrou ao tribunal que, antes de haver qualquer templo em Jerusalém, Deus havia ordenado que Moisés construísse um tabernáculo — uma estrutura móvel para adoração, parecida com uma tenda. Quem ousaria dizer que o tabernáculo era inferior ao templo, já que o próprio Moisés havia prestado adoração no tabernáculo?

[16] Mais tarde, quando Salomão construiu o templo em Jerusalém, ele foi inspirado a transmitir uma lição vital em sua oração. Parafraseando Salomão, Estêvão explicou que "o Altíssimo não mora em casas feitas por mãos". (Atos 7:48; 2 Crô. 6:18) Jeová pode usar um templo para realizar seus propósitos, mas ele não depende disso. Por que, então, deveriam seus adoradores achar que a adoração pura depende de um local construído por mãos humanas? Estêvão concluiu seu argumento de forma poderosa, citando o livro de Isaías: "O céu é o meu trono e a terra é o meu escabelo. Que sorte de casa construireis para mim? diz Jeová. Ou qual é o lugar para o meu descanso? Não foi a minha mão que fez todas essas coisas?" — Atos 7:49, 50; Isa. 66:1, 2.

[17] Ao analisar o discurso de Estêvão até aqui, não concorda que ele expôs com habilidade a atitude errada de seus acusadores? Ele mostrou que Jeová não é rígido nem preso a tradições, mas é flexível e com o passar do tempo faz ajustes a fim de cumprir o seu propósito. Os que davam muita ênfase àquele belo templo em Jerusalém e aos costumes e tradições que se desenvolveram em torno da Lei mosaica desperceberam o verdadeiro objetivo por trás da Lei e do templo. Indiretamente, o discurso de Estêvão trouxe à tona a seguinte pergunta vital: Obedecer a Jeová não seria a melhor maneira de honrar a Lei e o templo? De fato, com suas palavras, Estêvão forneceu uma excelente defesa de suas ações, pois ele havia obedecido a Jeová da melhor maneira que podia.

18 O que aprendemos do discurso de Estêvão? Ele estava bem familiarizado com as Escrituras. Da mesma forma, precisamos ser estudantes diligentes da Palavra de Deus se quisermos manejar "corretamente a palavra da verdade". (2 Tim. 2:15) Também podemos aprender da maneira que Estêvão lidava com as pessoas, sendo gentil e usando de tato. Apesar de seus ouvintes serem extremamente hostis, ele procurou manter pontos em comum com eles até onde foi possível, falando de assuntos que aqueles homens consideravam muito importantes. Estêvão também se dirigiu a eles com respeito, chamando de "pais" os homens em posição de autoridade. (Atos 7:2) Nós também precisamos apresentar as verdades da Palavra de Deus com “temperamento brando e profundo respeito”. — 1 Ped. 3:15.

[19] No entanto, não deixamos de declarar as verdades da Palavra de Deus por medo de ofender as pessoas, nem amenizamos as mensagens de julgamento de Jeová. Estêvão é um bom exemplo disso. Sem dúvida ele percebia que todas aquelas provas que estava apresentando ao Sinédrio causavam pouco efeito naqueles juízes insensíveis. Assim, sob a influência do espírito santo, ele concluiu seu discurso mostrando com coragem que aqueles juízes eram exatamente iguais a seus antepassados que haviam rejeitado José, Moisés e todos os profetas. (Atos 7:51-53) Na verdade, aqueles juízes do Sinédrio tinham assassinado o Messias, cuja vinda havia sido predita por Moisés e todos os profetas. Realmente, eles haviam violado a Lei mosaica da pior maneira possível.

deixou aqueles juízes furiosos. Perdendo todo o decoro, eles 'rangeram os dentes' contra Estêvão. Aquele homem fiel deve ter percebido que não seria tratado com nenhuma misericórdia, assim como seu Mestre, Jesus, também não havia sido.

21 Estêvão precisava de coragem para enfrentar o que estava para acontecer e, sem dúvida, recebeu muito encorajamento da visão que Jeová bondosamente lhe deu naquele momento. Estêvão viu a glória de Deus e também Jesus em pé à direita de Seu Pai. Enquanto Estêvão descrevia a visão, os juízes taparam os ouvidos. Por quê? Algum tempo antes, Jesus havia dito àquele tribunal que ele era o Messias e que em breve estaria à direita do Pai. (Mar. 14:62) A visão de Estêvão provou que Jesus tinha falado a verdade. Aquele mesmo Sinédrio havia, na realidade, traído e assassinado o Messias! Todos avançaram contra Estêvão ao mesmo tempo para apedrejá-lo até a morte.*

22 Em muitos sentidos, Estêvão morreu da mesma

* É pouco provável que o Sinédrio tivesse autorização da lei romana para executar alguém. (João 18:31) Seja como for, a morte de Estêvão parece ter sido um assassinato realizado por uma turba enfurecida em vez de uma execução por decisão judicial.

22, 23. Em que sentidos a morte de Estêvão foi similar à de seu Mestre, e como os cristãos hoje podem ser tão confiantes quanto Estêvão?

maneira que seu Mestre: em paz, com total confiança em Jeová e tendo perdoado seus assassinos. Ele disse: "Senhor Jesus, recebe meu espírito", talvez porque ainda pudesse observar na visão o Filho do homem com Seu Pai. Com certeza, Estêvão conhecia as consoladoras palavras de Jesus: "Eu sou a ressurreição e a vida." (João 11:25) Por fim, Estêvão orou diretamente a Deus em alta voz: "Jeová, não lhes imputes este pecado." Após dizer isso, ele adormeceu na morte. — Atos 7:59, 60.

[23] Assim, Estêvão tornou-se o primeiro mártir entre os seguidores de Cristo de que se tem registro. (Veja o quadro "'Mártir' — em que sentido?" na página 90.) Infelizmente, porém, ele não seria o último. Até os nossos dias, alguns servos fiéis de Jeová têm sido mortos por fanáticos religiosos, extremistas políticos e outros cruéis opositores. Ainda assim, temos motivos para ser tão confiantes quanto Estêvão. Jesus já é Rei e está exercendo o grande poder que seu Pai lhe deu. Nada o impedirá de ressuscitar seus fiéis seguidores. — João 5:28, 29.

[24] Presenciando tudo isso estava um jovem chamado Saulo. Ele aprovava o assassinato de Estêvão e até mesmo ficou tomando conta da vestimenta daqueles que participaram do apedrejamento. Pouco depois, ele liderou uma onda de perseguição feroz. Mas a morte de Estêvão deixaria sua marca por muito tempo. Seu exemplo fortaleceria outros cristãos a permanecer fiéis e a vencer assim como ele. Além disso, Saulo — anos depois mais conhecido como Paulo — viria a se sentir profundamente arrependido por ter participado no assassinato de Estêvão. (Atos 22:20) Apesar de ele ter ajudado a matar Estêvão, mais tarde chegaria à conclusão: 'Eu era blasfemador, perseguidor e homem insolente.' (1 Tim. 1:13) Com certeza, Paulo nunca se esqueceu de Estêvão e do poderoso discurso que este deu naquele dia. Na verdade, alguns dos discursos e escritos de Paulo abordaram temas mencionados no discurso de Estêvão. (Atos 7:48; 17:24; Heb. 9:24) Com o tempo, Paulo aprendeu plenamente a seguir o exemplo de fé e coragem estabelecido por Estêvão, um homem "cheio de graça e de poder". A pergunta é: Nós faremos o mesmo?

Filipe declara "as boas novas a respeito de Jesus"

Filipe dá exemplo como evangelizador

Baseado em Atos 8:4-40

COMEÇA uma onda de violenta perseguição e Saulo passa a tratar a congregação "de modo ultrajante" — uma expressão que no idioma original denota brutalidade. (Atos 8:3) Os discípulos fogem e, para algumas pessoas, pode parecer que Saulo será bem-sucedido em acabar com o cristianismo. Mas espalhar os cristãos resulta em algo inesperado. Como assim?

2 Os que são espalhados começam a 'declarar as boas novas da palavra' nos lugares para onde fogem. (Atos 8:4) Imagine só! A perseguição não apenas falhou em silenciar as boas novas, mas acabou contribuindo para a divulgação da mensagem. Embora não fosse sua intenção, ao espalharem os discípulos, os perseguidores possibilitaram que a pregação do Rei-no alcançasse territórios bem distantes. Como veremos, algo parecido tem acontecido em nossos dias.

“Os que tinham sido espalhados” (Atos 8:4-8)

[3] Um dos “que tinham sido espalhados” foi Filipe.* (Atos 8:4; veja o quadro “Filipe — ‘o evangelizador’”, na página 100.) Ele foi para Samaria. A maioria das pessoas nessa cidade ainda não tinha ouvido as boas novas, pois certa vez Jesus havia instruído seus apóstolos: “Não entreis em cidade samaritana; mas, ide antes continuamente às ovelhas perdidas da casa de Israel.” (Mat. 10:5, 6) No entanto, Jesus sabia que, no tempo devido, Samaria receberia testemunho cabal, pois, antes de ascender ao céu, ele disse: “Sereis testemunhas de mim tanto em Jerusalém como em toda a Judeia e Samaria, e até à parte mais distante da terra.” — Atos 1:8.

[4] Filipe viu que o campo em Samaria estava ‘branco

* Esse não se trata do apóstolo Filipe, mas do Filipe que, conforme mencionado no Capítulo 5 deste livro, estava entre os “sete homens acreditados” designados para organizar a distribuição diária de alimentos entre as viúvas em Jerusalém, tanto as que falavam grego como as que falavam hebraico. — Atos 6:1-6.

3. (a) Quem era Filipe? (b) Por que a maioria das pessoas em Samaria ainda não tinha ouvido as boas novas? (c) O que Jesus havia predito que aconteceria com aquele território?
4. Como os samaritanos reagiram à mensagem de Filipe, e que fator talvez tenha contribuído para isso?

FILIPE — "O EVANGELIZADOR"

Quando os cristãos foram espalhados por causa da perseguição, Filipe foi para Samaria. Pelo visto, ele cooperava de perto com o corpo governante do primeiro século, pois, "quando os apóstolos em Jerusalém ouviram que Samaria havia aceito a palavra de Deus, mandaram-lhes Pedro e João". O resultado foi que os novos discípulos ali receberam a dádiva gratuita do espírito santo. — Atos 8:14-17.

Depois dos eventos registrados em Atos capítulo 8, Filipe só é mencionado mais uma vez. Uns 20 anos depois da pregação inicial de Filipe, no final da terceira viagem missionária de Paulo, o apóstolo Paulo e seus companheiros de viagem estavam a caminho de Jerusalém. O grupo desembarcou em Ptolemaida. "No dia seguinte", conta Lucas, "partimos e chegamos a Cesareia, e entramos na casa de Filipe, o evangelizador, que era um dos sete homens, e ficamos com ele. Este homem tinha quatro filhas, virgens, que profetizavam". — Atos 21:8, 9.

Tudo indica que Filipe se havia estabelecido no seu território de pregação e constituído família. É significativo que Lucas se tenha referido a ele como "o evangelizador". As Escrituras usam esse termo para descrever aqueles que deixavam sua cidade natal para pregar em regiões onde as boas novas ainda não haviam sido pregadas. É evidente então que o zelo de Filipe pelo ministério permaneceu forte. O fato de ele ter quatro filhas que profetizavam com certeza é uma indicação de que Filipe ensinou sua família a amar e a servir a Jeová.

para a colheita'. (João 4:35) Sua mensagem era como uma sombra no deserto para os que moravam ali, e não é difícil entender por quê. Os judeus evitavam os samaritanos; muitos até os tratavam com desprezo. Em contraste com isso, os samaritanos descobriram que a mensagem das boas novas não fazia distinção de pessoas, sendo muito diferente da mentalidade fechada dos fariseus. Por dar testemunho com zelo e imparcialidade em Samaria, Filipe mostrou que não era influenciado pelo preconceito dos que desprezavam os samaritanos. Não é de surpreender, então, que multidões de samaritanos tenham ouvido Filipe "de comum acordo". — Atos 8:6.

5 Hoje, assim como no primeiro século, a perseguição ao povo de Deus não consegue silenciar a pregação. Vez após vez, forçar os cristãos a se mudar de um lugar para outro — ou mandá-los para a prisão — só tem ajudado a levar a mensagem do Reino às pessoas nesses lugares. Por exemplo, durante a Segunda Guerra Mundial, as Testemunhas de Jeová puderam dar um notável testemunho em campos de concentração nazistas. Um judeu que conheceu as Testemunhas de

Jeová num desses campos disse: “A força moral dos prisioneiros que eram Testemunhas de Jeová me convenceu de que a fé que eles tinham baseava-se nas Escrituras, e eu mesmo acabei aderindo a essa fé.”

6 Em alguns casos, até mesmo perseguidores receberam testemunho e aceitaram a mensagem. Por exemplo, quando Franz Desch, uma Testemunha de Jeová, foi transferido para o campo de concentração de Gusen, na Áustria, ele conseguiu dirigir um estudo da Bíblia para um oficial da SS. Imagine a alegria que os dois sentiram quando anos mais tarde eles se encontraram num congresso das Testemunhas de Jeová e ambos eram proclamadores das boas novas!

7 Algo parecido aconteceu quando a perseguição obrigou cristãos a fugir de um país para outro. Na década de 70, por exemplo, um grande testemunho foi dado em Moçambique quando Testemunhas de Jeová de Malaui foram forçadas a fugir para lá. Mesmo quando mais tarde surgiu oposição em Moçambique, a obra de pregação não parou. “É verdade que alguns de nós foram detidos e presos várias vezes, devido à nossa pregação”, diz Francisco Coana. “No entanto, vendo que muitos aceitavam a mensagem do Reino, sentíamo-nos confiantes de que Deus nos ajudava, assim como ajudou os cristãos do primeiro século."

[8] Claro que a perseguição não é a única razão do crescimento do cristianismo em territórios estrangeiros. Em décadas recentes, mudanças políticas e econômicas também abriram oportunidades para que a mensagem do Reino fosse levada a pessoas de vários idiomas e nacionalidades. Alguns que viviam em zonas de guerra e em regiões muito pobres fugiram para países mais estáveis, onde começaram a estudar a Bíblia. A chegada de muitos refugiados levou à formação de territórios de língua estrangeira. Por exemplo, na cidade de San Diego, Califórnia, EUA, falam-se mais de cem idiomas, e muitas congregações de língua estrangeira foram formadas ali. Você se esforça para dar testemunho a pessoas "de todas as nações, e tribos, e povos, e línguas" no seu território? — Rev. 7:9.

"Dai-me também esta autoridade" (Atos 8:9-25)

[9] Filipe realizou muitos sinais em Samaria. Por exemplo, ele curou deficientes físicos e até mesmo expulsou espíritos iníquos. (Atos 8:6-8) Certo homem ficou particularmente impressionado com os dons milagrosos de Filipe. Esse homem era Simão, um praticante de artes mágicas tão respeitado que as pessoas diziam sobre ele: “Este homem é o Poder de Deus.” Mas agora Simão era testemunha ocular do verdadeiro poder de Deus, evidente nos milagres realizados por Filipe, e tornou-se discípulo. (Atos 8:9-13) Mais tarde, porém, as motivações de Simão foram postas à prova. Como?

10 Quando os apóstolos ficaram sabendo do aumento da obra em Samaria, enviaram Pedro e João para lá. (Veja o quadro “Pedro usa as ‘chaves do reino’ ”, na página 105.) Ao chegarem, os dois apóstolos puseram as mãos sobre os novos discípulos, e com isso cada um daqueles novos discípulos recebeu espírito santo.* Ao ver aquilo, Simão ficou impressionado. “Dai-me tam-

* Pelo visto, naquela época, os novos discípulos normalmente eram ungidos por espírito santo, ou o recebiam, ao serem batizados. Isso lhes dava a esperança de no futuro serem reis e sacerdotes com Jesus no céu. (2 Cor. 1:21, 22; Rev. 5:9, 10; 20:6) Mas, no caso mencionado no parágrafo, os novos discípulos não foram ungidos ao ser batizados. Receber o espírito santo — e os dons milagrosos associados com ele — só acontecia depois que Pedro e João colocavam as mãos sobre o cristão recém-batizado.

10. (a) O que Pedro e João fizeram em Samaria? (b) O que Simão fez ao ver que os novos discípulos recebiam o espírito santo quando Pedro e João colocavam as mãos sobre eles?

PEDRO USA AS “CHAVES DO REINO”

Jesus disse a Pedro: “Eu te darei as chaves do reino dos céus.” (Mat. 16:19) O que Jesus queria dizer? Sua referência a “chaves” indica que Pedro abriria, por assim dizer, a porta de conhecimento e de oportunidades para diferentes grupos entrarem no Reino messiânico. Em que ocasiões Pedro usou essas chaves?

- Pedro usou a primeira chave no Pentecostes de 33 EC quando incentivou judeus e prosélitos a se arrepender e ser batizados. Cerca de 3 mil pessoas fizeram isso e se tornaram prospectivos herdeiros do Reino. — Atos 2:1-41.
- A segunda chave foi usada pouco depois do martírio de Estêvão. Nessa ocasião, Pedro e João impuseram suas mãos sobre samaritanos recém-batizados e, com isso, esses novos discípulos receberam espírito santo. — Atos 8:14-17.
- Pedro usou a terceira chave em 36 EC. Nesse ano, o apóstolo estendeu a esperança celestial aos gentios incircuncisos. Isso ocorreu quando ele deu testemunho a Cornélio, primeiro gentio incircunciso a se tornar discípulo cristão. — Atos 10:1-48.

bém esta autoridade”, disse ele aos apóstolos, “para que todo aquele a quem eu impuser as minhas mãos receba espírito santo”. Simão até mesmo lhes ofereceu dinheiro na esperança de comprar esse privilégio sagrado. — Atos 8:14-19.

[11] A resposta que Pedro deu a Simão foi firme. "Pereça contigo a tua prata", disse o apóstolo, "porque pensaste obter posse da dádiva gratuita de Deus por meio de dinheiro. Não tens nem parte nem quinhão neste assunto, porque o teu coração não é reto à vista de Deus". Pedro então admoestou Simão a se arrepender e a orar pedindo perdão. "Suplica a Jeová", disse Pedro, "para que, se possível, te seja perdoada esta astúcia do teu coração ["esta sua trama", New Jerusalem Bible]". Pelo visto, Simão não era uma pessoa má; ele queria fazer o que era certo, mas momentaneamente se deixou levar por seus desejos errados. De modo que ele implorou aos apóstolos: "Fazei súplica a Jeová por mim, para que nenhuma destas coisas que dissestes venha sobre mim." — Atos 8:20-24.

[12] A repreensão que Pedro deu a Simão serve de aviso para os cristãos hoje. Na verdade, a palavra "simonia", que se deriva do nome Simão, surgiu por causa desse incidente. "Simonia" refere-se a comprar ou vender privilégios, em especial no contexto religioso.

11. O que Pedro admoestou Simão a fazer, e como Simão reagiu?
12. O que é "simonia", e como esse laço é evidente na cristandade?

A história da cristandade apóstata está repleta de exemplos dessa prática. De fato, a nona edição da The Encyclopædia Britannica (1878) observou: “Um estudo da história dos conclaves papais [eleições dos papas] dá ao estudioso a convicção de que nunca houve uma eleição que não tivesse sido manchada pela simonia e que, em muitos casos, a simonia praticada nos conclaves tem sido da espécie mais grave, descarada e aberta.”

[13] Os cristãos precisam evitar o pecado da simonia. Por exemplo, eles não devem tentar ganhar favores por dar presentes generosos ou muitos elogios àqueles que parecem estar em posição de dar privilégios na congregação. Por outro lado, os que parecem ter condições de dar privilégios devem tomar cuidado para não mostrar favoritismo aos que são ricos. As duas situações são exemplos de simonia. Realmente, todos os servos de Deus devem comportar-se como ‘menores’, esperando que o espírito de Jeová faça designações de privilégios de serviço. (Luc. 9:48) Não há lugar na organização de Deus para aqueles que tentam ‘buscar sua própria glória’. — Pro. 25:27.

13. De que maneiras os cristãos devem proteger-se contra a simonia?

“Sabes realmente o que estás lendo?” (Atos 8:26-40)

[14] O anjo de Jeová instruiu Filipe a viajar pela estrada que ia de Jerusalém a Gaza. Se Filipe estivesse se perguntando por que devia ir até lá, logo soube o motivo ao encontrar um eunuco etíope “lendo em voz alta Isaías, o profeta”. (Veja o quadro “‘Eunuco’ em que sentido?” na página 109.) O espírito santo de Jeová moveu Filipe a se aproximar do carro daquele homem. “Sabes realmente o que estás lendo?” perguntou ele ao etíope, correndo ao lado do carro. O etíope respondeu: “Como é que eu posso, a menos que alguém me guie?” — Atos 8:26-31.

[15] O etíope convidou Filipe a entrar no carro. Imagine como deve ter sido animada a conversa que eles tiveram! Por muito tempo, a identidade da “ovelha”, ou “servo”, mencionada na profecia de Isaías havia sido um mistério. (Isa. 53:1-12) Mas, à medida que seguiam viagem, Filipe explicou ao eunuco etíope que essa profecia havia se cumprido em Jesus Cristo. Como no caso daqueles que foram batizados no Pentecostes de 33 EC, o etíope, que já era prosélito, soube imedia-

14, 15. (a) Quem era o “eunuco etíope”, e como Filipe o encontrou? (b) Como o etíope reagiu à mensagem de Filipe, e por que seu batismo não foi um ato precipitado? (Veja a nota.)

"EUNUCO" EM QUE SENTIDO?

O termo grego eu·noú·khos, traduzido "eunuco", pode se referir a um homem privado de sua capacidade de procriação ou simplesmente a um alto funcionário da corte. Pode ser que funcionários da corte responsáveis pelo harém de um rei fossem de fato castrados, mas a castração não era um requisito para outros funcionários, como o copeiro ou o tesoureiro do rei. O eunuco etíope a quem Filipe batizou pelo visto era um funcionário desse tipo, pois era encarregado do tesouro real. Para efeito de comparação, ele era como um ministro da fazenda.

O etíope também era um prosélito, ou seja, um não judeu que se tornou adorador de Jeová. Na verdade, ele estava voltando de Jerusalém, onde havia ido adorar a Jeová. (Atos 8:27) Por causa disso, pode-se concluir que o etíope não era eunuco em sentido literal, pois a Lei mosaica proibia homens castrados de se tornar parte da congregação de Israel. — Deut. 23:1.

tamente o que devia fazer. Ele disse a Filipe: "Eis um corpo de água! O que me impede ser batizado?" O etíope foi batizado por Filipe sem demora.* (Veja o quadro "Batismo em 'um corpo de água'".) Depois disso, Filipe foi conduzido a uma nova designação, em Asdode, onde continuou a declarar as boas novas. — Atos 8:32-40.

* Isso não foi um ato precipitado. Visto que era prosélito, o etíope já conhecia as Escrituras, incluindo as profecias messiânicas. Agora que tinha informações do papel de Jesus no propósito de Deus, ele podia ser batizado sem demora.

[16] Os cristãos hoje têm o privilégio de participar numa obra como a realizada por Filipe. Com frequência, eles têm a oportunidade de apresentar a mensagem do Reino àqueles que encontram em situações informais, como em viagens. Em muitos casos, fica evidente que o contato com uma pessoa sincera não é mera coincidência. Isso é de esperar, pois a Bíblia deixa claro que os anjos dirigem a obra de pregação para que a mensagem alcance "toda nação, e tribo, e língua, e povo". (Rev. 14:6) A orientação angélica na obra de pregação cumpre exatamente o que Jesus predisse. Na sua ilustração sobre o joio e o trigo, Jesus disse que, durante a colheita, ou seja, no final do sistema de coisas, "os ceifeiros" seriam "os anjos". Ele também disse que essas criaturas espirituais 'reuniriam dentre o seu reino todas as coisas que causassem tropeço e os que fizessem o que é contra a lei'. (Mat. 13:37-41) Ao mesmo tempo, os anjos ajuntariam os que Jeová deseja

16, 17. Como os anjos participam na obra de pregação hoje?

BATISMO EM "UM CORPO DE ÁGUA"

Como é realizado o batismo cristão? Alguns acreditam que basta derramar ou aspergir água na cabeça da pessoa. Mas o eunuco etíope foi batizado em "um corpo de água". O relato diz: "Ambos desceram à água, tanto Filipe como o eunuco." (Atos 8:36, 38) Se derramar ou aspergir água fosse suficiente, não teria sido necessário que o eunuco parasse seu carro e fosse até um "corpo de água". Mesmo pouca água, como a que caberia em um odre, teria sido suficiente. Na verdade, é provável que ele tivesse um recipiente desse tipo, pois estava viajando pela "estrada do deserto". — Atos 8:26.

De acordo com A Greek-English Lexicon (Léxico Grego-Inglês), de Liddell e Scott, a palavra grega ba·ptí·zo — da qual se deriva a palavra "batizar" — significa "imergir, mergulhar". As referências que a Bíblia faz a batismo se harmonizam com essa definição. João 3:23 diz que João "estava batizando em Enom, perto de Salim, porque havia ali uma grande quantidade de água". Da mesma forma, o relato sobre o batismo de Jesus diz: "Subindo da água, [Jesus] viu . . . os céus serem partidos." (Mar. 1:9, 10) Dessa maneira, os cristãos verdadeiros são apropriadamente batizados pela imersão completa em água.

atrair à sua organização: os prospectivos herdeiros celestiais do Reino e, mais tarde, "uma grande multidão" de "outras ovelhas". — Rev. 7:9; João 6:44, 65; 10:16.

[17] Como prova de que isso está acontecendo, algumas pessoas que encontramos no ministério dizem que estavam orando por orientação espiritual. Veja o que aconteceu com dois publicadores que pregavam junto com uma criança. Quando as duas Testemunhas de Jeová estavam para encerrar a atividade de pregação daquela manhã, o menino quis muito falar na próxima casa. Na verdade, ele foi sozinho bater na porta! Ao verem que uma jovem senhora abriu a porta, os dois publicadores aproximaram-se para falar com ela. Para a surpresa deles, a mulher explicou que havia acabado de orar pedindo a Deus que alguém a visitasse a fim de ajudá-la a entender a Bíblia. Ela aceitou um estudo bíblico.

[18] Como membro da congregação cristã, você tem o privilégio de trabalhar junto com os anjos na atual obra de pregação, realizada em escala sem precedentes. Nunca subestime esse privilégio. Por perseverar em seus esforços, você sentirá muita alegria à medida que continuar a declarar "as boas novas a respeito de Jesus". — Atos 8:35.

18. Por que nunca devemos subestimar o ministério?

CAPÍTULO 8

A congregação "entrou . . . num período de paz"

Saulo deixa de ser perseguidor cruel e torna-se ministro zeloso

Baseado em Atos 9:1-43

HOMENS de semblante sombrio aproximam-se de Damasco, onde pretendem executar um plano maligno. Os odiados discípulos de Jesus serão arrancados de suas casas, amarrados, humilhados e arrastados até Jerusalém para enfrentar a fúria do Sinédrio.

2 O líder da turba, chamado Saulo, já tem as mãos manchadas de sangue.* Recentemente, ele viu com aprovação seus companheiros fanáticos apedrejarem Estêvão, fiel discípulo de Jesus, até a morte. (Atos 7:57–8:1) Não satisfeito em apenas perseguir os seguidores de Jesus que moram em Jerusalém, Saulo torna-se como uma tocha acesa, espalhando as chamas da perseguição. Ele quer acabar com a seita desprezível conhecida como "O Caminho". — Atos 9:1, 2; 19:9; veja

* Veja o quadro "Saulo — o fariseu", na página 118.

1, 2. O que Saulo pretendia fazer em Damasco?

A AUTORIDADE DE SAULO EM DAMASCO

Como Saulo obteve autoridade para prender cristãos numa cidade estrangeira? O Sinédrio e o sumo sacerdote exerciam autoridade para ditar a moral que governava a vida dos judeus em toda a parte, e, pelo visto, entre os poderes do sumo sacerdote estava a autoridade para extraditar criminosos. Assim, cartas do sumo sacerdote induziriam os anciãos das sinagogas em Damasco a cooperar com as instruções delineadas nelas. — Atos 9:1, 2.

Além disso, os romanos tinham dado aos judeus autonomia para resolver seus próprios assuntos jurídicos. Isso explica como os judeus puderam aplicar cinco vezes "quarenta golpes menos um" no apóstolo Paulo. (2 Cor. 11:24) O livro de 1 Macabeus também menciona uma carta escrita por um cônsul romano a Ptolomeu VIII do Egito, em 138 AEC, que fazia a seguinte exigência: "Se alguns malfeitores tiverem fugido [da Judeia] para o seu país, entreguem-nos a Simão, o sumo sacerdote, para que ele possa puni-los segundo a lei deles." (1 Mac. 15:21) Em 47 AEC, Júlio César confirmou os privilégios dados anteriormente ao sumo sacerdote e o direito de este resolver quaisquer questões relacionadas aos costumes judaicos.

Profundamente perplexo, Saulo pergunta: "Quem és, Senhor?" A resposta que Saulo ouve com certeza o deixa muito abalado: "Eu sou Jesus, a quem tu persegues." — Atos 9:3-5; 22:9.

4 O que aprendemos das palavras iniciais de Jesus a Saulo? Como podemos beneficiar-nos de analisar os eventos relacionados com a conversão desse ex-perseguidor? E que lições aprendemos da maneira como a congregação usou o período de paz que houve após a conversão dele?

"Por que me persegues?" (Atos 9:1-5)

5 Quando Jesus falou com Saulo na estrada para Damasco, Ele não perguntou: "Por que persegues meus discípulos?" Como já mencionado, ele disse: "Por que me persegues?" (Atos 9:4) Isso mostra que Jesus sente pessoalmente as provações que seus seguidores sofrem. — Mat. 25:34-40, 45.

esteja certo de que tanto Jeová como Jesus sabem o que você está passando. (Mat. 10:22, 28-31) Pode ser que no momento a provação não seja eliminada. Lembre-se de que Jesus viu o envolvimento de Saulo na morte de Estêvão. Também viu Saulo arrancar fiéis discípulos de suas casas em Jerusalém. (Atos 8:3) Mesmo assim, Jesus não interferiu naquelas ocasiões. Apesar disso, Jeová, por meio de Cristo, deu a Estêvão e a outros discípulos a força necessária para permanecerem fiéis.

poder enxergar, Saulo foi levado até sua hospedagem em Damasco, onde jejuou e orou por três dias. Nesse meio-tempo, Jesus falou sobre Saulo com um discípulo naquela cidade, um homem chamado Ananias, que tinha "boa reputação entre todos os judeus" que moravam em Damasco. — Atos 22:12.

[9] Imagine os sentimentos conflitantes que Ananias deve ter tido! Lá estava o Cabeça da congregação, o ressuscitado Jesus Cristo, falando com ele pessoalmente, escolhendo-o para uma designação especial. Que privilégio; mas que designação difícil! Quando soube que deveria falar com Saulo, Ananias respondeu: "Senhor, eu ouvi muitos falar deste homem, quantas coisas prejudiciais ele fez aos teus santos em Jerusalém. E ele tem aqui autoridade dos principais sacerdotes para pôr em laços a todos os que invocam o teu nome." — Atos 9:13, 14.

[10] Jesus não repreendeu Ananias por expressar sua preocupação. No entanto, deu-lhe orientações claras. Ao mesmo tempo lhe mostrou consideração, dizendo-lhe por que queria que Ananias realizasse essa tarefa

10. O que aprendemos sobre Jesus ao analisar o modo como ele lidou com Ananias?

SAULO — O FARISEU

O "jovem chamado Saulo" que aparece no relato de Atos sobre o apedrejamento de Estêvão era de Tarso, capital da província romana da Cilícia, no sul da atual Turquia. (Atos 7:58) Havia uma comunidade judaica relativamente grande naquela cidade. De acordo com o que ele mesmo escreveu, Saulo tinha sido "circuncidado no oitavo dia" e era "da linhagem de Israel, da tribo de Benjamim, hebreu nascido de hebreus; com respeito à lei, fariseu". Com certeza, essas eram consideradas características de um judeu de alta categoria! — Fil. 3:5.

Saulo morava em uma grande e próspera cidade de negócios, um centro da cultura grega. Por ter crescido em Tarso, Saulo sabia falar grego. É quase certo que ele tenha recebido sua educação primária numa escola judaica. Saulo aprendeu a fabricar tendas, uma habilidade típica da região em que morava. É bem provável que Saulo tenha aprendido essa profissão de seu pai enquanto ainda era jovem. — Atos 18:2, 3.

O relato de Atos também revela que Saulo nasceu como cidadão romano. (Atos 22:25-28) Isso significa que um de seus antepassados já havia adquirido esse direito. Não se sabe como a família de Saulo obteve cidadania romana. Seja como for, esse privilégio os colocava entre a elite de sua província. Portanto, a formação e a educação de Saulo o deixaram plenamente familiarizado com três culturas — judaica, grega e romana.

Provavelmente, quando tinha não mais do que 13 anos, Saulo mudou-se para Jerusalém, a quase 840 quilômetros de Tarso, a fim de continuar seus estudos. Nessa cidade, Saulo estudou aos pés de Gamaliel, um muito estimado instrutor da tradição farisaica. — Atos 22:3.

Esses estudos complementares, comparáveis a frequentar uma universidade atualmente, consistiam em memorização e em obter instrução das Escrituras e da lei oral judaica. Um aluno bem-sucedido de Gamaliel teria uma carreira promissora diante de si, e, pelo visto, Saulo era esse tipo de aluno. Mais tarde, ele escreveu: "Eu fazia mais progresso no judaísmo do que muitos da minha própria idade na minha raça, visto que eu era muito mais zeloso das tradições de meus pais." (Gál. 1:14) Sem dúvida, foi o zelo de Saulo pelas tradições judaicas que o tornou um perseguidor implacável da recém-formada congregação cristã.

incomum. Jesus disse a respeito de Saulo: "Este homem é para mim um vaso escolhido, para levar o meu nome às nações, bem como a reis e aos filhos de Israel. Pois eu lhe mostrarei claramente quantas coisas ele tem de sofrer por meu nome." (Atos 9:15, 16) Ananias obedeceu a Jesus prontamente. Ele encontrou o perseguidor Saulo e disse-lhe: "Saulo, irmão, o Senhor, o Jesus que te apareceu na estrada pela qual vieste, enviou-me a fim de que recuperasses a vista e ficasses cheio de espírito santo." — Atos 9:17.

[11] Aprendemos muito dos eventos envolvendo Jesus, Ananias e Saulo. Por exemplo, Jesus dirige ativamente a obra de pregação, assim como prometeu que faria. (Mat. 28:20) Embora não fale diretamente com as pessoas hoje, Jesus dirige a obra de pregação por meio do escravo fiel, a quem ele, nos nossos dias, designou sobre todos os seus domésticos. (Mat. 24:45-47) Sob a orientação do Corpo Governante, publicadores, pioneiros e missionários são enviados para encontrar aqueles que querem saber mais sobre Cristo. Conforme mencionado no capítulo anterior, muitos desses sinceros oram pedindo orientação e então são contatados pelas Testemunhas de Jeová. — Atos 9:11.

[12] Ananias obedientemente aceitou a designação que recebeu e foi abençoado. Você obedece ao mandamento de dar testemunho cabal, mesmo quando a designação o deixa apreensivo? Para alguns, ir de casa em casa e falar com estranhos pode causar ansiedade. Outros acham desafiador pregar no comércio, nas ruas ou por telefone. Ananias superou seu medo e teve a honra de ajudar Saulo a receber espírito santo.* Ananias foi bem-sucedido porque confiou em Jesus e encarou Saulo como um irmão em potencial. Podemos superar nossos medos se, como Ananias, confiarmos que Jesus está dirigindo a obra de pregação, tivermos empatia pelas pessoas e encararmos como irmãos em potencial até mesmo aqueles que nos fazem sentir muito intimidados. — Mat. 9:36.

Ele "começou . . . a pregar Jesus" (Atos 9:18-30)

13 Saulo agiu prontamente de acordo com o que aprendeu. Depois de ser curado, ele foi batizado e começou a se associar com os discípulos em Damasco. Mas fez mais do que isso. Ele "começou imediatamente, nas sinagogas, a pregar Jesus, que Este é o Filho de Deus". — Atos 9:20.

14 Se você está estudando a Bíblia, mas ainda não é

* Como regra geral, os dons do espírito santo eram transmitidos por meio dos apóstolos. Mas, no caso mencionado no parágrafo, parece que Jesus permitiu que Ananias transmitisse os dons do espírito a Seu "vaso escolhido", Saulo. Depois de sua conversão, demorou um bom tempo até Saulo ter contato com os 12 apóstolos. Com certeza, porém, ele estava ativo durante todo esse período. Pelo visto, Jesus providenciou que Saulo tivesse os poderes de que precisava para cumprir sua designação de pregar.

13, 14. Se você está estudando a Bíblia, mas ainda não é batizado, o que pode aprender do exemplo de Saulo?

batizado, seguirá o exemplo de Saulo, agindo prontamente de acordo com o que aprender? É verdade que Saulo testemunhou pessoalmente um milagre realizado por Cristo, e isso sem dúvida contribuiu para motivá-lo a agir. Mas outros também testemunharam milagres realizados por Jesus. Por exemplo, um grupo de fariseus o viu curar a mão ressequida de um homem, e um grande número dos judeus sabia que Jesus havia ressuscitado Lázaro. Mesmo assim, muitos deles permaneceram apáticos, até mesmo hostis. (Mar. 3:1-6; João 12:9, 10) Em contraste com isso, Saulo mudou completamente. Por que Saulo reagiu bem à mensagem enquanto outros não o fizeram? Porque temia mais a Deus do que a homens e era muito grato pela misericórdia que Cristo lhe havia demonstrado. (Fil. 3:8) Se você reagir de modo similar, não permitirá que nada o impeça de participar na obra de pregação e de se qualificar para o batismo.

[15] Consegue imaginar a surpresa, o espanto e a raiva que devem ter se espalhado entre as multidões quando Saulo começou a pregar nas sinagogas sobre Jesus? “Não é este o homem que devastava em Jerusalém os que invocavam este nome?" perguntavam. (Atos 9:21) Quando explicava por que havia mudado seu modo de pensar sobre Jesus, Saulo 'provava logicamente que aquele era o Cristo'. (Atos 9:22) Mas a lógica não é uma chave mestra que abre toda mente presa a tradições e todo coração dominado pelo orgulho. Ainda assim, Saulo não desistiu.

16 Três anos mais tarde, os judeus em Damasco ainda discutiam com Saulo. Por fim, procuraram matá-lo. (Atos 9:23; 2 Cor. 11:32, 33; Gál. 1:13-18) Quando essa trama se tornou conhecida, Saulo decidiu fugir discretamente, concordando que o descessem num cesto através de uma abertura no muro da cidade. Os que ajudaram Saulo a fugir são descritos por Lucas como "seus discípulos", isto é, de Saulo. (Atos 9:25) Essas palavras parecem indicar que pelo menos alguns dos que ouviram Saulo em Damasco reagiram bem à sua pregação e se tornaram seguidores de Cristo.

17 Quando você começou a falar a seus familiares, amigos e outros sobre as coisas boas que estava aprendendo, talvez imaginasse que todos aceitariam a lógica irrefutável da verdade bíblica. Pode ser que alguns tenham aceitado, mas muitos não fizeram isso. De fato, membros de sua própria família talvez tenham tratado você como inimigo. (Mat. 10:32-38) Mas, se você continuar a aprimorar sua habilidade de raciocinar à base das Escrituras e mantiver a conduta cristã, até mesmo os que se opõem a você poderão por fim mudar de atitude. — Atos 17:2; 1 Ped. 2:12; 3:1, 2, 7.

17. (a) De que maneiras as pessoas reagem à verdade bíblica? (b) O que devemos continuar a fazer, e por quê?

18 Quando Saulo entrou em Jerusalém, é compreensível que os discípulos tenham ficado desconfiados em relação às suas afirmações de que agora era um discípulo. Mas, quando Barnabé o defendeu, os apóstolos o aceitaram, e Saulo ficou com eles por algum tempo. (Atos 9:26-28) Saulo era discreto, mas não se envergonhava das boas novas. (Rom. 1:16) Ele pregou com coragem em Jerusalém, o mesmo lugar onde ele havia iniciado uma perseguição cruel contra os discípulos de Jesus Cristo. Para o desespero dos judeus em Jerusalém, eles se deram conta de que seu herói havia tomado o lado dos inimigos e agora procuravam matá-lo. "Quando os irmãos perceberam isso", diz o relato, "trouxeram-no [a Saulo] para baixo a Cesareia e o enviaram a Tarso". (Atos 9:30) Saulo submeteu-se à orientação que Jesus deu por meio da congregação, e tanto ele como a congregação se beneficiaram disso.

[19] Observe que Barnabé tomou a iniciativa de ajudar Saulo. Sem dúvida, essa atitude bondosa ajudou a promover a cordial amizade que se desenvolveu entre esses servos zelosos de Jeová. Você, assim como Barnabé, ajuda de coração os novos na congregação, trabalhando com eles no serviço de campo e ajudando-os a fazer progresso espiritual? Você será ricamente recompensado se fizer isso. Se você é um novo publicador das boas novas, aceita, assim como Saulo, a ajuda que lhe é oferecida? Por trabalhar com publicadores mais experientes, você vai aprimorar sua habilidade no ministério, ser mais feliz e formar laços de amizade que podem durar para sempre.

‘Muitos se tornaram crentes’ (Atos 9:31-43)

[20] Depois de Saulo ter se convertido e ter deixado Jerusalém em segurança, “a congregação através de toda a Judeia, e Galileia, e Samaria, entrou . . . num período de paz”. (Atos 9:31) Como os discípulos aproveitaram essa “época favorável”? (2 Tim. 4:2) O relato diz que

20, 21. Como os servos de Deus no passado e no presente têm aproveitado bem os ‘períodos de paz’?

eles estavam ‘sendo edificados’. Os apóstolos e outros irmãos da dianteira fortaleciam a fé dos discípulos e lideravam a congregação à medida que ela “andava no temor de Jeová e no consolo do espírito santo”. Por exemplo, Pedro aproveitou a oportunidade para fortalecer os discípulos na cidade de Lida, na planície de Sarom. Seus esforços fizeram com que muitos que moravam em Lida e nos arredores se voltassem “para o Senhor”. (Atos 9:32-35) Os discípulos não deixaram que outros objetivos os distraíssem, mas se empenharam em cuidar uns dos outros e em pregar as boas novas. O resultado foi que a congregação ‘se multiplicava’.

21 No final do século 20, as Testemunhas de Jeová em muitos países entraram num “período de paz” similar. Governos que por décadas oprimiram o povo de Deus de repente chegaram ao fim, e certas proscrições à obra de pregação foram amenizadas ou anuladas. Milhares de Testemunhas de Jeová aproveitaram a oportunidade para pregar publicamente, com excelentes resultados. Por exemplo, quando as Testemunhas de Jeová na Rússia foram reconhecidas oficialmente em 1991, havia menos de 16 mil proclamadores do Rei-no naquele país. Apenas 16 anos mais tarde, em 2007, mais de 150 mil pessoas pregavam zelosamente as boas novas.

[22] Você está aproveitando a liberdade que tem? Se você mora num país em que há liberdade religiosa, Satanás gostaria muito de induzi-lo a se empenhar por riquezas materiais, não pelos interesses do Reino. (Mat. 13:22) Não se deixe desviar. Use bem quaisquer períodos de relativa paz que você talvez tenha. Encare-os como oportunidades para dar testemunho cabal e para edificar a congregação. Lembre-se de que suas circunstâncias podem mudar de uma hora para outra.

[23] Veja o que aconteceu com uma discípula chamada Tabita, ou Dorcas.* Ela morava em Jope, uma cidade não muito distante de Lida. Essa fiel irmã usava bem seu tempo e suas habilidades — ela era rica "em boas ações e [em] dádivas de misericórdia". Mas, de repente, ela ficou doente e morreu. Sua morte causou grande pesar aos discípulos em Jope, especialmente às viúvas que tinham sido beneficiadas por sua bondade.

* Veja o quadro "Dorcas — rica 'em boas ações'", na página 128.

22. Como você pode aproveitar a liberdade que tem?
23, 24. (a) Que lições aprendemos do relato envolvendo Tabita? (b) Qual deve ser a nossa determinação?

DORCAS — RICA "EM BOAS AÇÕES"

Dorcas fazia parte da congregação cristã na cidade portuária de Jope. Seus companheiros cristãos a amavam porque ela era rica "em boas ações e [em] dádivas de misericórdia". (Atos 9:36) Muitos judeus que moravam em regiões onde a população era uma mistura de judeus e gentios costumavam ter um nome hebraico ou aramaico, e outro grego ou latino. Esse também era o caso de Dorcas. Seu nome grego, Dorcas, era traduzido "Tabita" em aramaico. Os dois nomes significam "Gazela".

Parece que Dorcas adoeceu e morreu de repente. Conforme o costume, seu corpo foi lavado em preparação para o enterro. Depois disso, o corpo foi deitado num quarto de andar superior, possivelmente na casa da própria Dorcas. O clima quente do Oriente Médio exigia que os enterros fossem realizados no dia da morte da pessoa ou no dia seguinte. Os cristãos em Jope tinham ouvido falar que o apóstolo Pedro estava na cidade vizinha de Lida. Havia tempo suficiente para que Pedro pudesse chegar a Jope antes de Dorcas ser enterrada, pois a distância entre essas duas cidades era de apenas uns 18 quilômetros — uma caminhada de cerca de quatro horas. Assim a congregação enviou dois homens para pedir a Pedro que fosse a Jope sem demora. (Atos 9:37, 38) Certo estudioso diz: "Era uma prática comum no antigo judaísmo enviar mensageiros aos pares a fim de que, entre outras coisas, um pudesse comprovar o testemunho do outro."

O que aconteceu quando Pedro chegou a Jope? O relato diz: "Conduziram-no para cima ao quarto de andar superior; e todas as viúvas apresentaram-se a ele chorando e mostrando muitas roupas interiores e roupas exteriores que Dorcas costumava fazer enquanto estava com elas.” (Atos 9:39) Dorcas era muito querida pelos membros da congregação porque, entre outros motivos, tinha o costume de costurar para eles. Ela fazia túnicas (roupas interiores) e mantas (roupas exteriores) que eram usadas por cima da túnica. Não se sabe se Dorcas pagava todo o material ou se apenas costurava. De qualquer forma, ela era amada por sua bondade e suas “dádivas de misericórdia”.

O que Pedro viu naquele quarto de andar superior deve tê-lo deixado comovido. “Esse era um pranto muito diferente daquele observado na casa de Jairo, onde havia mulheres contratadas para chorar e tocadores de flauta fazendo muito barulho”, diz o estudioso Richard Lenski. “Esse pranto [por Dorcas] não era artificial como aquele.” (Mat. 9:23) Era genuíno e de coração. O fato de não se mencionar um marido leva muitos a concluir que Dorcas era solteira.

Quando Jesus comissionou seus apóstolos, ele lhes deu poder para ‘ressuscitar mortos’. (Mat. 10:8) Pedro havia visto Jesus realizar milagres desse tipo, incluindo a ressurreição da filha de Jairo. Mas ainda não havia registro de que um apóstolo tivesse ressuscitado alguém. (Mar. 5:21-24, 35-43) Agora, porém, Pedro pediu que os observadores saíssem do quarto de andar superior e orou fervorosamente. Com isso, Tabita abriu os olhos e se sentou. Imagine a alegria que os cristãos em Jope sentiram quando Pedro mostrou aos santos e às viúvas que a querida Dorcas tinha voltado a viver! — Atos 9:40-42.

Quando Pedro chegou à casa em que o corpo de Tabita estava sendo preparado para o enterro, ele realizou um milagre que ainda não havia acontecido entre os apóstolos de Jesus Cristo. Pedro orou e então ressuscitou Tabita! Consegue imaginar a alegria que as viúvas e os outros discípulos sentiram quando Pedro pediu que entrassem no quarto, e eles viram que Tabita havia voltado a viver? Como esses eventos devem tê-los fortalecido para as provações que os aguardavam! Podemos entender por que o milagre 'se tornou conhecido em toda a Jope, e muitos se tornaram crentes no Senhor'. — Atos 9:36-42.

24 Aprendemos duas lições importantes do relato consolador envolvendo Tabita. (1) A vida é passageira. Portanto, como é importante fazer um bom nome perante Deus enquanto pudermos! (Ecl. 7:1) (2) A esperança da ressurreição é certa. Jeová viu os inúmeros atos de bondade que Tabita realizou, e a recompensou por isso. Ele se lembrará do nosso trabalho árduo e nos ressuscitará caso morramos antes do Armagedom. (Heb. 6:10) Portanto, quer estejamos enfrentando uma "época dificultosa", quer usufruindo um "período de paz", perseveremos em dar testemunho cabal sobre Cristo. — 2 Tim. 4:2.

"PESSOAS DAS NAÇÕES . . . RECEBERAM A PALAVRA DE DEUS"

ATOS 11:1

Será que os judeus que seguiam a Jesus estariam dispostos a pregar as boas novas a gentios incircuncisos? Nesta seção, veremos como o espírito de Jeová lhes abriu o coração e os ajudou a superar o preconceito, dando grande impulso à obra de dar testemunho a todas as nações.

CAPÍTULO 9

“Deus não é parcial”

A obra de pregação estende-se a gentios incircuncisos

Baseado em Atos 10:1–11:30

É O ANO de 36 EC. O sol de outono aquece Pedro enquanto ele ora no terraço de uma casa à beira-mar na cidade portuária de Jope. Já faz alguns dias que ele está hospedado nessa casa. O fato de ele estar ali revela um certo grau de imparcialidade. O proprietário da casa, um certo Simão, é curtidor, e nem todo judeu ficaria hospedado na casa de alguém que tivesse essa profissão.* Mesmo assim, Pedro está para aprender uma importante lição a respeito da imparcialidade de Jeová.

² Enquanto ora, Pedro cai em transe. A visão que ele tem deixaria qualquer judeu escandalizado. Ele vê des-

* Alguns judeus menosprezavam os curtidores porque a profissão deles exigia ter contato com a pele e a carcaça de animais e com substâncias repugnantes necessárias para realizar o trabalho. Os curtidores eram considerados indignos de comparecer ao templo, e seu local de trabalho não podia ficar a menos de 50 côvados, ou um pouco mais de 22 metros, de uma cidade. Isso talvez explique em parte por que a casa de Simão ficava “à beira do mar”. — Atos 10:6.

1-3. Que visão Pedro teve, e por que precisamos compreender seu significado?

cer do céu algo semelhante a um grande lençol, por cima do qual há animais impuros de acordo com a Lei. Ao ouvir uma voz ordenar-lhe abater e comer os animais, Pedro responde: “Nunca comi nada aviltado e impuro.” Não uma nem duas, mas três vezes é dito a ele: “Para de chamar de aviltadas as coisas que Deus purificou.” (Atos 10:14-16) A visão deixa Pedro confuso, mas não por muito tempo.

3 O que significa a visão de Pedro? É importante compreender seu significado, pois ela nos ensina uma verdade profunda a respeito do conceito de Jeová sobre as pessoas. Como cristãos verdadeiros, não podemos dar testemunho cabal sobre o Reino de Deus a menos que tenhamos o mesmo ponto de vista de Deus em relação às pessoas. Para entendermos o significado da visão de Pedro, examinemos os eventos dramáticos que aconteceram em torno dela.

“Fazia continuamente súplica a Deus” (Atos 10:1-8)

4 Pedro nem imaginava que no dia anterior em Cesareia, cerca de 50 quilômetros ao norte, um homem chamado Cornélio também havia tido uma visão. Cornélio, um centurião do exército romano, era um “homem

4, 5. Quem era Cornélio, e o que aconteceu enquanto ele orava?

CORNÉLIO E O EXÉRCITO ROMANO

As sedes administrativa e militar da província romana da Judeia localizavam-se em Cesareia. Sob o comando do governador havia de 500 a 1.000 cavaleiros. Ele também comandava cinco coortes, ou grupos de infantaria, cujo tamanho podia variar entre 500 e 1.000 soldados cada uma. Esses soldados geralmente não eram cidadãos romanos, mas eram recrutados das províncias romanas. A maioria servia em Cesareia, mas havia destacamentos por toda a Judeia. Havia uma coorte com base permanente na Torre de Antônia, em Jerusalém, para vigiar o monte do Templo e a cidade. A presença de soldados romanos em Jerusalém era reforçada durante as festividades judaicas para conter possíveis tumultos.

Uma coorte era dividida em seis centúrias. Cada centúria tinha aproximadamente cem homens e era comandada por um centurião. O texto grego de Atos 10:1 diz que Cornélio era um centurião do chamado destacamento italiano, provavelmente localizado em Cesareia. Essa unidade talvez tenha sido a Segunda Coorte Italiana de Cidadãos Romanos Voluntários.* Os centuriões eram ricos e tinham grande status social e militar. Eles talvez tivessem um salário 16 vezes maior do que o de um soldado comum.

* Em latim, Cohors II Italica voluntariorum civium Romanorum. Há evidências de sua presença na Síria em 69 EC.

devoto”.* Ele também era um chefe de família exemplar, pois “temia a Deus, junto com toda a sua família”. Cornélio não era prosélito; era gentio incircunciso. No entanto, demonstrava compaixão a judeus necessitados, dando-lhes ajuda material. Esse homem sincero “fazia continuamente súplica a Deus”. — Atos 10:2.

5 Por volta das 15 horas, Cornélio estava orando quando teve uma visão em que um anjo lhe disse: “Tuas orações e dádivas de misericórdia têm ascendido como memória perante Deus.” (Atos 10:4) Orientado pelo anjo, Cornélio mandou que homens fossem chamar o apóstolo Pedro. Como gentio incircunciso, Cornélio logo entraria por uma porta que até então estava fechada para ele: Cornélio receberia a mensagem de salvação.

6 Será que hoje Deus responde às orações de pessoas sinceras que desejam saber a verdade sobre ele? Veja um exemplo. Uma mulher na Albânia aceitou um exemplar da revista A Sentinela que falava sobre criação de filhos.# Ela disse à Testemunha de Jeová que bateu em sua porta: “Acreditaria se eu dissesse que estava orando a Deus pedindo ajuda para criar minhas filhas? Ele enviou você! O que você disse é exatamente o que eu precisava ouvir!” A mulher e suas filhas começaram a estudar a Bíblia, e, mais tarde, seu marido passou a participar do estudo.

[7] Será que esse é um caso isolado? De forma alguma! Casos como esse acontecem repetidas vezes em todo o mundo — algo muito frequente para ser mera coincidência. Então, o que podemos concluir? Primeiro, Jeová responde às orações de pessoas sinceras que procuram conhecê-lo. (1 Reis 8:41-43; Sal. 65:2) Segundo, os anjos nos apoiam na obra de pregação. — Rev. 14:6, 7.

“Pedro estava . . . em grande perplexidade” (Atos 10:9-23a)

[8] Ainda no terraço, “Pedro estava . . . em grande perplexidade” quanto ao significado da visão quando os mensageiros de Cornélio se aproximaram da casa. (Atos 10:17) Depois de ter dito três vezes que se recusaria a comer alimentos considerados impuros pela Lei, será que Pedro estaria disposto a acompanhar esses homens e entrar na casa de um gentio? De alguma forma, o espírito santo revelou a Pedro a vontade de Deus nesse as-sunto: "Eis que três homens estão-te buscando. No entanto, levanta-te, desce e vai com eles, não duvidando nada, porque eu os mandei." (Atos 10:19, 20) A visão dos animais impuros que Pedro havia tido sem dúvida o preparou para aceitar as orientações do espírito santo.

[9] Pedro, ao saber que Cornélio havia sido instruído por Deus para mandar buscá-lo, convidou os mensageiros gentios a entrar na casa "e os hospedou". (Atos 10:23a) Aquele obediente apóstolo já estava ajustando seu modo de agir aos acontecimentos recentes relacionados com o cumprimento da vontade de Deus.

[10] Até hoje, Jeová orienta seu povo progressivamente. (Pro. 4:18) Por meio de seu espírito santo, ele guia "o escravo fiel e discreto". (Mat. 24:45) Às vezes podemos receber ajustes em nosso entendimento da Palavra de Deus, ou pode haver mudanças em certos procedimentos organizacionais. Devemos nos perguntar: 'Como reajo a esses ajustes? Sou submisso às orientações do espírito de Deus nesses assuntos?'

Pedro "mandou que fossem batizados" (Atos 10:23b-48)

homens — os três mensageiros enviados por Cornélio e "seis irmãos" judeus de Jope — foram a Cesareia. (Atos 11:12) Na expectativa da chegada de Pedro, Cornélio reuniu "seus parentes e amigos íntimos" — pelo visto todos gentios. (Atos 10:24) Ao chegar, Pedro fez algo que antes consideraria inconcebível: entrou na casa de um gentio incircunciso. Pedro explicou: "Vós bem sabeis quão ilícito é para um judeu juntar-se ou chegar-se a um homem de outra raça; contudo, Deus mostrou-me que eu não chamasse nenhum homem de aviltado ou impuro." (Atos 10:28) A essa altura, Pedro já havia entendido que aquela visão tinha por objetivo ensinar-lhe uma lição que não se limitava ao tipo de alimento que alguém podia comer. Ele não deveria 'chamar nenhum homem [nem mesmo um gentio] de aviltado'.

[12] Um grupo de pessoas interessadas esperava Pedro. "Estamos aqui todos presentes perante Deus para ouvir todas as coisas que foste mandado dizer por Jeová", explicou Cornélio. (Atos 10:33) Imagine como você se sentiria se uma pessoa interessada lhe dissesse palavras como essas! Pedro começou seu discurso com a seguinte declaração poderosa: "Certamente percebo que Deus não é parcial, mas, em cada nação, o homem que o teme e que faz a justiça lhe é aceitável." (Atos 10:34, 35) Pedro havia aprendido que o conceito de Deus sobre as pessoas não é determinado por raça, nacionalidade ou qualquer outro fator externo. A seguir, Pedro deu testemunho sobre o ministério, a morte e a ressurreição de Jesus.

13 De repente, algo inédito aconteceu. "Enquanto Pedro ainda falava", o espírito santo foi derramado sobre aquelas "pessoas das nações". (Atos 10:44, 45) Esse é o único caso registrado nas Escrituras em que o espírito santo foi derramado antes do batismo. Reconhecendo que aquilo era sinal da aprovação de Deus, Pedro "mandou que [aqueles gentios] fossem batizados". (Atos 10:48) A conversão desses gentios em 36 EC marcou o fim do período de favor especial aos judeus. (Dan. 9:24-27) Ao exercer a liderança naquela ocasião, Pedro usou a terceira e última 'chave do reino'. (Mat. 16:19) Essa chave abriu a porta para que gentios incircuncisos se tornassem cristãos ungidos pelo espírito.

14 Como proclamadores do Reino hoje, reconhecemos que "com Deus não há parcialidade". (Rom. 2:11) Ele deseja que "toda sorte de homens sejam salvos". (1 Tim. 2:4) Por isso, nunca devemos julgar as pessoas à base de fatores externos. Nossa comissão é dar testemunho cabal sobre o Reino de Deus, e isso envolve pregar a todas as pessoas, independentemente de raça, nacionalidade, aparência ou religião.

Eles "assentiram, e glorificaram a Deus" (Atos 11:1-18)

[15] Provavelmente ansioso para relatar o que aconteceu, Pedro foi a Jerusalém. Parece que a notícia de que gentios incircuncisos haviam 'recebido a palavra de Deus' chegou lá antes dele. Pouco depois de Pedro chegar, "os patrocinadores da circuncisão começaram a contender com ele". Eles estavam escandalizados, pois Pedro havia entrado na "casa de homens incircuncisos e havia comido com eles". (Atos 11:1-3) A questão não era se gentios podiam tornar-se seguidores de Cristo. Na realidade, aqueles discípulos judeus estavam insistindo que os gentios tinham de observar a Lei — incluindo a circuncisão — a fim de que sua adoração fosse aceitável a Jeová. É evidente que alguns discípulos judeus tinham dificuldades para aceitar o fim da Lei mosaica.

[16] Como Pedro justificou suas ações? De acordo com Atos 11:4-16, ele mencionou quatro provas da orientação divina nesse assunto: (1) a visão que ele teve (Versículos 4-10); (2) a ordem que ele recebeu do espírito santo (Versículos 11, 12); (3) a visita do anjo a Cornélio (Versículos 13, 14) e (4) o derramamento do espírito santo sobre os gentios. (Versículos 15, 16) Pedro concluiu com uma pergunta que não deixou margem para dúvidas: "Se Deus, portanto, deu a mesma dádiva gratuita [do espírito santo] a eles [os gentios que aceitaram a mensagem] como também dera a nós [judeus], os que temos crido no Senhor Jesus Cristo, quem era eu para poder obstar [ou impedir] a Deus?" — Atos 11:17.

17 O testemunho de Pedro colocou diante daqueles cristãos judeus uma prova decisiva. Será que eles conseguiriam pôr de lado qualquer traço de preconceito e aceitar os gentios recém-batizados como seus irmãos cristãos? O relato nos diz: "Ora, quando [os apóstolos e outros cristãos judeus] ouviram estas coisas, assentiram, e glorificaram a Deus, dizendo: 'Pois bem, Deus tem concedido também a pessoas das nações o arrependimento com a vida por objetivo.'" (Atos 11:18) Essa atitude positiva preservou a união da congregação.

17, 18. (a) Que prova decisiva o testemunho de Pedro colocou diante dos cristãos judeus? (b) Por que preservar a união da congregação pode ser um desafio, e o que faremos bem em nos perguntar?

[18] Hoje, manter a união pode ser um desafio, pois os adoradores verdadeiros são "de todas as nações, e tribos, e povos, e línguas". (Rev. 7:9) Assim, em muitas congregações encontramos pessoas de várias raças, formações e culturas. Faremos bem em nos perguntar: 'Consegui tirar do meu coração qualquer traço de preconceito? Estou determinado a nunca permitir que as atitudes deste mundo que causam divisão entre as pessoas, incluindo nacionalismo, tribalismo, orgulho cultural e racismo, influenciem o modo como trato meus irmãos cristãos?' Lembre-se do que aconteceu com Pedro (Cefas) alguns anos depois da conversão dos primeiros gentios. Deixando-se levar pelo preconceito de outros, ele "passou a retirar-se e a separar-se" dos cristãos gentios e teve de ser corrigido por Paulo. (Gál. 2:11-14) Nunca deixemos de nos proteger contra o laço do preconceito.

'Um grande número tornou-se crente' (Atos 11:19-26a)

[19] Será que os seguidores de Jesus passaram a pregar aos gentios incircuncisos? Observe o que aconteceu mais tarde em Antioquia da Síria.* Essa cidade tinha uma grande comunidade judaica e havia pouca hostilidade entre judeus e gentios. Sendo assim, Antioquia era um bom lugar para pregar aos gentios. Foi ali que alguns discípulos judeus começaram a declarar as boas novas "ao povo que falava grego". (Atos 11:20) Essa pregação se dirigia não apenas aos judeus que falavam grego, mas também aos gentios incircuncisos. Jeová abençoou a obra, e 'um grande número tornou-se crente'. — Atos 11:21.

[20] A fim de cuidar desse campo pronto para a colheita, a congregação de Jerusalém enviou Barnabé a Antioquia. Pelo visto, o interesse ali era muito grande, maior do que ele tinha condições de cuidar sozinho. Para ajudar nessa obra, quem melhor do que Saulo, que viria a tornar-se apóstolo para as nações? (Atos 9:15; Rom. 1:5) Será que Barnabé iria encarar Saulo como rival? Pelo contrário, Barnabé mostrou a devida modéstia. Ele tomou a iniciativa de ir a Tarso procurar Saulo e trazê-lo de volta a Antioquia para ajudar. Juntos, eles passaram um ano edificando os discípulos na congregação daquela cidade. — Atos 11:22-26a.

[21] Como podemos mostrar modéstia ao cumprir

20, 21. Como Barnabé mostrou a devida modéstia, e como nós podemos mostrar modéstia similar ao cumprir nosso ministério?

ANTIOQUIA DA SÍRIA

Antioquia da Síria ficava às margens do rio Orontes, cerca de 30 quilômetros rio acima do porto mediterrâneo de Selêucia, e uns 550 quilômetros ao norte de Jerusalém. (Atos 13:4) Seleuco I Nicátor, primeiro governante do Império Selêucida, fundou Antioquia em 300 AEC. Sendo a capital desse império, Antioquia logo se tornou uma cidade muito importante. Em 64 AEC, o general romano Pompeu fez da Síria uma província romana, tendo Antioquia por capital. No primeiro século EC, essa metrópole era a terceira maior cidade do Império Romano em tamanho e riqueza, perdendo apenas para Roma e Alexandria.

Antioquia era um centro comercial e político. Mercadorias de toda a Síria passavam por ela antes de serem exportadas para o resto da bacia do Mediterrâneo. "Visto que ficava perto da fronteira entre a região habitada por gregos e romanos e os estados orientais", diz um erudito, "ela era muito mais cosmopolita do que a maioria das cidades helenísticas". Havia uma grande comunidade judaica em Antioquia e, de acordo com o historiador judeu Flávio Josefo, esses judeus "levaram muitos gregos [que moravam ali] a tornar-se prosélitos".

nosso ministério? Ser modesto envolve reconhecer as próprias limitações. Todos nós temos pontos fortes e habilidades diferentes. Por exemplo, alguns talvez te-nham facilidade para distribuir publicações, mas podem achar difícil fazer revisitas e iniciar estudos bíblicos. Se você deseja melhorar em algum aspecto do ministério, que tal pedir ajuda? Fazer isso poderá ajudá-lo a ser mais produtivo e a ter maior alegria no ministério. — 1 Cor. 9:26.

Proveram "uma subministração de socorros" (Atos 11:26b-30)

[22] Foi primeiro em Antioquia que "os discípulos, por providência divina, foram chamados cristãos". (Atos 11:26b) Esse nome aprovado por Deus descreve bem aqueles que imitam o modo de vida de Cristo. À medida que pessoas das nações se tornavam cristãs, será que judeus e gentios na congregação passaram a se considerar irmãos espirituais? Veja o que aconteceu quando houve uma grande fome por volta de 46 EC.* No passado, as fomes afetavam profundamente os pobres, que não tinham dinheiro guardado nem comida estocada. Pelo visto, muitos cristãos judeus que moravam na Judeia eram pobres. Assim, durante essa fome, eles precisaram de suprimentos. Ao saberem dessa necessidade, * Josefo, historiador judeu, faz referência a essa "grande fome" que ocorreu durante o reinado do Imperador Cláudio (41-54 EC).

22, 23. Como os irmãos em Antioquia demonstraram amor fraternal, e como o povo de Deus hoje age de maneira similar?

os irmãos em Antioquia, incluindo cristãos gentios, proveram “uma subministração de socorros” aos irmãos na Judeia. (Atos 11:29) Essa foi uma verdadeira expressão de amor fraternal.

[23] Não é diferente entre o povo de Deus hoje. Quando ficamos sabendo que nossos irmãos em outro país ou em nossa região precisam de ajuda, procuramos ajudá-los de coração. Comissões de Filial organizam rapidamente a formação de comissões de ajuda humanitária para cuidar de nossos irmãos que talvez tenham sido afetados por desastres naturais como furacões, terremotos e tsunamis. Todo esse esforço para ajudar nossos irmãos demonstra que fazemos parte de uma genuína fraternidade. — João 13:34, 35; 1 João 3:17.

[24] Como cristãos verdadeiros, levamos a sério o significado da visão que Pedro recebeu no terraço em Jope há mais de 1.900 anos. Nós adoramos um Deus imparcial. Ele deseja que demos testemunho cabal sobre Seu Reino, o que envolve pregar às pessoas independentemente de raça, nacionalidade ou posição social. Assim, estejamos determinados a dar a todos os que quiserem ouvir a oportunidade de aceitar as boas novas. — Rom. 10:11-13.

24. Como podemos mostrar que levamos a sério o significado da visão que Pedro recebeu?

“A palavra de Jeová crescia”

Pedro é libertado, e a perseguição não consegue impedir a pregação das boas novas

Baseado em Atos 12:1-25

O ENORME portão de ferro bate forte atrás de Pedro. Acorrentado entre dois guardas romanos, ele é escoltado até sua cela. Então enfrenta longas horas, talvez dias, esperando saber o que lhe vai acontecer. Ali na sua cela não há nada para ele ver além de guardas, correntes, paredes e grades.

[2] Quando a notícia finalmente chega, ela não é nada boa. O Rei Herodes Agripa I está decidido a ver Pedro morto.* O plano do rei é apresentar Pedro ao povo depois da Páscoa; a execução do apóstolo será um presente para agradar às multidões. Isso não é apenas uma ameaça, pois não faz muito tempo que o apóstolo Tiago foi executado por esse mesmo rei.

[3] É a noite anterior ao dia marcado para a execução. O que será que está passando pela mente de Pedro ali

* Veja o quadro “Rei Herodes Agripa I”, na página 148.

1-4. Com que situação difícil Pedro se confrontou, e como você se sentiria caso estivesse no lugar dele?

REI HERODES AGRIPA I

Herodes Agripa I, responsável pela execução de Tiago e pela prisão de Pedro, era neto de Herodes, o Grande. Os Herodes eram uma dinastia política que governava os judeus. A família era idumeia, ou seja, edomita. Os idumeus eram judeus formais, visto que a circuncisão lhes havia sido imposta por volta de 125 AEC.

Herodes Agripa I nasceu em 10 AEC e foi educado em Roma. Ele fez amizade com vários membros da família imperial. Um desses amigos foi Caio, mais conhecido como Calígula, que se tornou imperador em 37 EC. Logo depois, Calígula proclamou Agripa rei da Itureia, de Traconítis e de Abilene. Mais tarde, Calígula expandiu o domínio de Agripa, que passou a incluir a Galileia e a Pereia.

Agripa estava em Roma quando Calígula foi assassinado, em 41 EC. Relata-se que Agripa desempenhou um papel importante em resolver a crise que surgiu em resultado disso. Ele participou de negociações tensas entre o Senado romano e Cláudio, outro de seus amigos poderosos. Em resultado, Cláudio foi proclamado imperador e uma guerra civil foi evitada. Para recompensar Agripa por intermediar essas negociações, Cláudio o designou rei também sobre a Judeia e Samaria, que desde 6 EC haviam sido administradas por procuradores romanos. Assim, Agripa tornou-se governante de quase o mesmo domínio de Herodes, o Grande.

A capital de Agripa era Jerusalém, onde ele ganhou o favor dos líderes religiosos. Relata-se que ele observava rigorosamente a lei e as tradições judaicas por, entre outras coisas, oferecer sacrifícios no templo todos os dias, ler a Lei em público e desempenhar "o papel de fiel protetor da fé judaica". Mas ele mostrou que sua afirmação de ser adorador de Deus era falsa por organizar combates entre gladiadores e espetáculos pagãos no teatro. Agripa foi descrito como "traiçoeiro, superficial, extravagante".

na escuridão de sua cela? Será que são as palavras de Jesus ditas anos antes, revelando que Pedro seria amarrado e levado contra a sua vontade — para ser executado? (João 21:18, 19) Talvez Pedro se esteja perguntando se já chegou o momento de isso acontecer.

4 Se você estivesse no lugar de Pedro, como se sentiria? Muitos entrariam em desespero, achando que não havia esperança. Mas, para um verdadeiro seguidor de Jesus Cristo, será que existe alguma situação realmente sem esperança? O que podemos aprender do modo como Pedro e seus irmãos cristãos reagiram à perseguição que sofreram? Vejamos.

“A congregação fazia intensamente oração” (Atos 12:1-5)

[5] Conforme vimos no capítulo anterior, a conversão dos primeiros gentios — Cornélio e sua família — foi um acontecimento emocionante para a congregação cristã. Mas imagine o choque que deve ter sido para os judeus que não eram cristãos ver muitos judeus e gentios adorando juntos livremente na congregação cristã.

[6] Herodes, um político astuto, viu nisso uma oportunidade de ganhar o favor dos judeus. Assim, ele começou a maltratar os cristãos. Sem dúvida, ele ficou sabendo que o apóstolo Tiago havia sido alguém bem achegado a Jesus Cristo. Por isso, Herodes “eliminou Tiago, irmão de João, pela espada”. (Atos 12:2) Que prova isso foi para a congregação! Tiago estava entre os três que haviam testemunhado a transfiguração de Jesus e outros milagres que não foram presenciados pelos demais apóstolos. (Mat. 17:1, 2; Mar. 5:37-42) Por causa do zelo impetuoso de Tiago e de seu irmão João, Jesus os havia chamado de “Filhos do Trovão”. (Mar. 3:17) Dessa forma, a congregação perdeu alguém que era uma corajosa e fiel testemunha e um amado apóstolo.

5, 6. (a) Por que e como o Rei Herodes Agripa I atacou a congregação cristã? (b) Por que a morte de Tiago foi uma prova para a congregação?

[7] A execução de Tiago agradou aos judeus, exatamente como Agripa esperava. Animado com essa reação, ele resolveu fazer de Pedro sua próxima vítima. Conforme descrito no início deste capítulo, ele mandou prender Pedro. Sabendo que no passado os apóstolos já haviam escapado da prisão, como vimos no Capítulo 5 deste livro, Agripa não quis arriscar-se. Para certificar-se de que nada saísse errado, ele ordenou que Pedro fosse acorrentado a 2 guardas e que 16 guardas trabalhassem em turnos, dia e noite, a fim de garantir que esse apóstolo não escapasse — caso contrário, a sentença de Pedro recairia sobre os próprios guardas. Diante dessa situação terrível, o que os irmãos cristãos de Pedro poderiam fazer?

[8] A congregação sabia exatamente o que fazer. Atos 12:5 diz: "Consequentemente, Pedro estava sendo guardado na prisão; mas a congregação fazia intensamente oração a Deus por ele." De fato, as orações da congregação a favor de seu amado irmão eram súplicas intensas e de coração. A morte de Tiago não deixou esses cristãos desanimados nem fez com que achassem que não valia a pena orar. Jeová dá grande importância às orações. Se elas estiverem em harmonia com Sua vontade, ele as responderá. (Heb. 13:18, 19; Tia. 5:16) Essa é uma lição de fé que os cristãos atuais devem levar a sério.

[9] Você sabe de irmãos cristãos que estão passando por provações? Eles talvez estejam enfrentando perseguição, proscrição ou desastres naturais. Por que não inclui esses irmãos em suas sinceras orações? Pode ser que você também saiba de irmãos que estão passando por dificuldades menos evidentes, como problemas familiares, desânimo ou alguma prova de fé. Se meditar antes de orar, você talvez consiga pensar em várias pessoas que poderá mencionar por nome quando falar com Jeová, o "Ouvinte de oração". (Sal. 65:2) Afinal, precisamos que nossos irmãos espirituais façam o mesmo por nós caso venhamos a enfrentar dificuldades.

"Vem seguir-me" (Atos 12:6-11)

[10] Será que Pedro estava preocupado com o que o aguardava? Não podemos afirmar, mas durante sua última noite na prisão, ele dormia profundamente enquanto os dois guardas o vigiavam. Esse homem de fé sabia que independentemente do que acontecesse no dia seguinte, Jeová cuidaria dele. (Rom. 14:7, 8) Mas com certeza Pedro não esperava pelos eventos sur-preendentes que estavam para ocorrer. De repente, uma luz brilhou na cela. Um anjo, pelo visto invisível aos guardas, apareceu e, com tom de urgência, mandou que Pedro acordasse. E aquelas correntes nas mãos do apóstolo — correntes que pareciam tão fortes — simplesmente caíram no chão!

[11] O anjo deu a Pedro uma série de ordens diretas: "Levanta-te depressa! . . . Cinge-te e amarra as tuas sandálias. . . . Põe a tua roupa exterior." Pedro obedeceu prontamente. Por fim, o anjo disse: "Vem seguir-me", e foi isso o que Pedro fez. Eles saíram da cela, passaram bem na frente dos guardas parados do lado de fora e seguiram em silêncio até o enorme portão de ferro. Como conseguiriam passar pelo portão? Mesmo que essa pergunta tivesse passado pela mente de Pedro, logo foi respondida. Quando eles se aproximaram do portão, este abriu "por si mesmo". Em questão de segundos, eles passaram pelo portão, chegaram à rua e o anjo desapareceu. Pedro foi deixado ali. De repente ele se deu conta de que tudo aquilo realmente tinha acontecido. Não era uma visão. Ele estava livre! — Atos 12:7-11.

preso por um rei que contava com o apoio da maior potência política que o mundo já havia visto. Mesmo assim, Pedro saiu da prisão sem a menor dificuldade. É verdade que Jeová não realiza esse tipo de milagre para todos os seus servos. Ele não fez isso no caso de Tiago; nem mais tarde no caso do próprio Pedro, quando as palavras de Jesus a respeito dele por fim se cumpriram. Atualmente, os cristãos não esperam ser libertados de forma milagrosa. Mas sabemos que Jeová não mudou. (Mal. 3:6) E em breve ele usará seu Filho para libertar incontáveis milhões de pessoas da prisão mais difícil de escapar — a morte. (João 5:28, 29) Saber disso pode nos dar muita coragem para enfrentar provações.

"Viram-no e ficaram assombrados" (Atos 12:12-17)

[13] Pedro ficou parado naquela rua escura, pensando para onde iria. Então, lembrou-se de que uma cristã chamada Maria morava ali perto. Parece que ela era viúva e tinha uma boa condição financeira. Sua casa era grande o suficiente para ser usada por uma congregação. Ela era mãe de João Marcos, mencionado aqui

13-15. (a) Como os membros da congregação que estavam reunidos na casa de Maria reagiram à chegada de Pedro? (b) Em que o livro de Atos passa a concentrar-se, mas que efeito Pedro continuou a causar em seus irmãos espirituais?

pela primeira vez no relato de Atos. Marcos por fim se tornou como um filho para Pedro. (1 Ped. 5:13) Naquela noite, muitos da congregação estavam reunidos na casa de Maria, orando fervorosamente, apesar de já ser bem tarde da noite. Com certeza eles oravam para que Pedro fosse libertado, mas não esperavam a resposta que Jeová lhes daria!

14 Pedro bateu no portão, que dava para um pátio em frente à casa. Uma serva chamada Rode — um nome grego muito comum que significa "Rosa" — foi atender. Ela não conseguia acreditar no que estava ouvindo. Era a voz de Pedro! Ela ficou tão agitada que, em vez de abrir o portão, deixou Pedro parado na rua, correu para dentro da casa e tentou convencer a congregação de que Pedro estava lá fora. Eles a chamaram de louca, mas ela não era do tipo que desistia facilmente. Ela continuou insistindo, pois sabia que estava falando a verdade. Admitindo que ela poderia ter mesmo ouvido algo, alguns disseram que talvez se tratasse de um anjo representando Pedro. (Atos 12:12-15) Enquanto isso, Pedro continuou batendo no portão até que, por fim, eles o abriram.

15 No portão, "viram-no e ficaram assombrados"! (Atos 12:16) Eles ficaram tão felizes e fizeram tanto barulho que Pedro teve de acalmá-los para que pudesse contar o que lhe havia acontecido, pedir que transmitissem essa informação ao discípulo Tiago e aos outros irmãos e, então, ir embora antes que os soldados de Herodes o encontrassem. Pedro foi para um lugar mais seguro, onde pudesse continuar seu serviço fiel. A partir desse ponto, o livro de Atos passa a concentrar-se na obra e nas viagens do apóstolo Paulo. Pedro sai de cena, com exceção de Atos capítulo 15, onde ele ajuda a resolver a questão da circuncisão. Mas podemos estar certos de que ele fortaleceu a fé dos seus irmãos espirituais aonde quer que tenha ido. Quando Pedro saiu da casa de Maria naquela noite, com certeza os irmãos reunidos ali estavam muito felizes.

16 Às vezes Jeová dá aos seus servos muito mais do que eles esperam, deixando-os tão felizes que mal conseguem acreditar. Foi assim que os irmãos espirituais de Pedro se sentiram naquela noite. E é assim que nós talvez nos sintamos quando recebemos as ricas bênçãos de Jeová hoje. (Pro. 10:22) No futuro, veremos todas as promessas de Jeová se cumprirem em escala global. O que vai ocorrer será tão maravilhoso que ultrapassa os limites da nossa imaginação. Portanto, desde que permaneçamos fiéis, podemos ter a certeza de que haverá muitas ocasiões felizes no futuro.

16. Por que o futuro certamente nos reserva muitas ocasiões felizes?

“O anjo de Jeová o golpeou” (Atos 12:18-25)

[17] A fuga de Pedro também surpreendeu Herodes, mas ele não ficou nem um pouco feliz. Herodes logo ordenou que Pedro fosse procurado em toda a parte e então mandou interrogar os guardas. Eles foram “levados à punição”, provavelmente executados. (Atos 12:19) Herodes Agripa nunca será lembrado por ter tido compaixão ou misericórdia. Será que esse homem cruel foi punido?

[18] É provável que Agripa se tenha sentido humilhado por não conseguir matar Pedro, mas logo encontrou uma maneira de recuperar seu orgulho ferido. Surgiu uma questão diplomática em que alguns dos inimigos de Herodes Agripa se viram obrigados a pedir-lhe um acordo de paz, e ele sem dúvida estava ansioso para fazer um discurso diante de uma grande assistência. Lucas relata que, ao se preparar para isso, “Herodes vestiu-se da roupa real”. Josefo, historiador judeu, escreveu que a vestimenta de Herodes era feita de prata, de modo que, quando a luz incidia sobre o rei, ele parecia reluzir com glória. Então, esse político pretensioso fez um discurso. Querendo bajular Herodes, a multidão clamou: “A voz de um deus e não de homem!” — Atos 12:20-22.

17, 18. Que eventos levaram à bajulação de Herodes?

[19] Essa glória pertencia a Deus, e Ele estava vendo tudo aquilo! Herodes teve chance de evitar o pior. Ele poderia ter repreendido a multidão, ou pelo menos não ter concordado com ela. Em vez disso, ele se tornou um exemplo vivo do seguinte provérbio: "O orgulho vem antes da derrocada." (Pro. 16:18) "O anjo de Jeová o golpeou instantaneamente", fazendo com que aquele rei arrogante e egotista morresse de forma repugnante. Herodes, "comido de vermes, expirou". (Atos 12:23) Josefo também escreveu que Herodes Agripa foi golpeado de repente, e acrescentou que o rei concluiu que estava morrendo por ter aceitado a bajulação da multidão. Josefo escreveu que Agripa agonizou por cinco dias antes de morrer.*

[20] Às vezes pode parecer que pessoas más praticam todo tipo de maldade sem sofrer as consequências. Isso não nos deve surpreender, pois "o mundo inteiro jaz no poder do iníquo". (1 João 5:19) Mesmo assim, servos

* Certo médico escreveu que os sintomas descritos por Josefo e Lucas podem ter sido causados por vermes que formaram uma mortífera obstrução intestinal. Vermes desse tipo às vezes são vomitados ou saem do corpo do paciente na hora da morte. Uma obra de referência diz: "A exatidão profissional de Lucas como médico descreve o horror da morte [de Herodes]."

19, 20. (a) Por que Jeová puniu Herodes? (b) Que consolo podemos obter do relato da repentina morte de Herodes Agripa?

fiéis de Deus vez por outra se sentem aflitos quando parece que pessoas desse tipo não são punidas. Por isso, relatos como esse nos consolam; vemos Jeová agindo, como que lembrando a todos os seus servos que ele ama a justiça. (Sal. 33:5) Mais cedo ou mais tarde, sua justiça prevalecerá.

[21] Esse relato conclui com uma lição ainda mais animadora: "A palavra de Jeová crescia e se espalhava." (Atos 12:24) Esse relatório a respeito do progresso da obra de pregação talvez nos lembre da maneira em que Jeová abençoa essa mesma obra em nossos dias. Fica claro que esse registro no capítulo 12 de Atos não trata principalmente da morte de um apóstolo e da fuga de outro. Fala a respeito de Jeová e das medidas que ele tomou para frustrar as tentativas de Satanás de destruir a congregação cristã e de acabar com a pregação. Esses ataques de Satanás falharam. Todas as suas tramas futuras contra o povo de Jeová também falharão. (Isa. 54:17) No entanto, aqueles que ficam do lado de Jeová e de Jesus Cristo participam de uma obra que nunca vai falhar. Isso não é encorajador? Que grande privilégio é ajudarmos a espalhar "a palavra de Jeová" hoje!

ATOS 13:4

Nesta seção, acompanharemos o apóstolo Paulo em sua primeira viagem missionária. Em uma cidade após outra, o apóstolo foi perseguido. Mesmo assim, guiado pelo espírito santo, ele continuou a dar testemunho, formando novas congregações. Esse relato emocionante certamente nos incentivará a ter ainda mais zelo em nosso ministério.

CAPÍTULO 11

"Cheios de alegria e de espírito santo"

O exemplo de Paulo em lidar com pessoas hostis que rejeitaram a mensagem

Baseado em Atos 13:1-52

É UM dia emocionante para a congregação em Antioquia. De todos os profetas e instrutores ali, Barnabé e Saulo acabam de ser escolhidos pelo espírito santo para levar as boas novas a lugares distantes.* (Atos 13:1, 2) É verdade que homens qualificados já foram enviados como missionários antes, só que foram designados a regiões onde o cristianismo já estava estabelecido. (Atos 8:14; 11:22) Dessa vez, Barnabé e Saulo — junto com João Marcos, que servirá como assistente — serão enviados a lugares onde as pessoas praticamente nunca ouviram as boas novas.

[2] Uns 14 anos antes, Jesus disse a seus seguidores: "Sereis testemunhas de mim tanto em Jerusalém como em

1, 2. O que havia de especial na viagem que Barnabé e Saulo estavam para fazer, e como seu trabalho ajudaria no cumprimento de Atos 1:8?

BARNABÉ — "FILHO DE CONSOLO"

Um membro destacado da primeira congregação de Jerusalém era José, um levita natural de Chipre. Os apóstolos deram-lhe outro nome que descrevia bem sua personalidade: Barnabé, que significa "Filho de Consolo". (Atos 4:36) Quando Barnabé via uma necessidade entre seus companheiros de adoração, ele logo procurava supri-la.

No Pentecostes de 33 EC, foram batizados 3 mil novos discípulos. É provável que muitos desses tenham ido a Jerusalém apenas para a festividade e não planejassem ficar ali por muito tempo. A congregação precisava de recursos para cuidar dessa multidão. Portanto, Barnabé vendeu um pedaço de terra e generosamente entregou o dinheiro aos apóstolos como contribuição. — Atos 4:32-37.

Barnabé era um superintendente cristão maduro e gostava muito de ajudar outros. Foi ele que ajudou o recém-convertido Saulo de Tarso quando todos os outros discípulos temiam este ex-perseguidor por causa de sua reputação anterior. (Atos 9:26, 27) Barnabé demonstrou humildade quando Paulo repreendeu a ele e a Pedro na questão do relacionamento apropriado entre cristãos judeus e gentios. (Gál. 2:9, 11-14) Esses poucos exemplos mostram que Barnabé realmente fazia jus ao seu nome — "Filho de Consolo".

toda a Judeia e Samaria, e até à parte mais distante da terra." (Atos 1:8) A designação de Barnabé e Saulo para servir como missionários dará um grande impulso ao cumprimento dessas palavras proféticas de Jesus.*

Separados "para a obra" (Atos 13:1-12)

[3] Hoje, graças a invenções como o automóvel e o avião, as pessoas podem viajar grandes distâncias em apenas uma ou duas horas. Mas não era assim no primeiro século EC. Naquela época, a principal forma de viajar por terra era caminhar, muitas vezes por terrenos acidentados. Um dia de viagem, em que normalmente a pessoa percorria apenas uns 30 quilômetros, era muito cansativo.# Assim, apesar de Barnabé e Saulo certamente estarem ansiosos para começar sua designação, eles sabiam que seria necessário muito esforço e abnegação para cumpri-la. — Mat. 16:24.

NAS ESTRADAS

No mundo antigo, viajar por terra era mais demorado, cansativo e, provavelmente, mais caro do que viajar por mar. No entanto, a única maneira de chegar a muitos lugares era a pé.

Um viajante podia caminhar cerca de 30 quilômetros por dia. Ele ficava exposto às condições climáticas — sol, chuva, calor e frio — e a ataques de ladrões. O apóstolo Paulo disse que, durante suas muitas viagens, ficou várias vezes "em perigos de rios, em perigos de salteadores de estradas". — 2 Cor. 11:26.

Uma ampla rede de estradas pavimentadas atravessava o Império Romano. Ao longo das principais estradas, os viajantes podiam encontrar hospedarias que ficavam a um dia de viagem uma da outra. Entre as hospedarias havia tabernas onde se podiam obter suprimentos básicos. Escritores da época descrevem essas hospedarias e tabernas como lugares sujos, superlotados, úmidos e infestados de pulgas. Eram lugares de má reputação, frequentados por pessoas da pior espécie. Os proprietários das hospedarias muitas vezes roubavam os viajantes e incluíam a prostituição entre os serviços que ofereciam.

Os cristãos com certeza faziam de tudo para ficar longe desses lugares. Mas, quando viajavam por terras onde não tinham familiares nem conhecidos, eles praticamente não tinham alternativa.

obra"? (Atos 13:2) A Bíblia não diz. Mas sabemos que o espírito santo orientou a escolha desses homens. Não há indicação de que os profetas e instrutores em Antioquia tenham contestado essa decisão. Em vez disso, eles deram pleno apoio à designação. Imagine como Barnabé e Saulo devem ter se sentido quando seus irmãos espirituais, sem invejá-los, 'jejuaram e oraram, e puseram as suas mãos sobre eles e os deixaram ir'. (Atos 13:3) Nós também devemos apoiar aqueles que recebem designações teocráticas, incluindo os homens designados como superintendentes nas congregações. Em vez de termos inveja dos que recebem esses privilégios, devemos 'dar-lhes mais do que extraordinária consideração em amor, por causa do seu trabalho'. — 1 Tes. 5:13.

estava ansioso para levar as boas novas às pessoas em sua terra natal. Ao chegarem a Salamina, uma cidade na costa leste da ilha, esses homens não perderam tempo. Imediatamente, eles "começaram a publicar a palavra de Deus nas sinagogas dos judeus".* (Atos 13:5) Barnabé e Saulo viajaram de uma ponta a outra de Chipre, provavelmente dando testemunho nas principais cidades ao longo do caminho. Dependendo da rota que seguiram, esses missionários talvez tenham caminhado uns 220 quilômetros.

6 A Chipre do primeiro século estava mergulhada na adoração falsa. Isso ficou ainda mais evidente quando Barnabé e Saulo chegaram a Pafos, na costa oeste da ilha. Ali, eles encontraram certo homem que era "feiticeiro, falso profeta, um judeu cujo nome era Barjesus, e ele estava com o procônsul Sérgio Paulo, homem inteligente".# No primeiro século, muitos romanos cultos — até mesmo alguém como Sérgio Paulo, um "homem inteligente" — costumavam recorrer

NAS SINAGOGAS DOS JUDEUS

A palavra "sinagoga" significa literalmente "ajuntamento". A princípio, referia-se a uma reunião ou congregação de judeus e com o tempo passou a significar o local onde a reunião era realizada.

Acredita-se que as primeiras sinagogas tenham sido formadas durante ou imediatamente após os 70 anos de exílio dos judeus em Babilônia. As sinagogas eram lugares para instrução, adoração, leitura das Escrituras e orientação espiritual. No primeiro século EC, cada cidade na Palestina tinha sua própria sinagoga. Cidades maiores tinham mais de uma, e Jerusalém tinha muitas.

Após o exílio babilônico, porém, nem todos os judeus voltaram para a Palestina. Muitos se mudaram para outros países por motivos comerciais. Já no quinto século AEC, havia comunidades judaicas nos 127 distritos jurisdicionais do Império Persa. (Ester 1:1; 3:8) Com o tempo, comunidades judaicas também se desenvolveram nas cidades ao redor do Mediterrâneo. Essa dispersão dos judeus ficou conhecida como Diáspora. Esses judeus também formaram sinagogas em todos os lugares onde se estabeleceram.

Nas sinagogas, a Lei era lida e explicada todo sábado. As leituras eram feitas em uma tribuna, que ficava cercada em três lados por assentos. Qualquer homem judeu devoto podia participar na leitura e em dar instrução e orientação espiritual.

a feiticeiros ou astrólogos em busca de ajuda para tomar decisões importantes. Mesmo assim, Sérgio Paulo ficou impressionado com a mensagem do Reino e 'buscou seriamente ouvir a palavra de Deus'. Mas quem não gostou nada disso foi Barjesus, também conhecido pelo título Elimas, que significa "Feiticeiro". — Atos 13:6-8.

[7] Barjesus era contra a mensagem do Reino. Ele sabia que a única maneira de proteger sua influente posição como conselheiro de Sérgio Paulo era "desviar da fé o procônsul". (Atos 13:8) Mas Saulo não permitiria que um mágico da corte desviasse o interesse de Sérgio Paulo. Então, o que Saulo fez? O relato diz: "Saulo, que é também Paulo, ficando cheio de espírito santo, olhou para [Barjesus] atentamente e disse: 'Ó homem cheio de toda sorte de fraude e de toda sorte de vilania, ó filho do Diabo, inimigo de tudo o que é justo, não cessarás de torcer os caminhos direitos de Jeová? Pois bem, eis que a mão de Jeová está sobre ti e ficarás cego, não vendo a luz do sol por um período de tempo.' Densa névoa e escuridão caíram instantaneamente sobre ele, e ele andava em volta buscando homens para o conduzirem pela mão."* Qual foi o resultado desse acontecimento milagroso? "O procônsul, vendo então o que tinha acontecido, tornou-se crente, pois ficou assombrado com o ensino de Jeová." — Atos 13:9-12.

[8] Paulo não se sentiu intimidado por Barjesus. Da mesma forma, não devemos sentir-nos intimidados quando opositores tentam minar a fé daqueles que demonstram interesse na mensagem do Reino. É claro que nossas palavras devem 'ser sempre com graça, temperadas com sal'. (Col. 4:6) Por outro lado, não queremos prejudicar o progresso espiritual de uma pessoa interessada apenas para evitar conflito com opositores. Também não devemos permitir que o medo nos impeça de desmascarar a religião falsa, que ainda persiste em "torcer os caminhos direitos de Jeová" assim como Barjesus fez. (Atos 13:10) Como Paulo, declaremos com coragem a verdade,

* A partir desse momento, Saulo começou a usar o nome Paulo. Alguns sugerem que ele adotou esse nome romano em homenagem a Sérgio Paulo. Mas o fato de que ele continuou a usar o nome Paulo mesmo depois de partir de Chipre leva a outra explicação: Paulo, "apóstolo para as nações", decidiu dali em diante usar seu nome romano, que ele provavelmente tinha desde a infância. Pode ser que ele também tenha usado o nome Paulo porque a pronúncia grega de seu nome hebraico, Saulo, é bem parecida com a de uma palavra grega que tem má conotação. — Rom. 11:13.

8. Como podemos imitar a coragem de Paulo?

esforçando-nos para tocar o coração dos sinceros. E, mesmo que o apoio de Deus não pareça tão evidente como foi no caso de Paulo, podemos ter certeza de que Jeová usará seu espírito santo para atrair à verdade os merecedores. — João 6:44.

Uma "palavra de encorajamento" (Atos 13:13-43)

[9] Pelo visto, ocorreu uma mudança quando os homens partiram de Pafos rumo a Perge, na costa da Ásia Menor — uma viagem de aproximadamente 250 quilômetros pelo mar. Em Atos 13:13, esse grupo é identificado como "os homens, junto com Paulo". Essas palavras sugerem que Paulo passou a liderar o grupo. Mas nada indica que Barnabé tenha ficado com inveja de Paulo. Ao contrário, esses dois homens continuaram a trabalhar juntos para fazer a vontade de Jeová. Paulo e Barnabé estabeleceram um excelente exemplo para os que hoje exercem liderança na congregação. Em vez de competirem entre si em busca de destaque, os cristãos lembram-se das palavras de Jesus: "Todos vós sois irmãos." Ele acrescentou: "Quem se enaltecer, será humilhado, e quem se humilhar, será enaltecido." — Mat. 23:8, 12.

9. Como Paulo e Barnabé estabeleceram um excelente exemplo para os que hoje exercem liderança na congregação?

[10] Quando o grupo chegou a Perge, João Marcos deixou Paulo e Barnabé e voltou para Jerusalém. O motivo de ele ter ido embora de repente não é mencionado. Paulo e Barnabé seguiram viagem, indo de Perge a Antioquia da Pisídia, uma cidade na província da Galácia. Essa não era uma viagem fácil, visto que Antioquia da Pisídia ficava a cerca de 1.100 metros acima do nível do mar. As estradas nas montanhas eram acidentadas e perigosas, além de conhecidas por haver muitos assaltantes. Como se isso não bastasse, a essa altura Paulo provavelmente enfrentava problemas de saúde.*

[11] Em Antioquia da Pisídia, Paulo e Barnabé entraram na sinagoga no sábado. O relato diz: "Depois da leitura pública da Lei e dos Profetas, os presidentes da sinagoga mandaram dizer-lhes: 'Homens, irmãos, se tiverdes alguma palavra de encorajamento para o povo, dizei-a.'" (Atos 13:15) Paulo levantou-se para falar.

* A carta de Paulo aos gálatas foi escrita alguns anos mais tarde. Nessa carta, Paulo escreveu: "Foi por intermédio de uma doença da minha carne que eu vos declarei as boas novas pela primeira vez." — Gál. 4:13.

10. Descreva a viagem desde Perge até Antioquia da Pisídia.
11, 12. Ao falar na sinagoga em Antioquia da Pisídia, como Paulo despertou o interesse da assistência?

[12] Paulo iniciou seu discurso dizendo: "Homens, israelitas e vós outros que temeis a Deus." (Atos 13:16) Isso mostra que a assistência era composta de judeus e prosélitos. Como Paulo despertou o interesse dessas pessoas, que não reconheciam o papel desempenhado por Jesus no propósito de Deus? Primeiro, Paulo fez um resumo da história da nação judaica. Ele explicou de que maneira Jeová "enalteceu o povo durante a sua residência como forasteiros na terra do Egito" e como, depois da libertação do povo, Deus "suportou a . . . maneira de agir [deles] no ermo" por 40 anos. Paulo também disse como os israelitas conseguiram tomar posse da Terra Prometida e de que modo Jeová "distribuiu-lhes a terra por sorte". (Atos 13:17-19) Alguns sugerem que Paulo fazia alusão a certos trechos das Escrituras que haviam sido lidos momentos antes como parte da observância do sábado. Se isso for verdade, esse é ainda outro exemplo que mostra que Paulo sabia 'tornar-se todas as coisas para pessoas de toda sorte'. — 1 Cor. 9:22.

[13] Nós também devemos esforçar-nos a despertar o interesse daqueles a quem pregamos. Por exemplo, saber a formação religiosa da pessoa pode nos ajudar a escolher assuntos que sejam de especial interesse para ela. Além disso, podemos citar passagens da Bíblia que ela talvez conheça. Também pode ser útil pedir que a pessoa leia na própria Bíblia dela. Procure maneiras de despertar o interesse de seus ouvintes.

14 A seguir, Paulo considerou como a linhagem dos reis israelitas levou a "um salvador, Jesus", cujo precursor foi João Batista. Daí, Paulo descreveu como Jesus foi morto e ressuscitado. (Atos 13:20-37) "Sabei, portanto", disse Paulo, "que por intermédio Deste se publica a vós o perdão de pecados . . . Todo aquele que crê é declarado inculpe por meio Deste". Então o apóstolo deu a seus ouvintes o seguinte aviso: "Cuidai de que aquilo que se disse nos Profetas não venha sobre vós: 'Observai-o, desdenhadores, e admirai-vos disso, e desaparecei, porque estou fazendo uma obra nos vossos dias, uma obra que de modo algum acreditareis, mesmo que alguém a relatasse a vós em pormenores.' " A reação ao discurso de Paulo foi impressionante. "O povo começou a suplicar que se lhes falasse destes assuntos no sábado seguinte", diz a Bíblia. Além disso, depois que a reunião na sinagoga acabou, "muitos dos judeus e dos prosélitos que adoravam a Deus seguiram a Paulo e Barnabé". — Atos 13:38-43.

Nós "nos voltamos para as nações" (Atos 13:44-52)

[15] No sábado seguinte, "quase toda a cidade" se reuniu para escutar Paulo. Isso não agradou alguns judeus, que "começaram a contradizer de modo blasfemo as coisas faladas por Paulo". Corajosamente, Paulo e Barnabé disseram-lhes: "Era necessário que a palavra de Deus fosse falada primeiro a vós. Visto que a repelis e não vos julgais dignos da vida eterna, eis que nos voltamos para as nações. De fato, Jeová nos tem imposto o mandamento nas seguintes palavras: 'Eu te designei como luz das nações, para que sejas uma salvação até à extremidade da terra.'" — Atos 13:44-47; Isa. 49:6.

[16] Os gentios alegraram-se, e "todos os corretamente dispostos para com a vida eterna tornaram-se crentes". (Atos 13:48) Logo a palavra de Jeová se espalhou por todo o país. Mas, como vimos, a reação dos judeus foi bem diferente. Na verdade, os missionários disseram a eles que, embora a palavra de Deus lhes tivesse sido falada primeiro, eles escolheram rejeitar o Messias e, por isso, sofreriam o julgamento adverso de Deus. Os judeus instigaram as mulheres bem-conceituadas e os homens de destaque da cidade e eles "levantaram uma perseguição contra Paulo e Barnabé, e lançaram-nos fora dos seus termos". Como Paulo e Barnabé reagiram? "Sacudiram contra eles o pó dos seus pés e foram para Icônio." Será que esse foi o fim do cristianismo em Antioquia da Pisídia? Claro que não! Os discípulos que permaneceram ali 'continuaram cheios de alegria e de espírito santo'. — Atos 13:50-52.

17 O modo como esses discípulos fiéis reagiram à oposição nos ensina uma valiosa lição. Não paramos de pregar mesmo quando pessoas de destaque neste mundo tentam nos fazer desistir de proclamar a nossa mensagem. Observe também que, quando as pessoas em Antioquia rejeitaram a mensagem, Paulo e Barnabé 'sacudiram o pó dos seus pés'. Esse gesto não indicava que eles estavam com raiva. Em vez disso, significava que eles não se responsabilizavam pelo que aconteceria com as pessoas. Esses missionários perceberam que não podiam controlar a reação de outros. Mas podiam controlar se continuariam a pregar. Eles com certeza não deixaram de pregar quando foram para Icônio!

18 E que dizer dos discípulos que permaneceram em Antioquia? É verdade que o território deles era hostil. Mas sua alegria não dependia da receptividade das pessoas. Jesus disse: "Felizes são os que ouvem a palavra de Deus e a guardam!" (Luc. 11:28) E era exatamente isso que os discípulos em Antioquia da Pisídia estavam decididos a fazer.

19 Assim como Paulo e Barnabé, sempre nos lembremos de que nossa responsabilidade é pregar as boas novas. A decisão de aceitar ou rejeitar a mensagem depende exclusivamente de nossos ouvintes. Se aqueles a quem pregamos não parecem receptivos, podemos aprender uma lição dos discípulos do primeiro século. Por prezarmos a verdade e permitirmos que o espírito santo nos guie, nós também podemos ter alegria, mesmo diante de oposição. — Gál. 5:18, 22.

“Falando com denodo pela autoridade de Jeová”

Paulo e Barnabé demonstram humildade, perseverança e coragem

Baseado em Atos 14:1-28

A CIDADE de Listra está em confusão. Um homem manco de nascença pula de alegria depois de ser curado por dois estranhos. As pessoas suspiram de admiração, e um sacerdote de Zeus traz coroas de flores para os dois homens, que a multidão acredita serem deuses. Touros bufam e berram enquanto o sacerdote faz preparativos para sacrificá-los aos homens. Paulo e Barnabé gritam protestos e rasgam suas vestes. Daí pulam para o meio da multidão e imploram para que não sejam adorados. Mesmo assim, mal conseguem impedir a multidão de fazer isso.

[2] Então, opositores judeus chegam de Antioquia da Pisídia e de Icônio. Por meio de calúnias, eles envenenam a mente dos habitantes de Listra. A mesma multidão que antes queria adorar a Paulo agora o cerca e atira-lhe pedras até ele perder a consciência. Depois de darem vazão à sua ira, eles arrastam o corpo ferido de Paulo para fora dos portões da cidade e o deixam ali, achando que ele está morto.

[3] O que levou a esse incidente dramático? O que os atuais proclamadores das boas novas podem aprender dos eventos que envolveram Barnabé, Paulo e os instáveis habitantes de Listra? E como os anciãos cristãos podem imitar o exemplo deixado por Barnabé e Paulo, que perseveraram fielmente em seu ministério, "falando com denodo pela autoridade de Jeová"? — Atos 14:3.

'Uma grande multidão se tornou crente' (Atos 14:1-7)

[4] Não muitos dias antes, Paulo e Barnabé haviam sido expulsos da cidade romana de Antioquia da Pisídia depois que opositores judeus lhes causaram problemas. Mas, em vez de ficarem desanimados, os dois homens 'sacudiram o pó dos seus pés' contra os habitantes da cidade que não eram receptivos à mensagem. (Atos 13:50-52; Mat. 10:14) Paulo e Barnabé partiram pacificamente, deixando aqueles opositores entregues às consequências que viriam da parte de Deus. (Atos 18:5, 6; 20:26) Sem perder a alegria, aqueles dois missionários continuaram sua viagem de pregação. Caminhando cerca de 150 quilômetros em direção ao sudeste, eles chegaram a um planalto fértil localizado entre os montes Tauro e os montes Sultão.

5 Inicialmente, Paulo e Barnabé pararam em Icônio, uma das principais cidades da província romana da Galácia. Diferentemente das outras cidades da região, Icônio era influenciada pela cultura grega.* Nessa cidade havia uma influente população judaica e um grande número de prosélitos. Como era seu costume, Paulo e Barnabé entraram na sinagoga e começaram a pregar. (Atos 13:5, 14) Eles "falaram de tal maneira, que uma grande multidão, tanto de judeus como de gregos, se tornaram crentes". — Atos 14:1.

6 Por que a maneira de Paulo e Barnabé falar era tão eficaz? Paulo era um poço de sabedoria das Escrituras. Com habilidade, ele citava história, profecias e a Lei mosaica para provar que Jesus era o prometido

* Veja o quadro "Icônio — cidade dos frígios", na página 180.

6. Por que Paulo e Barnabé eram instrutores eficazes, e como podemos imitá-los?

ICÔNIO — CIDADE DOS FRÍGIOS

Icônio estava localizada num planalto bem irrigado e fértil e ficava num cruzamento de uma importante rota comercial que ligava a Síria com Roma, Grécia e a província romana da Ásia.

A religião local baseava-se na adoração de Cibele, a deusa frígia da fertilidade, e, durante o período helenístico, incorporou traços da adoração praticada pelos gregos. A cidade veio a ficar sob domínio romano em 65 AEC e, no primeiro século EC, era um grande e próspero centro comercial e agrícola. Embora Icônio fosse o lar de uma influente população judaica, a cidade parece ter preservado as características da cultura grega adquiridas durante o período helenístico. O relato de Atos, na verdade, fala de habitantes judeus e “gregos”. — Atos 14:1.

Icônio ficava na fronteira entre as regiões da Licaônia e da Frígia, na Galácia. Certos escritores antigos, como Cícero e Estrabão, chamaram Icônio de cidade da Licaônia, e, do ponto de vista geográfico, a cidade realmente pertencia a essa região. No entanto, o relato de Atos não inclui Icônio como parte da Licaônia, onde a “língua licaônica” era falada. (Atos 14:1-6, 11) Por essa razão, críticos argumentavam que o relato de Atos não era exato. Mas, em 1910, arqueólogos descobriram inscrições na cidade indicando que o frígio foi o idioma falado em Icônio por dois séculos após a visita de Paulo e Barnabé. Assim, o escritor do livro de Atos estava correto em distinguir Icônio das cidades da Licaônia.

Messias. (Atos 13:15-31; 26:22, 23) Quanto a Barnabé, era bem evidente seu interesse pelas pessoas. (Atos 4:36, 37; 9:27; 11:23, 24) Nenhum dos dois confiava em seu próprio entendimento, mas eles falavam "pela autoridade de Jeová". Como você pode imitar esses missionários em sua pregação? Conheça bem a Palavra de Deus. Selecione textos bíblicos que sejam de maior interesse para seus ouvintes. Procure maneiras práticas de consolar aqueles a quem você prega. E sempre baseie seu ensino na autoridade da Palavra de Jeová, não na sua própria sabedoria.

[7] Mas nem todos em Icônio ficaram felizes ao ouvir o que Paulo e Barnabé tinham a dizer. "Judeus que não criam", continuou Lucas, "atiçavam e influenciavam injustamente as almas das pessoas das nações contra os irmãos". Percebendo que era necessário ficar ali e defender as boas novas, Paulo e Barnabé 'passaram um tempo considerável falando com denodo'. Em resultado disso, "a multidão da cidade estava dividida, e alguns eram a favor dos judeus, mas outros a favor dos apóstolos". (Atos 14:2-4) Hoje, as boas novas produzem resultados parecidos. Para alguns, elas são uma força unificadora; para outros, um motivo de divisão. (Mat. 10:34-36) Caso sua família esteja dividida por causa de sua obediência às boas novas, lembre-se de que a oposição muitas vezes é uma reação a boatos infundados ou a calúnias venenosas. Sua conduta excelente pode ser um antídoto para esse veneno e, com o tempo, pode abrandar o coração dos que se opõem a você. — 1 Ped. 2:12; 3:1, 2.

8 Depois de algum tempo, os opositores em Icônio tramaram apedrejar Paulo e Barnabé. Ao saberem disso, esses dois missionários decidiram ir pregar em outro território. (Atos 14:5-7) Hoje, os proclamadores do Reino também agem com prudência. Quando somos confrontados com ataques verbais, falamos com coragem. (Fil. 1:7; 1 Ped. 3:13-15) Mas, quando há ameaça de violência, evitamos fazer algo insensato que colo-

Voltem-se "para o Deus vivente" (Atos 14:8-19)

[9] Paulo e Barnabé seguiram para Listra, uma colônia romana cerca de 30 quilômetros a sudoeste de Icônio. Listra mantinha fortes relações com Antioquia da Pisídia, mas, diferentemente desta cidade, não tinha uma importante comunidade judaica. Embora seja provável que seus habitantes soubessem falar grego, a língua materna deles era o licaônico. Paulo e Barnabé começaram a pregar numa área pública, talvez porque não houvesse uma sinagoga na cidade. Assim como Pedro havia feito em Jerusalém, Paulo curou em Listra um homem manco de nascença. (Atos 14:8-10) Por causa do milagre que Pedro realizou, uma grande multidão aceitou a mensagem. (Atos 3:1-10) Mas, no caso do milagre realizado por Paulo, o resultado foi bem diferente.

[10] Conforme descrito no início deste capítulo, quando o homem manco pulou e começou a andar, a multidão em Listra, por ser pagã, imediatamente tirou uma conclusão errada. Eles se referiram a Barnabé como Zeus, principal deus grego, e a Paulo como Hermes, filho de Zeus e porta-voz dos deuses. (Veja o quadro "Listra e a adoração a Zeus e a Hermes", na página 186.) Barnabé e Paulo, porém, estavam determinados a fazer a multidão entender que eles falavam e agiam não pela autoridade de deuses pagãos, mas pela autoridade de Jeová, o único Deus verdadeiro. — Atos 14:11-14.

[11] Apesar daquelas circunstâncias dramáticas, Paulo e Barnabé ainda procuraram tocar o coração da assistência da melhor maneira possível. Com esse incidente, Lucas registrou uma forma eficaz de pregar as boas novas a pagãos. Observe como Paulo e Barnabé raciocinaram com seus ouvintes: "Homens, por que estais fazendo estas coisas? Nós também somos humanos, tendo os mesmos padecimentos que vós, e vos estamos declarando as boas novas, para que vos desvieis destas coisas vãs para o Deus vivente, que fez o céu e a terra, e o mar, e todas as coisas neles. Ele permitiu, nas gerações passadas, que todas as nações andassem nos seus próprios caminhos, embora, deveras, não se dei-xou sem testemunho, por fazer o bem, dando-vos chuvas do céu e estações frutíferas, enchendo os vossos corações plenamente de alimento e de bom ânimo." — Atos 14:15-17.

[12] Que lições podemos aprender dessas palavras que nos levam à reflexão? Primeiro, Paulo e Barnabé não se consideravam superiores aos que lhes escutavam. Eles não fingiram ser algo que não eram. Em vez disso, admitiram humildemente ter as mesmas fraquezas que seus ouvintes pagãos. É verdade que Paulo e Barnabé tinham recebido o espírito santo e sido libertados de ensinos falsos. Também haviam sido abençoados com a esperança de reinar com Cristo. Mas eles sabiam que os habitantes de Listra poderiam receber essas mesmas bênçãos se obedecessem a Cristo.

[13] Como encaramos as pessoas a quem pregamos? Será que as consideramos como pessoas iguais a nós? À medida que ajudamos outros a aprender as verdades da Palavra de Deus, será que nós, como Paulo e Barnabé, evitamos querer ser bajulados por outros? Charles Taze Russell, um destacado instrutor que tomou a frente na obra de pregação no final do século 19 e início do século 20, deu exemplo nesse respeito. Ele

LISTRA E A ADORAÇÃO A ZEUS E A HERMES

Listra estava localizada num vale isolado, afastado das principais estradas. César Augusto fez da cidade uma colônia romana, dando-lhe o nome Julia Felix Gemina Lustra. As tropas instaladas nessa cidade defendiam a província da Galácia contra tribos locais que viviam nas montanhas. Assim, a cidade era administrada de acordo com as leis civis romanas e seus funcionários tinham títulos latinos. Apesar disso, Listra conservou grande parte de suas tradições e permaneceu mais licaônica do que romana. Tanto é que os habitantes de Listra mencionados no relato de Atos falavam a língua licaônica.

Entre as descobertas arqueológicas feitas na região da antiga Listra estão inscrições que fazem referência aos "sacerdotes de Zeus" e uma estátua do deus Hermes. Um altar dedicado a Zeus e a Hermes também foi encontrado na mesma região.

Uma lenda escrita pelo poeta romano Ovídio (43 AEC a 17 EC) fornece informações que ajudam a entender melhor o relato de Atos. De acordo com Ovídio, Júpiter e Mercúrio, os equivalentes romanos aos deuses gregos Zeus e Hermes, visitaram a montanhosa região da Frígia disfarçados de homens mortais. Eles procuraram hospedagem em mil casas, mas ninguém os recebeu. Apenas um casal idoso, Filêmon e Baucis, ofereceu-lhes hospedagem em sua humilde cabana. Em resultado disso, Zeus e Hermes transformaram aquela cabana em um templo de mármore e ouro, fizeram do casal idoso sacerdote e sacerdotisa, e destruíram a casa daqueles que não lhes haviam oferecido hospedagem. "Caso os habitantes de Listra se tenham lembrado dessa lenda quando viram Paulo e Barnabé curar o homem manco", diz a obra The Book of Acts in Its Graeco-Roman Setting (O Livro de Atos no Contexto Greco-Romano), "não é de surpreender que eles quisessem recebê-los com sacrifícios".

escreveu: "Não queremos homenagem, nem reverência, para nós mesmos ou para nossos escritos; não desejamos ser chamados de Reverendo ou Rabino." O irmão Russell tinha a mesma atitude humilde de Paulo e Barnabé. De forma similar, nosso objetivo ao pregar não é glorificar a nós mesmos, mas ajudar as pessoas a se voltarem para "o Deus vivente".

14 Considere uma segunda lição que podemos aprender desse discurso. Paulo e Barnabé eram flexíveis. Diferentemente dos judeus e prosélitos em Icônio, os habitantes de Listra tinham pouco ou nenhum conhecimento das Escrituras ou dos tratos de Deus com a nação de Israel. Mas faziam parte de uma comunidade agrícola. Listra era abençoada com um clima ameno e um solo fértil. Aquelas pessoas podiam ver amplas evidências das qualidades do Criador, conforme reveladas em coisas como as estações frutíferas, e os missionários usaram esse ponto em comum ao raciocinar com elas. — Rom. 1:19, 20.

14-16. Que outras duas lições podemos aprender das palavras de Paulo e Barnabé aos habitantes de Listra?

[15] Será que também podemos ser flexíveis? Embora um agricultor possa plantar o mesmo tipo de semente em vários de seus campos, ele precisa usar métodos diferentes para preparar o solo. Em alguns campos, a terra talvez já esteja fofa, pronta para ser semeada. Em outros, pode ser que a terra precise ser preparada. De modo similar, a semente que plantamos sempre é a mesma: a mensagem do Reino encontrada na Palavra de Deus. No entanto, se formos como Paulo e Barnabé, tentaremos discernir a formação religiosa e as circunstâncias das pessoas a quem pregamos. Daí, basearemos nossa apresentação da mensagem do Reino nessas informações. — Luc. 8:11, 15.

[16] Podemos aprender uma terceira lição do relato envolvendo Paulo, Barnabé e os habitantes de Listra. Apesar de nossos melhores esforços, às vezes a semente que plantamos é 'arrebatada' ou cai em solo rochoso. (Mat. 13:18-21) Se isso acontecer, não desanime. Como Paulo mais tarde lembrou aos discípulos em Roma, "cada um de nós [incluindo cada pessoa com quem falamos sobre a Palavra de Deus] prestará contas de si mesmo a Deus". — Rom. 14:12.

"Encomendaram-nos a Jeová" (Atos 14:20-28)

[17] Depois que Paulo foi arrastado para fora de Listra e dado como morto, os discípulos o cercaram e ele se levantou e encontrou um lugar na cidade para passar a noite. No dia seguinte, Paulo e Barnabé iniciaram uma viagem de 100 quilômetros até Derbe. Mal podemos imaginar as dores que Paulo sentiu durante essa difícil viagem, tendo sido apedrejado poucas horas antes. Mesmo assim, ele e Barnabé perseveraram e quando chegaram a Derbe fizeram "não poucos discípulos". Daí, em vez de pegarem o caminho mais curto para Antioquia da Síria, que servia como uma espécie de base para as suas atividades, eles "voltaram a Listra, e a Icônio, e a Antioquia" da Pisídia. Com que objetivo? Para fortalecer "as almas dos discípulos, encorajando-os a permanecerem na fé". (Atos 14:20-22) Que grande exemplo esses dois homens estabeleceram! Eles colocaram as necessidades da congregação à frente de seus interesses pessoais. Atualmente, superintendentes viajantes e missionários seguem o exemplo deles.

[18] Além de fortalecer os discípulos com suas palavras e exemplo, Paulo e Barnabé designaram "anciãos em cada congregação". Apesar de terem sido "enviados pelo espírito santo" nessa viagem missionária, Paulo e Barnabé oraram e jejuaram quando 'encomendaram os anciãos a Jeová'. (Atos 13:1-4; 14:23) Hoje, segue-se um procedimento similar. Antes de fazer uma recomendação de designação, o corpo de anciãos local analisa com oração se o irmão em consideração satisfaz os requisitos bíblicos. (1 Tim. 3:1-10, 12, 13; Tito 1:5-9) O tempo em que a pessoa já está na verdade não é o principal requisito. Em vez disso, a maneira de falar, a conduta e a reputação da pessoa dão evidência de até que ponto o espírito santo opera em sua vida.

18. O que está envolvido na designação de anciãos?

Satisfazer os requisitos bíblicos para os superintendentes é o que determina se ele se qualifica para servir como pastor do rebanho. — Gál. 5:22, 23.

[19] Os anciãos designados sabem que prestarão contas a Deus pelo modo como cuidam da congregação. (Heb. 13:17; 1 Ped. 5:1-3) Como Paulo e Barnabé, os anciãos tomam a frente na obra de pregação. Por meio de palavras, eles fortalecem seus companheiros de adoração. E estão dispostos a colocar as necessidades da congregação à frente de seus interesses pessoais. — Fil. 2:3, 4.

[20] Quando finalmente Paulo e Barnabé retornaram a Antioquia da Síria, lugar que usavam como base para suas viagens missionárias, eles relataram "as muitas coisas que Deus tinha feito por meio deles, e que ele abrira às nações a porta da fé". (Atos 14:27) Ler sobre o trabalho fiel de nossos irmãos cristãos e ver como Jeová abençoou seus esforços vai nos encorajar a continuar "falando com denodo pela autoridade de Jeová".

Uma intensa controvérsia passou a ameaçar a paz e a união das congregações. A quem as congregações recorreram em busca de instruções e orientações para resolver a questão? Nesta seção, entenderemos melhor o modo como a congregação do primeiro século estava organizada, o que serve de modelo para o povo de Deus hoje.

"Havia ocorrido não pouca dissensão"

A questão da circuncisão é levada ao corpo governante

Baseado em Atos 15:1-12

CHEIOS de alegria, Paulo e Barnabé acabam de voltar para Antioquia da Síria depois de sua primeira viagem missionária. Eles estão entusiasmados, pois Jeová 'abriu às nações a porta da fé'. (Atos 14:26, 27) De fato, as pessoas em Antioquia não falam em outra coisa a não ser nas boas novas, e "um grande número" de gentios está se achegando à congregação nessa cidade. — Atos 11:20-26.

[2] A empolgante notícia sobre os muitos gentios que estão aceitando o cristianismo logo chega à Judeia. Mas, em vez de trazer alegria a todos, essa situação faz com que a já existente controvérsia sobre a circuncisão fique ainda mais evidente. Qual deveria ser a relação entre cristãos judeus e não judeus, e como estes últimos deveriam encarar a Lei mosaica? Essa questão causa tanta divergência que ameaça dividir a congregação cristã em facções. Como esse assunto será resolvido?

[3] À medida que considerarmos esse relato no livro de Atos, aprenderemos muitas lições valiosas. Isso poderá ajudar-nos a agir com sabedoria caso surjam assuntos com o potencial de causar divisão em nossos dias.

“A menos que sejais circuncidados” (Atos 15:1)

[4] O discípulo Lucas escreveu: “Certos homens desceram . . . da Judeia [para Antioquia] e começaram a ensinar os irmãos: ‘A menos que sejais circuncidados, segundo o costume de Moisés, não podeis ser salvos.’ ” (Atos 15:1) Não se menciona se esses “certos homens” haviam sido fariseus antes de se converterem ao cristianismo. Mas, no mínimo, parece que foram influenciados pelo modo de pensar legalista daquela seita judaica. Além disso, eles talvez tenham afirmado erroneamente que falavam em nome dos apóstolos e dos anciãos de Jerusalém. (Atos 15:23, 24) Mas por que os cristãos judeus ainda estavam promovendo a circuncisão uns 13 anos depois de Deus, por meio do apóstolo Pedro, ter acolhido os gentios incircuncisos na congregação cristã?* — Atos 10:24-29, 44-48.

5 Pode ter havido vários motivos. Primeiro, a circuncisão masculina foi instituída pelo próprio Jeová e era sinal de uma relação especial com ele. Instituída antes do pacto da Lei e mais tarde incorporada a esse pacto, a circuncisão começou com Abraão e sua família.# (Lev. 12:2, 3) Sob a Lei mosaica, até mesmo os estrangeiros tinham de ser circuncidados antes de poder ter certos privilégios, como o de participar da Páscoa. (Êxo. 12:43, 44, 48, 49) De fato, na mente dos judeus, um homem incircunciso era impuro, desprezível. — Isa. 52:1.

6 Assim, os cristãos judeus precisavam ter fé e humildade para se ajustarem à verdade revelada. O pacto da Lei havia sido substituído pelo novo pacto, de modo

# O pacto da circuncisão não era parte do pacto abraâmico, que vigora até hoje. O pacto abraâmico entrou em vigor em 1943 AEC quando Abraão (então Abrão) atravessou o rio Eufrates a caminho de Canaã. Ele tinha 75 anos naquela ocasião. O pacto da circuncisão foi feito mais tarde, em 1919 AEC, quando Abraão tinha 99 anos. — Gên. 12:1-8; 17:1, 9-14; Gál. 3:17.

A DOUTRINA DOS JUDAIZANTES

Mesmo depois de o corpo governante do primeiro século ter resolvido a questão da circuncisão, alguns que afirmavam ser cristãos obstinadamente continuaram a insistir no assunto. O apóstolo Paulo os chamou de "falsos irmãos" que queriam "desvirtuar as boas novas acerca do Cristo". — Gál. 1:7; 2:4; Tito 1:10.

Pelo visto, o objetivo dos judaizantes era acalmar os judeus, e assim evitar que se opusessem ao cristianismo de modo tão violento. (Gál. 6:12, 13) Os judaizantes insistiam que a pessoa só podia ser considerada justa se observasse a Lei mosaica em assuntos tais como alimentação, circuncisão e festividades judaicas. — Col. 2:16.

Evidentemente, aqueles que pensavam assim não se sentiam bem na presença de cristãos gentios. Infelizmente, até mesmo vários cristãos respeitados de formação judaica manifestavam essas atitudes prejudiciais. Por exemplo, quando representantes da congregação de Jerusalém visitaram Antioquia, eles se mantiveram separados de seus irmãos gentios. O próprio Pedro, que até então se associava livremente com os gentios, afastou-se deles — nem mesmo comendo com eles. De fato, ele agiu contra os mesmos princípios que havia defendido anteriormente. Em resultado disso, Pedro foi repreendido por Paulo. — Gál. 2:11-14.

que nascer como judeu não mais tornava alguém automaticamente membro do povo de Deus. E, para os cristãos judeus que viviam em comunidades judaicas, como era o caso dos cristãos na Judeia, era preciso coragem para reconhecer a Cristo e aceitar os gentios incircuncisos como irmãos espirituais. — Jer. 31:31-33; Luc. 22:20.
